Tiverton (2), tp., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Bunbury (q.v.), W. Chesh.; ac. 1,653. The Shropshire Union Canal passes near.

Tiverton Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Devon; it lies in the north-east of the co., and returns one member.

Tivetshall St. Margaret, pa. and vil., S. Norf. 5½ N.N.E. of Diss; ac. 1,634; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret is E. Eng.; the nave has a beautifully carved oak roof and is separated from the chancel by a handsome Elizabethan screen. There is a small bequest for the maintenance of the church and expenses attendant upon public worship. The Friends have a meeting-place with burial-ground attached, and there is a Wesleyan chapel. The fuel allotment of 6 ac. produces about £10 yearly. Here are very extensive maltings near the railway, with which they are connected by a siding. In this pa. is a magnificent oak called "Thwaites' Tree," measuring above 7 yds. in circumference.

Tivetshall St. Mary, pa. and vil., S. Norf., about 5½ N.N.E. of Diss; ac. 1,125; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. and Perp. The fuel allotment of 3 ac. is let at £8 yearly; there is also about ½ ac. of land, called "Saints Yard," let for 34s. yearly, 14s. of which is given to the poor in coal, and the remainder to the church; the poor have also 13s. 4d. yearly from another source.

Tividale, eccl. pa., pa. of Rowley Regis (q.v.), N. Staffs., adjoining Tipton on the south. The church of St. Michael is in E. Eng. style. Here are very extensive collieries, ironworks, foundries, and brick works, and a quarry which furnishes annually some thousands of tons of excellent material called "Rowley Rag," for repairing roads, which is forwarded by the Birmingham Canal to Birmingham, London, and other parts of the kingdom. There are also valuable mines here of the 30-ft. or "thick" coal, as well as ironstone mines. The Rowley Hills, of which Coxe's Rough, a mass of basaltic rock, forms part, afford a most extensive view of the S. Staffs. and E. Worcs. coal basins, overlooking both; the view from the hills, which are cultivated to the top and furnish excellent pasture, is at once grand and beautiful; the land, however, is much injured by the mining operations; at night the numerous fires of the collieries and ironworks illuminate the whole district.

Tivington, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Selworthy (q.v.), W. Somerset. There is a small chapel of early date.

Tixall, pa. and vil., pleasantly seated near the confluence of the Trent and Sowe, W. Staffs., 4 E. by S. of Stafford; ac. 2,312 and 57 water; soil loam and gravel, overlying rock and sandstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (rebuilt) is Dec. In the churchyard is an altar-tomb inscribed to Richard Biddulph, steward to the Astons (d. 1627, aged eighty-two), having faithfully served four successive members of the Aston family. There are two remarkable barrows, called the King's Low and Queen's Low, on T. Heath, which adjoins T. Park. An ancient hexagonal stone cross, 18 ft. in height, brought here from South Wales, stands in the vil.; it bears on each face the date 1778 and serves as a milestone. At T. Heath, on June 21, 1494, Sir William Chetwynd, gentleman-usher to Henry VII., by the connivance of Sir Humphrey Stanley, of Pipe, who was jealous of his influence, was treacherously attacked and slain by a body of about twenty persons, seven of whom belonged to Stanley's own family. T. Hall is a handsome mansion in the Classic style, erected in 1782–87. The park contains about 230 ac. of beautifully undulating and well-timbered land, and the canal, which runs in front of the Hall, was widened at this point by Mr. Clifford so as to form an extensive lake; the grounds were also laid out under the direction of the famous Lancelot (Capability) Browne. In front of the Hall is a magnificent gateway of Elizabethan date, erected in 1580 by Sir Walter Aston, and forming a rectangular structure with turrets at the angles; it is three storeys in height, the windows in each being separated by coupled columns of the Tuscan, Ionic, and Corinthian orders.

Gateway, Tixall Hall.

Tixover, pa. and vil. on the Welland, S.E. Rutld. 7 S.W. of Stamford; ac. 843; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Andrew or St. Mary Magdalen is Norm., and contains a 17th-cent. monument to Roger Dale. T. has a small charity. Here are the remains of a Roman villa. T. Grange and T. Hall are seats.

Toadmoor, ha., pa. of Duffield (q.v.), Mid Derbys. 1½ N.W. of Heage.

Toad's Mouth, block of gritstone, N. Derbys. 2 E.S.E. of Hathersage. The outline of the block bears a curious resemblance to a toad.

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tiverton (2)	Beeston Castle (1)	169	514
Tiverton Division	.....	.....	52763
Tivetshall St. Marg.	Tivetshall	101	368
Tivetshall St. Mary	Tivetshall (1)	101	303

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Tividale	Tipton (1)	121	[illegible]
Tixall	Colwich (3)	127	[illegible]
Tixover	Ketton (2)	97	[illegible]

Toames, small vil., pa. of Kilmichael (q.v.), W. co. Cork, Ir., about 4 S.S.W. of Macroom station. There is a Catholic church and a National school in the vil.

Tober (1), or Two Barrows, eminence (1,122 ft.), N.E. Cornw., 5½ S.E. of Camelford. T. is situated on the north side of Bodmin Moor, in the south-east vicinity of Brown Willy.

Tober (2), pa., Lower Talbotstown bar., N.W. co. Wick., Ir., 2 N.E. of Dunlavin; ac. 1,423.

Toberahesna, ha., pa. of Inishlounaght (q.v.), S. co. Tip., Ir., 2 S.W. of Clonmel.

Tobercurry, U. and mkt. to. (M.), pa. of Achonry (q.v.), S. co. Sligo, Ir., 10 S.W. of Ballymote station, on the high road from Sligo to Swinford. The to. consists principally of one long street, is the centre of a large agricultural district, and has an excellent market for grain, butter, and eggs. The places of worship are a Protestant church and one belonging to the Catholics. There is a large union workhouse outside the to.

Tobermoney, ha., pa. of Down (q.v.), S. co. Down, Ir., 3 S. of Downpatrick.

Tobermore, vil. on the Moyola, pa. of Kilcronaghan (q.v.), S.E. co. Londy., Ir., 3 S.W. of Londonderry.

Tobermory, q.s. pa. and small seaport, pa. of Kilninian and Kilmore (q.v.), Mull, W. Args., Sc.; it lies on the north side of a small bay opposite to and distant 3 miles from Drimnin in the western angle of Morven. T. was founded about 1788 by the British Fishery Society as a station for fishing boats, and derives its name from a celebrated well or spring called "Mary's Well." The to. is built on a series of terraces overlooking the harbour. The places of worship consist of an Established church, Free church, Scotch Episcopalian and Baptist churches. The Established church is somewhat plain, but occupies a commanding situation overlooking the bay and island; the public schools adjoin it, and there is also a female industrial school. The harbour is one of the safest among the Western isles, and is much frequented by steamers and sailing vessels. There are two quays; the first was erected in 1835, and a new quay and pier was constructed in 1864. As the only to. in Mull and a large circumjacent district, T. possesses much provincial importance, and is the seat of a considerable domestic trade. Above the to. are the County Buildings and the Temperance Institute. On the west side of the to. are the remains of an ancient chapel dedicated to the Virgin, and of a fortification.

Toberonichy, vil. on east coast of Luing Island, pa. of Kilbrandon and Kilchattan (q.v.), Mid Args., Sc., 15 S.S.W. of Oban. Here is an Episcopal mission church. T. has good quays with ample accommodation for lading and unlading vessels. There are slate quarries in the neighbourhood.

Toberscanavan, ha., pa. of Ballysadare (q.v.), Mid co. Sligo, Ir., 2 S.E. of Collooney.

Tockenham, pa., N. Wilts., 11 S.W. of Swindon; ac. 759; soil sandy, overlying rock. The church of St. John (restored 1876) is a small ancient Gothic stone structure; there is a handsome monument to the Goddard-Smith family (1692). The charities amount to about £16 yearly.

Tocketts, small but picturesque tp., pa. of and about 1 N.N.E. from Guisbrough (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 653. Here was an ancient chapel, dedicated to St. James, founded by the Toccotes or Tocketts family, many of whom were benefactors to the priory at Guisbrough, and flourished here as mesne lords for several generations.

Tockholes, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Blackburn (q.v.), Mid Lancs., 7 N.E. of Chorley; ac. 1,987. The church of St. Stephen was built 1833 in Gothic style. Here is a Congregational chapel. The charities amount to about £30 yearly. Several engagements were fought here during the Civil War.

Tockington, Lower, ha., pa. of Almondsbury (q.v.), S. Glouc., 4 S.E. of Thornbury.

Tockington, Upper, ha., pa. of Olveston (q.v.), S. Glouc., 3 S.W. of Thornbury. Fairs are held in May and December.

Tockwith, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Bilton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N.E. of Wetherby; ac. 1,814. The church of the Epiphany was built 1866 in E. Eng. style. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Todber (1), small pa., N. Dors., 5 S.W. of Shaftesbury; ac. 372; soil sand and loam, overlying green sandstone, which is worked for building purposes and metalling roads. The church (dedication unknown) was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1879, on the old site and in the original styles, partly E. Eng. and partly Perp. The communion table is formed of an old bevelled stone, found in the old floor, and from its size and mouldings evidently the old altar stone; it is now supported on massive pedestals of oak.

Todber (2), ha., pa. of Gisburne (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N.E. of Clitheroe.

Todburn, tp., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Long Horsley (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 693.

Toddington (1), pa. and ancient mkt. to. (S.), S. Beds., about 5 S.E. of Woburn; ac. about 5,390; soil marl and clay, overlying gravel. The to. has an ancient appearance and is very irregularly built. The church of St. George (restored) is a noble cruciform structure, chiefly E. Eng. and Perp.; the north aisle and transept, as well as the vestry, have a singular cornice, highly enriched with grotesque figures of human beings, beasts, and birds; the roof displays elaborately-carved figures of angels holding shields, wreaths, and other ornaments. In the south transept, under an arched recess in the south wall, are two tombs with recumbent effigies of marble, the westernmost being that of a knight in armour with surcoat of his arms, and on either side an angel holding across his breast an inscribed scroll; the figure represents Thomas Peyvre (1429); the other effigy is that of a female in mantle and richly jewelled

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tober (2)	Dunlavin (2)	31	193
Tobercurry	Tobercurry	142	910
Tobermore	Londonderry (3)	177	377
Tobermory, q.s. pa.	Oban (30)	504	1265
Tobermory, vil.	Oban (30)	504	1154
Tockenham	Wootton Bassett (3)	83	138
Tocketts	Guisbrough (1)	248	54
Tockholes, eccl. pa.	Cherry Tree (2)	210	599
Tockholes, tp.	Cherry Tree (2)	210	448
Tockwith, eccl. pa.	Hammerton (2½)	197	602
Tockwith, tp.	Hammerton (2½)	197	526
Todber (1)	Sturminster N. (3¼)	120	138
Todburn	Morpeth (7½)	288	17
Toddington (1)	Harlington (2)	37	2087

wreath, representing Margaret (Loring), wife of the preceding Thomas; the inscriptions are lost. Against the west wall is the cross-legged effigy of a knight with the arms of Peyvre, supposed to represent Nicholas Peyvre (1361–62), father of the above; another tomb, the sides of which are adorned with shields of arms, is inscribed to Anne (Broughton), 1561, wife of Sir Thomas Cheyne, Knight, K.G., Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports; the next is an alabaster tomb, now much mutilated and partly of brick, with an effigy in rich armour of Henry Cheyne, Baron Cheyne of T. (1587), son of the foregoing; and one more tomb bears the effigy of his wife Jane (Wentworth) (1614), attired in wimple and mantle. In the north transept are several tombs of the Wentworth family, who held the manor in the 17th and 18th cents., including one to Henrietta Maria, Baroness Wentworth (1686); on the opposite side is a large canopied mural monument to Maria (1632), eldest daughter of Thomas, Earl of Cleveland, and Ann (Crofts), his wife; here also are buried other members of the family of the same peer; there are also brasses to Thomas Claver, rector (1654), and Thomas Pennington, gent. (1643), and some fragments. Here are places of worship for Baptists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists. The straw-plait manufacture is carried on here to some extent. The market was originally held on Thursday, but has been changed. Fairs are held on April 25, the first Monday in June, November 2 and December 6, and a statute fair on the Wednesday before Old Michaelmas Day. There is a charity estate, comprising a small farm and house, which produces about £80 yearly; also a charge on a farm of £20 a year, for three widows. In a field in this pa. a number of antiquities, supposed to be Roman, were found—viz. black earthen pots filled with small bones, also spear-heads, swords, and iron helmets. T. Manor, a Tudor building, was at one time the residence of Henrietta Maria, Baroness Wentworth; an oak tree still exists in the park, on which her initials are carved.

Toddington (2), pa. and vil. on the Isborne, N. Glouc., 9 E. of Tewkesbury; ac. 1,768; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel The old church of St. Leonard, pulled down in 1877, was replaced by a building in E. Eng. style. Fruit is largely grown. T. House is a seat.

Todenham, pa. and vil., N.E. Glouc., 4 S. of Shipston-on-Stour; ac. 2,477; soil clay and gravel, subsoil clay and oolite. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is Dec.; there are sedilia, piscina, and remains of the rood-loft stairs in the chancel, where there is a brass to William Moulton (d 1614); a piscina and credence table in a chapel in the nave, and a chantry chapel attached to the chancel. There are some small charities. T. House is a seat.

Todhills, ha., pa. of Tealing (q.v.), S. Forfs., Sc., 6 N.E. of Dundee.

Todmorden, manufacturing U. and mkt. to., and head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., pas. of Rochdale and Whalley, E. Lancs., and Halifax, W.R. Yorks., 9 N.E. of Rochdale. The scenery of the winding vales leading from T. to Halifax, Rochdale, Burnley, and Manchester is very romantic. There are eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic chapel, a very fine Unitarian church, and places of worship for the principal Nonconformist bodies. The town hall, in the centre of the to. (1875), is a building of the Composite order; the pediment is filled in with figures emblematical of the industries of Lancs. and Yorks.; the large hall will seat over 1,000 people. The county court and petty sessions are held at the town hall, the offices of the local board, county court, and of the magistrates being within the same building. A bronze statue of the late John Fielden, M.P., by Foley (1875), stands on the north side of the town hall, and commemorates his persevering endeavours in obtaining the Ten Hours Act. The population is chiefly employed in cotton-spinning and the manufacture of cotton goods and fustian. There are some foundries and machine works, the latter being engaged mostly in the supply of machinery to manufacturers in the neighbourhood. The market day is on Saturday in each week, as well as on the first Thursday in each month for cattle. Two annual three-day fairs commence on the Thursday before Easter and on the last Thursday in September for cattle, pigs, and amusements. T. Hall, an ancient gabled mansion, occupied in the 16th and 17th cents. by the Radclyffes, is now divided for two families. Centre Vale, Dobroyd Castle, Scaitcliffe, and Stansfield Hall, a Tudor building, are seats.

THE TOWN HALL, TODMORDEN.
(Photo. Lord & Binns, Todmorden.)

Todmorden and Walsden, tp., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), E. Lancs., 6 E. of Bacup; ac. 4,053.

Todridge, tp., pa. of Hartburn (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., about 9 W. of Morpeth; ac. 60.

Todwick, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 8 N.W. of Worksop; ac. 1,757; soil heavy, overlying clay and gritstone. The church of SS. Peter and Paul was originally Saxon; it contains a monument to Sir Edward Wasteney (d. 1437).

Toe Head, headland, West Carbery bar., S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 5 S. by E. of Skibbereen.

Toem, pa., Upper Kilnamanagh and Clanwilliam bars., W. co. Tip., Ir., 6¼ N.W. of Tipperary;

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Toddington (2)	Beckford (4)	170	236
Todenham	Moreton-in-Marsh (3	91	349
Todmorden	Todmorden	203	24725
Todmorden & W.	Todmorden	203	8904

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop- LAT
Todridge	Scots Gap (1)	299
Todwick	Kiveton Park (2)	152
Toem	Dundrum (5)	190

12,777. The pa. is partly mountainous, rising in one part to 1,500 ft.

Toft (1), pa., W. Cambs., about 6½ S.W. of Cambridge; ac. 1,248; soil heavy clay, overlying granite and gault. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1863), beautifully situated, is Perp.; the chancel retains a small piscina and two aumbries; and in the south aisle is a niche and another piscina; the nave arcade and tower arch are good examples of Perp. work, and the nave has a magnificent roof, with ornamented tie beams; there are some ancient benches and a plain octagonal font; in the church are some memorials of the family of Eversden of Eversden; the tower fell in 1890. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Eversden's charity of £2 yearly is distributed in bread.

Toft (2), pa., N. Lincs, 4½ W. by S. of Market Rasen; ac. 1,290; soil loam and clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is modern.

Toft (3), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and about 2 S. from Knutsford (q.v.), Mid Chesh.; ac. 1,298. The church of St. John the Evangelist (1854) is in Gothic style. T. Hall, a fine old building of stuccoed brick, is a seat.

Toft (4), ha., pa. of Dunchurch (q.v.), E. Warws., 4½ S.W. of Rugby.

Toft and Lound, tp., pa. of Witham-on-the-Hill (q.v.), S. Lincs., 2½ S.W. of Bourn, on the road to Stamford; ac. 1,432.

Toft Hill, ha., pa. of Evenwood (q.v.), S. Dur., 7 S.W. of Bishop Auckland. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Toftingal, Loch, small lake, pa. of Watten (q.v.), Mid Caithness., Sc., 11 W. of Wick. The loch is ¾ mile long and 3 furlongs wide, and lies 235 ft. above the sea. It is surrounded by bleak moors.

Toft Monks, pa. and vil., S. Norf., 4 N.E. of Beccles; ac. 2,238, of which 600 are marsh and 76 woods and plantations; soil mixed heavy and light land, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1878) is Dec. The to. estate is now let for £42 yearly, £10 of which is applied in aid of the church, and the remainder in distributing coals among the poor.

Toft-next-Newton, or Newton-by-Toft, pa., Mid Lincs., 4 W.S.W. of Market Rasen; ac. 997; soil and subsoil clay. The Norm. church of St. Michael was almost wholly rebuilt 1860 in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Tofts, West, pa. and vil., S.W. Norf., 5 N.E. of Brandon; ac. 3,044; soil mixed clay and sand, overlying gravel and chalk. The church of St. Mary is of flint, with stone dressings, in E. Dec. style; the transept, north aisle, and porch have been rebuilt, and the interior of the church restored and elaborately decorated; it has two beautiful carved screens, that in the chancel being richly gilt; there are monuments to the Partridge families.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Toft (1)	Old North Road (2)	82	217
Toft (2)	Market Rasen (4)	145	81
Toft (3), eccl. pa.	Knutsford (2)	178	341
Toft (3), tp.	Knutsford (2)	178	208
Toft and Lound	Thurlby (1½)	93	137
Toft Monks	Aldeby (2)	112	390
Toft-next-Newton	Market Rasen (4)	145	68
Tofts, West	Brandon (5)	86	166

Toft Trees, pa., N.W. Norf., about 2 S.W. of Fakenham; ac. 1,163; soil various. The church of All Saints is an ancient edifice with a low unfinished tower; the font is Norm.

Togstone, tp., pa. of Warkworth (q.v.), E. Northumb., 1½ S.W. of Amble; ac. 1,079. There is an extensive colliery in this tp. T. Hall is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Tolethorpe Hall. [Casterton, Little.]

Tolka (1), vil. on the Tolka, pa. of Finglas (q.v.), Mid co. Dub., Ir., about 2 N.W. of Dublin.

Tolka (2), river, S.E. co. Meath and Mid co. Dub., Ir., rises in Ratoath bar., in the south vicinity of Dunshaughlin, and runs S.E. through Dunboyne bar. into co. Dublin, and then W.S.W. through Castleknock and Coolock bars. to Dublin Bay, which it enters in the north outskirts of Dublin. At its mouth it is crossed by a three-arched granite bridge.

Tolland, pa., W. Somerset, 4 N.E. of Wivelscombe; ac. 813; soil clay, ragg, and sand. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1872) is in E. Eng. style. There is a small charity. Gaulden Manor House, now a farmhouse, is internally of considerable interest; the principal entrance on the west opens into a passage leading on the right to a hall with a panelled plaster ceiling, enriched in the centre with a fine fluted pendant; a deep cornice running round the greater part of the walls exhibits various subjects from the Old and New Testaments; a door, over which are the initials "I. T.," leads into a withdrawing room; these initials are supposed to stand for James Turberville, Bishop of Exeter (1555–60), who is believed to have lived here in seclusion after his deprivation in 1559. At the back of the house, in an orchard, is a fish-pond, with an island therein.

Toll-an-Lochain, small lake, pa. of Lochbroom, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 7½ S.S.W. of Ullapool. The loch is a little under ½ mile in length from E. to W. The lofty cliffs, rising precipitously from the lake, give it a character of wild grandeur.

Tollard Royal, pa., tp., and vil., S. Wilts., 8 S.E. of Shaftesbury; ac. of pa. 2,807, of tp. 1,910; soil light and flinty, overlying chalk and flint. The church of St. Peter ad Vincula, or St. Peter in Chains (restored 1882), is an ancient edifice of stone; in the chancel is a memorial window to Lord and Lady Rivers, who died in April, 1866, within forty-eight hours of each other, and to one of their daughters, the wife of Captain Arbuthnot, who, while on her wedding tour in Switzerland, was struck dead by lightning, June 21, 1865, eight weeks after her marriage in this church. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Tollcross, to., pas. of Barony and Old Monkland (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc., 2 E. by S. of Glasgow. The places of worship include a Roman Catholic church and Free and United Presbyterian churches. The houses are mostly small plain buildings, but

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Toft Trees	Fakenham (1)	119	97
Togstone	Acklington (3½)	300	500
Tolka (1)	.....	.....	184
Tolland	Crowcombe (3)	167	107
Tollard Royal, pa.	Tisbury (7)	96	440
Tollard Royal, tp.	Tisbury (7)	96	247
Tollcross	Glasgow (3)	400	3856

there are several villas in the outskirts of the to. The greater part of the population is engaged in the ironworks and coal mines in the vicinity.

Toller Fratrum, pa. and vil. on the Frome, W. Dors., 9½ N.W. of Dorchester; ac. 500; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Basil is E. Eng. There is a small charity.

Toller Porcorum, pa. and vil., W. Dors., 10 W.N.W. of Dorchester; ac. 3,144; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Peter (chancel restored 1891) is Norm. There is a small charity and an endowment for the school.

Tollerton (1), pa. and vil., S. Notts., 4½ S.E. of Nottingham; ac. 1,216; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Peter contains a mausoleum, built in 1794, with memorials of the Barry family. There are cottages for the poor of the pa. T. Hall is a seat.

Tollerton (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Alne (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 S. of Easingwold; ac. 2,199. T. is situated upon the border of the ancient forest of Galtres, and near the banks of the small river Kyle, which is supposed to have been formerly navigable; in 1815 part of a vessel was found here. The Wesleyan chapel is a commodious structure. A fair is held on August 15 for sheep and cattle. There are corn mills, brick and tile fields, and malt-kilns.

Toller Whelme or Pinny, eccl. pa. and ha., pa. of Corscombe (q.v.), W. Dors., 1½ N.E. of Beaminster. The church of St. John (1870) is in Perp. style.

Tollesbury, pa. and vil. on the Blackwater, E. Essex, 12 S.E. of Witham; ac. 5,991 land, 3,139 water; soil variable, overlying loam and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1872) is E. Eng., and contains some memorials of the Gardiner family. The Congregationalists have a chapel. There is a small charity. T. is well known for its oyster beds.

Tolleshunt D'Arcy, pa. and vil. on the Blackwater, E. Essex, 9 S.E. of Witham; ac. 3,108 land, 380 water; soil variable, overlying loam and gravel. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1880) is Perp. and Dec.; in the D'Arcy chapel is the monument of John de Boys (d. 1419), and another to Anthony D'Arcy (d. 1540). The Congregationalists have a chapel. There is a charity of £22 yearly. A fair is held on June 11.

Tolleshunt Knights, pa. and vil., E. Essex, 8 S.E. of Witham; ac. 2,101; soil and subsoil heavy. All Saints' Church (restored 1878) is E. Eng.; in the chancel is a dilapidated effigy of a Knight Templar. The Congregationalists have a chapel. There are some small charities.

Tolleshunt Major, pa. and vil., E. Essex, 8 S.E. of Witham; ac. 2,270; soil variable, overlying loam and gravel. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1888) is Norm. and E. Eng.; the Higham memorials were removed in 1840; north of the chancel was a chapel containing a monument to Stephen Beckingham. Here is a Congregational chapel. Of the manor-house only an ancient brick gateway remains.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Toller Fratrum	Maiden Newton (1½)	145	30
Toller Porcorum	Maiden Newton (2¼)	145	417
Tollerton (1)	Nottingham (4½)	124	123
Tollerton (2)	Tollerton (2)	197	491
Toller Whelme	Sutton Bingham (5)	125	65
Tollesbury	Maldon (7)	44	1617

Tollie, Loch, lake, pa. of and 2½ N.E. from Gairloch, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc. The loch is about a mile long from east to west, and somewhat over ½ mile in width. The road from Gairloch to Poolewe passes along its north bank.

Tollington Park, dis., pa. of Islington (q.v.), in North London, E. Middx., 3¼ N. by W. of St. Paul's. The dis. includes the eccl. pas. of St. Mark and St. Saviour. The church of St. Mark (1854) is in E. Eng. style, and St. Saviour's (1888) in Dec. style.

Tolman Point, headland, on S. coast of St. Mary's Island, Scilly Isles, S.W. Cornw., 1 E. by S. of Hugh Town.

Tolmen, The. [Constantine.]

Tol-Pedn-Penwith, pl., pa. of and 1 S.W. from St. Levan (q.v.), S.W. Cornw.; the coast scenery is striking, and near here are the Funnel Rock, a natural chasm; the Chair Ladder, a pile of gigantic blocks of granite; and the Runnel Stone, a dangerous rock rising from the deep sea about a mile from the shore.

Tolpuddle, pa. and vil. on the Piddle, Mid Dors., 7 N.E. of Dorchester; ac. 2,040; soil light loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. John (restored 1855) is E. Eng. and Perp., and contains a piscina, squint, and portions of the rood-loft stairs. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Tolquhon Castle, ruin, pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Tarves (q.v.), Mid Abers., Sc. It was built about 1584–89.

Tolsta (1), vil. near Tolsta Head, pa. of and 11 N. by E. from Stornoway (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc. Here is a school.

Tolsta (2), bay and headland, pa. of and 12½ N.N.E. from Stornoway (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc. T. Head forms a promontory jutting out on the S.E. side of the bay.

Tomachaistel. [Monzievaird and Strowan.]

Tombae, pl., pa. of Inveravon (q.v.), S. Banffs., Sc., 4½ S.E. of Glenlivet. Here is a Roman Catholic church.

Tombeau du Grand Sarrazin, cromlech, pa. of Vale (q.v.), N.E. Guernsey, Channel Islands, 3¼ N.N.E. of St. Peter's Port. Urns, human bones, and other relics were found here below the soil in 1837. The name of the cromlech connects it with the "Sarrazins," a legendary band of pirates of unknown origin, whose leader is said to have resided in the Chateau du Grand Sarrazin, the site of which is now occupied by the church of Ste Marie de Castro, otherwise called the Casbel church; in reality the cromlech is, of course, much older.

Tomdeely, or Dromdeely, pa. on the Shannon, Lower Connello bar., N. co. Lim., Ir., 1½ S. of Askeaton; ac. 1,289.

Tomdown, pl. in Glengarry, pa. of Kilmonivaig (q.v.), S.W. Invs., Sc., 15 W.&W. of Fort Augustus. Here is an excellent inn on the road from Invergarry to Loch Duich.

Tomen-y-Muir, ancient encampment, N.W.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tolleshunt D'Arcy	Maldon (6)	44	870
Tolleshunt Knights	Kelvedon (5)	42	430
Tolleshunt Major	Maldon (4½)	44	405
Tolpuddle	Moreton (5)	129	388
Tolsta (1)	Oban (190)	504	699
Tomdeely	Askeaton (1½)	150	157

Merions., 2 s. of Festiniog. It is said that the camp is the Roman station, Hervii Mons, and that two Roman roads—one of them being the Sarn Helen—crossed one another in the neighbourhood. The station is 600 ft. in length and 400 ft. in breadth; the Agger remains on three sides, and at the north extremity there is a large mound. The summit commands wide views.

Tomfinlough, pa., Lower Bunratty bar., S. co. Clare, Ir., 4 N.W. of Six Mile Bridge; ac. 6,736. It contains the vil. of Newmarket-on-Fergus.

Tomgraney, pa. and vil., Upper Tulla bar., E. co. Clare, Ir.; ac. 14,158. The vil. is 8 N.W. of Killaloe, on the Scarriff inlet of Lough Derg. Steamers from Dublin and Limerick call at T. pier and Scarriff, and afford access to the fine scenery of Lough Derg. The pa. includes part of the Slieve Bernagh Mountains, reaching about 1,000 ft. The Protestant church is an old building, and there is also a Catholic church (1893). Raheens Manor is a seat.

Tomhaggard, pa., Bargy bar., S. co. Wex., Ir., 8 s. of Wexford, and extending to the sea; ac. 2,180. Bargy Castle, a fine old building, is a seat.

Tomich, ha., pa. of Kiltarlity and Convinth (q.v.), N. Invs., Sc., about 22 S.W. of Beauly.

Tomies (= "tumuli"), mountain (2,413 ft.), Dunkerron North bar., S. co. Kerry, Ir., 5 W.S.W. of Killarney. The rugged side of the mountain rises abruptly from the east side of the Gap of Dunloe (q.v.). The name is derived from two cairns at the summit.

Tomintoul, q.s. pa. and vil., pa. of Kirkmichael (q.v.), S.W. Banffs., Sc., 11 S.E. by E. of Grantown. The vil., consisting of a single street with a central square, is situated on high ground on the right bank of the Avon; it has grown up since the middle of the 18th cent. The places of worship include an Established church (erected 1826) and a Roman Catholic church (1837).

Tomnavoulin, pl., pa. of Inveravon (q.v.), S. Banffs., Sc., 8 S.E. of Ballindalloch.

Tomregan, pa., Lower Loughtee, Tullyshaw, and Knockninny bars., N. co. Cav. and S. co. Fermanagh, Ir.; ac. 10,677. It contains the to. of Ballyconnell (q.v.).

Tonbridge, or Tunbridge, pa. and ancient to., S.W. Kent, 5 N. of Tunbridge Wells; ac. 15,378. The pa. includes T. to., Southborough, and part of Tunbridge Wells. T. is seated in a valley on the banks of the Medway, over which is an iron bridge of three arches. T. owed much of its consequence in former days to its castle, built in the reign of Henry I.; this fortress, after having sustained several sieges, was dismantled during the civil wars, and is now in ruins, but a very fine tower gateway still remains in a perfect condition. The mound on which stood the keep is now covered with trees and underwood. Here was a priory of Augustinian canons, built by the founder of the castle. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1879) is E. Eng. with some Norm. remains; in the north aisle is a monument to Alexander Weller (1670), and near the altar a monument with effigies in alabaster to Sir Anthony Denton (1617), one of the honourable band of pensioners to Queen Elizabeth and James I., and his wife; there are also some modern monuments. T. has also a chapel-of-ease, an eccl. pa. with a modern church, a Free church, and places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The Grammar School was founded under a charter of King Edward VI. in 1553 by Sir Andrew Judd, Alderman and Lord Mayor of London, and the management is vested in the Master and Wardens of the Skinners' Company; the revenue amounts to about £5,000 yearly. It is now conducted under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners. The town hall and market-house stands in the centre of the to., and is an old and plain brick building with an illuminated clock; near it is a row of old timbered houses. The Public Hall, in the High Street, is in Italian style; the hall is used for concerts and meetings. The Free Library (formerly the Mechanics' Institute) was opened in 1882 and contains a reading-room and a good library; above it are the board room and offices of the local board. There are two groups of almshouses, and the charities for distribution in kind amount to £44 yearly. The traffic of the to., carried on by means of the railways and the Medway, is considerable; there are gunpowder mills on the banks of the river, breweries, corn mills, and a substantial trade is maintained in wool stapling. A cattle market, well supplied with fat and store stock, is held on Tuesdays, and a cattle fair is held in the last week in October. About ¼ mile from the to., on the Wells road, is a chalybeate spring, possessing all the properties of the waters of Tunbridge Wells. Somerhill Park is a seat in an undulating park of about 400 ac., to which the public are allowed free access.

Tonderghie, estate with mansion, pa. of and 3 s. from Whithorn (q.v.), S.E. Wigs., Sc.

Tondu, ha. with railway station, pa. of Newcastle (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 3 N. of Bridgend. The Wesleyans have a chapel, and there are extensive iron and coal works.

Tone (1), ha., pa. of Chollerton (q.v.), S. Northumb., 5 S.E. of Bellingham.

Tone (2), river, S.W. Somerset, rises in the Brendon Hills, and runs S. by E. by Clatworthy, Huish Champflowers, Chipstable, and Stawley, passing a short distance to the west of Wiveliscombe. On reaching the Dev. border it turns abruptly E.N.E., and runs past Thorne St. Margaret, Taunton, Creech St. Michael, North Curry, and Stoke St. Gregory to the Parret, which it joins at the Isle of Athelney. Between Thorne St. Margaret and Taunton it passes a little north of the to. of Wellington. It is navigable for barges as far as Creech St. Michael. Its length is about 29 miles.

Tonelagee, mountain (2,684 ft.), Ballinacor North bar., N. co. Wick., Ir., 6 S.E. of Ballyknockan. The mountain is 1 N.E. of Wicklow Gap.

Tong (1), pa. and vil., E. Salop, 20 E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 3,464; soil loam, overlying red sandstone.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tomfinlough	Newmarket	146	1375
Tomgraney, pa.	Killaloe (8)	138	2415
Tomgraney, vil.	Killaloe (8)	138	139
Tomhaggard	Wexford (8)	93	465
Tomintoul, q.s. pa.	Ballindalloch (15½)	556	695
Tomintoul, vil.	Ballindalloch (15½)	556	506
Tomregan	Ballyconnell	112	2089
Tonbridge, pa.	Tunbridge	28	41757
Tonbridge, to.	Tunbridge	28	10117
Tong (1)	Shiffnal (3½)	154	445

The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1892) is Perp., with oak ceiling, a fine screen, and some remains of ancient glass; in the chancel is a brass to Arthur Vernon, priest; the Vernon chantry chapel, which has a fine fan-vaulted roof, contains a panelled altar-tomb, believed to be that of Sir Richard Vernon (d. 1451); beneath the tower are some fine memorials of the Vernons and Pembruges; under the east window is the magnificent monument of Sir Thomas Stanley (1576), and among the other memorials are those of Mrs. Wylde (1624), Sir Richard Vernon of Haddon (1517), Sir William Vernon, Constable of England (1467), Ralph Elcok (1510), George Durant (1780), George Durant (1844), William Sheffington of White Ladies (1550); and Gervaise Lord Pierpont of Hanslope (1715) is buried here. In the churchyard is a sundial. The various charities amount to £102 yearly, and the school is endowed. T. Castle, a seat, is said to have been a residence of Hengist the Saxon; the present building was erected in the 18th cent. in Gothic and Moorish styles; Ruckley Grange is also a seat.

Tong (2), small pa. and vil. situated on the Swale and crossed in the centre by the old Watling Street from London to Dover, N.E. Kent, 1½ E. by N. of Sittingbourne; ac. 1,631 and 367 water; soil heavy and very fertile, overlying chalk. The church of St. Giles (restored 1883) is Norm. and E. Eng., with Dec. and Perp. insertions, and a bold and massive tower of early 13th-cent. work of an uncommon type; the rood-screen belongs to a peculiar type of which very few examples remain, and dates from not later than 1450; there are some curious fragments of glass in the west window, very small but finely painted. There is a charity of the yearly value of £10 12s. 6d., devoted to educational purposes. About ½ mile from the vil., on the north side of the public road to Canterbury, is the site of an old castle, consisting of a high mound surrounded partly by a dry moat. Scuttington Manor House is a seat.

Tong (3), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 W.S.W. of Leeds; ac. 2,657. The church of St. James was rebuilt in 1727, and St. John's erected in 1860. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, Methodist New Connexion, and Primitive Methodist chapels. T. has a small charity. Here are several coal pits. The pa. stocks still stand. T. Hall, built 1702, is a seat.

Tong (4), vil., pa. of and 4 N.E. from Stornoway (q.v.), Island of Lewis, Outer Hebrides, Ross and Crom., Sc.

Tonge (1), tp., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), Mid Lancs., adjoining Middleton, and containing Middleton railway station; ac. 392.

Tonge (2), ha. with railway station, pa. of Breedon-on-the-Hill (q.v.), N.W. Leics., 6 N.E. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch.

Tonge (3), stream, S. Lancs., rises near Belmont, flows S.E. for a short course, and uniting with another small stream near Bolton falls into the Irwell at Farnworth.

Tonge-cum-Breightmet, eccl. pa., pa. of Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., partly within the bor. of Bolton. The church of St. James (1855) is in Gothic style.

Tonge Moor, eccl. pa., pa. of Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., partly within the co. bor. of Bolton. The church of St. Augustine is a modern building in Dec. and Perp. styles.

Tonge-with-Alkrington, eccl. pa., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), Mid Lancs., adjoining Middleton. The church of St. Michael (1839) is a plain brick structure.

Tonge-with-Haulgh, tp., pa. of Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., partly within the bor. of Bolton; the area outside the bor. is 830 ac.

Tongham, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Farnham and Seal (q.v.), S.W. Surrey, 3 E. of Farnham. The church of St. Paul is in E. Eng. style. Poyle Park, a 16th-cent. mansion, in about 100 ac. of park and grass land, is a seat.

Tongland, or Tongueland, pa. and vil., S. Kirkcuds., Sc., about 3 N. of Kirkcudbright; ac. 9,738. The pa. church dates from 1814, and there is a Free church (1844) and a public school.

Tongue, pa. and vil., N. Suths., Sc.; ac. 81,037; the lands are chiefly in pasture. The pa. is divided into two portions for about half its length by the Kyle of Tongue, a deep inlet of the sea on the north coast. The vil. of T. lies on the east side of the loch, 5 miles from its mouth, and about 44 W. of Thurso.

Tongue Beach. [LULWORTH, WEST.]

Tongue End, ha., pa. of Bourn (q.v.), S. Lincs., about 3½ N.W. of Deeping St. Nicholas. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Tongue Gill Force, waterfall, N.W. Westmd., 1½ N. of Grasmere. The waterfall, though small, is extremely picturesque.

Tongue, Kyle of. [TONGUE.]

Tongueland. [TONGLAND.]

Tongue Sand, shoal in North Sea, off coast of Kent, near mouth of Thames, 7 N.W. of Margate. The sandbank is situated between Prince's Channel and Queen's Channel; on its north side is a light-vessel with two fixed lights, visible 7 and 10 miles respectively.

Tonna, ha., pa. of Neath (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., about 8 N.E. of Swansea.

Ton Pentre, or Ton Ystrad, ha. on the Rhondda, pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), N. Glamorgs., adjoining Ystrad station, which is 8 N.W. of Pontypridd. The church of St. David (1881) is a chapel-of-ease. There are Welsh Baptist, Welsh Calvinistic Methodist, English and Welsh Congregationalist chapels. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in collieries.

Tontine, ha., pa. of Wigan (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., ½ S. of Upholland.

Tonyglaskan, ha., pa. of Enniskillen (q.v.), Mid co. Ferm., Ir., 4 W. of Tempo.

Ton-y-Pandy, ha., pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), N. Glamorgs., 6 N.W. of Pontypridd. There are

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tong (2)	Teynham (1)	49	303
Tong (3)	Birkenshaw	187	6899
Tong (4)	Oban (184)	504	539
Tonge (1)	Middleton	190	8099
Tonge-cum-B.	Bolton (1¾)	196	2370
Tonge Moor	Bolton (1¼)	196	4587
Tonge-with-Alk.	Middleton	190	6171
Tonge-with-Haulgh	Bolton (1¾)	196	10735
Tongham	Tongham	37	1044
Tongland	Tarff (2)	359	845
Tongue	Lairg (42)	657	1925

chapels for English Baptists, Welsh Congregationalists, and English Wesleyans.

Ton-yr-Efail, ha., pa. of and 4 N. from Llantrissant (q.v.), E. Glamorgs. St. John's chapel-of-ease is in Gothic style. The Welsh Baptists, Calvinistic Methodists, and Bible Christians have chapels.

Tooley Park, ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Peckleton (q.v.), S.W. Leics.

Toomard, ha., pa. of Killian (q.v.), N.E. co. Galway, Ir., 5 S. of Mount Bellew.

Toombeola, coast ha., pa. of Moyrus (q.v.), W. co. Galway, 8 S.E. of Clifden.

Toome (1), pa. on the Bann, Gorey and Scarawalsh bars., N. co. Wex., Ir., 3 S.W. of Gorey; ac. 5,979.

Toome (2), or Toome Bridge, vil. with railway station, pa. of Duncane (q.v.), S.W. co. Antr., Ir., 3½ S.E. of Castle Dawson. A bridge of nine arches across the Bann, built by Earl O'Neill, gives the vil. its name of Toome Bridge.

Toome, Lower, bar., W. co. Antr., Ir.; ac. 36,135; bounded on the north by Kilconway bar., on the east by Lower Antrim bar., on the south by Upper Toome bar., and on the west by co. Londonderry. The Belfast and Northern Counties Railway traverses it, and the Bann runs along its west border. It contains Ballymena, Ahoghill and Portglenone.

Toome, Upper, bar., W. co. Antr., Ir.; ac. 47,580; bounded on the north by Lower Toome bar., on the east by Lower and Upper Antrim bars., on the south by Lough Neagh, and on the west by Lough Beg and co. Londonderry. It is traversed by the Belfast and Northern Counties Railway and the Main. It contains the to. of Randalstown.

Toomevara. [TOOMYVARA.]

Toomore, pa. on the Moy, Gallen bar., Mid co. Mayo, Ir.; ac. 6,787. It contains the vil. of Foxford (q.v.), where are the pa. church and the Catholic church. There are quarries of flagstone.

Toomour, pa., Corran bar., S. co. Sligo, Ir., 4 S.E. of Ballymote; ac. 10,821. There is a Catholic church and a place of worship for Presbyterians. Limestone is abundant. The pa. includes part of the Curlew mountains.

Toomyvara, vil., pa. of Aghnameadle (q.v.), N. co. Tip., Ir., 5½ E. of Nenagh. It has a Catholic church, a National school, and a dispensary.

Toon, stream, West Muskerry bar., W. co. Cork, Ir. It rises in the high lands a little north of the vil. of Inchigeelagh, and after a short course in an easterly direction falls into the Lee about 3 S.W. of Macroom.

Toor, ha., pa. of Particles (q.v.), S.E. co. Lim., Ir., 5 from Newport.

Tooreen, vil., pa. of Ballyovey (q.v.), S. co. Mayo, Ir., 5 N.W. of Ballinrobe. The vil. is situated on the narrow neck of land between Lough Mask and Lough Carra, about ¾ mile from the former.

Toorig, or Tourig, stream, E. co. Cork, Ir.; rises in Kinnatalloon bar., on the border of co. Waterf., and runs S. and then E. through Imokilly bar. to the head of Youghal Harbour. Its length is 7 miles.

Toorlestraun, ha., pa. of Kilmacteige (q.v.), S.W. co. Sligo, Ir., 3 from Aclare.

Toormakeady, ha., pa. of Ballyovey (q.v.), S. co. Mayo, Ir., 13 from Ballinrobe.

Toormore, or Tourmore, pl. on the sea-coast, pa. of Kilmoe (q.v.), S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 5 W. of Skull. T. Bay is about 1½ mile wide at its mouth, and extends nearly 2 miles inland. Tourmore is a seat here.

Toornafulla, ha., pa. of Killeedy (q.v.), W. co. Lim., Ir., 7 from Abbeyfeale.

Tooth Rock. [PENINNIS HEAD.]

Tooting Bec. [TOOTING, UPPER.]

Tooting Graveney, or Tooting, Lower, pa. on the Epsom road, near the valley of the Wandle, N.E. Surrey, within the parl. bor. of Wandsworth; ac. 561. The church of St. Nicholas (rebuilt 1833) is in Gothic style. There are memorials to Sir John Hebdon (d. 1670) and to Captain Philip Gidley King, Governor of New South Wales (d. 1802). In the churchyard are the tombs of Sir John Maynard (d. 1658) and of his son (d. 1665). The Congregational chapel, built in 1765–66, is said to have been first founded in 1688 by Daniel Defoe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," who was then living at Tooting; in 1875 a manse in the Domestic Gothic style was erected for the minister of this chapel, as a memorial to Defoe. Several other Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The charities amount to about £84 yearly. In this dis. is the cemetery, covering 41 ac., belonging to the pa. of Lambeth.

Tooting, Upper, or Tooting Bec, eccl. pa., pa. of Streatham (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, about 6 S. of London Bridge. The church of the Holy Trinity (built 1855) is in E. Eng. style, and there are Nonconformist chapels. The Middlesex (formerly Surrey) County Lunatic Asylum in Beechcroft Road is in Elizabethan style. Here was formerly a priory of the Benedictine order, founded in the reign of William I., and colonised from Bec, in Normandy. T. Bec Common of 144 ac. is maintained as an open space.

Tootle Height, eminence, E. Lancs., 7 N.N.E. of Preston. T. is situated a mile N. by E. of Longridge, forming the S.W. extremity of the ridge which runs N.E. to Longridge Fell. It commands very extensive views.

Topcliffe (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the Swale, N.R. Yorks., 7 N.E. of Ripon; ac. of pa. 15,764, of tp. 4,065; soil chiefly rich loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Columba was rebuilt in 1858. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Free Grammar School, which is well endowed, dates from 1812. A fair is held for horses, cattle and sheep on July 17 and 18.

Topcliffe (2), ha., pa. of West Ardsley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. of Wakefield.

Topcroft, pa. and scattered vil., S. Norf., 6 N.W.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Toome (1)	Gorey (3)	60	822
Toome, Lower	.....	.....	23944
Toome, Upper	.....	.....	15610
Toomore	Foxford	159	2234
Toomour	Ballymote	122	2027
Toomyvara	Nenagh (5½)	97	383
Tooreen	Castlebar (14)	152	134
Tooting Graveney	Tooting	9	5784
Tooting, Upper	Balham	8	5613
Topcliffe (1), pa.	Topcliffe	212	2365
Topcliffe (1), tp.	Topcliffe	212	593
Topcroft	Homersfield (3)	110	344

of Bungay; ac. 1,874; soil heavy, overlying marl. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1876) is Perp.; in the south aisle is a piscina, and there are the remains of the stairs leading to the rood-loft; outside the porch is a stoup; there are several marble tablets, with arms, to the Smyth family, formerly owners of the Hall. The Father of Thomas Tenison, Bishop of Lincoln, 1691–94, and subsequently Archbishop of Canterbury, was some time rector here in the reign of Charles I., but was deprived of his living during the Protectorate, and, dying in 1671, was buried in the chancel. Here is a Congregational chapel, also used as a British school. The poor's land is let for £8 10s. a year, which is distributed at Christmas.

Topitt, ha., pa. of High Hoyland (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. of Barnsley.

Topley, vil., pa. of Munslow (q.v.), S. Salop, 8½ N. of Ludlow.

Topped Hill, eminence (909 ft.), Tirkennedy bar., Mid co. Fermanagh, Ir., 5 E. by N. of Enniskillen.

Toppesfield, pa. and vil., N. Essex, 8 N.W. of Halstead; ac. 3,332; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret is Perp., and contains an altar-tomb, brasses, and several mural tablets, some of which date back to the 16th cent. In the chancel are sedilia, and in the nave a rude and ancient font and a piscina. The charities amount to about £18 yearly. There is a Congregational chapel.

Topsham, pa., seaport, and mkt. to. (S.), and fishing station within the jurisdiction of the port of Exeter, S. Dev., 6 N.W. of Exmouth; ac. 1,370 and 170 of water; soil light, overlying gravel and sand-rock. T. is situated on the east bank of the Exe, into which the river Clyst flows from the east and forms the boundary of the to. on that side. Over the Clyst is a stone bridge of five arches, leading to Clyst St. George. The to. is on the direct road from Exeter to Exmouth. The church of St. Margaret, rebuilt with the exception of the tower in 1869–77, is in Dec. style; in the south transept are two marble monuments by Chantrey to Admiral Sir John Thomas Duckworth, Bart., G.C.B. (d. 1817), and to the admiral's son, Colonel George Henry Duckworth, who fell at the battle of Albuera, May 16, 1811. There are memorials to the Ross, Griffiths, Brent, and Roos families; the font is ancient and has a handsome brass cover. Several Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Vestry Hall (built 1886) is a red-brick structure. The Victoria Pier and Promenade was erected in 1887. The entrance for vessels into the ship canal from this place to Exeter is on the side of the river Exe opposite to the to., where there are quays, building yards, and waterside premises. T. has a factory for making patent reversible fire and bearing bars, and a saw mill. A fair is held on the Thursday preceding July 19 annually for pedlery. There are numerous charities amounting to about £250 yearly. Grove Hill, The Retreat, and Wear House, with beautiful park and grounds, are seats.

Tor. [TORRE.]

Tor Achilty. [ACHILTY.]

Tor Alvie, eminence, pa. of Alvie, E. Invs., Sc., about 10 N.E. of Kingussie. Here is a granite pillar, 90 ft. in height, commemorating the fifth Duke of Gordon (d. 1836); also a monument to the officers belonging to the 42nd and 92nd Highland regiments who were killed in the battle of Waterloo.

Tor Balk, or Tar Box, high point on the cliffs, on the west side of the Lizard, above Kynance Cove, S.W. Cornw., 4 S. of Mullion. From this point there is a good view of Kynance Cove.

Tor Bay, inlet of the sea, S. Dev., 27 E. by S. of Plymouth and 18 S. of Exeter. The bay is situated midway along the line of coast which trends S. by W. from the mouth of the Exe to Start Point. It is 4½ miles wide at its mouth, between Hope's Nose on the north and Berry Head on the south, and extends 3½ miles inland, its outline being nearly quadrangular, though the inner side has a decided and very regular curve towards the west. T. Bay is celebrated for its beauty, and was compared by Landor to the Bay of Naples. The gentle verdant slopes, gay with orchards and grassy lanes, which line all its middle part, form a striking contrast to the rocky promontories at either extremity. On the north side of the bay is the fashionable watering-place of Torquay, on the south side the quaint fishing vil. of Brixham, and midway between them stands Paignton, a summer resort of recent origin. The bay has interesting historical associations, for it was at Brixham that William of Orange landed when he came to take the English crown (Nov. 5, 1688). The anchorage is excellent, and vessels, when overtaken by storms from the west, frequently put in here. The bay was often made use of in this way by the British fleet during the great French wars (1792–1815). Traces of a submarine forest have been discovered at several places on the shore.

Torbothie. [SHOTTS IRONWORKS WITH TORBOTHIE.]

Torbryan, pa. and vil., S. Dev., 4 S.W. of Newton Abbot; ac. 3,002; soil red loam, overlying sand and clay. The church of Holy Trinity is Perp., and retains a piscina in the chancel and one in each aisle; there is a finely-carved oak screen and an old lich-gate in the churchyard. T. has a small charity.

Torbush. [MORNINGSIDE.]

Torc, mountain (1,764 ft.), Magunihy bar., E. co. Kerry, Ir., 5 S. of Killarney. The mountain is within a mile of the south shore of the Middle Lake. It is covered with thick masses of foliage, the terraces of wood which rise one above another forming a striking feature in the landscape. T. Waterfall, on the Owengariff stream, 1½ E.N.E. of the mountain and close to the Middle Lake, has a fall of 60 ft.; after rainy weather it presents a very grand appearance. (See p. 209.)

Torcross, fishing ha. and small watering place, pa. of and 1 S.E. from Stokenham (q.v.), S. Dev. It is situated in Start Bay, and commands an uninterrupted view of the channel; it has been much improved by the erection of an embankment, forming a drive and promenade extending upwards of two miles, close to the sea shore. The Start Point Lighthouse, easily reached by a walk along the coast, is distant about 3 miles. Several residences

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Toppesfield	Yeldham (2)	62	796
Topsham	Topsham	175	2833

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Torbryan	Newton Abbot (4)	209	334

have been built. There is a lake of fresh water, abounding with pike, roach and perch, and, in the colder season, with wild fowl, some of which are very rare. A weir has been formed, by which the excess of water produced by heavy rains is carried through a cutting in the rock to the sea.

Torgyle, pl., pa. of Urquhart and Glenmoriston (q.v.), N.W. Invers., Sc., 7 N.W. of Fort Augustus. Near T. is an Established church and also Free and Roman Catholic churches.

Tor, or Torr Head, headland. Cary bar., N. co. Antr., Ir., 8 E. of Ballycastle. The headland is 4½ miles S.E. by E. of Benmore or Fair Head, which forms the N.E. extremity of Ireland. It is distant only 11 miles from the Mull of Kintyre in Scotland.

Torkington, tp., pa. of and about 3 S.E. from Stockport (q.v.), N.E. Chesh.

Torksey, pa., tp., and vil. (once a to. of some importance, with certain privileges, and mentioned in Domesday as a bor.) at the junction of the Fossdyke with the Trent, W. Lincs., 7 S. by E. of Gainsborough; ac. of pa. 3,276, of tp. 1,489; soil sandy loam, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Peter, once the chapel of the Priory, is Norm., Trans., and Perp., and consists of chancel with vestry, nave, and north aisle; there is a Norm. font; in the church is a monument with carved effigy of Margaret de Multon, prioress of the nunnery of Fosse, near here. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Near the banks of the Trent are the ruins of T. Castle. Here also was a priory of Austin canons, founded in the 13th cent.

TORC MOUNTAIN. (See p. 208.)
(Photo. Payne Jennings, Ashtead.)

Torleton, or Tarlton, ha., pas. of Coates and Rodmarton (q.v.), E. Gloucs., 1½ N.E. of Rodmarton. There is a small chapel-of-ease in the Norm. style.

Torlum Hill, eminence on border of pas. of Muthill and of Monzievaird and Strowan, S. Perths., Sc., 4 W.S.W. of Crieff. The hill stands in the grounds of Drummond Castle, and at its foot stands the old mansion.

Tormarton, pa. and vil., S. Gloucs., 10 N. of Bath; ac. 2,602; soil light loam, overlying oolite. The church of St. Mary is Norm. and E. Eng.; there is a brass to John Ceysyll (d. 1493), a tomb to Sir John de la Rivere (c. 1350), and a curious epitaph to Gabriel Russell (d. 1663). T. has a small charity. Here is a stone quarry.

Tormoham, or Tormoham-with-Torquay, pa., S. Dev., conterminous with the to. of Torquay (q.v.); ac. 1,560. The pa. occupies the greater part of a bold promontory, called "Hope's Nose," about three miles in length and two in breadth, which projects eastward into the English Channel, and separates Tor Bay and Babbacombe Bay.

Tornaveen, estate with mansion, pa. of Kincardine O'Neil (q.v.), S. Abers., 3 N.W. of Torphins.

Torosay, pa. in Mull Island, N.W. Args., Sc., 10 W. of Oban; ac. 90,594; soil various, partly a deep loam, elsewhere sand, gravel, or clayey, mostly overlying trap, sandstone, limestone and granite. The surface is mountainous, reaching a maximum height of 3,185 ft., but it is intersected by three broad valleys. The coast is much indented. T. contains Established and Free churches, the former dating from 1783. Within its borders are the ruins of Duart Castle and Lochbuy Castle, and also the remarkable cavern known as Odin's Cave (q.v.). Duart House, Glenfossa House, and Lochbuy House are seats.

Torpenhow, pa. on the Ellen, W. Cumb., 5 S.E. of Aspatria; ac. 9,001; soil gravel and strong loam, overlying limestone and gravel. The church of St. Michael (restored 1880) is of various periods, with Norm. remains dating from about 1180, of which period there are many traces in the chancel, especially on the north side, and there are remains of the original east window, displaced by the present window in the 13th cent. The chancel also retains an ancient piscina and has an extremely fine Norm. arch at its junction with the nave; the south doorway is also Norm. The ceiling of the nave was erected about 1680; the font (12th cent.) is circular and surrounded with interlaced arches and mythical carving. In the churchyard lies a recumbent female effigy of stone. The charities amount to about £12 yearly.

Torpenhow and Whitrigg, tp., pa. of Torpenhow (q.v.), W. Cumb., about 6 S.E. of Aspatria; ac. 2,740.

Torphichen, pa. and vil., W. Linliths., Sc.; ac. 9,939; soil generally fertile, though some parts are

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Torkington	Hazel Grove (1)	179	294
Torksey, pa.	Torksey	140	367
Torksey, tp.	Torksey	140	195
Tormarton	Bath (10)	107	347
Tormoham	Torquay	215	25534
Torosay	Oban (10)	504	995
Torpenhow	Nealsgate (2)	316	1253
Torpenhow and W.	Nealsgate (2)	316	290
Torphichen, pa.	Bathgate (2¼)	400	1724
Torphichen, vil.	Bathgate (2¼)	400	317

moorland. The vil., formerly of some importance, lies about 4½ S.W. of Linlithgow. Adjacent to the vil., on the north-east, are some remains of the hospital or preceptory of T., the principal house in Scotland appertaining to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem. The pa. church occupies the site of the nave of the preceptory church, and the ruins of the transept and a portion of the choir remain, the east end having quite disappeared. There is also a Free church, said to be one of the first Free churches in Scotland. Coal and ironstone are found within the pa., and there are brick and tile works and a paper mill.

Torphins, q.s. pa. and vil., pa. of Kincardine O'Neil (q.v.), S. Abers., Sc., 19 W. by S. of Aberdeen.

Torpoint, eccl. pa. and small to. on the Hamoaze, S.E. Cornw., 2½ W. of Plymouth. The church of St. James was built 1819, and a chancel in E. Eng. added in 1885. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels, and a Working Men's Club. Sulphuric acid and manure are made here. Gravesend is a seat.

Torquay, mun. bor., mkt. to. (T. & F.), and fashionable watering-place, S. Dev., 23 S. of Exeter. Being open to the sea breezes of the south, and sheltered by lofty hills from the winds of the north, east, and west, T. is especially desirable as a winter residence for invalids and persons of delicate constitution. The lower part of the to., occupied chiefly by the shops and residences of tradesmen, is built round three sides of the harbour, with the quay and piers in front. The next tier comprises handsome terraces, approached by a winding road at each end, and by steps in other places; the upper tiers are reached in a similar way, and the detached hills on either hand are occupied by ranges of houses and delightful villa residences, towering one above another on the rocky platforms, amid the luxuriant foliage of trees and shrubs which bedeck their gardens, the carriage roads and intervening slopes. The views from the various terraces, including the whole of Tor Bay, are beautiful in the extreme. The first houses at T. were built about the end of the 18th cent., for the reception of families of officers and invalids belonging to the Channel Fleet, which, during the French war, was often at anchor in Tor Bay; after this, the reputation of the place for the restoration of invalids rapidly spread. The Perp. church of St. Saviour has been restored and enlarged. The monuments include a 16th-cent. canopied tomb, with effigy in armour, to Thomas Ridgway of Torre Abbey, father of the first Earl of Londonderry of that family. There are also others of Jacobean date to the Cary family. There are also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall is a plain building with a clock-tower; the Royal Public Hall (1881) is used for public meetings, concerts, etc. The theatre and opera-house occupies the site of the old Assembly Rooms. The Museum of the Natural History Society (1874) is a building of the Ionic order. The Market House in Market Street (1855) is a stone building, the property of a company. Other public buildings are the Post Office, the Cust houses, the public baths, the Convalescent Homes and Hospitals, the Western Hospital, a literary institution, libraries, and a museum. T. has extensive and well-sheltered harbours, which have been considerably improved and extended, and the place is now becoming a favourite yachting station. The imports are chiefly coal, timber, slate and building materials. The exports are chiefly limestone and marble from the adjacent quarries. The interest of about £550 is distributed to the poor. The Public Gardens, on the Babbacombe Road, comprise about 4 ac., and are tastefully planted and laid out, forming a pleasant and sheltered promenade.

Torquay Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Dev.; it lies in the S.E. of the co. and returns one member.

Torr, ha., pa. of Nettlecombe (q.v.), W. Somerset, 3 S.W. of Watchet.

Torrance, ancient pa., pa. of East Kilbride (q.v.), N.E. Lanarks., Sc., 5 W. by N. of Hamilton. The pa. was incorporated in East Kilbride in 1549. T. House is an ancient mansion, which has been enlarged at various periods; part of it dates from the 14th cent.

Torrance and Wester Balgrochan, vil. with railway station on the Kelvin, pa. of Campsie (q.v.), S. Stirls., Sc., about 3½ S. of Lennoxtown.

Torre, a north-west suburb of Torquay (q.v.), S. Dev. T. Abbey was founded in 1196 by William de Bruere (or Briwere) for Premonstratensian canons, and colonised from Welbeck. The founder endowed it with considerable revenues, and at its surrender in 1539 the yearly income was valued at £396 11s (equal in the present day to about £8,000). The ground plan originally comprised a cruciform church and cloisters; on the east side of the cloister, but separated from the transept by a slype, or passage, was the chapter-house; of the three gatehouses mentioned by Leland (1549), one, an embattled structure of the 14th cent., still remains on the south-west. The only portions of the buildings now above ground are the south and part of the east wall of the presbytery, the walls of the south transept and its chapels, the western piers of the central tower, the west wall of the north transept, and adjoining it the east end of the aisle; of the chapter-house only the fine west doorway and windows remain; the site is now much overgrown with shrubs and trees. The modern mansion, called "Torre Abbey," is said to have been erected about the middle of the 16th cent., and consists of a central block with wings, occupying the site of the refectory and adjacent buildings on the south side of the cloister; the west wing connects itself with the gatehouse above mentioned, and its northern arm, enclosing the west side of the cloister, contains a chapel formed out of the ancient guest-house, and has on the west front a staircase tower. About 1874 portions of the mansion were carefully restored to their original condition. The grounds adjoin the coast, and are picturesque and well wooded, and afford fine views

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Torphins	Torphins	550	824
Torpoint	Devonport (3)	231	2425
Torquay	Torquay	215	25534

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Torquay Division	.....	.....	57450
Torrance and W. B.	Torrance	406	466

e bay and the lofty tors or hills in the neighıood. A little distance south-west is a fine barn, divided into two portions by a transept urrounded with buttresses.

ridge, river, N.W. Dev., rises close to the sh border, near the source of the Tamar, 4 S. rtland, and 8 N. by E. of Stratton. During rst half of its course the river winds E.S.E.
East and West Putford, Bulkworthy, Abbots ngton and Newton St. Petrock, and E. past Torrington and Sheepwash to the north ty of Hatherleigh, where it curves round ds the north. From this point it pursues ding course past Meeth to Beaford, and thence o Torrington and N.N.E. past Wear Gifford e it becomes navigable) to Bideford (where stuary begins). The estuary extends some by E. and then about ½ W.N.W., the latter n being formed by the confluence of the nd the
. The ı of the
is about les.

rridon,
pa. of ecross
W. Ross
Crom.,
) S.W. of
chewe.
use is a rridon,

inlet of a on west of Ross rom., Sc.,
of Gair-
. The extends ds of 10
in a S.E. ion, and s off a h near pper ex-
ty, which, running E., penetrates about 5 miles
r inland. The latter is called Upper Loch T., ost south-east portion of the outer loch being n as Loch Shieldaig. Between Loch T. proper Loch Shieldaig the distance from shore to is only 3 furlongs, but higher up it increases to nearly 2 miles, and this is also the extreme th of the Upper Loch. The loch, which is by lofty mountains, lies chiefly in Applecross ut the north-east bank, towards the mouth, that of Gairloch. At the head of Upper
T. is the vil. of Torridon, and on its north stands T. House, a handsome modern mansion.

rin, ha., pa. of Strath (q.v.), island of Skye, Hebrides, Invs., Sc., 5 S.W. of Broadford, on hore of Loch Slapin.

rington, Black. [BLACK TORRINGTON.]

rington, East, pa., Mid Lincs., 4 N.E. of by; ac. 1,504; soil various, overlying clay sandy gravel. The church of St. Michael, erected in 1850 on the site of an earlier church, is in Dec. style.

TORQUAY. (See p. 210.)
(Photo. Norman May and Co., Torquay.)

Torrington, Great, mun. bor., pa., U. and mkt. to., head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., N. Dev., 7 S.S.E. of Bideford; ac. 3,456. T. is situated on the Torridge, which is here crossed by three bridges, at points respectively south-east, south-west and north-west of the to. The to. is beautifully situated on the top of a hill 300 ft. high, from which an extensive view is obtained, overlooking the Torridge. A canal nearly 5 miles long was constructed in 1823 from the to. to the navigable part of the Torridge below Wear Gifford, but portions have been filled up. The bor. is said to have sent members to Parliament and to have been relieved of that burden at its own request. T. was incorporated by three charters, granted by Mary, James I. and James II., of which copies only now exist. The church of St. Michael (restored 1864) is Dec.; the present tower was rebuilt in 1830; the old tower stood at the principal entrance on the south side, and in the year 1839 the top of the spire was blown down by a violent hurricane, and, falling through the roof, did considerable damage. There are memorials to the Stevens family, with a Latin inscription, dated 1676, and to John Palmer (d. 1770); the carved oak pulpit is that in which John Howe, M.A., the celebrated Nonconformist divine, preached while vicar of this pa. until his ejectment in 1662. There are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The town hall (rebuilt 1860) is a brick structure; the Market House (built 1842) is a spacious building, and includes a large hall; the Free Institute in Halsdon Road was opened in 1891, and has library, reading, and billiard rooms. In High Street stands a drinking-fountain of stone and granite; it is 18 ft. high and approached by two rows of steps; in the upper portion is a clock. The market is held on Saturday; a sale of cattle is held on the last Saturday in every month in the New Public Cattle Market in School Lane, and fortnightly sales during the summer months. Annual fairs are held in the to. on the first Thursday and two following days in May, and the second Thursday and two following days in October. The manufacture of gloves is largely carried on in factories and by workers at home; there are also flour mills, a large leather-

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
ıgton, East	East Barkwith (1)	138	114
Torrington, Great	Torrington	225	3436

dressing factory, and a butter factory. There are almshouses for twenty-two poor persons. The Church of England Bluecoat School was founded and endowed in 1671. In the sixth year of the reign of Richard I. the common land was given for the benefit of the poor by William FitzRobert, Baron of T. At the west end of the to. is an extensive tract of common land laid out with walks, and used as a public recreation ground. In 1484 the sessions were held at T., at which the Marquis of Dorset, Sir Edward Courtenay, Bishop Peter Courtenay, and about 500 others, were indicted for treason against Richard III. and outlawed, and Sir Thomas St. Ledger, who had married the king's sister, and Thomas Rayme, Esq., being found guilty of high treason, were beheaded at Exeter. The Lady Margaret, Countess of Richmond and mother of Henry VII., resided much at T. in the old manor-house, which she afterwards gave as a residence for the clergyman of the pa., whose parsonage was formerly at Priestacott. In 1590 the sessions were held here in consequence of the prevalence of the plague at Exeter, and T., probably in consequence, also suffered from the same infection the following year. In 1643 the Parliamentary forces, advancing on this place, were defeated by Colonel Digby. In 1646 Lord Hopton, having stationed his army at T., which he fortified and barricaded, was attacked by Sir Thomas Fairfax and completely worsted. T. gave the title of Earl in 1660 to the celebrated General Monk, afterwards Duke of Albemarle, but it became extinct on the death of his son Christopher in 1687; in 1689 Admiral Arthur Herbert was created Baron Torbay and Earl of T., which title became again extinct on his death (April 14, 1716); in the same year Thomas, second son of Francis (Newport), first Earl of Bradford, was created Baron T., but died in 1719 without issue; in 1721 Admiral Sir George Byng, Bart., was created Baron Byng, Viscount T., and these titles are still enjoyed by his descendant. Of Torridge Castle (built 1340) only a portion of the chapel (taken down in 1780, and now converted into a school) remains, and that part of Castle Hill is now called "Barley Grove." Near the spot where the castle formerly stood is a column erected in 1816 to commemorate the Battle of Waterloo (June 18, 1815).

Torrington, Little, pa. and vil. on the Torridge, N.W. Dev., 6 S.E. of Bideford; ac. 2,880; soil light, overlying stone and clay. The church of St. Giles (partially rebuilt 1857) is Perp., and contains an ancient brass to Jone Phesaynt, and a memorial to R. Coplestone (1617). Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Cross and Smytham are seats.

Torrington, West, pa., Mid Lincs., 3 N. by E. of Wragby; ac. 1,126; soil various, overlying clay and sandy gravel. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt ?) is in E. Dec. style. During the restoration of the church the battered remains of an effigy of a knight were found outside the church, concerning which a tradition, of long standing, that three knights had been respectively buried at Panton, Torrington, and West T.; the other effigies still remain in two former churches; the fragments have been placed near the font, which is a fine and unusually large structure of the Norm. period. There are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The only charity is a rent-charge of 26s., distributed weekly in a dole loaf to the oldest widow.

Torrisholme, ha., pa. of Lancaster (q.v.), N. Lancs., 1¾ S.E. of Morecambe. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Tor Royal, or Look-Out Tor, eminence on Dartmoor, S. Dev., 1½ S.E. of Princetown. From this point there is a fine view over Dartmoor.

Torr Steps, ancient British bridge over the Barle, S.W. Somerset, 5 N.W. of Dulverton. The bridge is composed of immense masses of stone, with upright blocks to support the pathway. The view up the valley from this point is very fine.

Torry, fishing vil., pa. of Nigg (q.v.), N. Kincs., Sc. T. is now included in Aberdeen for municipal purposes. The Dee is here spanned by the Victoria Bridge. T. has a small harbour and pier, brick and tile works, and a provision factory.

Torryburn, pa. and vil., S.W. Fifes., Sc.; ac. 3,994; soil various, but generally fertile. The vil. is about 5 S.W. of Dunfermline. The inhabitants at one time were chiefly employed in weaving, but this branch of industry has become extinct. From the rocky state of the shore it has been found impossible to form a harbour here; but a pier is situated at Crombie Point, where steamers can land goods and passengers. T. collieries find employment for most of the inhabitants. A fair is held at T. on the second Wednesday in July. Comrie Castle is a seat.

Torry Low, vil., pa. of Torryburn (q.v.), S.W. Fifes., Sc., adjacent to Torryburn vil. It is a very pretty place on a small inlet of the Firth of Forth, known as Torry Bay, while high ground at the back protects it from the north wind.

Torsay, one of the Slate Islands (q.v.), pa. of Kilbrandon and Kilchattan, Mid Args., Sc., 12 S.S.W. of Oban. T. is situated in a narrow channel between Seil on the north, the mainland on the east, and Luing on the south-west, to which it is united at low water. It is about 3 miles long and one mile broad. Slate is quarried. There are some remains of a hunting seat of the Macdonalds, which gave the islet the name of Dog Island.

Torteval, pa., Guernsey, Channel Islands, 5 W.S.W. of St. Peter Port; ac. 816. The pa. occupies the south-west corner of the island, and contains the finest coast scenery. The church of St. Philippe (rebuilt 1818) is a small plain edifice with a circular tower.

Torthorwald, pa. and vil., S. Dumfs., Sc., near the foot of Nithsdale, separated on the west from Dumfries pa. by the Lochar Water; ac. 6,831; soil various, overlying till. The vil. in the north part of the pa. is about 4 S.W. of Lochmaben. In the vicinity are the ruins of the ancient castle of T., supposed to have existed since the 13th cent., and there are also traces of British camps. Rammerscales is a seat.

Tortington, pa. on the Arun, S.W. Sussex, 2 S.W. of Arundel; ac. 1,137; soil variable, overlying clay. The church of St. Thomas is Norm. Of the Priory Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.

Torrington (2)	225	412
East Barkwith (2)	138	160
Oakley (4)	428	1032
Oakley (4)	428	253

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Torry Low	Oakley (3)	428	334
Torteval	Southampton (120)	79	449
Torthorwald	Racks (3)	398	925
Tortington	Ford Junction (1)	61	38

of Augustinian canons founded here before the reign of King John, all that remains is some walling in a barn close to the Priory farmhouse.

Tortworth, pa. and vil. on the Little Avon, S.W. Gloucs., 5 S.W. of Dursley; ac. 1,551; soil loam, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Leonard (rebuilt all but the tower in 1875) is Perp., and contains several monuments of the Throckmorton family. There is a charity and an orphanage. The "T. Chestnut" is well known. Here is a Roman camp, where coins, etc., have been found. T. Court, a seat, is in Tudor style.

Torver, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Ulverston (q.v.), N. Lancs., 7 N.E. of Broughton; ac. 3,816. The eccl. pa. borders on the Coniston Water, which is one mile distant from the church, and the whole district abounds in beautiful scenery. The church of St. Luke is in E. Eng. style, and has a font, supposed to be of pre-Reformation date. A faculty for the interment of the dead, bearing the signature of Archdeacon Cranmer, dated at Lambeth, July 23, 1588, is kept with other pa. papers in an ancient chest. The school has a small endowment.

Torwood (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Tormoham-with-Torquay (q.v.), S. Dev., forming a suburb of Torquay. The church of St. Mark (1857) is in E. Eng. style.

Torwood (2), vil., pa. of Dunipace (q.v.), E. Stirls., Sc., 4½ N.W. of Falkirk. Here are the ruins of a castle, said to have been built in the 16th cent. Round it spread the remains of the Caledonian Forest, which in this vicinity is known as Tor Wood. Wallace concealed himself in an oak here, and a thorn remains which is said to mark the spot where Charles II. and his brother James were excommunicated by Donald Cargill in 1680.

Torwoodle, seat, pa. of Stow (q.v.), N.E. Selkirks., Sc., 2 N.W. of Galashiels. The mansion is a handsome 18th-cent. edifice. Near it stand the remains of an old tower.

Torworth, tp. and vil., pa. of Blyth (q.v.), N. Notts., 1 S.W. of Ranskill; ac. 1,377. The Wesleyan Methodists have a place of worship.

Tory Hill, eminence (374 ft.), pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Croom (q.v.), Mid co. Lim., Ir. The hill is remarkable for the disintegration of the limestone of which it is composed.

Tory Island, pa. of Tullaghobegly (q.v.), N.W. co. Don., Ir., 10 N.W. of Dunfanaghy. The island extends about 3½ W.N.W. and E.S.E., and has an extreme breadth of one mile. It is 12 miles from the nearest part of the mainland in Kilmacrenan bar. This island is bleak in appearance, the surface consisting mainly of bare rock or sand, but there is some fine coast scenery on its north-east side. The inhabitants are engaged chiefly in fishing, lobsters and crabs being very abundant. There is a chapel and also a school-house on the island. It figures conspicuously in the legendary history of Ireland, having been the principal abode of the Fomorians, a race of pirates who reduced the Clanna Neimheadh to slavery and drove them from Ireland, but were ultimately conquered by the Tuatha de Danann. Part of a very ancient and rudely constructed tower remains, 17 ft. in diameter, with walls more than 4 ft. thick and a low doorway

West Street, Tory Island.
(Photo. A. Ayton, Londonderry.)

8 ft. from the ground. There are also remains of ecclesiastical buildings belonging to the monastery founded by St. Columba in the 6th cent. At the west extremity of the island is a lighthouse 87 ft. in height, with a flashing light.

Toseland, pa. and vil., S. Hunts., adjoining Cambs., 4 N.E. of St. Neots; ac. 1,298; soil and subsoil clay. This pa. was once a place of some importance, and is believed to have been a to. The ruins of several early churches have been discovered. The church of St. Michael (restored 1873) is a small edifice of pebbles with stone facings of the Norm. period; in the south wall is a curious Norm. doorway. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. There is a dole of 20s. yearly for fuel. The old manor-house, a handsome and ancient edifice, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Tosside, pa., W.R. Yorks., 7 S.W. of Settle; ac. 1,112. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1873) is an ancient stone edifice.

Tosson, tp., pa. of and 2 W.S.W. from Rothbury (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 2,324. Here are remains of an ancient tower and a Roman camp.

Tosson, Little, formerly a tp., pa. of Rothbury (q.v.), Mid Northumb., now amalgamated with Tosson (q.v.).

Tostock, pa., N.W. Suff., 7 E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 945; soil light, overlying gravel. The church of St. Andrew (restored) is a flint structure of various periods; in the churchyard is a gravestone to Thomas Chapman, who is stated to have died at the age of 111, and Elizabeth his wife, who died at 95, in 1753. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. The charities consist of the rent on 2 ac. of land, and the interest on £300 Consols, and is distributed in coals to the poor. T. Place, surrounded by a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Totham, Great, pa. and vil. on the Blackwater, E. Essex, 4 S.E. of Witham; ac. 3,259; soil light,

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tortworth	.....	.....	216
Torver, ec. pa.	Torver	276	192
Torver, tp.	Torver	276	176
Torwood (1)	Torquay (2)	215	2419
Torworth	Ranskill (1)	144	219
Tory Island	Letterkenny (33)	187	348

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Toseland	St. Neots (3)	52	155
Tosside	Long Preston (5)	232	69
Tosson	Rothbury (2)	312	132
Tostock	Elmswell (2)	86	298
Totham, Great	Maldon (2)	44	722

overlying gravel and loam. The church of St. Peter (restored 1878) is Norm.; in the chancel is a brass and an inscription to Elizabeth Coke (d. 1606). Here are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels, and almshouses.

Totham, Little, pa. and vil., E. Essex, 6 S.E. of Witham; ac. 1,259; soil various, subsoil chiefly gravel. All Saints' Church is Norm., the south doorway being a good specimen of that period; there is an inscription to John Sammes (d. 1606). The Peculiar People have a chapel.

Tothill, small pa., E. Lincs., 6 N.W. of Alford; ac. 854; soil clayey, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Mary was built out of the materials of an earlier church. In the pa. is an old military earthwork, consisting of a wide and deep ditch upwards of 20 ft. in length, near a lofty round mound, commonly called "Toot Hill."

Tothill Fields, eccl. pa., pa. of Westminster, St. Margaret and St. John, E. Middx., in S.W. London, 1¼ S.W. of St. Paul's. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (1837) is in Debased Gothic style.

Totland Bay, eccl. pa. on a bay of the same name, pa. of Freshwater (q.v.), I. of W. Christ Church (1875) is a stone edifice in E. Eng. style. On account of the beautiful sands and the good bathing it is much resorted to in summer as a marine bathing-place. A very commodious hotel was erected and opened in 1880, and a pier was also constructed in connection with it. There are two potteries, where the celebrated red ware is made solely by hand; the works are open daily to visitors. Weston Manor is a large handsome stone building situated on a hill, and commands extensive views of the Solent and inland scenery; attached to the house is a Catholic chapel; the services are open to the public.

Totley, tp., pa. of Dronfield (q.v.), N. Derbys., about 5 S.W. of Sheffield; ac. 1,804. Here is the Cherry Tree Orphanage, first founded at Sheffield. The Victoria Gardens, the property of a company, are pleasure grounds, comprising cycling track, tennis courts, and a lake for boating.

Totmonslow, ha., pa. of and ½ E. from Draycott-in-the-Moors (q.v.), N. Staffs.

Totnes, pa., mun. bor. and mkt. to., head of U. and Co. Co. dis., S. Dev., 9 W.S.W. of Torquay; ac. of pa. 1,170. T. is picturesquely situated on the west bank of the Dart, on the opposite bank of which is Bridgetown, a handsome suburb also forming part of the borough. The to. contains a number of old buildings; the upper storeys of many of the houses in High Street project beyond the lower ones and, being supported on columns, form spacious covered piazzas for foot passengers. T. sent two members to Parliament from 1295 to the passing of the Reform Act of 1867, when the representation was merged in the co. The Commissioners of the Dart have greatly improved the navigation, and vessels of 200 tons burthen can now come up to the wharves near the bridge. The church of St. Mary (restored 1886–89) is E. Perp.; in the south wall of the chancel is a squint, and on the north side a fine rood turret with stone staircase leading to the rood-loft; in the base of the turret are the remains of two piscinæ. The chancel is enclosed by a very fine stone rood-screen and two parclose screens; the corporation stalls, which are handsomely carved, were erected in 1636; in the south aisle are the remains of a Perp. tomb to Walter Smith (d. 1555); under the tower arch is a marble monument with kneeling effigies to Christopher Blackhall (d. 1635) and his four wives. Over the outer doorway of the south porch are the remains of an ancient sundial and three mutilated shields, of which the uppermost has the appearance of being the town arms; the inner doorway has over it the remains of a saint's niche and a shield with the arms of Edmund Lacy, Bishop of Exeter (1420–72). In the parvise over the south entrance are stored about 300 volumes of books, which originally formed the lecturer's or preacher's library; there is also a stone pulpit, enriched with tracery and shields of arms, and an ancient Bible and Prayer Book. About half way up the tower are three niches containing figures, that in the centre being supposed to represent Bishop Lacy, and under it in raised letters are the words, "I made this tour;" in the niche on the right-hand side is a robed figure which may possibly represent Prior Stoke, of the Priory of St. Mary, Totnes, who subscribed £10 towards the erection of the tower; the figure on the left, which is much dilapidated, appears to be that of a soldier with crossed legs. There are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Grammar School was founded

TOTNES, FROM THE SHARPHAM ROAD.
(Photo. Brinley and Son, Totnes.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Totham, Little	Maldon (3)	44	323
Tothill	Authorpe (1½)	135	59
Tothill Fields	.....	.....	5523
Totland Bay	Freshwater (1)	99	790

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Totley	Dore	154	145
Totnes, pa.	Totnes	218	3357
Totnes, bor.	Totnes	218	4058

in 1554, and formerly occupied a part of the Old Priory buildings. Among the distinguished men here educated may be mentioned the lexicographer, Edward Lye (1704–67); Dr. Benjamin Kennicott, the Hebrew scholar (1718–83); Charles Babbage, a native of Teignmouth, inventor of the calculating machine (1828–71); and Henry Hart Milman, D.D., Dean of St. Paul's (1791–1868). The school is now conducted in premises in Fore Street, and under a scheme framed in 1874. A school in connection with the Science and Art Department at South Kensington was established in 1872. The Guildhall, on the north side of the church, was formerly a portion of the Priory of St. Mary; in the main hall are preserved the old stocks. The list of mayors is complete from 1377 to the present time. The Market House dates from 1848. The weekly market is held on Saturday, and great cattle markets on the first Tuesday in every month. Fairs are held in May and October. Here are two breweries, a flour mill, and a cider factory. The imports are chiefly coal, culm, and timber, and the exports are corn, cider, and other agricultural produce. The Dart Vale harriers are kept in the neighbourhood, and within easy distance are also packs of foxhounds; fish abound in all parts of the river. The Weir of the Dart salmon fishery, contiguous to the railway station, is a famous place for trout as well as salmon. On the Plains is an obelisk erected by public subscription, August, 1864, in honour of William John Wills, a native of T., who with Robert O'Hara Burke first crossed the Australian continent in 1860, but perished in returning, June 28, 1861. Among other distinguished natives of T. may be mentioned William Brockedon, topographer and artist (1787); Benjamin Kennicott, D.D., orientalist (1718); and Edward Lye, Saxon lexicographer (1704). T. was anciently a walled to., and had originally four gates, of which only two, the east and north, now remain; the room over the east gateway is used as a reading-room. The castle was in ruins in the reign of Henry VIII., except the walls and the great tower or keep, the outer walls of which are still standing; the ruins are finely mantled with ivy, and the grounds around them are prettily laid out, and have been thrown open as a public promenade. Here was founded a priory, near the site of the present church; the existing remains include the refectory, precinct wall, abbot's gate, still-house, and a large Perp. gatehouse. The site of the cloister garth is now partly occupied by the Guildhall and other buildings. Bowdon, chiefly dating from the reign of Queen Anne, but incorporating the remains of a far older house; Broomborough, in Elizabethan style, and Follaton House, including a domestic Catholic chapel, are seats.

Totnes Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Devon; it lies in the south of the co., and returns one member.

Toton, tp. on the Erewash, pa. of Attenborough (q.v.), S. Notts., about 7 s.w. of Nottingham; ac. 1,372.

Tottenham, pa. and suburb of London, E. Middx., about 5 N.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 4,673 and 62 water. The Lea bounds the eastern side of the pa. and separates it from Essex. The high road extends from Stamford Hill to Edmonton, a distance of 2½ miles, the centre of the dis. being occupied by a large triangular enclosure, "The Green," on which the maypole was formerly reared, but now the site of the High Cross, and the assumed scene of the "Tournament of Tottenham," a mock encounter celebrated in a curious metrical satire of the Tudor period. The church of All Hallows was rebuilt and enlarged in 1876–77; it retains a fine embattled south porch of the 15th cent. with parvise, vestries, and an embattled western tower; the vestry, or saints' bell, dated 1663, was formerly the alarm bell of the garrison of Quebec, and was taken at the siege of that place in 1759, by General Townsend; there are a number of mural monuments of considerable merit, including a fine monument of white marble to Mary (Wilcocks), wife of Sir Robert Barkham, Knight (d. 1644), with busts of both, and effigies of twelve children; from ancient records it is ascertained that the church was given by David Bruce, King of Scotland, to the canons of the Holy Trinity, London, between 1135 and 1153; but Henry VIII., in the thirty-sixth year of his reign, gave the rectory and pa. of T. to the cathedral of St. Paul. There are several eccl. pas. with modern churches, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Grammar School was founded at an early date, and enlarged and endowed under the will of Sarah, Dowager Duchess of Somerset (d. 1692). In 1840 a new schoolroom was erected, and in 1876–77 a new scheme was framed by the Charity Commissioners. The High Cross, which gives its name to the southern end of the dis., is an octagonal structure of brick, erected about 1600 by Dean Wood, in place of a wooden cross, then much decayed; the ornamental work is of stucco and was added in 1809, and the eight sides bear each on a shield one letter of the word "Totenham." Seven Sisters Road, formed in 1831–33, takes its name from seven elm trees formerly standing there; these having disappeared, seven new trees were planted near the site in 1852. There are several groups of almshouses, some erected by private benefactors, and others by public companies. The general charities amount to about £250 a year, and nearly the same amount, derived from investments, is applied to different parochial purposes. Bruce Castle is a mansion, probably rebuilt in 1514 by Sir William Compton, and again in the latter part of the 17th cent. The original structure is said to have been erected by Earl Waltheof, who married Judith, niece of the Conqueror, and it subsequently descended, through the female line, to Robert Bruce, who, on his contention with Baliol for the right of succession to the Scottish throne being decided in favour of the latter, retired here, and after repairing the building named it "Le Bruses." Here, in 1516, Henry VIII. visited Sir William Compton, and met his sister Margaret, Queen of Scots; and Queen Elizabeth also appears to have come here on a visit to Henry, Lord Compton. In 1827 the father of Mr., afterwards Sir, Rowland Hill, Knight, established a school here, which was finally closed in 1891. The whole is now the property of the Local Board, and was opened in 1892 as a public recreation ground.

Tottenham Division, one of the seven parl. divs.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Totnes Division	.....	.....	49642
Toton	Long Eaton (1½)	121	245

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tottenham	Tottenham	6	97174
Tottenham Division	.....	.....	97174

of Middx. It lies in the east of the co., and returns one member.

Tottenham Hale, ha. in the eastern part of the pa. of Tottenham (q.v.), E. Middx., a short distance N.E. of the High Cross.

Tottenhill, pa. and vil., S.W. Norf., 6 s. of Lynn; ac. 1,448; soil and subsoil sand, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Botolph (restored) is E. Eng.; a portion of a well-carved oak bench end was found in the church in 1863, with the name Thomas Dux, Ex. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The poor's land produces £32 yearly for fuel, and Davis' charity of £2 12s. yearly is for bread for poor widows.

Totteridge, pa. and vil., S. Herts., on the Middx. border, 2 s.w. of Barnet; ac. 1,597; soil clay, overlying gravel and sand. T. is one of the few perfectly rural vils. still existing within a few miles of London; fine views may be obtained by walking from the railway station to Edgware along the high ground. The church of St. Andrew, which occupies the site of an older structure, was rebuilt with the exception of the wood tower and spire in 1790, when all the old monuments were swept away; at the west end of the churchyard is an immense yew tree, mentioned by Lysons in 1796, 26 ft. in girth and 3 ft. from the ground, and supposed to be 700 years old; Hugh, first Baron Coleraine, of the Hare family, was buried here (1667), and his mother Margaret (Crouch), afterwards Countess of Manchester (1653); here also lies James Nokes, the actor. A lecture-room was erected in 1858, and part of the old rectory is used as a pa. room. The charities are considerable. John Corbet, of Magdalen Hall, Oxford, rector of Bramshot, Hants, till his ejection in 1662, and the author of numerous Nonconformist pamphlets and some historical works, found here an asylum in the house of his friend, Richard Baxter, who resided here until 1672; here also Lady Rachel Russell was a resident in 1684. The mansion in T. Park, a finely-timbered estate of about 100 ac., stands upon the site of the old manor-house. Near the church stands Copped Hall, a mansion in the Italian style, the birthplace, July 15, 1808, of the late Cardinal Manning. This estate was also for some years in the possession of the first Lord Lytton, who is said to have written some of his works in a summer-house, which is still standing. The Grange is also a seat.

Totternhoe, pa. and vil., S. Beds., 2 w. of Dunstable; ac. 2,306; soil and subsoil chalky; a hard band of the chalk or clunch near the vil. is known as T. stone, of which Woburn Abbey and many churches in this dis. have been constructed. The church of St. Giles is Perp.; the roofs of the nave and aisles display well-carved figures and bosses; there is a brass, with effigy bearing chalice and host, to John Warwekhytt, vicar (1524), and one to William Michell, a child (1621). Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The straw-plait business is the principal occupation of the villagers. About a mile and a half from Dunstable, on a projecting headland of the Chiltern range, are the celebrated earthworks called T. Castle; these consist of a lofty circular mound, with a slight vallum round its base, and a larger one, of an irregular form, at some distance from it; it is considered to have been a fortification of the ancient Britons, afterwards converted into a Roman camp, and subsequently occupied by the Saxons; the form of the works indicating British and Roman military construction, and the name British and Saxon occupation.

Tottington (1), pa. and vil., S.W. Norf., 4 s.w. of Watton; ac. 3,292; soil of a sandy character, with clay and marl subsoil, and studded with plantations. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1886) is a large edifice of the E. Eng. period; the nave is seated throughout with ancient oak benches, on the back of one of which is carved, "To the memory of Thomas Sutter and his wife, 1636." The windows are remarkable for their beautiful tracery. In the south wall of the chancel are piscina and sedilia, and there is a piscina in the north aisle; a stone bearing the Mortimer arms was found in the clerestory wall and has been placed on the wall of the south aisle; the screen, finely carved, is very ancient, and there is a well-preserved brass, with effigies of a kneeling female and child praying, to Margaret Pory (1598).

Tottington (2). [TOTTINGTON LOWER END.]

Tottington Higher End, tp. on the Irwell, pa. of Bury (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 1 N. of Ramsbottom; ac. 3,545.

Tottington Lower End, tp. and eccl. pa. (Tottington), pa. of Bury (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.; ac. 5,271. The principal part of the tp. is distant from Bury 2½ N.N.W., but it extends from 4 to 6 miles. St. Ann's Church is a small plain edifice of stone; St. John's Free Church of England is also a plain stone building. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels and a Catholic Home of Rest. Here are extensive works for cotton-spinning and manufacturing, calico and delaine bleaching and printing, and a factory for soap for the use of printers and manufacturers.

Totton, vil., pa. of Eling (q.v.). S. Hants, situated at the extremity of Southampton Water. St. Mary's chapel-of-ease is situated here, and there are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels and almshouses for poor widows. In the vil. is a steam flour-mill and steam saw-mills.

Touaghty, pa., Carra bar., Mid co. Mayo, Ir., 8 S.E. of Castlebar; ac. 3,067. It contains the vil. of Ballyglass (q.v.), around which is to be found some fine scenery, particularly Castlecarra, with the beautiful lake Carra, studded with islands, and the ruins of two castles—Castlecarra and Castleburke—on its shores. Tower Hill is a seat.

Touchen End, chap. and small vil., pa. of Bray (q.v.), E. Berks., 3½ w. of Maidenhead. Holy Trinity Church (1862) is a plain brick structure.

Tough, pa., S. Abers., Sc., 22 w. of Aberdeen; ac. 7,108. Several so-called Druidical temples may be seen in this district, one of which, on the hill about 2 miles from the church, still retains the name of the Old Kirk of T.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tottenhill	Magdalen Road (2)	91	344
Totteridge	Totteridge	10	785
Totternhoe	Dunstable (2)	37	612
Tottington (1)	Watton (4)	103	287
Tottington Higher E.	Stubbins	200	3850

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tottington L. End, tp.	Tottington	198	16837
Tottington L. E., ec. p.	Tottington	198	5611
Touaghty	Balla (5)	144	559
Tough	Whitehouse (1½)	554	675

Tourin, ha., pa. of Lismore and Mocollop (q.v.), W. co. Waterf., Ir., 2 s. of Cappoquin.

Tove, or Tow, stream, S.W. Northants; it rises near Sulgrave, and flows about 20 E. past Towcester to the Ouse, into which it falls 2 N.E. of Stoney Stratford.

Tovil, eccl. pa. and ha., pas. of Maidstone, East Farleigh and Loose (q.v.), Mid Kent, 1 s. of Maidstone, on the Medway. The church of St. Stephen is in E. Eng. style.

Tow. [TOVE.]

Towan Head, promontory, W. Cornw.; it forms the southern boundary of the bay, on the shores of which Newquay is situated.

Toward Point, headland forming the most southerly point of the pa. of Dunoon, E. Args., Sc. It lies on the north side of the entrance to the Kyles of Bute; on it is a lighthouse, and near it is a steamboat pier.

Towbury Camp. [TEWKESBURY.]

Towcester, pa., U., and mkt. to. (T.), polling-place for the co. and head of a petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., S. Northants, 8 S.W. of Northampton; ac. 3,631. T. is considered to have been a Roman station, an opinion derived from the discovery of numerous coins and other antiquities on this spot, especially on an artificial eminence called "Bury Mount," north-east of the to., and on the north-west side are vestiges of a fosse. The name of this place is written in Domesday Book "Tovecestre," a city or fortified place on the river Tove. The church of St. Laurence (restored 1883) is E. Eng.; in the south aisle is an altar-tomb; the upper slab, ornamented with the arms of Sponne and roses, bears the recumbent effigy of an ecclesiastic; in the open space below is a cadaver, and on the wall is a wooden tablet inscribed to William Sponne, Archdeacon of Norfolk and rector of T. (1422–48); on the south wall of the chancel is a monument of alabaster, painted and gilt, to Hierome Farmore, Esq. (d. 1602), and Jane his wife; in the centre, under a double arch, are figures of both kneeling at a desk; in the chancel is a piscina, and in the south aisle an ancient stall with desk, to which is chained a number of black-letter books, including a Bible, Foxe's "Book of Martyrs," and a Book of Homilies of 1562. There are also Baptist, Congregational, and Wesleyan chapels. The Town Hall and Corn Exchange, in the High Street, is an edifice in Italian style (1866), and includes a large hall, let for meetings and public entertainments; the building is partly occupied as offices, shop, stores and committee rooms. Boots and shoes are made here by many of the inhabitants for Northampton firms. There is a malting-house and one brewery. Fairs for cattle and pleasure are held on May 12 and Oct. 29; the latter was formerly noted for the large quantity of onions brought for sale. Stock sales are held every alternate Tuesday. The Grafton Hunt steeplechase races are held on Easter Monday. There are almshouses divided into five tenements, and in connection with this charity are several other benefactions, distributed in money and coals at various periods of the year; the remaining charities are given to the poor of T. yearly. William Sponne, Archdeacon of Norfolk and rector here (1422–48), was the founder of a chantry in the to., which was afterwards converted into a grammar school. A new school-house has been erected. The "Pomfret Arms Inn" was formerly known as the "Saracen's Head," and is mentioned by that name in "The Pickwick Papers." Park View and The Lodge are seats.

Towednack, pa. and vil., S.W. Cornw., 6 N.N.E. from Penzance; ac. 3,035; soil killas, subsoil granite. The church of St. Tewennoc (restored 1870) is chiefly Perp.; there is an aumbry in the aisle, a curiously carved font, and two carved bench-ends, dated 1633. Here are Wesleyan, Bible Christian, Teetotal Methodist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The pa. contains an old entrenchment. There are china-clay works and a quarry. Amalveor, formerly a seat, is now a farmhouse.

Tower End, ha., pa. of Middleton (q.v.), W. Norf., 3¾ S.E. of Lynn.

Tower Hamlets, parl. bor., E. Middx., in the east of London; ac. 4,097. It has seven divs. (Bow and Bromley, Limehouse, Mile End, Poplar, St. George, Stepney, and Whitechapel), each returning one member. [BOW (2), BROMLEY ST. LEONARD, LIMEHOUSE, MILE END NEW TOWN, MILE END OLD TOWN, POPLAR, ST. GEORGE-IN-THE-EAST, STEPNEY, TOWER OF LONDON, WHITECHAPEL (1).]

Tower Lindsay, or Crawford Castle. [CRAWFORD.]

Tower of London, pa. on the Thames, S.E. Middx., within the parl. bor. of the Tower Hamlets, about 1 S.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 21. The pa. derives its name from the celebrated fortress at the eastern limits of the City. This, generally called the Tower, claims Roman origin, and there can be no doubt that on this site King Alfred built a stronghold. But as we know it, the Tower had its beginnings in No-m. times, being commenced by Gundulf, Bishop of Rochester, at the order of William the Conqueror, who felt it necessary thus to overawe Saxon London. By Gundulf was built the White Tower, or central keep, with its halls and the Chapel of St. John; but it was reserved to William Longchamp to surround it with walls and a moat a century later. The building, however, has undergone great modification at various periods; and it has been put to various uses, having been successively a fortress, a royal residence, a State prison, and in these later days an arsenal and barracks, and the most interesting of British show-places. In plan an irregular pentagon, it is about 12 ac. in extent, its most salient feature being the White Tower in the centre. It is surrounded by a double line of circumvallation, known as the Outer and the Inner Ward, protected by a moat, which was drained in 1843, and partly filled up and gravelled as a drill ground for the garrison. In the Record or Wakefield Tower, the reputed scene of the murder of Henry VI., the Regalia are now kept, in a strong iron cage; at the foot of the spiral staircase leading to the White Tower is a tablet recording the fact that here were discovered the bones—now in Westminster Abbey—believed to be those of the hapless children

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tovil	Tovil	42	1055
Towcester	Towcester	67	2775
Towednack	St. Erth (1½)	315	363

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tower Hamlets	.....	.....	451931
Tower of London	.....	.....	868 of Edward IV. On the second floor are the Banqueting Hall and St. John's Chapel, one of the earliest as, with all its plainness, it is one of the most impressive specimens of Norm. architecture in the kingdom. The Council Chamber on the third floor—the scene of Richard II.'s abdication—and the Banqueting Hall now contain the greater part of the famous collection of old armour and arms. In front of the White Tower are the Wellington Barracks (1845), and near these is the Chapel of St. Peter-ad-Vincula, famous as the burial-place of many of those who were beheaded either within the Tower or on Tower Hill, on the north-west of the fortress. The majority of the executions took place on Tower Hill, the only persons who suffered on the spot within the Tower now railed off and marked by a stone being Anne Boleyn (1536), Katharine Howard (1542), Jane, Viscountess Rochford (beheaded on the same day as Queen Katharine), the aged Countess of Salisbury (1541), Lady Jane Grey (1554), and Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex (1601). The towers of the Inner Wards were used as places of confinement for State prisoners, and some of the apartments bear on the wall carvings executed by those kept in durance. Under St. Thomas's Tower in the Outer Ward is the Traitor's Gate, by which State prisoners were brought by water to the Tower. The river front is now laid out as a public promenade. Just eastward of the Tower is the Tower Bridge (1894), an exceedingly ornate building; the approaches and the central towers harmonise completely with the general appearance of the Tower. In the centre of the bridge the roadway may be raised by bascules, so as to allow the passing of ships up or down the river. At this time carriage traffic is suspended, and foot passengers are taken up by lifts in the towers to a higher footway. In immediate vicinity to the Tower are the Royal Mint and Trinity House. The Mint, where all English gold and silver money is coined, was erected in 1811, and considerably enlarged in 1881–82. Trinity House is the headquarters of the authority which controls the lighthouses, beacons, and buoys around the coast, licenses pilots, and is in other ways concerned with British navigation. The present building was erected in 1793–95. It is of the Ionic order, and its front is sculptured with the arms of the Corporation (a cross between four ships under sail), medallions of George III. and Queen Charlotte, genii with nautical instruments, lighthouses, etc. Inside may be seen busts and portraits of naval heroes and others, models of lighthouses, etc.

THE TOWER OF LONDON.
(From Photo. by York and Son, Notting Hill, W.)

Towersey, pa., Mid Bucks., on the borders of Oxon., 9 s.w. of Aylesbury; ac. 1,332; soil stiff wet clay, in parts loam, overlying clay, gravel and stone. The small Dec. church of St. Catherine retains a very good piscina, and a font reputed to be Saxon. There is a Baptist chapel. The charities amount to £15 a year. T. Manor is a seat.

Tower Without, Old. [OLD TOWER WITHOUT.]

Towie, pa. on the Don, Mid Abers., Sc., 12 w.s.w. of Alford; ac. 12,150; soil generally light friable loam, of no great depth, resting on a gravelly bottom, but in some few places with a hard retentive subsoil. The pa. church is a plain structure; there is also a Free church. In the churchyard

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Towersey	Thame (2)	48	349

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Towie	Alford (12)	537	[illegible] is an old gravestone, with a sculptured cross and chalice, marking the burial-place of a priest. Of the old castle of T. only a small square tower remains.

Towie Barclay. [BARCLAY CASTLE.]

Tow Law, eccl. pa. and small to. (formerly with a market), pas. of Wolsingham and Lanchester (q.v.), N. Dur., 10 N.W. of Bishop Auckland. The church of SS. Peter and James is in E. Eng. style. The Catholic Church of St. Joseph has a convent and schools attached; there are also various Nonconformist chapels. The Mechanics' Institute was founded in 1857. There are collieries and ironworks, and a cattle auction is held weekly.

Towler Hill, ha., pa. of Romaldkirk (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2 S.E. of Cotherstone.

Town, East, ha., pa. of and ½ S.E. from Wick, St. Lawrence (q.v.), N. Somerset.

Townhead (1), q.s. pa., within the city of Glasgow (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc. The church is modern.

Townhead (2), pl., pa. of Crossmichael (q.v.), Mid Kirkcuds., Sc., 2 N.W. of Castle Douglas.

Townhead (3), pl., pa. of Kirkoswald, W. Ayrs., Sc., 4½ S.W. of Maybole.

Townhead (4), vil., pa. of Penpont (q.v.), N.W. Dumfs., Sc.

Townhill, vil., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Dunfermline (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc.

Town Malling. [MALLING, WEST.]

Town Row, ha. with railway station, pa. of and 1 S. from Rotherfield (q.v.), E. Sussex.

Townshend, vil., pa. of and 4 S.W. from Crowan (q.v.), S.W. Cornw. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Townstall, formerly a pa. of S. Dev. within the bor. of Dartmouth (q.v.), with which it is now amalgamated.

Towthorpe (1), small tp. and vil. on the Foss, pa. of Huntington (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4½ N.N.E. of York; ac. 1,074.

Towthorpe (2), tp., pa. of Wharram Percy (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., about 10 W. by N. of Driffield; ac. 1,711.

Towton, tp., pa. of Saxton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2½ S. of Tadcaster; ac. 885. The battlefield of T. lies between this place and Saxton, where, on March 29, 1461, the great battle was fought between the forces of York and Lancaster which dethroned Henry VI.

Towy, river of South Wales. It rises in the south-east of Cardigs., among the hills near Tregaron, and flows in a general S.W. direction past Llandovery and Llandilofawr; near the latter place it bends sharply to the west and flows to Carmarthen, where it bends southwards, falling into Carmarthen Bay after a course of about 65 miles.

Towyn (1), pa., mkt. to. (F.), and watering-place on Cardigan Bay, S.W. Merions., 12 S. of Barmouth; ac. 26,371. The church of St. Cadfan is an ancient cruciform structure. In 1692 the upper part of the central tower fell, and was replaced by a tower at the west end; at the north-west corner of the church lies a very interesting stone, said to be a monument of St. Cadfan, the inscription upon it being in Welsh, and the oldest extant in that language, besides some curious and ancient monuments, and some handsome ones of modern date. There are also places of worship for Independents, Calvinists, and Wesleyans, and good schools. During the summer months T. is frequented by numerous visitors, and, in addition to the facilities for bathing, numbers are attracted by the fame of St. Cadfan's Well, noted for the cure of rheumatic disorders. The surrounding country is beautiful and embellished with many seats, and the streams in the neighbourhood afford excellent sport to the angler and for wild-fowl shooting. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture and fishing. Large quantities of slates are brought to T. from the quarries at Abergynolwyn by the Talyllyn miniature railway; this line is also constructed to carry passengers.

Towyn (2), eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Abergele and St. George (q.v.), N.E. Denbighs., about 1 E.S.E. of Abergele. The church is dedicated to St. Mary.

Toxteth, East, Division, one of the nine parl. divs. of Liverpool. It returns one member.

Toxteth Park, pa. and to. within the parl. bor. of Liverpool, S.W. Lancs.; ac. 2,314, and 1,284 of water. There are several modern churches and Nonconformist chapels. Jeremiah Horrocks, a clergyman and distinguished astronomer, was born here about 1619.

Toxteth, West, Division, one of the nine parl. divs. of Liverpool. It returns one member.

Toy and Kirkland, ha., pa. of and 2 W. from Killyleagh (q.v.), E. co. Down, Ir.

Toyd Farm with Allenford, pa., S. Wilts., about 8 S.W. of Salisbury; ac. 647.

Toynton All Saints, pa. and scattered vil., E. Lincs., 1½ S. of Spilsby, on the road to Boston; ac. 1,333; soil sandy loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is E. Eng. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Toynton, High, pa. and vil. at the termination of the Wolds, E. Lincs., 1½ E. of Horncastle, on the road to Spilsby; ac. 1,054; soil heavy loam, overlying white clay. The church of St. John the Baptist was rebuilt 1872 in E. Eng. style.

Toynton, Low, small pa., E. Lincs., 1 N.E. of Horncastle; ac. 778; soil rich loam, overlying white clay. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng., and has a curiously sculptured font of the same period.

Toynton St. Peter, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 2 S. of Spilsby; ac. 1,511; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1876) is Gothic. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, with a day school. The charities amount to about £5 a year.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tow Law	Tow Law	254	3790
Townhead (1)	Glasgow	400	13825
Townhill	Dunfermline (1½)	433	1801
Towthorpe (1)	Haxey (½)	153	202
Towthorpe (2)	Sledmere (1)	221	62
Towton	Church Fenton (2)	184	108
Towyn (1)	Towyn	236	3301
Towyn (2)	Abergele (1)	213	407

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Toxteth, East, Div.	.....	.....	63677
Toxteth Park	Liverpool (1½)	198	128387
Toxteth, West, Div.	.....	.....	64710
Toyd Farm with A.	Downton (6)	90	16
Toynton All Saints	Spilsby (1)	126	344
Toynton, High	Horncastle (1½)	130	124
Toynton, Low	Horncastle (1)	130	55
Toynton St. Peter	Spilsby (2)	126	262

Trabolgan, pa., Imokilly bar., S.E. co. Cork, Ir., at the extreme eastern side of Cork Harbour, 6 S.W. of Cloyne; ac. 830. Here is a coastguard station and a lighthouse. Roches Mount and T. are seats; the last-named is situated in extensive and well-planted grounds, with a considerable sea frontage.

Tracton, pa., Kinalea bar., S. co. Cork, 4 S. of Carrigaline; ac. 5,861. Of St. Mary's Abbey, founded in 1224, only a few fragments remain. Here is a tweed factory.

Tradeston Division, one of the seven parl. divs. of Glasgow (q.v.). It returns one member.

Traeth Bach, creek, N.W. Merions., about 4 S.E. of Tremadoc. It is separated from Traeth Mawr by a narrow peninsula.

Traeth Mawr. [PORTMADOC, TREMADOC.]

Traethnelgan, ha., pa. of Talley (q.v.), N. Carmarths., about 8 N. of Llandilo.

Trafalgar House. [STANDLINCH.]

Trafford. [BRIDGE TRAFFORD, MICKLE TRAFFORD, AND WIMBOLDS TRAFFORD.]

Traianglas, tp., pa. of Llywel (q.v.), W. Brecons., about 10 W. of Brecknock; ac. 16,231.

Traianmawr, tp., pa. of Llywel (q.v.), W. Brecons., about 10 W. of Brecknock; ac. 5,890.

Trailflat, ha., pa. of Tinwald (q.v.), Mid Dumfs., Sc., 6 N. of Dumfries.

Trailtrow, pl., pa. of Cummertrees (q.v.), S. Dumfs., Sc., about 3½ W. of Annan.

Tralee (= the Strand of the Lee or Leigh), pa., seaport, and U. and mkt. to. (T. & S.), Trughanacmy bar., W. co. Kerry, Ir., about 20 N. by W. of Killarney. T. formerly sent two members to the Irish Parliament, but at the Union the representation was reduced to one, and in 1885 it was merged in that of the co. T. has Protestant and Catholic churches, places of worship for other religious bodies, and good elementary and secondary schools. A ship canal has been constructed from T. Harbour to the to. by which vessels up to 250 tons can discharge in the to. The principal public buildings are the Chamber of Commerce, the Courthouse, the gaol, barracks, hospital, and workhouse. The fisheries are important, and T. has over 600 fishing-boats registered. There is a large export in grain, and a considerable quantity of barley is converted into malt and shipped to Cork and Dublin. The coal, iron and timber trades are of consequence. Monthly fairs are held, and in addition there are fortnightly pig-fairs.

Tralee Bay, inlet of the Atlantic, W. co. Kerry, Ir. It is entered from the Atlantic between Kerry Head and the Hog Islands, at the extremity of the narrow neck of land dividing it from Brandon Bay; it is about 6 miles wide at the mouth, but contracted to 4¾ by the island of Fenit, below which, on the east, by the Samphire islands, is the inner portion known as T. harbour, from which is the ship canal to the to.

Tralee Harbour. [TRALEE BAY.]

Tralee Spa. [SPA.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trabolgan	Queenstown (4½)	178	151
Tracton	Queenstown (7)	178	979
Tradeston Division	.....	.....	70649
Traianglas	Devynock (2)	193	473
Traianmawr	Devynock (2)	193	432
Tralee, pa.	Tralee	207	8734

Trallong, pa., Mid Brecons., 5½ W. by S. of Brecknock; ac. 3,384; the surface is undulating, and in some parts hilly, and the soil, especially in the lower grounds, is fertile and productive. The church, dedicated to St. David, is a plain ancient edifice.

Tramore, coast vil. and watering place, pa. of Drumcannon (q.v.), S. co. Waterf., Ir., 6 S. of Waterford. T. is seated on a broad and dangerous bay, which in hazy and tempestuous weather is frequently and fatally mistaken by mariners for Waterford Harbour, from which it is 3 W. At its entrance T. Bay is 2½ miles wide, but about a mile and a half inland a spit of land stretches across, leaving only a narrow channel on the east into the lagoon in the rear known as the Back Strand; it is this reef which has caused many wrecks, among which, in 1816, the Seahorse transport was lost, when 292 men and 71 women and children perished, and a monument has been erected in the Protestant churchyard. At one extremity of the beach immense heaps of sand, thrown up by the sea, have by constant accumulation formed a hill, which is now a rabbit warren, and from its summit a fine and extensive view of the bay is commanded. A line of road is constructed to Waterford, and numerous vehicles afford facilities of intercourse with that city. The vil. boasts of many good houses and is one of the best bathing places in this part of Ireland, and is frequented by many families during the summer. A racecourse has been made here, and meetings are held twice a year in the summer months. The places of worship are the Protestant pa. church of Drumcannon, situated in the to., a Catholic church, one for Wesleyans, and a Friends' meeting-house. National and parochial schools are the free educational institutions. The Parochial Hall is used also for public meetings and concerts. A market is held on Saturday.

DONERAILE WALK, TRAMORE.
(Photo. Poole and Co., Waterford.)

Tranent, pa. and to., N. Haddings., Sc.; ac. 5,919; soil towards the coast light and sandy, in some

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tralee, to.	Tralee	207	4[illegible]
Trallong	Devynock (3)	193	2[illegible]
Tramore	Tramore	120	18[illegible]
Tranent, pa.	Tranent	387	5[illegible]
Tranent, to.	Tranent	387	2[illegible]

parts fertile loam, occasionally mixed with clay. The to. occupies elevated ground about 10 E. of Edinburgh, on the main road to Dunbar. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in the adjacent collieries, which have been wrought in this quarter from the first discovery of coal in Scotland. The pa. church, which stands at the foot of the to., is a plain edifice with a square tower; Colonel Gardiner, who fell in the battle of Prestonpans, 1745, was interred in it. There are also Free, United Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic churches, and public schools. The Town Hall (1888) is used for public entertainments. Near is Elphinstone Tower, once a baronial residence; and in other parts of the pa. are the ruins of Waterfallside Castle and the remains of a collegiate church; of Seton Palace there are no remains. What was left was pulled down in 1790, and on the site the present castellated edifice was erected.

Tranmere, tp. on the Mersey, pa. of Bebington (q.v.), N.W. Chesh., within the bor. of Birkenhead, and extending from 2 to 3 miles south; ac. 1,071. At an arm of the Mersey, called T. Pool, is a ferry with a regular service to Liverpool. There are eccl. pas. with modern churches, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Conservative Working Men's Club dates from 1877. Mersey Park is a recreation ground. Yorkson's charity of £5 is distributed annually in bread. The Old Hall, formerly the residence of the lords of the manor, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Trannish Island, in Upper Lough Erne, pa. of Agalurcher (q.v.), S. co. Tyr., Ir., about 5 S.W. of Lisnaskea.

Tranwell and High Church, tp., pa. of and about ½ S.W. from Morpeth (q.v.), S.E. Northumb.; ac. 1,234. High Church contains the pa. church, rectory and several residences.

Traprain Law. [PRESTONKIRK.]

Traquair, pa. and vil., S.E. Peebs., Sc.; ac. of pa. 15,327. The T., Fingland and Newhall brooks and the Bold burn, all tributaries of the Tweed, flow through the pa., which is on the south bank of the Tweed, and watered also by the Quair; it lies opposite to Innerleithen, with which place it is connected by a girder bridge over the Tweed. The general appearance of the pa. is mountainous; in it are Gumscleugh and Minchmoor, lofty eminences lying on the old road to Selkirk, and over which Montrose retreated after his defeat at the battle of Philiphaugh. The church is 3½ S. of Innerleithen. T. House has a tower at the north-east corner, believed to have been erected before the year 900, and large additions were made to this by the first Earl of T.; the title became extinct in 1861. This old mansion-house is delightfully situated on the banks of the Tweed, where that river and the Quair unite, and a little west of the mansion-house is the "Bush aboon Traquair" (the subject of the celebrated ballad), pointed out by a few birch trees, the remains of a thicket or arbour. Cardrona House and The Glen are also seats.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tranmere	Birkenhead (1)	194	30680
Trannish Island	Lisnaskea (5)	106	33
Tranwell&H.Church	Morpeth	288	73
Traquair	Innerleithen (1½)	375	700
Trawden, eccl. pa.	Colne (2)	219	1729
Trawden, tp.	Colne (2)	219	2354
Trawscoed	Aberedw (2½)	182	48

Trasna Island, small island in Upper Lough Erne, pa. of Kinawley (q.v.), S. co. Fermanagh, Ir.

Trawbreaga Bay, East Inishowen bar., N.E. co. Don., Ir., between Malin Head and Dunaff Head.

Trawden, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 2 S.E. of Colne. The church of St. Mary is a stone building in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan, Independent and Primitive Methodist chapels. Here is a cemetery, formerly belonging to the Society of Friends, which dates from the year 1688, but was opened about 1858 for the use of Dissenters generally. The Literary Institute was built in 1880.

Trawenagh Bay, Boylagh bar., W. co. Don., Ir., about 3 S. of Dunglow.

Trawscoed, tp., pa. of Gwenddwr (q.v.), N. Brecons., about 8 N.W. of Talgarth; ac. 881.

Trawsfynydd, pa. and small vil., N.W. Merions., 4 S. of Festiniog; ac. 21,950, of which more than one-half consists of barren hills, affording scanty pasturage for sheep and young cattle. The surrounding country is strikingly varied, presenting in some parts the dreary wildness of rugged mountain scenery, in others the softer features of rural beauty, combined with objects of picturesque and romantic grandeur. The church is dedicated to St. Madryn.

Tray Cliff, hill (1,230 ft.), N. Derbys., about 1 W. of Castleton. It contains the famous "Blue John Mine." [CASTLETON (1).]

Treadingstown, pa. on the Nore, Gowran and Shillelogher bars., Mid co. Kilk., Ir., 5 S.E. of Kilkenny, Ir.; ac. 711. It contains part of Bennett's Bridge (q.v.).

Treallaw, ha., pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), N. Glamorgs., 6 N.W. of Pontypridd, separated from Ton-y-Pandy by the Rhondda. There are chapels for Welsh Baptists, Calvinistic Methodists, English Wesleyans, and English Primitive Methodists.

Treales, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs. Christ Church is in E. Eng. style.

Treales, Roseacre and Wharles, tp., pa. of Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs., about 7 S. of Poulton-le-Fylde; ac. 4,100.

Treath-y-Mwnt. [MOUNT (1).]

Trebartha Hall. [NORTH HILL.]

Trebarwith, vil., pa. of Tintagel (q.v.), W. Cornw., 2½ S. of Tintagel Church. T. Strand, a fine stretch of sands, lies about 2 S. of Tintagel Head.

Treborough, pa., W. Somerset, 8 N.W. of Wiveliscombe; ac. 1,799. The church of St. Peter is in E. Eng. and Perp. styles. Here is an extensive quarry of fine blue slate.

Trebrys, tp, pa. of Yspytty (q.v.), W. Denbighs., 9 S.E. of Llanrwst; ac. 853.

Trebullett, vil., pa. of Lezant (q.v.), W. Cornw., about 5 S. of Launceston.

Trecarrel. [LEZANT.]

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trawsfynydd	Trawsfynydd (½)	239	1615
Treadingstown	Bennett's Bridge	87	265
Treales	Kirkham (1)	217	533
Treales, R.&Wharles	Kirkham (1)	217	533
Treborough	Roadwater (1½)	179	126
Trebrys	Bettws-y-Coed (6)	239	160

Trecastle (1), vil., pa. of Llywel (q.v.), W. Brecons., about 7 W. of Brecknock. In the neighbourhood is Trecastle Beacon, rising 2,596 ft. above sea level.

Trecastle (2), ha., pa. of and 5 S.E. from Llandilofawr (q.v.), E. Carmarths. Here are the remains of Carrig Cennen Castle.

Trecoed. [DISSERTH AND TRECOED.]

Tredegar, eccl. pa. and mkt. to. (8.), pa. of Bedwelty (q.v.), N.W. Mon., 7 N.E. of Merthyr Tydvil. T. is comparatively a new to. and arose entirely through the establishment of large iron works at the commencement of the 19th cent.; the works are on the north-east side of the to. and the mines and collieries surround it. The principal streets diverge from an open space in the centre of the to. called "The Circle," in the centre of which stands a lofty cast-iron column, supporting an illuminated clock. The best shops and hotels are to be found in Castle Street and The Circle; in the other streets the houses are of a smaller description and are mostly occupied by those engaged in the iron works and collieries of the district. The church of St. George is a rectangular building of stone in the Norm. style; the chapel-of-ease (St. James) is in E. Eng. style; and there are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall (1893) is a handsome stone building; the market house is exclusively for butchers; the market for the sale of all other commodities is held in the open air in The Circle. There is a literary institute and library at the Temperance Hall in Morgan Street.

Tredegar, New, vil., pa. of Bedwelty (q.v.), N.W. Mon., 4½ S.W. of Tredegar. Here is a small Mission church, and there are places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The Workmen's Hall (1878) contains a lecture hall, library, and reading-room. Here are four collieries, which give employment to the inhabitants.

Tredethy. [ST. MABYN.]

Tredington (1), pa. and vil., E. Worcs., in a detached part of the co., 2 N. of Shipston-on-Stour; ac. 5,168; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Gregory is Trans.; it contains brasses with effigies to Richard Cassey, rector 1427, and Henry Sampson, rector 1482, and the figure of a lady. There is a small educational charity.

Tredington (2), pa. and vil. on the Swilgate, N. Glouc., 6½ N.W. of Cheltenham; ac. 1,011; soil clay, overlying blue lias. The church of St. John the Baptist is Norm. and Dec., in the chancel is a peculiar sedile; there is a cross in the churchyard. T. has a small charity. T. Court is a seat.

Tredogan, vil., pa. of Penmark (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 5 S.E. of Cowbridge.

Tredunnock, pa. on the Usk, S. Mon., 4 S. of Usk; ac. 1,288; soil light, with a stony subsoil. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng.; on the north wall is a memorial to a Roman soldier of the second legion.

Treen, pl., pa. of St. Levan (q.v.), S. Cornw., 7 S.W. of Penzance.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tredegar, ec. pa.	Tredegar	173	17436
Tredegar, to.	Tredegar	173	17341
Tredington (1)	Moreton-in-Marsh (8	91	919
Tredington (2)	Cheltenham (6½)	109	104
Tredunnock	Usk (4)	157	168
Treeton, pa.	Treeton	159	1565
Treeton, tp.	Treeton	159	1301

Treesbank, estate and mansion, pa. of Riccar (q.v.), N. Ayrs., Sc., 2¾ S.W. of Kilmarnock.

Treeton, pa., tp., and vil. on the Rother, W Yorks., 6 E. of Sheffield; ac. of pa. 3,220, of 1,165; soil mixed, overlying clay and gritstone. church of St. Helen (restored 1892) dates from 13th cent.; among the memorials are an incised s dated 1486, an effigy of a knight, a stone to Edw Bradshaw (d. 1665), and various stones to mem of the families of Vesci, Bradshaw and Lord; t are three piscinæ. Here are Wesleyan and Ba chapels. In the pa. are several quarries and coal Tre-Evan, ha., pa. of Llangarren (q.v.), S. H fords., about 6 S.W. of Ross.

Tref-, for places not found under this spell see also TRE- and TREV. This is a Celtic pr meaning a "home" or "small town."

Tref-Asser, ha., pa. of Llanwnda (q.v.), Pembs., 3 N.W. of Fishguard.

Trefdraeth, pa., S.W. Anglesey, 2 N.E. Bodorgan; ac. 3,135, of which about 1,000 ac. h been recovered from the sea. The church of Beuno is a small plain building, and there places of worship for some Nonconformist bod There are some charities.

Trefecca, ha., pa. of Talgarth (q.v.), about 7 s of Hay on the road to Crickhowell.

Trefeglwys, pa. and small vil., S. Montgo 4 N.E. of Llanidloes; ac. 18,166. The church St. Michael is E. Eng., and contains some g carved oak. The surrounding scenery is ric varied, and in some parts very picturesque.

Trefeirig, tp., pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), Cardigs., near Aberystwith; ac. 9,488.

Trefgarn, pa., S. Pembs., 5 N. of Haverfordw ac. 1,204. The pa. is intersected from north south by the West Cleddy river, up the valley which passes the road from Haverfordwest Fishguard. The north-western part is chiefly mountainous, heathy, barren tract. The m remarkable natural feature of its surface is t from which it derives its name, signifying "town of the rock," and which consists of two ro of striking aspect, rising abruptly to a considera height above the moor, and presenting the appe ance of ruined castles, an idea which seems c firmed to the eye by their being situated so as command the narrow pass of the mountain thro which the West Cleddy here flows, and which, the opposite side, presents a fine grove com down to the water's edge.

Treffynon, vil., pa. of Llanddausant (q.v.), Anglesey, 5 W. of Llanerchymedd.

Trefilan, pa., S. Cardigs., 6 N.W. of Lampet ac. 2,200. The surrounding country is bold varied, and the scenery picturesque. The churc of St. Hilary (rebuilt) is a plain structure; retains the ancient font. Near the churchyard a mound, said to have been the site of a fortress Treflis, tp., pa. of Llangammarch (q.v.), S Brecons., 7½ S.W. of Builth; ac. 6,324.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Trefdraeth	Bodorgan (2)	232	86
Trefeglwys	Dolwen (3½)	205	163
Trefeirig	Aberystwith (1)	243	12
Trefgarn	Haverfordwest (5)	264	8
Trefilan	Lampeter (7)	260	28
Treflis	Llangamm'h Wells (1	213	81

Trefloyn. [PENALLY.]

Treflys, pa. on the north shore of Cardigan Bay, S.W. Carnarvs., 3 W. by S. of Tremadoc.; ac. 999. The church is dedicated to St. Michael.

Trefnant, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Henllan (q.v.), N. Denbighs., 3 N. of Denbigh. The church of the Holy Trinity is a beautiful modern structure erected from designs by Sir Gilbert Scott.

Trefonen, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 2¼ S.W. from Oswestry (q.v.), N.W. Salop. The church (dedication unknown) was built in 1821. Here are Congregational and Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapels, and a reading-room. Coal, lead, and copper are found.

Treforest, ha. with railway station, pa. of Llantwitfardre (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., 2 S. of Pontypridd. There is a Catholic chapel, and also English and Welsh Baptist, Welsh Calvinistic, and English Wesleyan chapels.

Treforis, ha. on the Towy, pa. of St. Ishmael (q.v.), S. Carmarths., 3 N.W. of Kidwelly.

Trefriw, pa. and vil., Carnarvs.; ac. 1,236. The vil. is situated on the banks of the Conway, about 2 N.W. of Llanrwst, to which the tide ascends, rendering the river navigable for small vessels, which come here with coal, groceries, etc., and return laden with slate. A mineral spring discovered in the neighbourhood is much resorted to; the water is a powerful chalybeate. The church of St. Mary is said to have been built by Llewelyn, and there are Independent and Calvinist chapels. Fairs are held on May 12, Sept. 3, and Nov. 7.

Trefusis Point, promontory at the extremity of the northern boundary of Falmouth Inner Harbour, S.W. Cornw. Here the Queen transport was wrecked in a gale in 1814. [FLUSHING.]

Tref-y-coed, ha., pa. of Lampeter Pont Stephen (q.v.), S. Cardigs., near Lampeter.

Tregaian, pa., Mid Anglesey, 2 N.W. of Llangefni; ac. 2,065. The surface is boldly undulated, rising in some parts into abrupt eminences, and has a great proportion of woodland. The church is dedicated to St. Caiarn. T. Hall is a seat.

Tregaminion, pl., pa. of and 2 S.E. from Tywardreath (q.v.), S.E. Cornw. The chapel-of-ease was built in 1815. There is the round head of an ancient cross, with the fragment of a shaft fixed in a low base, and another ancient cross which was brought from Milltown, Lanlivery.

Tregantle Fort, fort, pa. of Antony (q.v.), S.E. Cornw., about 7 S.E. of St. Germans. Forces are from time to time quartered here.

Tregaravas, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Gorran (q.v.), S. Cornw.

Tregarden. [ST. MABYN.]

Tregare, pa., E. Mon., 7 W.S.W. of Monmouth, on the road to Abergavenny; ac. 2,415; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) is E. Eng.; the stone steps and doorway to the rood-loft remain, and there are tablets to the Wysome family. Llwyn-y-Gaer is an ancient house surrounded by a moat, and is said to have been visited by Charles I. during the Civil War.

Tregarn, ha., pa. of Llandarog (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 6 S.E. of Carmarthen.

Tregarnedd. [LLANGEFNI.]

Tregaron, small to., pa. of Caron (q.v.), E. Cardigs., 10 N.E. of Lampeter. It was formerly a parl. bor., but was disfranchised in 1730 for corrupt practices; the market has now lapsed. The church is dedicated to St. Caron. About 3 N. of the to. is a large encampment said to have been constructed by the Flemish invaders of South Wales.

Tregavethan (formerly an extra-parochial manor), pa., S.W. Cornw., 3½ N.W. of Truro; ac. 1,007; soil slate, overlying clay-slate. T. House is a seat.

Tregeagle's Quoits, the name applied to a number of huge blocks of quartz on the cliffs overlooking Veryan Bay, S. Cornw. Tradition says that the giant Tregeagle threw them here from the northern part of the coast.

Tregelles, pl., pa. of and ½ N.W. from St. Kew (q.v.), N.E. Cornw.

Treggle, vil., pa. of Llanfechell (q.v.), N.W. Anglesey, about 5 W. of Llanerchymedd.

Tregib, ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Llandilofawr (q.v.), E. Carmarths.

Tregiskey, ha., pa. of Mevagissey (q.v.), Mid Cornw., about 6 S. of St. Austell.

Tregony, pa. and vil. (formerly a bor.) on the Fal, S. Cornw., 7½ E. of Truro; ac. 100. The church of St. James has ceased to exist, as also has the castle and the chapel of St. Anne. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Bible Christian chapels. The market-house is now disused. There is a charity of £97 yearly. Here was formerly a Benedictine monastery.

Tregoss Moors, Mid Cornw., between Bodmin and St. Columb. They are supposed to have been the hunting-ground of King Arthur, and are still famed for the ponies bred on them.

Tregothnan. [ST. MICHAEL PENKIVEL.]

Tregoyd and Velindre, tp., pa. of Glasbury (q.v.), E. Brecons., 3 S.W. of Hay; ac. 5,816. Gwernyfed, an Elizabethan mansion, and Tregoyd are seats.

Treguss, ha., pa. of Llancarvan (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 8 S.W. of Llandaff.

Tregwydir, tp., pa. of Llanrhychwyn (q.v.), E. Carnarvs., about 2 W. of Llanrwst; ac. 8,609.

Tregynin, ha., pa. of Llangathen (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 4 W. of Llandilofawr.

Tregynon, pa. and vil., S. Montgoms., 5 N. of Newtown; ac. 6,760; soil in the lower grounds rich, and there are some good turbaries in various parts. The surrounding scenery is pleasingly varied and enriched with wood, and the views from the higher grounds embrace a well-cultivated tract of country. The church of St. Cynon is an ancient edifice, and contains some monuments. There are places of worship for Independents and

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trefys	Criccieth (2)	265	73
Trefnant	Trefnant	209	624
Trefonen	Oswestry (2¼)	183	1179
Trefriw	Llanrwst (2)	235	628
Tregaian	Llangefni (2)	250	145
Tregare	Raglan (1)	151	262

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tregavethan	Truro (3½)	295	45
Tregony	Grampound Road (4	287	558
Tregoyd and Vel.	Glasbury (1½)	171	532
Tregwydir	Llanrwst (2)	235	448
Tregynon	Newtown (5)	195	586

Calvinistic and Wesleyan Methodists. The Roman road Via Devana passed through the pa.

Trehan, vil., pa. of St. Stephens-by-Saltash (q.v.), E. Cornw., 2¼ S.W. of Saltash.

Tre-Harris, pl., pa. of Gelligaer (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., about 13½ N. of Cardiff. There is a Congregational chapel.

Trehengwin, vil., pa. of Llanwyrtvd (q.v.), N.W. Brecons., 12 S.W. of Builth.

Treherbert, vil., pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), N. Glamorgs., 11 N.W. of Pontypridd. The church of St. Mary (1867) is a chapel-of-ease. There are chapels for English and Welsh Baptists, Calvinistic Methodists, Welsh Congregationalists, Welsh Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists. There are several collieries, and also engineering works.

Treig, Loch, a beautiful piece of water nearly 800 ft. above sea level, pa. of Kilmonivaig (q.v.), S. Invs., Sc. It is about 5 miles long, with a breadth varying from a mile to a mile and a half, and is surrounded by mountains. From its northern extremity a small stream, called the Treig, flows N. to the Spean, into which it falls about 6 E. of the Bridge of Roy.

Treinghill, ha., pa. of Llanblethian (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 1 S. of Cowbridge.

Trelavan, ha., pa. of Mevagissey (q.v.), Mid Cornw., about 6 S. of St. Austell.

Trelaver, vil., pa. of and ¼ S. from St. Dennis (q.v.), S. Cornw. Fairs are held here in May and October.

Trelawne. [PELYNT.]

Treleach-ar-Bettws, pa. and vil., W. Carmarths., 9 N.W. of Carmarthen; ac. 11,490. The church is dedicated to St. Teilo.

Treleigh, eccl. pa., pa. of Redruth (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 9 W. of Truro. The church of St. Stephen is in Perp. style. The inhabitants are employed in mining.

Trelill, pl., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from St. Kew (q.v.), N.E. Cornw. There is a Free Methodist chapel.

Trelleck, pa., tp., and vil., E. Mon., 5 S. of Monmouth, on the road to Chepstow; ac. of pa. 7,385, of tp. 5,001; soil sandy loam, overlying sandstone and gravel. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1894) is E. Eng. Near the church is a curious sundial, erected in 1689; an antique cross and a somewhat singular tomb stand in the churchyard. There is a chapel for Wesleyans and one for Bible Christians. Charities amounting to £24 yearly are distributed in money. T. was anciently a place of great importance, and is supposed to have been the site of a large town; it is situated on the summit of a hill, and derives its name, which means "the Town of Stones," from three stone pillars which stand in a small field; tradition states that they were erected by Harold in commemoration of a victory over the Britons. In the vicinity of these stones is a celebrated chalybeate spring, called the "Virtuous Well." In the vil. is a tumulus, supposed to be of Roman origin, encir by a moat, and it was subsequently the site some fortified building. The scenery is roman Cleiadon (or Cleddon) Hall is a seat.

Trelleck Grange, eccl. pa., tp. and pa. of Trell (q.v.), E. Mon., 6 N. of Chepstow; ac. 1,815; sandy, overlying sand and gravel. The chu once belonging to Tintern Abbey, is a small E. E building.

Trelleck Township, pa. of Trelleck (q.v.), Mon.; ac. 566.

Trellwyn. [PENALLY.]

Trelowarren. [MAWGAN IN MENEAGE.]

Trelystan, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of West (q.v.), E. Montgoms., about 3 S.E. of Welshp ac. 1,190. The church is dedicated to All Saint Tremadoc, small mkt. to. (F.), on a bay to w it gives its name, pa. of Ynyscynhaiarn, Carnarvs., about 20 S. by E. of Carnarvon. place derives its name from its founder, a Mr. A. Madocks, who in 1800 succeeded in recoverin tract of nearly 2,000 ac. of rich land, then form Penmorva marsh, and afterwards reclaimed whole of the sandy estuary called Traeth Maw the eastern extremity of Cardigan Bay. The t situated on a portion of the tract first recov from the sea, and is built on the sides of a spac quadrangular area. Here is an Anglican chu and a chapel for Calvinistic Methodists. The t of T. is now taken over by Portmadoc (q. Tanyrallt, a spacious modern mansion on elevated rock overlooking the to., is a seat.

Tremain, pa., S.W. Cardigs., 4 E.N.E. of Cardig ac. 1,658. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 18 is a long plain structure. The Wesleyans hav chapel.

Tremaine, pa., N. Cornw., 8 W.N.W. of Launces ac. 960; soil chiefly clay, overlying slate. church of St. Winwolaus is an ancient building a dilapidated condition. Here is a Wesle chapel.

Trematon, vil., pa. of St. Stephens-by-Salt (q.v.), E. Cornw., 2 N.W. of Saltash. Here i Wesleyan chapel.

Tremblestown, a name given to the Ath rivulet in some parts of its course. [ATHBOY (KILDALKEY.]

Tremworth Downs, Mid Kent, about 4 S.E. Ashford. A large Roman cemetery was discover here early in the 18th cent., and great quantities pottery and glass have since been unearthed.

Trenalls, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from St. Hila (q.v.), S.W. Cornw.

Trench, The, ha. with railway station, pa. Wrockwardine (q.v.), Mid Salop, 2 E. of Wellingto

Trendle Hill. [CERNE ABBAS.]

Treneglos, pa., N. Cornw., 7 N.E. of Camelford, o the road to Launceston; ac. 2,730; soil light, over lying slate. The church of St. Werburgh is E. Eng. the rood stairs, in the north wall, now form the entrance to the pulpit. There is a charity of £

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Treleach-ar-Bettws	Conwil (5)	240	1322
Treleigh	Redruth (1)	304	1869
Trelleck, pa.	Bigsweir (1½)	149	997
Trelleck, tp.	Bigsweir (1½)	149	755
Trelleck Grange	Tintern (2½)	145	123
Trelleck Township	Bigsweir (1½)	149	119

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trelystan, eccl. pa.	Welshpool (3)	182	47
Trelystan, tp.	Welshpool (3)	182	9
Tremain	Llandyssil (20)	252	20
Tremaine	Launceston (8)	223	11
Treneglos	Launceston (7)	223	3

yearly value, distributed in money, and the interest of £18 in the savings bank.

Trenholme, ha. with railway station, pa. of Whorlton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 S.W. of Stokesley.

Treninick, ha., pa. of and adjoining Gorran (q.v.), S. Cornw.

Trent (1), pa. and vil. on the Yeo, S.E. Somerset, 3 N.E. of Yeovil; ac. 1,590; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1840) is Dec., and contains a finely carved screen and pulpit; among the monuments are those of Tristram Storke (d. 1532), Sir Roge Wyke, temp. Edward III., Sir Francis Wyndham (d. 1676), Sir Francis Wyndham (d. 1715), William Gerard (d. 1604), Ann Gerard (d. 1633), and two modern brasses. The charities amount to over £45 yearly, the school has an endowment, and there are four almshouses. The chantry house was founded in the reign of Henry VI. In the manor-house Charles II. was concealed after the battle of Worcester.

Trent (2). [TRENT PARK.]

Trent (3), the third largest river in England, rises from New Pool, near Biddulph, N. Staffs., on the borders of Chesh., flows S. through the district of the Potteries to Trentham, and thence S.E. by Stone. Having received the waters of the Penk and the Sow near the centre of the co., its winding course gradually assumes an easterly direction, and, as it approaches Derbys., it forms several islands. Having been joined near Alrewas by the Tame from the south, the T. almost immediately becomes the boundary between Staffs. and Derbys., which it continues to be, pursuing a N.N.E. direction, and passing by the to. of Burton, where it becomes navigable, and a little below which, being joined by the Dove at Newton Solney, it enters Derbys., crossing it from west to east, and leaving at its junction with the Erwash, near Nottingham, after skirting the northern border of Leics. Its course through Notts. is nearly N.E. as far as Newark, where it turns to the north, forming for some distance the boundary between Notts. and Lincs. It enters Lincs. about 3 N. of Gainsborough, and, cutting off the Isle of Axholme from the rest of the co., joins the Ouse to form the Humber (q.v.). Its length from source to outfall is about 150 miles. Up to Gainsborough—a distance of 25 miles—it is a tidal river, and vessels of 200 tons can go up to that to.; and for barges it is navigable as far as Burton-on-Trent, while a series of canals in connection with the river on both banks connect the T. with the central rivers of England. The affluents of the T. are the Dove, Derwent, Idle, Soar, Sow, and Tame. In its course it passes Stoke-upon-Trent, Trentham, Stone, Rugeley, King's Bromley, Alrewas, Burton-on-Trent, Newton Solney, Sawley Barton, Nottingham, Newark, and Gainsborough.

Trent (4). [PIDDLE (1).]

Trenta, or Treantagh, vil., pa. of Conwal (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir., 7¼ N.W. of Letterkenny.

Trent and Mersey Canal. [GRAND TRUNK CANAL.]

JUNCTION OF THE TRENT AND DOVE.

Trentham, extensive pa. and vil., N.W. Staffs., ac. 7,445; soil clay, with gravelly subsoil. The vil. is pleasantly situated 5 N.N.W. of Stone, on the road to Newcastle-under-Lyme. The church of St. Mary and All Saints, which adjoins T. Hall (rebuilt in 1844 by George, second Duke of Sutherland), is in E. Eng. style; there is a monument to Harriet Elizabeth Georgiana, Duchess of Sutherland and Mistress of the Robes to Queen Victoria (d. 1868), consisting of a recumbent effigy resting on an altar-tomb. During the Civil War soldiers were probably quartered within the building, as the marks of shot are still visible on the royal arms, which were originally placed over the centre of the chancel screen. There is a brass, with effigy in armour, to Sir Richard Leveson, Knight, of Lylleshall (1559), and to Mary (Fyton) his wife (1591), and several children; the churchyard is now disused as a burial-ground, a new one having been formed in 1807 in the vil., in the centre of which, fronting the high road, stands a fine pyramidal mausoleum of stone, erected in 1807 by the second Marquis of Stafford as the burial-place of his family. The charities are considerable. T. Hall, the seat of the Duke of Sutherland, K.G., is a mansion in Italian style, situated on the banks of the river Trent; it was considerably enlarged

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trent (1)	Yeovil (3)	123	419
Trentham	Trentham	143	10219

and beautified under the direction of the late Sir Charles Barry, who refaced the exterior and crowned it with balustrades and vases, and added a fine belvedere tower 100 ft. high. The pleasure grounds and gardens are extensive and laid out in tasteful style; at some distance from the front of the hall is a beautiful sheet of water which, together with the woody hills behind it, produces a picturesque effect; the park, which extends over 500 ac., is pleasantly undulating and well stocked with deer. A convent was founded here about the latter part of the 7th cent., whereof St. Werburgh, daughter of Wolphere, the first Christian king of Mercia, was by her brother, King Ethelred, appointed abbess, and here she died in 683; in the reign of Henry I. the nunnery was converted by Ranulph de Meschines, Earl of Chester, into a convent of Austin canons. At the Dissolution the annual value was returned at £106 2s. 9d.; in 1539 it was sold to Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, and afterwards came into the possession of the Levesons.

TRENTHAM HALL, SOUTH FRONT.
(Photo. Harrison and Sons, Newcastle, Staffs.)

Trentishoe, pa. and vil. on the coast, N. Dev., 10 E. from Ilfracombe; ac. 1,571; soil stony, subsoil shale. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1861) is E. Eng. There is a small charity.

Trentis Rock, on the Erme, Dartmoor Forest, S. Dev., near Harford.

Trent Park, or Trent, eccl. pa., pa. of Enfield (q.v.), N.E. Middx., about 2 E. of New Barnet. Christ Church (built 1839) is in E. Eng. style. T. Park is a seat; the mansion is a modern brick edifice standing in a large well-timbered park stocked with game. Near the West Lodge is a large quadrangular area much overgrown, known as Camlet Moat, which is said to be the site of the ancient manor-house of Enfield.

Trent Vale, eccl. pa., pa. of Stoke-upon-Trent (q.v.), N. Staffs., about 2 S.W. of the to. The church of St. John the Evangelist is a brick building in early Gothic style.

Treorky, vil. with railway station, pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., 10 N.W. of Pontypridd. There are chapels for English and Welsh Baptists, Calvinistic Methodists, English and Welsh Congregationalists, and English and Welsh Wesleyans.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trentishoe	Barnstaple (14)	203	96
Trent Park	New Barnet (2)	9	908

Trequite, pl., pa. of and ½ E. from St. Kew (q.v.), N.E. Cornw. There is a Free Methodist chapel.

Tre'r Ceiri (= "the Town of the Fortresses"), an ancient British fortified to. on one of the peaks of The Rivals, pa. of Llanaelhaiarn (q.v.), S.W. Carnarvs., about 4½ N.E. of Nevin. This strong military post is defended on the side on which alone it is accessible by triple ramparts, of which the two innermost are nearly entire. The foundations of buildings, of various forms and dimensions, are scattered over the whole of the summit of the mountain, which is almost level, and also on the declivities. Within the walls of defence are the foundations of several circular buildings, about 32 ft. in diameter; the upper wall is about 12 ft. in height, and, in some places, 14 ft. in thickness at the top. Nearly the whole of the enclosed area is filled with cells of various forms, round, oval, oblong, and square. Several other mountains in the neighbourhood are fortified in a similar manner, though not with equal strength, from which circumstance some have supposed that T. C. was the principal of a chain of military stations, and the principal stronghold of the native Britons driven into this part of the country by the Saxons. According to another view it was used as a storehouse for plunder.

Trereen Dinas. [GURNARD'S HEAD.]

Trergarth, ha., pa. of Llandegai (q.v.), N. Carnarvs., 2 S.E. of Bangor.

Tresco, the second of the Scilly Islands in point of size, but the most beautiful of the whole group, about 2 N.W. of Hugh Town, St. Mary's. It contains the residence of the lord proprietor of the isles, which was built upon the site of the Benedictine Abbey of St. Nicholas, supposed to have been founded in the 10th cent., and annexed in the reign of Henry VIII. to Tavistock Abbey; two remarkably fine archways of the old abbey church are still standing. The church of St. Nicholas (1883) is in E. Eng. style. On the west side of the island are the ruins of an old castle, called "Charles's Castle," and a circular tower, called "Oliver Cromwell's," with walls 12 ft. in thickness; it was formerly mounted with a battery of 9-pounders, but is now dismantled. Pipe's Hole is an extensive cavern at the north-eastern extremity of the island. There are numerous other caverns in the neighbourhood, and the views generally are magnificent. The Abbey, a seat, is delightfully situated with a terrace in front, and is surrounded by ornamental gardens and pleasure grounds, containing many tropical plants which cannot be grown in the open air in any other part of England; the aloe flourishes in great luxuriance, and as many as forty of these have been seen in flower at the same time; the South American ostrich also lives and breeds here in health and activity. The background is formed by a hill, from the summit of which an extensive view of the isles may be obtained. There are two streams, and the abbey ponds cover an area of about 50 ac.

Treshnish Isles, group of islands, pa. of Kilninian and Kilmore (q.v.), Inner Hebrides, W. Args. &c., about 5 N.W. of Staffa. They are of amygdaloid and basaltic structure, and present, with few exceptions, perpendicular cliffs. Their surfaces

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trent Vale	Stoke-on-Trent (2)	146	139
Tresco	Penzance (42)	320	2[illegible]

are covered with rich grass. The most important are Cairnburgbeg, Cairnburgmore, Fladda, and Lunga (q.v.).

Tresillian, pl., pa. of Merther (q.v.), S. Cornw., 3 N.E. of Truro. A bridge here connects Merther with that part of the pa. of Probus situated north of St. Clement's Creek. In 1646 a treaty was made at this bridge between Fairfax and Lord Hopton, by which the co. of Cornwall was surrendered to the Parliament, Lord Hopton having previously been defeated in an engagement with Fairfax at Torrington. At T. is the principal entrance to the park of Tregothnan, the seat of Viscount Falmouth; the mansion is approached by a carriage road, 4 miles long, perfectly level and preserved in excellent condition.

Treskellard, ha., pa. of and 3 s. from Illogan (q.v.), S.W. Cornw.

Treslothan, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1½ s. from Camborne (q.v.), W. Cornw. The church of St. John (1841) is in E. Eng. style, and occupies the site of an earlier structure, among the ruins of which an inscribed and curiously carved piece of granite was found. Pendarves is a mansion of granite in Classic style, standing in a park of 120 ac., with 4 ac. of water forming a lake, with a cascade; the grounds and plantations were formerly a barren waste strewed with granite and almost destitute of vegetation; on the border of the grounds stands Carnwynnen cromlech, an ancient kistvaen, consisting of three upright stones supporting a top stone 12 ft. long and 11 ft. wide; near this cromlech was formerly a church, of which no vestige now remains. In the neighbourhood is a fine spring of water called "Silver Well."

Tresmere, pa. and vil., N. Cornw., 7 W. by N. of Launceston; ac. 1,490; soil dark loam, subsoil slate and clay. The church of St. Nicholas, or St. Winwolaus (with the exception of the tower, rebuilt in 1880), is in E. Eng. style; the chancel retains its piscina, and the font is Norm. There is a Bible Christian chapel. On T. Down is an ancient tumulus.

Treswell, pa. and vil., N.E. Notts., 5 S.E. of Retford; ac. 1,570; soil clay and loam, overlying marl. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1855) is of various periods. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Treswithen, pl., pa. of and 1 N. from Camborne (q.v.), W. Cornw. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Tre-Taliesin. [TALIESIN.]

Trethevy Stone, a granite cromlech, pa. of and about 1 N. from St. Cleer (q.v.), S.E. Cornw. It consists of three upright stones and one large slab in an inclined position.

Tretire-with-Michaelchurch, pa., S. Herefords., 5 W. of Ross; ac. 1,382; soil sandy and loamy, overlying chiefly rock. The church of St. Mary (restored 1856) is of various periods; in the church is a Roman altar, once used as a font.

Tretower, eccl. pa. and vil. on a tributary of the Usk, pa. of St. Michael's Cwmdû (q.v.), S.E. Brecons., 3 N. by W. of Crickhowell. The church is dedicated to St. John the Evangelist. A round keep-tower and some fragments of walls are all that remain of the ancient castle. T. Court, formerly the seat of the Vaughans, still retains some good portions of Perp. domestic architecture, though the great hall is now used as a barn.

Trev-. [TREF.]

Trevalga, pa. and vil. on the sea-coast, N.E. Cornw., 20 N. of Bodmin; ac. 1,299; soil light, overlying blue slate. St. Petrock's church is Norm., E. Eng. and Perp., in the transept chapel are piscina and squint, on the walls is some 13th-cent. ornamental colouring, and the font is Norm.; in the chancel are memorials to the Trehanes, and in the chapel a monument to Samuel Roscarrock (d. 1640); the churchyard contains an ancient granite cross. The Bible Christians have a chapel. There are slate quarries and lead mines. Cadon Barrow is an ancient British mound, and King Arthur's quoit, a large stone, lies by the roadside. Redavallen is an old house.

Trevalgan Hill, hill, S. Cornw., near St. Ives. A good view is obtained on all sides from the summit.

Trevarrick, ha., pa. of Gorran (q.v.), S. Cornw., about 3 S.E. of Tregony.

Trevear, ha., pa. of Gorran (q.v.), S. Cornw., about 5½ S. of St. Austell.

Trevelga Head, small island, N. Cornw., 2 N.E. of Newquay, separated from the mainland by a deep cleft, over which is a foot-bridge. A kitchen-midden, opened here some years ago, yielded considerable quantities of bones.

Trevena, vil., pa. of and ½ E. from Tintagel (q.v.), N.E. Cornw. The Free Methodists have a chapel. There are the mutilated remains of a cross, brought here from Trevillet. T. House is a seat.

Trevenson, pl., pa. of Illogan (q.v.), N. Cornw., 2 W. of Redruth. Here is a chapel-of-ease (1806). T. is a seat.

Treverbyn, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 3 N.E. from St. Austell (q.v.), Mid Cornw. The church of St. Peter was built 1850 in Dec. style.

Treves, vil., pa. of Llanganna (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 3 N.W. of Cowbridge.

Trevet, pa., Ratoath and Skreen bars., Mid co. Meath, Ir., 2 N.E. of Dunshaughlin; ac. 4,189.

Trevethin, pl., formerly forming a portion of the pa. known as T. with Pontypool, but under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1894, now included in the new civil pa. of Abersychan, W. Mon., about 1 N.W. of Pontypool. The church of St. Cadoc, built 1846 with the exception of the tower, on the site of an older building, is in E. Eng. style, and contains several tablets to members of the Leigh family. In the churchyard are several ancient yew trees. The Baptists have a chapel.

Trevethin-with-Pontypool. [TREVETHIN.]

Treville, pa., S. Herefords., 8 S.W. of Hereford; ac. 1,625; soil clay, overlying old red sandstone, detached portions of limestone occasionally cropping out. Whitfield is a seat.

Trevillet. [TINTAGEL.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Treslothan	Camborne (1½)	307	2240
Tresmere	Tresmere	231	184
Treswell	Leverton (1)	144	170
Tretire-with-M.	Ross (5)	132	123
Tretower	Talybont (6½)	183	335

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trevalga	Camelford	241	126
Treverbyn	St. Austell (3)	280	2867
Trevet	Drumree (3)	19	162
Treville	St. Devereux (1)	151	142

Trevine, vil., pa. of Llanrian (q.v.), N.W. Pembs., 8 S.W. of Fishguard. It has a cromlech of four stones (formerly six), the top one being 16 ft. long.

Trevolland, vil., pa. of St. Stephens-by-Saltash (q.v.), E. Cornw., 3 W. of Saltash. [ST. STEPHENS (2).]

Trevor, vil. with railway station, pa. of and 3 N.E. from Llangollen (q.v.), S.E. Denbighs.

Trevose Head, headland, N. Cornw., pa. of St. Merryn (q.v.), about 1 N. of Constantine Bay. Here is a lighthouse.

Trewalchmai, pa. and vil., W. Anglesey, 5 W. of Llangefni; ac. 1,700; chiefly arable and pasture land, with some common. The church of St. Mordeyrn is a small ancient edifice.

Trewarlet, ha., pa. of Lezant (q.v.), W. Cornw., 2 S. of Launceston.

Trewavas Head, headland, S. Cornw., pa. of Breage (q.v.), about 4 W. of Helston. There is a single columnar rock known as the "Bishop."

Trewen, pa. and vil. on the Inny, N.E. Cornw., 6 W. of Launceston; ac. 970; soil light, overlying slate. The church of St. Michael (restored 1864) is Perp.; in the churchyard is a slab to Ralph Honey (d. 1596). Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Trewern, tp. on the Severn, pa. of Buttington (q.v.), E. Montgoms., in the mun. bor. of Welshpool; ac. 1,860.

Trewern and Gwithla, tp., pa. of Llanfihangel Nant Melan (q.v.), E. Radnors., 4 W.S.W. of New Radnor; ac. 1,854.

Trewhitt, High and Low, tp., pa. of and 6 N.W. from Rothbury (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 1,677.

Trewick, tp. on the Blyth, pa. of and 3 S.E. from Bolam (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 762.

Trewint, pl., pa. of Alternun (q.v.), E. Cornw., about 8 S.W. of Launceston.

Trewithian, coast vil., pa. of Gerrans (q.v.), S. Cornw., about ½ mile from Gerrans Church.

Trewoofe. [PAUL.]

Trewoon (1), ha., pa. of and 1 N. from St. Mewan (q.v.), Mid Cornw.

Trewoon (2). [TROON.]

Treyarnon Bay, bay, N. Cornw., about 3 W. of St. Merryn, just S. of Constantine Bay.

Tre-y-Caeri, another form of Tre'r Ceiri (q.v.).

Treyford, pa., W. Sussex, 5 S.W. of Midhurst; ac. 1,250; soil malm, overlying malmstone. The church of St. Peter was built 1849, in Dec. style; the ruins of the old church contain some Norm. work, some 13th-cent. colouring, and several consecration crosses. The manor-house is an interesting old building.

Triangle, vil., pa. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1 S.S.W. of Sowerby.

Triermain, castle, pa. of Lanercost (q.v.), N.E. Cumb., on the borders of Northumb. It was erected from materials taken from the Roman wall by the family of Vaux or de Vallibus, to whom the lordship was granted by Henry II., and when complete, probably formed a quadrangle, with towers on the east and west and a moat. The fabric was, however, ruinous in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and in 1832 a large portion of what remained fell down. A farmhouse has been built from the remains. This castle gave the name to Scott's poem, "The Bridal of Triermain."

Trillick, vil. with railway station, pa. of Kilskeery (q.v.), S.W. co. Tyr., Ir., 7 S.E. of Irvinestown. A small market is held on Saturday for corn, butter and eggs, and fairs on the 14th of every month.

Trim, pa. and assize and mkt. to. (s.), Upper Navan and Lower Moyfenrath bar., Mid co. Meath, Ir.; ac. 13,425. T., the co. to. of Meath, is situated on the Boyne, here crossed by a bridge. It was formerly a place of great strength and consequence, and the seat of the Irish Parliament so late as 1465. It was constituted a bor. and corporation in the 14th cent., and sent two members to Parliament from an early period until the Union. This ancient to., associated with the De Lacys, the Mortimers TRIM CASTLE.

(Photo, Mr. G. H. Orpen.)

and the Talbots of former days, and the Wellesleys of modern times, and once the seat of a bishopric merged in that of Meath, is picturesque from the collection of the ruins of its walls and gates, vestiges of old castles, monasteries and priories. The most conspicuous are the remains of T. Castle, consisting of a triangular-walled enclosure, flanked by circular towers, with a large and lofty keep in the centre; the circumference of the wall is 6[illegible] yds.; it was probably built about 1220. Henry (afterwards Henry V.), son of the Duke of Lancaster, was imprisoned here by Richard II., and it was the residence of Richard, Duke of York, father of Edward IV.; it was the meeting-place of several Parliaments, and was dismantled soon after the year 1650. On the other side of the river is a lofty fragment of St. Mary's Abbey, called the Yellow Tower, opposite to which is Talbot Castle, once converted into a school, in which the great Duke of Wellington received a portion of his early education. This castle was most probably built by the famous Sir John Talbot, afterwards Earl of Shrewsbury. The ruins of a priory of Augustinian canons, dedicated to SS. Peter and Paul, are near

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trewalchmai	Bodorgan (4)	252	673
Trewen	Launceston (6)	223	124
Trewern	Buttington (1½)	179	332
Trewern & Gwithla	Builth Road (4)	188	108
Trewhitt, H. & L.	Rothbury (6)	312	96

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trewick	Morpeth (7½)	288	18
Treyford	Elstead (4)	61	114
Trillick	Trillick (1½)	127	36
Trim, pa.	Trim	30	3144
Trim, to.	Trim	30	1531

Newtown Mills on the Dublin road. The Protestant church was rebuilt in 1802, except the ancient tower. The Catholic church is a spacious structure, and adjoining it is another, erected in 1893. Here is St. Mary's Convent of Mercy. The court-house is a plain building; the joint district industrial school was formerly the county gaol. Near this are the fever hospital and the union workhouse. The view from the door of the school and the hospital, embracing the Boyne and the ruins of the castle and abbey, is strikingly picturesque. A column of the Corinthian order stands in a commanding situation with a statue on the summit, erected by the co. in 1817 to the honour of Field Marshal, the first Duke of Wellington. There are several extensive corn mills in the neighbourhood, most of them on the banks of the Boyne. Fairs are held on March 27, Oct. 1, and Nov. 16, and the first Saturday of each month.

Trimdon, pa. and vil., E. Dur., 4 N.E. of Sedgefield; ac. 2,281; soil loam, overlying limestone. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (repaired 1887) is Norm. St. Alban's is a mission church, and there are Roman Catholic, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Christian Lay Brethren, and Welsh Calvinistic Methodist chapels. There are some small charities, and the school has a slight endowment. Here are a colliery, limestone quarries, and kilns.

Trimingham, coast pa. and small vil., N. Norf., 5 S.E. of Cromer; ac. 483, and 145 foreshore; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. John (restored 1859) is Perp.; a fine carved oak screen separates the chancel from the nave. The pa. has been much diminished by the encroachments of the sea, and since 1840 two farmhouses have been washed away; there were several landslips during the year 1868, part of the land then absorbed being glebe, and further incursions of the sea took place in 1891–92. Groynes or breakwaters have been constructed along the beach to prevent the recurrence of encroachments.

Trimley St. Mary, Trimley St. Martin, adjoining pas. on the Orwell, S.E. Suff., 2½ N.W. of Felixstowe; ac. of T. St. Mary 1,924, and 226 of tidal water and foreshore; of T. St. Martin 2,152, and 211 of tidal water and foreshore; soil of a good mixed nature, overlying loam, crag, and sand. The two churches are both rubble buildings, and the churchyards adjoin. St. Mary's Church is E. Eng.; the tower is a ruin with a very good doorway with three-light windows above, divided by a band of quatrefoils with shields, in one of which are the arms of Thomas de Brotherton, who is supposed to have built the church in the time of Edward I. The church of St. Martin (repaired 1850) consists of chancel, nave, north transept, south porch, and western embattled tower. There are charitable bequests in T. St. Mary amounting to £23 yearly, which is distributed among the poor of the pa. at Christmas. In T. St. Martin is an endowment of about £10 yearly, arising from 4½ ac. of land. In St. Martin's pa. is Grimston Hall, in the time of Elizabeth the seat of Thomas Cavendish, the navigator, and now occupied as a farmhouse.

St. Mary and St. Martin, Trimley.
(Photo. C. J. Emeny, Walton, Ipswich.)

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Trimdon	Trimdon	250	4136
Trimingham	Gunton (2½)	134	197
Trimley St. Mary	Trimley	83	465
Trimley St. Martin	Trimley	83	631

Trimpley, ha., pa. of and adjoining Kidderminster (q.v.), Mid Worcs. The chapel of Holy Trinity (1844) is a chapel-of-ease.

Trinafour, pl., pa. of Blair Athole (q.v.), N. Perths., Sc., 6½ S.W. of Calvine.

Tring, pa. and mkt. to., W. Herts., 7 S.E. of Aylesbury; ac. 7,625, and 221 water; the soil, which rests on the lower chalk, varies considerably. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (partially rebuilt 1880–81) is Perp., with features of an earlier date, and there are places of worship for various Dissenting bodies. Other public buildings are the Constitutional Club (1892), with reading and billiard rooms and the usual offices; the Market House (1750), a building of wood; the Victoria Hall (1882), in Italian style, with a large assembly-room; and the Literary and Scientific Institute. The Rothschild Museum (1889) is a red-brick building of two storeys, and contains Mr. L. W. Rothschild's natural-history collections, but is open to public inspection on the first three days of the week. The Museum House contains Mr. Rothschild's study, curator's room, library, and entomological cabinets; attached is a taxidermist's and general workshop, and at a short distance is a piece of ground with cages and a paddock for live animals. The market day is Friday, and the market is attended by straw-plait buyers; fairs are held on Easter Monday and Old Michaelmas Day, and there is a weekly sale of fat cattle. The business of the to. consists chiefly in canvas-weaving, straw-plaiting, silk-throwing, and brewing. The charities amount to over £300 a year, and are applied mainly for the encouragement of thrift and independence. T. Park is a seat, pleasantly situated amid lovely woodland scenery.

Tring, Little, ha., pa. of and about 1 mile from Tring (q.v.), W. Herts. Here are the Grand Junction Canal Waterworks and reservoir; the latter is 405 ft. above the sea, being a trifle higher than the summit of St. Paul's.

Trinity (1), pa. near Bouley Bay, N.E. Jersey, Channel Islands, about 4 N.N.E. of St. Helier; ac. 3,030. It contains some ancient remains.

Trinity (2), a north suburb of Edinburgh (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc. It is on the south shore of the Firth of Forth, and consists principally of modern

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tring, pa.	Tring	32	5426
Tring, to.	Tring	32	4525
Trinity (1)	Southampton (144)	79	2108

villas. There are sea-baths, and a chain pier much frequented by swimmers.

Trinity Gask, pa. and vil. on the Earn, S. Perths., Sc., about 13 S.W. of Perth; ac. 5,689; soil various, overlying sandstone and whinstone.

Trinity House. [TOWER OF LONDON.]

Trinity Sand, shoal in the Humber, E.R. Yorks., about 8 E.N.E. of Grimsby.

Trinity Within, pa. within the mun. bor. of Waterford (q.v.), N.E. co. Waterf., Ir.; ac. 15.

Trinity Without, pa. within the parl. bor. of Waterford (q.v.), N.E. co. Waterf., Ir.; ac. 1,067.

Triochatan, Loch, small lake or tarn about the centre of the valley of Glencoe (q.v.), N. Args., Sc. It is formed by an expansion of the Coe (the "Cona" of Ossian).

Trioge, small stream, rises near Cullenagh Mountain, Mid Q. Co., Ir., and, flowing in a N. direction for 14 miles, falls into the Barrow near Mountmellick.

Triplow. [THRIPLOW.]

Trippleton, ha., pa. of and ½ S.E. from Leintwardine (q.v.), N. Herefords.

Trispin, ha., pa. of and ½ N.W. from St. Erme (q.v.), Mid Cornw. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Tritlington, tp. and small vil. on the Lyne, pa. of Bothal (q.v.), E. Northumb., 5 N.W. of Morpeth; ac. 1,226.

Trochry, vil., pa. of Little Dunkeld (q.v.), Mid Perths., Sc. It lies near the centre of Strathbran, and contains a Free church and the ruins of a famous old castle, once a seat of the Earls of Gowrie.

Trodday, small island, pa. of Kilmuir (q.v.), Invs., Sc., 2 N.E. of Island of Skye.

Troedyraur, pa. and vil., S.W. Cardigs., 4 N.N.E. of Newcastle-Emlyn; ac. 4,660. The church of St. Michael is a modern structure. Crug Mawr (q.v.) is in the pa., and through the pa. runs the direct road from Lampeter to Cardigan. T. House is a seat.

Troedyrhiew, ha. with railway station, pa. of and about 3 S.E. from Merthyr Tydfil (q.v.), N.E. Glamorgs.

Trofarth, eccl. pa., pas. of Bettws-yn-Rhos, Llangerniew, and Llansaintffraid Glan Conway (q.v.), N. Denbighs., about 2 S.W. of Abergele. The church is dedicated to St. John.

Trolvis, ha., pa. of St. Stythians (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., about 2 S.E. of the pa. church.

Tromie, small stream, issues from a loch in Gaick Forest, Invs., Sc., flowing in a N.E. direction for 10¾ miles, and falls into the Spey 1½ N.E. of Kingussie.

Tromode, vil., pa. of Braddan (q.v.), I. of M., 1 N.W. of Douglas.

Tronach Castle, ruins, pa. of Rathven (q.v.), N.W. Banffs., Sc., near Portnockie.

Trondra, islet, pa. of Tingwall (q.v.), Shetland, Sc., ½ S. of Scalloway.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trinity Gask	Forteviot (5)	443	386
Trinity Within	Waterford	112	948
Trinity Without	Waterford	112	4266
Tritlington	Longhirst (3)	291	99
Troedyraur	Llandyssil (8)	252	835
Trofarth	Abergele (2)	213	324

Trool, Loch, pa. of Minnigaff (q.v.), W. Kirkcuds., Sc., 14 N. of Newton Stewart. It lies 250 ft. above sea level.

Troon (1), or Trewoon, vil., pa. of Camborne (q.v.), W. Cornw., about 1 N. of Treslothan. Here are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels.

Troon (2), q.s. pa. and seaport, pa. of Dundonald (q.v.), W. Ayrs., Sc., 9 S.W. of Kilmarnock. There are Established, Free, and United Presbyterian churches, and a Roman Catholic chapel. The bay is extensive, and the port has the advantage of a secure harbour, into which vessels of great burthen can enter with the wind from almost any point. There are two dry docks for repairing vessels, large storehouses, a shipbuilding yard, and a rope and sail manufactory. A line of railway runs from the extremity of the harbour to Kilmarnock, and conveys coal, thence shipped to Ireland, France, etc. T. also affords good sea-bathing, and is much visited for this purpose during the season. There is a reading-room on Temple Hill, where also stand the Unionist Club and the Post Office, and there is a Public Hall. Near the to. are extensive golf links.

Trooperstown Hill (1,408 ft.), Mid co. Wick., Ir., 8 W. of Wicklow.

Troqueer, pa., E. Kirkcuds., Sc., near the mouth of the Nith, opposite Dumfries; ac. 11,675; soil generally fertile, overlying mica-slate. The pa. contains Maxwelltown (q.v.).

Trory, pa., Lurg and Tirkennedy bars., Mid co. Fermanagh, Ir., 3 N. of Enniskillen; ac. 4,221. It contains nine islands in Lough Erne.

Trossachs, q.s. pa., pas. of Aberfoyle, Callander, and Port of Menteith (q.v.), S.W. Perths., Sc. The name is much better known as applied to the rugged mountain defile in the pa. of Callander, extending from Loch Achray westward to Loch Katrine, between Ben A'an on the right and Ben Venue on the left. Murray describes it as a "rugged labyrinth of mounds and rocks, covered with the richest vegetation of oaks and pensile birch and rowans, among which the road winds in

THE TROSSACHS GLEN.
(Photo. A. Young, Burntisland.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trondra	Thurso (150)	744	138
Troon (2), q.s., pa.	Troon	397	3849
Troon (2), port	Troon	397	7315
Troqueer	Dumfries (2)	332	3857
Trory	Enniskillen (3)	117	600
Trossachs	Aberfoyle (6)	428	571

and out, up and down, and at each turn presents a fresh view of the grand crags of the two mountains above mentioned."

Trostan Mountain (1,817 ft.), N.E. co. Antr., Ir., 19 N.W. of Larne.

Troston, pa. and vil., N.W. Suff., 7 N.E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 1,714; soil mixed, principally light, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1869) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the nave and chancel are divided by a handsome carved oak screen; there are three curious mural paintings, representing St. George and the Dragon, St. Christopher, and the Martyrdom of King Edmund, which are in a very dilapidated condition. In the south wall of the sacrarium is a double piscina, and in the south wall of the nave is a low-side window; the doorways to the roof-loft are well preserved, but the steps have disappeared; the tracery of the windows in the nave is filled with ancient stained glass. Bricks are made here. On the heath are five barrows. T. Hall is a seat, with extensive pleasure grounds.

Trostrey, pa. on the Usk, Mid Mon., 2½ N.W. of Usk; ac. 1,254; soil silurian, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. David (repaired 1877) is Gothic. At T. Court, an ancient building occupied as a farm, some letters and dispatches of Cromwell have been discovered.

Trothy, stream, Mon., rises in the north of the co., and, flowing in a S.E. direction for 16 miles, falls into the Wye near Monmouth.

Trotternish, district, N. of Skye Island, Invs., Sc., between Loch Snizort and the east coast.

Trottiscliffe, or Trottorscliffe, pa. and vil., Mid Kent, 10 S.W. of Rochester; ac. 1,154; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, in a very retired situation, immediately under the range of chalk hills, is principally Perp., but has some remains of Norm. and E. Eng. work; the font is a good specimen of the Perp. period; the oak pulpit has some curious carving of late date, apparently Flemish. In the nave is a brass to William Crofton, gent., B.C.L., of Gray's Inn (d. 1483), and Margaret his wife. The National school has a small endowment.

Trotton, pa. and vil. on the West Rother, W. Sussex, 4 W. of Midhurst; ac. 3,635; soil sand and clay, overlying stone, sand and gravel. The church of St. George is chiefly Dec., and contains an altar-tomb to Thomas, Lord Camois (d. 1421–22), and Elizabeth his wife, widow of Sir Henry Percy, the "Gentle Kate" of Shakespeare; a brass to Margaret, Lady Camois (1310), and a modern brass to Thomas Otway, who was born here.

Trough (1), tp., pa. of Stapleton (q.v.), N. Cumb., 8 N.E. of Longtown; ac. 2,326.

Trough (2), bar., N. co. Monaghan, Ir.; ac. 37,377; bounded on the north by co. Tyr., on the east by cos. Tyr. and Arm., on the south by Monaghan bar., and on the west by cos. Ferm. and Tyr. It is traversed by the Ulster railway, and the Blackwater runs along its east border.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Troston	Bury St. Edmunds (7	77	268
Trostrey	Usk (2½)	157	135
Trottiscliffe	Malling (3)	36	294
Trotton	Elstead (1½)	61	451
Trough (1)	Penton (5½)	315	125
Trough (2)	.....	.....	7564

Troughend, tp. on the Reed, pa. of and 4½ W. from Elsdon (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 26,365. Here is a colliery.

Troup Head, promontory (about 300 ft.), pa. of Gamrie (q.v.), N.E. Banffs., Sc. It forms the easternmost boundary of Gamrie Bay. T. House is a seat in the neighbourhood.

Troutbeck, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Windermere (q.v.), N. Westmd., about 3 S. by E. of Ambleside; ac. 5,788. The vil., about a mile and a half in length, is straggling, but exceedingly picturesque. The church, consecrated as Jesus Chapel, is a plain structure. The Mechanics' Institute (established 1870) has a library. There are some charities and an endowed school. The T. Valley extends for about 5 miles northward from Windermere, and is traversed by a stream; the upper portion of the vale, once a densely-wooded tract, is now almost treeless. T. Tongue is a piece of rising ground in the midst of the valley. The road from T. Bridge, at the foot of the valley to Low Wood on the lake side, affords magnificent views, both of Windermere and the grand and varied scenery by which it is surrounded. In the pa. is a cairn and a cistvaen. Briery Close, Ecclerigg, and Langdale Chase are seats.

Troutsdale, tp., situate on the moors, pa. of Brompton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 11 W. of Scarborough; ac. 1,204. There are some excellent stone quarries here.

Trowbridge (in the earliest records "Straburgh"), pa. and mkt. and manufacturing to., W. Wilts., 11 S.W. of Devizes; ac. 2,400; soil mixed, overlying gravel. The Kennet and Avon navigation passes within a mile of the to. and joins the Avon at Bath; the Somerset Canal brings coal into the Kennet and Avon Canal for the supply of the to. and a large extent of country. The pa. church of St. James (restored 1848) is an ancient Gothic stone structure. George Crabbe, the poet, was for eighteen years rector of this pa., and his remains were deposited in a vault in the chancel of the church. There are also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a chapel-of-ease, a Catholic chapel, and places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The town hall stands on the east side of the market-house; the style of architecture is partly of the Queen Anne and the Elizabethan periods, with an adaptation to the present Victorian age; the clock tower is 101 ft. 6 in. in height; on its lower portion appear panels, representing the staple trade of the to. On the ground floor is the sessions court, in which due provision is made for the bench, bar, jury, and officials, with a gallery for the public. The grounds at the rear of the building, though small, have been tastefully laid out. The market days are Tuesday and Saturday; a large cattle market is held on alternate Tuesdays, and a pleasure fair annually on August 5, 6, and 7. The chief employment of the inhabitants is the manufacture of kerseymere, broad and other woollen cloths, established here as early as the reign of Henry VIII.,

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Troughend	Bellingham (5)	306	232
Troutbeck, eccl. pa.	Troutbeck Bridge (1½	259	660
Troutbeck, tp.	Troutbeck Bridge (1½	259	523
Troutsdale	Snainton (4)	228	67
Trowbridge, pa.	Trowbridge	97	11901
Trowbridge, to.	Trowbridge	97	11717

and now the largest in the West of England. There are also extensive breweries and engineering and brick works. A large trade is done in the curing of bacon, and the manufacture of beds and mattresses and brushes. The Widows' Almshouses (1698) are for six poor widows, and are maintained by the income from funded property and by voluntary subscriptions. There are eight almshouses for old men. The charities produce about £113 yearly, of which £32 is distributed in bread; the remainder is devoted to the education and apprenticing of poor boys. A cottage hospital was erected in 1883 and given to the to. The public pleasure grounds, consisting of about 4 ac., were opened in 1884, and in 1887 were purchased by public subscription and vested in the Local Board. George Keats, the poet, was born here in 1729, and died in 1797. The site of the old castle, held by the Empress Matilda against Stephen, may be recognised by a mound called Court Hill, but the castle itself has long disappeared. Bellefield House and The Prospect are seats.

THE CHOIR, TRURO CATHEDRAL. (See page 233.)
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

Trowell, pa. and vil. on the Erewash, S.W. Notts., 6 W. of Nottingham; ac. 1,621. The church of St. Helen (restored 1890) is E. Eng.; it contains a monument to William Hacker (1668), and brasses to members of the Evans family. There are some small charities.

Trowler's Gill, cleft, pa. of Burnsall (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., near Appletreewick. It is 508 ft. deep in the rock, and the water winds at the base for about half a mile.

Trowse, or Trowse-with-Newton, pa. and vil. on the Yare, S. Norf., about 2 S.E. of Norwich; ac. 1,164; soil and subsoil gravel and clay. The church of St. Andrew is Perp. Here is a Congregation chapel. Cooper's charity of £3 19s. yearly is for fo

Troy House. [MITCHEL TROY.]

Troytown, ha., pa. of Puddletown (q.v.), S. Dor 3 N.E. of Dorchester.

Trubley, pa. on the Boyne, Lower Deece ba S. co. Meath, Ir., 2 N.W. of Kilmessan; ac. 853.

Trudoxhill, ha., pa. of Nunney (q.v.), E. Somers about 5 S.W. of Frome. There is a Congregation chapel.

Truffhill, part of the vil. of Waterside (q.v.), p of Dalmellington (q.v.), Mid Ayrs., Sc.

Trughanacmy, bar., Mid co. Kerry, Ir.; a 195,147. It is bounded on the north by Cla maurice bar., on the east by cos. Limerick an Cork, on the south by Magunihy and Dunkerro North bars., and on the west by Corkaguiny bar It is traversed by the Great Southern and Western Railway, and contains the tos. of Tralee, Castle island, and Killorglin.

Truim, stream, rises in the Grampian Hills, S. Invs., Sc., close to the Perths. border, and, flowing in a N.E. direction for 15½ miles, falls into the Spey at Inverhaven.

Trull, pa. and vil., S. Somerset, 6½ S.E. of Milverton; ac. 2,196; soil marl, overlying new red sandstone. The church of All Saints (restored 1863) is Perp., and contains some finely-carved 16th-cent. benches, and a carved oak screen. The pa. lands produce £100 yearly, and there is an educational endowment. Gatchell House is a seat.

Trumfleet, ha., pa. of Kirk Sandall (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1½ S. of Thorpe-in-Balne.

Trumisgarry, q.s. pa., pa. of North Uist (q.v.).

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trowell	Trowell	125	414
Trowse	Trowse	113	795
Trubley	Kilmessan (2)	25	21
Truffhill	Waterside	391	300

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trughanacmy	.....	.....	4726
Trull	Taunton (1¼)	158	468
Trumisgarry	Oban (80)	504	848

Outer Hebrides, W. Invs., Sc. It lies in the northern part of the island.

Trumpington, pa. and vil. on the Cam, W. Cambs., pleasantly situated 2 s. of Cambridge, on the London road; ac. 2,200; soil loamy and gravelly, overlying gravel. The church of SS. Mary and Michael is a fine building of the E. Dec. period; the chancel, which dates from about 1320, has some fine stained glass of that period; on an altar-tomb, under a Dec. canopy, within the eastern arch of the north chapel, is the famous brass, 7 ft. long, of Sir Roger de Trumpeton (d. 1289), well known as being the second earliest brass in the kingdom, that of Sir John D'Aubernon, at Stoke D'Abernon, in Surrey, dating from 1277; the effigy is in chain mail, covered with a cyclas, and is cross-legged; the left arm bears a shield with the arms of T.; this is the earliest known mailed figure with ailettes, the prototypes of the modern epaulettes, and the arms are repeated on these and on the scabbard. Fragments of the old stained glass are collected together in the east window and in one of the south windows. In the churchyard is a tablet to the memory of Professor Fawcett, Postmaster-General, buried here in 1884. The charities amount to £55 yearly for fuel and for apprenticing lads. T. feast is held on June 29. Anstey Hall, an ancient mansion of brick, and T. Hall, approached by an avenue of lofty trees, are seats.

Trunch, pa. and vil., N. Norf., 3 N. of North Walsham; ac. 1,644; soil mixed, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Botolph, which stands in the centre of the vil., is Dec. and Perp.; it contains a font, with carved canopy, a fine screen, and a roof of oak very richly carved. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Worts' charity of £1 is for clothing.

Trundle Hill. [SINGLETON (1).]

Truro ("Tre-rhiw" = "the dwelling on the sloping bank or stream"), city, pa., mun. bor. (including parts of the pas. of St. Clement and Kenwyn), head of U. and Co. Co. dis., and seaport to., S.W. Cornw., 11 N. of Falmouth; ac. of pa. 190. The city is situated in a valley and is washed on each side by the Kenwyn and Allen, which, after having taken their separate courses to the east and west of the to., unite with a branch of Falmouth Harbour, commonly called T. creek or river. At high water the waters form a fine lake, 2 miles in length, extending from T. to Malpas; the channel is of sufficient depth to be navigable for vessels of upwards of 70 tons burthen to the town quay, in the centre of the bor. The bor. returned two members from 1295 till 1885, when the representation was merged in that of the co. T. formerly had a mint; and here the Stannary Courts for Cornwall and Devon are held. The ancient bishopric of Cornwall was seated, in the 9th cent., at the monastery of Dinurrin, a place which it now seems difficult to identify; subsequently it was translated to St. Germans, then to Bodmin, and then again to St. Germans, until in 1027 it was united to Crediton by Lyfing, bishop of that see, and in 1046 both dioceses were merged by Leofric in the see of Exeter. The diocese of T. (consisting of the co. of Cornw.) was founded in 1876, and the pa. church of St. Mary, T., was assigned as a temporary cathedral. On Dec. 9, 1876, the late Rev. Edward White Benson, D.D. (afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, d. 1896), was nominated the first Bishop of T., consecrated April 25, 1877, and enthroned on May 1 following. It was determined to build a cathedral on the site of the pa. church, retaining and restoring the south aisle, and incorporating it with the new building, as the pa. church of St. Mary. The church thus removed, with the exception of the aisle, in 1880, was built in the first part of the 16th cent. on the site of two earlier structures, the first of which was dedicated in 1259; but the later work was chiefly Perp. The new cathedral of St. Mary is in E. Eng. style; the general plan comprises a choir of five bays, with retro-choir of two bays, eastern transepts, north and south aisles, and attached to the latter the south aisle of the old church; great transept, each limb being of three bays, south porch, nave of nine bays, with aisles, south-eastern baptistery, south-west porch, and a central and two western towers with spires; the design also includes a cloister court on the north side, communicating with the north aisle of the nave and the eastern aisle of the north transept, and united at this point by an ambulatory with an octagonal chapter-house. The whole of this plan, however, has not yet been carried out. Between the south aisle of the choir and the old south aisle of the former pa. church is a passage or ambulatory, rendered necessary in order to effect the junction of two structures dissimilar both in style and in height; the multiplication of clustered shafts caused by this arrangement, and the other architectural expedients adopted in uniting the two fabrics, add considerably to the general effect of the interior, and form a feature of singular interest. The old south aisle, thus incorporated, now forms a small but complete pa. church in itself; the font from the old church, now placed here, is a work of Caen stone, profusely decorated with tracery and foliage; in the three westernmost windows are various fragments of ancient glass. The south transept, which forms a memorial to Dr. Benson, first Bishop of T., differs entirely in its ground plan from the north transept, but is otherwise similar. Nearly adjoining this transept on the west is the baptistery, a circular annexe projecting from the nave, and opening thereto by an arcade; it constitutes a memorial to Henry Martyn, the distinguished mathematician and missionary, and a native of T. (d. at Tokat, Asia Minor, 1812). T. has also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic chapel, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Grammar School, founded in 1549, has been reconstituted; in connection with the cathedral body is a divinity school; here are also training schools and a Wesleyan college. The town hall (1846) is in Italian style, with an elegant frontage surmounted by a turret containing an illuminated clock. The municipal portion comprises, apart from the town hall, a council chamber, police station, and the offices of the Stannaries and fire brigade. The Post Office (1886) is in the Classic style of the Queen Anne period; the building of three floors is lofty, airy, and well lighted. The Corn Exchange, a large building in Boscawen

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Trumpington	Cambridge (2)	56	975
Trunch	North Walsham (3)	130	427

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Truro, pa.	Truro	295	6483
Truro, bor.	Truro	295	11131

Street, is also let for meetings. The T. Public Rooms (1869–70), at the eastern end of the to., form an edifice of stone in Tudor style; the buildings comprise a concert hall, containing a fine organ, a county library, and a free public library. The rooms are also used for the meetings of local musical societies and billiard clubs; immediately adjoining and connected with the Public Rooms are the Masonic Hall and the Phillpotts' Library, presented to the clergy of Cornwall in 1856 by Bishop Phillpotts. The Royal Institution of Cornwall, founded in 1818, and situated in Pydar Street, was established for the promotion of knowledge in natural history, natural philosophy and antiquities, especially in relation to the co. of Cornw. The Museum contains one of the most valuable general collections in the West of England; the laboratory was reconstructed in 1892, and in the library and reading-room periodical meetings and conversazioni are held, at which communications are read and discussed. The Royal Cornwall Infirmary (1799) is a plain and spacious building of stone. T. has also a dispensary and a hospital for infectious diseases. The Market House is under the town hall, and the basement forms a general market. Markets are held on Wednesday and Saturday. Cattle markets are held the first and third Wednesdays in the month on Castle Hill. The fairs are on Wednesday in Whitsun week, Nov. 19 and Dec. 8. A horse fair is also held in September. There are tin-smelting works, three small potteries at which the crucibles used in tin-smelting are made, two brush factories, a large flour mill, three saw mills, a tannery, a biscuit factory, a jam factory, and shirt and clothing manufactories. The exports consist principally of tin, iron, ores, lead and blende, or zinc, of which large quantities are dispatched from this place, the tin being previously converted into blocks, ingots and bars. Coals are brought here from the Principality by water, and timber (used chiefly in the mines) from Norway and other places. Among the most ancient houses in the to. is a hospital for ten widows, in Pydar Street, founded in 1631; the almshouses consist of several low buildings, enclosing a square court; the inmates are allowed 4s. per week and clothes. There are also some small charities for distribution. Besides Samuel Foote, the comedian (c. 1720–77), Polwhele, the historian (1759–1838), Richard (b. Feb. 8, 1804) and John Lander (b. 1807), the faithful attendants of Hugh Clapperton, the Scotch traveller, in his expedition to Africa to discover the source and course of the Niger, were also natives of the to.; they pursued their search after Clapperton's death (1827); and to the memory of Richard (d. at Fernando Po, Feb. 7, 1834, from injuries received in Africa) a granite column has been erected. There formerly existed here a religious house of Poor Clares at the bottom of Lemon Street, and a Dominican chapel and friary, on the north side of Kenwyn Street, founded before 1259.

Truro Division, one of the six parl. divs. of Cornw. It lies in the south-west of the co., and returns one member.

Truro St. Mary. [TRURO.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Truro Division	.....	.....
Trusham	Trusham (1)	217	161
Trusley	Derby (7)	128	111
Trusthorpe	Mablethorpe (1)	152	304

Trusham, pa. and vil. on the Teign, S. Dev., 8 S.W. of Exeter; ac. 639; soil loam, overlying stonebrash. The church of St. Michael (restored 1853) is E. Eng. and Perp.; there is a Norm. piscina, a fresco dated 1583, and monuments to William Stooke (d. 1677) and to John and Mary Stooke (1697). There are almshouses, founded in 1688, and some small charities.

Truskmore, mountain (2,113 ft.), N. co. Sligo, Ir., 8 N.E. of Sligo.

Trusley, pa. and vil., S.W. Derbys., 7 S.W. of Derby; ac. 1,086; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints was built in 1713 on the site of an older edifice.

Trusthorpe, coast pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 7 S.E. of Alford; ac. 1,406 and 85 water; soil and subsoil fine alluvial and clay. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1842) is in E. Eng. style. In the porch is a stone with an inscription asking the prayers of the faithful on behalf of Richard Wright, who built the porch in 1522, his wife and family. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and the poor have a small yearly charity, amounting to £1 12s.

Trwyn-Du Point, the most easterly extremity of the island of Anglesey. It has a fixed light, visible for 10 miles.

Tryddyn, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and about 4 S. from Mold (q.v.), S. Flints.; ac. 3,614. The church is dedicated to St. Mary, and there are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. In the tp. are collieries and ironworks.

Trysull, pa. and vil., S. Staffs., 8 N. of Stourbridge; ac. 2,951; soil loam, overlying sandstone rock, and clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1889) is chiefly Norm. There is an endowed school.

Tuadh, Loch, an inlet of the sea, Arga., Sc., running between Mull and the islet of Ulva.

Tuam, pa., episcopal, U. and mkt. to. (formerly a parl. bor.), chiefly in Clare bar., but extending into the bars. of Dunmore and Ballymoe, N. co. Galway, Ir., about 20 N. by E. of Galway, in a low and flat but salubrious part of the country; ac. 25,014. Towards the end of the 5th cent. an abbey was founded here, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, which in the beginning of the 6th cent. was made a cathedral by St. Jarlath. A city was afterwards built here in honour of this bishop, whose remains were deposited in a chapel called Teampal-na-Scrinè, or "the Church of the Shrine." The castle of T. was a remarkable building of the Norm. period, with a keep surrounded by the outworks, with towers at the angles. The Protestant archiepiscopal see of T. dates from 1161; in 1839 it was dissolved under the Church Temporalities Act (1833) and the dioceses of Killala and Achonry annexed to that of T., thus forming the present united diocese, the largest in Ireland, comprising large portions of the cos. Galway, Mayo, and Roscom., in the province of Armagh. The cathedral church of St. Mary, as originally built in 1130, was a small edifice consisting only of chancel and nave, divided by a richly-sculptured arch of six orders; the nave having at some time been destroyed, the PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.

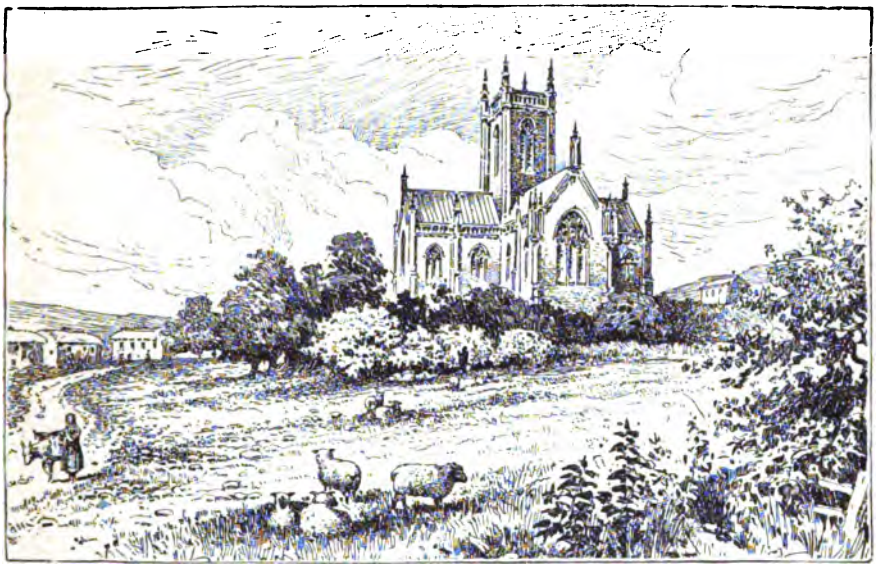
Tryddyn	Mold (4)	193	1360
Trysull	Wolverhampton (5)	125	554
Tuam, pa.	Tuam	131	6762
Tuam, to.	Tuam	131	3012

chancel, only 15 ft. square, was converted into a porch, its fine arch serving as an entrance, and an oblong structure was then built on to the east end, and was entered by a doorway cut through the eastern triplet. In 1861 the cathedral was rebuilt as it now stands ; the ancient and magnificent chancel-arch now forms the entrance to the sanctuary, the original chancel. The choir is fitted with twelve stalls, six on each side, with stone desks ; the bishop's throne, at the east end of the southern range, has a stone canopy affixed to the wall. The bishop's palace is a handsome edifice, surrounded by a beautiful and finely-wooded demesne. T. is also the head of one of the four Catholic provinces of Ireland, this comprising the dioceses of T., Killala, Achonry, Elphin and Clonfert. The Catholic diocese of T. includes nearly half Mayo, nearly half Galway with part of Roscom. (one or two pas.). The Catholic cathedral is a fine cruciform edifice in Later Eng. style ; the altar is of marble, and some of the decorations were brought from Rome. The archbishop has under his patronage the seminary of St. Jarlath, for training students for the Catholic Church. Presentation Nuns, Sisters of Mercy and Christian Brothers have establishments here. There are two Convent schools, a Protestant school, and a Christian Brothers' school. In the centre of the to. stands the town hall, a rectangular building with a clock tower; it contains a reading and billiard room. The court-house is a well-arranged building, and there is a small bridewell contiguous, now closed. The trade of T. is principally for the supply of the surrounding districts. Markets are held on Wednesday and Saturday, and fairs on March 10, May 10, July 4, Sept. 10, third Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Oct., Nov. 20, and Dec. 15. The Cross of T., in the Market Square, is of great antiquity and interest, and may be ranked as one of the finest monuments of its class remaining in Ireland.



The Cathedral, Tuam.

Tubber-, for places not found under this spelling, see also TOBER-.

Tubbrid (1), pa., Iffa and Offa West bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 5 S.W. of Caher; ac. 12,572. It extends to the Galtee Mountains.

Tubbrid (2), pa., Iverk bar., S. co. Kilk., Ir., 2½ N.E. of Fiddown; ac. 1,004.

Tubbridbritain, pa., Crannagh bar., N. co. Kilk., Ir.. 10 N.W. of Kilkenny; ac. 4,140.

Tubney, pa., N. Berks., 4 N.W. of Abingdon; ac. 1,118; soil sand, overlying the old oolite. The church of St. Lawrence (1848) is in Gothic style, erected in place, but not on the site, of the old church, which had long fallen into decay. T. House is a seat.

Tuckenhay, ha., pa. of and 1¼ S. from Ashprington (q.v.), S. Dev. Here is a large paper mill ; also extensive stores and quays abutting on the river, as well as an old gas-house, erected for lighting the vil. about 1806.

Tuckerton, ha., pa. of North Petherton (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 2 S. of Bridgwater.

Tuck Hill, eccl. pa., pas. of Alveley and Claverley (q.v.), S.E. Salop, and Bobbington and Enville (q.v.), S.W. Staffs., 6 S.E. of Bridgnorth. The church of the Holy Innocents (1868–69) is in E. Eng. style. Gatacre Park is a seat.

Tucking Mill, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Camborne and Illogan (q.v.), S. Cornw., 1 N.E. of Camborne.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tubbrid (1)	Caher (5)	124	1364
Tubbrid (2)	Fiddown (2½)	153	143
Tubbridbritain	Kilkenny (10)	81	472
Tubney	Abingdon (4)	61	175
Tuck Hill	Bridgnorth (6)	149	316
Tucking Mill	Camborne (1)	307	4149

The church of All Saints is in Norm. style. There are Wesleyan, Free Methodist and Primitive Methodist chapels. It was here that William Bickford invented and produced the safety fuse for conveying fire to the charge in blasting, now generally known as "Bickford's fuse"; the firm he established still has its principal factory here.

Tuckingmills, ha., pa. of Compton Dando (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, 2 S.W. of Keynsham.

Tuddenham (1), or Tuddenham near Ipswich, pa. and vil., S.E. Suff., 3 N.E. of Ipswich; ac. 1,239; soil of a mixed nature, inclined to be heavy, subsoil loamy. The church of St. Martin is Norm.; the arch over the north door is a fine specimen of the work of the period. Here is a small Congregational chapel in the vil. A village club and reading-room was established in 1889. The charities amount to about £20.

Tuddenham (2), or Tuddenham near Soham, pa. and vil., N.W. Suff., 3½ S.E. of Mildenhall; ac. 2,644; soil light and sandy, overlying gravel and sand. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is E. Eng.; within the chancel rails is a piscina, and there is also one in the aisle; in the nave are tombstones—one to Thomas Shelley, dated 1680, and one to his wife (1695); one to Henry Goldwell, one of the burgesses of Bury St. Edmunds, dated 1693; also to his wife (1712); and one to James Davies, dated 1719. The Baptists have a chapel. There is one charity of about £6 yearly value. In the vil. is an extensive flour mill. Here are the remains of an abbey.

Tuddenham, East, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 6 E. of East Dereham; ac. 2,069; soil mixed, overlying clay and brick-earth. The church of All Saints is of various periods; the tower and porch are Norm., the nave and chancel Perp.; in the chancel is a mutilated effigy. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. There are four cottages as free residences for indigent persons, a fuel allotment producing £26 10s. for coals, and other charities of £5 10s. annually for bread and books.

Tuddenham near Ipswich. [TUDDENHAM (1).]

Tuddenham near Soham. [TUDDENHAM (2).]

Tuddenham, North, pa. and scattered vil., Mid Norf., from 2½ to 5 E. of East Dereham; ac. 2,270; soil mixed and gravel, subsoil mixed and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1868) is Perp.; the lower part of an ancient carved oak screen, with painted figures of saints on panels, still remains; there are monuments to the Skippe, Howlett and Shelford families. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities are £50 yearly for bread and clothing, and there is a fuel allotment of 24 ac. for the poor.

Tudeley, formerly pa., but now for civil purposes amalgamated with Capel, and vil., W. Kent, about 4 S.E. of Tonbridge. The church of All Saints (restored 1870) is Perp., and contains a fine altar-tomb to the family of Fane.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tuddenham (1)	Westerfield (2)	72	374
Tuddenham (2)	Mildenhall (3½)	76	329
Tuddenham, East	Hardingham (2)	116	474
Tuddenham, North	Dereham (3)	122	314
Tudeley	Tonbridge (4)	28	1133
Tudhoe, eccl. pa.	Spennymoor (1)	249	4850
Tudhoe, tp.	Spennymoor (1)	249	7653
Tue Brook	Tue Brook	198	7732

Tudhoe, eccl. pa. (extending into pa. of Merrington), tp., and vil., pa. of Brancepeth (q.v.), Mid Dur., 5 N.E. of Bishop Auckland; ac. 1,785. Holy Innocents Church was built 1866 in Gothic style. There is a chapel-of-ease, and Roman Catholic, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. Here are extensive iron and coal works, which form the chief support of the pa.

Tudworth, ha., pa. of Hatfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2 S. of Thorne.

Tue Brook, eccl. pa., pa. of West Derby (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., on the outskirts of Liverpool. The church is dedicated to St. John the Baptist.

Tuffley, tp. and vil., pa. of Gloucester St. Mary de Lode (q.v.), W. Glouc., 2 S. of Gloucester; ac. 971. Bricks and tiles are manufactured.

Tufnell Park, dis. and eccl. pa., pa. of Islington (q.v.), E. Middx., in N.W. London, 3½ N.N.W. of St. Paul's. T. P. takes its name from the family of Tufnell, who were lords of the ancient manor of Barnsbury or Bemersbury. The ground on which it stands, which formed part of the demesne land, was devoted to building purposes in accordance with an Act of Parliament passed in 1832, and is now for the most part covered with private houses. The church of St. George is a handsome circular edifice, built in 1867.

Tufton, pa. on the Test, W. Hants, 3 S. of Whitchurch; ac. 1,537; soil light, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Mary is a small Norm. building.

Tugby, pa. and vil., S.E. Leics., 12 S.E. of Leicester; ac. 1,830; soil chiefly clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Thomas à Becket (restored 1857) is Norm., and contains monuments to Thomas Wilson (d. 1699) and Richard Neale (d. 1558). Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The charities produce £93 yearly. Keythorpe Hall is a seat.

Tugford, pa. and vil., S. Salop, 10 N.E. of Ludlow; ac. 1,346; soil red clay, overlying stone and gravel. The church of St. Catherine is ancient. There is a small charity.

Tughall, tp., pa. of Bamburgh (q.v.), N.E. Northumb., 8 S.E. of Belford; ac. 1,514.

Tulla (1), stream, rises in Glenorchy and Inishail pa., N. Args., Sc., winds in a N.W. and S.W. direction for about 10 miles, and falls into Loch Tulla.

Tulla (2), or Tulloh, pa. and mkt. to. (TH.), Upper Tulla bar., E. co. Clare, Ir., 7 N.E. of Ardsollis; ac. 24,383. The Protestant church is an unpretending edifice with a spire, having a glebe house adjoining, and the Catholic church is a neat building. The to. is pleasantly situated amidst delightful scenery and elegant mansions, and the air being lofty, the air is remarkably salubrious. Being a considerable thoroughfare, the trade of the place derives advantage therefrom. On the hill of T. are the remains of an abbey and a so-called druidical altar. Kiltanon (q.v.) is in this pa. Fairs are held in March, May, Aug., Sept. and Dec.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tuffley	Gloucester (2)	114	872
Tufnell Park	.....	.....	11266
Tufton	Whitchurch (3)	59	137
Tugby	East Norton (1)	93	317
Tugford	Ludlow (10)	162	99
Tughall	Chathill (2½)	317	93
Tulla (2), pa.	Crusheen (2)	144	3864
Tulla (2), to.	Crusheen (2)	144	644

Tullabracky, pa., Coshma and Smallcounty bars., E. co. Lim., Ir., 1¾ N.E. of Bruff; ac. 3,208. Rockbarton is a seat.

Tullagh, pa. on Baltimore Harbour, Carbery West bar., S. co. Cork, Ir., 8 S.W. of Skibbereen; ac. 5,349. It contains the vil. of Baltimore. The Protestant church is in Baltimore, and the glebe house and ruins of the old church lie just outside. There are Catholic churches at Rathmore, and in the island of Sherkin, where also are the ruins of a fine Franciscan abbey.

Tullaghan, vil., pa. of Rossinver (q.v.), N. co. Leit., Ir., about 5 S.W. of Ballyshannon. Fairs are held in May, Aug., Nov. and Dec.

Tullaghan Bay, Erris bar., N.W. co. Mayo, Ir. Its shores on the north and south are much indented. It receives the Owenduff, the Owenmore, and some smaller streams.

Tullaghanbrogue, pa., Crannagh and Shillelogher bars., Mid co. Kilk., Ir., 6 S.W. of Kilkenny; ac. 3,487. Dysart House is a seat.

Tullaghanoge, pa., Upper Navan bar., Mid co. Meath, Ir., 2 N.W. of Trim; ac. 1,414.

Tullagher, ha., pa. of Dysartmoon (q.v.), S. co. Kilk., Ir., 4 S. of Inistioge.

Tullaghgore, ha., pa. of and adjoining Ballymoney (q.v.), N.W. co. Antr., Ir.

Tullaghmelan, pa., Iffa and Offa West bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 5 S.W. of Clonmel; ac. 2,695. There is a Catholic church. Knocklofty, charmingly situated in richly wooded grounds, is a seat.

Tullaghobegly, pa., Kilmacrenan bar., N. co. Don., Ir., 6 S.W. of Dunfanaghy; ac. 68,541. There is a Protestant church, four Catholic churches, and eight National schools. The pa. contains the vil. of Crossroads, or Falcarragh (q.v.); it extends to the sea coast, and includes several islands, comprising Tory, Innisboffin and Gold; the peninsula terminating in the eminence known as Bloody Foreland reaches the height of 1,030 ft.

Tullaghoge, vil., pa. of Desertcreat (q.v.), E. co. Tyr., Ir., 2½ S.E. of Cookstown. The Protestant church 1 S. of the vil. is a plain structure, picturesquely surrounded by large trees. The fort adjoining the vil. is said to have been the place of coronation of the O'Neills, kings of Ulster; it commands a fine view of the surrounding country, and appears to have been a fortress of some strength.

Tullaghorton, pa., Iffa and Offa West bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 7 S.W. of Caher; ac. 6,889. There is a Catholic church. A good part of the pa. is mountainous. It contains part of the vil. of Clogheen (q.v.).

Tullahennel, ha., pa. of Aghavallen (q.v.), N. co. Kerry, Ir., near Ballylongford.

Tullaherin, pa., Gowran bar., E. co. Kilk., Ir., 3 E. of Bennett's Bridge; ac. 5,052. One of the numerous round towers 50 ft. high, and in a very imperfect condition, stands in this pa.

Tullahought, pa. on the Lingaun, Kells bar., W. co. Kilk., Ir., 5 N.N.E. of Carrick-on-Suir; ac. 4,601. Here are slate quarries.

Tulla, Loch, lake, pa. of Glenorchy and Innishail (q.v.), N. Args., Sc., receives the Tulla stream and discharges the Orchy river. It is 1½ mile long.

Tulla, Lower, bar., S.E. co. Clare, Ir.; ac. 73,454; bounded on the north by Tulla Upper bar., on the east by co. Tip., on the south by co. Lim., and on the west by Bunratty Lower bar. Lough Derg and the Shannon run along the east boundary. It contains the to. of Killaloe.

Tullamain, pa., Middlethird bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 4 W. of Fethard; ac. 2,217. There is an abundance of limestone. T. Castle is a seat.

Tullamaine, pa., Shillelogher bar., Mid co. Kilk., Ir., 1½ N. of Callan; ac. 1,171.

Tullamore, assize and mkt. and co. to., pa. of Kilbride (q.v.), N. K. Co., Ir., 16 N.W. of Portarlington. The Grand Canal passes near the to., affording water communication with Dublin on the east and Shannon Harbour on the west, and a branch of the Brosna runs through and is crossed by a bridge. As late as 1787 T. was a vil. of thatched cottages, but being to a great extent accidentally burned down, it has been rebuilt in a more substantial manner. The to. is arranged in the form of a cross; the private houses and public establishments are handsome and extensive, and the streets being wide give it a clean and airy appearance. The Protestant church of St. Catherine (1818) stands about a quarter of a mile from the to., upon a lofty hill; several memorials of the Charleville family adorn the interior. The Catholic church is a handsome modern building; there is a Presbyterian church, a Friends' Meeting-House, and a Methodist chapel. The to. has a gaol, with court-house adjoining, a co. infirmary, union workhouse, town hall and constabulary barracks. There are also two convents. The principal business establishments are a distillery, brewery, and two saw mills. The market is held every Tuesday and Saturday for corn, butter, eggs, poultry, and general agricultural produce; and there are monthly fairs for sheep and cattle. About a quarter of a mile distant, on the banks of the canal, and near the old road from Dublin to Galway, are the ruins of Shragh Castle, built in 1588 by John Briscoe, an officer of high rank in Queen Elizabeth's army, and by his wife Eleanor Kerny and their son, Andrew Briscoe, Esq., as recorded upon a tablet in the church.

Tullamore Division, one of the two parl. divs. of K. Co., Ir.; it lies in the north of the co. and returns one member.

Tullaroan, pa., Crannagh bar., N.W. co. Kilk., Ir., 8 W. of Kilkenny; ac. 12,359. The surface in parts is lofty, and the pa. consists in part of a range of hills which extend into co. Tip. The Protestant church

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tullabracky	Knocklong (7)	118	437
Tullagh	Skibbereen (8)	220	2449
Tullaghan	Bundoran (2)	160	81
Tullaghanbrogue	Kilkenny (6)	81	338
Tullaghanoge	Trim (2)	30	107
Tullaghmelan	Clonmel (5)	135	323
Tullaghobegly	Letterkenny (25)	187	9204
Tullaghorton	Caher (7)	124	817

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tullaherin	Bennett's Bridge (3)	87	348
Tullahought	Carrick-on-Suir (5)	149	754
Tulla, Lower	.....	.....	11276
Tullamain	Fethard (4)	104	240
Tullamaine	Kilkenny (13)	81	97
Tullamore	Tullamore	58	4522
Tullamore Division	.....	.....	31571
Tullaroan	Kilkenny (8)	81	1158

is in ruins. Of Courtstown Castle, once the seat of the Graces, hardly a vestige remains.

Tulla, Upper, bar., E. co. Clare, Ir.; ac. 94,919; bounded on the north and east by co. Galway, on the south by Tulla, Lower, bar., and on the west by Bunratty, Upper, bar. Lough Derg touches its south-east extremity, and it contains Lough Graney and the to. of Tulla.

Tulliallan, pa. on the Forth, in a detached part of Perths., Sc. (now transferred to S.W. Fifes. by the Boundary Commissioners), containing the to. of Kincardine; ac. 3,586; soil various, overlying freestone, coal, and ironstone. The old church, which remains standing in the burial ground, is a ruin, the steeple, however, being perfect. T. Castle is a modern mansion close to the ruins of the old castle of that name.

Tullibardine, scattered vil. with railway station, pa. of Blackford (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc., 3 N.W. of Auchterarder. North of the railway are the ruins of T. Castle and chapel, the former a possession of the Murrays of T., ancestors of the Dukes of Athol, the chapel being the burial-place of the family. T. gives the title of marquess to the Dukes of Athol.

Tullibody, vil., pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Alloa (q.v.), W. Clacks., Sc. T. was formerly a separate pa. It has a Free church. T. House is a seat.

Tullich (1), pl., pa. of Kilmuir Easter (q.v.), E. Ross and Crom., Sc., 5 S. of Tain.

Tullich (2). [GLENMUICK.]

Tulliebole. [FOSSOWAY AND TULLIEBOLE.]

Tullig Point, headland, S.W. co. Clare, Ir., 4 W. of Carrigaholt.

Tullintrain, vil., pa. of Comber, Upper (q.v.), W. co. Londonderry, Ir., 8 W. of Dungiven.

Tulloch (1), pl., pa. of Old Meldrum (q.v.), N.E. Abers., Sc., 2 N.E. of Inverurie. T. Cottage is a seat.

Tulloch (2), vil., pa. of Perth (q.v.), S.E. Perths., adjoining the to. of Perth, Sc.

Tullochgorum, pl., pa. of Cromdale (q.v.), E. Invs., Sc., 6¼ S.W. of Grantown. Formerly this was the seat of the Clan Grant.

Tullomoy, pa., Ballyadams and Stradbally bars., S.E. Q. Co., Ir., 10 S.W. of Athy; ac. 6,012. The pa. contains part of the Slievemargy mountains. There is a Catholic church and a National school.

Tullow, mkt. to., pa. of Tullowphelim and Fennagh (q.v.), N.E. co. Carl., Ir., 8 S.E. of Carlow, pleasantly seated on the banks of the Slaney and close to the borders of co. Wicklow. The river is here crossed by a bridge of five arches. The to. was once called Tullowphelim, and conferred the title of viscount upon two branches of the Butler family, both of which have been extinct for many years, and the name as applied to the place has all but become obsolete. The business of the to. is confined chiefly to a spacious market square and two adjacent streets. There are Protestant and Catholic c The court-house is spacious, and quarter for the barony are held in it. The othe institutions are a fever hospital with a dis a Protestant school, a convent and a mo The market, which is held on Saturday, attended, and there are monthly fairs.

Tullowcreen, pa. on the Barrow, Idrone W N.W. co. Carl., Ir., about 5 S.W. of Carlow; a Tullowmagimma, pa., Carlow and Fort N.W. co. Carl., Ir., 3 S.E. of Carlow; ac There is a Catholic church and a National Tullowphelim, pa. Rathvilly bar., N.E. c Ir., containing part of the to. of Tullow (q. 7,990.

Tully (1), pa., Rathdown bar., S. co. D about 3 S. of Kingstown; ac. 3,288. It part of the vil. of Cabinteely.

Tully (2), pa., Kilcullen and East Offal Mid co. Kildare, Ir., 1½ S.E. of Kildare; ac.

Tully (3), pl., pa. of Ballyclug (q.v.), Antr., Ir., 8 S. of Killagan.

Tullyallen, pa. chiefly in Ferrard bar., Louth, Ir., but partly in the co. of the Drogheda, and partly in Upper Slane bar. Meath, extending along the bank of the ac. 7,229. The Protestant church stands a and the Catholic church about 2 N.W. fro heda. In this pa. is the obelisk record battle of the Boyne. Here also, in grounds by a stream, are the remains of Mellifont (q.v.). Townley Hall is a seat.

Tully Bay, small bay in Lough Erne, Ferm., Ir.

Tullycanna, ha., pa. of Ambrosetown (q.v. Wex., Ir., 11 S.W. of Wexford.

Tullycoe, pl., pa. of Larah (q.v.), N. co. C 9 S.W. of Cootehill.

Tullycorbet, pa., Cremorne and Monaghn Mid co. Monaghan, Ir., 3 N. of Ballybay; a The church of St. Patrick was built in 182 remains of a very ancient church are s cernible in the old graveyard. There are churches, two places of worship for Presby and one for Covenanters.

Tullyfern, pa., Kilmacrenan bar., N. co. D containing part of Rathmelton and the w Milford (q.v.); ac. 16,612.

Tullygarvey, bar., Mid co. Cav., Ir.; ac. It is bounded on the north by co. Monagh the east by co. Monaghan and Clankee bar., south by Upper Loughtee bar., and on the w Upper and Lower Loughtee bars. The Cav Clones railway crosses the north-west corner bar., and the Irish North-Western railway to Cootehill.

Tullyhaw, bar., N.W. co. Cav., Ir.; ac. It is bounded on the north by cos. Ferm. and on the east by co. Ferm. and Lower Loughte

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lou. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tulla, Upper	.....	.....	12558
Tulliallan	Kincardine	422	2177
Tullibody	Cambus (½)	420	686
Tullomoy	Athy (10)	45	408
Tullow	Tullow	52	1773
Tullowcreen	Carlow (5)	56	594
Tullowmagimma	Carlow (3)	56	539
Tullowphelim	Tullow	52	2315

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lou. or Dub.
Tully (1)	Carrickmines (1)	8
Tully (2)	Kildare (1½)	31
Tullyallen	Drogheda (3)	32
Tullycorbet	Ballybay (3)	79
Tullyfern	Letterkenny (8)	187
Tullygarvey	.....	.....
Tullyhaw	.....	.....

on the south by Tullyhunco bar. and co. Leit., and on the west by co. Leit. The Ulster railway crosses the north portion of the bar., which contains the tos. of Ballyconnell and Swanlinbar.

Tullyhunco, bar., Mid co. Cav., Ir.; ac. 39,834. It is bounded on the north by Tullyhaw bar., on the east by Lower and Upper Loughtee and Clanmahon bars., on the south by co. Longf., and on the west by co. Leit. The Cavan Junction railway runs to Killashandra. The bar. contains the to. of Arvagh.

Tullylease, pa., Duhallow and Orrery and Kilmore bars., N. co. Cork, Ir., 7 N.E. of Newmarket; ac. 8,298.

Tullylish, pa., Iveagh Lower bar., W. co. Down, Ir., 14 N. of Newry; ac. 12,131. It contains Gilford to. and the vils. of Civiltown, Lawrencetown, and Milltown.

Tullymet, ha. and seat, pa. of Logierait (q.v.), N. Perths., Sc., 2½ N.E. of Ballinluig. There is a Baptist chapel and a Roman Catholic church.

Tullymurry, pl. with railway station, pa. of Down (q.v.), E. co. Down, Ir., 4 S.W. of Downpatrick.

Tullynakill, pa. on the western shore of Strangford Lough, Lower Castlereagh bar., N. co. Down, Ir., 3½ S.W. of Comber; ac. 2,930. There are some large limestone quarries. The pa. church was built in 1825. The small fishing vil. of Ardmillan lies on the shore of Strangford Lough at the south-east corner of the pa.

Tullynessle and Forbes, pa. on the north bank of the Don, W. Abers., Sc., about 2 miles from Alford railway station; ac. 11,279. The surface of the country is rather mountainous, some of the hills being of considerable altitude, and game is abundant.

Tullyniskan, pa., Middle Dungannon bar., S.E. co. Tyr., Ir., on the road from Dungannon to Stewartstown, about 3 N. of Dungannon; ac. 4,461. It contains the vil. of New Mills (q.v.), in which the Protestant church is situated. The Catholic church is at Edendork. There is a beetling mill, a flour mill, and a stone quarry, and the only tape factory in Ireland.

Tullyrone, pl., pa. of Clonfeacle (q.v.), N. co. Armagh, Ir., 4 E. of Moy.

Tullyrusk, pa., Upper Massereene bar., S. co. Antr., Ir., 3 S.E. of Crumlin; ac. 4,788.

Tullyveery, another name for Shrigley (q.v.).

Tullyvin, pl., pa. of Kildrumsherdan (q.v.), N. co. Cav., Ir., 3 S.W. of Cootehill.

Tulnacross, ha., pa. of Kildress (q.v.), E. co. Tyr., Ir., 6 W. of Cookstown.

Tulse Hill, eccl. pa., pas. of Lambeth and Streatham (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, forming a south suburb of London, 5 S. of St. Paul's. Trinity Church is a modern edifice in Dec. style. Brockwell Park, covering 80 ac., was acquired by the London County Council in 1890, and has been converted into a public pleasure ground.

Tulsk, vil. and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Ogulla (q.v.), Mid co. Roscom., Ir., about 8 N.E. of Ballymoe. It was formerly a to. of considerable importance, and sent members to Parliament down to the Union. Here are the ruins of a religious house, said to have been Dominican, but little is known of its history. Fairs are held on Easter Monday and on the first Monday in November.

Tumby, tp., pa. of Kirkby-on-Bain (q.v.), E. Lincs., 7 S. of Horncastle; ac. 3,276. Here are extensive woods of oak and larch, covering an area of over 1,000 ac.

Tumby Wood, ha., pa. of Revesby (q.v.), E. Lincs., near Tumby.

Tummel (1), river, N. Perths., Sc.; issues from the E. extremity of Loch Rannoch, and runs 20 miles E. by N., and then, after forming T. Falls, 9 miles S.E., joining the Tay 7 miles N.N.W. of Dunkeld. Its principal affluent is the Garry, which joins it about half a mile below the Falls. The upper part of its course is through a mountain defile with steep wooded banks, between which it dashes with impetuous vigour. Below its confluence with the Garry it flows through a well-cultivated tract bordered by picturesque hills. The Falls of T., though only 15 ft. in height, present a very grand scene, especially after rainy weather. In their vicinity is a cave, wherein a body of men belonging to the Clan Macgregor are said to have been massacred at the time when they were outlaws.

Tummel (2), loch, N. Perths., Sc., 15 N.W. of Dunkeld. The lake, which is formed by the expansion of the river Tummel, 9½ miles E. of the point where it leaves Loch Rannoch, is 3 miles long from W. to E., and has an extreme breadth (near its W. extremity) of ½ mile. The scenery of its banks is soft in character, consisting of woods and meadows, beyond which rise heath-covered moors, terminating in lofty mountains. In all views on the lake the mountain of Schiehallion forms a conspicuous and very grand feature. There are some remains of a fortress, said to have belonged to the Clan Donachie, on a small island near its E. end. Trout and pike are abundant.

Tummel Bridge, ha. on the Tummel, pa. of Dull (q.v.), N. Perths., Sc., 7 E. of Kinloch-Rannoch. There is a Free church. A fair is held in Oct.

Tumna, pa., Boyle bar., co. Roscom., Ir., 1½ W. of Carrick-on-Shannon; ac. 8,294; limestone and freestone abound. The pa. contains the vils. of Cootehall and Battlebridge. A monastery of the Dominican order was founded here, which passed into the possession of the Franciscans. Woodbrook is a seat.

Tunbridge. [TONBRIDGE.]

Tunbridge Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Kent; it lies in the south-west of the co., and returns one member.

Tunbridge Wells, fashionable watering place, mun. bor. and mkt. to., and head of Co. Co. dis., pas. of Tonbridge, Speldhurst and Frant (q.v.), S.W. Kent, 5 S. of Tonbridge. The dis. possesses

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tullyhunco	.....	.....	9453
Tullylease	Charleville (10)	130	1079
Tullylish	Banbridge (4)	87	8200
Tullynakill	Comber (3½)	121	733
Tullynessle & Forbes	Alford (2)	557	875
Tullyniskan	Dungannon (3)	103	2437
Tullyrusk	Crumlin	118	630
Tulse Hill	Tulse Hill	6	7842
Tumby	Woodhall Spa (4)	124	314
Tumna	Boyle (6)	108	1994
Tunbridge Division	.....	.....	72360
Tunbridge Wells	Tunbridge Wells	33	27895

beds of secondary iron ore, which give rise to the chalybeate springs here, accidentally discovered during the reign of James I. by Dudley Lord North, when on a visit to Eridge Castle. The Earl of Abergavenny enclosed two springs and made other improvements with a view to popularising the new remedy; in 1630 Queen Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I., attended by a large suite, came here to re-establish her health, but was obliged to camp on the Downs for want of other accommodation; and for thirty years after the visit of this queen, visitors were obliged to resort to tents and booths or to reside at Southborough. At the close of the reign of Charles I. buildings increased in all directions, and towards the end of the reign of Charles II. the place was frequently visited by Catharine of Braganza, queen of that monarch, with whom it was a favourite abode, and it gradually became a place of fashionable resort. The acme of its prosperity must be assigned to the period when Colley Cibber, the poet and dramatist; Dr. Johnson, David Garrick, Samuel Richardson, the novelist; Sir Joshua Reynolds, P.R.A., Miss Chudleigh, and Mrs. Thrale were its constant visitors. A curious picture representing these eminent characters at the Wells has been preserved, and furnishes an amusing illustration of the costumes and courtesies of that day. The whole neighbourhood abounds in springs and mineral waters, but only one is held in particular estimation; this spring, yielding about a gallon of water per minute, is clear, bright and colourless, with a taste savouring strongly of steel; it has scarcely any smell, though sometimes in a dense air its ferruginous exhalations are very distinguishable. The component parts of the water are steely particles, marine salts, an oily matter, an ochreous substance, pure water and volatile vitriolic spirit too subtle for any chemical analysis. The spring (from which the water is supplied by the dippers) still retains its original situation, but the approach to it was greatly improved in 1847 by the addition of a portico piazza. A broad and handsome parade exte 175 yds. from the mineral spring, and along whole front is a piazza serving as a fashiona rendezvous; a row of lime trees also contribute the pleasantness of this picturesque promena popularly called "the Pantiles," in the centre which is an orchestra, where a band plays dur the season. The Pump Room, a large red-br building at the south end of the Pantiles, erected in 1877 for the convenience of visit coming hither to drink the waters. It include large room containing a fountain, drawing roo etc., and is amply supplied with all the daily weekly papers; the premises are also used by club and a local masonic lodge, and the princ apartment is occasionally let for balls and oth entertainments. T. W. has several eccl. pas., all mo modern churches, except that of King Charles th Martyr, which dates from the end of the 17th cent. a Catholic church, and places of worship for vario Nonconformist bodies. The Skinners' Compan Middle School was opened in 1887; the Kin Charles School dates from 1698, and there is Technical Institute. The town hall, in Calverle Road, is an edifice of stone, and comprises a larg hall, a council room, police station with cells, and offices for the town clerk and other officers. Othe public buildings are the Great Hall (1870), a stone building in Italian style; the Corn Exchange, in which a market is held on Fridays; the Post Office the Mechanics' Institute, the General Hospital, and the Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital. The principal industry consists in the manufacture and sale of fancy articles made of wood, inlaid in mosaic, and called "Tunbridge Ware." The Common, close to and almost surrounded by the to., covers an area of 179 ac. The Grosvenor Recreation Ground comprises 8½ ac. and contains a large swimming bath. There is much picturesque scenery in the neighbourhood of the to.

The Pantiles, Tunbridge Wells.
(Photo. Carl Norman & Co., Tunbridge Wells.)

Tundergarth, pa., S. Dumfs., Sc.; ac. 10,482; soil various, overlying slate and clay slate; a great number of sheep are pastured on the hill. The pa. church is about 3 S.E. of Lockerbie. T. Castle, now in ruins, was formerly the residence of the Johnstones, Marquesses of Annandale. A conspicuous hill called "Brunswark" overlooks the dis. from the south.

Tunorbury. [HAYLING, SOUTH.]

Tunstall (1), pa. and ancient vil., N.E. Kent, belonged to Oswald in the reign of Edward the Confessor, 1 S.W. of Sittingbourne; ac. 1,200; soil generally rich, overlying chalk. The church of St John the Baptist, situated in a pretty and retired spot, overshadowed by fine trees, is E. Eng. and later; in the chancel is a double piscina, and on the north a flat arched aumbry with hinges and shelf; the font has a cylindrical bowl, with shafts of Romanesque appearance. The church contains an alabaster tomb without inscription, and a stately monument of marble, with full-sized recumbent effigy in armour to Sir Edward Hales, Knight and Bart. of Woodchurch and T., an active adherent of the Parliament during the Civil War (d. 1654); there are brasses, with effigies, to Margaret (Crowner), wife of John Rycyls (d. 1496); one in the nave to Ralph Wulf, a former rector (d. 1525); another of a lady (c. 1590); and others to Henry Guyldeforde, Esq., captain of Archclyffe fort, near Dover (d. 1595), and Christopher Webbe, D.D., President of St. John's College, Cambridge, and rector here (d. 1610); there are also memorials to the families of Hales and Crowmer, and to the Rev. E. R. Mores, born here 1730, and subsequently rector, and author of a "History of Tunstall and its Antiquities"; the monument includes a beautiful marble bust of Dr. Mores (d. 1778). Gore Court is a modern structure in the Italian style. Woodstock, about 2 miles south, is a seat.

Tunstall (2), pa., tp., and vil. on the Lune, N. Lancs., 13 N.E. of Lancaster; ac. of pa. 9,163, of tp. 1,076; soil loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (repaired 1850) is Perp., and contains numerous monuments of the Fenwick family and a mutilated effigy believed to be of Sir Thomas Tunstal.

Tunstall (3), pa. on the Bure, E. Norf., 14 S.E. of Norwich; ac. 1,612; soil mixed, overlying sand and clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a building of flint, but the tower and nave are in ruins; the chancel, which is the only portion of the structure now available for divine service, has been renovated.

Tunstall (4), pa. and small vil. near the German Ocean, E.R. Yorks., 15 E. by N. of Hull; ac. 1,346; soil strong clay, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1874) is E. Eng. and Perp. The sea has swallowed upwards of 100 ac. of land in the pa. within the last seventy years, and is still constantly encroaching.

Tunstall (5), pa., S.E. Suff., 8 N.E. of Woodbridge; ac. 2,871; soil loam, clay, and sand, overlying clay, sand, and gravel. The church of St. Michael is Perp. There is a Baptist chapel at T. Common. Here are clay and sand pits. In this pa. are extensive maltings and wharves.

Tunstall (6), mkt. and manufacturing to. rapidly increasing in importance, pa. of Wolstanton (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., now included within the parl. bor. of Newcastle-under-Lyme (q.v.). There are eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic chapel, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The old court-house, a plain building formerly in the centre of the Market Square, has been removed. The town hall (1885), which occupies part of the site formerly devoted to market purposes, is a structure of red brick and stone in the Renaissance style; it includes an assembly room, board room, court room, committee rooms, local board office and lock-up; a portion of the building is used as a bank, and there are a few shops. The Victoria Institute (1889) is also in Renaissance style; it comprises on the ground floor public lecture rooms and free library; on the first floor a school of art, and on the second floor a school of science. An open space at the end of the Institute has been laid out for public recreation. The Public Library, inaugurated in the old town hall in 1885, was removed to the Institute in 1891. There is a spacious market, erected in 1858. The market days are Saturday and Monday, the former being the principal. There are no fairs. In the Market Square is a clock-tower (1893) commemorating Sir Smith Child, of Stallington Hall, a great benefactor to the to. The chief manufacture of the to. is earthenware; there are also extensive iron works for the manufacture of pig, bar, and sheet iron. The raising of coal for the use of the manufacturers is extensively carried on in the tp. and its immediate neighbourhood, as well as the raising and calcining of ironstone. Bricks and tiles are also largely manufactured. The charities are devoted to educational purposes.

Tunstall (7), chap., tp., and vil., pa. of Catterick (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Richmond; ac. 1,262. Holy Trinity (chapel-of-ease) is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans have a small chapel.

Tunstall (8), tp., pa. of Bishop Wearmouth (q.v.), N. Dur.; ac. 808. Here are Roman Catholic and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Tunstall (9), ha., pa. of Ayton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 N.E. of Stokesley.

Tunstead (1), pa. and vil., E. Norf., 10 N.E. of Norwich; ac. 2,259; soil mixed, overlying sand, gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1863) is a large Perp. building; there is a beautiful screen, and over the altar is a large platform or loft where it is supposed miracle plays were once performed. The poor have the benefit of several charities and the rent of some allotments.

Tunstead (2), eccl. pa. and vil. on the Irwell, pas. of Rochdale and Whalley (q.v.), E. Lancs., 1½ S.W. of Bacup. Holy Trinity Church was built in Norm. style in 1841. The Wesleyans, Baptists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. Here are cotton and woollen mills and stone quarries.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tundergarth	Lockerbie (3)	325	439
Tunstall (1)	Sittingbourne (1)	45	243
Tunstall (2), pa.	Melling (1)	244	748
Tunstall (2), tp.	Melling (1)	244	119
Tunstall (3)	Reedham (4)	119	131
Tunstall (4)	Withernsea (4)	216	121
Tunstall (5)	Wickham Market (2)	85	638
Tunstall (6)	Tunstall	150	15730
Tunstall (7)	Catterick Bridge (3)	233	219
Tunstall (8)	Ryhope (2)	258	4503
Tunstead (1)	Coltishall (3)	126	437
Tunstead (2)	Stacksteads	204	6985

Tunstead (3), vil., pa. of Tideswell (q.v.), N. Derbys., 1 w. of Wormhill.

Tunworth, small pa., N. Hants, 4 S.E. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,104; soil light loam, subsoil chalk. The church of All Saints (rebuilt 1854–55) was originally a Norm. building; the chancel is screened from the nave by a solid wall of masonry, and opens to it by a small Norm. arch.

Tuogh, pa., Owneybegs bar., E. co. Lim., Ir., 3 N.E. of Dromkeen; ac. 6,518. It contains the vil. of Cappamore. There is a Catholic church.

Tuoghcluggin, pa., Coonagh bar., N.E. co. Lim., Ir., 5¼ N.W. of Tipperary; ac. 2,093.

Tuosist, pa., Glanarought bar., S. co. Kerry, Ir., 12 S.W. of Kenmare; ac. 39,340. It is in a wild and mountainous district, bounded on the north-west by Kenmare Bay and on the south-east by the Caha Mountains; the shore comprises the harbours of Ardgroom and Kilmacalogue, the latter extending 2½ miles inland.

Tupgill, ha., pa. of Coverham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2 S.W. of Middleham.

Tupholme, pa. (formerly extra-parochial), Mid Lincs., 8 W. of Horncastle; ac. 1,795; soil and subsoil mostly clay. Here was anciently a Premonstratensian monastery, dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, founded in the time of Henry II. by Allan and Gilbert de Neville; some picturesque ruins, including one side of the refectory with six lancet windows and reading pulpit, are all that remain.

Tupsley, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Hampton Bishop (q.v.), Mid Herefords., about 1 E.N.E. of Hereford; ac. 812. The church of St. Paul is in E. Eng. style. Litley Court is a seat.

Tupton, tp., pa. of and about 2 N.W. from North Wingfield (q.v.), E. Derbys.; ac. 684. Here is a mission church. T. Hall is a seat.

Turbot Bank, shoal on west side of Cork Harbour, W. co. Cork, Ir., near its entrance, 11 S.E. of Cork. The bank is ¼ mile in length, and is covered with water.

Turbot Island, small island off the west coast of co. Galway, Ir., about 5 W. of Clifden.

Turbotstown, pl. and seat, pa. of Mayne (q.v.), N. co. Wstm., Ir., 3 N.W. of Castlepollard. Embroidery and plain needlework are carried on as cottage industries.

Ture, vil., pa. of and 2½ N. from Muff (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir.

Turin Hill (814 ft.), pa. of Rescobie (q.v.), Mid Forfs., Sc., about 4 N.E. of Forfar. It commands a very extensive view. An ancient stronghold on its summit, parts of which remain, is believed to have been one of the oldest stone forts in Scotland.

Turk, stream, S.W. Perths., Sc., rises close to the border of Balquhidder, and flows in a S.E. direction for 6½ miles to the Bridge of T., 7 S.W. of Callander.

Turkdean, pa. and vil., E. Gloucs., 12 N.E. of Cirencester; ac. 2,178; soil stonebrash, overlying rock and clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1857) is of various periods, the tower and chancel-arch being Norm., the chancel E. Eng., and the rest of the edifice Perp.; there are monuments to Elizabeth Nelthorp (d. 1718) and Sir William Bannister (d. 1730). There is a charity of over £33 yearly value.

Tur Langton, chap., tp., and vil., pa. of Church Langton (q.v.), S.E. Leics., 5½ N.W. of Market Harborough; ac. 1,413. The church of St. Andrew was built 1866 in E. Eng. style. Here is a Congregational chapel.

Turlough, pa., Carra bar., Mid co. Mayo, Ir., 3 N.E. of Castlebar station; ac. 22,714. This pa. is situated on a small river, the land being generally good, limestone abounding, suitable for building and other purposes. Between Castlebar and Ballina and through part of this pa. is a wild and romantic district. Lough Conn and Lough Cullin are here united by a narrow sound, across which is a stone bridge, and the neck of land between the two lakes is called the Pontoon. T. has a Protestant church, two Catholic churches, places of worship for Presbyterians and Wesleyan Methodists, eight public schools, and a National school. Fairs are held during the year. T. Park is situated in a fine demesne.

Turnastone, pa. on the Dore, S.W. Herefords., 7 N.W. of Pontrilas; ac. 1,625; soil sandy and loamy, overlying clay and sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1884) is E. Eng.

Turnberry Castle, ruin, pa. of Kirkoswald (q.v.), W. Ayrs., Sc., 6 N. of Girvan. It stands on a low promontory, and it is uncertain when it was built: it seems, however, to have been a stronghold in the 12th cent. There is now little remaining but the lower vaults and cellars. A lighthouse is built on part of the castle's site.

Turnchapel, ha., pa. of Plymstock (q.v.), S.E. Dev., 1 S.E. of Plymouth. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Turnditch, tp., chap., and vil., pa. of Duffield (q.v.), Mid Derbys., 3½ W. of Belper; ac. 812. The chapel of All Saints (restored 1883) is apparently E. Eng. The Congregationalists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There is a small charity.

Turner's Hill, ha., pa. of Worth (q.v.), N. Sussex, 3 S.W. of East Grinstead.

Turner's Puddle, pa. on the Piddle, Mid Dors., 7½ N.W. by W. of Wareham; ac. 1,936; soil and subsoil chalky. Holy Trinity Church (restored 1883) is chiefly Perp.

Turnham Green, dis. and eccl. pa., pa. of Chiswick (q.v.), S. Middx., 7½ W. by S. of St. Paul's. Christ Church (1843) is in E. Eng. style. There is a Congregational chapel. The Vestry Hall was built in 1876. The "Pack Horse" at T. G. has been a famous inn for about 200 years. The gardens here were celebrated in Evelyn's days, and the place now contains many thriving nurseries

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tunworth	Basingstoke (4)	48	98
Tuogh	Dromkeen (3)	118	1704
Tuoghcluggin	Pallas (2)	115	281
Tuosist	Kenmare (12)	197	2703
Tupholme	Horncastle (8)	130	94
Tupsley, ec. pa.	Hereford (1)	144	1105
Tupsley, tp.	Hereford (1)	144	1121
Tupton	Clay Cross (1)	142	1551

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
		[(3)]
Turkdean	Notgrove & W'tfield	96	36
Tur Langton	Market Harboro' (5½	83	57
Turlough	Castlebar (3)	132	4
Turnastone	Vowchurch	160	5
Turnditch	Idridgehay (1)	138	2
Turner's Puddle	Moreton (5)	129	4
Turnham Green	Turnham Green	9	8

In November, 1642, the vil. was the scene of a skirmish between the Earl of Essex and Prince Rupert, in which six hundred cavaliers were slain. The spot is still shown on which Sir John Fenwick and other Jacobites, afterwards executed on Tower Hill, intended to assassinate William III. (1696).

Turnworth, pa., N. Dors., 6 W. of Blandford; ac. 1,176; soil light, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a small edifice of stone in E. Eng. style; it was originally built in the 13th cent., and, with the exception of the tower, was rebuilt in 1869. T. House is a handsome and commodious mansion, pleasantly situated in a valley and surrounded by picturesque scenery.

Turret Water, stream, Mid Forfs., Sc., rises on the slopes of Ben Chonzie, and flows in a S.E. direction for 8½ miles to the Earn, which it joins ½ W. of Crieff. About 3 N.W. of Crieff are the Falls of the Turret.

Turriff, pa. and burgh of barony, N. Abers., Sc., 11 S.S.E. of Banff; ac. 18,386. The pa. church (1794) is a plain stone edifice, slightly Gothic in style; the original church, now in ruins, stands on the site of an earlier Columban church. The Episcopal church of St. Congan was built in 1862. The Free church (1844) is a plain stone building. T. is one of the most flourishing little tos. in the north of Abers. There is a town and a cottage hospital. Several fairs are held. The Trot of T. was fought between the Covenanters and Royalists in 1639, and was the first blood shed in the great Civil War. Within the pa. are the ruins of Towie Barclay Castle, the seat of the ancient family of the Barclays, the banqueting hall of which is still in perfect preservation.

Turton, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., about 4 N. of Bolton; ac. 4,613. The church of St. Anne, built in 1841 on an eminence almost on the site of the old chapel of St. Matthew, is in Perp. style, and there are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The Blair Hospital was built in 1886. T. contains cotton mills, print works, bleach works, and several quarries. A cattle fair is held on Sept. 4 and 5. The charities amount to about £100 yearly. T. Tower was built in 1101, but was almost rebuilt in 1596; it is a square castellated mansion of stone, three storeys in height. The building has been rendered very irregular by comparatively recent additions. The walls of the tower proper are 5 ft. thick; in the ornamental woodwork on the east side of the old building are inserted the shields of arms of the Kay family.

Turvey, pa. and vil., N. Beds., on the borders of Bucks., from which it is separated by the Ouse, 7 N.W. of Bedford; ac. 3,944; soil mixed gravel and strong clay, overlying clay, gravel and rock. The church of All Saints (restored 1852–54) is chiefly E. Eng., with traces of Saxon and Norm. work and Dec. and Perp. additions; at the east end of the south aisle was a chapel of the Virgin; here still remain three E. Eng. sedilia and a piscina; an arched sepulchral recess in the same chapel contains a fresco, representing the two Marys at the foot of the Cross, which has been glazed for its better preservation. The font is probably Norm.; westward of the south door is a stoup projecting from a recess. The north chapel, now converted into an organ chamber, was the burial-place of the Mordaunt family, a number of whom are interred in the vaults beneath, including John, Earl of Peterborough, Marshal-General of the Parliamentary forces (d. 1643), and Charles, Earl of Peterborough and Monmouth, K.G., General of the Marines (d. at Lisbon 1735). In the chapel of St. Mary is an altar-tomb of Purbeck marble, with recumbent effigies to Sir John Mordaunt, Knight (d. 1506), and Edith (Latimer), his wife; the effigy of Sir John is in armour, over which is a robe, with the collar of S.S.; that of his lady is in a long gown and coif; on the south side of the chancel is the lofty monument of John, first Lord Mordaunt, son of the preceding (d. 1562), and Elizabeth Vere, his wife, with recumbent alabaster effigies of both, on an altar-tomb under a semicircular arch; in the north aisle now stands the fine tomb of John, second Lord Mordaunt (d. 1571); at the west end of the same aisle is the tomb of Lewis, third Lord Mordaunt (d. 1601), moved hither during the restoration. On the floor of St. Mary's Chapel is a small brass to a member of the Mordaunt family with impaled shield, and a scroll inscribed with a couplet in Latin, and there are two other brasses, one with the figure of an ecclesiastic, and another with arms and inscription to Alice Chubnoll, wife of Richard Bernard, Esq. (1606); suspended in the aisle are two helmets, a sword, gauntlets, collar and spurs. There is a memorial in the church to the Rev. Legh Richmond, M.A., the author of the "Dairyman's Daughter." There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. The charities in money and kind are considerable; a large and handsome block of buildings close to the railway station, consisting of a memorial hall and almshouses, was erected and endowed in 1884 for the relief of twenty-four persons, inhabitants of the pa. of T. and the to. of Bedford. Here is a reading-room, a working-men's room and museum. The "Three Fishes" Inn is an ancient hostelry with projecting gables, and is dated 1624; a great flood on Sept. 26, 1797, rose about 4 ft. above the roadway, near this house. Pillow thread lace is made here, though not to so large an extent as formerly, and shoemaking is carried on. The approach to T. from Bedford is through an avenue of trees, nearly a mile in length; at the further extremity of the vil. is a bridge of eight arches over the Ouse, facing which, in the water, is a statue group representing the story of Jonah; the other entrances to the vil. are also picturesque. T. Abbey is a long gabled building surrounded by a finely-wooded park of 100 ac.; in one of the rooms is a chimney-piece of the time of Henry VII., and the handsome stone chimney-piece in the drawing-room is of the era of James I.; two of the gables bear the dates 1603 and 1608. Picts' Hill, T. House, a stately mansion in Italian style, T. Cottage, and Woodside House are also seats.

Turville, pa. and vil., S.W. Bucks., 7 N.W. of Marlow; ac. 2,194; soil chalk and gravel, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876)

Place.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
Turnworth	Shillingstone (3½)	123	111
Turriff, pa.	Turriff	566	4253
Turriff, burgh	Turriff	566	2341
Turton, ec. pa.	Turton	201	3412
Turton, tp.	Turton	201	6354
Turvey	Turvey	56	882
Turville	West Wycombe (5)	36	468

is Norm., and contains monuments to the Sydney, East, Butlin, King and Perry families; the font is Norm. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There are several charities. T. Court and T. Park, once the residence of Lord Lyndhurst, are seats.

Turweston, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, N.W. Bucks., 7½ N.W. of Buckingham; ac. 1,240; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1863) contains some remains of Norm. and Dec. work; in the chancel are a Dec. piscina and Easter sepulchre; there is a brass effigy of a priest (c. 1450) and a brass to Thomas Grene (c. 1490). There is a Wesleyan chapel and some small charities. T. Hall is a seat.

Tushielaw, pl. near Ettrick Water, pa. of Ettrick (q.v.), S.W. Selks., Sc., about 15 S.W. of Selkirk. Here is a ruined tower, formerly the stronghold of Adam Scott, the "King of the Border." He was beheaded (1529) and his head set up over the prison gate at Edinburgh. Local tradition, however, maintains that he was hanged on an ash tree.

Tushingham, eccl. pa., tp. (Tushingham-with-Grindley), and vil., pa. of and 3 E. from Malpas (q.v.), S. Chesh.; ac. 4,227. St. Chad's Chapel (built 1691) is now disused, and the modern church of the same dedication was erected 1863 in Gothic style. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Tushingham-with-Grindley. [TUSHINGHAM.]

Tuskar Rock (1), reef, S. Glamorgs., off the Ogmore river. It has a beacon.

Tuskar Rock (2), islet off the south-east coast of co. Wex., Ir., about 7 N.E. of Carnsore Point. It has a lighthouse with light visible 19 miles.

Tusmore, pa., Mid Oxon., 5¾ N. of Bicester; ac. 990; soil stonebrash, overlying stone. The church has long been destroyed. T. House, erected in 1770, is a seat.

Tutbury, pa. and small to., N. Staffs., 4½ N.W. of Burton-on-Trent, in a picturesque situation, near the south bank of the Dove, which separates it from Derbyshire, and is here crossed by a bridge of five arches, formerly having a chapel at one end; ac. 4,145; soil clay, loam, marl, and gravelly, subsoil various. The church of the Virgin Mary (restored) is situated on a declivity near the castle ruins; it formed part of the Cluniac priory of St. Mary, founded in 1081 by Henry de Ferrers, and is a Late Norm. building with E. Eng. apsidal chancel; the great west doorway, a very fine example of Norm. work, is recessed in seven orders, one being of alabaster, and all richly carved with characteristic ornament; the window above is similarly treated, and has an interlaced arcading on either side; the massive piers of the arcades are about 6 ft. in thickness, some being clustered; the tower has a western doorway and other portions of Norm. date, and there is a south doorway of this period. There are Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Here are extensive glass works which afford employment to a great portion of the inhabitants. The market has been obsolete for many years. The charities have a yearly value of about £825, of which £60 is granted yearly to the girls' school, the rest being applied to boys' education, clothes, bread and other gifts. T. is celebrated for the ruins of its castle, said to have been first the seat of the Mercian kings. In 1569 Mary Queen of Scots was removed to this fortress from Bolton Castle in Yorkshire, and remained here about a year and a half. King James I., in one of his tours through England, visited the castle, and in the Civil War it was occupied by Charles I., who spent a fortnight here in 1634 and again in 1636. During the Civil War it was held for the King, but after a long siege it was surrendered to the Parliamentary army in 1646, and soon after dismantled:

JOHN OF GAUNT'S GATEWAY, TUTBURY CASTLE. (Photo. Poulton and Son, London.)

the ruins, seated upon a lofty mount overlooking the valley of the Dove, have a picturesque appearance; the walls enclose an area of about three acres, called the "Tilt Yard," with a strong embattled wall and deep moat; the ancient gateway, built by John of Gaunt, and strengthened by Charles I., is tolerably perfect; on the opposite side are portions of two halls with vaulted rooms below, and there can be no doubt, from the ruins that remain, that this castle was at one period a very magnificent building. In 1831 there was recovered from the bed of the river Dove a large number of silver coins, supposed to have formed a portion of the treasure of Thomas, second Earl of Lancaster, lost with his army chest when he was driven out of T. Castle in 1322 by the forces of Edward II. The part claimed by William IV. as belonging to the Crown is now preserved in the British Museum. Byrkley Lodge, Castle Hill, and The Elms are seats.

Tutman's Hole, large cavern, pa. of Alston (q.v.), E. Cumb. It is of unknown length, but is said to have been explored for more than a mile from its mouth.

Tutnall and Cobley, tp., pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Tardebigge (q.v.), E. Worcs.; ac. 3,511.

Tuttington, pa. and vil. on the Ant., N. Norf., 12 N. of Norwich; ac. 840; soil generally rich and fertile, overlying good brick earth. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1884) is Perp. The

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Turweston	Brackley (1¼)	68	269
Tushingham, ec. pa.	Malpas (3)	177	729
Tushingham, tp.	Malpas (3)	177	256
Tusmore	Brackley (4)	68	16

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tutbury	Tutbury	133	[illegible]
Tutnall and C.	Bromsgrove (2)	145	[illegible]
Tuttington	Aylsham (2)	132	174

foundations of a chapel, supposed to have been erected about A.D. 1200, have been discovered in a field north of the church. Here is a Reformed Wesleyan chapel with an endowment.

Tuxford, pa. and mkt. to. (M.) on the Great North road, N. Notts., about 12 N.W. of Newark; ac. 2,893; soil clay, overlying gypsum. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1874–90) is of various periods; attached to the north side of the chancel, which retains its piscina, is the mortuary of the family of White, of Wallingwells. In the north porch is the sculptured kneeling figure of a saint, with sacramental emblems, and at the east end of the south aisle is a singular representation of the martyrdom of St. Lawrence. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are malthouses and corn mills. A yearly fair is held on May 12 for cattle, sheep, and drapery. A meeting for sports and horse racing is held yearly in June. The Holy Well is a spring of cold water said to be efficacious in curing rheumatism and scurvy. There are some small charities and an endowed school. T. Hall, rebuilt near the site of the old hall, about 1785, is a mansion of brick, not far from the market-place, and is surrounded by small pleasure grounds. It is celebrated for its splendid specimens of E. Eng. oak carving, collected from the immediate vils., as well as for a fine collection of Chelsea china, oil-paintings by Teniers, Wright and other artists; here also are preserved several fine ancient brasses; and there is some very curious old wrought-iron work and many other objects of antiquity; in the grounds is a stone cross, which formerly stood on the highest hill on the Thoresby estate, and was erected Aug. 1, 1798, by Charles Earl Manvers, to commemorate the victory of the Nile; the cross has been placed on a new base to commemorate the jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1887. There is also an ancient stone figure of a mitred abbot, supposed to be that of Simon de Baltinglade; a small stone coffin, supposed to have contained part of the remains of this abbot, and a life-size stone figure of a Benedictine monk; these two figures and the small coffin were found about sixty years ago during excavations in the remains of the Abbey of St. Mary, York. About three-quarters of a mile from T. on the Great North road is a stone with the inscription, "Here lieth the body of a Rebel, 1746."

Twambrooks. [WITTON-CUM-TWAMBROOKS.]

Twechar, vil. on the Forth and Clyde Canal, pa. of Kirkintilloch (q.v.), S.E. Dumbarts., Sc., 2 S.W. of Kilsyth.

Tweed, river of Peebs., Selks., Roxbs. and Berws., Sc., and of Northumb.; rises in a spring called Tweed's Well, S.W. Peebs., 1,500 ft. above the sea, and runs N., N.E., and again N. through the pas. of Tweedsmuir and Drumelzier, and then N. by E. between that of Drumelzier and that of Broughton, Glenholm, and Kilbucho. In its easterly course from the vil. of Drumelzier to that of Innerleithen the river makes a considerable curve towards the N., having on its left side the pas. of Stobo, Peebles, and Innerleithen, and on the right those of Drumelzier Manor, Peebles, and Traquair. Flowing E.S.E. through N.E. Selks., it divides the pas. of Innerleithen, Stow, and Galashiels on the N. from those of Yarrow and Selkirk on the S., and then turning N.E. forms for some 2½ miles the boundary between Selks. and Roxbs. The river now flows in an easterly direction through N. Roxbs., making a wide bend towards the S., between Melrose and Kelso, and skirting the pas. of St. Boswell, Maxton, Makerston, and Roxburgh. After running about 4½ miles N.E. between the pas. of Ednam and Sprouston, the T. leaves Roxbs., and from this point to its mouth forms the boundary between Berws. and Northumb. Its course is E. by the pas. of Eccles and Coldstream to the to. of Coldstream, N.N.E. by Coldstream, Ladykirk, and Hutton, and finally almost due E. by the pa. of Berwick-upon-Tweed. Of the 97 miles along which the river flows, only the last 19 are situated on the English border. It is tidal for 10 miles from its mouth, but the gravel-beds occasioned by the rapids render navigation almost impossible. At its mouth, on the N. bank, is the to. of Berwick-upon-Tweed (q.v.). The salmon fisheries are very important, and the river also abounds in grilse and sea-trout. In the different parts of its course the T. flows through much varied and picturesque scenery, but the interest attaching to the river is due rather to the romantic associations which have gathered round so many places on its banks. Many of these have been preserved for all time in the finest of the Border ballads, and in the poems and novels of Sir Walter Scott.

Tweeddale, an old name for Peebles-shire (q.v.). It gives the title of Marquess to the Hays.

Tweedmouth, pa. and seaport to., N. Northumb., bounded by the Tweed on the N. and the German Ocean on the E., 1 S. of Berwick-upon-Tweed; ac. 4,944, and 220 foreshore; soil principally rich loam. T. forms part of the bor. of Berwick and is a suburb to that to., with which it is connected by an ancient and substantial stone bridge of 15 arches, built by James I. The main line of the North-Eastern Railway passes through here and is carried over the Tweed and its valley by the Royal Border Bridge, a magnificent viaduct, 2,152 ft. long, of 28 arches, each of 61 ft. 6 in. span, and at a height from the bed of the river of 138 ft. 6 in. The docks were completed in 1877, and afford accommodation for 16 large vessels. A line of rail has been laid down to the docks, which adds considerably to the importance of the port. This place gives the title of baron to the Majoribanks family. The church of St. Bartholomew (rebuilt 1783, and supposed to be the third church on the present site) is in Gothic

THE ROYAL BORDER BRIDGE.
(Photo. Poulton and Son.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tuxford	Tuxford	132	938
Twechar	Gavell (1)	405	789

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tweedmouth, pa.	Tweedmouth	337	4845 style. The churchyard contains a tombstone to Thomas Bell, of Spittal, who died Nov. 26, 1791, aged 105. In the adjoining grave are the remains of James Stuart, a well-known Border character, who claimed descent from the family of King Charles II., on which account he at one time was relieved by a sum of money from Queen Victoria; he was born Christmas Day, 1728, and buried April 14, 1844, aged 115. There are also English and Scotch Presbyterian churches. The to. presents an air of activity, there being iron foundries, steam saw mills, boiler and engineering works, boat-building yards and fish-curing houses. There is also a large brewery. The salmon fishery gives employment to many hands during the season. A feast is held on the third Sunday in July.

Tweedsmuir, pa., S.W. Peebs., Sc.; ac. 23,469; soil in some parts strong loam, in others light loam, sometimes mixed with gravel. The water scheme (1895) of the Edinburgh and District Water Trust comprises the formation of a reservoir in the valley of the Talla, with pipes to convey 24,000,000 gallons daily, a bridge of granite and steel in place of the old narrow bridge at T., and a road to the reservoir. The church is 7 s. from Broughton station. There are several ancient and rude strongholds in the pa., some of them dignified by the name of "Castles," but having few features of the fortress character.

Twelve Pins. [BENNEBEOLA.]

Twemlow, tp., bounded on the s. by the Dane, pa. of Sandbach (q.v.), S.E. Chesh., 1 s. of Goostrey; ac. 928. Jodrell Hall and T. Hall are seats.

Twerton, pa. and vil. on the Avon, N.E. Somerset, 1½ w. of Bath; ac. 971; soil clay, overlying freestone and lias. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 1885) is Perp., and contains some fine oak carving and a Norm. N. door. St. Peter's church was built in 1880. Here are Wesleyan, Baptist, Congregational, and Free Methodist chapels, and a Club and Institute. T. contains lias quarries, brick works, and woollen cloth and clothing factories. Here is a house once occupied by Henry Fielding.

Twickenham, pa. and to. on the Thames, S.W. Middx., 1 w. of Richmond; ac. 2,383 and 94 water; soil principally rich alluvium, laid out in market gardens and fertile meadows. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt in 1713, with the exception of the 14th-cent. tower; it contains monuments to Pope (d. 1744), his parents, and his nurse; Sir John Berkeley, first Baron Berkeley (d. 1678), Admiral Ogle (d. 1750), and others. Many eminent persons are interred in the churchyard. There are eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The town hall (1876) contains an assembly-room, used for meetings and concerts, and the free library. The Economic Museum was founded to impart in a scientific and practical manner a knowledge of common things for health and comfort. Just beyond T. Green are almshouses belonging to the Worshipful Company of Carpenters. St. John's Hospital provides efficient medical advice and medicine for the working classes of T. and neighbourhood. At Fortescue House, an old mansion near the station, is a branch of the National Refuge for Homeless and Destitute Boys. The Police Orphanage at Wellesley House was founded in 1870, but has since been enlarged. Arragon Tower, in Church Street, is a portion of the ancient manor-house said to have been inhabited by Queen Katherine of Arragon, and formerly the residence of Sir John Walter, Knight, Chief Baron of the Exchequer (1625–30). Strawberry Hill, the celebrated villa residence of Horace Walpole, is situated at the corner of the upper road leading to Teddington, and was originally a cottage belonging to Mr. Chenevix, a toy dealer of Regent Street, whose lease Walpole took over in May, 1747, the property consisting only of the house and 5 ac. of land. A plan for the erection of the new villa, in which Walpole was assisted by Richard Bentley, son of the distinguished master of Trinity College, Cambridge, was made in 1750, but the structure was not completed till 1776. The mansion is built in the form of the letter L, the older portions being towards the east and nearest the Thames. The site of "Pope's Villa," where he came to live in 1717, and where he died in 1744, is now occupied by a singular timber structure, which still bears the same name. Lebanon House, Orleans House (a Queen Anne structure), and York House (said to have been a residence of James II.) have been occupied by members of the royal family of France.

TWICKENHAM FERRY.

Twigmoor, tp., pa. of and 2 N. from Manton (q.v.), N. Lincs.; ac. 1,244.

Twigworth, eccl. pa. and tp., pas. of Gloucester St. Mary de Lode and Gloucester St. Catherine, N. Glouc., 2 N. of Gloucester, on the road to Tewkesbury; ac. 477. The church of St. Matthew is in Norm. style.

Twineham, pa., N. Sussex, 5½ S.W. of Cuckfield, ac. 1,891; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1894) is a brick structure of the 16th cent.

Twinstead, or Twinshead, pa. and vil., N. Essex, 4½ S. of Sudbury; ac. 1,109; soil loam and

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tweedsmuir	Broughton (7)	374	207
Twemlow	Holmes Chapel (3)	166	139
Twerton	Twerton	108	7685
Twickenham	Twickenham	11	16027
Twigmoor	Scawby (3½)	161	60
Twigworth, ec. pa.	Gloucester (2)	114
Twigworth, tp.	Gloucester (2)	114
Twineham	Burgess Hill (4)	41
Twinstead	Bures (4)	54

The church of St. John the Evangelist is E. Eng., and the entrance from the nave into the chancel is through a stone screen of three equal arches, a feature believed to be confined to four churches in England; the stone font is surmounted by a canopy. There are brasses of the 17th cent.

Twisleton, vil., pa. of Bentham (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1½ N. of Ingleton.

Twiston, tp., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 5 E.N.E. of Clitheroe; ac. 830.

Twitchen, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 6½ N.E. of South Molton; ac. 2,916; soil clayey, overlying clay slate. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1844) is Perp. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Twizell (1), tp. and vil., pa. of Norham (q.v.), N. Northumb., 10 S.W. of Berwick-on-Tweed; ac. 2,085 and 59 water. The vil. is situated on the Till, here crossed by a stone bridge of one arch (referred to in "Marmion"). T. Castle, commenced about 1790, but never finished, was pulled down about 1884, and the materials were used in the construction of a branch railway.

Twizell (2), tp. on the Blyth, pa. of and 6 S.W. from Morpeth (q.v.), S.E. Northumb.

Twll-Ddu, or The Devil's Kitchen, remarkable cavity on the west side of Llyn Idwal, N.E. Carnarvs., 2¼ E. by N. of Llanberis. It is situated a considerable distance above the surface of the lake, forming a narrow ravine some 300 ft. in depth, lined by dark precipitous walls of rock, and holding at its bottom a stream which runs from the mountains to the lake.

Two Barrows. [TOBER (1).]

Two Gates, entrance (now only a single gate) to Exmoor Forest, N. Dev., 4½ S.E. of Lynmouth, on the borders of Somersets.

Two-Mile Borris, pa. and vil., Eliogarty bar., Mid co. Tip., Ir., 3 E. of Thurles; ac. 11,93-. There are the ruins of an old castle in the vil.

Two Mile Bridge, ha., pa. of Kilgrant (q.v.), S.E. co. Tip., Ir., about 2½ E.N.E. of Clonmel.

Two-Mile Hill, eccl. pa., pa. of St. George (q.v.), S.W. Gloucs., within the parl. bor. of Bristol, from which it is about 2½ E. The church of St. Michael is modern, and there is a mission church. There are Baptist, Free Methodist, Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels.

Two Pots, pl. (734 ft.), N. Dev., 2¼ S. of Ilfracombe. It commands a fine view.

Two Waters, vil., pa. of and 2 S. from Hemel Hempstead (q.v.), S.W. Herts.

Twrch, stream, S.W. Brecons., rises on Talsarn, and flows for about 9 miles in a S. direction along the Carmarths. border to the Tawe, which it joins below Ystradgunlais.

Twycross, pa. and vil., W. Leics., 5 W. of Market Bosworth; ac. 1,350; soil mixed, overlying marl and clay. The church of St. James is a 14th-cent. building. The school has an endowment. Cliffe House is a seat.

Twyford (1), pa. and large pleasant vil. on the Itchen, W. Hants, 3 S. of Winchester; ac. 4,217; soil chalk in the northern half of the pa. and loam and clay in the southern part, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1878) is in the Trans. style; from the remains of buildings which were discovered when the old church was pulled down, it is probable that there was a church on the same spot before the Conquest; in the churchyard is a venerable yew tree. The Free Methodists have a chapel here. The Institute and reading-room was built 1892. In a house known as Seager's buildings, Pope was educated for a time. The principal seats are T. House, a fine brick mansion in the Elizabethan style—in this house it is said that Dr. Franklin wrote his well-known Life while on a visit to Dr. Shipley, then Bishop of St. Asaph; Littlebourne, Shawford House, T. Lodge, and T. Moors.

Twyford (2), pa., tp. and vil. on the Ouse, N.W. Bucks., 6 S.W. of Buckingham; ac. of pa. 4,458, of tp. 1,567; soil principally clay. The church of St. Mary (restored and partly rebuilt 1887) has a Norm. doorway and font, and retains sedilia, a piscina, and an aumbry in the chancel; there are monuments to Thomas Gifford (1550), John Everdon (1413), and to the Wenman family.

Twyford (3), pa., N. Norf., 9 N.E. of East Dereham; ac. 529; soil light mixed, some portions heavy, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Nicholas is a small E. Eng. building. The fuel allotment of 10 ac. produces £11. T. Hall, pleasantly situated in an extensive and well-timbered lawn, is a seat.

Twyford (4), pa., tp., and vil., E. Leics., 12 N.E. of Leicester; ac. 2,535; soil clay and sand, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1888) is E. Eng. There are several charities.

Twyford (5), eccl. pa. and vil. on the Loddon. pa. of Hurst (q.v.), E. Berks., 5 E. of Reading. The church of St. Mary (1846) is in E. Eng. style. There is a Reformed Wesleyan chapel and a Congregational chapel. Here are almshouses (endowed 1707) for six poor persons.

Twyford (6), pl., pa. of West Felton (q.v.), N.W. Salop, adjoining the vil. of West Felton on the north. The Nursery is a seat.

Twyford (7), ha., pa. of and 1½ W. from Compton Abbas (q.v.), N. Dors.

Twyford (8), ha., pa. of and adjoining Colsterworth (q.v.), N. Lincs.

Twyford Abbey, pa. (formerly extra-parochial), N.W. Middx., about 9 W. of St. Paul's; ac. 200. The pa. is intersected by the Paddington Canal and contains very few inhabited houses, the chief of which is T. Abbey, a mansion of brick faced with stucco, in Gothic style, erected about 1806; it is surrounded by grounds through which the river Brent flows. In the grounds is a small brick chapel with porch, containing several monuments of interest, including one with bust to Robert

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Twiston	Clitheroe (5)	221	71
Twitchen	Molland (2¼)	188	204
Twizell (1)	Twizell	346	215
Twizell (2)	Morpeth (6)	288	30
Two-Mile Borris	Thurles (3)	87	1336
Two-Mile Hill	Bristol (2)	118	7175
Twycross	Atherstone (6)	102	350
Twyford (1)	Shawford & T. (1)	68	1452
Twyford (2), pa.	Claydon (3)	58	554
Twyford (2), tp.	Claydon (3)	58	349
Twyford (3)	North Elmham (4)	126	92
Twyford (4), pa.	John o' Gaunt	135	506
Twyford (4), tp.	John o' Gaunt	135	330
Twyford (5)	Twyford	31	1262
Twyford Abbey	Hendon (1)	7	60

Moyle, Esq., Prothonotary of the Common Pleas (d. 1638).

Twyford and Stenson, tp., pa. of Barrow-upon-Trent (q.v.), S. Derbys., 5½ S.S.W. of Derby; ac. 1,770.

Twyn Barlwm. [MYNYDD MAEN.]

Twynholm, pa. and small vil., S. Kirkcuds., Sc., 3 N. of Kirkcudbright, on the main road from Gatehouse to Castle Douglas; ac. 10,484; soil fertile, and partly arable; the surface of the district rises into many small hills. The pa. is bounded on the east by the river Tarff, on the west by Borgue pa., and extends on the south to Kirkcudbright Bay. There is a small woollen mill here. The old castle of Compstone is pleasantly situated on an eminence near the junction of the Dee and Tarff. Barwhinnock is a seat.

Twyning, pa. and vil. on the Severn and Avon, N. Gloucs., 2 N. of Tewkesbury; ac. 3,159; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (restored 1868) is of Norm. and later periods; there is a fine tomb to Sybill Clare (d. 1576); the font is Norm., and in the churchyard are the remains of a cross. The charities amount to £42 yearly. Here is an ancient camp. Puckrup Hall and T. Park are seats.

Twywell, pa. and vil., N. Northants, 2½ W. of Thrapston; ac. 917; soil clay, overlying clay and ironstone; the extensive quarries of the latter give employment to a number of the inhabitants. The church of St. Nicholas is a small building of stone with some reputed Saxon and Norm. remains; in the chancel is an Easter sepulchre; there is a Norm. font with an octagonal basin on a circular base. The charities amount to £4 16s. yearly, and are distributed in bread and coal. Various Roman relics have been found in this pa., and a fine Roman vase which was found here during the progress of the ironstone works has been presented to the British Museum.

Tybroughton, tp., pa. of Hanmer (q.v.), S. Flints., about 5 N.W. of Whitchurch; ac. 1,187.

Tyddgote (or Gowt), ha., pa. of Tydd St. Mary (q.v.), S. Lincs., extending into Tydd St. Giles, N. Cambs.

Tydd St. Giles, pa. in the Isle of Ely, N. Cambs., 6 N.W. of Wisbech; ac. 4,991; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Giles (restored 1869) is Norm. and E. Eng., with a detached embattled tower; there is a fine Dec. window, with buttresses and crocketed canopies, supposed to be the work of Alan de Walsingham, the architect of the lantern of Ely Cathedral. Charities producing £100 yearly are distributed among the poor.

Tydd St. Mary, pa. and vil., S. Lincs., on the borders of Norf. and Cambs., 6 N. of Wisbech; ac. 4,770; soil light loam, overlying silt. The great South Holland drain, which bounds the pa. on the north, empties itself into the Nen. The church of St. Mary (restored 1869) is Dec. and Perp., with some remains of Trans. date; the earliest portion of the church is comprised in the aisle arcades of Late Trans. work, but the fabric was almost wholly rebuilt in the Dec. period; at the east end of the north aisle is an alabaster slab bearing the now upright effigy of a knight of the time of Richard II. (1377–99). Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to about £160 a year.

Tydweiliog, pa. and vil., S.W. Carnarvs., about 8 W. of Pwllheli; ac. 2,241; soil in general fertile. The church is dedicated to St. Cwyvan.

Tyers Hill, ha., pa. of Darfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 E. of Barnsley.

Tyfarnham, pa., Corkaree bar., Mid co. Wstm., Ir., 5¼ N. of Mullingar; ac. 1,818. Knockdrin Castle is a seat.

Tyldesley, eccl. pa., tp. (Tyldesley-with-Shakerley), and to., pa. of Leigh (q.v.), S. W. Lancs., 5 S.W. of Bolton; ac. 2,490. The church of St. George is in E. Eng. style. Besides a chapel-of-ease there are places of worship for the Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion, Congregationalists, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists and Calvinists. A cemetery with three mortuary chapels was formed in 1878. The Public Baths, Union Street, were opened in July, 1876. The charities amount to £20 yearly. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in cotton mills and collieries.

Tyldesley-with-Shakerley. [TYLDESLEY.]

Tyler Hill, ha., pa. of Blean (q.v.), E. Kent, 3 S. of Canterbury.

Tyler's Green, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Chipping Wycombe and Penn (q.v.), S.E. Bucks., 4 N.W. of High Wycombe. The church of St. Margaret was built 1854 in Gothic style. There is a workingmen's club. Rayners, a seat, built 1847 in Tudor style, was frequently visited by Lord Beaconsfield.

Tyln, ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Hayton (q.v.), N. Notts.

Tylon, vil., pa. of Llandwrog (q.v.), W. Carnarvs., 4 S.W. of Bangor.

Tylor's Town, ha., pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., 7 N.W. of Pontypridd. Holy Trinity (1881) is a chapel-of-ease. There are Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist and Congregational chapels.

Tynagh, pa. and vil., Leitrim and Longford bars., S. co. Galway, Ir., 7 N.W. of Portumna, on the road to Loughrea; ac. 12,454. Lead ore is found here in abundance. There are Protestant and Catholic churches. The principal seats are Flowerhill and Lisduff.

Tynan, pa. and vil., Armagh and Tiranny bars., W. co. Armagh, Ir., 7 S.W. of Armagh; ac. 17,043. The pa. contains the vil. of Middletown (q.v.). The Protestant church (enlarged 1822) is Gothic. A Catholic church and one for Presbyterians are other places of worship. About a mile to the west is T. Abbey, a seat. A steam tramway runs from the

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Twyford & Stenson	Repton (2)	132	178
Twynholm	Tarff (2)	359	694
Twyning	Tewkesbury (3)	126	889
Twywell	Twywell	76	472
Tybroughton	Whitchurch (4½)	171	176
Tydd St. Giles	Tydd St. Mary (1)	101	835
Tydd St. Mary	Tydd St. Mary	101	837
Tydweiliog	Pwllheli (8)	270	361

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tyfarnham	Mullingar (5¼)	52	168
Tyldesley	Tyldesley	194	12282
Tyler's Green	High Wycombe (4)	34	854
Tynagh, pa.	Loughrea (5)	116	1853
Tynagh, vil.	Loughrea (5)	116	103
Tynan, pa.	Tynan & Caledon (1)	106	3965
Tynan, vil.	Tynan & Caledon (1)	106	119

T. railway station up the Clogher Valley, viâ Caledon. Within the limits of the pa. are quarries of limestone, and flax of an excellent quality is grown in large quantities.

Tyncelin, ha., pa. of Bodfary (q.v.), N. Denbighs., 4 N.E. of Denbigh.

Tyndall's Park, eccl. pa., pas. of Bristol St. Michael and Westbury-upon-Trim (q.v.), S.W. Glouc. The church of St. Mary was built 1874 in Dec. style.

Tyndrum, vil. with railway station, pa. of Killin (q.v.), at the head of the valley of the Fillan, W. Perths., Sc., about 36 E. of Oban.

Tyne (1), river, S.E. Northumb. and N.W. Dur.; is formed by the confluence of the North Tyne and the South Tyne, 1 W.N.W. of Hexham. Its course from Hexham to the sea—about 30 miles in length—is on the whole almost due E., with numerous curves to the N. and S. Immediately below Hexham it traverses the beautiful vale which takes its name from the to., and passes the to. of Corbridge and the vils. of Bywell and Ovingham on its way to Wylam, where it becomes the boundary between Northumb. and Dur. Ovingham is associated with Thomas Bewick, who took many of the scenes in his wood-plates from places on or close to the river. Below Wylam the T. passes the vils. of Ryton, Newburn, Blaydon, and Scotswood before reaching Newcastle-on-Tyne. Throughout the remainder of its course—a distance of some 10 miles—the T. forms an important commercial highway, having on its N. side the tos. of Wallsend and North Shields, and on the S. those of Jarrow and South Shields. The multitude of coal-vessels continually passing up and down, the long range of docks, and the numerous iron-works and other factories which line its banks, combine to furnish a remarkable scene of industrial activity. The breadth of the river below Walker is in most places nearly a mile.

Tyne (2), river, E. Edins. and N.W. Haddings., Sc.; is formed by the union of several head-streams at a point 5 W. of Gifford and 7½ E. of Dalkeith. It then runs 16 N.E. by E., entering the North Sea 3½ W. of Dunbar. The distance from its remotest source to the sea is 28 miles. The T. waters a fertile agricultural tract, and furnishes the water-power which turns several corn mills. The to. of Haddington is on its N. bank near the middle of its course, and it also passes the vils. of Samuelston, East Linton, and Tyningham. Its banks are rendered picturesque by the many seats and handsome mansions in their vicinity. The tide is perceptible to a distance of 2 miles from the sea. The trout caught in the river are of good quality.

Tyne Dock, a sub. of South Shields (q.v.), N.E. Dur., within the limits of the bor.

Tyneham, pa., Isle of Purbeck, S.E. Dors., 5 W. by S. of Corfe Castle; ac. 2,840, and 75 water; soil chiefly clay, subsoil principally chalk. The church of St. Mary is a small cruciform edifice of stone, a great portion being modern, and the main ancient portion has little of architectural character; the chancel is E. Eng. and the south wall Dec.; there are some good modern monuments to the Bonds. Some interesting antiquities have been found in this pa.; several of the barrows, which are very numerous in this neighbourhood, have been opened, and human remains, pottery, and coal money found in them. T. House, a handsome 16th-cent. structure, is a seat.

Tynemouth, parl. and mun. bor. (comprising North Shields, Chirton, Cullercoats, and Preston), pa., tp., watering-place and U. to., S. Northumb., at the mouth of the Tyne, opposite South Shields; ac. of pa. 6,830, of tp. 1,189. The to., pleasantly situated on a promontory, consists of numerous streets, chiefly running from east to west, and has been considerably extended northwards; the whole coast hereabouts is beset with rocks, one group of which, "the Black Middens," immediately below the to., is particularly dangerous. The Prior's Haven, an inlet south-east of the to., being sheltered by an amphitheatre of rocks, forms a good bathing place, to which many people resort during the season. The Aquarium and Winter Garden is situated on the sea banks, between T. and Cullercoats. On the promontory at the mouth of the Tyne is the "Spanish Battery," and near is a statue of Admiral Lord Collingwood (born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sept. 26, 1748). There are two piers, of which one is a favourite promenade for inhabitants and visitors. Christ Church, the pa. church, in North Shields (q.v.), is a plain building; there are eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic chapel, and places of worship for some Nonconformist bodies. At the extreme end of the rocky promontory stand the remains of the ancient Priory, now surrounded by the buildings and fortifications of the Castle; this fortress, captured in 1644 by the Scots and partially dismantled, was repaired and strengthened by the Parliament on the breaking out of the Civil War, Sir R. Hazelrigge being appointed governor; in 1782 it underwent extensive repairs and alterations, in the course of which various Roman remains were disinterred. The place is now only a barrack, the ancient Priory grounds forming a barrack-yard; on the north side of this space stands a lighthouse 128 ft. above sea level, its light being visible for 20 miles. The Benedictine Priory of SS. Mary and Oswin was founded in the time of William I. by Waltheof, Earl of Northumberland. The body of St. Oswin

TYNEMOUTH FROM THE SEA.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tyndall's Park	Bristol	118	3516
Tyneham	Wareham (6)	120	260
Tynemouth, bor.	Tynemouth	280	46588
Tynemouth, pa	Tynemouth	280	50226
Tynemouth, tp.	Tynemouth	280	23678

the martyr King of Deira (651), was in 1110 translated to T., and the adjacent country for a space of one mile around his shrine received the privileges of sanctuary. One of the most distinguished of the priors was Thomas de la Mare, who succeeded to that office about 1341, and who, during his priorate, expended the sum of £864 on the monastic buildings; in 1349 he became Abbot of St. Albans, and died in 1396; he was buried in the abbey church, where there is a magnificent Flemish brass to his memory, now deposited in the chantry of Abbot Wheathampstead, who was also prior of T. (1400–20). The monastery was surrendered to the Crown in 1539, the value of its property being estimated at £537, and its revenues at £706 yearly. Of the conventual library, one volume, a Latin psalter, is now in the Cotton MSS. at the British Museum. The buildings originally comprised the Priory church, which consisted of a nave of nine bays, with aisles and western towers, transepts, choir of six bays with aisles and presbytery, central tower, and a small eastern Lady chapel; on the south side, in a line with the transept, were the chapter-house and the dormitory, forming the eastern enclosure of the cloister garth, the west side being shut in by the refectory, and the south by the guest hall and various offices. A great part of the structure was pulled down in 1665. The Lady chapel was restored for the use of the pa. by the Duke of Northumberland about 1850.

Tyne, North, river, S.W. Northumb., rises amidst the elevated moorlands on the Scotch border, and runs E.S.E. past Kielder Castle, Plashetts, Falstone, and Graystead to Bellingham, and thence, by a very winding course, S. by E., passing Wark, Birtley, Chipchase Castle, Chollerton, Haughton Castle, Humshaugh, Chollerford, and Wall, and uniting with the South Tyne at Warden, a little above Hexham. On the banks of the river above Bellingham are the remains of several primitive fortresses, said to be of British origin, and near Chollerford, in the grounds of The Chesters, Walwick (q.v.), there are considerable traces of the Roman station of Cilurnum. The North T. abounds in excellent trout, and the scenery on its banks is very picturesque. Its length is about 32 miles.

Tyne Ports, a collective name for the ports of Newcastle, North Shields and South Shields (q.v.). The port of South Shields formed a portion of the port of Newcastle-on-Tyne until April 6, 1848, but on that day both it and North Shields were constituted a distinct port by the name of the "Port of Shields." Subsequently a further separation was made, and South Shields has now for some years been an entirely distinct port, having its own Custom House, Mercantile Marine Office, and Local Marine Board.

Tyneside Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Northumb. It lies in the south-east of the co., and returns one member.

Tyne, South, river, S.W. Northumb., is formed by the union of two head-streams, 5½ N.N.W. of the summit of Cross Fell, within the co. of Cumb., but close to the Northumbrian border. For 19 miles it pursues a northerly course, traversing the wild rugged district in the vicinity of Alston, and entering Northumb. 2 N.N.W. of that to. Between Alston and Haltwhistle it passes Slaggyford, Knarsdale, Lambley, and Featherstone Castle. At Haltwhistle it turns E. and runs 14 miles in that direction, meeting the North T. 1 W.N.W. of Hexham. Below Haltwhistle are Bardon Mill and Haydon Bridge, after passing the latter the river makes a considerable curve towards the north; its total length is about 33 miles.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Tyneside Division	.....	 69331

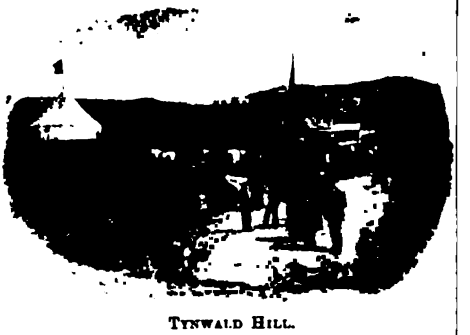
Tynewydd, ha. with railway station, pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., near Treherbert.

Tynninghame, vil. on the Tyne, pa. of Whitekirk and Tynninghame (q.v.), N. Haddings., Sc., 2 S.E. of Prestonkirk. T. House is a seat.

Tynrefal, vil., pa. of Aberdaron (q.v.), S.W. Carnarvs., 13 S.W. of Pwllheli.

Tynron, pa. and ha., W. Dumfs., Sc., 6 S.W. of Thornhill railway station; ac. 15,683; soil generally light and sandy, overlying Silurian. The pa. is partially watered by the Shinnel Water, along the banks of which is some pleasing scenery. Near the eastern extremity of the pa. rises the Doon of T., a conspicuous pyramidal hill, near the summit of which is an ancient castle.

Tynwald Hill (= "Thing Plain Hill"), eminence, pa. of German (q.v.), W. I. of M., 2 S.E. of Peel. The hill is in the west vicinity of St. John's Church. it is said to be an artificial structure, erected by King Orry in the 10th cent. It derives its name from the Thing, the ancient Manx parliament and court of justice, which was removed from Raneurin Hill to this site in 1577. A public assembly is still held on the hill in the open air on July 5



TYNWALD HILL.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

(Tynwald Day). After divine service in St. John's Church a procession, headed by the Coroners, who are followed by the Lieutenant-Governor, the "Keys," the "Deemsters," and other dignitaries, marches to the hill, where the members of the Court take their seats, and business then proceeds in the presence of all the inhabitants who choose to attend. It consists chiefly in the appointment of new officials and the promulgation of the laws which have been passed during the preceding year. The Court returns to St. John's Church in the same order, and the ceremonial is followed by a fair.

Tynycoed, pl., pa. of Llanrwst (q.v.), W. Denbighs., 3 S.E. of Bettws-y-Coed. Here is a cromlech.

Tynyffordd, vil., pa. of Llanybythir (q.v.), W. Carmarths., 4 S.W. of Lampeter.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Tynron	Thornhill (6)	346

Tyree, island and pa., Inner Hebrides, Args., Sc., lying to the west of Mull, 3 s. of Coll, 30 s.w. of Tobermory; ac. 18,942; soil for the greater part light and sandy, in some places clay overlying whinstone, in others deep rich loam, alternating with peat and gravel. The island is about 14 miles in extent from north to south, and varies in breadth from 1 to 5 miles. There is a small harbour, available only for small craft, at Scarinish Bay, on the north-east, and another at Hynish in the south, and in this latter there is a quay. There are many small lochs in the island, but they contain only eels. T. abounds in marble, of which it is said the rocks on its shore are entirely composed; but from some unexplained cause the quarries cannot be worked. In a churchyard on the island is a beautiful monumental cross. Fairs are held in May, on the Wednesday before that at Mull, in August on the Monday, and in October on the Wednesday before those in Mull. On the dangerous rocks called Skerryvore, which lie about 16 s.w. of T., a lighthouse was built in 1844 of granite obtained from the quarries of Mull, and is considered one of the best and most durable specimens of this kind of architecture in Europe; the light is dioptric.

Tyrella, pa. on Dundrum Bay, Upper Secale bar., E. co. Down, Ir., 6 s.s.w. of Downpatrick; ac. 1,997; soil mostly fertile. The pa. contains Roman Catholic places of worship. T. House stands in pleasant grounds and commands fine views over Dundrum Bay, beyond which rise the summits of the Mourne Mountains: on the estate is a remarkable structure with rude stone walls covered with earth; it is about 130 ft. long and 2½ ft. wide, and is divided into three compartments.

Tyrescob, ha. on the Towy, pa. of and near Llandilofawr (q.v.), E. Carmarths.

Tyrie, pa., N.E. Abers., Sc., containing New Pitsligo (q.v.); ac. 11,182. The surface is agreeably diversified with hill and dale, heath, moss, meadow, corn land and grass parks. On the northern boundary of the pa., about 5 s.w. of Fraserburgh, is the church of T., an ancient structure supposed to have been originally erected about the year 1004, when the Thane of Buchan routed the Danish army upon the neighbouring eminences. The present church, built in 1800, is a small stone building.

Tyringham-with-Filgrave, pa. on the Ouse, N. Bucks., 12½ s.e. of Northampton; ac. 1,736; soil mixed, overlying oolite and clay. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1871) is Norm. and Perp., and contains portions of a brass (c. 1500), and others to Mary Catesby (1508) and to an unknown knight (c. 1490). At T. House, a seat, is preserved a letter of Charles I.

Tyrley, tp., pa. of Drayton-in-Hales (q.v.), W. Staffs., 7 N.W. of Eccleshall; ac. 6,589.

Tyrone, an extensive inland co. in the province of Ulster, Ir., bounded on the east by Lough Neagh and co. Armagh, on the west by cos. Fermanagh and Donegal, on the north by Londonderry, and on the south by cos. Monaghan, Armagh, and Fermanagh. It extends from north to south, at its widest part, about 45 miles, and from east to west about 60; the surface comprises 775,255 ac. of land and 31,403 water; it partakes of the mountainous nature of the adjoining co. of Londonderry, the ranges rising in this latter co. forming a continuation beginning with a low range north-west of Stewartstown and ending a little north of Dunnamanagh, the heights ranging from 800 to 1,850 ft. There is a small range known as Slievebeagh at the extreme south of the co. below Clogher, while the greater part of the south and south-east, especially where it borders Lough Neagh, is flat. T. has water communication by means of the River Foyle with Londonderry and Lough Foyle. In the lower districts the land is remarkably fertile, and watered by numerous branches of the Foyle and Blackwater. Besides the Blackwater and Foyle rivers, there are the Ballinderry, on the north-eastern boundary, and the Poe, the Mourne, the Owenkillow, and the Owenreagh, all rising in the mountainous central districts; there are likewise the Derg, which flows into the Mourne, and the Dennet, emptying itself into the Foyle. In Aghaloo pa. is a sulphurous water of considerable strength, and two miles from Aughnacloy, at Scarvey, is a valuable mineral spring. There are likewise chalybeate springs in Badony pa., and at the foot of Douglas mountain, besides several of less note issuing from the Munterlony hills. Tillage is carried on on the most approved methods in the practicable districts; and on the hilly and mountain-land the breeding of cattle is pursued with advantage. The vale of the Blackwater is exceedingly picturesque, and also of great fertility. Coal fit for domestic purposes is raised near Lough Neagh, in the neighbourhood of Dungannon, also at Coal Island, a thriving vil., and on the borders of Monaghan beautiful marble is quarried. In the Munterlony hills iron ore is abundant, and in the valleys west of these eminences potter's clay is obtained in plenty. The chief manufactures of the co. are linens and coarse woollens (including blankets), and brown earthenware; distilleries and breweries and meal and flour mills are likewise branches of industry carried on in the principal tos. The climate is very variable, and the prevalence of westerly winds occasions a constant humidity of atmosphere. The number of bars. comprised in the co. is eight. The assizes are held at Omagh, at which place are also held quarter sessions, and likewise at Clogher, Dungannon and Strabane. The co. is within the Belfast Military District, with barracks at Omagh. Prior to the Union, T. sent ten representatives to the Irish Parliament—two for the co. at large, and two each for the bors. of Dungannon, Augher, Clogher, and Strabane; since then it sent to the Imperial Parliament one for Dungannon and two for the co.; but since 1885 the co. returns four members (one for each of the divisions East, Mid, North and South T.), and Dungannon has been merged into the co. representation. T. confers the inferior titles of Earl and Viscount on the Marquess of Waterford. Ecclesiastically, the co. is in the Protestant and Catholic province of Armagh and dioceses of Armagh, Clogher and Derry. A branch line of the Great Northern Railway crosses the Blackwater on the south-eastern

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tyree	Oban (45)	504	2452
Tyrella	Downpatrick (6)	140	422
Tyrie	Fraserburgh (5)	575	2843

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tyringham-w-Filg.	Newport Pagnell(2¼)	56	155
Tyrley	Market Drayton (1)	162	721
Tyrone	.....	.....	171401

border, the Irish North-Western also traverses the co., and there are some light railways.

Tyrone, East. [TYRONE.]

Tyrone, Mid. [TYRONE.]

Tyrone, North. [TYRONE.]

Tyrone's Bed. [CASTLETON (3).]

Tyrone, South. [TYRONE.]

Tyrrell's Hall, ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Willingale Doe (q.v.), W. Essex.

Tyrrell's Pass, vil., pas. of Clonfad and Newtown (q.v.), S. co. Wstm., Ir., 7 S.E. of Castletown. The Protestant church of the pa. of Clonfad is a cut stone structure in the Eng. style, with a well-proportioned tower and spire; a Catholic church was erected here in 1860. T. takes its name from having been for many centuries the residence of the family of Tyrrell, whose castle is still standing at the southern extremity of the to.; in 1848 it was fitted as a temporary barrack for the military, who occupied it for two years. At the north-east side of the to. is the square, surrounded by noble lime trees, and at the back are some detached residences of the gentry. There are six houses, which form a crescent, for twelve widows, but now converted into an orphanage for twelve orphans and four nurses. In the environs are several seats. Fairs are held in May and Dec.

Tyrybrenin, ha., pa. of Llandilo Talybont (q.v.), N.W. Glamorgs., 4 N.E. of Loughor.

Tyrymynach, tp., pa. of Llanfihangel Genenr-Glynn (q.v.), N. Cardigs., 4 N.W. of Aberystwith; ac. 2,704.

Tysoe, in Domesday "Tiheshoche," pa. and vil., S. Warws., on the Oxon. border, about 9 N.W. of Banbury; ac. 4,710; soil rich. The church of St. Mary (restored) is an ancient stone building, the oldest part of which dates back before the Conquest. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are some small charities, and a feoffee estate comprising about 35 ac. of land with several cottages. Over 100 ac. of land are let out in allotments. Cut in the hillside opposite the church was formerly the rude figure of a horse believed to commemorate the gallantry of Richard Nevill, Earl of Warwick, at the battle of Towton Field (1461), but the figure no longer remains; an imitation of it exists near the house called Sunrising.

Tythacott, or Tythecot, ha., pa. of and 2 S. from Buckland Brewer (q.v.), N. Dev.

Tythby, pa., tp. and vil., 10 E.S.E. of Nottingham; ac. of pa. 3,610, of tp. 583; soil loamy clay, overlying clay. The church of the Holy Trinity is E. Eng.; there are mural monuments to E. F. Stanhope, LL.D., equerry to the Queen (1807), and to his wife, the Right Hon. Lady Catherine Stanhope (1810); also to Charles Stanhope (1759) and his wife, Cecilia Stanhope (1773); in the chancel is an ancient memorial with inscription to Thomas Chaworth, Esq., of Cropwell Botlers (d. 1435), and Ankaret, his wife.

Tythegston, pa. near the sea-coast, S. Glamorgs., 3 W. of Bridgend; ac. 2,952. T. derives its name from St. Tydwg, who was a disciple of Cenydd, and lived about 550. The church of St. Tydwg is an edifice of late Gothic date. There is also a modern church in Gothic style at Higher T., and Baptist, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. The pa. contains collieries, and brick, lime, and iron works. T. Court is a seat.

Tythegston, Higher, tp., pa. of Tythegston (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 4 W.N.W. of Bridgend; ac. 2,231.

Tythegston, Lower, tp., pa. of Tythegston (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 3 W. of Bridgend; ac. 721.

Tytherington (1), pa. and vil., S. Glouc., 12 N.N.E. of Bristol; ac. 2,223; soil loam, overlying limestone. The church of St. James (restored 1882) is E. Eng. and Perp. The Baptists have a chapel. There is a Roman encampment known as the "Castle," and stone quarries. The Grange is a seat.

Tytherington (2), tp., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., partly within the bor. of Macclesfield; ac. 938. T. House is a seat.

Tytherington (3), ha., pa. of and about 1 S. from Heytesbury (q.v.), S.W. Wilts. T. was formerly a prebend in the collegiate church of Heytesbury. The church of St. James (restored 1892) is E. Dec., and has a stone-covered roof.

Tytherley, East, pa. and vil., W. Hants, 7 S.W. of Romsey; ac. 2,556; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter (restored 1862) is E. Eng. The schools have an endowment. Lockerley Hall, a building in Elizabethan style, is a seat.

Tytherley, West, or Tuderley, pa. and vil., W. Hants, on the Wilts. border of the co., 7½ S.W. of Stockbridge; ac. 2,766; soil clay and chalk, subsoil chalk. The church (dedication unknown) was built in 1833; the chancel is in E. Eng. style. There are six gift-houses, each with a garden, where eighteen old people live rent free, and a small charity. The old Roman road from Winchester to Sarum runs through part of the pa. Norman Court is a large square mansion in a well-wooded park.

Tytherton, East, ti., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Bremhill (q.v.), N.W. Wilts.

Tytherton Kelways, pa. and vil. on the Avon, N.W. Wilts., 3 N.E. of Chippenham; ac. 161; soil clay and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Giles is modern.

Tytherton Lucas, or Tytherton, West, eccl. pa. and small vil., pa. of and 2 E.N.E. from Chippenham (q.v.), W. Wilts. The church of St. Nicholas is a plain stone building, and retains a curious and very fine Norm. font.

Tythrop, lib. pa. of Kingsey (q.v.), E. Oxon., about 2 N.E. of Thame. T. House, a handsome stone mansion in a wooded park of over 100 ac., is a seat; it contains some valuable paintings, and the

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tyrone, East	.....	.....	44760
Tyrone, Mid	.....	.....	43404
Tyrone, North	.....	.....	42403
Tyrone, South	.....	.....	40834
Tyrrell's Pass	Castletown (7)	60	351
ynach	Aberystwith (4)	243	290
	Kineton (4)	92	910
	Bingham (2)	119	574
	Bingham (2)	119	96

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Tythegston	Bridgend (3)	183	1[illegible]
Tythegston, Higher	Bridgend (3)	183	1[illegible]
Tythegston, Lower	Bridgend (3)	183	1[illegible]
Tytherington (1)	Thornbury (3)	136	[illegible]
Tytherington (2)	Macclesfield (1)	155	[illegible]
Tytherley, East	Dunbridge (2)	79	[illegible]
Tytherley, West	Dean (2)	83	[illegible]
Tytherton Kelways	Chippenham (3½)	94	[illegible]
Tytherton Lucas	Chippenham (2)	94	[illegible]

taircase is adorned with beautiful carvings by Grinling Gibbons.

Tywardreath, pa. and small to., S.E. Cornw., 4 s. of Lostwithiel; ac. 3,252; soil clay, overlying slate. The church of St. Andrew (largely rebuilt 1880) was formerly connected with the Benedictine priory; there are two piscinæ, and memorials to Thomas Collins (d. 1539), William Baker (1636), and to members of the Rashleigh family. There is a chapel-of-ease (built 1815), and Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. The town hall was erected in 1862, and there is a Working Men's Institute. It has almshouses for seven poor widows. Here are the remains of several ancient crosses. Mineral waters are manufactured and copper and tin worked. An annual regatta is held, a fair on June 10, and the pa. feast on St. Andrew's Day. Kilmarth, Tenabilly, and Trenython are seats.

Tywyn, ha., pa. of and 2 W. from Abergele (q.v.), N. Denbighs.

U.

Uamh Mhor, or Uam Var (= "Great Cave"), mountain (2,179 ft.) on border of pas. of Kilmadock, of Callander, and of Monzievaird and Strowan, N.W. Perths., Sc., 5 E.N.E. of Callander. The name of the mountain is familiar to readers of Scott's "Lady of the Lake." It commands an extensive and beautiful view, and forms a conspicuous feature in the landscape. The "Great Cave"—formerly a refuge of robbers—is situated on the south side of the mountain.

Ubbeston, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 6 S.W. of Halesworth; ac. 1,212; soil chiefly of a heavy description, with a subsoil of clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1865) is a Gothic flint building. There are charities of £6 yearly value.

Ubley, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 11 S. of Bristol; ac. 1,800; soil various, overlying limestone. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1875) is Dec. and Perp., and contains two piscinæ, and a chained copy of the "Paraphrase of Erasmus on the New Testament," dated 1522. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some charities. A fair is held on Sept. 4. Lead-ore is found, and there are some Roman remains. Hazel Manor is a seat.

Uchayndre, tp., pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), N. Cardigs., near Aberystwith; ac. 398.

Uchygarreg, tp., pa. of and about 3 N.E. from Machynlleth (q.v.), W. Montgoms.; ac. 10,583.

Uckerby, tp., pa. of Catterick (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., ½ E. of Richmond; ac. 756.

Uckfield, pa. and U. to. and head of petty sess. div., N. Sussex, 8 N.E. of Lewes; ac. 1,760; soil loamy in most parts, mixed with clay in other parts, having a substratum of sand, rock, and in some places white sand. A tributary of the Ouse flows through the pa. The church of the Holy Cross is a plain building, chiefly of Perp. date, but has been much modernised. The Catholic church of St. Philip is an iron building. There are also Baptist, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. The Grammar School, founded in 1690, was reorganised in 1876. Other public buildings are the Hall, in High Street, the Conservative Club, and the Institute. Here are the Agricultural School and Training Farm, and the Technical School for Women and Girls of the Sussex County Council. There is some trade in corn, brewing, and brick and tile making. Annual fairs are held on May 14 and August 29 for cattle. There are some small charities. The neighbourhood affords numerous picturesque and beautiful walks and drives. The Rocks and U. House are seats.

Uckington, tp. and vil., pa. of and 2¼ N.W. from Elmstone Hardwicke (q.v.), N. Gloucs.; ac. 884. Here was formerly a priory.

Uddingston, q.s. pa. and to., pa. of Bothwell (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., 4 N.W. of Hamilton. There are iron foundries and establishments for the manufacture of agricultural implements.

Uddington, vil., pa. of and 2¾ N.E. from Douglas (q.v.), S.W. Lanarks., Sc.

Udimore, pa., E. Sussex, 4 W. of Rye; ac. 2,221; soil loamy, overlying sand. The church of St. Mary is principally E. Eng. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Udny, pa., E. Abers., Sc.; ac. 11,548. The soil is for the most part fertile, and the land enclosed and well cultivated. It contains a pleasantly-situated vil. of the same name, with a railway station, 14 N. of Aberdeen. Horse and cattle fairs are held at U. station the last Thursday in every month. U. Castle, originally a baronial residence, has been much added to and modernised.

Udston, vil., pa. of and about 2 S.W. from Hamilton (q.v.), N.W. Sc. Here is a colliery.

Uffculme, pa. and mkt. to., pleasantly situated on the Culm, N. Dev., about 7 E. of Tiverton; ac. 6,223; soil chiefly clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is E. Eng. and Perp.; it retains a richly carved rood-screen, and has several mural monuments to the Walrond, Windsor and Marker families; in the north aisle or Walrond chapel are two ancient monuments, on one of which, a high tomb, are three demi-effigies, richly coloured, of a man and his wife, and, between these, a youth, the two former holding books and the latter a scroll; the side of the tomb is panelled, and exhibits two similar busts of males; on the margin are some Latin sentences, and on the upper slab four rhyming lines in English; the shields on the tomb display the arms of Walrond, Kelleway, and Speccott; on the ledge of the window above lies a fine recumbent male effigy in armour, and wearing a flowing wig; in the churchyard is a lich-gate of stone. There are district chapels, and a Baptist and Congregational chapel. A market was granted to U. in 1266; markets are held bi-monthly on second Monday in Feb., April, June, Aug., Oct., and Dec. The pa. contains a large woollen factory, a brewery, and flour mills. Charities amounting to about £75 are distributed yearly. The Grammar School, founded in 1701,

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Tywardreath	Par (½)	276	2097
Ubbeston	Halesworth (6)	101	165
Ubley	Axbridge (6)	136	250
Uchayndre	Aberystwith	243	368
Uchygarreg	Machynlleth (3)	223	307
Uckerby	Scorton (1)	231	39
Uckfield	Uckfield	47	2497

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Uckington	Cheltenham (2¾)	109	148
Uddingston, q.s. pa.	Uddingston	393	5725
Uddingston, to.	Uddingston	393	5099
Udimore	Rye (4)	70	410
Udny	Udny (2)	542	1677
Udston	Greenfield (1)	394	338
Uffculme	Uffculme	177	1806

has an endowment. Bradfield is a seat; the mansion dates from the 16th cent., and retains some curiously ornamented rooms.

Uffington (1), pa. and vil. on the Welland, S. Lincs., 2 E. of Stamford, on the road to Market Deeping; ac. 3,924; soil loam, gravel and clay, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Michael (restored 1866) is E. Eng.; it contains several ancient monuments, including one of marble and alabaster, with kneeling figures in armour, to Roger Manners, Esq., of U., Esquire of the Body to Queens Mary and Elizabeth (d. 1587); and to his younger brother, Oliver Manners, who served against the French at Newhaven, and died of the plague in 1563; there is also a memorial to Dr. Stanton, Dean of Lincoln and formerly rector here (d. 1612). A recumbent stone effigy of a knight in armour, discovered about 1840, is built into one of the walls of the church. There are some charitable bequests to the poor. A priory of Austin canons was founded in this pa. by W. D'Albini in the reign of Henry III. and dedicated to St. Leonard; an extensive flour mill is supposed to occupy the site, but no vestiges of the buildings now remain. U. House, an ancient mansion standing in a park, and Casewick Hall, a large Elizabethan mansion in a well-wooded park, are seats.

Uffington (2), pa., tp. and vil., N. Berks., 7 N.W. of Wantage; ac. 2,871 and 11 water; soil loamy, stonebrash and chalk, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Mary, which formerly belonged to the abbey of Abingdon, is E. Eng.; the chancel retains a sedile and piscina. There are some 16th-cent. monuments chiefly to the Saunders family. In the churchyard are some fine yew-trees. Here are Baptist and Congregational chapels, and a public reading-room, formerly the school-house. The school has an endowment of about £20 a year. [VALE OF WHITE HORSE.]

Uffington (3), pa. and vil. on the Severn, Mid Salop, 3 E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 2,976; soil various, overlying clay and gravel. Holy Trinity Church (restored 1856) is E. Eng. The ruins of Haughmond Abbey include portions of the church, chapter house, infirmary, etc., and two monumental stones to John Fitz-Alan, sixth Earl of Arundel (d. 1269), and his wife Isabel. Sundorne Castle is a seat.

Ufford (1), pa. and vil. on the Deben, S.E. Suff., 3 N.E. of Woodbridge; ac. 1,150; soil mixed, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Mary is a handsome Gothic structure of flint and stone, with remains of Norm. work in the porch, and chancel and nave have fine roofs, with figures of angels; there are some old carved bench ends; the font cover of wood, beautifully carved, dates from the 13th cent. There are several charities for the relief of the poor. U. Place is a seat.

Ufford (2), pa. and tp., N. Northants, 5 S.E. of Stamford; ac. of pa. 2,320, of tp. 1,082; soil clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1883) is E. Eng.; during the restoration the sedilia and a piscina were uncovered. Quarles charity and others, together producing £1 yearly, are distributed in kind. The rent of a farm (about £100 a year) is given to six decayed gentlewomen. U. Hall is a seat.

Ufton, pa. and vil., S.E. Warws., 4½ S.E. of Leamington; ac. 1,761; soil marl and clay, overlying limestone, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Michael is chiefly E. Eng., and contains a brass to William Weddowes (d. 1587). In the churchyard is an ancient cross.

Ufton Nervet, pa. and vil., S.E. Berks., 5½ S.S.W. of Reading; ac. 2,189; soil sand and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1862 in Perp. style) contains various monuments of the Perkins family. There were formerly two churches here. There are some small charities, and the school has an endowment. U. Court, a seat, is an interesting Elizabethan mansion, with several concealed passages and chambers; it was often visited by Pope, Steele, Henry St. John, Miss Mitford, and others.

Ugborough, pa. and vil., S.W. Dev., 14 E. of Plymouth; ac. 9,470; soil loamy, subsoil variable. The church (dedication unknown) is chiefly Perp.; the font is Norm. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan Methodist chapels and a reading-room, also the Plymouth Borough Asylum.

Ugbrook. [CHUDLEIGH.]

Ugford, ha., pa. of and ½ E. from Burcombe (q.v.), S. Wilts.

Uggeshall, pa. and vil., N. Suff., 5½ E.S.E. of Halesworth; ac. 1,454; soil mixed, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Mary is principally E. Eng.; the roof is thatched. The communion plate is of the 16th cent. The poor's land produces £4 yearly, distributed in coals.

Ugglebarnby, chap., tp. and scattered vil., pa. of and about 3 S.W. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., ac. 2,470. The church of All Saints was rebuilt in 1872; on pulling down the old church some few stones belonging to a Norm. church were discovered, these have been built into the walls of the present church so as not to hide any portion of the chevron ornament with which most of them are covered, so that the history of there having been an early church on the site may be preserved. [ESKDALESIDE-CUM-UGGLEBARNBY.]

Ughill, vil., pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2 S.W. of Bradfield.

Ugie, or North Ugie Water, river, N.E. Aberd., Sc.; rises 3 miles from the north coast of the co., and the same distance W.S.W. of Aberdour, and flows 21 E.S.E. to the North Sea, which it enters about 1 N.W. of Peterhead. Its principal affluent is Deer, or South Ugie Water, which joins it in the pa. of Old Deer. The stream is navigable for about 1½ mile. The trout fishing is excellent.

Ugley, or Oakley, pa., N. Essex, 5½ N. of Bishop Stortford; ac. 2,720; soil mixed, overlying clay, gravel and chalk. The name of this pa. has been variously pronounced. Quercetum appears to have

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Uffington (1)	Uffington	103	439
Uffington (2), pa.	Uffington (2)	67	914
Uffington (2), tp.	Uffington (2)	67	557
Uffington (3)	Shrewsbury (3)	163	309
Ufford (1)	Melton (2)	80	532
Ufford (2), pa.	Uffington (1)	103	248
Ufford (2), tp.	Uffington (1)	103	163

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ufton	Southam Road (2½)	100	9[illegible]
Ufton Nervet	Aldermaston (2)	45	[illegible]
Ugborough	Kingsbridge (1½)	227	140
Uggeshall	Brampton (4)	105	[illegible]
Ugglebarnby	Ruswarp (2)	243	17[illegible]
Ugley	Elsenham (2)	36	[illegible]

been the name by which it was known to the Romans, from the locality abounding in oaks. According to Morant the name was corrupted by the pronunciation of, Norm. clerics from Oakley to Ugley. The church of St. Peter (restored 1866) is E. Eng.; the chancel retains a piscina, and on the north wall is a plain 16th-cent. brass. The charities amount to £48 a year, and are chiefly distributed in coal and clothing. Orford House, a fine old building, about 1 s. of the church, is a seat. It was built by Admiral Russell, commander of the allied English and Dutch fleets, in the battle off Cape La Hogue (May 19, 1692).

Ugthorpe, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Lythe (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 8 w. of Whitby; ac. 2,417. Christ Church (1857) is a cruciform building in E. Eng. style. There is a Catholic church, dedicated to St. Anne; adjoining the church is a school for eighty students. Near here were the ruins of a small Catholic chapel once served by the Rev. Father Postgate, who was executed at York during the persecution of the Catholics. Charities of about £8 a year are for the poor. U. Cottage is a shooting lodge.

Uig (1), pa. in the western part of Lewis Island, Outer Hebrides, Ross and Crom., Sc., with a kirk-town near the coast, 34 w. of Stornoway; it is about 24 miles in length, with a breadth of about 18, and includes the isles of Bernera, Oronsay and Pabay; ac. 122,795. The pa. contains two Established churches, a Free church, and eight public schools. In the pa. are some remains of the shrine of St. Catan, and near by those of a nunnery of the Black Sisters. At a little distance from this locality there were discovered, some years ago, upwards of sixty ebony figures, beautifully executed, and from their costume evidently very ancient. [CALLERNISH.]

Uig (2), vil., pa. of Snizort (q.v.), Isle of Skye, Invs., Sc., at the head of Uig Bay, 14 N.W. of Portree.

Uist, North, island and pa., Outer Hebrides, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 35 W.N.W. of Portree; ac. of pa. 75,431; soil partly clay, peat, and sand. North U. lies between the Little Minch and the Atlantic Ocean. The Sound of Harris separates it from Harris on the north-east and Loch Rueval from Benbecula on the south. It has a maximum length from east to west of 16 miles, and an extreme breadth of 13 miles. The surface consists mostly of a dead swampy flat studded with innumerable freshwater lakes, but there are several ranges of hills, the highest point being 1,500 ft. above the sea. In the west part of the island is a tract of very fertile land, one of the principal ingredients in the soil being the shell-sand driven by the winds from the Atlantic. Several of the neighbouring islands are included in the pa. There are Established and Free churches. The manufacture of kelp is carried on on a large scale.

Uist, South, island and pa., Outer Hebrides, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 41 w. by s. of Portree; ac. of pa. 90,099; soil mostly sandy and light, elsewhere black loam or moss. South U. lies between the Little Minch and the Atlantic; Benbecula Sound on the north separates it from the island of Benbecula, and the Sound of Barra on the south from that of Barra. It is 20 miles long from north to south, and has an extreme breadth of 7 miles. The surface is mostly low towards the west and mountainous in the east. There are several large freshwater lakes. The east coast is indented by deep bays, which form good harbours. The pa. includes Benbecula and other neighbouring islands. There are Established and Free churches and a Roman Catholic chapel.

Ulbster, ha., pa. of and 7½ S.W. from Wick (q.v.), N.E. Caiths., Sc.

Ulceby (1), or Ulceby-by-Alford, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 5½ E.N.E. of Spilsby; ac. 1,890; soil chalky loam, overlying chalk and red clay. The church of All Saints is a small plain edifice of brick, erected in 1826. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. In the pa. is a lofty hill called "Bull's Head," a well-known landmark.

Ulceby (2), or Ulceby-by-Barton, pa. and large vil., N. Lincs., 6 S. of New Holland; ac. 3,610; soil clay and loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1852) is Dec. and Perp.; the chancel and Lady chapel each contains an aumbry and piscina; the font is E. Eng.; the dedication cross, found buried under the floor, has been placed near the chancel arch. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a place of worship for Seventh Day Adventists. There is a charity of £5 a year for distribution. The Foresters' Hall is used for lectures, meetings, etc.

Ulceby Skitter, ha., pa. of and 1½ E. from Ulceby (q.v.), N. Lincs.

Ulcombe, pa. and vil., Mid Kent, 8 S.E. of Maidstone; ac. 3,545; soil loamy, subsoil various. The church of All Saints was formerly attached to a college founded here in 1226 by Archbishop Langton and dissolved about 1300; in the north chapel is a fine canopied brass with the effigy of a man in armour and an inscription to William Maydeston, Esq. (d. 1419); another, with figures of a knight and lady, to Ralph Sentleger (d. 1470) and Anne, his wife; and a monument to the Marquess and Marchioness of Ormonde. During the restoration in 1870 some 14th-cent. frescoes were uncovered on the south arcade of the nave. U. Place is a seat.

Uldale, pa. and vil. on the Ellen, W. Cumb., 9 S.W. from Wigton; ac. 5,789; soil clay and loam, overlying clay. The church of St. James (chancel rebuilt 1837) is ancient; St. John's was built 1808 in Gothic style. There are several charities and an endowed grammar school founded in 1726. In the pa. are three Roman camps, and early British urns have been found.

Uley, pa. and vil., S. Glouc., 15 S. of Gloucester; ac. 1,492; soil loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Matthew, anciently dedicated to St. Giles (rebuilt 1858), is E. Eng. The Baptists and Congregationalists have chapels. There are some small charities. The pa. contains a Roman tumulus and an encampment. A feast is held on the first Sunday in September. Angeston is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ugthorpe, ec. pa.	Lealholme (3)	243	701
Ugthorpe, tp.	Lealholme (3)	243	230
Uig (1)	Oban (200)	504	4621
Uist, North, isl.	Oban (80)	504	3231
Uist, North, pa.	Oban (80)	504	4187
Uist, South, isl.	Oban (80)	504	3708

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Uist, South, pa.	Oban (65)	504	5821
Ulceby (1)	Willoughby (3½)	128	160
Ulceby (2)	Ulceby	165	941
Ulcombe	Harrietsham (3)	48	591
Uldale	Bassen'waitePlace(6	306	222
Uley	Dursley (2½)	129	929

Ulfsby. [OUSBY.]

Ulgham, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of and 5½ N.E. from Morpeth (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 3,735. The church of St. John is in Norm. style. In the vil. are the remains of a cross.

Ulgham Grange, vil., pa. of and about 6 N.E. from Morpeth (q.v.), E. Northumb. Here is a small colliery.

Ulla. [OOLAGH.]

Ullahan, stream, S.W. co. Lim., Ir., rises 5 W.S.W. of Limerick, and runs 10 S.W. and W. through Glenquin bar., joining the Feale ½ N.W. of Abbeyfeale.

Ullapool, q.s. pa. and seaport and fishing vil., pa. of Lochbroom (q.v.), N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc. The vil. is on the north shore of Loch Broom, about 32 N.W. of Garve railway station. It was founded under the auspices of the British Fishery Society in 1788, and has gradually increased. It possesses a spacious and excellent harbour, and there is a good quay. The herring fishery is the main dependence of its inhabitants; shoals appear on the coast as early as May, but not till September do they set fairly in; the number taken is very great, and of the very best quality. U., in the season, is attended from all parts of the east and west coast by curers, and during this period the place presents a very animated appearance.

Ullard, pa. on the Barrow, Idrone East and Lower St. Mullin's bars., S. co. Carlow and Gowran bar., E. co. Kilk., Ir., 2 S.W. of Borris; ac. 5,846.

Ullenhall, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Wootten Wawen (q.v.), W. Warws., 10 N.W. of Stratford-on-Avon. The chapel of St. Mary, now used as a mortuary chapel, has a Dec. window and contains monuments to Francis Throckmorton (c. 1553) and to Robert Knight, Earl of Catherlough (d. 1772). The modern church was built 1875 in Dec. style. The charities amount to £75 yearly. Barrells Hall is a seat.

Ulleskelf, tp. and vil. on the Wharfe, pa. of and 1 S.E. from Kirkby Wharf (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,323. St. Saviour's, a chapel-of-ease, built 1887, is in Gothic style; and here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Ullesthorpe, tp. and vil., pa. of Claybrooke (q.v.), S. Leics., 3 N.W. of Lutterworth; ac. 1,485. There is a Congregational chapel, a small endowment for the school, and a small charity.

Ulley, eccl. pa., tp. and vil., pas. of Treeton and Aston with Aughton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Rotherham; ac. 933. Holy Trinity Church was built about 1851 in E. Eng. style. There are two charities.

Ullid, pa., Iverk bar., S. co. Kilk., Ir., 2 N.E. of Grange; ac. 2,248.

Ullingswick, pa. and vil., E. Herefords., 9 N.N.E. of Hereford; ac. 1,665; soil clay, overlying rock and clay. The church (dedication unknown, restored 1863) is Gothic, and contains a tablet to John Hill (d. 1590).

Ullock, vil. with railway station, pa. of Dean (q.v.), W. Cumb., about 7 S.W. of Cockermouth.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ulgham	Widdrington (1½)	294	695
Ullapool, q.s. pa.	Garve (32)	620	2423
Ullapool, vil.	Garve (32)	620	868
Ullard	Borris (2)	75	890
Ullenhall	Kingswood (4)	116	508
Ulleskelf	Ulleskelf	186	450

Ullswater, lake on border of Cumb. and Westmd., 7½ E. by S. of Keswick and 5 S.W. of Penrith. The lake is zigzag in form, extending 7½ N., E.S.E., and N.E. from the foot of Patterdale to Pooley Bridge, these three reaches being due to the configuration of the surrounding mountains. It has an extreme breadth of ¾ mile, and lies 477 ft. above the sea, the depth of the water at its greatest being 210 ft. The scenery increases in grandeur from N. to S., that of the first reach being comparatively tame; on the whole the lake presents a greater diversity of picturesque views than any other in England.

HEAD OF ULLSWATER.
(Photo. Green Bros., Grasmere.)

The views near Patterdale, where Helvellyn and Fairfield are seen towering above the nearer heights, are magnificent. The first reach is bordered by Swarth Fell in Westmd. and Watermillock in Cumb.; the second reach lies between Hallin and Birk Fells and Gowbarrow Park; and near the south extremity Place Fell on the east faces Stybarrow Crag on the west. The beautiful grounds of Gowbarrow Park give to the middle reach a character of rich sylvan beauty. In the southernmost reach there are several small islands. A beck flows down Patterdale to the head of the lake, and the river Eamont issues from its north extremity. It is noted for the abundance and excellence of its trout, and char, eels, and skellies (as chub are locally called) are also taken.

Ulnes Walton, tp., pa. of Croston (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., consisting of numerous scattered dwellings, principally farmhouses, about 5 W. of Chorley; ac. 2,106. Fruit of all kinds is grown here to a very considerable extent. At a farm named "Gradwells" are traces of a religious house having once existed here; the present farm dwelling appears to have been built of its materials; the doors, staircases, etc., are of old polished oak, and there are massive beams in the walls and ceilings; large arched vaults and numerous portions of foundations are still to be met with; and in the garden is an upright stone cross, about 4 ft. high, loosely placed in a stone socket, and quite perfect, said to mark

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ullesthorpe	Ullesthorpe	105	[illegible]
Ulley, ec. pa.	Woodhouse Mill (2)	157	[illegible]
Ulley, tp.	Woodhouse Mill (2)	157	[illegible]
Ullid	Grange (2)	156	[illegible]
Ullingswick	Bromyard (5)	135	[illegible]
Ulnes Walton	Croston (1)	209	[illegible]

the last resting-place of a priest of the name of Winckley. Charities of the value of £25 are distributed yearly in clothes and money.

Ulpha (1), chap., tp., and vil. on the Duddon, pa. of Millom (q.v.), S. Cumb., 8 N.E. of Bootle; ac. 13,043. The church of St. John is a plain ancient stone edifice. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. A sheep and cattle fair is held on the last Saturday in August. Slate quarries and copper mines were formerly worked, and there is a bobbin mill. Wallabarra Crag, on the left bank of the river, is an immense rock. The scenery in the neighbourhood is romantic and beautiful.

Ulpha (2). [MEATHOP AND ULPHA.]

Ulra, stream, Tirawley bar., N. co. Mayo, Ir., rises 13½ W.N.W. of Killala, and runs 3 N.E., entering the sea 1½ N.W. of Ballycastle.

Ulrome, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pas. of Shipsea and Barmston (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 9 S. of Bridlington; ac. 1,594. The church of St. Andrew has been rebuilt in E. Eng. style.

Ulshaw Bridge, ha., pa. of East Witton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2 S.E. of Middleham.

Ulsta, ha. on a bay of the same name, south-west of the island of Yell (q.v.), Shetland Isles, Sc.

Ulster, the second largest and most northerly province of Ireland; ac. 5,483,201. It is bounded on the north and west by the Atlantic Ocean, on the east by the North Channel of the Irish Sea, and on the south-east and south-west by the provinces of Leinster and Connaught. Its greatest extent, from Malin Bay to Donaghadee, is nearly 130 miles, and from Glengad Head to the most southern point of the co. of Cav. is about 110 miles. The circumference, taking in all its sinuosities, is fully 780 miles. U. comprises the cos. of Antrim north-east, Armagh and Cavan south, Donegal north-west, Down south-east, Fermanagh south-west, Londonderry north, Monaghan south, and Tyrone in the centre. The north-west portion of the province (Donegal and parts of Tyrone and Londonderry) is mountainous, and the coast line (from Portrush to Ballyshannon) is much indented by bays and inlets, the largest being Lough Foyle, Lough Swilly and Donegal Bay, while the hills in many places come down to the sea and show a front of abrupt rocky cliffs. Eastward from Portrush to Belfast Lough there are some portions of high coast line, and the district bounded by Ballycastle in the north and Larne and Antrim on the south is also mountainous, while the Mourne Mountains, co. Down, cover an extent of about 15 miles, with detached peaks west of Newry; between Belfast Lough and Carlingford Bay occurs the deep inlet of Lough Strangford (q.v.). [LOUGH ERNE, LOUGH NEAGH.] Railway communication is afforded by the Great Northern (Ireland), the Belfast and Northern Counties, and various branch lines. There are also several light railways. U. also has the advantage of both canal and river navigation in the U. Canal and the Newry Canal; the Lagan, the Foyle, the Blackwater, and the Bann are all navigable rivers, wholly or in part. U. is the most populous of the four provinces, a circumstance chiefly due to the prevalence of manufacturing industry, and to the relations of that industry with agriculture. During the years 1609 to 1612 James I. took possession of 511,465 ac. of land in the north of Ireland (including Londonderry and Coleraine), which formed part of the forfeited property of rebels, and started a project for colonising these lands, afterwards known as the U. Plantation; to help forward this measure the king invited the representatives of twelve of the leading London companies to form a committee for the colonisation, and from this committee sprang the Honourable Irish Society, which received a royal charter in 1613, and it still exists, with offices, in Guildhall Yard, London. In 1641 a rebellion arose among the Catholics of Ulster, but this was put down by Cromwell, and lands were partitioned among his soldiery; thus the province became to a great extent more distinctly Protestant than other parts of Ireland, and in consequence a great stand was made here in the time of James, as at Derry in 1689. In 1696 the linen industry was encouraged, and it much revived in 1779, since which it has prospered to a great extent. Another society, since a prominent factor in Irish politics, was started in this province under the name of the Orange Society, the name of Orangemen having been previously applied to the Protestants as being the original supporters of William of Orange. U. Tenant Right is virtually a settlement (by agreement between landlords and tenants) of the goodwill of a tenant's holding. The process of transfer is very simple: the selling tenant, having obtained the landlord's consent and paid all arrears of rent (this is essential), applies to the agent, and the name of the new tenant is inserted in the rent book, thus completing the transfer without expense. Modern Land Acts have been founded on this principle. U. gave the title of Earl to the de Courceys (temp. Henry II.), and in the present day the honour belongs to the Duke of Edinburgh, reigning Duke of Saxe Coburg-Gotha.

Ulster Canal, N.W. co. Armagh and N.W. co. Monaghan, Ir., runs 48 miles from Charlemont, opposite Moy, on the Blackwater, to the S.E. extremity of Upper Lough Erne. The canal runs close to the Blackwater as far as its source near Caledon, its prevailing direction being S.S.W. It then proceeds S.W. through Monaghan and Dartree bars., co. Monaghan, passing the tos. of Monaghan and Clones, and running for a short distance through Clankelly bar., co. Ferm. It was cut in 1832 and the following year.

Ulston, ha., pa. of and 1¾ N.E. from Jedburgh (q.v.), Mid Roxbs., Sc.

Ulting, pa. on the Chelmer, E. Essex, 8 N.E. by E. of Chelmsford; ac. 1,162; soil and subsoil gravel. All Saints' Church (restored 1873) is E. Eng.

Ulva (1), island and q.s. pa. (comprising also the islands of Gometra, Little Colonsay, and Staffa, and part of Mull), pa. of Kilninian and Kilmore (q.v.), Isle of Mull, W. Args., Sc. The island forms the south side of Loch Tuadh, and is divided at the eastern end from the Isle of Mull by a narrow strait; it measures 7 miles from east to west by 2½ in breadth. It is said to produce the best kelp in the Western Islands. There are a great number of

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ulpha (1)	Broughton (2)	270	279
Ulrome	Burton Agnes (4)	219	198
Ulster	.....	.....	1619814

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ulting	Witham (4)	39	165
Ulva (1)	Oban (30)	504	46

basaltic columns on the shore, and on the south side is a cave 60 ft. long, 58 ft. broad, and 30 ft. in average height, having an arched entrance in the face of an abrupt rock, with a span of 37 ft. About a mile to the north a mountain stream falls in one unbroken descent from a rock 66 ft. in height directly into the sea.

Ulva (2), island, pa. of North Knapdale (q.v.), W. Args., Sc.

Ulverscroft, pa., Mid Leics., about 7 S. of Loughborough; ac. 1,889. Here are the ruins, including a Perp. tower, of an Augustinian priory.

Ulverston (locally "Ooston"), pa., tp., seaport and mkt. to. (TH.), near the outfall of the Leven, N. Lancs., 26 N.W. of Lancaster; ac. of pa. 27,342, of which 640 are water, of tp. 3,120. The physical features of the pa. are very varied; it is in general mountainous, to the north the hills are lofty and of bleak appearance, towards the centre they become elevated moors, while below the to. the land is rich, broken by gentle eminences cultivated to their summits. The locality possesses in abundance rich ores of iron, copper ore, limestone, and blue and green slate. The to., very pleasantly situated near Morecambe Bay and nearly environed by hills, is an ancient place, and now the acknowledged capital of the Furness dis. The church of St. Mary, founded in 1111, and rebuilt in the reign of Henry VIII., is chiefly Perp.; the south door, a good example of the Trans. period, is the only portion of the original building remaining; in the south aisle is a fine altar tomb with a recumbent figure of William Sandys, of Conishead Priory (1588), and another "Myloni Dedding de Conishead," also with a recumbent figure (1629); in the same aisle are mural monuments to Sir John Barrow (1848) and the Rev. R. Gwillym, M.A., hon. canon of Carlisle, and thirty-five years incumbent of U. (1867). U. has also an eccl. pa. with a church in E. Eng. style, mission churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Market Hall (1878) is a red-brick building in Italian style; it contains corn, fish and general produce markets, and stalls for butchers. The market is well supplied with grain and all kinds of provisions. Weekly sales are held. There are three annual fairs: Whit Thursday and the first Thursday after Nov. 11 for hiring servants, and Tuesday preceding the first full week in January, for horses. At the Cattle Market (1877) weekly sales of cattle are held. Other public buildings are the Post Office (1877); the Police Court (1872), containing magistrates' court room, consulting and solicitors' rooms; the Drill Hall (1873), in the Italian style; the Victoria Concert Hall, the Temperance Hall, and the cottage hospital. The charities are considerable, and are distributed in money and clothing. U. was formerly noted for the manufacture of linens, checks and ginghams, but this trade is now very limited. Here are large ironworks, iron foundries, revolving-shutter manufactories, breweries, corn mills, tanyards, and a boot-upper manufactory; wooden hoops are also extensively made in the neighbourhood. The priory of St. Mary and St. Leonard was founded in the reign of Henry II.: canons of the Augustinian order; but of the ancient house no remains now exist. Conishead Priory, which occupies the site of the ancient religious house of that name, is in the Elizabethan style, and was formerly a seat; it has been converted into a hydropathic establishment.

Ulwell, ha., pas. of Swanage and Studland (q.v.), E. Dors., 4 E. of Corfe Castle.

Umberleigh, ha. with railway station, pa. of Atherington (q.v.), N. Dev., 7 S. of Barnstaple. Here was formerly a chapel adjoining the old mansion house; only small portions of a wall and an ancient window remain.

Unapool. [KYLESKU (1).]

Uncleby, ha., pa. of and ½ N.E. from Kirby Underdale (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.

Underbarrow, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Kendal (q.v.), S. Westmd., 7 N. of Milnthorpe. All Saints' church was built 1869 in E. Eng. style. There is a small charity. Cunswick Hall, dating from Tudor times, is now a farmhouse. Here is an ancient camp.

Underbarrow and Bradley Field, tp., pa. of Kendal (q.v.). S. Westmd., 7 N. of Milnthorpe; ac. 5,122. [UNDERBARROW.]

Undercliff, seaside tract, S. I. of W., S. Hants., 8 S. by E. of Newport. The U. consists of a series of cliffs and terraces, occupying in turn the seaward face of the island as it ascends from the shore. It extends between 6 and 7 E.N.E. and W.S.W. from Shanklin by Bonchurch, Ventnor, St. Lawrence, and Niton to Blackgang Chine, and ranges in width from ¼ to ½ mile. The U. is supposed to have been formed by a succession of landslips which took place at some distant epoch; portions of the cliff fell as late as 1799, 1810, and 1818, and even since then there have been slight subsidences; but there is now no occasion to apprehend any danger. The explanation given by geologists is that the sea wore away the clayey and sandy deposits which formed the lower strata, thus dislodging the chalk strata of which the U. is composed. Its scenery is romantic in the highest degree, the wild confused masses of rock being covered in all directions by luxuriant foliage, whilst in the more favoured spots the rose, the geranium, and the myrtle grow profusely. The U. is so thoroughly protected from the north-east winds that the climate is remarkably mild. At various points along it there are handsome mansions with beautiful grounds looking towards the sea.

Underley Hall. [KIRKBY LONSDALE.]

Undermilbeck, tp., pas. of Windermere and Kendal (q.v.), S. Cumb., 8 N.W. of Kendal; ac. 4,173. There are several charities.

Underriver, eccl. pa., pa. of Seal (q.v.), W. Kent, 3 S.E. of Sevenoaks. The church of St. Margaret is in Gothic style.

Underskiddaw, tp. and vil., pa. of Crosthwaite (q.v.), S. Cumb., 1 N.E. of Keswick; ac. 5,875. There is an endowed grammar school, and a school of art known as the Lyzuick School. Milbeck Hall, now a farmhouse, retains part of a 15th-cent. pe-

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ulva (2)	Greenock (60)	422	20
Ulverscroft	Bardon Hill (4)	111	90
Ulverston, pa.	Ulverston	255	13025
Ulverston, tp.	Ulverston	255	10015
Underbarrow	Kendal (3)	251	466

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop- ulation.
Underb'w&BradleyF	Kendal (3)	251	4[illegible]
Undermilbeck	Windermere (3)	259	2[illegible]
Underriver	Sevenoaks (3)	21	[illegible]
Underskiddaw	Keswick (1)	299	[illegible] tower and some Tudor work. Greta Bank, Lairbeck, Lairthwaite, Lyzuick Hall, and The Red House are seats.

Underwood (1), vil., pa. of Plympton St. Mary (q.v.), S. Dev., adjoining the to. of Plympton.

Underwood (2), ha., pa. of and 2 s. from Selston (q.v.), W. Notts.

Underwood (3). [OFFCOTE AND UNDERWOOD.]

Undy, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, S. Mon., 9 S.W. from Chepstow; ac. 1,717 land, 2,000 water. The church of St. Mary (restored 1880) contains some Norm. work; in the chancel are the remains of a squint. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Unich, Water of, stream near Lochlee, N. Forfs., Sc., runs over several falls to the North Esk.

Union Canal, N.W. Edins., N. Linliths., and S.E. Stirls., Sc.; runs 31 miles from Edinburgh in a westerly direction, joining the Forth and Clyde Canal 1½ W. by S. of Falkirk. It was constructed in 1818–22, and has since 1865 belonged to the North British Railway Company. The canal passes Ratho, Winchburgh, Linlithgow, and Falkirk, crossing the Water of Leith and the Avon on lofty aqueducts, and traversing near Falkirk a tunnel 2,100 ft. in length. It is 40 ft. wide and 5 ft. in depth, and at its west extremity has an abrupt fall of 110 ft. with eleven locks.

Union Hall, vil., pa. of Myross (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., 6 E. of Skibbereen. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in fishing and agricultural pursuits.

Union Mills, vil., pa. of Braddan (q.v.), S. I. of M., 3¾ N.W. of Douglas. The population consists principally of the workmen engaged in the mills from which the vil. takes its name. These were at first used for manufacturing woollen stuffs, but they have been converted into corn mills and dye-works. There are Wesleyan and Independent chapels.

Unshin, river, E. co. Sligo, Ir., runs N.W. through Tirerill bar. and along the edge of Leyny bar. to Ballysadare Bay, which it joins 11 miles from its source in Lough Arrow. In the lower part of its course it is called Ballysadare River.

Unst, pa. and island, N. Shetld., Sc., 38 N. by E. of Lerwick; ac. 29,856; soil mostly fertile. The island, which forms the most northerly part of the British Isles, is separated by Blue Mull Sound from that of Yell on the S.W. It extends 12 miles N.N.E. and S.S.W., and has an extreme breadth of 5½ miles. The surface, though less elevated than that of the Shetland Islands in general, includes several ranges of hills, one of which, running along the west coast, reaches the height of 700 ft.; on its east side is a valley filled with a succession of freshwater lakes. The headlands are lofty, rugged, and steep, especially in the west, north, and north-east of the bays, which have sloping sandy shores; Balta Sound and Uyea Sound alone afford safe anchorage. The island contains Established and Free churches. Fishing forms the principal occupation of the inhabitants, some of whom are engaged in the manufacture of hosiery.

Unstone, tp. and vil., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Dronfield (q.v.), N.E. Derby; ac. 2,003. The tp. has Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Congregational chapels, and a small charity.

Unsworth, eccl. pa. and ha. on the Roach, pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 3 S. of Bury. The church of St. George (rebuilt 1843) is a plain brick and stone building. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Unthank (1), tp., pa. of and 1 W. from Alnham (q.v.), N. Northumb.; ac. 177.

Unthank (2), ha., pa. of Romaldkirk (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 11 N.W. of Barnard Castle.

Unthank (3), ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Skelton (q.v.), Mid Cumb.

Uny Lelant, pa. and vil. on the Hayle, S.W. Cornw., 6 N.E. of Penzance; ac. 3,757; soil gravel, overlying killas and granite. The church of St. Uny (restored 1873) is partly Norm.; the rood-loft remains in the north aisle, there are piscinæ in the chancel and north aisle, and portions of a stoup in the porch; the font is E. Eng.; there are memorials to the Praed, Pawley, Cundy and other families; over the south porch is a niche containing a sundial; among the plate is an Elizabethan chalice; in the churchyard is a fine cross, and another just outside. Here are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist and Methodist New Connexion chapels. The pa. contains the remains of an ancient fortress. A fair is held on the 15th of August. Trevethoe is a seat.

Upavon, pa. and vil. on the Avon, E. Wilts., 18 N. of Salisbury; ac. 3,329; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is E. Eng. with some Norm. work, including the tower and the font. The Particular Baptists and the Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities amount to £19 yearly, partly devoted to the schools. The market and fairs are discontinued. Here was formerly a Benedictine priory, and there are remains of an ancient camp.

Up Cerne, pa. and vil., Mid Dors., 5½ N.W. of Dorchester; ac. 845; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The church (not dedicated) is Norm. There is a small charity. U. C. House was built in 1601.

Upchurch, pa. and vil., N.E. Kent, 6 E. of Rochester; ac. 3,120 land, 1,520 water; soil chiefly loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is E. Eng. and Dec., and contains sedilia, a canopied piscina, and two double aumbries in the chancel, and a piscina in the vestry, a 14th-cent. brass, a piscina and an ancient reredos in the south aisle, and a crypt; there are portions remaining of 13th-cent. wall painting. U. has brick fields, gravel pits, where fossil remains have been found, and large saltings, where Roman pottery and coins have been discovered.

Upcott (1), ha., pa. of and 1 E. from North Molton (q.v.), N. Devs.

Upcott (2), ha., pa. of and ½ N.E. from Dowland (q.v.), N. Devs.

Updown Hill, vil., pa. of Windlesham (q.v.), N.W. Surrey, about 1½ N.E. of Bagshot.

Upend, ha., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Kirtling (q.v.), E. Cambs.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Undy	Magor (1)	144	393
Union Hall	Skibbereen (6)	220	333
Unst	Thurso (188)	744	2280
Unstone	Unstone (4½)	150	1687
Unsworth	Radcliffe Bridge (2¼)	194	2285

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Unthank (1)	Whittingham (6)	318	8
Uny Lelant	Hayle (1½)	313	1439
Upavon	Pewsey (4)	75	471
Up Cerne	Maiden Newton (5)	145	84
Upchurch	Rainham (2)	39	1218

Up Exe, ha. with railway station, pa. of Rewe (q.v.), S. Dev., about 5 N. of Exeter. The ancient chapel, which had long been desecrated and converted into dwellings, was restored in 1888; the building is of the E. Eng. period, and has lancet windows on both sides and a good south doorway, and the east end retains a small piscina; the original east window which fell to pieces on the removal of the roof has been replaced by a new one in the Dec. style.

Uphall, pa. and vil., E. Liniths., Sc.; ac. of pa. 4,541; soil chiefly clay, with clayey loam, overlying coal, ironstone, and freestone. The pa. is intersected from west to east by the road from Glasgow to Edinburgh, and is watered by the Broxburn (q.v.). U. vil. is 11 w. of Edinburgh. In the Buchan vault of the pa. church are buried the Hon. Henry Erskine, second son of the tenth Earl of Buchan, appointed King's Advocate, and died 1817, and his brother Thomas, third son of the tenth Earl, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, and created Baron Erskine 1806, and died 1823. Shale, which is now so largely used in the manufacture of paraffin oil, of which there are three extensive works in the locality, is found in abundance in the neighbourhood, and is said to be of a very rich quality. Owing to this important industry there has been a great increase in the population within the past few years. Bone manures are also manufactured in the pa. The dis. abounds in coal, sandstone, limestone, and ironstone. Almondell House, Houstoun House, and Middleton Hall are seats.

Upham, pa. and vil., E. Hants, 8 S.E. of Winchester; ac. 2,813; soil clay and chalk, subsoil chalk and stone. The church (dedication unknown), restored 1881, is Gothic. Here is a chapel for Bible Christians. Edward Young, the author of "Night Thoughts," was born at the rectory in 1684.

Upham, Lower, ha., pa. of Aldbourn (q.v.), E. Wilts., about 6 N.E. of Marlborough.

Upham, Upper, ha., pa. of Aldbourn (q.v.), E. Wilts., adjoining Lower Upham, about 6 N.E. of Marlborough.

Up Hatherley, pa. and vil., N. Glouc., 2 S.W. of Cheltenham; ac. 810; soil clayey, overlying clay. The old church was destroyed in 1640, and the present church of St. Philip and St. James built 1885 in E. Eng. style.

Uphill, pa. and vil. at the mouth of the Axe, on the Bristol Channel, N. Somerset; ac. 1,077; soil sand. The church of St. Nicholas (1843) is in Perp. style. The old church, which stands on the summit of a hill near the vil., probably occupies the site of the Roman Axium, and is of the Norm. and later periods; the porch, owing to the subsidence of the sides, has assumed a horse-shoe shape; there is a priest's doorway on the south side of the chancel, and Norm. doorways on each side of the nave. The tower is strongly buttressed and has a turret at the north-east angle; the tower and the chancel are now used as a mortuary chapel. A burial-ground enclosed by a stone wall surrounds the church. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Weston-super-Mare Sanatorium is in this pa. Sanderoft, Totterdown, U. Castle, in park-like grounds, and U. Grange are seats.

Upholland, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of and 4 w. from Wigan (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.; ac. 4,685. The church of St. Thomas the Martyr (restored 1883), formerly the church of a Benedictine priory, and at one time collegiate, is a stone building of the 13th or 14th cent.; the windows of the aisles are very fine specimens of E. Dec. work. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist and Free Methodist chapels. St. Joseph's Diocesan Catholic College (1883) is a long and narrow building of stone in Gothic style; it is intended for the education of the clergy for the Catholic diocese of Liverpool. The Grammar School, founded in 1668, has been reconstituted by the Charity Commissioners. There are charities of upwards of £100 yearly value, which are applied to the relief of the poor in money, clothing and food; a small sum is also granted annually for apprentice fees. Here are collieries, slate and stone quarries, and firebrick works. A fair is held on Easter Monday for pigs only. The Benedictine priory of St. Thomas, formerly existing here, was founded in 1319 by Walter de Langton, Bishop of Lichfield, or, according to other accounts, by Robert de Holland; the existing remains consist, apart from the church, of a portion of a building pierced with five square-headed windows and some indications of arches in a neighbouring house. The revenues at the Dissolution were estimated at £53, and there were five monks and twenty-six servants. The Hollands, in various branches Barons Holland and Woodstock, Earls of Kent and Huntingdon, and Dukes of Exeter and Surrey, resided here from the time of King John. Holland Grove is a seat.

Uplawmoor, small vil., pa. of Neilston (q.v.), S. Renfs., Sc., 5 S.W. of Barrhead. The place has a considerable reputation as a health resort, and receives a large number of visitors during the season. The pa. church of Caldwell is in the vil.

Upleadon (1), pa. and vil. on the Leadon, N.W. Glouc., 9 S.W. of Tewkesbury; ac. 1,059; soil red loam. The church of St. Mary (restored 1879) is Norm. There is a mission church and a Wesleyan chapel. Here is a flour mill, and fruit is largely grown.

Upleadon (2), ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Bosbury (q.v.), E. Salop.

Upleatham, pa. and pretty vil., N.R. Yorks., 3 N.E. of Guisborough; ac. 1,426; soil clayey, overlying clay and stone. There are ironstone mines in the pa. The church of St. Andrew (1835) is in Norm. style. The old church stands at a distance of nearly ½ mile from the vil., and the churchyard is still used as the burial-ground for the parishioners; leaning against the wall is the lid of an old stone coffin, with a foliated cross. U. Hall is a seat.

Uplowman, pa. and vil., E. Dev., about 5 S.E. of Bampton; ac. nearly 3,000. Of the old church of St. Peter little remains, and the present Perp. building (restored 1864) was erected by Lady

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Uphall, pa.	Uphall	396	8653
Uphall, vil.	Uphall	396	922
Upham	Bishops Waltham (3	81	588
Up Hatherley	Cheltenham (2)	109	99
Uphill	Bleadon (1)	139	835

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
Upholland, ec. pa.	Orrell	198	668
Upholland, tp.	Orrell	198	4467
Upleadon (1)	Barber's Bridge (4)	119	28
Upleatham	Marske (1)	249	98
Uplowman	Tiverton (4½)	179	451

Margaret Beaufort, mother of Henry VII.; there is a charity, founded by one of the Courtenay family. The charities amount to £35 yearly.

Uplyme, pa. and vil., E. Dev., 9 W. of Bridport; ac. 3,199; soil mixed, overlying chalk and lime. The church of St. Peter and St. Paul (restored 1876) is Dec. and Perp. Here is a Wesleyan chapel and one for the Brethren. A Roman bath was discovered here in 1850. Rhode Hill and Wood House are seats.

Up Marden, large pa., S.W. Sussex, 10 N.W. of Chichester; ac. 2,943; soil chalky marl, overlying chalk with flints. The church of St. Michael is E. Eng. Watergate House, in extensive grounds, is a seat.

Upminster, pa. and vil., S.W. Essex, 3½ S.E. of Romford; ac. 3,203; soil loamy, subsoil mixed. The church of St. Lawrence was partially rebuilt in 1862 in Dec. style; the early portions of the nave afford a good example of the Trans. period, with details of a pronounced Norm. character; the north aisle is enclosed by an open oak screen of the time of Henry VI., finely carved and gilt; the font has an octagonal basin supported on a slender panelled shaft, and belongs to the Perp. period. Of the numerous effigies, shields and arms and inscriptions once found here, there remains in the north aisle the brass effigy in armour of Gerardt D'Ewes (d. 1591); here also are several shields with the arms of the Goldsmiths' Company, Latham, etc., and brasses with effigies to Roger Deincourt, or Dencourt (d. 1455), and Elizabeth (de la Feld) his wife; and Nicholas Wayte, lord of the manor of Geynes (d. 1544), and Ellen (Deyncourt) his wife (d. 1545); in the north window are the arms of Engayne, Deincourt and Latham. William Derham, F.R.S., author of "Physico and Astro-Theology," was rector of this pa. from 1689 to 1735. Here is a Congregational chapel. Frith's charity of £4 10s. yearly is for bread. U. Hall is a timbered mansion dating from the reign of Henry VI.; it stands in pleasure grounds finely wooded, and commands extensive views of the surrounding country, reaching into Kent and Surrey. Gaynes Park and Hill Place, a modern mansion in Elizabethan style, are also seats.

Upminster Common, ha., pa. of Upminster (q.v.), S.W. Essex, 1 E. of Harold Wood station. Here is a Congregational chapel.

Up Nately, pa. near the Basingstoke Canal, N. Hants, 4 E. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,149; soil clay, chalk and sand, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Stephen (partly rebuilt 1844) is Gothic.

Upnor, eccl. pa., opposite Rochester, on the Medway, at the foot of a wooded height, pa. of Frindsbury (q.v.), N.W. Kent. The church of SS. Philip and James is E. Eng.; it contains a tablet to the brothers Pocock, who accompanied Mr. Stanley in his African exploration, and were natives of U. Here is a landing pier for steamboats, and a castle, built by Queen Elizabeth, to protect the Dockyard at Chatham, part of which, with some adjoining buildings, is now used as a military storehouse and barracks; the English ships then lying in ordinary off this castle were burnt by de Ruyter, the Dutch admiral, June 12, 1667.

Up Ottery, pa. and vil. on the Otter, E. Dev., 5 N.N.E. of Honiton; ac. 5,830; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is Dec. A fair is held on the Tuesday before Lady Day. U. Manor House, an Elizabethan building, contains a good collection of pictures.

Upper Broughton. [BROUGHTON-SULNEY.]

Upperby, eccl. pa. and vil. on the Petteril, N. Cumb., 2 S. of Carlisle. The church of St. John is a small building of red sandstone. Waddings and cotton wool are manufactured here. Petteril Bank is a seat.

Upperchurch, or Templeoutragh, pa., Upper Kilnamanagh bar., Mid co. Tip., Ir., 5 S. of Borrisoleigh; ac. 12,902.

Uppercross, bar., S. co. Dub., Ir; ac. 39,020. It is bounded on the north by Castleknock and Dublin bars., on the east by Dublin and Rathdown bars., on the south by co. Wick., and on the west by Newcastle bar. U. is traversed by the Great Southern and Western Railway, and the Phœnix Park adjoins its north-east border. It contains the tos. of Clondalkin and Tallaght.

Upper Froyle, ha., pa. of and adjoining Froyle (q.v.), E. Hants.

Upper Green, ha., pa. of Bradford (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 N.W. of Bradford.

Upper Hale, ha., pa. of Farnham (q.v.), W. Surrey, about ½ N.W. of Hale.

Upper Holloway. [HOLLOWAY (1).]

Upper Keith, vil., pa. of Humbie (q.v.), S.W. Haddings., Sc., 2 N.E. of Blackshiels.

Upperland, ha., pa. of and 3 N.E. from Maghera (q.v.), S.E. co. Londy., Ir.

Upper Loders. [LODERS.]

Uppermill, large vil. lying in a valley through which flows the river Tame, pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 12¾ S.W. of Huddersfield. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. Fairs are held on Whit Wednesday and the first Wednesday in October. The Mechanics' Institute (1859) contains a large hall, used for concerts and balls; here also the petty sessions and the county court are held. The Literary Institution forms part of this building, and comprises a subscription reading-room and a library.

Upperthird, bar., N. co. Waterf., Ir.; ac. 63,846. It is bounded on the north by co. Tip., on the east by co. Kilk., on the south by Middlethird and Decies-without-Drum bars., and on the west by Glenahiry bar. The Suir runs along the north and east borders. It contains the tos. of Carrickbeg and Portlaw.

Upperthong, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Holme, pa. of Almondbury (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 6 S.W. of Huddersfield; ac. 3,117. The cruciform church of St. John is in modern Gothic style. The vil. is

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place,(2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Uplyme	Axminster (4)	145	830
Up Marden	Rowlands Castle (5)	63	310
Upminster	Upminster	16	1409
Up Nately	Basingstoke (4)	48	116
Upnor	Strood (1)	30	720
Up Ottery	Honiton (5)	155	759

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Upperby	Carlisle (1)	299	2966
Upperchurch	Thurles (3)	87	1900
Uppercross	.....	.....	39042
Upperthird	.....	.....	7583
Upperthong, ec. pa.	Holmfirth (1)	185	2372
Upperthong, tp.	Holmfirth (1)	185	2404

situated on the brow of a lofty hill, on the side of which are some good private residences.

Upperthorpe, vil., pa. of Haxey (q.v.), N. Lincs., 6½ N.W. of Gainsborough.

Upperwoods, bar., W. Q. Co., Ir. [OFFERLANE.]

Uppingham, pa., U. and mkt. to. (w.), and head of Co. Co. dis., S. Rutld., 6½ S. of Oakham; ac. 1,463. The to. consists principally of one long street, running from east to west. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, near the market-place, is Perp.; in 1861 it was greatly enlarged and restored. Bishop Jeremy Taylor was once rector here, and there are many entries in the register in his handwriting.

UPPINGHAM SCHOOL.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Here are Congregational, Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The Grammar School was founded in 1584, and the old school-house stands at the east end of the churchyard. The school was reorganised in 1875, and fine new buildings have been erected. The Institute, a substantial building of stone on the London road, is fitted with library, reading and class rooms. Fairs for cattle are held on March 7 and July 7. There are charities of about £53 annual value for distribution. About a mile from the to. on the Leicester road is a mound, being the remains of military works, called Castle Hill; from the summit are fine views of the surrounding country.

Uppington (1), pa., Mid Salop, 7½ E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 706; soil loam, subsoil various. Holy Trinity Church (restored 1885) is chiefly Norm., and contains a Roman altar and some curious carving, possibly Saxon.

Uppington (2), tp., pa. of Alberbury (q.v.), N.E. Montgoms., 8 N.E. of Welshpool; ac. 1,014.

Upsall (1), tp. and vil., pa. of South Kilvington (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 N.E. of Thirsk; ac. 1,194. U. Castle, a modern seat, occupies the site of the ancient castle of the Scropes of U. and Masham; this family has a lasting memorial in the mention of Lord Scroop of Masham by Shakespeare (Henry V., ii. 3). The present house dates from 1876. Attached to the castle is a museum, in which there is a fine collection of authenticated British birds. Many coins found during the excavations for the building of the modern castle and an ancient Roman amphora of copper and tin found in a field near the vil. are here preserved. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Upsall (2), tp., pa. of Ormesby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 W. of Guisborough; ac. 660. An extensive seam of ironstone is worked. U. Hall, a modern Gothic building, stands in large grounds, and commands extensive views of the Cleveland Hills.

Upsland. [KIRKLINGTON-WITH-UPSLAND.]

Upstreet, vil., pa. of and 1 S. from Chislet (q.v.), E. Kent.

Upton (1), pa. and vil., S. Hunts., near the Great North Road, 6 N.W. of Huntingdon; ac. 1,160; soil cold clay, overlying blue and white gault. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1871) is partly E. Eng., but the tower and spire were not added till 1500; one of the doorways has a singular trefoiled head, and the font is also of a very curious character.

Upton (2), pa., tp., and vil., watered by the Till, W. Lincs., 5 S.E. of Gainsborough; ac. of pa. 3,487, of tp. 1,981; soil stiff clay and loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (partially rebuilt and substantially repaired in 1867) was originally Norm. with Dec. and Perp. additions. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities average about £8 yearly.

Upton (3), pa. and vil., E. Notts., 5½ W. of Newark; ac. 1,440; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter was built in the 13th cent. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. Part of the charities is devoted to the schools. Southwell Union House is in the pa. There are corn mills and a brick and tile kiln. U. Hall is a seat.

Upton (4), pa. and vil., W. Somerset, 7 S.E. of Bampton; ac. 3,779; soil clay, overlying clay slate and clay. The old church of St. James has been abandoned, and a new church erected 1867 in E. Eng. style. Here is a Bible Christian chapel. Bittiscombe Manor is a seat.

Upton (5), pa., S. Northants, 2 W. from Northampton; ac. 979; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael (restored 1893) is Norm. and E. Eng. The County Lunatic Asylum is here. U. Hall, an ancient mansion, is a seat.

Upton (6), or Overchurch, pa. and vil., W. Ches., 4 S.W. of Birkenhead; ac. 943; soil sand, overlying rock. The church of St. Mary was built 1869 in Norm. style, in place of an earlier structure. U. Hall is now a convent. U. Manor is a seat.

Upton (7), pa. on south side of Milford Haven, S. Pembs., 3 N.E. of Pembroke; ac. 333. The church is a small E. Eng. edifice; it contains an ancient tomb with recumbent figure of an armed knight under a richly decorated canopy. In U. Castle are incorporated the remains of a fortress which is said to have been built by the family of Malefant; they include the double-arched entrance

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Uppingham	Seaton & U. (3)	98	2559
Uppington (1)	Wellington (3½)	153	78
Uppington (2)	Shrewsbury (8)	163	84
Upsall (1)	Thirsk (4)	210	130
Upsall (2)	Pinchingthorpe (1)	246	120
Upton (1)	Abbotts Ripton (4)	63	104
Upton (2), pa.	Lea (3)	143	513
Upton (2), tp.	Lea (3)	143	199
Upton (3)	Retford (4)	139	46
Upton (4)	Dulverton (4)	179	247
Upton (5)	Northampton (2)	66	1029
Upton (6)	Upton	196	687
Upton (7)	Pembroke (3)	272	28

gateway, on either side of which are circular bastions. The building commands very fine views of Milford Haven.

Upton (8), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Castor (q.v.), N.E. Northants, 7 N.W. of Peterborough; ac. 1,180. The church of St. John the Baptist (partly restored 1863) is Norm., Dec., and later work, and contains monuments to Sir William Dove (d. 1633), believed to be the work of Nicholas Stone. The Manor House, an ancient building with a curious subterranean passage, is now a farmhouse.

Upton (9), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Chester St. Mary-on-the-Hill (q.v.), W. Chesh., 2 N. of Chester; ac. 1,154. The church of the Holy Ascension was built 1854 in Gothic style. Here is a Congregational chapel and the County Lunatic Asylum. Nursery-gardening is carried on.

Upton (10), eccl. pa., pa. of Tormoham (q.v.), S. Dev. The church of St. Mary Magdalene was built 1849 in Gothic style.

Upton (11), tp., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., forming a suburb of Macclesfield; ac. 480. U. Hall is a seat. In a wall surrounding the grounds is an ancient cross, similar in design to those found in the old forest of Macclesfield, and now preserved in the public park of that to.

Upton (12), tp. and vil., pa. of Badsworth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 S.E. of Pontefract; ac. 1,074. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Upton (13), tp., pa. of Blewbury (q.v.), E. Berks., 16 N.W. of Reading; ac. 1,418. [UPTON AND ASTON UPTHORPE.]

Upton (14), tp. and vil., pa. of Sibson (q.v.), N.E. Leics., 5 N.E. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 1,284.

Upton (15), vil., pas. of Hurstbourne Tarrant and Vernhams Dean (q.v.), N.W. Hants, 2 S.E. of Vernhams Dean. Here is a Congregational chapel.

Upton (16), ha., pas. of Canford Magna and Corfe Mullen (q.v.), E. Dors., about 2 S.W. of Broadstone.

Upton (17), ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Osmington (q.v.), S. Dorset.

Upton (18), vil., pa. of Hawkesbury (q.v.), S. Glouc., 8 N.E. of Chipping Sodbury.

Upton (19), ha., pa. of and 4 S.W. from Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.

Upton (20), ha., pa. of Ratley (q.v.), S.E. Warws., 4 S.E. of Kineton. U. House is a seat.

Upton (21), vil., pa. of Haselor (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 2 N.E. of Alcester.

Upton (22), ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Long Sutton (q.v.), E. Somerset.

Upton (23), vil., pa. of and ½ N. from South Milton (q.v.), S. Dev.

Upton (24), ha., pa. of and ½ N.E. from Dinton (q.v.), Mid Bucks.

Upton (25), ha., pa. of Bexley (q.v.), N.W. Kent, 2 W. of Dartford.

Upton (26), ha., pa. of St. Peters (q.v.), E. Kent, 1½ S.W. of Broadstairs.

Upton (27), ha., pa. of and ½ S. from Headon (q.v.), N. Notts.

Upton (28). [DRINCHOE, UPTON, AND BROUGH; UPTON-WITH-FISHLEY.]

Upton (29), vil. with railway station, pa. of Knockavilla (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., about 5 N.E. of Bandon. The Danesfort Industrial School here was formerly a reformatory, but was converted into its present purpose in 1888. There is an infirmary and a church in the Gothic style attached to it.

Upton and Aston Upthorpe, eccl. pa., pa. of Blewbury (q.v.), E. Berks., 16 N.W. of Reading. The church of St. Mary (restored 1885) is very early Norm. or possibly Saxon. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. In the vil. is a picturesque Jacobean farmhouse. U. Lodge is a seat.

Upton and Signet, tp., pa. of and about 1 W. from Burford (q.v.), W. Oxon.; ac. 2,179.

Upton Bishop, pa. and vil., S. Herefords., 13 S.E. of Hereford; ac. 3,986; soil loam, overlying clay and limestone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1862) is E. Eng. and Dec. There is a Baptist chapel and some small charities. The Baches, Gayton Hall, Grandon Court, and The Manor House are seats.

Upton Cheyney, vil., pa. of Bitton (q.v.), S. Glouc., 5 W. of Bath.

Upton Cressett, pa., S. Salop, 4 W.S.W. of Bridgnorth; ac. 1,603; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Michael is Norm. and E. Eng., and contains some fragments of old stained glass, a brass to Richard Cressett (1640), and other memorials. Upton Hall, built 1580, an interesting old building, is now a farmhouse.

Upton Grey, pa. and vil., N.E. Hants, 6 N. of Alton; ac. 2,553; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Mary is Norm. and E. Eng. There is a charity of £23 yearly. Hoddington House and U. G. House are seats.

Upton Helions, pa. and vil. on the Creedy, E. Dev., 9 N.W. of Exeter; ac. 819; soil loam and clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary, formerly St. Nicholas (restored 1880), is Norm. and Perp.; there are several monuments, one temp. Elizabeth. There is a small charity.

Upton Lovell, pa. and small vil. on the Wylye, W. Wilts., 5½ S.E. of Warminster; ac. 1,400; soil chalky, overlying chalk and flint. The church of St. Augustine of Canterbury (restored 1892) is of various periods; a small window in the chancel is E. Norm. During the restoration the 12th-cent. font was discovered, as were also a defaced piscina and an aumbry with dog-tooth moulding. There is a factory here in which woollen cloths are made.

Upton Magna, pa. and vil., Mid Salop, 5 E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 3,282; soil various, overlying

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Upton (8)	Castor (1)	104	75
Upton (9), ec. pa.	Chester (2)	179	1415
Upton (9), tp.	Chester (2)	179	1313
Upton (10)	Torquay	215	4987
Upton (11)	Macclesfield (1½)	165	225
Upton (12)	Upton	169	245
Upton (13)	Upton	56	245
Upton (14)	Atherstone (4)	102	105
Upton & Aston U.	Upton	56	401
Upton & Signet	Shipton (4½)	81	259
Upton Bishop	Ross (4)	132	648
Upton Cressett	Bridgnorth (4)	149	61
Upton Grey	Hook (4)	42	378
Upton Helions	Crediton (3)	179	113
Upton Lovell	Heytesbury (1½)	109	233
Upton Magna	Upton Magna	159	431

clay. The church of St. Lucy (restored 1856) is Norm. and E. Eng. There are some small charities.

Upton Noble, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 3½ N.E. of Bruton; ac. 677; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is an ancient edifice (restored) containing a piscina, and there are remains of a cross in the churchyard. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Upton-on-Severn, pa. and mkt. to. (TH.), S. Worcs., 7 N. of Tewkesbury; ac. 2,855. The bridge across the Severn was built in 1853. The river is navigable for vessels of large burden, and the trade here was at one time considerable. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (1878–79) is in Dec. style. The church of the Good Shepherd (1870), a chapel-of-ease, is in E. Eng. style. Here is also a Catholic chapel, a Baptist chapel, and a Wesleyan chapel. Hall's charity, bequeathed in the 16th cent., yields a gross sum of about £200 yearly, applicable to the repairs of the church and bridge, and other parochial purposes. Another bequest yields about £50 a year, which is available in lieu of church rates, one-sixth of the amount being reserved for the benefit of the poor. There are a few minor charities. The town hall, with a market-house below, was built in 1832. Ham Court and The Hill are seats.

Upton Park, eccl. pa. and dis., pas. of East Ham and West Ham (q.v.), S.W. Essex, forming an east suburb of London, 6 E.N.E. of St. Paul's. U. Park is situated north of Plaistow and south of Forest Gate. The church of St. Stephen (1887) is in E. Eng. style. The other places of worship include a Roman Catholic church (1888) and Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Congregational chapels. Here are several Roman Catholic institutions, including a Franciscan monastery, an Ursuline convent, and a large reformatory for boys, under the control of the Brothers of Mercy. There is an ancient mansion of red brick known as Anne Boleyn's Castle, from the tradition that it was inhabited by that queen.

Upton Parva. [WATERS UPTON.]

Upton Pyne, pa. and vil., Mid Dev., 3½ N. of Exeter; ac. 1,852; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1875) is Dec.; among the monuments are those of Edmund Larder with effigy (1611), and several tablets and windows to members of the Stafford, Slanning and Northcote families. The charities amount to £7 yearly, and there is a workmen's club. Dr. John Walker, author of "The Sufferings of the Clergy," was rector and died and was buried here in 1746. Pynes, a seat, is a large and noble mansion, designed by Inigo Jones and enlarged in 1851. It stands on an eminence, commanding a view of the surrounding country, in a picturesque well-wooded park.

Upton St. Leonard, pa. and vil., Mid Glouc., 3 S.E. of Gloucester; ac. 2,833; soil gravel and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1889) is of various periods. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some small charities, and a small endowment for the school. On Painswick Beacon, in the pa., are remains of a Roman camp. Whitley Court is now a farmhouse. Bowden Hall, Kimsbury Hall, and St. Leonard's Court are seats.

Upton Scudamore, pa., W. Wilts., 2 N. of Warminster; ac. 2,493; soil strong loam, overlying marl. The church of St. Mary (restored 1859) is E. Eng., and contains a curious font of Norm. date and two mutilated effigies of the Scudamores, the family who were the chief owners of the pa. from the Conquest to the reign of Edward III. Here is a chapel for Baptists.

Upton Snodsbury, pa. and vil., Mid Worcs., 6 E. of Worcester; ac. 1,639; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Kenelm (restored and partly rebuilt 1873–74) is E. Eng. The charities, about £50 a year, are devoted to the repair of the church, the relief of the poor, and for school purposes.

Upton Warren, pa. and vil., Mid Worcs., 3 S.W. of Bromsgrove; ac. 2,600; soil and subsoil clay. Of the 12th-cent. church of St. Michael the only part of the original structure is the tower, the other parts having been rebuilt at the close of the 18th cent.

Upton Waters. [WATERS UPTON.]

Upton-with-Chalvey, pa., S. Bucks.; ac. 1,950. It contains the greater part of the to. of Slough (q.v.). The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1851) is in its oldest portion a very good specimen of Norm. work; the roof of the chancel is groined in stone and retains much of its original colouring. There are memorial tablets to Sir William Herschel (d. 1822), his wife, and the Bulstrode family. In the south aisle are several brasses with effigies to Edwarde Bulstrode, Esq., his wife and children (dated 1599).

Upton-with-Fishley, pa. and vil. (Upton), E. Norf., 2 N. of Acle; ac. 1,693; soil mixed, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Margaret (restored), which occupies the site of an earlier Norm. structure, is Perp.; the tower is in ruins, but a small building has been erected within it to serve as a belfry, and contains one bell, which for two centuries hung in a shed at the east end of the church; on the panels of the old rood-screen are painted figures of St. Chrysostom, St. Jerome, St. Gregory the Great, St. Ambrose, St. Ethelreda, St. Johanna of Spain, St. Agatha and St. Margaret, and there is a fine font. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Up Waltham, small pa., S.W. Sussex, 6 S.W. of Petworth, on the road to Chichester; ac. 1,275. The pa. forms a portion of the South Downs, of which the soil is chalky and the surface boldly undulated. The church (dedication not known) is a small E. Eng. building with semicircular apse.

Upway, pa. and vil. in a beautiful valley, open at the south and sheltered by lofty hills at the west and north, S. Dors., 4 N. of Weymouth; ac. 1,785; soil heavy clay, overlying clay and rock.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Upton Noble	Somerset (2)	112	202
Upton-on-Severn	Upton-on-Severn	135	2260
Upton Park	Upton Park	5	13786
Upton Pyne	Bramford Speke (1½)	186	460
Upton St. Leonard	Gloucester (3)	114	1666
Upton Scudamore	Warminster (2)	106	256

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Upton Snodsbury	Pershore (3)	112	341
Upton Warren	Stoke Works (2)	130	285
Upton-with-Chalvey	Slough	18	7700
Upton-with-Fishley	Acle (2)	124	530
Up Waltham	Petworth (4)	55	67
Upway	Upway	139	770

The Dorsetshire Wey rises here and presents a beautiful fountain, known as the "Wishing Well," formed by one of the largest springs in England, often visited by George III. for drinking the water during his stay at Weymouth; it rises at the foot of a hill, flows through several vils., and empties itself into the sea at Weymouth. Of the church of St. Lawrence (restored 1891) the oldest parts are the Perp. tower and north aisle. By the doorway is a niche for a holy-water stoup, and over the entrance lobby are the royal arms of George III. The pulpit, of carved oak, dates from the reign of Charles I. Here is a Congregational chapel. The charities are considerable. A large Celtic barrow has been opened and skeletons and bronze and flint implements were discovered. Eastbrook House, U. House, and Westbrook are seats.

Upwell, large pa. and vil. (formerly a mkt. to.), S.W. Norf., extending into Cambs., 6½ S.E. of Wisbech station, to which there is a steam tramway. The pa. is situated on either side of the river Nen, which divides the shires; ac. 16,454, of which 7,382 are in Cambs.; soil loamy, in many parts highly fertile, subsoil clay. For civil purposes the Norf. and Cambs. portions are distinct. The church of St. Peter (restored 1888) is Perp. with some traces of Norm. work. There are Wesleyan, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Almshouses, erected in 1819, are for five poor widows. In the Public Hall, the property of a company, public meetings, concerts and lectures are held. The Church Institute occupies the old National school. Fairs are held on June 29 and 30.

Upwell Christchurch, eccl. pa., Isle of Ely, formed from the Cambs. portion of the pa. of Upwell (q.v.), 3 N.E. of Stonea railway station. Christ Church is a modern building.

Upwood (anciently "Upwode"), pa., N. Hunts., 8 N.E. of Huntingdon; ac. 1,871; soil partly of a stiff clayey, partly gravelly, and partly of a fenny nature, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1885) is Norm. and E. Eng. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities include the interest on £500 Consols, and £1 a year for widows. The poor's land of 13 ac. produces £20 yearly for public uses. The site of U. House was once occupied by a palace of King Edgar, and subsequently passed through the hands of Ailwin, Earl of the East Angles, the monks of Ramsey Abbey, and the Cromwell family.

Urchfont, or Erchfont, pa., tp. and vil., E. Wilts., 5 S.E. of Devizes; ac. of pa. 6,872, of tp. 6,235; soil and subsoil principally sandstone with some greensand. The church of St. Michael (restored 1840) is Dec.; the nave is separated from the aisles by E. Eng. arches supported by pillars; the chancel is large, and has a groined stone roof, and contains a piscina. In 1880 a legacy of £1,000 was bequeathed for the poor, and there are 200 ac. of land let in allotments.

Ure, river, N. and W.R. Yorks.; rises near the Dur. border, 7 W. by S. of Mukers, and runs for a few miles S., then E. past Hawes, Askrigg, and Aysgarth to the S. vicinity of Leyburn, whence it proceeds E. by S. to the pa. of Thornton Steward; here turning S. by E. runs past Masham to the pa. of Kirkby Malzeard, after which its course is again E. by S. as far as the seat of Norton Conyers, near Wath, and then S.S.E. past the to. of Ripon to Newby Hall. From this point it flows nearly due E. through the to. of Boroughbridge, 2 E. of which it joins the Swale, their united waters forming the Ouse. The U. is about 70 miles long, and is navigable to Ripon.

Uregare, pa., Coshma and Smallcounty bars., E. co. Lim., Ir., 2 S. of Bruff, watered by the Morning Star rivulet; ac. 4,844.

Urgeshay, ha., pa. of and 1¼ W. from West Camel (q.v.), E. Somerset.

Urglin, pa., Carlow bar., N. co. Carlow, Ir., 3 N.E. of Carlow; ac. 3,140.

Uriconium. [WROXETER.]

Urishay Castle. [PETERCHURCH.]

Urlaur, loch, Costello bar., E. co. Mayo, Ir., close to the Rosc. border, 6½ N. of Ballyhaunis. The loch extends about 2 S.E. and N.W.

Urlay Nook, ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Egglescliffe (q.v.), S. Dur. Here are chemical works.

Urlingford, pa. and to., Galmoy bar., N. co. Kilk., Ir., 10 N.E. of Thurles; ac. 3,497. The to. is surrounded by bogs and in the centre of an agricultural country, but the mills, once in a flourishing condition, are now going to decay. The Protestant church is a very small Gothic building, but the Catholic church is a spacious cruciform structure. Monthly fairs are held.

Urmston, eccl. pa., tp. and vil., pa. of Flixton (q.v.), S. Lancs., 6 S.W. by W. of Manchester; ac. 993. The church of St. Clement was built 1868 in Dec. style. Here are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Congregational and Independent Methodist chapels. John Collier, "Tim Bobbin," is believed to have been born here. U. Hall is a Tudor building.

Urney (1), pa., Upper and Lower Loughtee bars., Mid co. Cavan, Ir., bounded on the west by Lough Oughter; ac. 7,502. It contains the to. of Cavan (q.v.), where the pa. church is situated. Farnham House, a seat, lies on the east bank of Lough Oughter.

Urney (2), pa. on the Finn and Mourne, Omagh West and Strabane Lower bars., N.W. co. Tyr., and Raphoe South bar., S.E. co. Don., Ir., 4 S.W. of Strabane; ac. 22,061. It contains part of the to. of Strabane and the vils. of Castlederg, Clady and Sion Mills (q.v.). Limestone is abundant here.

Urpeth, scattered tp., pa. of Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur., 8 S. of Gateshead; ac. 1,725. Here are several extensive collieries.

Urquhart, pa. and vil., N.E. Elgs., Sc., 4 E. of Elgin; ac. 13,066; soil sandy and light. The pa. borders the North Sea, stretching from the Spey on the east to the Lossie on the west, and narrowing

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Upwell	Wisbech (6)	94	3494
Upwell Christchurch	Stonea (3)	82	859
Upwood	Ramsey (3)	75	413
Urchfont, pa.	Devizes (5)	86	1133
Urchfont, tp.	Devizes (5)	86	980
Uregare	Kilmallock (4)	126	782
Urglin	Carlow (3)	56	518

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Urlingford, pa.	Thurles (10)	87	1025
Urlingford, to.	Thurles (10)	87	744
Urmston	Urmston	192	4042
Urney (1)	Cavan	88	4186
Urney (2)	Clady	166	7595
Urpeth	Birtley (2)	262	2172
Urquhart, pa.	Urquhart	583	1917

to a point as it extends inland. In the north-west is a heath-covered plain; elsewhere the surface is undulating, reaching an extreme height of about 220 ft. The Established church dates from 1844; there are also Free churches. The antiquities include a small stone circle and the well belonging to a priory founded by David I. in 1125, and implements of flint and stone have been discovered. Innes House and Leuchars are seats.

Urquhart and Glenmoriston, pa. on the west side of Loch Ness, Invs., Sc.; ac. 122,705; the soil of U. is generally a rich loam; that of G. is light and sandy. The ruins of Urquhart Castle stand on a low rock projecting into Loch Ness, about 13 S.W. of Inverness, and below Glen Urquhart (q.v.).

URQUHART CASTLE.

Urquhart and Logie Wester, pa., E. Ross and Crom. and N.W. Nairns., Sc., 3 E. of Dingwall; ac. 13,581; soil mostly deep black mould, elsewhere rich clayey loam, overlying gravel or sand. From Cromarty Firth and the river Conan, which skirt the pa. on the west, the surface gradually rises towards the interior of the Black Isle, reaching an extreme height of about 620 ft. From the higher ground there are extensive and interesting views of the Firth and the opposite coast. The Established church, which stands beside the Firth, is a plain building erected in 1795; there is also a Free church. Conan House, Ferintosh, and Findon House are seats.

Urr, pa., S.E. Kirkcuds., Sc., containing several vils. and the to. of Dalbeattie (q.v.); ac. 15,426. The pa. church is at Haugh of Urr.

Urra, ha. on the Rye, pa. of Helmsley (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Stokesley.

Urray, extensive pa., S. Ross and Crom., Sc.; ac. 72,640; soil in the lower lands heathy and unproductive, but on the rising ground fertile. The church stands on the road from Inverness and Beauly to Dingwall, and is about 3 W. of Muir-of-Ord station. The rivers Orrin and Meig both have their source in the western part of the pa., having their confluence with the Strath Garve at its eastern extremity. Tarradale is a seat, and was the birthplace of Sir R. J. Murchison (1792–1871).

Urr, Haugh of, picturesque vil. on the east bank of the Water of Urr, pa. of Urr (q.v.), S.E. Kirkcuds., Sc., about 3½ N.E. of Dalbeattie. In the neighbourhood is a waterfall called Spottes Lynn, a ferruginous well, and a romantic glen, interesting both to the botanist and geologist. On the bank of the river, about a mile from the vil., is the Moat of Urr, an artificial mound surrounded by elevated circles, and supposed to have been used in primitive times as a place for public meetings. The Established church was erected in 1815.

Urrin, river, W. co. Wex., Ir., rises on the south-east side of Mount Leinster, and runs 12 S.E. through Scarawalsh bar., and along the border of Scarawalsh and Bantry bars., joining the Bann immediately below Enniscorthy.

Urrisbeg. [ROUNDSTONE.]

Urris Hills, hill-range (1,379 ft.), East and West Inishowen bars., N.E. co. Don., Ir., 6½ N.N.W. of Buncrana. The range runs S.S.W. along the east shore of Lough Swilly, terminating in Dunree Head.

Urr, Old Bridge of, small vil. on the banks of Urr Water, pa. of Kirkpatrick Durham (q.v.), N.E. Kirkcuds., Sc., 4 N. of Castle Douglas.

Urr Water, river, S.E. Kirkcuds., Sc., rises in Loch Urr, on the Dumfs. border, 15 W. by S. of Dumfries, and runs 27 S., S.S.E., and S. by E. to the Solway Firth, dividing the pas. of Kirkpatrick Durham, Urr, and Colvend on the east from those of Balmaclellan, Parton, Crossmichael, and Buittle on the west. The earlier part of its course lies through a romantic valley, but lower down its banks are lined by flat cultivated land. The trout are good and abundant, but the number of the salmon has greatly diminished. About 4 miles before entering the Solway Firth it forms an estuary, sometimes called Rough Firth, which has an extreme breadth of about a mile. The river is navigable for 7 or 8 miles from its mouth for vessels of 80 tons.

Urswick, pa. and vil., N.W. Lancs., 3 S. of Ulverston; ac. 3,132; soil loam and clay, subsoil mixed. The church of St. Mary is Norm. and contains a 13th or 14th-cent. monumental slab to Amicia, daughter of John le Francys, and a piscina. Iron ore is worked. Hawkfield, now a farmhouse, retains portions of the Bolton chapel, temp. Henry III.

Urswick, Little, vil., pa. of Urswick (q.v.), N.W. Lancs., about ½ mile from the pa. church. It consists principally of the parsonage and the residences of several yeoman farmers.

Ury, river, Mid Abers., Sc., rises 4 S.S.E. of Huntly and flows first E. between the pas. of Drumblade and Forgue and that of Insch, and then S.E. through Culsalmond pa., and between those of Rayne and Chapel of Garioch on the left and that of Oyne on the right, after which it winds alternately E. and S. through Chapel of Garioch pa. and between Inverurie and Keithhall and Kinkell, joining the Don immediately below Inverurie. It is about 20 miles long, and abounds in trout.

Use Mountains, hill-range (1,329 ft.), Duhallow bar., N. co. Cork, Ir., 1½ N. of Newmarket. The range extends about 2½ W. by N. and S. by E. along

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Urquhart & Glen.	Inverness (16)	590	2040
Urquhart & Logie W.	Conon (2)	606	2328
Urr	Dalbeattie	347	4589

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Urray	Muir-of-Ord (3)	693	2[illegible]3
Urswick	Dalton (2)	250	151

the south bank of the river Allua, near the Lim. border.

Ushaw Moor, pl. with railway station, pa. of Lanchester (q.v.), Mid Dur., 4 w. of Durham. For the Roman Catholic College of St. Cuthbert, see ESH.

Ushnagh, Hill of, eminence (602 ft.), Rathconrath bar., S.W. co. Wstm., Ir., 4½ E. of Ballymore.

Usk (1), pa., tp. and mkt. to. and ancient bor., Mid Mon., 13 S.W. of Monmouth ; ac. of pa. 4,956, of tp. 404. The to. is seated on the banks of the Usk, over which is a stone bridge of four arches ; this place is of remote antiquity, and antiquarians have pronounced it to have been the Burrium of the Romans. The name Usk is derived from the Gaelic " Visge," which signifies water. Here are the remains of an ancient castle, standing on an eminence overlooking the to. This place was of great importance during the wars between the Welsh and the Anglo-Normans, and at a later period in the time of the celebrated Owen Glendower ; in the civil commotions between Charles I. and his Parliament the castle was repeatedly assaulted and, together with the to., partly demolished ; the present remains of the castle are of considerable extent, and partially covered with ivy. U., in connection with Newport and Monmouth, forms the Monmouth parl. dis. of bors. which returns one member to Parliament. The church of St. Mary has portions of Norm., Late Dec., and Perp. work ; it is of Anglo-Norm. origin, and was formerly the church of a house of Benedictine nuns, founded here before 1174. The nave, north aisle, and tower formed part of the ancient conventual church, and the gateway of the nunnery also remains ; in the church are several brasses with inscriptions ; there is also a good choir-screen and one memorial window. The churchyard contains many monuments, including several to the old family of Nicholl of Ham ; on the south-east of the church stands the Priory, which was rebuilt a few years since and the existing remains preserved as far as practicable. There are also Catholic, Baptist, Congregational, and Wesleyan chapels. The Free Grammar School, founded by Roger Edwards in 1621, is now regulated by a scheme the Charity Commissioners framed in 1878. The town hall is leased to the burgesses by the lord of the manor, and is used for public meetings and entertainments. Her Majesty's prison, in Maryport Street, is a large building of stone, arranged to hold about 200 prisoners on the separate system. The court-house adjoining is a large and handsome stone building. The market is held on Friday and a cattle market the first and third Monday in every month. Fairs are held on April 20, a wool fair on Friday before June 20, Oct. 29, and a Christmas fair on Dec. 16. Wood-turning and chair-making are carried on.

Usk (2), river of Brecons. and Mon., rises below Talsarn, a summit of the Black Mountains, and for a short distance runs N. between Carmarths. and Brecons., then turning E. traverses W. Brecons. to Brecknock, 16 miles from its source. Between the Carmarths. border and Brecknock it passes Trecastle, Devynnock, and Aberyscir, the Brecknock Beacons rising towards the south in sublime grandeur. After leaving Brecknock, which is most romantically situated amidst overhanging cliffs, it runs E.S.E. and S.E. by Peterstone Court and Skethrog to the secluded and picturesque vil. of Llangynidr. The vale along which it flows here expands and assumes a softer character, well-tilled fields alternating with the thick woods by which its banks are lined. The river now runs E. by S. past Crickhowell to Abergavenny, leaving the Black Mountains on the left and flowing between the Sugar Loaf and the Blorenge range immediately after entering Monmouthshire. From Abergavenny it proceeds S.E., E., S. by W., and S.E. to Usk, traversing the central part of Mon. and passing by or close to the pleasant seats of Clytha Castle, Coldbrook, Llanarer House, and Trostrey Hall. From Usk the river runs S. to Kemeys Inferior, passing Llanllowell, Llantrissent, and Tredunnock (where it becomes navigable for barges), and skirting the

USK, GENERAL VIEW.
(Photo. H. Dunning, Usk.)

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Usk (1), pa.	Usk	157	1956
Usk (1), tp.	Usk	157	1417
Usk (1), bor.	Usk	157	1447

west extremity of Wentwood Forest. It then winds W.S.W. past the venerable to. of Caerleon, and finally, on reaching Malpas, turns abruptly S. and finds its way by a very circuitous course to the Bristol Channel. A little below Malpas, on the opposite bank, is a house called St. Julian's, once the abode of the famous Lord Herbert of Cherbury. The estuary forms a good harbour, extending nearly to Newport, 5 miles from its mouth, where there are excellent docks. The U. is about 70 miles long. Its salmon and trout are famous, especially the former.

Usk (3), pa., Narragh and Reban East bar., S. co. Kildare, Ir., 3½ N. of Ballytore; ac. 1,763.

Uskane, pa., Lower Ormond bar., N. co. Tip., Ir., 2 E. of Borrisokane; ac. 7,656.

Usselby, pa., N. Lincs., 3 N. by W. of Market Rasen; ac. 835; soil and subsoil sand and clay. The church of St. Margaret is a small building of stone in Gothic style.

Ussie, loch, pa. of Fodderty, E. Ross and Crom., Sc., 2¾ W. by S. of Dingwall. The loch is nearly circular in outline, the greatest distance from shore to shore being ¾ mile. It contains several islets, and the plantations on its east and south banks give it a very picturesque appearance.

Usworth, Great and Little, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Washington (q.v.), N. Dur., 7 W. of Sunderland. The church of the Holy Trinity (1832) is a plain rectangular building. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There is an educational charity of £30 yearly, and other charities amount to £3 3s. yearly. In the tp. are extensive collieries.

Utkinton, tp., pa. of and 1½ N. from Tarporley (q.v.), W. Chesh.; ac. 1,841. U. Hall, now a farmhouse, was formerly a seat, and much more extensive; some of the materials of the portions taken down were conveyed to Tarporley and used in building the market hall.

Utterby, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 4 N. by W. of Louth, on the road to Grimsby; ac. 1,564; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew is Dec. and Late Perp.; the south doorway is well moulded and its jambs are enriched with carvings; above it is a rich canopy; the door still retains some excellent ironwork. In the chancel is a piscina, an aumbry, and a statue bracket; some fragments of ancient glass remain in the windows; in the wall of the north aisle is now placed a large slab, in the upper part of which is a very deeply cut elongated quatrefoil enclosing the bust of a priest in chasuble and amice, with his hands conjoined in prayer, and round the slab is an inscription, but without date, to William de Cumberworth, formerly vicar here. Here are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. U. House is a seat.

Uttoxeter (anciently "Uttoxethather," "Uttokcester," and "Utcester"), pa., U. and mkt. to., and head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., E. Staffs., 15 N.N.W. of Burton-on-Trent; ac. 9,209. The to. is situated on a fine dry elevation, on the borders of Derbys., about a mile from the Dove, over which is a handsome stone bridge. Evidence exists to show that U. or its immediate neighbourhood was a British settlement before the Roman occupation, and is deemed also to have been a Roman station, various fragments of Roman pottery and metal work having been met with on the spot. During the Civil War the inhabitants, though suffering from the exactions of both parties, sided generally with the Parliament, but on the accession of Charles II. the to. became demonstrative in its loyalty; great rejoicings took place here on the acquittal of the seven bishops in 1688, and in 1745 the Duke of Cumberland, advancing to meet the forces of Prince Charles Edward, remained here two nights. U. suffered severely from extensive fires in 1596 and 1672, and in 1646 was visited by the plague. The church of St. Mary, originally Dec., was re-erected, with the exception of the tower and spire, in 1828. U. is mentioned as having a church in 1251, but the structure, removed in 1828, was erected between 1307–77, and the existing tower and spire belong to that period; some remains, however, of the earlier building were discovered during the restoration. There are two 16th-cent. altar-tombs to the Kynnersleys of Loxley, one bearing the effigy of a knight in armour, the other that of a réligieuse. In 1648 the church was converted into a place of confinement for Scotch prisoners, who did great damage to the building. There are also chapels-of-ease, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. Alleyne's Grammar School, founded 1558, was restored in 1859, and a new scheme adopted in 1886. The town hall, in the High Street, is a handsome building of brick with stone dressings; it contains rooms for the magistrates' meetings, the county court, literary institute, and police office with cells. The market-place is extensive, and from it the principal streets diverge. The market is held every Wednesday, and is well supplied with corn and provisions, and every alternate Wednesday with a good number of cattle. At the back of the town hall is Smithfield market, for cattle; several fairs are held: for cattle, on May 6, Sept. 19, and Nov. 11 and 27; colt fair, Sept. 19; and for cheese, the Thursday after the second Tuesday in March, the first Tuesday in Sept., and the second Thursday in Nov. Here is a large brewery; some business is done in brick-making, and there are large agricultural-implement works. There are almshouses in Carter Street for four widows, and others in the same street for eight widows; there are also a number of cottages in Pinfold Lane in which aged persons, on a nominal acknowledgment, are permitted to reside. The to. has also other considerable charities, amounting altogether to about £[illegible] yearly, which is distributed partly in clothing, fuel, and provisions, and the residue in money. Dr. Johnson did voluntary penance in U. market-place by standing bareheaded in the rain in remorse for having refused years previously to take charge of his father's bookstall while the latter was ill in bed. A bas-relief copied from the statue at Lichfield has been inserted in the conduit in the market to perpetuate the event.

Uttoxeter Canal, N.E. Staffs., runs 18 miles to

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Usk (3)	Dunlavin (3)	31	342
Uskane	Cloughjordan (7)	87	698
Usselby	Usselby	147	50
Usworth Gt. & Little	Usworth	262	4513

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Utkinton	Beeston Castle (4)	169	[illegible]
Utterby	Louth (4½)	141	[illegible]
Uttoxeter	Uttoxeter	141	[illegible]

a N.W. direction from Uttoxeter, joining the Caldon Canal near Cheddleton.

Uwchygraig. [LLANDDWYWE UWCH Y GRAIG.]

Uxbridge, tp., chap., U. and mkt. to. (TH. & S.), and head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., pa. of Hillingdon (q.v.), W. Middx., 16 N.W. of London; ac. 89. The Colne is here crossed by a substantial brick bridge of five arches, called High Bridge, and it is probable that from a bridge which once occupied the same or nearly the same site the to. derived its name. U. is said to be one of the small bors. created by Alfred the Great, and was then called "Wexbruge"—the Anglo-Saxon for Great Bridge—though no mention of it occurs in Domesday Book. In the oldest existing documents it is written "Oxebruge," and later on "Woxebrigge" and "Woxbridge." At this to., in Jan., 1645, was held the meeting which resulted in a fruitless treaty between the Commissioners of King Charles I. and those of the Parliament; the Commissioners met at a house now known as the "Old Treaty House and Crown Inn;" the rooms retain much of the fine old carving which formerly ornamented the walls. There are eccl. pas.; the church of St. Margaret (restored 1872) is Debased Perp.; it retains a good Perp. font, and there is an alabaster altar-tomb with recumbent effigy to Leonora (d. 1638), widow of Sir John Bennet, LL.D. The church of St. Andrew is in Dec. style, from the designs of Sir G. Gilbert Scott. There is a Catholic mission church, and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The town hall, prominently situated in the High Street, comprises a large hall with gallery, savings bank, and various committee rooms; the large hall is licensed for theatrical performances, music and dancing. The Colne and the Grand Junction Canal are a great source of convenience to the trade; on the former are situated many large corn mills, and from these a great quantity of flour is sent to the London market; on the latter there are sawing, planing, and moulding mills and wharves, from which W. Middx. and S. Bucks. obtain their principal supply of timber, slates, and coal. Here are also two small breweries, iron foundries, and agricultural-implement works and engineering works. Fairs are held on March 25, July 31, Sept. 29, and Oct. 11, the last two being statute fairs; there is also a wool fair held on Aug. 1. A sale of sheep, horned cattle, and pigs is held on Thursday in each week. The charities, which are numerous and considerable, are administered by trustees.

Uxbridge Division, one of the seven parl. divs. of Middx.; it lies in the west of the co., and returns one member.

Uxbridge Moor, eccl. pa., pa. of Hillingdon (q.v.), W. Middx., forming part of the to. of Uxbridge (q.v.). The church of St. John is in E. Eng style; the bell, dated 1582 and inscribed "Sancte Johanne ora pro nobis," was originally a Sanctus bell and came from the vil. church of Flaunden, in Herts.

Uyea, island, pa. of Unst (q.v.), N. Shetland, Sc., 37 N. by E. of Lerwick. U. lies on the south side of the island of Unst, at a distance of ¼ mile, on the south-east side of U. Sound. It is about 1½ mile long and 1 mile broad, the surface consisting principally of sheep-pastures.

Uyea Sound, bay on the south side of the island of Unst (q.v.), N. Shetland, Sc., 37 N. by E. of Lerwick. It extends about 2 miles inland in a N.E. direction, and, owing to the protection afforded by the island of U. on its south-east side, forms an excellent harbour.

Uyeasound, pl. with school on Uyea Sound, in south of Unst Island, N. Shetland, Sc., 39 N. by E. of Lerwick.

Uzmaston, pa., Mid Pembs., partly within the bor. of Haverfordwest (q.v.) and extending 2 S.E.; ac. 2,070; soil clay and gravel, overlying clay.

V.

Vabon, ha., pa. of and adjoining Llangadock (q.v.), E. Carmarths.

Vaila, island at entrance of V. Sound, pa. of Walls, Mainland, W. Shetland, Sc., 15 W. by N. of Lerwick. The island is about 1½ mile long from east to west, and somewhat less in extreme breadth. The nearest part of the mainland—a promontory extending from the east side of the sound—approaches within ¼ mile of the island.

Vaila Sound, inlet of the sea on south shore of pa. of Walls, Mainland, W. Shetland, Sc., 15 W. by N. of Lerwick. The sound extends about 1¼ N.N.E., and, being protected by V. Island, forms a very good harbour.

Vainor. [VAYNOR.]

Vainor, Lower, tp. on the sea-coast, pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), N.E. Cardigs., ½ N.N.E. of Aberystwith; ac. 1,012. The tp. is partly in Aberystwith bor. Cwmcynfelin is a seat.

Vainor, Upper, tp., pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), N.E. Cardigs., 2 E. of Aberystwith; ac. 1,503. The Rheidol forms the south boundary. Some ancient upright stones remain. Fronfrath and Lovesgrove are seats.

Val des Vaux, picturesque valley in west of Jersey, Channel Islands, extending about 4 N. of St. Helier's.

Vale, pa. at north extremity of Guernsey, Channel Islands, 2½ N. by E. of St. Peter's Port; ac. 2,088. The pa. consists of two detached portions, separated by a strip of the pa. of St. Sampson, which stretches right across Guernsey; the more northerly portion—containing L'Ancresse Common—was formerly an island, but about 1803 the tract now known as the Braye du Val was reclaimed from the sea; it now contains some of the best land in Guernsey. The church of St. Michael is a Norm. edifice with zigzag ornamentation and a fine recessed porch. The Vale Castle—situated beside the coast on the north side of St. Sampson's Harbour—is said to have been originally built in the 10th cent.; it is a picturesque structure, entered through a pointed archway; the building is now used as a barrack.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Uxbridge	Uxbridge	16	3154
Uxbridge Division	.....	.....	67789
Uxbridge Moor	Uxbridge	16	1951
Uzmaston	Haverfordwest	264	549

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Vaila	Thurso (160)	744	19
Vainor, Lower	Aberystwith (½)	243	281
Vainor, Upper	Aberystwith (2)	243	337
Vale	Southampton	79	3947

Vale, East, suburb, and forming part of the bor. of Longton (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., within the parl. bor. of Stoke-upon-Trent.

Valence. [WESTERHAM.]

Valentia, or Valencia, pa. and island off the west coast of co. Kerry, Ir., 3 S.W. of Cahirciveen; ac. 6,371, but only a small portion is under cultivation. The island is about 7 miles long and 3 miles broad. There are Protestant and Catholic churches, a dispensary, three National schools and one Protestant school, constabulary barracks, a coastguard station and two post-offices on the island. The ruins of the old church, of unknown date, stand on an eminence about a mile above the Knight's Town (q.v.), and serve as a landmark to the inner harbour; in addition two beacons have been erected. On the small headland at Cromwell's Fort, on the north side of the island, is a lighthouse. The station of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co. is on this island, there being now four cables for the transmission of messages to America and one to Emden in Germany. Building stone is plentiful, and slate of good quality is abundant, but at present these quarries are not worked. The scenery is unsurpassed; mountain, moorland and sea combining to form a picture of marvellous beauty. The climate, though somewhat humid, is very healthy, its mildness being shown by the luxuriant growth of the flowering plants, the fuchsias in the grounds of Glanleam being remarkable for size and beauty. From March 1 to June 30 and again during the autumn a large number of V. boats are engaged in fishing, and others come from Belfast, Arklow, Isle of Man, etc. Vessels laden with ice for the preservation of fish in transit likewise come here, and steamers from Cork and Limerick call here twice weekly en route for Cahirciveen. A ferry boat from the pier to the mainland is always in readiness. V. Harbour extends between the island and the mainland; it is quite land-locked, the entrances being narrow. The Atlantic here even in calm weather rolls in very heavily, and in a storm the waves are gigantic. The depth of water is sufficient for large vessels such as the American liners to enter the harbour in safety, and at a moderate outlay for clearing away certain rocks it could doubtless be much improved.

Vale of Vortigern. [PISTILL (1).]

Vale of White Horse, the valley of the Ock, N. Berks., extending from the western border of the co. near Shrivenham to Abingdon. It is celebrated in ancient story as the scene of English victories over Danish invaders, traditionally perpetuated by the rude but well-known figure on one of the hills forming the south boundary of the vale, and known as the White Horse Hill, of a white horse in a galloping position, 314 ft. in length and occupying nearly an acre of ground on the upper part of the hill; its shape is determined by trenched lines between 2 and 3 ft. deep and about 10 ft. broad, cut in the white chalk; the head, neck, body and tail are composed of one line varying in width, and one line or trench has been made for each of the legs. This figure has been popularly accepted as a memorial of the great victory of Æscendune or Ashdown fought in 871, in which King Æthelred with Alfred his brother signally defeated the Danes and slew their king, Baegsaeg; the battle is believed by some to have been fought on this spot, and this view has been supported by Dr. Wise and more recently by the late Mr. Hughes, author of "Tom Brown"; but other authorities fix the site of the encounter more to the east, on the swelling hills above Aston Upthorpe, one point in which has long been known as "King's Standing." Though the situation of the figure effectually preserves it from all danger of obliteration, yet the inhabitants of the neighbouring pas. hold from time to time a rustic fete, on which occasion they clear away any accumulation of weeds. This obligation or custom had, however, died out in 1780, but was revived with much success in 1858, an event which has been amusingly perpetuated in Mr. Hughes's "Scouring of the White Horse." On the summit of the hill is a magnificent British or Danish camp, known as "Uffington Castle," after the vil. lying below, and surrounded by a high inner vallum and a slighter one on the outside, both regarded as Danish, but it bears evidence of its subsequent occupation by the Romans; half a mile further north-west is another camp called "Hardwell Castle," nearly square in form and also surrounded by a double vallum. Right down below the White Horse is a curious deep and broad gully called "The Manger," into one side of which the hills fall in sweeping curves known as "The Giant's Stairs;" the other side of the Manger is called "Dragon's Hill," or more properly "Pendragon's Hill," from a chief slain in battle and buried here.

VALE OF WHITE HORSE.

Vale Royal. [WHITEGATE (1).]

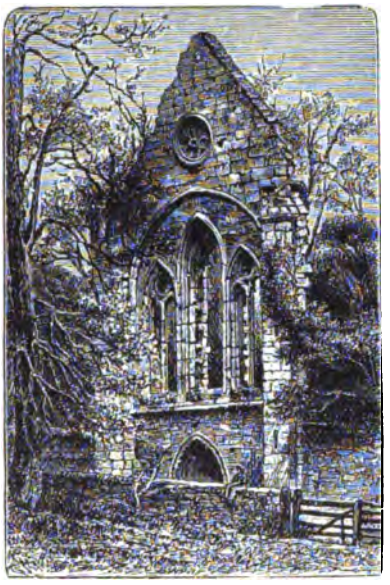
Valla Feld, hill-range (700 ft.), pa. of Unst (q.v.), N. Shetland, Sc., 39 N. by E. of Lerwick. The range extends along nearly the whole of the west shore of the island, affording effectual protection against the Atlantic gales; it is about 11 miles in length, and terminates north in Henna Ness (657 ft.), the north-west extremity of Unst. It is skirted on its east side by a valley, in which is a chain of freshwater lochs.

Vallay, island, pa. of North Uist (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, N.W. Invs., Sc., 48 W.N.W. of Portree. The island extends 2½ E.N.E. and W.S.W., nowhere reaching ½ mile in width. It is situated on the north-west side of North Uist, with which it is connected at low water by a strand 2 miles in breadth. The light sandy soil is rich, but the surface is often buried under the storms of sand caused by the Atlantic gales.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Valentia	Valentia Harbour	235	2050

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Pop. 1891.
Vallay	Stromo Ferry (88)	661

Valle Crucis (= "Vale of the Cross"), ruined abbey, pa. of Llantysilio (q.v.), S.E. Denbighs., 1½ N.W. of Llangollen. The ruins are beautifully situated at the foot of a hill in a romantic and secluded glen. It has been conjectured that the name is due to the configuration of the valley, which here resembles a cross in form. The abbey was a Cistercian house, founded by Madoc ap Gryffydd Maelor at the beginning of the 13th cent. It was a cruciform building, mainly E. Eng. with Dec. and Perp. portions; the central tower has disappeared. The west front exhibits some fine work, having a doorway enriched with the dog-tooth ornament and surmounted by three lancets, above which is a rose-window or catherine-wheel. The five narrow lancets at the east end are also in the best style of the E. Eng. period. Within the building are columns surrounded by clustered shafts with good capitals. On the south side of the church are the remains of the conventual buildings, including a vaulted chapter-house, and above it the dormitory, the roof of which is also vaulted.



West Front, Valle Crucis.

Valley End, eccl. pa., pas. of Chobham and Windlesham (q.v.), W. Surrey, about 6 S.W. of Chertsey. The church of St. Saviour (1861) is in E. Eng. style.

Valley of Rocks, romantic valley on north coast of Dev., 1 W. of Lynton. It is a narrow ravine running east and west between two steep ridges, that on the south side being covered with turf, whilst towards the north the rocks and boulders rise one above another in wild confusion. It is entered by a natural gateway formed by two immense blocks of sandstone and grit. The valley is strewn with stones and masses of rock, amidst which ferns grow luxuriantly. Many of the crags have names suggested by their fantastic shapes, such as the Chimney Rock, Rugged Jack, the Castle Rock, and the Devil's Cheesewring.

Vallis Bottom, romantic dingle, pa. of and 1½ W.N.W. from Frome (q.v.), N.E. Somerset. The glen is small, secluded, and beautifully wooded; many small streams steal peacefully amidst the herbage, and there are several species of rare plants. V. House, the ancient seat of the Leversedge family, is now occupied in tenements.

Vallis Dei. [Edenham (1).]

Valtos (1), vil. on west shore of Loch Roag, pa. of Uig (q.v.), in west of Lewis Island, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 26 W. of Stornoway.

Valtos (2), vil. on east coast of pa. of Kilmuir (q.v.), Isle of Skye, N.W. Invs., Sc., 13½ N. by E. of Portree. There was an agrarian outbreak here in 1885.

Vample Cross, ha., pa. of Nettlecombe (q.v.), W. Somerset, 3 S.W. of Watchet.

Van, tp., pa. of Bedwas (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., on the Mon. border, 1 E. of Caerphilly; ac. 862.

Vange, pa. and vil. on a creek of the Thames, S. Essex; ac. 1,387 and 40 water; soil heavy loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Perp.; the east window is filled with ancient stained glass.

Varley Point, headland on west coast of Cornw., 6 N.E. of Padstow. The headland forms the south extremity of Port Isaac Bay.

Varne, The, sandbank off south-east coast of Kent, 8 S.S.E. of Folkestone. The shoal extends 5½ N.E. and S.W., and is about 1 mile broad.

Varrich, promontory on south-east shore of Kyle of Tongue, pa. of and 1 S.W. from Tongue (q.v.), N. Suths., Sc. V. is a bold promontory, crowned by the ruins of an ancient castle, from which it takes its name. It is a square, two-storeyed edifice with massive walls and remains of a stone vault in the lower storey.

Varteg, ha. with railway station, pa. of Trevethin (q.v.), W. Mons., 5 N. of Pontypool. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. In the neighbourhood are extensive mining and colliery works.

Vartrey, river, N.E. co. Wick., Ir., rises in North Ballinacor bar., on the south-east side of Douce Mountain, and winds in a S. direction between North Ballinacor and Newcastle bars., and afterwards E.S.E. through Newcastle bar., entering Broad Lough, an inlet of the Irish Sea, 2 N.N.W. of Wicklow. Near Roundwood is the principal reservoir of the Dublin Waterworks, 400 ac. in extent.

Vaternish, or Waternish, dis. comprising the north-east section of the pa. of Duirinish (q.v.), N.W. Isle of Skye, N.W. Invs., Sc., 10 W. by N. of Portree. The north half of the dis. consists of a peninsula extending about 10 N.N.W. between Lochs Snizort and Dunvegan, with a maximum breadth of 3½ miles, and terminating in V. Point. There is a seat of the same name.

Vatersay. [Watersay.]

Vatskir, vil. on west shore of Broad Bay, pa. of and 5½ N.E. from Stornoway (q.v.), N.E. coast of Lewis Island, Outer Hebrides, Sc.

Vat, The, remarkable cavity, pa. of Glenmuick, Tullich, and Glengairn (q.v.), S.W. Abers., Sc., 4 N.E. of Ballater. The name of the fissure is due to its form, which resembles a vat, the length of the diameter, which is 12 ft. at the bottom, gradually

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Valley End	Woking (3)	24	353
Valtos (1)	Stornoway (200)	504	407
Van	Caerphilly	163	247
Vange	Pitsea	27	292
Vatskir	Oban (185)	504	439

increasing upwards for a height of 40 or 50 ft. The rocks are composed of granite of a friable character, and the hollow has been formed by a burn which now falls into it from a height of 30 ft., afterwards finding its way to Loch Cannor. The V. was a haunt of the freebooter Gilderoy.

Vauxhall (1) (= "Fulkes' Hall"), dis. and eccl. pa. on the right bank of the Thames, pa. of Lambeth (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, 2 S.S.W. of St. Paul's. The ancient manor of V. derived its name from Fulkes or Falkes des Breauté, a mercenary captain in the service of King John. The church of St. Peter is a modern edifice in Gothic style. V. Railway Station—the terminus of the South-Western line prior to 1848, when Waterloo Station was built—has a goods depôt with works extending over a wide area. V. Bridge, over the Thames, is an iron structure uniting V. to Millbank; it was built 1811–13, and has nine arches. Near the bridge are the large works of the London Gas Company, established in 1833. V. Park, South Lambeth (8 ac.), is a public pleasure-ground formed in 1890. The celebrated V. Gardens were opened in 1660 and closed in 1859 in consequence of the scenes of riot and dissipation for which they became notorious. Allusions to them are frequent in the old dramatists, and they are described with much enthusiasm by Samuel Pepys (1667). The walks lighted by innumerable lamps, the songs of the nightingales and other birds, the music of the fiddle and the Jew's harp, the suppers, the fireworks, and the fine dresses were among the chief attractions. The site of the Gardens is now covered by houses.

Vauxhall (2), eccl. pa. within the bor. of Liverpool (q.v.), S.W. Lancs. The church of All Souls was built 1855 in E. Eng. style.

Vaynor, pa., S. Brecons., on the Glamorgs. border, 3½ N. of Merthyr Tydfil; ac. 6,550; soil fertile in places, partly overlying limestone. The pa. lies between the two head streams of the Taff—the Taf-fechan on the east and the Taf-fawr on the west; it contains much picturesque scenery, and commands beautiful views. The church of St. Gwendoline (rebuilt 1870) is in E. Eng. style; in the churchyard is the grave of Robert Thompson Crawshay (d. 1879), the celebrated ironmaster. The pa. contains Baptist and Congregational chapels. There are several cairns.

Vazon Bay, inlet of the sea, pa. of St. Mary de Castro (q.v.), west coast of Guernsey, 3 W. of St. Peter Port. The bay forms a fine sweep of about a mile and a half; it has a low shore and a broad sandy beach studded with rocks at low water. There is much peat in the ground near the sea, and beyond it lies a submerged peat-forest.

Veerham Waterfall, picturesque cascade on north-west coast of Dev., 1 S.E. of Clovelly. The cascade is situated at the entrance to a small coombe. Near it is a remarkable natural archway.

Velindre (1), ha., pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Glasbury (q.v.), N. Brecons. There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel. [TREGOYD AND VELINDRE.]

Velindre (2), ha., pa. of and 5 miles from Llandyssil (q.v.), S. Cardigs.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Vauxhall (1)	.....	.....	9558
Vauxhall (2)	Liverpool (1)	198	3310
Vaynor	Pant (1)	177	3057
Venn Ottery	Honiton (7)	155	110

Velindre (3), ha., pa. of and adjoining Llangadock (q.v.), E. Carmarths.

Velin Vach, vil., pa. of Talachddu (q.v.), Mid Brecons., 4 N.E. of Brecknock.

Vellandreath (= "Mill in the Sand"), pl. on Whitesand Bay, pa. of Sennen (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 7 W.S.W. of Penzance. Vestiges of a tin streamwork have been discovered here 30 ft. below the ground, showing the origin of the name; at the same spot were found the body of a deer and an oak-tree with its foliage.

Vellan Head, headland on south-west coast of Cornw., 2¾ N.N.W. of Lizard Point.

Vellow, ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Stogumber (q.v.), W. Somerset.

Velyndre (1), ha., pa. of Llangwnnor (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 1 E. of Carmarthen.

Velyndre (2), ha., pa. of Llangendeirne (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 4 S.E. of Carmarthen.

Vementry, island, pa. of Sandsting (q.v.), Mainland, W. Shetland, 16½ N.W. by N. of Lerwick. The island lies on the south-east side of St. Magnus Bay, and is separated from the mainland by a channel less than a furlong wide in its narrowest part. There is good pasturage on the island, especially on its east side.

Veney, ha., pa. of Abergwilly (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 2 N.E. of Carmarthen.

Venn, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Churchstow (q.v.), S. Dev.

Vennachar, Loch, lake, S.W. Perths., Sc., 2½ W.S.W. of Callander. The loch extends 5 E. and W., with an extreme width of 5 furlongs; it lies 270 ft. above the sea. The scenery of the lake is very picturesque, its shore winding in graceful curves and the wooded banks descending gently to the water-side. Loch V. and its environs are fully described in Scott's "Lady of the Lake." Salmon, trout, perch, and pike are plentiful.

Venn Ottery, pa. and vil. on the Otter, E. Dev., 7 S.W. of Honiton; ac. 918; soil sand, overlying gravel. The church of St. Gregory (restored 1882) is Norm.

Vennyfach, tp., pa. of Brecknock St. John (q.v.), Mid Brecons., 1½ W. of Brecknock; ac. 1,859. V. is pleasantly situated in the shelter of a wood; it has a southern aspect, and contains many pretty villas. Pen-y-Crûg, to the north-east, is a very fine specimen of a British fortress; it is elliptical in form, with three lofty mounds 1,800 ft. in circumference; from the hill on which it stands there are beautiful views of the surrounding country.

Ventnor, pa. and rising bathing to. on the south-east coast of the I. of W., 12 S.W. of Ryde; ac. 5,081; soil chiefly chalk, overlying limestone. V. has increased since 1830 from a mere ha. to a considerable to., provided with hotels, lodging-houses, reading-rooms, and all the necessary appendages of a watering-place, and its rapid rise is to be ascribed to its fine situation and salubrious air. The to. is situated on a succession of terraces sloping from the north to the sea, at various altitudes up to 300 ft. above the level of the sea.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Vennyfach	Brecknock (1½)	184	19[illegible]
Ventnor, pa.	Ventnor	92	9[illegible]
Ventnor, to.	Ventnor	92	8[illegible]

sheltered by the down of St. Boniface, by which it is protected from the north winds, while its southern aspect gives throughout the year a genial temperature; it is considered the most favourable place in England for consumptive invalids, as it is visited with less rain than any other place in Great Britain and enjoys a more equable temperature throughout the year, careful observations having shown that the average temperature of the Undercliff is seven degrees cooler in summer and seven degrees warmer in winter than any other place in England. The church of St. Catherine (built 1837) is in E. Eng. style. The district church of Holy Trinity is also in E. Eng. style. The Roman Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. Here is a Benedictine priory and convent school for boarders and day pupils in connection with the Benedictine Abbey School at Liége. The Literary and Scientific Institution, in High Street, was erected in 1847, and comprises a large hall and several smaller rooms; the library contains over 3,000 volumes and there is a well-appointed reading-room, a geological, natural history, and archæological museum in connection, containing specimens of great local interest; in the great hall a free library and reading-room was stablished in 887. The Albert Hall, in Victoria Street, erected in 887, is principally used for the furtherance of temerance and kindred societies. The Fire Brigade tation is in Market Street. The Police Station, West treet, was erected in 1860. The County and Castle lub was established in 1873, with the object of proiding residents and visitors with a social and nonolitical club, and also to afford one or more days' ucing each year, consisting of either steeplehases and flat or hurdle races; the races are nually held in April. The Assembly Rooms, in lbert Street, were built in 1877. The London ity Mission Seaside Home was erected in 1877. he Convalescent Home of the Royal Hants County ospital, Winchester, is prettily situated in the adeira Road. About a mile on the road to St. awrence is Steephill Castle, completed in 1835, noble stone building of an oblong form, with a ie square tower on the north side; in front of the stle, near the cliff, is a cave.

VENTNOR.
(Photo. J. Thompson, Ventnor.)

Ventry, pa. and vil. on the north shore of Dingle y, Corkaguiny bar., W. co. Kerry, Ir., 4½ w. of ngle; ac. 4,439. The small harbour of V. also a fishing station, near the entrance to Dingle Bay from the Atlantic. There is a Catholic church.

Ver, or Verlam, river, S.W. Herts., rises in the south-east vicinity of Kensworth, close to the Beds. border, and runs S.E. past Markyate Street, Flamstead, and Redbourn to St. Albans, skirting Gorhambury on the north-east. It separates St. Albans from the ancient city of Verulam, and then winds to the river Colne, which it joins 4 N.N.E. of Watford. The river is about 12 miles long.

Verclût Point, detached rock at north extremity of St. Catherine's Bay, east coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, 4½ E.N.E. of St. Helier. From the rock a breakwater extends about ½ mile in a westerly direction; at its further extremity is a lighthouse with a fixed light, visible about 10 miles. On the other side of the rock there are large granite quarries. The views from V. Point are extremely fine.

Verlam. [VER.]

Verlamstead. [FLAMSTEAD.]

Verne. [PORTLAND.]

Vernham Dean, pa. and vil., N.W. Hants, 9 N. of Andover; ac. 3,744; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (partly rebuilt 1851) is Norm. and E. Eng. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are some small charities.

Verulam, site of the Roman station Verulamium, on the Ver, S.W. Herts., ⅜ W. of St. Albans. V. has been identified with the to. taken by Cæsar from Cassivellaunus in 54 B.C. It was soon afterwards recovered by the Britons, and remained in their hands till its recapture in the time of Claudius in A.D. 43. In A.D. 61 it was burnt by Boadicea, but it was soon afterwards rebuilt. The ground on which it stood now consists mainly of fields, but houses extend from St. Michael's Church to the bridge over the Ver. The external wall is upwards of a mile long, beginning at the north-east angle of the station, and thence running first S.W., then N.W., and finally N.; it did not extend along the north side, which was protected by the river. The space enclosed, which is elliptical in form, is ⅜ mile long from east to west, with an extreme breadth of ¼ mile. There were two main streets, running through the city from east to west and south to north respectively. Beside the external wall, which is some 12 ft. in thickness, runs a moat in a remarkably good state of preservation, now filled with trees and brushwood. Coins, pottery, and some remains of buildings have been dis-

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
ntry	Dingle (4½)	238	1046

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Vernham Dean	Andover (9)	67	568 covered, the most important of these being a theatre on the Gorhambury Road, which was explored in 1847; it is 193 ft. in diameter with two external walls, between which runs a passage 9 ft. wide. V. gave the title of Baron to Lord Chancellor Bacon (1561–1626), and confers the title of Earl on the Grimston family.

Verwick, pa., S.W. Cardigs., 2 N. of Cardigan; ac. 2,980. The pa. extends to the Teifi on the west and Cardigan Bay on the north. The church of St. Pedrog was rebuilt 1853, but the old Norm. tower remains. There are Baptist and Methodist chapels.

Verwood, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Cranborne and West Parley (q.v.), E. Dors., about 4 S.E. of Cranborne. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (enlarged and decorated 1893) is in Gothic style. There are Baptist, Congregational, and Wesleyan chapels. A fair is held here in December.

Veryan, pa. and vil. on the coast, S. Cornw., 12 S.E. from Truro; ac. 5,695; soil loam and clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Symphorian (restored 1850) is Perp. Here are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels, and a reading-room. The school has a small endowment. On V. Beacon (370 ft.) the Cornish king Gerennius was buried, and in 1850 the stone chest in which he was interred was discovered.

Veryan Bay, inlet of the Atlantic, S.E. Cornw.; it is bounded on the north by Dodman Point, and on the south by Nare Point. The cliffs on the shore exhibit "an excellent section of various Devonian rocks, associated with trap and conglomerates, as the coast-line cuts the strike of the beds, which is south-west." (Murray.)

Veryan Beacon. [VERYAN.]

Ve Skerries, group of islets on south-west side of St. Magnus Bay, W. Shetland, Sc., 28 N.W. by W. of Lerwick. The group comprises four islets surrounded by rocks. It is 3¾ N.W. by W. of Papa Stour Island, and 7 N.W. of the nearest part of the mainland in the pa. of Sandness and Walls.

Vespasian's Camp. [AMESBURY.]

Vexford, Higher, ha., pa. of and 2 S. from Stogumber (q.v.), W. Somerset.

Vexford, Lower, ha., pa. of and 3 S.E. from Stogumber (q.v.), W. Somerset.

Veyatie, Loch, on border of Assynt pa., S.W. Suths., and Lochbroom pa., N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 6 S.E. of Lochinver. The loch extends about 4 N.W. and S.E., nowhere reaching ½ mile in width; it lies 366 ft. above the sea and abounds in fish, the trout being especially fine.

Via Devana, Roman road, ran from Colchester (Camulodunum) to Chester (Deva) and Holyhead, passing Cambridge (Camboricum), Godmanchester (Durilipons), Leicester (Ratæ), Branston (Ad Trivonam), and Chesterton (Mediolanum). The most considerable remains of the road are in Staffs.

Via Gellia, modern road partly in Bonsall pa., Mid Derbys., 1¼ W.S.W. of Matlock Bath. The road winds along the bottom of a deep wooded valley, extending nearly 4 miles in a W. direction from Cromford. The views on it are very picturesque. It takes its name from the Gell of Hopton Hall, who are lords of the manor.

Via Julia. [JULIAN WAY.]

Vicard Harbour, small harbour and station on west side of Vicard Point (q.v.) coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, 4½ N. by St. Helier. At the back of the harbour th rise abruptly, and a semicircular hollow o into the interior adds to the picturesque ch of the scenery.

Vicard Point, headland at west extre Bouley Bay, north coast of Jersey, Channel I 4½ N. by E. of St. Helier.

Vicarscairn Hill, eminence, Mid co. Arma about 3 W. of Markethill. It is 819 ft. ab level.

Vicarstown, vil., pa. of Moyanna (q.v.), Co., Ir., 5 N.W. of Stradbally. Here is a C church. Direct communication between th and Dublin is by the Grand Canal.

Victoria, pl. with railway station, pa. welty (q.v.), W. Mons., adjoining Ebbw Vale are Baptist, Congregational, Calvinistic Me and Wesleyan chapels.

Victoria Cavern, bone cave, pa. of Gig (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1¼ N.E. of Settle. The situated in the face of the limestone cliff the vil. of Langcliffe, some 1,450 ft. above and 900 ft. above the Ribble, which is abou distant. It was discovered in 1837, and h thoroughly explored. Some of the finds uppermost layer date back to the Neolithic but they are mainly Romano-Celtic; they implements and ornaments of bronze an coins, pottery, and bones of various a Lower down is a bed of laminated clay (s to have been formed during the Glacia underneath which was found a great accum of bones, including those of the elephant, hyæna, and rhinoceros. The cave was ev occupied by the natives after the departure Roman legions. Many of the relics are pre at Giggleswick.

Victoria Channel, the main entrance Mersey, off south-west coast of Lancs., 4 Formby Point. Vessels entering by this p sail thence into Crosby Channel.

Victoria Docks, pa. of West Ham, S.W. 5½ E. of St. Paul's, were opened in 1856. Th situated in the Plaistow Marshes on the e of the mouth of the Lea. The area of the d docks is 100 ac., one-half of that space af water accommodation. Vessels enter thro lock 325 ft. in length, 80 ft. broad, and 28 ft. In 1869 the V. Docks passed into the same as the East and West India, London, an Katherine's Docks, and since then they have enlarged by the construction of the magn Albert Docks (1876–80), which adjoin th docks on the east. The entire area of the V Albert Docks is now over 200 ac., of which 185 ac. are covered by water.

Victoria Embankment. [THAMES EMB MENT.]

Victoria Falls, cascade on small stream

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Verwick	Llandyssil (2	252	328
Verwood	Verwood	101	1191

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Veryan	Grampound Rd. (8)	287

ıto Loch Maree, pa. of and 6 E.S.E. from Gairloch ı.v.), W. Ross and Crom., Sc. The Falls were so ılled in honour of Queen Victoria, who visited och Maree in 1877.

Victoria Fort, coast defence at Sconce Point, .W. I. of W., S. Hants, 1 W. of Yarmouth. The ort is situated on the south side of the entrance) the Solent, opposite Hurst Castle. It occupies ıe site of an Elizabethan fortress, known as Carey's conce.

Victoria Park, eccl. pa. and dis., pas. of Bow, ethnal Green, and Hackney (q.v.), E. Middx., in ıst of London, 2¾ N.E. of St. Paul's. The Park, hich was formed in accordance with an Act of arliament in 1842 and enlarged in 1872, has been ı inestimable boon to the people of East London. . is 244 ac. in extent, lying between South Hackney ıd Hackney Wick on the north-west, the North ondon Railway on the north-east, Sir George uckett's Canal on the south-east, and the Regent's anal on the south-west. A great part of the Park laid out in shrubberies and flower-beds, and ıere are two lakes containing islands on which re kept various aquatic birds. The drinking-ountain, presented by the Baroness Burdett-Coutts ı 1862, is a handsome structure in Gothic style on he Hackney side of the Park; it is octagonal in orm, and is surmounted by a cupola of 60 ft. The hurch of St. Mark is situated within the Park at :s north-east extremity.

PAGODA, VICTORIA PARK.

Viera, or Weir, island, pa. of Rousay and Egilshay ı.v.), Mid Ork., Sc., 9 N. of Kirkwall. The island xtends over 2 N.E. and S.W., and has an extreme readth of 1 mile. V. Sound (q.v.) separates it rom the island of Rousay on the north-west. Its ırface is low-lying with a fertile soil. There are ome remains of an old church.

Viera Sound, channel between the islands of ousay (q.v.) and Viera (q.v.), Mid Ork., Sc. The hannel extends about 2¾ E.N.E. and W.S.W., anging in breadth from ½ to 1½ mile.

Viewfield Rows, part of the vil. of Cantsdam q.v.), pa. of Beath, S.W. Fifes., Sc., 4½ W.N.W. of ıuchtertool.

Villierstown, vil., pa. of Aglish (q.v.), W. co. Vaterf., Ir., 10 W. of Dungarvan. Here is a Protestant church and a constabulary station. Fairs are held in June and September.

Vincent's Pits, series of crevices between Bolbury Down and Bolt Tail, S. Dev., 5 S.W. of Kingsbridge. The cavities, which have been caused by a landslip, extend a considerable distance inland, running in the same line as the shore. They vary greatly in width and depth; some, which are only a few feet across at the mouth, descend far into the earth, diverging from the straight line so that they cannot be explored. They are sometimes called Windstone Pits.

Vineford, ha., pa. of and adjoining Minehead (q.v.), N.W. Somerset.

Vinegar Hill. [TEMPLESHANNON.]

Vineyard, The, pa., Mid Herefords., 1 N.E. by E. of Hereford; ac. 10; soil loam and clay, overlying gravel. Litley Court is a seat.

Viney Hill, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Awre and East and West Dean (q.v.), W. Gloucs., 1 N.E. of Blakeney. All Saints' Church (dedicated 1867) is in E. Eng. style.

Vinney Water, stream, E. Forfs., Sc., rises in Forfar pa., 2½ S. by E. of the to. of Forfar, and runs through Forfar and Dunnichen pas., between Dunnichen and Rescobie pas. on the north and Kirkden pa. on the south, and finally through Kirkden pa., the general direction of its course being E. by N. It joins Lunan Water at Friockheim, 8 miles (in a direct line) from its source. The stream contains good trout.

Virginia, small mkt. to. (TH.), pa. of Lurgan (q.v.), S. co. Cav., Ir., 8 S. of Bailieborough. Near the town is The Lodge, a fine demesne. The Protestant pa. church of Lurgan is a handsome structure; there is also a Catholic church in the to. Monthly fairs are held.

Virginia Water, eccl. pa., pa. of Egham (q.v.), W. Surrey, about 2½ N.W. of Chertsey. Christ

THE CASCADE, VIRGINIA WATER.
(Photo. York and Son, Notting Hill, W.)

Church is in E. Eng. style, and there are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The National school has a small endowment. The lake known by this name was formed by William, Duke of Cumberland, who commanded the English troops

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Victoria Park	.....	.....	13007
Villierstown	Dungarvan (10)	141	214
Vineyard, The	Hereford (1)	144	8

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Viney Hill	Newnham	125	1528
Virginia	Virginia Road (3)	65	562
Virginia Water	Virginia Water	23	1836

at Culloden; it is a large artificial lake upwards of a mile and a half long, and of varying width, 5½ miles from Windsor, at the extreme south of the Great Park, and is partly in this pa. It extends over what was once a wild, swampy district, whose waters drained into a basin of considerable dimensions and then flowed into the Thames at Chertsey, and its banks, laid out by George IV. with all the resources of the landscape gardener's art, are charmingly diversified. Near the lake, in a beautifully secluded corner of the park, stand several marble columns with portions of the frieze and other fragments of a Corinthian temple, and in the neighbourhood are some fir trees of great height. Access to the lake and park from the Surrey side is obtained through the grounds of the Wheatsheaf Hotel.

Virginstow, pa., W. Dev., 6½ N. of Launceston; ac. 1,274; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Bridget (rebuilt 1852) is E. Eng. Here is a Free Methodist chapel.

Virkie, ha., pa. of Dunrossness, in south of Mainland, S. Shetland, Sc., 17 S. by W. of Lerwick. Here is a school.

Virley, or Salcot Virley, pa., S. Essex, separated from Salcot by a creek, 8 S.S.W. of Colchester; ac. 6,547; soil and subsoil heavy. The E. Eng. church of St. Mary the Virgin is now ruinous and disused. Abdy's charity of £4 is for bread and clothing.

Vixen Tor, rock on Dartmoor, S.W. Dev., 3½ E. of Tavistock. The Tor is composed of three separate masses, each of which has a rock basin at its summit; it is about 50 ft. high, with a very fantastic outline.

Vobster, eccl. pa. and ha., pa. of and 1½ W. from Mells (q.v.), E. Somerset. The church of St. Edmund is in Dec. style. Here are limestone quarries and coal wharves.

Voe, ha. at east extremity of Olna Firth, pa. of Delting, in north of Mainland, Mid Shetland, Sc., 15 N. by W. of Lerwick. Fish-curing is carried on here on a large scale.

Voil, Loch, pa. of Balquhidder, S.W. Perths., Sc. 8 S. by W. of Killin. The lake, which is formed by an expansion of the Balvag, extends about 3½ W.S.W. and E.N.E., with an extreme breadth of 3 furlongs. Its shores are picturesque, but in point of beauty it is surpassed by Loch Doine at its upper extremity. At its lower end is a bridge commanding fine views both towards the east and west.

Volegastell, vil., pa. of Llanarthney (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 7 S.W. of Llandilofawr.

Vorlan, tp., pa. of Maenclochog (q.v.), E. Pembs., about 8 N.W. of Narberth; ac. 403.

Vortigern's Grave. [Pistill (1).]

Vowchurch, pa. and vil. on the Dore, S.W. Herefords., 10 S.W. of Hereford; ac. 2,716; soil sand and loam, overlying clay and rock. The

The Vyrnwy Embankment.
(Photo. Mr. J. Maclardy, Oswestry.)

Vro (1), ha., pa. of Llanfihangel-ar-Arth (q.v.), N. Carmarths., 9 S.W. of Lampeter.

Vro (2), ha., pa. of Llanthetty (q.v.), S.E. Brecons., 7 N. of Merthyr-Tydfil.

Vyne, The. [Sherborne St. John.]

Vyrnwy, river, N. Montgoms. and N.W. Salop, rises in two headstreams in the Berwyn Mountains, and pursues a sinuous course S.W. and W.S.W. to Meifod; then curving round runs N.E. to Llansantffraid, and thence E. to Llandysilio, on the border of the co. During the remainder of its course it flows E., S., and S.E., joining the Severn at Melverley, 9 N.W. of Welshpool. Its principal affluent is the Tanat, which joins it between Llansantffraid and

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Virginstow	Tower Hill (2)	218	106
Virley	Kelvedon (7)	42	75
Vobster	Frome (5)	107	283

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Vorlan	Maenclochog (1)	269	[illegible]
Vowchurch	Vowchurch	160	[illegible]

Llandysilio. The length of the V. is 35 miles. Lake V., in Montgoms., formed in 1888, is the principal reservoir of the Liverpool waterworks. It occupies the site of the vil. of Llanwddyn, 6 N. of Garthbeibio. The lake is nearly 5 miles in length with an area of 1,121 ac. It was formed by constructing a huge dam or embankment 1,255 ft. long and 60 ft. in height at the narrower end of the valley of Llanwddyn. The Hirnant Tunnel, on the south-east side of the lake, carries the water from this reservoir of upwards of 2 miles to an aqueduct 67 miles in length, the course of which is partly subterraneous.

W.

Waberthwaite, pa. and vil. on the Esk, S. Cumb., 10 S.E. of Whitehaven; ac. 1,771; soil loam, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. John is ancient; in the churchyard are the remains of a cross. There is a small charity. W. Hall is a seat.

Wackerfield, or Walkerfield, tp., pa. of Staindrop (q.v.), S. Dur., 6 S.W. of Bishop Auckland; ac. 751.

Wacton (1), pa. and pleasant vil., S. Norf., 8 N.W. of Harleston; ac. 1,105, including a large common; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1885) is Dec.; in the chancel are handsome sedilia and a piscina, and there are remains of the stairs and doorway leading to the rood-loft; in the south wall is a brass to John Knyvett de Ashwoulthorpe (d. 1623); the font is ancient and is ornamented with carvings. The Wesleyan chapel is a small wooden building. The sum of £2 12s. yearly is distributed in bread.

Wacton (2), pa. and vil., E. Herefords., 9 S. of Tenbury; ac. 1,217; soil clay, overlying clay and rock. The church (dedication unknown) was pulled down in 1881.

Wadbister, vil., pa. of Tingwall (q.v.), Shetland Isles, Sc., 11 N.W. of Lerwick.

Wadborough, ha., pa. of Pershore Holy Cross (q.v.), S. Worcs., 5 S.E. of Worcester.

Waddesdon, pa., tp., and vil. on the Thame, W. Bucks, 12 S. of Buckingham; ac. of pa. 7,252, of tp. 5,003; soil clay and loam, subsoil various. The church of St. Michael (restored 1877 and 1892) is Norm. and later periods; there are three piscinæ, a Dec. font, a brass to Robert Pygott, a table-tomb with effigy, a monument to Guy Carleton (d. 1608), and brasses to Hugh Bristow, to Richard Huntingdon (1543), and to William Turner. The church of St. Mary was erected in 1867, and there are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a club and reading-room, almshouses, and several charities. W. Manor, a seat, is a mansion in the French chateau style.

Waddingham, large pa. and vil., N. Lincs., 4 S.E. of Kirton-in-Lindsey; ac. 3,594; soil peat, clay, and sand, overlying limestone. The church of St. Mary and St. Peter (restored 1862) is chiefly E. Eng., and the porch an excellent example of the E. Dec. period; the paten and the chalice are of plain 16th-cent. workmanship. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There was formerly a Free school, founded and endowed in 1719; the endowment is now handed over to the School Board. The poor's land produces £20 yearly, distributed in fuel to poor widows of the pa.

Waddington (1), pa. and large vil., W. Lincs., bounded on the west by the Witham, 4 S. of Lincoln; ac. 3,228. The church of St. Michael is Trans. and E. Eng.; the interior exhibits some good work, but has been much disfigured by the rebuilding of the tower within the church about 1779, the old tower having been then taken down as dangerous; then the nave, originally of three bays, was reduced to two, the greater part of the westernmost pier, with its capitals, being enclosed in the rubble walls of the obtruding tower. Here are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist and Baptist chapels. Swift's charity of £6 yearly is for apprenticing the sons of poor parents, and for a dole of bread.

Waddington (2), eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Ribble, pa. of Mitton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 20 S.W. of Skipton; ac. 2,073. The church of St. Helen is Perp., and contains a brass to the Parker family, including Edward Parker (d. 1667). Here is a Wesleyan chapel. W. Hospital for poor widows was founded in 1701 by Robert Parker, and there are some other charities. At W. Hall Henry VI. was captured by Sir James Harington in 1465. Waddow Hall is a seat.

Waddington (3), an alternative form of Walderton (q.v.).

Waddingworth, pa., Mid Lincs., 6 N.W. of Horncastle; ac. 928; soil strong loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret is a very small ancient edifice of stone. The poor have the interest of £300, distributed in coals at Christmas.

Waddon (1), ha., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Portisham (q.v.), W. Dors.

Waddon (2), ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Alberbury (q.v.), S. Wilts.

Waddon (3), ha., pa. of Croydon (q.v.), E. Surrey, about ½ E. of Beddington.

Wadebridge, mkt. to. (T. & F.) on the Camel, pas. of St. Breock and Egloshayle (q.v.), W. Cornw., 7 N.W. of Bodmin. A stone bridge, originally of 17 and now of 15 arches, built by contribution in 1485, crosses the Camel at this point: it is 220 yds. long and 15 ft. wide, the arches being about 18 ft. in span; it was made a county bridge in the reign of James I., and since 1853 has been kept in repair out of the county rates. The nearest churches available for the inhabitants are those of St. Breock and Egloshayle, at the respective distances of a mile and half a mile from the to., but there are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. Molesworth Public Hall (1888) is a building of local stone with granite dressings; the great hall on the ground floor is 70 ft. by 38 ft., with a gallery at one end and a platform at the other; there are two large committee rooms, an armoury for the Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.

Waberthwaite	Eskneales (1½)	285	237
Wackerfield	Cockfield (2½)	250	138
Wacton (1)	Forncett (2)	104	240
Wacton (2)	Bromyard (3½)	135	110
Waddesdon, pa.	Waddesdon Manor	43	1953
Waddesdon, tp.	Waddesdon Manor	43	1610
Waddingham	Kirton Lindsey (4)	157	610
Waddington (1)	Waddington	126	695
Waddington (2), ec. p.	Clitheroe (2)	221	824
Waddington (2), tp.	Clitheroe (2)	221	510
Waddingworth	Horncastle (5)	130	54

local rifle corps, and other rooms. Here is also a literary and scientific institution. The chief trade of the to. consists in the exportation of granite, slate, and the products of the various mines in the vicinity, and there is an iron foundry. The imports are coal, timber, and general merchandise. A new silver, lead and copper mine has been opened with good prospects of success, the ore having been pronounced by experts to be of excellent quality. A fair is held on June 22. The cattle market is held on the second Tuesday in every month. At White Cross, near W., is an ancient round-headed cross, about 4 ft. high.

Wadeford, ha., pa. of Combe St. Nicholas (q.v.), W. Somerset, 1½ N.W. of Chard. The place is supposed to derive its name from woad, a plant formerly grown for the dye obtained from it, used in dyeing cloth, and for the manufacture of which there was once a mill here.

Wadenhoe, pa. and vil. on the Nen, N.E. Northants, 4 S.W. of Oundle; ac. 1,155; soil clay, overlying rock and limestone. The church of St. Michael is Norm. There is a small charity. W. House is a seat.

Wade's Causeway, Roman road, N.R. Yorks., ran from Malton to Mulgrave Castle, 4 W. of Whitby, through Broughton and Cawthorn, where there are Roman remains. The road is 12 ft. wide, partly constructed of flint and pebbles, and is in a good state of preservation. Wade is a famous character in Teutonic folklore, and there is an allusion to him in the "Canterbury Tales." The story connecting him with the road is that he and his wife set to work to construct a shorter route to the moors, of which the latter might make use when she went milking; she dropped her load of stones, however, and the Causeway is the result.

Wade's Mill, vil. on the North Road, pa. of and ½ N. from Thundridge (q.v.), E. Herts. On the road between W. Mill and High Cross a monument was erected in 1879 to mark the spot where in June, 1785, Thomas Clarkson resolved to devote his life to bringing about the abolition of the slave trade.

Wadhurst, large pa. and vil., E. Sussex, 6 S.E. of Tunbridge Wells, on the road to Hastings; ac. 10,147; soil marl, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is Dec. and Perp.; in the church are more than thirty iron monumental slabs, dating from 1614 to 1790, chiefly to members of the Barham family, and in the chancel is a handsome marble monument to John Barham and family, dated 1730; here also is a trefoiled piscina. Here are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Free Methodist chapels, and one for the Brethren with 96 sittings. The Mount, situated on an eminence, is a novitiate house of the Fathers of Charity, opened in 1881; the building, added to a previously existing mansion, is surrounded by gardens and shrubberies, with park-like grounds of about 140 ac. A public library and reading-room was opened in 1862. Fairs are held on April 29 and Nov. 1, and cattle sales every alternate Monday; a fat stock auction show is held on the first week in December. In the vicinity of the railway station are quarries, yielding sandstone of superior quality, suitable for grindstones and building purposes, and there are also brick-yards in the pa. The charities amount to about £20 yearly for distribution. South Park and W. Castle are seats.

Wadsley, eccl. pa. and ha. on the Don, pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 3 N.W. of Sheffield. The church (dedication unknown) is in Gothic style; a fire, which gutted the church, occurred here on Easter Day, 1884; it has, however, been effectively restored. In the churchyard are memorials recording the deaths of many who suffered by the disastrous flood caused by the bursting of the Old Dale Dyke reservoir in 1864. There are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. Here is the South Yorkshire lunatic asylum. Six almshouses were erected in 1840 for six widows, who each receive 4s. per week. The population are employed in the large rolling mills, and in steel converting and pocket knife and file manufacturing.

Wadsley Bridge, a suburb of Wadsley (q.v.), pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. It is pleasantly situated on an eminence, and has some good villa residences.

Wadswell, ha., pa. of Box (q.v.), W. Wilts., about 3 S.W. of Corsham.

Wadswick, ha., pa. of Box (q.v.), W. Wilts., about 3 S.W. of Corsham.

Wadsworth, tp., pa. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1 E. of Mytholmroyd; ac. 11,224.

Wadworth, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 7 N.W. of Bawtry; ac. 3,681; soil sand, clay, peat, and limestone, overlying sand, clay, and limestone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1886) is Norm. and Perp.; among the monuments are the alabaster tomb of Sir Edward Fitzwilliam (d. 1430), the altar-tomb of Edward Fitzwilliam (d. 1465), a brass to John Pierrepoint (1653), and several tombs of the Copley family. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Alverley Hall and W. Hall are seats.

Waenfawr, vil., pa. of Llanbeblig, Mid Carnarvs., 4 S.E. of Carnarvon. Here are Calvinistic Methodist and Congregational chapels.

Wagg, ha., pas. of Huish Episcopi and Higher (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 2 N. of Langport.

Waghen. [WAWNE.]

Wainfleet All Saints, pa. and small ancient mkt. to. and port, E. Lincs., 18 N.E. of Boston; ac. 1,492, principally fen and marsh; soil rich loam, overlying clay. The to. is pleasantly situated on the Steeping river, or, as it is called, the Wainfleet Haven, which enters the sea at Gibraltar Point, 5 miles distant, and is navigable for small craft and lighters. The old church of All Saints, having become ruinous, was taken down in 1820. The present church of All Saints, built in 1820–21, is in Perp. style; the fine altar-tomb of Richard Patten, erected by his son William of Wainfleet (1447–87), was destroyed on the removal of the old church, but the recumbent effigy, figures of angels bearing shields and other fragments, are preserved at the old school-house. The President and Fellows of Magdalen College, Oxford, have erected in the new church an inscribed marble tablet in lieu of the destroyed tomb. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Assembly Room (1878) is used for

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wadenhoe	Oundle (4)	96	204
Wadhurst	Wadhurst	38	3354
Wadsley	Wadsley Bridge (¼)	165	10413

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wadsworth	Hebden Bridge (1)	200	[illegible]
Wadworth	Sprotbro' (2)	158	[illegible]
Wainfleet All Saints	Wainfleet	127	[illegible]

lectures and entertainments. The Literary Institute (1858) is self-supporting, and contains a good library. The charities amount to about £25 yearly, for the benefit of the poor. The market is held on Saturday, and there is a market for fat cattle every alternate Thursday during the summer months. Fairs for cattle are held on the third Saturday in May and Oct. 24. A foal show and fair is held the first Thursday in August. William of Waynflete, Bishop of Winchester and Lord Chancellor of England, a native of this to., was the son of one Richard Patten or Barbour, and was educated at Winchester and Oxford; about 1420 he became master of Winchester School, and was provost of Eton in 1442; in 1458 he founded Magdalen College, Oxford, and in 1459 established a Free school in his native place; he died Aug. 11, 1486, and was buried in Winchester Cathedral. The master resides in the ancient school-house erected by the founder. During the construction of the railway from Wainfleet to Firsby a cutting was made through a field adjoining the Wainfleet station, bisecting a large mound or barrow situated in it, and exposing to view seven singular graves of a circular form.

Wainfleet St. Mary, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 1 S.W. of Wainfleet All Saints; ac. 5,913 and 7,145 of water; soil various, overlying clay and silt. The church of St. Mary, a mile and a half from the vil., is E. Eng. and Perp. The charities, amounting to about £24 yearly, are distributed to the poor.

Wainfleet St. Thomas, or Northolme, pa., E. Lincs., 8 S.E. of Spilsby; ac. 28; for civil purposes annexed to W. All Saints. The church was used by the Baptists during the Protectorate, but has long been pulled down. In the pa. are traces of camps and a Danish barrow.

Wainhouse Corner, vil., pa. of St. Gennys (q.v.), N.E. Cornw., 8 S.W. of Stratton.

Wainstalls, ha., pa. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 2 miles from Luddenden. There is a Free Methodist chapel.

Waitby, tp., pa. of and 1½ W. by S. of Kirkby Stephen (q.v.), N. Westmd.; ac. 1,183. There are now but a few houses, but a market town is said to have existed here in former times. Traces of a castle and a chapel have been met with. Here is a Free school founded in 1680.

Waithe, small pa., N.E. Lincs., 5½ S.S.E. of Grimsby; ac. 738; soil generally stiff, overlying clay. The church of St. Martin, an edifice originally of very E. Norm., was entirely rebuilt, with the exception of the arcades and tower, in 1869 in E. Eng. style; the chancel is arcaded all round and pierced with five windows.

WAKEFIELD CATHEDRAL.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Waitwith, ha., pa. of Catterick (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2¼ S.W. of Hipswell.

Wakefield, city, parl. and mun. bor., pa. and tp., mkt. to., head of a bishop's see, U. and Co. Co. dis., on the Calder, W.R. Yorks., 9 S.E. of Leeds; ac. of pa. 10,055, of tp. 757. The parl. bor., formerly co-extensive with the mun. bor., was extended in 1885; the bishopric, founded in 1888, was formed chiefly from Ripon. The cathedral church of All Saints is mainly Perp., incorporating portions of the preceding periods. The oldest part is at the south-west angle, where there is a blocked staircase which formed the south-west corner of the south transept of the structure of the 11th cent. The church, as then erected, was cruciform, with a central tower, which fell, probably early in the 14th cent., doing so much damage that the structure had to be rebuilt; other alterations followed, and

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wainfleet St. Mary	Wainfleet	127	718
Wainfleet St. Thom.	Wainfleet	127	187
Waitby	Smardale (1)	274	60
Waithe	Holton-le-Clay (1½)	150	55

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wakefield, p. bor.	Wakefield	176	37269
Wakefield, m. bor.	Wakefield	176	33146
Wakefield, pa.	Wakefield	176	56244
Wakefield, tp.	Wakefield	176	23315

by 1470 it had acquired its present form. It now consists of a choir of five bays with aisles, and on the north side a vestry (built in 1881), a nave of seven bays, with clerestory, aisles, south porch with parvise, and a tower with spire, said to be the loftiest in Yorks. The chancel screen is of two dates, the lower half being Perp. and the upper Jacobean. Some of the old woodwork remains, including the 15th-cent. screen behind the choir stalls and the misericordes. The east end of the south chancel aisle, formerly called "Our Lady's quire," has long been the burial-place of the Pilkington family; it is now known as "the Pilkington chapel," and has been thoroughly restored; it contains a number of monuments to members of this family, including one of elaborate character to Sir Lyon Pilkington, Bart. (d. 1714). The whole exterior, including the porch, is enriched with arcaded panelled parapets, finished with a cresting, and relieved by crocketed pinnacles, which, along the aisles and at the east end, rise from boldly projecting buttresses of three gabled stages; over the east window and in the centre of the parapet is a canopied niche, containing a figure of Archbishop William de Melton, who consecrated the church in 1329. The cathedral is surrounded by a wide flagged space, planted with trees, and enclosed by a wall with palisading. The bishop's throne was erected for the enthronisation of Dr. Walsham How, first Bishop of W. (June 25, 1888), by the Archbishop of York. St. Mary's Chantry, on W. Bridge, was originally built in the reign of Edward III., but there is no foundation for the statement that it was refounded by Edward IV. that prayers might here be continually offered for the soul of his father, Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York, K.G., who was slain at the battle of W., Dec. 31, 1460. The chapel is of Dec. character, and was entirely rebuilt in 1847. There is a crypt below the east end. W. has also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Grammar School Trust provides for the carrying on of the Free Grammar School founded 1591, and the Girls' Endowed High Class School. It also administers pensions and almshouse charities. There are other almshouses and charities with good endowments. The town hall (1879–80) is a handsome building in the French Renaissance style; the council chamber is on the first floor; the banqueting room, on the second floor, nearly corresponds in size with the council chamber below it, but is not so lofty. The Corn Exchange, in Westgate, is one of the largest in England, and includes a spacious concert room and various offices. Her Majesty's Prison, in Love Lane, covers an area of upwards of 20 ac.; the convict establishment was broken up in 1867. The West Riding Pauper Lunatic Asylum is an extensive establishment in Gothic style, opened in 1818, and since enlarged at different periods. The West Riding Sessions House has a portico of four Doric columns, supporting a pediment, on the apex of which stands a figure of Justice. The Industrial and Fine Art Institution (1890) is in Renaissance style, and contains a lecture-theatre, museum, a laboratory, and class-rooms. Other public buildings are the Mechanics' Institution, the Church Institution and Library, the Post Office, the Baths, the Clayton Hospital (1879), in Flemish style, and the Market House, which stands in the centre of the market-place, a spacious open area of 3 ac. The chief support of the to. is its corn market, which is visited by merchants from all the neighbouring cos., and a great amount of business is done on the weekly market held on Fridays; and the cattle market on Wednesdays is largely attended. There are two fairs, held on July 4 and 5 and Nov. 11 and 12 annually, for cattle and sheep. The trade carried on by means of the Calder and the Aire and Calder Navigation, particularly in corn, is very extensive. The soil of the neighbourhood is loam and clay. The vicinity abounds in market gardens, and great quantities of vegetables are taken to the neighbouring towns. There are many collieries around the bor., producing an abundance of coal for domestic and manufacturing purposes. A considerable business is carried on here in spinning knitting worsted, cocoa fibre, carpet yarn, and china grass. There are rag-grinding and flock mills, chemical works, soap works, iron foundries, and manufactories for iron boilers, agricultural implements, and iron and steel wire rope; there are also several machine works, corn mills, and many other large establishments. Malting and brewing also hold an important place. W. is mentioned in Domesday. The battle of W., so disastrous to the Yorkists, was fought Dec. 31, 1460, on a stretch of level ground on the south bank of the Calder, known as "Wakefield Green."

Wakeham, vil., pa. of Portland (q.v.), S. Dors., 5 S.E. of Weymouth.

Wakehurst Place. [ARDINGLY.]

Wakeley, formerly a pa., now amalgamated for civil purposes with Westmill (q.v.), N.E. Herts.

Wakering, Great, pa. and vil., S.E. Essex, 5 N.E. of Southend; ac. 2,784 and 3,153 water; soil heavy loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas is principally Norm., with Perp. additions; the font is said to be Norm. There are traces of wall-paintings in the nave. Here are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels, and one for the Peculiar People, a sect which originated in this vil.

Wakering, Little, pa., S.E. Essex, adjacent to Great Wakering (q.v.); ac. 2,736 and 2,516 water; soil various, overlying light clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1878) is Perp.; during the restoration a Norm. window was discovered. In the nave is a recess, supposed to have contained the founder's tomb; the chancel retains sedilia and a piscina.

Wakerley, pa. and vil. on the Welland, N. Northants, 6 E. of Uppingham; ac. 1,890; soil gravel and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1875) is Norm. and E. Eng., and contains a monument to Richard Cecil (1633). There is a small charity.

Wakes Colne. [COLNE WAKES.]

Wal-, for words not found under this spelling see also WALL-.

Walberswick, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 1 S. of Southwold, from which it is separated by the

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wakering, Great	Shoeburyness (2)	40	1652
Wakering, Little	Shoeburyness (2½)	40	276

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wakerley	Wakerley	101	167
Walberswick	Walberswick	109	579

Blyth; ac. 2,204; soil light, a considerable quantity of heath land and marsh, subsoil sand. W. is an ancient place, and was once a to. carrying on an extensive fishing trade. The church of St. Andrew (restored) is Perp., and consists of a portion of the south aisle of a former church, some parts of which are still standing, but in ruins. There are Primitive Methodist and Congregational chapels, and a reading-room was established in 1889.

St. Andrew's Church, Walberswick.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Walberton (in Domesday "Walburgetone"), pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 3½ S.W. of Arundel; ac. 1,752; soil gravel and loam, overlying gravel and clay. W. is believed to have been a military station. In 1817 a good deal of Roman pottery, deposited in glass vessels, was exhumed. The church of St. Mary is chiefly E. Eng.; the nave is Norm., with Perp. insertions. There is a charity of £1 a year, and the school has an endowment of £12 a year. W. House, a handsome mansion, stands near the site of the former manor house, in which the Nash family so long resided, and has a fine hall, staircase and library. Avisford House is also a seat.

Walburn, tp., pa. of Downholme (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 4 S.W. of Richmond; ac. 1,660.

Walbury Beacon, eminence on borders of Berks. and Hants, 6½ W.S.W. of Newbury. On the summit are traces of a Roman encampment.

Walcot (1), or Walcot-by-Falkingham, pa. and pleasant vil., S. Lincs., 11 E. of Grantham; ac. 1,747; soil clay, loam, and gravel, subsoil mostly clay. The church of St. Nicholas is chiefly of the Dec. period, the nave is E. Eng.; the windows, particularly the east window, which retains some ancient glass, are fine; the chancel has a piscina in a window sill and a priest's door crocketed with oak leaves. A curious oak chest remains in the church, and in the chantry chapel a piscina, with hagioscope above it; the carved stalls are good examples of their date. The rent of poor's land amounts to £8, which is distributed in coals at Christmas. There are springs of very pure water in this pa., one of which is strongly chalybeate.

Walcot (2), pa. in the bor. of Bath, N.E. Somerset; ac. 1,234. The church of St. Swithin, occupying the site of a former building, was erected 1780 in Italian style (restored 1892); the crypt of the old church remains; among the memorials are those of Christopher Anstey, author of the "New Bath Guide" (d. 1805), and Frances Burney (Madame d'Arblay, d. 1840); in the churchyard Roman remains have been found.

Walcot (3), ha., pa. of Pershore Holy Cross (q.v.), S. Worcs., 2 N.W. of Pershore.

Walcot (4), ha., pa. of and ½ S. from Alkborough (q.v.), N.W. Lincs. W. Hall is a seat.

Walcot (5), ha., pa. of Wellington (q.v.), Mid Salop, 2½ W. of Wrockwardine.

Walcot (6), ha., pa. of and adjoining Haselor (q.v.), S.W. Warws.

Walcot-by-Falkingham. [Walcot (1).]

Walcote, vil., pa. of Misterton (q.v.), S. Leics., 2 E. of Lutterworth.

Walcot Park. [Lydbury North.]

Walcott (1), coast pa. and vil., E. Norf., 5 E. of North Walsham; ac. 685 and 50 foreshore; soil strong and rich, overlying clay and gravel. The church of All Saints is Perp.; a carved oak screen separates the nave from the chancel.

Walcott (2), tp. and chap., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Billinghay (q.v.), S. Lincs.; ac. 3,185. The church of St. Oswald was erected in 1852 near the site of a former chapel taken down in 1780; it is in E. Eng. style. About ½ S.W. is the site of Catley Abbey, founded in the reign of Stephen for monks and nuns of the Gilbertine order. No remains now exist, but carved stones have been recovered from time to time. A mineral spring, similar in character to the German seltzer, has recently been discovered here.

Walden. [Burton-cum-Walden, King's Walden, St. Paul's Walden.]

Walden, Little, ha., pa. of and 2 N.N.E. from Saffron Walden (q.v.), N. Essex. Here is a chapel-of-ease and a Congregational chapel.

Walden Stubbs, tp. and vil. on the Went, pa. of and 2 S.E. from Womersley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,272. Here is a Methodist chapel.

Waldershare, pa., E. Kent, 5 N. of Dover; ac. 1,245; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (restored) is Norm. and Perp.; it retains a piscina and a holy-water stoup, and there are several monuments of the families of Monin and Furnese, including one to Sir Henry Furnese (d. 1733). W. Park is a seat.

Walderton, or Waddington, ti., pa. of Stoughton (q.v.), W. Sussex, 7 N.W. of Chichester.

Waldingfield, Great, pa. and vil., Suff., about 3½ N.E. of Sudbury; ac. 2,195; soil heavy and mixed, overlying gravel, subsoil gravel. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1869) is a Gothic structure of rubble. One window is formed of the fragments of the old painted glass; in the chancel is a mosaic marble reredos; the walls are panelled with marbles which were collected from the ruins of heathen

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walberton	Barnham (2)	87	628
Walburn	Leyburn (4)	236	30
Walcot (1)	Billingborough (3)	104	147
Walcot (2)	Bath (1)	107	24899
Walcott (1)	North Walsham (5)	130	104
Walcott (2)	Scopwick (2½)	119	531
Walden Stubbs	Norton (1)	238	150
Waldershare	Shepherd's Well (2)	72	140
Waldingfield, Great	Sudbury (3½)	58	557

temples in Rome. Babergh Hall, surrounded by a park of 26 ac., is a seat.

Waldingfield, Little, pa., S. Suff., 4½ N.E. of Sudbury; ac. 1,579; soil heavy, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Lawrence is Perp.; it contains some ancient brasses. The Priory, a very ancient building, under which is a crypt with carved stone roof, has been greatly added to and restored for the use of the vicar. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities consist of almshouses and rents amounting to £40 or £50, distributed annually. Holbrook Hall, in Tudor style, and W. Hall are seats.

Walditch, pa., S. Dors., partly within the bor. of Bridport, from which it extends 1½ S.E.; ac. 285; soil sandy loam, overlying rock. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1863), in E. Eng. style, retains the original Norm. font.

Waldon, stream, N.W. Dev., rises about 5 S.S.E. of Hartland, and runs E.S.E. past Bradworthy, Sutcombe, Milton Damerel, and Bradford, to the Torridge, which it joins 4 W. by N. of Sheepwash, at a point 9 miles (in a direct line) from its source.

Waldridge (1), tp., pa. of and about 2 S.W. from Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur.; ac. 732, of which a great portion is moorland. Here is an extensive colliery.

Waldridge (2), ha., pa. of Dinton (q.v.), Mid Bucks., 3 N.W. of Princes Risborough.

Waldringfield, pa. and vil. on the Deben, S.E. Suff., 8 E. of Ipswich; ac. 901 and 191 tidal water and foreshore; soil sandy, and next the river loam, overlying sand, crag, and clay. Coprolites are dug out of the crag in this pa.; specimens of extinct animals have been found. The church of All Saints (restored 1864) is E. Eng. There is a small Baptist chapel. Malt is shipped from W. Cliff, and Portland cement is made here.

Waldron, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 8 N.W. of Hailsham; ac. 6,222 and 21 water; soil loam, overlying sand and clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1862) is E. Eng. and Dec.; it contains many brasses and inscriptions to the Dyke, Offley, Fuller, Dalrymple, and other families. There is a window of the early 13th cent., and in the chancel are traces of Norm. work. There is a charity of £2 10s. for distribution. Old Possingworth and Tanners, formerly seats, are now occupied by farmers. Possingworth is a modern mansion.

Wales, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 10 S.E. by E. of Sheffield; ac. 2,198; soil and subsoil clay and sand. The church of St. John is chiefly Norm. Here is a Free Methodist chapel. The school has an endowment. In the pa. are extensive coal mines.

Walesby (1), pa. and vil., N. Lincs., 3 N.E. of Market Rasen; ac. 3,592; soil various, overlying clay, sand, and chalk. The church of All Saints, on an eminence, is Trans., E. Eng., and Dec.; the north arcade is Trans., the southern E. Eng., with a credence and piscina in the south wall; the chancel retains its piscina and a fine altar-slab, incised with five crosses; a fragment of another slab bears the just decipherable name of "Dominus Johannes de Walesby," and a third is inscribed to Henry Waterland (d. 1698), rector, and father of Daniel Waterland, mentioned below. The church being dilapidated and very inconveniently situated, an iron church has been erected and licensed until the restoration or rebuilding on a new site of the pa. church. In the old rectory house was born Daniel Waterland, D.D. (1683–1740); his "History of the Athanasian Creed" has long been a standard work. In 1861 the remains of a Roman villa were discovered here; the residence apparently occupied an area of about 100 square yds., and the portions excavated consisted of several hypocaustal chambers with flues, etc., and an abundance of wood ashes; and about 90 yds. south-west a solid foundation wall, 60 ft. in length, some broken jars of Samian and Durobrivian ware, a bronze fibula, a stone chisel, an iron fork, several spindle whirls, bones of oxen, sheep, and deer, and quantities of oyster shells, were found in an ashpit about 20 ft. deep; close by three fragments of hand mills were dug up, and there was also a square bath with a long drain. The old manor-house is now represented only by part of an old wall built into a wheelwright's house, and portions of the fosse.

Walesby (2), pa. and vil., Mid Notts., 12 N.W. of Southwell; ac. 1,474; soil clay and sand, overlying clay. The church of St. Edmund (restored 1884 and 1886) contains sedilia, a piscina, and an ancient statue of the patron saint. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel and a village library.

Waleswood, ha., pa. of Wales (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 S. of Treeton.

Walford, pa. and vil. on the Wye, S. Herefords., 7 N.E. of Monmouth; ac. 4,340; soil clay, sand, and loam, overlying clay, rock, and red brick earth. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (restored 1887) is Norm., E. Eng., and Perp., and contains monuments to William Adams (d. 1681) and Rev. Thomas Dudley Fosbrook (d. 1842). St. John's chapel-of-ease was built 1874 in E. Eng. style. There are two charities, one devoted to educational purposes. Old Hill, once occupied by Colonel Kyrle, and Cobrey Park are now farmhouses. Hall Court and W. House are seats.

Walford, Letton, and Newton, tp., pa. of and about 1 S.W. from Leintwardine (q.v.), N. Herefords.; ac. 1,619. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Walgherton, tp. and vil., pa. of Wybunbury (q.v.), S. Chesh., 3 S. of Willaston railway station; ac. 883.

Walgrave, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 6 S.W. of Kettering; ac. 2,256; soil clay, overlying ironstone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is Dec., and contains the monument of John and Elizabeth Lane (1558), and a Bible (1611) and Book of Homilies (1676), with chains and lock. Here are Baptist and Calvinistic Baptist chapels. The charities amount to over £65 yearly, and the school has a small endowment.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Waldingfield, Little	Sudbury (5)	58	406
Walditch	Bridport (1)	154	175
Waldridge (1)	Chester-le-Street (2)	260	1961
Waldringfield	Woodbridge (3½)	79	284
'dron	Uckfield (6)	47	1431
[illegible]	Kiveton Park (2)	152	2550

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
Walesby (1)	Market Rasen (3)	145	[illegible]
Walesby (2)	Tuxford (4)	132	[illegible]
Walford	Ross (3)	132	1115
Walford, Letton, & N.	Bucknell (2)	177	149
Walgherton	Willaston (3)	160	147
Walgrave	Lamport (4)	76	952

Walham, ha., pa. of Clareborough (q.v.), N. Notts., 1 N.E. of Great Retford.

Walham Green, eccl. pa., pa. of Fulham (q.v.), S. Middx., 5 W.S.W. of St. Paul's. The Green, a triangular plot of greensward, no longer exists, its site being now occupied by National schools. On the ground once covered by the village pond stands the church of St. John, a brick edifice in modern Gothic style with a lofty tower. Butcher's Almshouses, a neat group of buildings near the church, enclosing three sides of a square, were erected in 1840.

Walkden Moor, eccl. pa., pas. of Eccles and Deane (q.v.), S. Lancs., 4 S. of Bolton. The church of St. Paul is in E. Eng. style. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Walker, eccl. pa. and to. on the north bank of the Tyne, pa. of Longbenton (q.v.), S. Northumb., 2½ E. of Newcastle. Christ Church (1848) is in Perp. style; the Catholic church is dedicated to St. Anthony of Padua, and there are places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The Mechanics' Institute comprises a library and a large public hall. W. colliery, worked by a company, produces excellent gas coal. Here are many important manufactories, iron ship- and boat-building establishments, iron foundries, chemical and copperas works. Newcastle City Hospital for Infectious Diseases, founded in 1804 in Bath Lane, Newcastle, was rebuilt (1887–88) on a site near W. railway station.

Walkerburn, q.s. pa. and vil. with railway station, on the Tweed, E. Peebs., Sc. The vil. is in the pa. of Innerleithen (q.v.), but the q.s. pa. extends into the pa. of Traquair (q.v.). In the vil. is a public hall. In the middle of the 19th cent. W. consisted of two cots and a farmhouse. About this time its manufacturing industry was founded, and the use of the Tweed secured as a motive power for the mills. The woollen factories now give employment to a number of hands.

Walkerfield. [WACKERFIELD.]

Walkeringham, pa. and vil. on the Trent, N. Notts., 4 N.W. of Gainsborough; ac. 2,872; soil clay, overlying marl and clay. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is Perp., and contains a good screen, a piscina, and a monument with effigies dated 1610. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There are several charities, and the schools have a small endowment. Remains exist of a market cross. Bricks are made.

Walkerith, tp. on the Trent, pa. of Gainsborough (q.v.), N.W. Lincs., 1 S. of East Stockwith; ac. 254.

Walkern, pa. and vil. on the Beane, N. Herts., 6 N.N.E. of Knebworth; ac. 2,986; soil gravel, flint, and clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (partly rebuilt 1878) is Norm. and Perp., with a chancel in E. Eng. style. It contains a fine marble effigy of a knight, brasses to Edward Humberstone (d. 1583), William Chapman (d. 1621), and a third c. 1480. Here are Baptist, Congregational, and Wesleyan chapels, and a reading-room. The pa. has some small charities. There is a brewery, mineral-water works, and a steam flour mill.

Walkerton, vil., pas. of Kingussie and Leslie (q.v.), Mid Fifes., Sc., near the to. of Leslie.

Walkhampton, pa. and vil. on the border of Dartmoor, S.W. Dev., 5 S.E. of Tavistock; ac. 3,905; soil various, subsoil rocky. The church (dedication unknown) is Perp.; it was badly damaged by lightning in 1889. The church house bears the date 1598. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. There is a charity, and a Free school founded and endowed in 1719. Here are granite quarries and a tin mine. Grantham, now a farmhouse, was formerly the residence of the Dunning family.

Walkingham Hill with Ockany, tp., pa. of Knaresborough (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6½ S.E. of Ripon; ac. 427. Of W. Hall only the foundations can be traced.

Walkington, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 2½ S.W. of Beverley; ac. 3,725; soil clay and chalk. The church of All Hallows (partly rebuilt 1818) is Perp. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There are some small charities. The East Riding Lunatic Asylum is in this pa. Here are several ancient crosses, marking the limits of the sanctuary of Beverley. W. Hall, an Elizabethan mansion, is a seat.

Walkley, eccl. pa. within the bor. of Sheffield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Mary is a modern building in Gothic style.

Walkmill (1), tp., pa. of and 2½ S.W. from Warkworth (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 123.

Walkmill (2), ha., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), E. Lancs., near Holme. There is an Independent Methodist chapel.

Walkmill (3), vil., pa. of Ashton-under-Lyne (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 5 N.E. of Stockport.

Walk Mills, ha., pa. of Smethcott (q.v.), W. Salop, 3 N. of Church Stretton.

Wall (1), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Lichfield St. Michael (q.v.), S.E. Staffs., 2 S.S.W. of Lichfield; ac. 910. The church is dedicated to St. John. W. was a Roman station, and coins, remains of buildings, etc., have been discovered. W. House is a seat.

Wall (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Lee St. John (q.v.), S. Northumb., 4 N.W. of Hexham, on the road to Alnwick; ac. 1,667 and 32 water. The tp. lies close to the Roman wall, from which it derives its name.

Wallabarra Crag. [ULPHA (1).]

Walla Brook, small affluent of the Avon, on Dartmoor, S. Dev., 8 W. by N. of Totnes.

Wallace's Leap. [DEVOL'S GLEN.]

Wallacestone and Standrig, vil., pas. of Polmont

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Walham Green	Walham Green	6	17676
Walkden Moor	Walkden	192	6575
Walker	Walker	275	11341
Walkerburn, q.s. pa.	Walkerburn	373	1441
Walkerburn, vil.	Walkerburn	373	1288
Walkeringham	Walkeringham	150	752
Walkerith	Gainsborough (2)	146	85
Walkern	Stevenage (4)	29	849
Walkerton	Leslie	425	304
Walkhampton	Dousland	247	606
Walkingham H.w.O.	Knaresborough (4)	204	32
Walkington	Beverley (2½)	203	950
Walkley	Sheffield (2)	158	9811
Walkmill (1)	Warkworth (2½)	303	8
Wall (1), eccl. pa.	Shenstone (1½)	121	177
Wall (1), tp.	Shenstone (1½)	121	109
Wall (2)	Wall	292	422
Wallacestone & S.	Polmont	411	520

and Muiravonside, S.E. Stirls., Sc., 3 s. by E. of Falkirk. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Wallacetown, q.s. pa. on north bank of the Ayr, pa. of Ayr (q.v.), Mid Ayrs., Sc., adjoining the to. of Ayr on the east. W. is situated within Ayr parl. bor.

Wallasea, or Wallisea, peninsula (formerly an island, and still so called) in the estuary of the Crouch, S.E. Essex, 5 N.E. of Rochford, in the pas. of Canewdon, Great Eastwood, Stambridge, Little Wakering and Paglesham. It is 3 miles long by about a mile and a half broad, and consists of fertile marshland.

Wallasey, pa., tp., and vil., Chesh.; the pa. forms the north-west corner of the co., and is a peninsula of a triangular form, bounded on the west by the Irish Sea, on the north-east by the Mersey, and on the south-east by a branch of that river called Wallasey Pool, now utilised for docks, near which lies the vil.; ac. of pa. 3,408, of tp. 1,595. The church of St. Hilary (founded in the 10th cent.) was rebuilt about 1760, except the tower, which bore date 1530. It was destroyed by fire in 1857, and rebuilt in E. Eng. style on an adjoining site in 1859. The church stands on a hill, and commands beautiful and extensive prospects over the Wirral peninsula and the Dee. W. has a Wesleyan chapel, a Working Men's Institute, and a Cottage Hospital. The Grammar School (founded in 1595) was re-organised in 1876, and new buildings erected. The charities include a sum of £17 yearly for distribution, and £4 10s. for education. [LEASOWE CASTLE.]

Wallasey Pool. [WALLASEY.]

Wallbottle, tp., pa. of Newburn (q.v.), S. Northumb., about 5 W. of Newcastle-on-Tyne; ac. 1,277. The Roman wall passed through the tp.

Wallerscoat, formerly tp., pa. of Weaverham (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 1½ W. of Northwich, now united with Winnington; it consists of a farm of 122 ac.

Wallerthwaite, ha., pa. of Ripon (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 N. of Ripley.

Wallet, fairway channel between the mainland and the Gunfleet Sandbank, E. coast of Essex, about 12 S. of Harwich.

Wall Grange, pl. with railway station, pa. of Cheddleton (q.v.), N. Staffs., near Longsdon.

Wallheath, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Kingswinford (q.v.), S. Staffs.

Wallingfen, tp. and vil., pa. of Eastrington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., about 9 S.W. of Beverley; ac. 2,250.

Wallingford, ancient mun. bor., mkt. and U. to., head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis. on the Thames, here crossed by a bridge, N. Berks., 15 N.W. of Reading. The bor., which sent representatives to Parliament in the reign of Edward I., returned one member to Parliament until 1886, when the representation was merged in that of the co. This place has given the title of Viscount to the Knollys family, of Rotherfield Greys, Oxon. Including the sinecure of All Hallows, in which there is no church, the to. has now four pas. The church of St. Leonard is a small plain building of rubble and flint, probably erected in the 11th cent.; two arches in the chancel exhibit some interesting and perhaps unique Norm. work; there is a Norm. doorway on the north side of the nave, and in the chancel an ancient priest's door. During the siege of W. the church was converted into barracks and greatly injured; it has, however, been restored; the churchyard is bounded on the east by a brook, which once formed part of the circumvallation of the to. The church of St. Mary the More, on the south side of the market-place, appears to have been in existence shortly after the Conquest; it is probable that the tower was built and the fabric repaired about 1653 with the materials of the castle, which had been demolished in the previous year. The church contains some mural monuments. There is a church estate producing £75 yearly. The church of St. Peter was rebuilt in 1769, the original structure having been laid in ruins during the siege. In a vault beneath the chancel is buried Sir William Blackstone, Knight, the distinguished judge and author of the Commentary (d. 1780); a black marble slab at the foot of the chancel steps, bearing his crest, but without inscription, marks the spot. In the to. are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Grammar School has an endowment of about £200 a year. The town hall is a plain building, supported on stone pillars, with a balcony; the hall and council chamber occupy the first floor, and in the latter are many portraits. In the centre of the market-place is an obelisk, bearing the arms of the to., and around it a paved ring of light-coloured stones called the Bull-ring. The Free Library and Literary Institution is also available for concerts and other entertainments. The Corn Exchange (1856) erected by a company, is in Italian style; before it was built the corn market was held in the open space beneath the to. hall. The market-day is Friday for corn (weekly) and cattle (fortnightly). W. has a Cottage Hospital, several blocks of almshouses, and important charities. W. Castle was situated within the ancient walls, in the north-east quarter of the to.; its original construction has been attributed to the Romans, and several still existing subterranean passages connected with the keep, with portions of early masonry, have been pronounced to be Roman work; the fortress, despoiled by the Danes A.D. 1006, was rebuilt by Robert D'Oyley, acting under the orders of William the Conqueror, between A.D. 1067 and 1071; during the Civil War lines of defence were thrown up within the interior area, and the fortress regained, in some measure, its ancient strength; the care of the to. and castle was entrusted to Colonel Blagge, who defended it with great resolution for sixteen weeks, and eventually surrendered with a loss of only five slain, July 27, 1646; after its surrender the castle became the State prison, and in 1652 was demolished by an Order of Council; the centre moat still exhibits traces of artificial works of great strength. The College of St. Nicholas and the church or chapel belonging to it were situated at the south-east corner of the area circumscribed by the fortifications of the castle; the doorway and windows, four of which remain on the west side, bear traces of alterations late in the 14th or early in the

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wallacetown	Ayr	392	6283
Wallasey, pa.	Wallasey	198	33229
Wallasey, tp.	Wallasey	198	2067

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wallbottle	Newburn (1)	277	1190
Wallingfen	North Cave (2½)	198	787
Wallingford	Wallingford	51	2889

15th cent.; the burial-ground is supposed to have adjoined the church on the south-east. The enclosure called "the Kine Croft" is appropriated as a public recreation ground; it is fenced in on the north and west by earthworks, forming portions of a Roman camp. Castle Priory, a seat, was formerly occupied by Judge Blackstone.

Wallingford All Hallows, pa., within the bor. of Wallingford (q.v.), N. Berks.; ac. 859. The church was destroyed during the siege in 1643.

Wallingford Castle Precincts, formerly a pa. partly within the bor. of Wallingford (q.v.), N. Berks. The part within the bor. has been amalgamated with W. All Hallows; and the parts of that pa. and of W. Castle Precincts outside the bor. have been made a new civil pa.

Wallingford St. Leonard. [WALLINGFORD.]

stood on the London road, near the Wandle, but all traces of it have vanished. Here are places of worship for various Dissenting bodies.

Wallington (3), ha., pa. of and adjoining Fareham (q.v.), S. Hants. Here is a large tan-yard.

Wallington Demesne, tp., pa. of Hartburn (q.v.), Mid Northumb., ½ s. of Cambo; ac. 1,840. W. Hall, a seat, was built in 1697 in Italian style, and contains some decorative pictures by W. Bell Scott.

Wallington-with-Thorpland, pa., S.W. Norf., 3 N. of Downham Market; ac. 1,460; soil gravel, overlying clay. There were formerly two churches in this pa.; that of St. Margaret, Wallington, is now in ruins, and the church of St. Thomas, Thorpland, has entirely disappeared. Wallington Hall, an ancient

THE BRIDGE, WALLINGFORD. (See page 284.)

Wallingford St. Mary the More. [WALLINGFORD.]

Wallingford St. Peter. [WALLINGFORD.]

Wallington (1), pa. and vil., N. Herts., 8 S.W. of Royston; ac. 2,042; soil principally light, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary is Dec.; at the east end of the aisle and separated from it by a Perp. screen is a chapel; on its north side is an altar-tomb, with matrices of brasses, and on the side are niches with figures of saints and shields of arms; it is believed to have been erected to John Prysot and Margaret his wife. The charities amount to about £5 5s. yearly.

Wallington (2), eccl. pa. and tp. on the Wandle, pa. of Beddington (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, 2½ W. of Croydon; ac. 823. The church of the Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style. An ancient chapel formerly mansion with good gardens and an extensive park, is a seat.

Wallingwells, pa., N.W. Notts., extending into W.R. Yorks., 4½ N.W. of Worksop; ac. 602. The Hall, a seat, was built of materials from the ruins of the Benedictine nunnery formerly here.

Wallis Down, pl., pa. of Holdenhurst (q.v.), S.W. Hants, forming part of the to. of Bournemouth.

Wallisea. [WALLASEA.]

Walliswood, vil., pas. of Abinger and Ockley (q.v.), S.E. Surrey, 2¼ S.W. of Ockley.

Wallop, Nether, pa. and vil., N.W. Hants, 8 S.W. of Andover; ac. 7,145; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Andrew is Norm. and later periods; there is a 15th-cent. brass, two Dec.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wallingford All H.	Wallingford	51	150
Wallingford St. L.	Wallingford	51	1154
WallingfordSt. M. M.	Wallingford	51	1276
WallingfordSt. Peter	Wallingford	51	490
Wallington (1)	Baldock (3)	37	133
Wallington(2), ec. pa.	Wallington	13	2937
Wallington (2), tp.	Wallington	13	3823
WallingtonDemesne	Scots Gap (2)	299	162
Wallington-with-T.	Downham (3)	86	54
Wallingwells	Elmton (½)	150	29
Wallop, Nether	Grateley (4)	73	770

niches, and a squint. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. There are several charities and an endowed school. On Danebury Hill is a circular camp. Garlogs, Old Lodge, and W. House are seats.

Wallop, Over, pa. and vil., W. Hants, 7 S.W. of Andover; ac. 4,571; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Peter (restored 1875, having at previous times been rebuilt) is E. Eng. Here is a Baptist chapel. The charities amount to £80 per annum.

Wallow or Walla Crag, eminence on east side of Derwent Water, S.W. Cumb., 1¾ S. by E. of Keswick. The Crag commands a fine view of Derwent Water and Skiddaw. It was a favourite haunt of the poet Southey. Lady Derwentwater passed over the Crag when hastening to London from her home on Lord's Island in 1715 to intercede for her husband's life.

Wallridge, tp., pa. of and 4 N.N.W. from Stamfordham (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 153.

Walls, pa. and ha. in west of Mainland, Shet., Sc., 15 W.N.W. of Lerwick; ac. 24,498; soil chiefly mossy or moorland. The pa. occupies the more westerly portion of the peninsula which strikes westward from the centre of Mainland. It is surrounded by the Atlantic on all sides but the east, St. Magnus Bay being on the north. The coast is rocky, and inland there are many hills, the highest of which has an altitude of 817 ft. The islands of Vaila, Linga, Foula, and Papa Stour are in the pa. The ha. and the principal Established church (erected 1743) are situated on the north side of Vaila Sound. Besides the other Established churches there is a Free church, also Wesleyan and Congregational chapels.

Walls and Flotta, pa., Ork., Sc., 16 S.S.W. of Kirkwall; ac. 24,327, of which a large quantity is common and waste. The pa. consists of the southern or Walls part of the island of Hoy, the islands of Flotta and Pharay, and some uninhabited islands, which afford pasture for sheep and cattle. The surface in Walls is diversified with hills, though in Flotta comparatively level; the scenery is generally of a bold and romantic character, and the view from the higher ground extensive, embracing features of grandeur and sublimity. The inhabitants are mostly employed in agriculture or in the fisheries.

Walls Castle. [RAVENGLASS.]

Wallsend, pa. and to., S. Northumb., 4 E.N.E. of Newcastle, stretching along the north bank of the Tyne; ac. 2,528; soil and subsoil clay. W. is said to have derived its name from its position at the eastern extremity of the great Roman wall, which terminated in a field a short distance to the east of the site occupied by Carville Hall, where at the present time the north fosse of the wall may be traced; here was the Roman station Segedunum, which occupied an area of about 3½ ac., on an eminence near the Tyne; a gravelled path now runs for some distance on the site of the wall. The church of St. Peter, erected in 1807–9, is a building of stone, consisting of a nave with semicircular apse, and a western tower. W. has an eccl. pa. with a modern church, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. In 1814 some workmen discovered a quantity of Roman masonry and coins a little above high-water mark, and also a curious cauldron. About ¼ N.E. are the ruins of the church of the Holy Cross, an edifice of the Trans. Norm. period. The burial-ground of this church was closed in 1889 by order of the Privy Council. The Co-operative Society erected a large building here in 1875 for trade purposes, over which is a concert hall, a reading-room, and a library of 3,000 volumes. Extensive coal mines exist in the neighbourhood, and this place gives its name to an excellent house coal. The colliery was opened in 1777, and has been the scene of many dreadful accidents, in one of which on Oct. 23, 1821, 52 men were killed.

Wallstown, pa. in the valley of the Awbeg Fermoy bar., N. co. Cork, Ir., 2½ E.S.E. of Doneraile; ac. 3,056. Here is a creamery. W. Castle is a seat.

Wall Town, tp., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Haltwhistle (q.v.), S.W. Northumb.; ac. 2,964. It is intersected by the Roman wall, and contains the site of two Roman stations.

Wall-under-Haywood, ha., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Rushbury (q.v.), S. Salop.

Wallyford, vil., pa. of Inveresk (q.v.), N.E. Edins., Sc., 1½ S.E. of Musselburgh.

Walmer, pa., forming a populous suburb to the to. of Deal, E. Kent; ac. 866 and 52 water. W. consists of two parts, Upper and Lower W., and is a member of the Cinque Port of Sandwich. The old pa. church of St. Mary, now closed except for funerals, has a fine Norm. chancel arch, and the north and south doorways are of the same period. The new church of St. Mary (1887–88) is in Perp. style. St. Saviour's chapel-of-ease is near the barracks; there is also a school-chapel for the marines. Attached to the convent of the Visitation is a church (1881) in Gothic style. The Royal Marine Infirmary is an extensive building, erected in 1795, and for many years occupied as a coast-

WALMER CASTLE.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wallop, Over	Grateley (2)	73	516
Wallridge	Angerton (7)	295	3
Walls	Thurso (160)	744	2057
Walls and Flotta	Thurso (20)	744	1505
Wallsend, pa.	Wallsend	275	20113
Wallsend, to.	Wallsend	275	11257
Wallstown	Buttevant (5½)	137	2[illegible]
Wall Town	Haltwhistle (2)	305	3[illegible]
Wallyford	Musselburgh (1½)	392	3[illegible]
Walmer	Walmer	83	4[illegible]

guard station; during the Crimean War it reverted to its original use, and its wards were fitted up with beds as a reserve hospital, and is now used as a marine hospital. There are besides this establishment the barracks, with the grounds covering an area of 22 ac. The local charities include the interest of £50, distributed to the poor in coals. W. Castle is the official residence of the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports; the fortress is similar to that of Deal, and was originally built by Henry VIII. in 1539, but has undergone much alteration. Queen Victoria once honoured W. Castle with a visit, and the great Duke of Wellington died here (Sept. 14, 1852).

Walmersley, eccl. pa. and vil. on the Irwell, pa. of and 2½ N. from Bury (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. Christ Church was built 1883 in E. Eng. style. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Free Methodist chapels. In the pa. are remains of a beacon tower. Grant Tower was built in 1829. A large number of Roman coins, etc., were found here in 1870.

Walmersley and Shuttleworth, tp., pa. of and 2 N. from Bury (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.; ac. 5.053.

Walmgate, St. Dennis in, pa., city of York, N.R. Yorks.; ac. 14. The church of St. Denis (restored 1865) is of mixed periods, and includes some Norm. work; the church is remarkable for its ancient stained glass, and also contains memorials to the Percy family, among them Henry, third Earl of Northumberland, killed at Toulon (1461).

Walmgate St. Margaret, pa., city of York, N.R. Yorks.; ac. 16. The church of St. Margaret is chiefly Dec.; the tower was rebuilt in 1684; there is a fine Norm. south doorway.

Walmley, eccl. pa., pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Sutton Coldfield (q.v.), N.W. Warws. The church of St. John was built 1845 in Norm. style.

Walmsgate, pa., E. Lincs., about 7 S.S.E. of Louth; ac. 920; soil clay and chalk, overlying chalk. The church was destroyed many years ago, but the site can still be traced. W. Hall, a modern mansion of stone surrounded by trees, is a seat.

Walmsley, eccl. pa., pa. of Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 3 N. of Bolton. Christ Church is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans, Congregationalists, and Unitarians have chapels. Here are bleaching, cotton, and dye works.

Walna or Walney Scar, elevated spot (2,000 ft.), N.W. Lancs., 3 W. by S. of Coniston. The Scar commands magnificent prospects, embracing all the mountains from Grassmoor to Black Combe, with the majestic heights of Scafell and the Pike rising conspicuously in the foreground. The view over Dunnerdale towards the close of September is described in glowing language by Wordsworth.

Walney, island and eccl. pa., pa. of Dalton-in-Furness (q.v.), N. Lancs., opposite the port and within the bor. of Barrow-in-Furness, from which place it is reached by a steam ferry, and at low water the sands at the northern part of the island are sufficiently dry for foot passengers to cross by a causeway built for that purpose. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt in 1852) stands upon the site of a much older chapel, founded by the monks of Furness. W. lighthouse is near the south-east extremity of the island; the light, 70 ft. above the water, may be seen in clear weather at a distance of 13 miles. At South End Haws is a lighthouse, 68 ft. high, erected in 1790, which has proved of essential service to mariners navigating the Irish Sea, on the approach to Morecambe Bay. A valuable bed of salt exists here.

Walpen Chine, ravine on south-west coast of I. of W., S. Hants, 5½ W. of Ventnor. The Chine is in the west vicinity of Chale and Niton. The cliffs here rise precipitously to a height of 184 ft.

Walpole, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 3 S.W. of Halesworth, bounded on the north-east by a tributary of the Blyth; ac. 1,750; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1878) is chiefly Dec.; the south doorway is a fine specimen of Norm. architecture. The Congregational chapel is the oldest in the co., having been established in 1646; there is an endowment, a residence for the minister, and a burial-ground. The Primitive Methodists also have a chapel. Neale's charity of £3 yearly is distributed to the poor.

Walpole St. Andrew, pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 7 N. by E. of Wisbech; ac. 2,364, and 1,130 water; soil clay and loam. The church of St. Andrew is Perp.; on the south side of the chancel arch is an elegant stone bracket, supposed to have been for the gospeller; there is also a curious cell built in the buttress of the tower. The Dole lands and houses produce £150 yearly, which is for use of the poor. In 1862 the Charity Commissioners erected here almshouses for three poor widows. It was in the immediate neighbourhood of this place that the English monarch King John lost the baggage of his army in attempting to cross the Wash.

Walpole St. Peter, extensive pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 8 S.W. of Lynn; ac. 6,982; soil and subsoil strong clay. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng. and Dec., and contains some very fine carved oak benches; the fronts of the book boards and panels of the screen are decorated with paintings of the time of Henry VI. representing saints under canopies; over the stair to the rood-loft are paintings of the Virgin and St. John the Evangelist. There has been from time immemorial a footpath through the churchyard, and when the present church was built, the east end going to the very verge of the churchyard, and the parishioners not being willing to give up their footpath, the difficulty was overcome by making a vaulted way under the chancel, which causes the communion table to be approached by a flight of ten steps. The church of St. Edmund, at Walpole Highway, is in Norm. style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The school has an endowment, and there are almshouses for six poor women. The rent of the Dole lands of 41 ac. is distributed in money. "The sea-wall," built by the Romans and

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walmersley	Summerseat (1)	198	2539
Walmersley & S.	Summerseat (1)	198	5789
Walmgate, St. D. in	York	188	948
Walmgate St. M.	York	188	1457
Walmley	Erdington (3)	114	771
Walmsgate	Aby (2)	134	55

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walmsley	Britannia	202	4028
Walney	Barrow-in-Furn's (1)	265	484
Walpole	Halesworth (3)	101	393
Walpole St. Andrew	Walpole (1)	106	602
Walpole St. Peter	Walpole (2)	106	1149 called "the Roman Bank," crosses this pa., and antiquities have been found in it.

Walsall, parl. and mun. bor. (extending into the pa. of Rushall), pa., mkt. to. (T. & S.), head of U. and Co. Co. dis., S. Staffs., about 8 N.W. of Birmingham; ac. 8,314. W. was constituted a parl. bor. by the Reform Act (1832) and returns one member. The church of St. Matthew, on a commanding eminence, was rebuilt in 1821 in Dec. style; the oaken stalls of the ancient structure, fourteen in number, remain in the chancel, and have misereres carved in the usual grotesque manner. The font is of alabaster, octagonal in form and richly sculptured; the large window at the west end contains a figure of St. Matthew. W. has also eccl. pas. with modern churches, and places of worship for the principal Nonconformist bodies. Queen Mary's Schools, in Lichfield Street, were founded by Queen Mary in 1554. A new scheme was approved in 1873, and the school divided into two departments—the High School and the Lower School. John, first Lord Somers (1652–1715), is said to have been educated in this school; in 1695 he became Lord Keeper, and in 1697 Lord Chancellor; it also claims as a former pupil John Hough, D.D., the famous president of Magdalen College, Oxford, and afterwards Bishop of Oxford from 1690 to 1699, when he was translated to Coventry and Lichfield, and in 1717 to Worcester; he died March 8, 1743, and was buried in Worcester Cathedral. The town hall (1866), in High Street, is a fine building in Italian style; it comprises the sessions court, council chamber and a police station. The Borough Offices are situated in Bridge Street; the former Guildhall was built about 1773. A curious custom of ancient origin up till recently prevailed here of throwing apples and nuts from the town hall on St. Clement's Day, to be scrambled for by the populace. Other public buildings are the County Court House, in Classic style; the Post Office (1879), a plain brick structure with stone dressings; the Temperance Hall (1866), in Italian style; the Grand Theatre (1890), in Romanesque style, and St. George's Theatre; the Free Library with well-supplied reading-rooms; and the Science and Art Institute. On the Bridge is a pedestal of iron, supporting an illuminated clock with four dials, and a marble statue of the late Sister Dora (Miss D. W. Pattison, who died in 1878, after twelve years' devoted nursing of the poor). W. has an epidemic and a cottage hospital. The Arboretum consists of 26 ac. of land and 6 of water, and is tastefully laid out. There are also other recreation grounds under the control of the Corporation. Coal mines, quarries of limestone, ironstone, and brick clay pits are numerous. Among the manufactures of the to. may be enumerated saddlers' and coach ironmongery, buckles, chains, curbs, bits, spurs and stirrups, with plated and other mountings, bridles, saddles, harness, collars, and all the necessary trappings for horses and carriages; also locks, bolts, keys, pulleys, brushes and spectacles; there are also a number of brass and iron foundries, iron, galvanised iron, and iron tube works, several corn mills and tanneries, besides establishments for the currying, dyeing, and polishing of hides for the staple commodity of harness ware. Annual fairs are held on Feb. 24 (St. Matthias), Whit-Tuesday (a fair by prescription), and Tuesday before Old Michaelmas Day; the latter is celebrated for cheese and onions. The charities are important; there are several sets of almshouses, and other charities, amounting to nearly £300 a year, for distributing bread, coats and gowns to the poor. Queen Elizabeth, in one of her tours, affixed the royal seal and signature at W., or, as some say, whilst she was staying at the manor-house of Bescot, on July 13, in the 28th year of her reign, to a deed preserved in the archives of the Corporation, containing a grant of land to the to. In 1643 Henrietta Maria, Queen of Charles I., remained here for a short time, and is said to have stayed at the "White Hart," Caldmore, previous to joining the King at Edgehill. There are some ancient deeds and seals in the town chest.

Walsall Borough, tp., pa. of Walsall (q.v.), S. Staffs., about 8 N.W. of Birmingham; ac. 95.

Walsall Foreign, tp., pa. of Walsall (q.v.), S. Staffs., about 8 N.W. of Birmingham; ac. 8,219.

Walsall Wood, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Walsall (q.v.), S. Staffs., 1½ E. of Pelsall. The church of St. John (1837) is in Gothic style. Trinity Church, Clayhanger, was erected in 1882. There is a Catholic school chapel, also Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Walscot, ha., pa. of and 3 N.W. from North Molton (q.v.), N. Devon.

Walsden, eccl. pa. and ha., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), E. Lancs., 2 S.E. of Todmorden. The church of St. Peter (1848) is in E. Eng. style. There are Primitive Methodist, Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The inhabitants are mainly employed in cotton mills and chemical works. On a neighbouring hill were found some ancient remains, supposed to be Druidical. [TODMORDEN AND WALSDEN.]

Walsgrave-on-Sowe. [SOWE.]

Walsham-le-Willows, pa. and large vil., N.W. Suff., 12 N.E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 2,746; soil chiefly heavy, with a portion of mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1878) is Perp.; there is an old screen under the chancel arch; the roof of the nave is open, with ancient decorations. There are Baptist and Congregational chapels. The town estate of 137 ac. and the old Guildhall and Town House (divided into tenements and inhabited by poor people) are vested in trust for the benefit and use of the inhabitants; the rents have for upwards of two centuries been applied for the use of the poor in providing coal, the churchwardens' expenses, repair of bridges, and of late an annual contribution to the National school; the rent of the other portion of the estate, formerly a part of Alwood Common, is applied in aid of the poor's rate. The public hall, which is used for parochial purposes and has an institute and reading-room, is a brick building erected in 1858. W. Hall is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Walsall, parl. bor.	Walsall	120	71789
Walsall, mun. bor.	Walsall	120	71789
Walsall, pa.	Walsall	120	71397
Walsall Borough	Walsall	120	7286
Walsall Foreign	Walsall	120	6411
Walsall Wood	Walsall Wood	136	476
Walsden	Walsden	202	456
Walsham-le-Will'ws	Elmswell (6)	86	193

Walsham, North, pa. and mkt. to., E. Norf., 14 N. of Norwich; ac. 4,252; soil and subsoil strong clay. The to. is pleasantly situated on an eminence between the Ant and Bure. The church of St. Nicholas, an ancient building of magnificent proportions (restored 1881), is Perp., with the remains of a massive tower, once, with spire, 147 ft. in height, but in ruins since 1724; the spandrels of the entrance arch bear the arms of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster (1340–99), and of St. Benet's Abbey. On the north side of the chancel is a monument to Sir William Paston, Knight, of Paston (d. 1608); the font has a cover of carved oak. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Grammar School was founded and endowed in 1606, but a new scheme has been sanctioned by the Commissioners and new buildings erected; Nelson was educated here. There are a few charities, the funds of which are derived from the rental of an allotment to the poor of 34 ac., the amount (£60) being distributed in coals. Here are extensive agricultural-implement works. An agricultural show is held here biennially alternately with Aylsham. The market is on Thursday, chiefly for corn, and there are also auction sales for cattle, etc., held on the same day. An angling society was formed in 1886 to preserve the fishing. The market cross, built by Bishop Thirlby in the reign of Edward VI., was repaired by Bishop Redman in 1690, and again restored in 1856 and 1882. On N. W. Heath, beside the road to the city of Norwich, is a stone cross, said to mark the spot where in 1381 the rebels, headed by John Leitester, a dyer of Norwich, were defeated by Henry de Spencer, the warlike Bishop of Norwich.

The Church of St. Nicholas, North Walsham. (Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Walsham, South, vil. in two pas. (S. W. St. Lawrence and S. W. St. Mary), E. Norf., 10 N.E. of Norwich; ac. of St. Lawrence 1,902, of St. Mary 1,311; soil good mixed, overlying chalk, stone, sand, and clay. The church of St. Lawrence was burnt down in 1827; the chancel was repaired and opened for divine service in 1832. The church of St. Mary is a fine ancient edifice of the Perp. period. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Harrold's charity of £22 yearly is for apprenticing, and there are other charities of about £30 yearly value.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walsham, North	North Walsham	130	3612
Walsham, So. St. La.	Brundall (5)	120	254
Walsham, So. St. Ma.	Brundall (5)	120	336

Walsham, South, St. Lawrence. [Walsham, South.]

Walsham, South, St. Mary. [Walsham, South.]

Walshaw, ha., pa. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 4 N.W. of Hebden Bridge.

Walshford, ha. on the Nidd (here crossed by a bridge of three arches), pa. of Hunsingore (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 N.E. of Wetherby. [Ribston, Great, with Walshford.]

Walsingham, Great, or Old Walsingham, pa. and vil., N. Norf., 1 N.E. of New Walsingham; ac. 2,170; soil mixed, overlying marl. The church of St. Peter is Dec.; the pulpit dates from 1613; there is a piscina at the east end of each aisle. Here are agricultural-implement works.

Walsingham, Little, or New Walsingham, pa. and U. to. and head of Co. Co. dis. on the Stiffkey, N. Norf., 5 S.E. of Wells; ac. 952. The church of St. Mary (restored 1861) is a noble cruciform Perp. building; the south transept forms the organ chamber; in the north transept is a magnificent alabaster monument to Sir Henry Sidney and Dame Jane his wife (1612); there are also tablets to the Lee-Warners; the north transept contains the entrance to a rood staircase; there is also a carved screen and a piscina. The font, now much mutilated, is one of the finest examples of Perp. fonts in England; it consists of an octagonal basin with richly-sculptured panels, representing the Seven Sacraments of the Catholic Church and the Crucifixion, supported on a shaft enriched with figures of the Four Evangelists and other saints, the whole standing upon a pediment of three steps in the form of a Maltese cross. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Eight almshouses, and various legacies amounting to about £230 a year, have been left for the relief of the poor inhabitants. The market has been discontinued, but a fair is held on the second Monday after Whit Monday, and statute fairs on the Fridays before and after Michaelmas Day. There are ruins of a house of Franciscans or Grey Friars, founded by Elizabeth de Burgh, Countess of Clare, in 1346, and dedicated to St. Mary. A hospital for lepers occupied the site of the present police station, which is also the site of the Old Bridewell. The to. was formerly famous for its priory of Augustinian canons, founded by Edwy the Clerk (1061), and refounded in 1160 by Geoffrey de Favranches on the site of a small chapel erected by his mother in 1090 in honour of the Virgin Mary (Our Lady of Walsingham), similar in design to the Sancta Casa of Nazareth; it was a most noted place of pilgrimage. The ruins of this once wealthy establishment now consist of the western gateway of the precinct, of E. Perp. date, with a small figure of a porter looking out of a window; a part of the east end of the church (Late Dec.), consisting of a window frame with niches at the side, a Norm. arch leading to a stone bath and two wells called the Wishing Wells, from the legend that persons drinking their waters will obtain any wish made when they do so, and also some fine lancet arches and part of the E. Dec. refectory, comprising the west and four other windows and

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walsingham, Great	Walsingham	132	422
Walsingham, Little	Walsingham (½)	132	936

a reading-pulpit, approached by stone steps in the wall. On the north side is another gatehouse; the priory church was 252 ft. in length. W. Abbey, a large and ancient building in a well-wooded park of about 50 ac., is a seat; the grounds are very beautiful, and are open to the public by the permission of the owner, on application at the lodge, every Wednesday.

Walsoken, pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., adjoining Wisbech, from which it is separated by a small stream; the part adjacent to Wisbech is called New Walsoken, and has extended very much during the last few years; ac. 4,656; soil loam, overlying clay. W. is the centre of a great fruit-growing district, the principal fruits grown being gooseberries, apples, pears, plums, and raspberries. The church of All Saints, situated a little off the high road, is Norm.; the tower and west doorway are Dec.; the 15th-cent. screens between the aisles and chancel aisles are remarkably fine and retain traces of colour and gilding, which are also found on the nave roof. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities amount to £57, which is distributed yearly by the trustees. W. House is a seat.

Interior, Waltham Abbey (looking East).
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Walsoken, New. [Walsoken.]

Walston, pa., bounded on the south by the Culter Water and north-west by the South Medwin river, E. Lanarks., Sc., about 14 E. of Lanark; ac. 4,361. The church is about 6 N. of Biggar.

Walterstone (1), pa. on the Monnow, S. Herefords., 15 S.W. of Hereford; ac. 1,254; soil clay, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Mary, anciently of St. Peter (restored), is E. Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. In the pa. are two camps and other ancient remains. Altyrynys, now a farmhouse, was once the residence of Lord Burleigh.

Walterstone (2), ha., pa. of Llanrhidian (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 10 S.W. of Swansea.

Walterstone (3), ha., pa. of Llancarvan (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 4 S.E. of Cowbridge.

Walterstown (1), pa., W. Offaly bar., Mid co. Kildare, Ir., 3½ S.W. of Kildare; ac. 1,478.

Walterstown (2), ha., pa. of Moynalty (q.v.), E. co. Meath, Ir., 7 S.E. of Navan.

Waltham (1), pa. and large vil., E. Lincs., 3½ S. of Grimsby; ac. 2,064; soil clay and silt, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the chancel retains sedilia and a double piscina, and there is a piscina at the east end of each aisle. In 1867 a slab was found in the nave with brass effigies of Joan or Johanna Waltham (d. 1420) and her son and daughter; and in 1869 an inscribed brass was discovered commemorating the parents of John Waltham, Keeper of the Rolls from 1381 to 1386, and was consecrated twenty-sixth Bishop of Sarum in 1388, and in 1391 was appointed Keeper of the Privy Seal and Lord High Treasurer of England, which high office he held till his death (1395). Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a Temperance Hall.

Waltham (2), pa. and vil., E. Kent, 7 S. of Canterbury; ac. 3,272; soil various, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Bartholomew is Norm., Dec., and Perp., and contains three Perp. sedilia in the chancel. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Waltham Abbey, or Waltham Holy Cross, p.

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walsoken	Wisbech (1)	94	2771
Walston	Dunsyre (1½)	381	301
Walterstone (1)	Pandy (1)	159	99
Walterstown (1)	Kildare (3½)	31	179

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Waltham (1)	Waltham	152	78
Waltham (2)	Chilham (4)	64	62
Waltham Abbey	Waltham Cross (1)	12	688

and ancient mkt. to. (T.), W. Essex, on the borders of Middx. and Herts., about 1 E. from the Waltham Cross station of the G.E.R.; ac. 10,419 and 103 water. The to., which consists of one main street and several others branching from it, is said to derive its name and origin from the following circumstance:—Toni, standard-bearer to Canute the Dane, attracted by the game in this locality, built a small station, which grew into a vil.; he also erected a church in which to deposit a relic of the Holy Cross, brought here by a miracle. The estate seems rapidly to have increased, and when it descended to Athelstan, on the death of his father Toni, it was regarded as a great possession. Athelstan, however, soon dissipated his wealth, and the whole appears to have passed to the Crown, for Edward the Confessor bestowed it on his brother-in-law Harold, who greatly enlarged and enriched the abbey, endowing it with many of his former possessions, which, connected with it as hamlets or townships, are traceable to the present day. On the death of the Confessor, Harold ascended the throne, but being defeated and slain at Hastings (1066) by William the Norman, his body, with those of Gurth and Leofwin, his brothers, was brought hither and interred, according to general tradition, by Githa, their mother, in the choir or eastern chapel; in confirmation of which it is stated that in the reign of Elizabeth a rich grey marble tomb was discovered, and, from the pillarets which support it and the cross fleury upon it, little doubt exists that it covered the remains of the ill-fated Harold and his gallant brothers. The abbey lands were seized by William and apportioned among his followers; King Henry II., however, recovered the scattered endowments and re-endowed and re-dedicated the church to the Holy Cross and St. Lawrence, exchanging the monks for regular canons. Henry III. was also a great benefactor, and often, amidst the many changes he experienced, retired to the abbey of Waltham, and bestowed on the to. the privilege of holding its fairs and weekly market. The abbey had continued from its foundation for 478 years, when, on March 23, 1540, it was surrendered to Henry VIII. by Robert Fuller, the last abbot, at which time its revenues amounted to £1,097 yearly, the abbot also ranking as a peer of Parliament. All that now remains of the once famous abbey is the nave, which constitutes the present church of Holy Cross and St. Lawrence; its original form was that of a cross, with a lofty square tower in the centre, but the tower and everything to the eastward of it is now gone; the existing fragment consists of seven bays, with triforium and clerestory, aisles, a chapel to the south aisle, and a western tower erected in 1556; the arcades have round arches, on massive circular piers, both enriched with zigzag ornament; as a very early example of the Norm. period it is singularly interesting, and some part of it is, perhaps, anterior to the Conquest. The chapel, a work of the Dec. period, has below it a large crypt, considered to date from about 1316; it consists of two bays with quadripartite vaulting and small windows, which do not appear to have ever been glazed, and has been used as a burial-place for the family of Morgan of Warlies and others; a restored Norm. doorway leads into the south aisle of the church, on the right of which remains a fragment of ancient diapered work; the chapel was once a chantry and subsequently served as a school-room. There are mural brasses in the church to Edward Stacy (d. 1555), his wife Katherine (d. 1565), and Francis their son, and to Thomas Colte, Esq. (d. 1559), and his wife Magdalen (who placed the memorial in 1576 and died in 1591), with six sons and four daughters; in the south aisle is the large tomb of Sir Edward Denny, Knight, and Margaret his wife, with recumbent effigies. There are many floor-stones to the families of Hillersdon, Floyer, Rudhall and Naylor, and ledgers from which brasses of abbots have been removed. The stocks and the whipping-post are preserved in the church; in the churchyard is an old elm-tree 12 ft. in height and 20 ft. round the trunk. There are almshouses in High Bridge Street, founded in 1626, for eight poor widows, each of whom receives 2s. 6d. weekly; there are also a few bequests, value about £50, to be given in bread. Fairs are held on May 14, June 9, and Sept. 25 and 26. On the banks of the Lea is a large Government establishment for refining saltpetre and for the manufacture of gunpowder; new works were erected in 1890, about ½ w. of the to., for the manufacture of cordite. Here are also breweries, flour mills, and a manufactory of percussion caps. Warlies Park is about 3 E. in a sheltered valley on the road to Copt or Copped Hall; the estate consists of about 1,000 ac. Near the park are two obelisks, both of the 19th cent., but without inscription; local tradition connects them with the history of Boadicea, who was defeated by the Romans at Ambresbury Banks. Monkhams Hall is also a seat.

Waltham, Bishops. [BISHOPS WALTHAM.]

Waltham Bright. [BRIGHTWALTHAM.]

Waltham Chase, common, S. Hants, a little to the south-east of the to. of Bishops Waltham (q.v.). Down to the early part of the 18th cent. it was stocked with deer. The depredations of the deer-stealers, who were called "Waltham Blacks" from their staining their faces with a dark dye, led to the passing of the "Black Act," which, according to Gilbert White, "comprehends more felonies than any law that ever was framed before." The Chase belongs to the see of Winchester, and Bishop Hoadly (1676–1761) refused to restock it, on the ground "that it had done mischief enough already."

Waltham Cold. [COLD WALTHAM.]

Waltham Cross, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Cheshunt (q.v.), E. Herts., 11 N. of London, on the high road to Cambridge. Trinity Church (1832) is in Perp. style. There is also a Catholic church. The Beaumont Spital Almshouses, founded in 1625, consist of four almshouses for four poor widows. Britten's charity of £21 yearly is for the general uses of the poor of the pa. Here are extensive nursery grounds. The vil. is said to derive its name from the cross erected here by Edward I. in memory of his consort Eleanor, whose body was rested at the "Four Swans" Inn (still standing) on the journey from Harby, Notts., where she died, to Westminster. The cross stands on the east side of the high road from Hertford to London, adjoining the "Falcon" Inn, and at a point where the road is met by that from Waltham Abbey; the structure, raised on a stepped basement, is hexagonal in plan and consists of three stages, decreasing towards the top, which is finished with a crocketed spirelet and cross; it was partially restored in 1833, and completely restored and the road widened (thus freeing the monument from any encroachment) in 1892. The "Four Swans" Inn, though bearing on its quaint sign, ornamented with figures of swans, the date 1260, is, as now existing, of a much later period; but its large chimneys, and the chestnut and oak timber with which much of it is built, bespeak for the house a considerable antiquity.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Waltham Cross	Waltham Cross	13	4387

Waltham Cross.

Waltham, Great, pa. and vil. on the Chelmer, Mid Essex, 5 N. of Chelmsford; ac. 7,457; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary and St. Lawrence (tower restored 1891) is Norm. and Perp., and contains a tomb with effigies to Sir Anthony Everard and his wife (1614), and brasses to Thomas Wiseman (1589) and Sir Richard Everard (1611). The charities amount to £30 yearly. The Village Hall was built 1888. Langleys is a seat.

Waltham Holy Cross. [Waltham Abbey.]

Waltham, Little, pa. and vil. on the Chelmer, Mid Essex, 4 N. of Chelmsford; ac. 2,307; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Martin (restored 1884) is E. Eng., with some remains of Norm. work; there are brasses to John Waltoun (d. 1447) and Richard Waltham (d. 1426), and a tablet to John Aleyn (d. 1663). Here is a Congregational chapel. There are two charities, partly devoted to education.

Waltham, North, pa. and vil., N. Hants, 6½ S.W. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,938; soil light, subsoil chalk and gravel. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 1865) is in Norm. style. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel with a small endowment.

Waltham-on-the-Wolds, pa. and small to., E. Leics., about 5 E. of Melton Mowbray, on the road to Grantham; ac. 2,870; soil partly clay, partly red marl, overlying ironstone. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1877) is Dec., with portions of earlier date; the chancel retains a piscina and triple sedilia, and there is another piscina in the south transept. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some small charities. A large fair is held on Sept. 18 and 19 for cattle and horses, but the market has long been discontinued.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Waltham, Great	Chelmsford (5)	30	2222
Waltham, Little	Chelmsford (4)	30	661
Waltham, North	Micheldever (4)	58	386
Waltham-on-the-W.	Waltham-o.-t.-W.(1)	128	547

Waltham St. Lawrence, pa. and vil., E. Berks, 7½ E. of Reading; ac. 3,640; soil various, overlying gravel and chalk. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1888) is Norm. and later periods; there is a monument to Sir Henry Nevill (d. 1593), and others of interest; the pulpit is dated 1619. There is a charity of £50, and the school has an endowment. A large number of Roman coins have been found here.

Walthamstow, pa. and north-east suburb of London, S.W. Essex, 6 N.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 4,355. W. is situated on the west side of Epping Forest, south-east of Tottenham, south-west of Woodford, and north-west of Leytonstone. The area it occupies consists mainly of pleasantly-wooded undulations, which once formed part of Epping Forest. So effectually is it sheltered from the north and east winds that the vine throve here luxuriantly in the 17th cent., and wine was made from the grapes. It is now a rapidly increasing suburb, with mansions belonging to the wealthy, superior middle-class villas, and substantial cottages inhabited by well-to-do artisans. The ancient pa. comprises the eccl. pas. of St. Mary, St. John, St. Michael and All Angels, St. Peter, St. Saviour, and St. Stephen. The church of St. Mary is a very plain brick structure of early 16th cent. date; it has been much altered during the 19th cent. It contains some interesting monuments, including a figure of Lady Lucy Stanley, daughter of Thomas, Earl of Northumberland, and wife of Sir Edward Stanley, an ancestress of the Earls of Derby, and brasses with effigies of Sir George Monoux and Ann, Lady Monoux. The other churches are modern, those of St. Saviour (1874) and St. Stephen (1878) being in E. Dec. and E. Eng. style respectively. The other places of worship include Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The town hall, erected in 1876, is an edifice of brick and stone in modern French style. W. also has a Literary Institute (established 1882), a School of Art, a Working Men's Club, a Free Public Library, and a Hospital Home for children. There are several well-known schools and colleges, among them being the Grammar School founded by Sir George Monoux in 1527; new buildings were erected in 1890. The Forest School, which is connected with King's College, London, was founded in 1834; the chapel, in Gothic style, was erected in 1856 and enlarged in 1874. There are almshouses for widows (1795) and for married couples (18[illegible]), besides charities yielding more than £1,000 annually. Brewing is carried on at W. on a large scale. George Gascoigne (d. 1577), author of the "Steel Glas," resided here, and Benjamin d'Israeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, was educated at a school in the pa. The poet William Morris (d. 1896) was a native.

Walthamstow Division, one of the eight pol. divs. of Essex; it lies in the south-west of the co. and returns one member.

Waltham, Up. [Up Waltham.]

Waltham, White, pa. and vil., E. Berks, 10 S.W. Reading; ac. 2,643; soil variable, overlying chalk, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Waltham St. L.	Twyford (2½)	31	[illegible]
Walthamstow	Walthamstow	7	[illegible]
Walthamstow Div.	.....	24	[illegible]
Waltham, White	Maidenhead (3)		[illegible]

868) is Norm. and E. Eng., and contains traces of mural paintings. The charities amount to £68 early. The pa. stocks and whipping-post still exist. Heywood Lodge and W. W. Place are seats.

Walton (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the Wharfe, W.R. Yorks., 3 S.E. by E. of Wetherby; ac. of pa. 3,589, of tp. 1,447; soil various, overlying limestone. The church of St. Peter (restored) is Gothic. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a small charity. W. House is a seat.

Walton (2), pa. and vil. at the mouth of the Orwell, S.E. Suff., 4 N.E. of Harwich; ac. 2,015 and 168 tidal water and foreshore; soil mixed, with a subsoil of sand and crag, producing good crops of grain. The vil. stands a mile and a half from the sea and 1 N. of the Felixstowe railway station; W. has many good lodging-houses, and it is much resorted to as a bathing-place. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; the building has been much injured by time, having lost its once fine tower. The Free Methodists and Baptists have chapels here. The Foresters' Hall, High Street, was built in 1886.

Walton (3), pa. on the Ousel, N. Bucks., 4½ S. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 737; soil clay, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Michael (restored 1861) is Dec., and contains a monument by Nollekens to Sir Thomas Pinfold (d. 1701), a brass to Elizabeth Pyxe (1617), and a monument to Bartholomew Beale (d. 1660). There are two charities. The Manor House is a 13th-cent. building. W. Hall is a seat.

Walton (4), pa. and vil. on the Irthing, N.E. Cumb., 10 N.E. of Carlisle; ac. 3,811; soil and subsoil mixed. The church of St. Mary was built 1870 in Gothic style, in place of a former building. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The school has an endowment. At the Roman station here altars, statues, etc., have been discovered. Castlesteads is a seat.

Walton (5), pa. and vil., Mid Somerset, 6 N. of Somerton; ac. 2,504; soil clay, overlying blue lias. Holy Trinity Church is Dec. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Walton (6), eccl. pa., pa. of Runcorn (q.v.), N. Chesh., 2½ S.W. of Warrington. The church of St. John was built 1885 in Dec. and Perp. styles. There is a parish room and also a small charity.

Walton (7), eccl. pa., pa. and situated in the to. of Aylesbury (q.v.), Mid Bucks. The church of Holy Trinity was built in 1845.

Walton (8), tp. and vil. with railway station, pa. of and about 1½ S.E. from Sandal Magna (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,824. A school for teaching cookery was erected in 1867, and connected with this a laundry where respectable girls are trained. There is a public coffee and reading-room. W. Hall, a handsome stone building in an undulating, well-wooded park, and surrounded by a moat, was formerly the seat of Charles Waterton (d. 1865), the celebrated naturalist, who is buried at the head of the lake within the park.

Walton (9), tp. and vil. on the Hepper, pa. of and about 2 S.W. from Chesterfield (q.v.), N.E. Derbys.; ac. 2,359.

Walton (10), tp. with railway station, pa. of and 1 W. from Paston (q.v.), N.E. Northants; ac. 903. Here is a mission church.

Walton (11), vil., pa. of Baswich (q.v.), W. Staffs., 3 S.E. of Stafford. The church of St. Thomas is E. Eng., and contains a reredos of carved oak. The charities amount to £3 13s. annually. W. Bury is a seat.

Walton (12), ha., pa. of Wellesbourne (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 3¾ N.W. of Kineton.

Walton (13), ha., pa. of and about 1 S. by E. from King's Sutton with Newbottle (q.v.), S. Northants.

Walton (14), ha., pa. of Old Radnor (q.v.), S. Radnors., 3 S.E. of New Radnor.

Walton (15), ha., pa. of and about 1 S.E. from Grantham (q.v.), S. Lincs.

Walton and Womaston, tp., pa. of Old Radnor (q.v.), S.E. Radnors., 3 N.W. of Kington; ac. 1,259. Here is a Congregational chapel.

Walton Cardiff, pa. and vil., N. Gloucs., 1 S.E. by E. of Tewkesbury; ac. 632; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. James (rebuilt 1869) is in Norm. style. In the Manor House grounds is a spring of mineral water.

Walton D'Eiville, eccl. pa., pa. of Wellesbourne (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 7 E. of Stratford-upon-Avon. The church of St. James was rebuilt in 1750 and enlarged in 1842; remains of a Norm. church have been found, and also a font of the same period. W. House is a seat.

Walton Division, one of the nine parl. divs. of the bor. of Liverpool; it returns one member.

Walton, East (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 7 N. of Swaffham; ac. 2,643; soil very light sand. The church of St. Mary is Perp., with a round western Norm. tower; in the church are several marble ledgers, with inscriptions and impaled shields and supporters, to the Richardsons of Honingham. St. Andrew's chapel is in ruins.

Walton, East (2), pa., S.W. Pembs., 7 N.E. of Haverfordwest; ac. 1,892. The church of St. Mary is a small plain building.

Walton, Higher, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Blackburn (q.v.), Mid Lancs., about 1 S.E. of Preston. All Saints Church was built 1862 in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Here are cotton factories. Darwen Bank and Prospect Hill are seats.

Walton, Inferior, tp. and vil. on the Mersey, pa. of Runcorn (q.v.), N. Chesh., 2 S. of Warrington; ac. 558. Here is a small charity.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walton (1), tp.	Thorp Arch (1)	193	163
Walton (2)	Felixstowe (1½)	85	1923
Walton (3)	Woburn Sands (2)	51	93
Walton (4)	Brampton J'tion (3)	317	335
Walton (5)	Ashcott (3)	134	504
Walton (6)	Warrington (2½)	182	702
Walton (7)	Aylesbury (1)	43	2038
Walton (8)	Sandal (1)	181	669
Walton (9)	Chesterfield (2)	146	1444
Walton (10)	King's Sutton (1)	82	309
Walton & Womaston	Stanner (1)	172	181
Walton Cardiff	Tewkesbury (1)	126	60
Walton D'Eiville	Kineton (3)	92	222
Walton Division	.....	.....	66503
Walton, East (1)	East Winch (1)	102	174
Walton, East (2)	Clarberton Road(1½)	259	196
Walton, Higher	Preston (1)	209	2618
Walton, Inferior	Warrington (2)	182	425

Walton-in-Gordano, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, N. Somerset, 12 w. of Bristol; ac. 1,165; soil sandy, overlying limestone and rock. The church of St. Mary, formerly of St. Paul, was rebuilt in 1870, retaining only a small portion of the old fabric; in the churchyard is an ancient stone cross. The church of St. Peter and St. Paul (rebuilt in 1839), Old Walton, is E. Eng. Here is a convalescent home. Extensive ruins of a castle built in the reign of James I. still remain.

Walton-in-Knaptoft, tp. and vil., pa. of Knaptoft (q.v.), S. Leics., 4 N.E. of Lutterworth; ac. 847.

Walton-le-Dale, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Blackburn (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., about 1½ S.E. of Preston; ac. 4,683. It is bounded on the north-west by the Ribble, crossed by a bridge of three arches, and the Darwen runs through the centre of the tp. W. was the site of a Roman station. The church of St. Leonard, standing on an eminence east of the vil., is a stone edifice said to have existed in 1190; the chancel and tower, both of Perp. date, are the only remaining portions of the original fabric; there are some 17th- and 18th-cent. brasses and monuments. The Roman Catholics and Wesleyans have places of worship. The Working Men's Institute was built 1881. W. has charities of about £50 yearly. Cotton-spinning is the staple trade, and market-gardening is carried on. During the Civil War an encounter took place here between the Royal troops and the Parliamentary forces. In the disorders of 1715 the Rev. Mr. Woods of Chowbent led his parishioners against the Scottish invaders. At Cooper Hill, a seat, the first lightning conductor was set up in England by Benjamin Franklin, but it has long since been destroyed. Highwood, Lostock Hall, and Walton Hall are other seats.

Walton-le-Soken. [WALTON-ON-THE-NAZE.]

Walton, Little, ha., pa. of Monks Kirby (q.v.), N.E. Warws., 5 N. of Rugby.

Walton-on-Thames, pa. and vil., Mid Surrey, 5 S.W. of Kingston; ac. 6,718 and 141 water; soil gravel, overlying London clay. The Thames is here crossed by an iron bridge of four spans, which is now toll-free. The church of St. Mary is Norm.; four pointed arches springing from massive columns on each side of the nave, and probably constructed in the 12th cent., divide the nave and aisles. In the chancel is a memorial brass to John Selwyn, keeper of Oatlands Park, which represents him seated on the back of a stag, while he is plunging his sword into the animal's throat; this feat was performed, it is said, in the presence of Queen Elizabeth, he having, while at full speed, jumped from the back of the horse upon which he was riding to that of the stag. There is also a monument by Roubiliac to Richard Boyle, second and last Viscount Shannon (d. 1740); one by Chantrey to Mrs. Sarah D'Oyley, his patroness, and inscribed stones to William Lilly, M.D., the astrologer (who resided at Hersham and died there 1681), and to Jerome Weston, second Earl of Portland (d. 1662). Inscribed on a pillar near the pulpit are the famous lines with which Queen Elizabeth evaded an open profession of her belief of the doctrine of the Real Presence in the sacramental bread. Here is also a scold's bridle, dated 1632, now carefully preserved in a case made from the oak taken from the tower when the bells were rehung in 1884. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The Public Hall (1889) is in High Street, and there is a literary society. The W. Amateur and the W. Tradesmen's Regattas are held here annually. Strata of iron ore are found in the pa.; and here are the reservoirs of the West Surrey and the Chelsea Water Companies. About half a mile distant from W. railway station is the Metropolitan Convalescent Institution (1840) for the reception of convalescents, principally from the London hospitals. The charities, which are important, are devoted to the relief of the poor and the maintenance of the church. St. George's Hill, which commands some fine views, is open to the public daily. John Bradshaw, the regicide, who presided at the trial of Charles I. (Jan. 20-27, 1648-49), lived in the old manor-house here, which is still standing. Ashley Park, the mansion stated to have been built by Cardinal Wolsey and occasionally occupied by the Lord Protector Cromwell, is a seat, and there are many other good residences in well-kept grounds in the pa.

Walton-on-the-Hill (1), pa. and tp. in N. Liverpool, S.W. Lancs.; ac. of pa. 20,306, of tp. 1,944. The church of St. Mary (mostly rebuilt 1829) is in Gothic style; it is a striking edifice, and forms a conspicuous feature in the scenery; the interior is much ornamented. The pa. contains the eccl. pa. of St. John the Evangelist and part of that of St. Margaret. The church of St. John the Evangelist (1890) is in Late Perp. style. St. Margaret's Church (1869) is in E. Dec. style.

Walton-on-the-Hill (2), pa. and vil., Mid Surrey, 5 N. of Reigate; ac. 2,608; soil marl, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng., and has an ancient lead font; fixed against the exterior wall of the chancel is the tomb of the founder, Johannes de Waltune. The charities amount to about £60 yearly. On Walton Heath traces of Roman buildings have been met with. Walton Place (dating from the 12th cent., and once the residence of Anne of Cleves) is a seat.

Walton-on-the-Naze, or Walton-le-Soken, pa., small seaside to. and watering-place, N.E. Essex, 7½ S. of Harwich; ac. 1,748, and 1,106 of water; soil chiefly loam, crag, and sand, overlying clay and gravel. This and the adjoining liberties of Thorpe and Kirby are called The Sokens. [SOKEN, THE.] Formerly this pa. extended much further out to sea, and ruins are said to have been discovered on a shoal called the West Rocks, 9 miles from shore; the to. lies between the sea-cliffs and Walton Creek, which is much frequented by sportsmen in quest of wild fowl, and on the head of the creek stand powerful tide and wind mills; the air is salubrious and bracing, and the beach, consisting of sand and fine shingle, is well adapted for bathing, and affords a pleasant promenade, the old tide leaving a hard smooth sand; the cliffs adjoining the to. have been protected from the encroach-

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Walton-in-Gordano	Clevedon (2)	134	705
Walton-in-Knaptoft	Welford (3)	92	208
Walton-le-Dale, e.p.	Preston (1½)	209	2984
Walton-le-Dale, tp.	Preston (1½)	209	10556
Walton-on-Thames	Walton	17	7988

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Walton-on-H. (1), pa.	Liverpool	199	27859
Walton-on-H. (1), tp.	Liverpool	199	4882
Walton-on-the-H. (2)	Epsom Downs (3)	18	698
Walton-on-the-Naze	Walton-on-the-Naze	70	1387

ments of the sea by the construction of breakwaters. Walton is bounded on three sides by the sea, the land terminating in a bold promontory called the "Naze," on which stands Walton Hall; adjoining it is a lofty tower built by the Corporation of the Trinity House in 1796. The coast is chiefly composed of dark London clay. At the Naze this is overlaid by the crag formation, famous for its abundance of fossils, and is frequently resorted to by geologists; the red crag here found is considered the oldest in England, and alone of all the red crag beds yields shells in the condition in which their inmates died; fossil remains have been found of antediluvian beasts; pyrites and coprolites from the London clay and upper beds are collected on the shore and cliff as well as nodules of calcareous clay or septaria used for making Roman cement; copperas works formerly existed here, and a considerable quantity of the mineral is still obtained from the beach. Many yachts resort here, and water excursions form the prevailing recreation; a regatta is usually held in August; during the summer season steamers run to and from London, Clacton-on-Sea and Harwich, and several times a day from Harwich up the Orwell to Ipswich. The church of All Saints, partially rebuilt in 1873, is in E. Dec. style; the old building of red brick was consecrated by Bishop Porteus in 1804 in place of an ancient edifice which, with the churchyard and every house near it but one, had been entirely swept away by the encroachments of the sea in 1798; a prebendal stall in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, which takes its name from an estate engulphed by the sea, but formerly part of this pa., is now called "Præbenda Consumpta per Mare." There are Nonconformist places of worship. The Public Hall, in High Street, is a large brick structure. An extensive iron foundry here finds employment for 150 to 200 hands. The brick earth and strong clay are being manufactured into bricks and tiles of a good quality at the Port Walton works. There are several good hotels; three have assembly rooms attached, and connected with the Marine Hotel is a bijou theatre. The coastguard station is at the east end of the to. A fair was formerly held here on July 3rd, but has now become obsolete. A lifeboat, called the "Honourable Artillery Company," was presented in 1884 by the Dramatic Club of the Honourable Artillery Company to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution for service on this coast, which is only about 8 miles from the dangerous "Gunfleet" sands. The Convalescent Home, established in 1885, is an offshoot of St. Alban's Diocesan Nursing Institution. The Home of Rest in High Street, connected with the Field Lane Mission in London, is used in the summer months for the benefit of poor invalids requiring the sea air. There are about 30 ac. of land, left chiefly by Mr. John Sadler in 1563 for the good of the poor. Two parcels of land formerly belonging to the poor and yielding respectively £15 and £4 10s. annually have been submerged, as also the greater portion of two farms comprising 90 ac. of land purchased in 1793 by the governors of Queen Anne's bounty for the augmentation of the living of Holy Trinity Church, Colchester.

Walton-on-the-Wolds, pa. and vil., N. Leics., 4 E. of Loughborough; ac. 1,549; soil loam and gravel, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) is 13th-cent. Gothic. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel and a small charity. Hobart Pasha (1822–86) was born here.

Walton, Superior, tp. and vil., pa. of Runcorn (q.v.), N. Chesh., 2½ S.W. of Warrington; ac. 437. W. Hall and W. Lea are seats.

Walton-upon-Trent, pa. and vil. on the Trent, S. Derbys., 4½ S.W. from Burton-upon-Trent; ac. 2,309; soil various, overlying marl. The church of St. John the Baptist, formerly of St. Lawrence (restored 1862), is chiefly E. Eng., with a few Norm. remains; in the chancel are sedilia, a piscina and an aumbry, and sedilia and a piscina in the chantry, which has two Dec. windows, and a stone effigy of a priest, probably Waleys, who founded the chapel in 1334; the tower is Perp.; the rood-stairs still exist; among the monuments are a brass to Robert Morley (c. 1492), alabaster slabs to William Whitinge (1598) and Agnes Boucher (1588), a mural monument to Thomas Bearcroft (1680), and some inscribed stones to the Ferrers family. There are some small charities, and the school has an endowment. W. Hall is a seat.

Walton, West (1), pa. and vil. on the Nen, N.W. Norf., 3 N.E. of Wisbech; ac. 5,223; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng., and has a detached tower about 70 ft. from the church, forming an entrance to the churchyard. There is a mission church, and the Baptists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The Poor estate produces £115 a year; this charity is distributed in money.

Walton, West (2), pa. at south-east angle of St. Bride's Bay, S.W. Pembs., 6 W. by S. of Haverfordwest; ac. 1,333. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. The Baptists have a chapel.

Walwick, ha., pa. of Warden (q.v.), S. Northumb., 3 N. of the pa. church; it stands on part of the site of the Roman wall. The Chesters is a large mansion of stone on the west bank of the North Tyne, surrounded by beautiful woodland scenery. In the grounds attached to the mansion are the extensive remains of the Roman station Cilurnum, founded by Julius Agricola, Governor of Britain in the reign of Titus or Domitian (A.D. 79–80), and connected about forty years later with the wall of Hadrian, which approaches it from the east and west, leaving about 71 yds. of the station on the north and 115 on the south. Excavations made on the site in 1876 and later have shown that the station had six gates, some with double entrances, as in the case of the east gateway, which stood outside the Roman wall, and had guard-rooms on either side. Coins, votive tablets, small altars, and other antiquities have been found at various times. [CHOLLERFORD.]

Walworth (1), dis. of South London, in pa. of Newington (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, 2 S. of St. Paul's. W. lies between Newington on the north-west, Kennington on the west, and Camberwell on the south, the Old Kent Road running beside it on its north-east and east sides. The eccl. pas. include those of St. Peter, St. John, St. Mark, and Lady Margaret. The church of St. Peter (1825) is an

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walton-on-the-W.	Barrow-on-Soar (1½)	109	179
Walton, Superior	Warrington (2½)	182	225
Walton-upon-Trent	Barton (1)	124	434
Walton, West (1)	Ferry (1)	99	904
Walton, West (2)	Haverfordwest (6)	264	394
Walworth (1)	.....	.....	34162

edifice of brick and stone in Classical style. St. John's Church (1865) is a handsome edifice in Dec. style. W. consists mainly of rows of workmen's dwellings. Model tenements have been erected by the Fishmongers' Company in the locality formerly called Lock's Fields in 1876. The Surrey Zoological Gardens (formed 1832) and the Surrey Music Hall (built 1856), which stood within them, were favourite places of amusement; the Music Hall was burnt down in 1861, and the Gardens were sold as a building site in 1877. In Penrose

The Elephant and Castle, Walworth.

Street is a lecture hall connected with the Mechanics' Institute, with a library and reading-room. The "Elephant and Castle," an important tavern in the old coaching days and now a centre of omnibus and tramway traffic, stands at the northern end of Walworth Road. It has for its sign the well-known crest of the Cutlers' Company —an elephant on a castle. Manor Road and Manor Place—in which Thomas Taylor, the "Platonist," died 1835—preserve the memory of the old manor-house. Sir William Walworth, the famous Lord Mayor who killed Wat Tyler (1381), is supposed to have been a native.

Walworth (2), tp., pa. of Heighington (q.v.), S. Dur., 5 N.W. of Darlington; ac. 2,132. W. Castle is a seat.

Walworth Division, one of the two parl. divisions of the bor. of Newington, N.E. Surrey; it returns one member.

Walwyns Castle, pa., S.W. Pembs., 6 W.S.W. of Haverfordwest; ac. 3,297. The church of St. James is E. Eng. The Welsh name is Castell-Gwalchmai, Gwalchmai being a traditional hero related to King Arthur, who, after being expelled from Galway, was wrecked on the coast and buried in the pa.; his body is said to have been discovered in the time of William I. It is supposed by some that a tumulus near the church marks the spot where he was interred, but according to others it is the site of the ancient castle.

Wambrook, pa. and small vil., W. Dors., 5½ N.W. of Axminster; ac. 1,857; soil stonebrash and clay, overlying flint and clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. and Perp.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Walworth (2)	Piercebridge (2½)	238	138
Walworth Division	.....	.....	59181
Walwyns Castle	Haverfordwest (6)	264	369
Wambrook	Chard (2)	143	231
Wamphray	Wamphray	334	458

Wampherflat, small estate, pa. of Lanark (q.v.), Mid Lanarks., Sc. It has a mansion of the same name, and is near the to. of Lanark.

Wamphray, pa., N. Dumfs., Sc., 3½ S.E. of Moffat; ac. 13,133; soil partly deep rich loam, elsewhere lighter loam or clay. The Annan forms the west boundary. Parallel to it run two mountain ranges, varying in height from about 800 ft. to more than 2,200 ft., separated by fertile valleys. The Established church, a plain edifice built 1834, has an ancient sculptured stone over the entrance doorway. There are United Presbyterian and Free churches. There are some remains of a Roman camp, near which may be traced a road which led from this place to Carlisle; it is bordered by several stones—apparently milestones—near one of which Charles II. is said to have pitched his camp when marching to Worcester (1651).

Wamphray Water, stream, N. Dumfs., Sc.; rises on the west side of Loch Fell and runs S.S.W. to Annan Water, which it joins 7 miles (in a direct line) from its source.

Wampool, river, N. Cumb.; rises on the moors 2½ N.W. of Hesket Newmarket, and winds N. past Roseley to Thursby; then turning W. skirts the beautiful grounds of Crofton Hall, and afterwards runs N.W. past Biglands and Gamblesby to Kirkbride. Here it forms an estuary, which runs E. and W. and increases greatly in width, its waters being augmented by those of the Waver (q.v.). The length of the river is about 16 miles.

Wanborough (1), small pa. on the north side of the Hog's Back, S.W. Surrey, 3 W. of Guildford; ac. 1,560; soil in the high lands chalk, and in the low lands heavy stiff clay, subsoil clay. The church of St. Bartholomew, originally an appendage to the Abbey of Waverley, and for more than two centuries in disuse, is a small plain E. Eng. building.

Wanborough (2), pa. and vil., N.E. Wilts., 5 S.E. of Swindon; ac. 4,513; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1885) is Perp., with a curious spire between the chancel and the nave. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are some small charities.

Wandell and Lamington, pa., bounded on the west by the Clyde, S.E. Lanarks., Sc.; ac. 12,820; the dis. is hilly, but fertile and chiefly agricultural. The pa. contains the vil. of Lamington, with a railway station, 6 S.W. of Biggar. The Episcopal church here was built by Lord Lamington. Lamington House is a seat; the estate affords about 8,000 ac. for shooting, and there is excellent trout fishing on the Clyde.

Wandesley, ha., pa. of Annesley (q.v.), S.W. Notts., 9 N.W. of Nottingham.

Wandle, river, N.E. Surrey; rises at Croydon, and runs W. past Beddington to Carshalton, and thence N. past Mitcham, Merton, and Wimbledon to the Thames, which it enters at Wandsworth, 4¾ S.W. of St. Paul's. Its length is about 9 miles.

Wandsworth, parl. bor. and pa., forming a south-west suburb of London, 5½ S.W. of St. Paul's; ac.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wanborough (1)	Guildford (3)	30	274
Wanborough (2)	Swindon (5)	77	436
Wandell & Lam'gton	Lamington (2½)	302	305
Wandsworth, bor.	.....	.....	112384
Wandsworth, pa.	.....	.....	46717

of bor. 8,148, of pa. 2,433. W. is situated on the south bank of the Thames, at the point where it is joined by the Wandle, from which W. takes its name. It comprises the eccl. pas. of All Saints; St. Andrew, Earlsfield; St. Anne, St. Faith, St. Mary, Summerstown; St. Mary Magdalen; St. Paul, Wimbledon Park; and St. Stephen. The original vil. of W. occupies the hollow between two eminences called East Hill and West Hill, between which flows the Wandle. To the south-east is W. Common, extending over an area from ½ mile to 1½ mile distant from W. proper. It is an open space under the management of the London County Council, consisting chiefly of turf-covered ground with a few walks. Round the Common, especially on the east or Clapham side, has grown up a populous residential district generally known as New Wandsworth. All Saints Church is a plain square building of brick, erected towards the close of the 18th cent.; part of the tower is 150 years older, and some of the monuments belonging to the older edifice remain. St. Anne's Church (1824) is a large edifice in Classical style, with an Ionic portico and pediment, and a round tower of two stages surmounted by a cupola and cross. Among the other places of worship is a Roman Catholic church, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury (1847). W. is famous in the annals of Nonconformity, for it was the centre of the first attempt to establish a Presbyterian congregation near London, and gave its name to the "Orders of Wandsworth," explaining the Dissenting principles of Church government and rules of worship (1572). W. contains a town hall, a court-house, and a technical institute opened in 1895. The Fishmongers' Almshouses (St. Peter's Hospital), on the summit of East Hill, form an edifice in Gothic style with a chapel in the centre, built 1851. On the west side of the main portion of the Common are several large and important buildings—viz., the Surrey County Prison or House of Correction, constructed chiefly of brick; the Royal Victoria Patriotic Asylum, for affording relief to the widows and orphans of soldiers killed in action, and educating their children; and the Emanuel School for Boys. Near Clapham Junction station is the Freemasons' Female Orphan School. Near the south extremity of the Common stands the County Lunatic Asylum, a red-brick structure mainly in Elizabethan style, but partly Domestic Gothic. W. Bridge, over the Thames, a little below the mouth of the Wandle, is an iron lattice-girder structure supported by massive coupled wrought-iron cylinders, constructed in 1873. The Wandle at its mouth forms a creek, which is used as a dock for lighters and other small vessels; lining it are coal-wharves and stores. Further up the stream there are large paper mills; also distilleries, corn mills, dye-works, match factories, starch factories, copper works, and artificial manure works. The art of dyeing cloth and the manufacture of hats were introduced by Huguenots who settled here after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. There was also a Dutch colony, which carried on a mysterious manufacture of "brass plates for kettles, skettels, and frying pans."

Entrance Gate, Wandsworth Prison.

Wang. [Wangford (1).]

Wangford (1), pa., tp. and large vil., N Suff., 3 N.W. of Southwold; ac. of pa. 2,603, of tp. 867; soil and subsoil various. A small stream, called the Wang, flows to the west of the pa. The church of St. Peter (restored 1865) is Perp. There are Church and Primitive Methodist Sunday-schools, and a chapel for Primitive Methodists; also charities amounting to £5 yearly, distributed in money. To the south of the church formerly stood a Cluniac priory, founded about 1160.

Wangford (2), or Wangford-near-Brandon, pa. and small vil., N.W. Suff., 3 S.W. of Brandon station, a little off the road from Brandon to Mildenhall; ac. 3,252; soil light and sandy, overlying chalk and sand. The church of St. Denis (restored 1875) is E. Eng. Here are extensive warrens, whence large numbers of rabbits are sent to the London market in the season. W. Hall is a very ancient building, once the residence of Lord Chief Justice Wright, who lived in the reign of James II.

Wangford-near-Brandon. [Wangford (2).]

Wanlip, pa. and vil. on the Soar, Mid Leics., 5 N. of Leicester; ac. 952; soil sand, gravel, and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas, built in the 14th cent., contains a brass dated 1393 to Thomas Walsh, and several mural tablets to the Palmer family. There are some small charities. W. Hall is a seat.

Wanlockhead, q.s. pa. and vil., pa. of and 6 E.N.E. from Sanquhar (q.v.), N.W. Dumfs., Sc. The vil. is situated in a desolate region at an altitude of 1,350 ft.; it is on the Lanarks. border, and its lead mines are contiguous to those of Leadhills (q.v.). Mining was first carried on here in 1512, when a search was made for gold, which is still discovered in small quantities. The lead mines have been in operation since 1680, and for a long period they have been extremely lucrative. W. has Established and Free churches, a library and reading-room, and other public buildings.

Wannerton, ha., pa. of Kidderminster (q.v.), Mid Worcs., 1 S.W. of Churchill.

Wansbeck, river, S.E. Northumb., rises 5 E. of Bellingham, and runs 23 E. to the North Sea, which it enters at Cambois, 2½ N. by W. of Blyth.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wangford (1), pa.	Blythburgh (2)	106	727
Wangford (1), tp.	Blythburgh (2)	106	565
Wangford (2)	Brandon (3)	86	50

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wanlip	Syston (2)	104	91
Wanlockhead, q.s. pa.	Elvanfoot (6½)	352	745
Wanlockhead, vil.	Elvanfoot (6½)	352	745

The river passes Kirkwhelpington, Hartburn, Mitford, Morpeth, Bothal, and Sheepwash on the north, and Kirkharle, Meldon, and Choppington on the south. Throughout its course it runs through picturesque scenery; between Morpeth and Bothal Castle especially its high wooded banks present a succession of varied and beautiful views.

Wansbeck Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Northumb.; it lies in the south-east of the co. and returns one member.

Wansdyke, ancient British road, N.W. Hants, Mid Wilts., and N.E. Somerset, formed the north boundary of the Belgae. Wansdyke is a corruption of Woden's Dyke, the Saxon invaders having given it the name of their principal deity. The road ran from Andover by Netherton to Great Bedwyn, thence across Wilts. to Bath, and from Bath W.N.W. to Portishead, on the estuary of the Severn. It consists of a great rampart of earth, parallel to which runs a fosse on the north side. The length of the road was 80 miles, and it is still traceable for two-thirds of the distance.

Wansfell, mountain ridge (1,581 ft.) near the head of Windermere, W. Westmd., 1 E. of Ambleside. The ridge extends about 1½ N.E. and S.W. It commands fine views over Windermere, Coniston Water, Rydal Water, Grasmere, and Morecambe Bay.

Wansford (1), pa. and vil. on the Nen, N.E. Northants, 8 W. of Peterborough; ac. 396; soil light, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary is Perp., with a few remains of Norm. work. There are some small charities.

Wansford (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Nafferton (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 3 S.E. of Driffield; ac. 922. The church of St. Mary, built 1868 in E. Eng. style, is a chapel-of-ease. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Wansley, ha., pa. of Roborough (q.v.), N. Dev., about 6 E. of Torrington.

Wanstead, pa. and to., S. Essex, about 7 N.E. of London; ac. 2,002 and 51 of water. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1790) is a brick structure, cased with Portland stone, in Classic style. In the chancel is a sumptuous marble monument with effigies to Sir Josiah Child, Bart., merchant (d. June 22, 1699), his wife and his son, Sir Richard Child, Bart., M.P. for Essex, and subsequently created Viscount Castlemaine and Earl Tylney (d. 1749). In the churchyard lies buried John Saltmarsh, of Magdalene College, Cambridge, an Antinomian divine (d. 1647). Christ Church (built 1861) is in Dec. style, and there are Nonconformist places of worship. Dr. James Pound, naturalist and astronomer, was rector here from 1707 till his death in 1724; and James Bradley, D.D., his nephew, also a distinguished astronomer, Savilian professor at Oxford, and the successor of Halley as astronomer-royal, was for some time curate during the incumbency of his uncle. Admiral Sir William Penn (d. 1670), father of the founder of Pennsylvania, was a resident here. The charities amount to about £61 yearly. At New Wanstead the Weavers' Company have erected a block of almshouses in lieu of those situated in Potter's Fields and Old Street Road, London, and founded in 1725; these are for twelve poor freemen and twelve widows. W. is mentioned as having been bestowed on St. Peter's, at Westminster, by one Alfric, which grant, it is said, was confirmed by Edward the Confessor; at the Domesday Survey it was held of the Bishop of London by Ralph FitzBrien, its annual value being 40s. W. Park, which is under control of the Corporation of London, consists of about 184 ac., formerly constituting an outlying portion of the Tylney estate, acquired by the Corporation from Earl Cowley by an exchange of 50 ac. of scattered land and a payment of £8,000, and conveyed to the Epping Forest Committee in trust for the public. The park, opened in August, 1882, has several fine pieces of water and a heronry. Adjoining are the W. Flats, another open space, levelled and partially planted with trees and shrubs in the spring of 1886, the cost being defrayed from the Mansion House fund raised for the benefit of the unemployed. At Lake House, south-west of the park, Thomas Hood wrote his novel "Tylney Hall"; this house was originally built as a summer-house to the park. Here stood in the 18th cent. a mansion built by Sir Richard Child (afterwards created Earl Tylney) in 1715; the Prince de Condé, Louis XVIII., and other members of the exiled Bourbon family resided here during the time of the first Napoleon. The contents of the mansion were sold in 1822 and the residence subsequently pulled down. A grotto was the only monument of this fine estate remaining until 1885, when it was unfortunately burnt down. A tesselated pavement and other Roman antiquities were found in the park in 1735.

Wanstrow, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 6 S.W. of Frome; ac. 2,054; soil clay, overlying stone and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1877) is E. Eng. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Wantage, pa., tp., and mkt. to., on a branch of the Ock, N. Berks., 10 S.W. of Abingdon; ac. of pa. 5,596, of tp. 2,289. The Berks. and Wilts. Canal passes about a mile from the to., with which it is connected by a branch, and a steam tramway runs to the Great Western Railway station (Wantage Road). The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a spacious cruciform building of stone of the Norm., E. Eng. and Perp. periods; it was originally designed to have a nave without aisles, which seem to have been added in the reign of Edward I., about which time the chantry chapels were also built; the chancel appears to belong to the 15th and 16th cents.; the church is remarkable as being complete in its general plan from the beginning, the subsequent series of additions not having yet destroyed the original design; among other details worthy of mention are the very perfect and interesting remains of Pointed woodwork, consisting of a screen in the south chapel, parcloses shutting off the chancel and eighteen stalls, with carved miserere seats and beautiful poppy heads; in the chancel is the canopied marble tomb of Sir William Fitz-Warine, first Baron Fitz-Warine (d. 1361); in the church is a fine brass effigy of

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wansbeck Division	.....	.....	59568
Wansford (1)	Wansford (2)	100	76
Wansford (2)	Nafferton (1)	215	228
Wanstead, pa.	Snaresbrook (1)	7	26282
Wanstead, to.	Snaresbrook (1)	7	7882
Wanstrow	Wanstrow	114	211
Wantage, pa.	Wantage (2)	60	4567
Wantage, tp.	Wantage (2)	60	3699

the second baron (d. 1414) in armour, and another of a priest, said to be of the same family; the ancient altar-stone still exists and is in perfect condition. In Leland's time a Norm. church also stood in the churchyard, the remains of which, as long as they existed, indicated that it had been restored or rebuilt in the 12th cent.; the Norm. doorway of this building has been removed to the Grammar School, with which it is still incorporated. There are also Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The Grammar School was reorganised in 1893. The Corn Exchange (1865) is a red-brick building; it is let for public meetings, balls and concerts. The town hall is a timber-framed building in the market-place; it includes a subscription reading-room. The market was formerly held on Saturday; now there is a weekly corn market on Wednesday, and on alternate Wednesdays there is also a cattle market. Fairs are held on the first Saturday in March and in May, and on July 18 for cherries; a sale for agricultural stock is held fortnightly on Wednesdays. The manufacture of sacks and other hempen articles was formerly carried on here; most of the trade has, however, gone northward, and is now only pursued on a limited scale. The general trade of the to. depends mainly upon the surrounding agricultural population, but a large iron and brass foundry employs a considerable number of hands. There is a Cottage Hospital with an endowment. The charities amount to about £1,000 a year, devoted to the support of the inmates of the almshouses or distributed in kind, with the exception of £9 assigned for educational purposes. W. is famed as having been the residence of some of the early English monarchs, and especially as the birthplace (849) of Alfred the Great. In 1849 the thousandth anniversary of King Alfred's birth was celebrated here with much ceremony and great rejoicing. In the centre of the market-place stands the fine statue of King Alfred, presented to the to. by Lord Wantage, and unveiled by the Prince and Princess of Wales (1877). Dr. Joseph Butler (1692–1752), Bishop of Bristol and afterwards of Durham, the author of "The Analogy of Natural and Revealed Religion," was born in a house called "The Priory," on the south side of the churchyard.

Wanthwaite, ha., pa. of Crosthwaite (q.v.), S. Cumb., 1 S. of Threlkeld. W. Crags, on the river Greta, about 3 S.E. of Keswick, are a picturesque feature of the neighbourhood.

Wantisden, pa. and small vil., S.E. Suff., 7 N.E. of Woodbridge; ac. 2,126; soil mixed, overlying gravel and loam. The church of St. John is Dec.; the chancel is separated from the nave by a Norm. arch, over which appears to have been formerly a rood loft. In the chancel are a piscina and sedilia.

Wanton Walls. [CRAIGHALL, NEW, AND WANTON WALLS.]

Wapley, ha., pa. of Lofthouse (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 8 E. of Guisbrough.

Wapley and Codrington, pa. and vil., S. Gloucs., 12 N. of Bath; ac. 2,448; soil and subsoil clayey. The church of St. Peter (partly restored 1862) is E. Eng., and contains the tomb of John Codrington (d. 1475).

Wapley Hill, eminence (1,100 ft.), N.W. Herefords., near the Radnors. border, 2 S.E. of Presteign. The hill is crowned by a Roman camp of elliptical shape in a very good state of preservation. It has five valla and fosses encircling it on all sides but the north, where, approach being impossible, there is but one rampart. The ancient reservoir is still constantly filled with water. The camp is said to have been occupied by Caractacus. The sides of the hill are pleasantly wooded.

Waplington, tp., pa. of and ½ S.W. from Allerthorpe (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 813. W. Hall is a seat.

Wappenbury, pa., tp., and vil. on the Leam, Mid Warws., 5 N.E. by E. of Leamington; ac. of pa. 1,484, of tp. 953; soil loam, overlying gravel and marl. The church of St. John the Baptist (rebuilt except the tower in 1886) is E. Eng. Here is a Roman Catholic chapel.

Wappenham, pa., tp., and vil., S.W. Northants, 5 S.W. of Towcester; ac. of pa. 4,357, of tp. 2,312; soil various, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary was built in the 13th and 14th cents.; in the chancel and south aisle are piscinæ; among the memorials are slabs to Sir Thomas Billing (d. 1481), with brass effigies; to Thomas Billing (d. 1500), to (probably) Thomas Lovett (d. 1492), to Thomas Lovett (d. 1542), and to Constance Butler (d. 1499). The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are several charities.

Wapping, pa. of East London, on north bank of Thames, E. Middx., 1¾ E.S.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 42. W.—called "Wapping in the Wose" (i.e. Ooze) by Stow—consists mainly of a single long street along the riverside, built in 1571 to protect the manor from the frequent inundations. It still preserves the character given it by Strype, who says that in his time it was "chiefly inhabited by seafaring men, and tradesmen dealing in commodities for the supply of shipping and shipmen." Many old-fashioned houses were, however, cleared away to make room for the London Docks, and much that recalled the maritime life of former days has disappeared. In many cases warehouses now cover the ground once occupied by dwellings. Part of the surface is much below the level of the river, and during spring tides floods frequently occur. The church of St. John (built 1742) is in the Classical style of the period. Pirates were hung at East Wapping in the time of Henry VI., and at Execution Dock, below Wapping New Stairs, seamen expiated their crimes in the same manner as late as the close of the 18th cent.; here the notorious Captain Kidd was hung in chains in 1701. Judge Jeffreys was discovered in a low public-house at W. whilst attempting to make his escape in the disguise of a common sailor.

Warberry Hill, eminence, S. Dev., ¾ E.N.E. of Torquay. The hill is situated on the south side of Babbacombe. It commands wide and picturesque views.

Warbleton, pa. and vil. on the Weald, S. Sussex,

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wantisden	Wickham Mkt. (3½)	85	88
Wapley & Codrington	Yate (2)	121	249
Waplington	Pocklington (3)	198	59
Wappenbury, pa.	Marton (3)	91	192
Wappenbury, tp.	Marton (3)	91	66
Wappenham, pa.	Wappenham	71	515
Wappenham, tp.	Wappenham	71	449
Wapping	.....	.....	2123
Warbleton	Hailsham (6½)	54	1381

280 ft. above the sea level, commanding fine sea and inland views, 7 N. of Hailsham; ac. 5,986; soil clay, overlying sand. The Cuckmere flows through the pa. The church of St. Mary is chiefly E. Eng., with Perp. insertions and additions; the chancel retains a piscina, and in the north chancel aisle is a monument with bust to Sir John Lade, Bart., M.P. for Southwark (d. 1740); in the chancel is a brass with effigy to Dean William Prestwick (d. 1436); the figure is remarkable as exhibiting upon the edges of the vestment a quotation from the book of Job (xix. 25, 26), and the crocketed canopy terminates in a finial exhibiting a pelican in her piety, with the motto on a scroll, "Sic Christus dilexit nos." The charities are considerable. Chicken rearing and fattening by machinery is carried on here to supply the seaside, London and provincial markets. About 2 E. of the church are the remains of an ancient priory (now forming part of the Priory farmhouse), founded by Sir John Pelham in the year 1413, for monks of the Priory of the Holy Trinity, in Hastings. Marhly and Stone House, a large mansion, partly Elizabethan and partly modern, in well-wooded and pleasant grounds, are seats.

Warblington, pa. and vil. on Chichester Haven, S.E. Hants, 8 N.E. of Portsmouth; ac. 2,652 land and 600 water. The church of St. Thomas à Becket (partly restored 1893) is E. Eng. and Dec., with traces of Saxon and Norm. work. There is an endowed school. Of W. Castle only a tower remains.

Warborne, ha., pa. of Boldre (q.v.), S.W. Hants, about 2 S.E. of Brockenhurst.

Warborough, pa., bounded on the south by the Thames, S. Oxon., 3 N. of Wallingford; ac. 1,673; soil gault and loam, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1881) is E. Eng. and later; it retains a Dec. piscina, with shelf, and a remarkable sedile; the south chapel is Dec., and contains a piscina and a single sedile. The south wall of the chancel retains traces of the former E. Eng. windows, and there are some fragments of grisaille (oak-leaf) glass; on the east side of a partition between the roofs of the nave and chancel is a prince's plume, with the initials "C. P.," referring to one of the Stuart Princes of Wales, who as Earls of Cornwall held land in the pa. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are of £8 yearly value, for distribution in money.

Warboys, pa. and vil., E. Hunts., 7 N.E. of Huntingdon; ac. 8,107. A large portion of the soil is fenny; the high land districts are a stiff clay, subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is E. Eng.; the chancel (restored about 1832) is separated from the nave by a Norm. arch. There is a Baptist chapel in the vil. In 1887 a memorial clock tower was erected by the parishioners. The interest of £200 is distributed in meat on St. Thomas's Day. The church estate formerly produced about £40 yearly, but is now somewhat depreciated in value.

Warbreck, pl., pa. of Bispham (q.v.), N. Lancs., within the bor. of Blackpool. [LAYTON-WITH-WARBRECK.]

Warbstowe, pa. and vil., N. Cornw., 8 N.E. of Camelford; ac. 4,104; soil light, subsoil various. The church of St. Werburgh (restored 1861) is E. Eng., and contains a curious Norm. font and a stone inscribed to Anna Grigg (d. 1688). W. barrow is a well-known earthwork.

Warburton, pa. and vil. on the Mersey, N. Chesh., 7 N.E. of Warrington; ac. 1,732; soil sandy loam and bog, subsoil various. The old church of St. Werburgh, now little used, is a timber-framed structure, repaired with stone in the 17th cent. The new church of St. Werburgh was built 1885, in Perp. style. There are some small charities. Of the market cross only the steps remain. Flour milling is carried on.

Warcop, pa. and vil. on the Eden, E. Westmd., 5 S.E. of Appleby; ac. 11,454; soil mixed, overlying limestone and red sandstone. The church of St. Columba is E. Eng.; the chancel (rebuilt 1855) has sedilia and a piscina, and in the south transept was the Burton chapel. The vicarage is built on the site of some ancient fortifications. Here are Wesleyan and Wesleyan Association chapels. There are some small charities. On Castle Hill are the remains of a fortress, and near by was anciently a chapel, of which remains have been found; there is also an ancient cross. During the parish feast (June 29) the ancient custom of Rush Bearing is observed. W. Hall (which retains some old portions, and in the grounds of which are remains of a British camp), Eden Gate, and W. House are seats.

Ward (1), pa., Castleknock bar., Mid co. Dub., Ir., 5 N. of Blanchardstown; ac. 1,347.

Ward (2), stream, S.E. co. Meath and Mid co. Dub., Ir., rises in Dunboyne bar., co. Meath, 3 S. of Ratoath, and runs E. through Nethercross bar., co. Dub., as far as Swords, where it turns N. by E., joining the Broadmeadow 3 W.N.W. of Malahide, after a course of about 13 miles.

Warden (1), pa., tp., and vil., pleasantly situated at the foot of a hill, near the junction of the North and South Tyne, S. Northumb., 3 N.W. of Hexham; ac. of pa. 24,440, of tp. 3,281; soil sand, clay, and loam, overlying clay, gravel, and limestone. The

JUNCTION OF NORTH AND SOUTH TYNE AT WARDEN.
(Photo. Mr. Gibson, Hexham.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warblington	Havant (1)	66	2840
Warborough	Wallingford (3)	51	658
Warboys	Somersham (3)	70	1661
Warbstowe	Tresmeer (3)	231	396
Warburton	Heatley & W.	18[9]	416
Warcop	Warcop	277	632
Ward (1)	Blanchardstown (5)	7	72
Warden (1), pa.	Hexham (3)	289	2736
Warden (1), tp.	Hexham (3)	289	959

church of St. Michael is a cruciform building, originally E. Eng.; it contains several tablets, and near the north wall of the chancel is a coped gravestone; the church was restored in 1869, and enlarged in 1889. In the churchyard is a Saxon headstone, carved with an upright figure and interlaced work. Here is a small Primitive Methodist chapel.

Warden (2), pa., N.E. Kent, 7 E. of Sheerness; ac. 223 land, 538 foreshore. The church of St. James, the tower of which was rebuilt in 1836 from the materials of Old London Bridge, was removed in 1877 on account of the encroachment of the sea.

Warden, Chipping. [CHIPPING WARDEN.]

Ward End, eccl. pa., pa. of Aston (q.v.), N. Warws., 3½ E. of Birmingham. About 1512 this place, then called "Little Bromwich," was possessed by one John Bonde, a wealthy clothier in Coventry, who, by the permission of the bishop and of the prior and convent of Tickford, built a chapel here in honour of the Virgin and St. Margaret, because the inhabitants, by reason of the floods, could not always repair to their pa. church of Aston. The remains of this chapel, long used as a cart shed, were restored in 1835 and rebuilt as a church, with the ancient name of St. Margaret. The Hall, a building in Classic style, and W. E. House are seats. In the grounds of the former are traces of a moated castle.

Warden, High, ha., pa. of Warden (q.v.), S. Northumb., 1 N. of the church; above it is an eminence called the Castle Hill, the site of an ancient camp, occupying an area of 2 ac., and formerly surrounded by a rude rampart of loose stones. H. W. House and Nether Warden are seats.

Warden Law, small tp., pa. of and 2½ E. from Houghton-le-Spring (q.v.), N.E. Dur.; ac. 498. W. L. is also the name of a lofty hill whose summit commands extensive views of the surrounding country and the German Ocean.

Warden, Old, pa. and vil., S.E. Beds., 7 S.E. of Bedford; ac. 3,307; soil sand and clay, overlying sand. The church of St. Leonard (repaired) is Perp., and contains some fragments of old glass. The charities amount to £36 yearly. Of the Cistercian abbey only the refectory remains. Quince Hill is believed to be the site of a Roman camp. O. W. House is a seat.

Ward, Hill of, eminence (390 ft.), Lune bar., W. co. Meath, Ir., 3 E. of Athboy. The hill is celebrated in the early annals of Ireland, for here, on the eve of Samhuin (Oct. 31), was held a celebrated fair, accompanied by festivities and sacred fires, established by Tuathal the Acceptable, ard-ri or king of all Ireland in the first cent. A.D.

Wardie, the eastern part of Granton (q.v.), on Firth of Forth, N.W. Edins., Sc., 1½ N. by W. of Edinburgh. W. House and W. Lodge are the principal residences.

Wardington, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Cropredy (q.v.), N. Oxon., on the borders of Northants, 4½ N.N.E. of Banbury; ac. 2,572. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1889) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the east window of the chancel is good Dec. work; the chancel retains its piscina and a locker; the nave is of the 13th cent.; in the south porch is a stoup; the font is octagonal, and dates from 1566. The registers date from the year 1633, and one of the older volumes contains three memoranda of persons who were touched by King James II. at Banbury, in 1689, for the King's evil; there is also this entry in another volume recording the death of John Burrell, killed at the battle of Cropredy Bridge (1644). The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are various charities producing £6 10s. yearly for educational purposes and £7 10s. for distribution in money.

Ward Law, mountain (1,951 ft.), pa. of Ettrick, S.W. Selks., Sc., 12 E.N.E. of Moffat.

Wardle (1), eccl. pa. and manufacturing vil., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., adjoining Rochdale on the north-east, on the road to Todmorden. It lies in a broad valley, overlooked by bold hills, which form nearly a semicircle around. The church of St. James the Apostle is in Gothic style, and the Wesleyans and United Methodists have a chapel. Near the vil. are the reservoirs of the Rochdale Waterworks. [WUERDLE-AND-WARDLE.]

Wardle (2), tp., pa. of Bunbury (q.v.), W. Chesh., 4 N.W. of Nantwich; ac. 1,028. Draining-tiles for agricultural purposes are extensively manufactured. W. Hall, an ancient building of brick and wood, was formerly enclosed by a moat, but, with the exception of a portion on the south-east side, this has now been filled up, and in 1849 a farmhouse was erected near to the hall.

Wardleworth, tp., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., within the bor. of Rochdale; ac. 766. Flannel and cotton manufactures are carried on to a great extent. Foxholes is a seat.

Wardley (1), pa. and vil., S. Rutld., 2½ N.W. by W. of Uppingham; ac. 748; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Botolph (partly restored) is E. Eng., and contains mural slabs to the Fludyer family.

Wardley (2), ha., pa. of Jarrow (q.v.), N. Dur., about 4 S.E. of Gateshead. It consists of a colliery and a few cottages for the miners.

Wardlow, tp. and vil., pas. of Bakewell and Hope (q.v.), N. Derbys., 5 N.N.W. of Bakewell; ac. 629. The chapel of the Good Shepherd was built 1873, in Perp. style. There are lead mines.

Ward of Cruden. [PORT ERROL.]

Wardour, tp. and vil., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Tisbury (q.v.), S. Wilts.; ac. 2,015. Here is W. Castle, the seat of Lord Arundell of Wardour, situated in an extensive park and pleasure-grounds. In the vicinity are the ruins of the old castle, built in 1392, and the earthworks thrown up by the Parliamentary army when they laid siege to the fortress. It was surrendered after a lengthened siege, but retaken and destroyed by the springing of a mine. Pit House is also a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warden (2)	Queenborough (6½)	50	30
Ward End	Stetchford (1)	109	1116
Warden Law	Seaton (1½)	256	85
Warden, Old	Southill (1½)	57	440
Wardington	Cropredy (2)	90	594
Wardle (1)	Littleborough (1¾)	198	1840
Wardle (2)	Calveley (1)	166	164
Wardleworth	Wardleworth	196	19238
Wardley (1)	Rockingham (3½)	94	45
Wardlow	Monsal Dale (1½)	156	140
Wardour	Tisbury (2)	96	861

Wardy Hill, or Wady Hill, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Coveney (q.v.), N. Cambs.

Ware, pa. and to. (formerly with a market) on the Lea, E. Herts., 2 E. of Hertford; ac. 4,661 and 44 water. There is good water communication by the navigable Lea (over which an iron bridge was erected here in 1845) with the Thames at Blackwall, 20 miles distant; the New River head is half a mile distant. The pa. church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1885–86), in the centre of the to., is Perp. The chancel was built, it is conjectured, by the Lady Margaret (Beaufort), Countess of Richmond and mother of Henry VII. The south chapel, separated from the transept by an oaken screen, contains a piscina, and there is another piscina in the south transept. The font is octagonal, and consists of a bowl supported on a single column richly carved and moulded; each side bears the figure of a saint carved in high relief, the date of the work being about 1380; the oaken cover is Perp. In the aisle is an unfinished inscription on brass to William Pyrcy and Agnes and Alice his wives, with figures of children (c. 1470). Beneath the pulpit is a brass figure of a woman, with an inscription invoking the prayers of the faithful for the soul of Elena, daughter of John and Margaret Coke (d. 1454), and for the souls of William Bramble and Richard Warburton, her two husbands. In the south transept is a large marble monument to Sir Richard Fanshaw, P.C., Ambassador to the Court of Spain (d. at Madrid June 16, 1666, and buried here 1671); and there are others to the families of Murvell, Collins, Thorowgood, and Dickinson. W. has also an eccl. pa., with a modern church, a Catholic chapel, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Grammar School was reconstituted in 1889, and the National school is endowed. The Town Hall, in High Street, contains a room holding 500 persons, and a smaller one to hold 150; there is also a Literary Institute, with a library and a reading-room. The Petty Sessions Court (1882) is a structure of red brick in the Gothic style. In Park Road is a recreation-ground of about 6 ac. The principal trade of the to. is in malt; brewing and brickmaking are also carried on. The charities for distribution in kind and money amount to £266 yearly, and there is a sum of about £50 yearly for the support of aged widows and other pensioners, and £8 a year for church purposes. To this place the Danes, in the reign of Alfred, are said to have brought their vessels. W. is also the "town of fame" alluded to by Cowper in his merry ballad of "John Gilpin." The priory of W. was suppressed with other alien priories 2 Hen. V. (1414), the revenues being then estimated at £200, and the next year was granted to the convent at Sheen, Surrey, on the dissolution of which, 36 Hen. VIII., it was transferred to Trinity College, Cambridge. There was also here, in the north part of the to., a house of Franciscans; this house is now a seat; important restorations have been effected, and much 13th-cent. work brought to light. W. Park is also a seat.

Ware Cross, ha., pa. of and a little E. from Kingsteignton (q.v.), S. Dev.

Wareham, mun. bor. and mkt. to. (T.) (formerly a parl. bor., but now merged in the Eastern div. of the co.), head of U., Co. Co. dis., and petty sess. div., E. Dors., 17 S.E. of Dorchester. W. is situated between the Piddle and Frome, occupying a rising ground near their outfall into Poole Harbour, and consists of four spacious and open streets, intersecting at right angles, its area being nearly enclosed by high artificial ramparts of earth, covering about 100 ac.; these ramparts are of remote antiquity, supposed to be of British origin, and now form a healthful recreation-ground for the inhabitants. W. was a Roman settlement, and figures largely in history from the time of Canute to that of the Commonwealth. There is a substantial stone bridge of six arches crossing the Frome from South Street and connecting the co. with the Isle of Purbeck, which was rebuilt about the year 1777. There is a salmon fishery in this river; from the system of taking the fish out of season, on their ascending the river to spawn, it was nearly destroyed, but now under more stringent regulations has considerably revived; the tides flow as high as Holme Bridge, 3 miles above the to. In 1762 the to., with the exception of three churches now standing, was entirely consumed by fire. W. contains three pas.—Holy Trinity, Lady St. Mary, and St. Martin, with the respective ac. of 2,609 and 141 foreshore, 2,626 and 24 water, and 2,903 and 1,099 foreshore. The churches of Holy Trinity and St. Martin are both standing, but neither is used for public worship; the latter, covered with ivy and forming a very picturesque object in North Street, is only used for the burials of the members of one or two families. There are some traces of other churches having existed in former times, called St. Michael, St. Peter, and St. John, but the pas. have been consolidated with the others. The church of St. Mary is very ancient, and the chapel in the south aisle is said to have been the burial-place of the Anglo-Saxon kings, and in it reposed for three years the remains of Edward the Martyr, who was murdered at Corfe Castle by Elfrida; his bones were then removed, with much pomp and ceremony, by St. Dunstan and a numerous train of monks, to Shaftesbury. The nave of the church was rebuilt in 1841–42; the chancel contains a beautiful window of the date of Henry VII. Near the west entrance is a font of the 11th cent.; it is of lead, hexagonal in form, mounted on a solid base of Purbeck marble, and on the sides are figures of the Twelve Apostles in high relief. In digging for the new foundation of the nave a fine sarcophagus of Purbeck marble was discovered, supposed to have been the receptacle for the body of Edward the Martyr. There is a monument to the Rev. John Hutchins, author of the "History of Dorset," formerly rector here, and buried in the chapel in the south aisle. The Priory of SS. Mary, Peter, and Ethelwold, founded in the reign of Henry I., near this church, is still standing. In 1880 a double piscina was discovered in the wall on the south side of the chancel. W. has also a Catholic church and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall and Corn Exchange, in the market-place, is a Gothic building, used not only by the Corporation, but for public meetings. This to. has long been noted for its extensive trade in potters', fire, pipe, tile, and

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ware, pa.	Ware	22	5706
Ware, to.	Ware	22	5256

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wareham	Wareham	120	216

other kinds of clay, some thousands of tons of which are annually exported; there is also an extensive brewery, and at Sandford are brick and clay works. There are fairs for cattle on the Tuesday nearest April 17 and Sept. 11, which are generally well attended; there are also five cattle markets, commencing about Feb. 14 and continuing every fortnight. W. has an almshouse for six men and five women, and charities for distribution amounting to about £75 a year.

Wareham, Holy Trinity. [WAREHAM.]

Wareham, Lady St. Mary. [WAREHAM.]

Wareham, St. Martin. [WAREHAM.]

Warehorne, pa. and vil., S. Kent, 7 s. of Ashford; ac. 2,883; soil mould, overlying clay. The church of St. Matthew is E. Eng. and later periods; the south aisle contains an aumbry and a piscina; the chancel contains a piscina, a memorial to John Coventry (d. 1681), and a brass to Thomas Iekyn (d. 1483). Here is a Bible Christian chapel. The fair is no longer held.

Warenford, tp. and vil., pa. of Bamburgh (q.v.), N.E. Northumb., 4 S.E. of Belford; ac. 639. Here is an English Presbyterian chapel.

Warenton, tp., pa. of Bamburgh (q.v.), N.E. Northumb., 3 S.S.W. of Belford; ac. 1,582. Here is a Presbyterian chapel.

Ware Side, eccl. pa. and ha., pas. of Ware and Thundridge (q.v.), E. Herts., 2 N.E. of Ware. The church of the Holy Trinity (1841) is a small structure in Norm. style.

Waresley, pa. and small but picturesque vil., S. Hunts., on the Cambs. border, 6 N.E. of Sandy; ac. 1,976; soil mixed, but very good. The church of St. James, rebuilt in 1857 on a new site, is a handsome structure of stone, in E. Dec. style; attached to the church on the south is a mortuary chapel covering the vault of the Duncombe family. The rent of two cottages is distributed in bread. W. Park is a seat; the mansion, a fine building in the Italian style, is pleasantly situated in a park of 84 ac., stocked with deer.

Warfield, pa. and vil., E. Berks., 9 S.W. of Windsor; ac. 3,423; soil clay and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (restored 1876) is E. Eng., and contains some fine ancient monuments. Here is an undenominational chapel. The charities amount to about £90 yearly. W. Grove, W. Hall, and W. Park are seats.

Warfleet, ha., pa. of Townstall (q.v.), S. Dev., near Dartmouth. W. House is a seat.

Warford, Great, tp. and vil., pa. of Alderley (q.v.), E. Chesh., 4½ S.E. of Knutsford; ac. 1,313. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, and there is a small charity.

Warford, Little, ha., pa. of Rostherne (q.v.), Mid Chesh., near Marthall.

Wargrave, pa. and vil. on the Thames, E. Berks., 7 N.E. of Reading; ac. 4,462; soil clay and loam, overlying chalk and flint. The church of St. Mary is Norm. and later periods, the north doorway possibly being Saxon; there are several memorials of the Ximenes family, and others to Richard Aldworth (1623), Francis Webb (1674), and to Thomas Day (d. 1789), author of "Sandford and Merton." There are several charities and an endowed school. Roman coins have been found here. The sign-board of the "George and Dragon" was painted by George Leslie, R.A., and J. D. Hodgson, R.A. Among the seats are Bear Place, Culham Court, Hennerton, Temple Combe, and W. Manor.

Warham All Saints, pa. near the sea shore, N. Norf., 2 S. by E. of Wells; ac. 1,174 and 600 water; soil light, subsoil chalky. The church of All Saints (restored 1877) is Dec., with Perp. windows; there are two brasses, one to William Rokewode (d. 1474), and one (dated 1650) to some members of the Framlingham family; the church was formerly much larger; portions of a massive tower still remain, and the arches of the arcade dividing the nave and aisles may be traced in the north and south walls of the present building.

Warham St. Mary, pa. and pretty vil., N. Norf., adjoining Warham All Saints; ac. 2,056, and 1,010 water; soil of a rich, loamy nature, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is E. Eng., with some details of the Perp. period. Here was formerly another church, dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, but all traces of its site are lost. Near the Stiffkey rivulet is a fine specimen of a fortified camp, having a triple fosse, with an area of 9 ac. Here are also the remains of the ruins of a large hall, once the residence of the Turners, the former proprietors of the manor.

War Hill, mountain (2,250 ft.), on border of Rathdown and North Ballinacor bars., N.E. co. Wick., Ir., 7 W.N.W. of Newtownmountkennedy.

Waring, stream, E. Lincs.; rises in south-east vicinity of Scamblesby, and runs 6 S.S.W. and S. by W. past Belchford and West Ashby to the Bain at Horncastle.

Waringstown, vil., pa. of Donaghcloney (q.v.), W. co. Down, Ir., 2 S. of Lurgan. It stands on the property of the Warings, who were driven from England during the Marian persecutions. The linen manufacture was introduced by a son of the first settler, who brought artisans from Holland, by whom this industry was established. There are Protestant and Presbyterian churches. W. House is a seat.

Wark (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the North Tyne, S.W. Northumb., 5½ S.E. of Bellingham; ac. of pa. 23,535, of tp. 3,408. The church of St. Michael was built 1814–18 in Gothic style. W. has a Wesleyan chapel, a Presbyterian church, and a Mechanics' Institute. There are some charities and the school is endowed. Traces remain of ancient encampments and the ruins of an old church.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wareham, Holy T.	Wareham	120	796
Wareham, L. St. M.	Wareham	120	1688
Wareham, St. Martin	Wareham	120	623
Warehorne	Ham Street (1)	60	445
Warenford	Newham (1½)	318	13
Warenton	Belford (3)	323	99
Ware Side	Mardocks (1)	23	649
Waresley	Gamlingay (1½)	77	218
Warfield	Bracknell (2)	32	2273
Warford, Great	Alderly Edge (2)	175	378
Wargrave	Twyford (2)	31	2027
Warham All Saints	Wells (1½)	128	267
Warham St. Mary	Wells (1½)	128	73
Waringstown	Lurgan (2)	93	440
Wark (1)	Wark	300	731

Wark (2), vil. on the Tweed, pa. of Carham (q.v.), N. Northumb., about 2½ S.W. of Cornhill, on the road to Kelso. To the west of the vil. are the ruins of W. Castle, dating from the 12th cent. The fortress was surrounded by two walls, parts of which, overlooking the Tweed, are still standing. In the centre of the inner ward was a tower of great height and strength, evidently the keep, the ruins of which still remain, together with a portion of a large staircase. In 1523 it was assaulted by the Duke of Albany, Regent of Scotland, who, however, was compelled to raise the siege; an account of this attack is given by George Buchanan, the Scottish historian, who was an eye-witness. Various other assaults are also on record. Edward III. was here in 1296, and came again in 1341 to the assistance of Catherine, wife of the Earl of Salisbury, who then held the castle against the Scots. To the west of the castle is St. Giles churchyard, now called Julie's or Gilly's nick, with the remains of the foundations of the church. About half a mile west of the vil. is an eminence named the Gallows Knowe, or hill, where all the Scotch prisoners were hanged in view of their countrymen. W. boathouse stands on the banks of the Tweed, close under the ruins of the castle, where the river is crossed by a ferryboat.

RUINS OF WARK CASTLE.
(Photo. T. Scott, Birmingham.)

Warkleigh, pa. on the Taw, N. Dev., 10 S.E. of Barnstaple; ac. 2,404; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. John (partly rebuilt 1850) is Perp., and contains a piscina, a priest's door, and remains of the rood-loft staircase.

Warksburn, tp., formerly separate, now for civil purposes amalgamated with the pa. of Wark (q.v.), S.W. Northumb.

Warkton, pa. and vil. on the Ise, Mid Northants, 1½ N.E. of Kettering; ac. 1,860; soil limestone, clay and red loam. The church of St. Edmund (restored 1868) is E. Eng. and later periods, and contains several monuments of the Montagu family. There is a small charity. The neighbourhood is noted for its fine avenues of trees.

Warkworth (1), pa., tp., vil., and seaport on the Coquet, N. Northumb., 3½ S. of Alnmouth; ac. of pa. 17,455, of tp. 1,098; soil loam, overlying clay. The vil., which mainly consists of one street, is almost surrounded by the river, here crossed by a bridge of two arches, at the south end of which stands the lower portion of a fortified gatehouse, with a segmental vaulted roadway; the vil. contains some good modern houses, and in the summer months is a place of great resort. W. gives the title of baron to the dukes of Northumberland. The church of St. Lawrence was originally built at the beginning of the 8th cent. by Ceolwulf, King of Northumbria, and when, in 737, he assumed the monastic habit and retired to the priory of Lindisfarne, he gave this church, with other possessions, to that house; portions of a Saxon wall, 4 ft. thick, and probably belonging to Ceolwulf's church, together with a carved Saxon cross, were met with on the restoration of the church in 1860, but the existing fabric is chiefly Norm. and Perp. On the south side of the chancel is a priest's doorway; on the north side of the nave is a Norm. doorway, now blocked, and at the north-east angle a low square projection with a newel staircase; the Perp. south aisle is lighted by traceried windows of that period, and at its western end, placed on a modern tomb, is a recumbent effigy of a knight, cross-legged, said to represent Sir Hugh de Morewic, a justiciar in the reign of Henry II. who gave the common of W. for the use of the inhabitants, and died c. 1190; the porch of the same date is of two storeys, rising to the height of the nave wall; the entrance is vaulted, and the floor above is reached by a newel stair in a projection on the north side. The church was the scene, in 1174, of a cruel massacre of the vil. folk by William the Lion, King of Scotland, who despatched a force to W. under Earl Duncan, and most of the inhabitants having taken refuge in the church, he ordered his men to break into it, which they did, and slew within it and in the priest's house above 100 men, besides women and little children; on the south side of the churchyard is a much-worn flat stone known as "the Huntsman's Grave," and once bearing three carved bugle horns, and an inscription to Edward Dodsworth (d. May 30, 1630), huntsman to King James. The Presbyterians have a place of worship. Near the churchyard are the ruins of a Benedictine priory, founded by Nicholas de Farnham, Bishop of Durham (1241–49), as a cell to the priory of Durham. Fairs are held on April 25, if a Thursday; if not, on the previous Thursday; and on Nov. 22 for horned cattle and pedlery. W. Castle, picturesquely situated on a slight eminence on the south bank of the Coquet, which environs it on three sides, appears to have been originally built by Roger FitzRichard, first lord of W., who received the manor from the Crown in 1158, and of this Trans.-Norm. structure nearly the whole of the curtain walls, together with the great gateway, kitchen, part of the hall and adjoining buildings, still remain; the area of the castle, over an acre in extent, is shield-shaped, with the apex towards the north, and terminating in the keep, erected between 1435 and 1440, which rises from an artificial mound of considerable height. Other portions of the existing buildings are Perp., of an earlier character than the keep, and dating from 1377 to 1414, and to these belongs the Lion tower, erected between 1398 and 1407; at the beginning of the 17th cent. the castle having fallen into great decay, the lead

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warkleigh	Umberleigh (3)	205	236
Warkton	Kettering (2)	72	247
Warkworth (1), pa.	Warkworth (1½)	303	2,[illegible]
Warkworth (1), tp.	Warkworth (1½)	303	[illegible]

and timber were sold, the keep was unroofed and remained in a neglected condition until about 1856, when the walls of the keep were repaired and the south and west towers substantially restored and new roofed. About half a mile from the castle, on the opposite bank of the river, is the famous hermitage, in a thickly-wooded nook, on one side of which is the white sandstone cliff, out of which the upper chambers of the hermitage are hewn; the lower portion, built up against and under the south-west portion of the rock, is constructed of ashlar, and from its general character may be regarded as earlier than the oratory above. An exterior flight of steps at a sharp angle to the cliff leads up to the plain arched entrance to the chapel, a tiny vestibule with a small recessed seat on each side, and over the inner door are the remains of an inscription in black letters; the stone altar is a little recessed in front with a slight moulding, and in the wall above it is a small niche. On the south side of the altar, in an arched recess, is an altar tomb; in front of the tomb is a piscina on a cylindrical stem; on the same side, between these and the doorway, is a square opening with a quatrefoil window, and a circular basin hollowed out of the lower surface; on the north side of the altar a pointed confessional opening with elegant Late Dec. tracery communicates with the adjoining chamber, which runs parallel to the chapel; this chamber is roughly hewn out of the rock, and is of less height than the chapel, the floor rising towards the east, which is rudely arched and has a stone seat or couch, on one side of which is the confessional opening and a small stoup, and a little lower down is a splayed squint. Outside the hermitage a rude wooden ladder and some steps irregularly cut in the eastern cliff lead up to the slope once used as the hermit's garden, but now covered with lichen and bushes, and overshadowed by the interbranching foliage of yews and beeches and some ancient oaks. The age of this remarkable work manifestly belongs to the Late Dec. period and to its earlier stage, and the date of the hermitage may therefore be fixed at some time between the years 1350 and 1450.

WARKWORTH CASTLE.
(Photo. M. Auty, Tynemouth.)

Warkworth (2), pa. and small to. on the Cherwell, S.W. Northants, extending into Oxon., 2 E. of Banbury; ac. 2,440; soil various. The church of St. Mary (partly rebuilt 1869) is Dec.; in the south aisle is a piscina; in the chapel are tombs of the Holman family, and brasses to Sir John Chetwode (d. 1422), to Amabilla, his wife (d. 1430), to John Chetwode (d. 1420), to Margaret Brounyng (d. 1420), and another to William Ludsthorp (1454); there is a 14th-cent. altar-tomb with effigy to Sir John de Lyons, and other tombs with effigies to Sir John de Lyons (d. 1312) and to Margaret, his wife; some of the bench ends are curious and the font is old. There is a charity. W. Castle, which was destroyed in the 18th cent., is connected with the names of John Gother, a well-known Catholic writer of the 17th cent.; Allan Butler, author of "The Lives of the Saints," both being chaplains here; and with Dr. Challoner, Bishop of Doberus.

Warlaby, tp. and ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Ainderby-Steeple (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 767. This is the breeding-place of the celebrated W. herd of shorthorns.

Warleggon, pa. and vil. E. Cornw., 6 N.E. by E. of Bodmin; ac. 2,055; soil peat and clay, overlying granite and clay slate. The church of St. Bartholomew is Perp. Here are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels.

Warleigh, ha., pa. of Bathford (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, 3 E. of Bath. W. Castle is a seat.

Warley (1), eccl. pa. and tp. on an eminence, pa. of and about 3 W. from Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 4,025, chiefly in the hands of small freeholders. The church of St. John the Evangelist, at Cote Hill, is in E. Eng. style. There are also Nonconformist places of worship. In the neighbourhood are quarries and several worsted manufactories.

Warley (2), tp., pa. of Halesowen (q.v.), N.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warkworth (2)	Banbury (2)	77	3031
Warlaby	Northallerton (2)	218	79
Warleggon	Doublebois (3)	262	206

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warley (1), eccl. pa.	Sowerby Bridge (1)	195	1799
Warley (1), tp.	Sowerby Bridge 1)	195	9249
Warley (2)	Cradley (2)	138	2354

Worcs., formed from the lapsed tp. of Warley Vigorn and parts of other tps.; ac. 1,951.

Warley Common. [WARLEY, LITTLE.]

Warley, Great, pa. and vil., S. Essex, 6 E. of Romford; ac. 2,724; soil clay, overlying loam and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1860) is Dec., and contains a mural monument to Gyles Fleming (d. 1623). Here is a Roman Catholic chapel, a Convent of Mercy, and a holiday home for working girls. Goldings, Hampden House, and Warley Place are seats.

Warley, Great, Christchurch, eccl. pa., pas. of Great Warley, Shenfield, and South Weald (q.v.), S. Essex, 6 E. of Romford. Christ Church (enlarged 1877) is in E. Eng. style.

Warley, Little, pa. and vil., S. Essex, 1 E. of Great Warley; ac. 1,701; soil clay, overlying loam. The church of St. Peter contains monuments to Sir Denner Strutt, and to Dorothy (d. 1641) and Mary (d. 1654), his wives. There is a charity of £40 yearly. There are barracks on Warley Common for the training of recruits for the depôt of the Essex regiment. The view from the common is very fine.

Warley Salop, formerly a tp., pa. of Halesowen (q.v.), N. Worcs., now amalgamated with Oldbury.

Warley Street, ha., pa. of Great Warley (q.v.), S. Essex, 2 S. of Brentwood.

Warley Vigorn, formerly a tp., pa. of Halesowen (q.v.), N. Worcs., now amalgamated with Oldbury, Cakemore, Warley, and Ridgacre.

Warlies Park. [WALTHAM ABBEY.]

Warlingham, pa. and vil., N.E. Surrey, 4½ S.E. of Croydon; ac. 1,702; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (restored 1894) is a small structure of flint and rubble; there is a stained window recording the tradition that this was the first church in which the revised prayer book of Edward VI. was read; there is also a fresco of St. Christopher on the north wall, in a good state of preservation. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are almshouses for four poor widows, and a charity of £3 11s. yearly for distribution.

Warmfield, pa., tp. (Warmfield-with-Heath), and vil. on the Calder, W.R. Yorks., 3 E. of Wakefield; ac. of pa. 2,779, of tp. 1,580; soil clay and loam, subsoil marl and limestone. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng., and contains several monuments. Here are almshouses and an endowed hospital.

Warmfield-with-Heath. [WARMFIELD.]

Warmingham, pa., tp., and vil., Mid Chesh., 4 W. of Sandbach; ac. of pa. 4,777, of tp. 2,075; soil sandy, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Leonard (rebuilt 1870, with the exception of the tower) is in Perp. style, and contains on the west wall a mural painting representing the four Evangelists. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £8 a year.

Warminghurst, pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 10½ N. of Worthing; ac. 998; soil mixed, subsoil part rocky and part clay. The church of the Holy Trinity is E. Eng.; it contains a brass to Edward Shelley and Joan his wife, daughter and heir of Paul Iden, of Kent (d. 1553); there are also monuments to the families of Benet, Blount, Dolber, Oldham, Fenwick, and others. William Penn resided in this pa. from 1676 to 1702.

Warmington (1), pa. and vil. on the Nen, N.E. Northants, about 3 N.E. of Oundle; ac. 3,752; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is E. Eng. and later; the Perp. rood-stairs remain, also a piscina, lan. recess, etc., and among the tombs are those of Sir Robert Kirkham (probably temp. Henry VIII.) and Thomas Elmes de Lilford. Here are almshouses, a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, and a small charity. An old door in Eaglesthorpe House is believed to have been brought from Fotheringay Castle.

Warmington (2), pa. and vil., S. Warws., 5½ N.W. of Banbury; ac. 1,735; soil rich, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1867-71, is Dec., with some Norm. and E. Eng. work; there is a 14th-cent. chapel with altar and piscina, the upper portion forming a priest's room. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. W. has a small charity.

Warminster, pa., mkt. and U. to., head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., on the Wiley and at the western extremity of Salisbury Plain, W. Wilts, 4 S. of Westbury; ac. 6,085; soil and subsoil various, principally sandstone, with some green sand. W. was a Roman settlement, and is mentioned in Domesday by the name of "Guermiste," and was then considered ancient, and possessed many privileges. The to. is at the junction of the roads from Bath, Frome, Salisbury, and Shaftesbury, and consists principally of one street, about a mile in length. The church of St. Denys, at the western extremity of the to., dated from the time of Henry II., but was completely rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1887-89, in E. Eng. style; the organ, which was first used in 1792, is a very fine one, and was built to the order of King George III. for Salisbury Cathedral; there are numerous mural monuments, dating from 1635 to 1649. W. has also chapels-of-ease, an eccl. pa. with a modern church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. Lord Weymouth's Grammar School was founded in 1704. The Missionary College of St. Boniface was established in 1860 for training young men for the work of Foreign Missions. Here is the Wilts. Reformatory for boys. The Community of St. Denys' Home was established in 1866 for the preparation of women desirous of assisting in missionary work abroad, or acting as nurses at home; in connection with it is a school for young ladies. The Orphanage of Pity consists of two houses, and is free to orphan children from all parts who are of legitimate birth. The W. Cottage Hospital was established in 1866. The town hall is a handsome edifice in Elizabethan style, and contains courts for the administration of justice and rooms for assemblies and for public meetings. The Savings Bank is

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warley, Great	Brentwood & W. (1)	18	1609
Warley, Gt., Christ.	Brentwood & W. (3)	18	4947
Warley, Little	Brentwood & W. (3½)	18	1165
Warlingham	Warlingham	17	1488
Warmfield, pa.	Normanton (1½)	179	3323
Warmfield, tp.	Normanton (1½)	179	1067

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warmingham, pa.	Sandbach (2)	163	1067
Warmingham, tp.	Sandbach (2)	163	3[illegible]
Warminghurst	Steyne (2)	53	[illegible]
Warmington (1)	Oundle (3)	96	[illegible]
Warmington (2)	Cropredy (4)	90	[illegible]
Warminster	Warminster	106	[illegible]

fine building in Elizabethan style, was erected in 1852; there is also an Athenæum, with a lecture hall, and a literary institution. The charities amount to about £320, distributed in money, clothing, coals, and food annually at Christmas; and there are almshouses for four old women, each of whom receives 6s. a week. Here is a silk-winding mill, employing about 200 hands, also two large engineering and agricultural-implement and steam-plough works; there are also four large breweries, and malting is carried on to a considerable extent. W. has a good corn market on Saturday, and fairs are held on April 22, Aug. 11, and Oct. 26. A track on the side of a hill to the north is called the Nuns' path. Of several ancient entrenchments, Battlesbury Camp covers upwards of 23 ac.; and a small one in Southleigh Wood is called Robin Hood's Bower; another crowns the larger of two abrupt and conspicuous knolls. [Clee Hills (2).] In Pitmead, a large meadow on the Wiley, 2 E. of W., some mosaic pavements and other Roman remains have been discovered at various times, and in the neighbourhood are several barrows. Here is a spring which, when other springs are at their lowest ebb, flows with greater rapidity. In a cornfield at Wichhams Green are graves, kept with neatness and regularity, said to be the burial-place of persons who died during the great plague.

Warmley, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Siston and Bitton (q.v.), S. Glouc., 4½ E. of Bristol. The church of St. Barnabas was built 1850 in E. Eng. style. Here is a coal mine.

Warmsworth, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 2½ S.W. of Doncaster; ac. 1,074; soil loam and lime, and in some parts clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Peter (repaired 1850) is E. Eng., and has a tower dating from the 12th cent. The charities amount to £4 10s. yearly. W. is noted for its walnut-trees. The banks of the Don afford beautiful walks, and the neighbourhood abounds with spots of interest, such as Edlington and Wadworth Woods, Conisbrough Castle, Sprotbrough Hall, and Cusworth Park and Hall. To the west of the vil. are extensive quarries of lime and limestone. W. Hall (erected in 1702), standing in pleasant grounds, is a seat.

Warmwell, pa. and vil., S. Dors., 6 S.E. of Dorchester; ac. 1,647; soil clay, subsoil chalk and gravel. Holy Trinity Church (partly rebuilt 1881 and 1887) is E. Eng. W. House is a seat.

Warnborough, North, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Odiham (q.v.), N. Hants. Here are some vestiges of Odiham Castle; the remains have been converted into a farmhouse, called Palace Gate, having probably been the entrance to the grounds.

Warnborough, South, pa. and vil., N.E. Hants, 7 S.E. of Basingstoke; ac. 2,651; soil chalk, overlying chalk and clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1870) is chiefly E. Eng., but has traces of other periods. The school has a small endowment.

Warndon, pa. and vil., Mid Worcs., 2½ N.E. of Worcester station; ac. 832; soil and subsoil clay and marl. The church of St. Nicholas is Dec and Perp.; it contains many fragments of ancient stained glass, and the floor is partially laid with 16th-cent. tiles.

Warnal, or Warnell, ha., pa. of Sebergham (q.v.), Mid Cumb., 1 N.E. of Hesket-Newmarket. W. Hall, now a farmhouse, was formerly a seat, but only a portion of the ancient mansion is standing.

Warner Shoal, sandbank south-east of Spithead, off the north-east coast of I. of W., 4 E. of Spithead. Here is a light-vessel, with a revolving light visible 10 miles.

Warnford, pa. and vil. on the Meon, E. Hants, 9½ W. of Petersfield; ac. 3,179; soil chalky loam, overlying chalk. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Eng.; in the chancel is a monument to the Neale family, dated 1610; the font is curious. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. W. has a small charity. W. Park, a seat, has a good library and collection of pictures, and in the grounds some ancient ruins.

Warnham, pa. and vil., N.W. Sussex, 3 N. of Horsham; ac. 4,960; soil heavy clay, subsoil in some parts clay loam, in others stiff clay, including a good bed of clay used for making the best bricks. The vil. is somewhat extensive, and consists principally of two long narrow streets; the pa. extends to the Surrey border. The church of St. Margaret (rebuilt 1885–86) was originally E. Eng.; the chancel is separated from its north aisle by an oak screen; the monuments include one to Sir John Caryll, Kt. (d. 1613), and Maria his wife, with effigies of their four sons and five daughters. A vil. hall and club was built in 1893; it is endowed. On the south-west side of the pa. is Field Place, the birthplace (Aug. 4, 1792) of Percy Bysshe Shelley, who spent much of his early life here. W. Court and W. Lodge are also seats.

Warningcamp, tp., pa. of Lyminster (q.v.), W. Sussex, 2 E. of Arundel; ac. 930.

Warninglid, ha., pa. of Slaugham (q.v.), N. Sussex, about 8 S.E. of Horsham. There is a Church Mission room. Colwood House, Free Chase, Lydhurst, Southlands, and W. Grange are seats.

Warpsgrove, pa., S. Oxon., 8 S.W. of Thame; ac. 332; soil chiefly clay, overlying clay and sand. There is no church.

Warren (1), pa., S.W. Pembs., 5 S.W. of Pembroke, reaching to the Bristol Channel; ac. 1,212. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building with a square tower surmounted by a spire, forming a conspicuous object from the sea. In the churchyard is the base of an ancient cross.

Warren (2), ha., pa. of Old Cleeve (q.v.), N.W. Somerset, 1 E. of Minehead, on the Bristol Channel.

Warrenby, ha., pa. of Kirk Leatham (q.v.), about 4½ N.N.W. of Guisborough. Here are important works, with four blast-furnaces, for the manufacture of pig-iron.

Warren House, pa. within the bor. of Ipswich (q.v.), S. Suff.; ac. 50.

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Warmley	Warmley	123	2170
Warmsworth	Sprotbrough (½)	158	390
Warmwell	Moreton (3)	129	183
Warnborough, South	Hook (4)	42	307
Warndon	Worcester (2½)	120	154
Warnford	Bishops Waltham (7)	81	255
Warnham	Warnham	37	1060
Warningcamp	Arundel (2)	58	159
Warpsgrove	Thame (8)	48	26
Warren (1)	Pembroke (5)	372	126
Warren House	Ipswich	69	22

Warrenpoint, pa. and seaport to., Upper Iveagh bar., S.W. co. Down, Ir., 5 S.E. of Newry; ac. 593. A castle was built near this place in 1212, by Hugh de Lacy, to protect the ferry across the channel, where it narrows, from which it was called Narrow Water Castle; it was destroyed in the war of 1641, and was rebuilt by the Duke of Ormond in 1663. The site of the present to. was a rabbit warren, whence it is said to have derived its name, and in 1780 consisted of only two houses, with a few huts for the temporary residence of the fishermen during the oyster season; the to. now comprises several spacious streets, diverging from a square on the sea-side. The prospect from the Promenade is remarkably beautiful, embracing the whole bay of Carlingford, the Rosstrevor mountains, and the adjacent wood, together with the entire vale, diversified with beautiful plantations and elegant seats. On passing through the to. towards the shore the prospect becomes still more interesting the bay expanding and forming a noble basin, where many ships may ride in perfect safety, bounded on the right and left by lofty mountains. Large vessels trading to Newry are obliged to lie here, where there is deep water, good anchorage, and perfect shelter, as the further passage up the channel is intricate and perilous from the obstruction of rocks; and there is a good quay here, at which large vessels can load and discharge their cargoes. Goods are taken by railway to Newry, thence to Dublin and Glasgow, by which means large quantities of agricultural produce, cattle, poultry, eggs, and oysters are exported. The Protestant church is a building in E. Eng. style; the mother church is a mile distant. The Catholic church here is a large building with a handsome tower; the Presbyterians, Unitarians, and Wesleyans have places of worship. The Town Hall, erected in 1887, is a handsome building in Doric style. The extensive ruins of Nun's Island are near the ferry at Narrow Water; they are conjectured by some to be the remains of a religious establishment, and by others the ruins of de Lacy's castle. Fairs are held on the last Friday in every month.

Warren Point, headland on the north shore of Lough Foyle, near its mouth, N.E. co. Don., Ir., about 3 N.E. of Moville.

Warrenstown, bar., N.E. K. Co., Ir.; ac. 21,462. It is bounded on the north and east by co. Meath, on the south by Coolestown bar., and on the west by Lower Philipstown bar. The Grand Canal passes through.

Warren, The (1), tract of sand and marsh on the west side of the mouth of the Exe, E. Dev., 2 N.E. of Dawlish. Although it is in some places saturated with sea-water, the W. is found suitable for rifle practice. From it extends a bar covered with water.

Warren, The (2), tract of heath near the Needles, W. I. of W., 4 W.S.W. of Yarmouth. The W. is situated between Totland Bay and Alum Bay, extending to Headon Point.

Warren, The (3), tract of sand on the sea coast, pas. of Malahide and Portmarnock (q.v.), N.E. co. Dub., Ir., 4 E.S.E. of Swords. The sea-reed or bent and Carex arenaria grow here luxuriantly. Rob's Wall or Robuck's Wall, a small fortress situated on a rock close to the shore, was built about the end of the 15th cent. by MacRoback, a descendant of Robuck de Birmingham.

Warrington (1), parl. and mun. bor. (extending into Chesh.), pa. and tp., mkt. to., head of U. Co. Co. dis., and petty sess. div., on the Mersey, S.W. Lancs., 21 E. of Liverpool; ac. of pa. 12,950, of tp. 2,887 and 76 water; soil loamy and fertile, with rich meadows on the banks of the Mersey. The church of St. Elphin occupies the site of a structure erected in the 12th cent.; between the 14th and 15th cents. this was taken down and a cruciform Dec. building erected. In 1824 a small door opening to a crypt was discovered on the left side of the chancel, and on the steps was found a richly embroidered chasuble; this vestment was ultimately given to the Catholic priest of St. Alban's, Warrington, and is now part of the furniture of that chapel. The church has been restored and enlarged; it is now a building in the Dec. style, consisting of chancel with the Boteler and Masey or Patten chapels. During the restoration sedilia and a piscina were discovered and restored, and there is also an Easter sepulchre on the north side of the chancel. Outside, at the east end, are still visible many indentations of cannon balls fired by Cromwell from the battery at the mount, when the inhabitants took refuge in the church. In the north aisle or Bewsey chapel is an altar-tomb of alabaster to Sir John Boteler, Kt., who was murdered at Bewsey in 1643, and his wife, with life-size effigies of both. In the Wilson-Patten chapel is an altar-tomb to Anna Maria, wife of John Wilson-Patten, Esq., M.P. (d. 1846); there are also various modern mural monuments and brasses to this family. W. has also eccl. pas. with modern churches, Catholic churches, and places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The Grammar School was founded in 1526, and the Bluecoat School in 1665; in the to. are also the Clergy Daughters' School and a training college for National-school mistresses. The Town Hall, in Sankey Street, was a seat formerly known as Bank Hall; it was purchased by the Corporation in 1872, and the grounds (18½ ac.) in which the hall stands have been thrown open to the public as a park; the building was erected in 1750, and is a substantially built mansion in Classic style, commanding an extensive view over one of the most beautiful districts in Cheshire. The Museum and Free Library, a plain two-storeyed building of brick and stone, stands at the corner of Bold and Museum Streets; the basis of the collections was formed by the transfer to the to. of the museum belonging to the Natural History Society and the books of the to. library, founded in 1760. Several local scientific societies hold their meetings in this building, which is also the headquarters of the Municipal Technical Institute. Other public buildings are the Bridewell (where is a sessions-room), the Gymnasium, the Baths, the political and social clubhouses, an infirmary, a hospital for infectious diseases, and the Market Hall, a covered building

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Warrenpoint, pa.	Warrenpoint	83	2059
Warrenpoint, to.	Warrenpoint	83	1970
Warrenstown	.....	.....	1847
Warrington(1), pl. br.	Warrington	182	55349
Warrington(1), m. br.	Warrington	182	[illegible]
Warrington (1), pa.	Warrington	182	[illegible]
Warrington (1), tp.	Warrington	182	[illegible]

near the centre of the to. The principal market-day for butter, eggs, vegetables, and agricultural produce is Wednesday, a corn market is held on the same day, and Saturday may also be considered a market-day. Fairs are held on July 18 and Nov. 30 for horses, and for cattle and sheep on the days respectively preceding. W. has various industries, which consist to a considerable extent of wire-drawing, the manufacture of iron in bar, hoop, and wire-rod, as well as of Lancashire tools and files, cut glass, glass bottles, soap, borax, etc. There are large and extensive forges, iron foundries, breweries, maltings, chemical and wire-weaving works, and cotton mills. Fustian-cutting gives employment to several hundreds of persons, chiefly females. W. and its vicinity is the centre of the Northern tanning trade for heavy sole leather; within a radius of a few miles there are tanneries using on an average from 8,000 to 10,000 hides per week; a great part of the leather used in the boots and shoes manufactured for the army and police is made in this neighbourhood, and great quantities of leather suitable for belts for driving machinery are made here; and the waste from the tanyards is worked up into glue, size, etc. Here was a house of Augustinian friars founded before 1379 and dissolved by Henry VIII.; the memory of the building is still preserved in the names of Friars' Gate and Friars' Green. In 1886 the site of the church was discovered, when the tile pavement of the choir and a number of carved stones were removed and placed in the museum. A good specimen of a room of the 13th cent. may still be seen in Fennel Street, and there are several black and white timbered houses of the 17th cent. Arthur Aikin, eldest son of John Aikin, M.D., and for twenty-three years secretary of the Society of Arts, was born here (1773); his father was the only son of the Rev. John Aikin, for many years tutor in divinity at the famous Dissenting academy here. William Enfield, LL.D., author of "The Speaker"; Joseph Priestley, LL.D., F.R.S.; John Reinhold Forster, LL.D., naturalist; John Taylor, D.D., author of a Hebrew and English Concordance; and the Rev. Gilbert Wakefield, B.A., editor of "Virgil and Lucretius," were all tutors at the W. academy.

Warrington (2), tp., pa. of and 1½ N. from Olney (q.v.), N. Bucks.; ac. 1,008.

Warriston, north suburb of Edinburgh, N. Edins., Sc. W. Cemetery, on the north-east side of the Botanic Gardens, was opened in 1844; it is laid out in walks and terraces, and commands a fine prospect of the metropolis; here are buried the poet, Alexander Smith (d. 1867), and the physician, Sir James Young Simpson (d. 1870).

Warsall. [WARSILL.]

Warsash, ha., pa. of Titchfield (q.v.), S. Hants, 5 W. of Fareham. There is a Congregational chapel. W. House is a seat.

Warsill, or Warsall, tp., pa. of Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 E. of Pateley Bridge; ac. 1,029.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Warrington (2)	Olney (1½)	60	69
Warsill	Pateley Bridge (4)	217	56
Warslow, eccl. pa.	Leek (8)	157	588
Warslow, tp.	Leek (8)	157	503
Warsop, pa.	Mansfield (5)	141	1510
Warsop, tp.	Mansfield (5)	141	1467
Warter	Pocklington (4½)	198	578

Warslow, eccl. pa., tp. (Warslow and Elkstone), and vil., pa. of Alstonefield (q.v.), N.E. Staffs., 8 N.E. of Leek. The church of St. Lawrence (rebuilt 1820) is a plain stone building. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. A charity of £1 yearly is for poor widows. W. Hall is a seat.

Warslow and Elkstone. [WARSLOW.]

Warsop, pa., tp., and small to. on the Meden, W. Notts., 5 N.E. of Mansfield; ac. of pa. 7,174, of tp. 6,183; soil sand and limestone, subsoil loamy. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1878) is principally Norm.; the chancel has piscina and sedilia of the Dec. period. The Wesleyans and Reformed Methodists have chapels. There are limestone quarries, gravel pits, and a colliery. There is now no market, and the fairs have also fallen into disuse. The charities for distribution amount to about £128 a year. Park Hall, a fine stone mansion on an eminence, and surrounded by gardens and a well-wooded park, is a seat; the Hall contains a fine collection of old china and curiosities.

Warter, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 4½ E. of Pocklington; ac. 7,875; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. James (rebuilt 1862) is in Gothic style. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and in the vil. are several springs. Here was once an Augustinian priory. W. Priory is a seat.

Warthall, ha., pa. of Plumbland (q.v.), W. Cumb., 5 N. of Cockermouth.

Warthill, pa. and small vil., N.R. Yorks., about 5 N.E. of York; ac. 1,004; soil sandy, overlying sand. The church of St. Mary is in E. Eng. style. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Brockfield House, in a spacious park about 1 W. of the vil., is a seat.

Warthill Copyhold, tp., pa. of Warthill (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 5 N.E. of York; ac. 623.

Warthill Freehold, tp., pa. of Warthill (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 5 N.E. of York; ac. 381.

Wartling, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 4½ N. of Pevensey; ac. 3,312; soil loam, overlying sand. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is E. Eng. Windmill Hill Place is a seat.

Wartnaby, tp., pa. of Rothley (q.v.), E. Leics., 1½ N.E. of Grimston; ac. 749. W. Hall is a seat.

Warton (1), pa., tp. (Warton-with-Lindeth), and vil. on the Keer, N. Lancs., 1 N. of Carnforth; ac. of pa. 11,100, of tp. 2,824; soil gravelly, overlying gravel and rock limestone. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1893) is E. Eng. and Dec., and has a chantry chapel at the east end of the south aisle containing sedilia; there is a very perfect Saxon or E. Norm. font and a 17th-cent. brass. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. On W. Crag are the remains of two ramparts of Roman origin. There is a charity of £169 yearly for apprenticing poor boys. On the Crag is found a superior kind of iron ore used for the manufacture of paint. Hyning Hall is a seat.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Warthill	Warthill	194	138
Warthill Copyhold	Warthill	194	138
Warthill Freehold	Warthill	194	33
Wartling	Pevensey (4)	60	563
Wartnaby	Asfordby (3)	108	103
Warton (1), pa.	Carnforth (1)	236	5702
Warton (1), tp.	Carnforth (1)	236	1384

Warton (2), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Kirkham (q.v.), W. Lancs., 3 N.E. of Lytham; ac. 2,540. The church of St. Paul (1885) is in E. Eng. style. W. Hall is a seat.

Warton (3), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Polesworth (q.v.), N. Warws. The church of Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style. There is a Baptist chapel.

Warton (4), tp., pa. of and 3½ N.W. from Rothbury (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 628.

Warton-with-Lindeth. [WARTON (1).]

Warwick (1), mun. and parl. (W. and Leamington), bor., U., mkt., assize, and co. to., and head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., Mid Warws., 21 S.E. of Birmingham, and closely adjoining Leamington. That this place, called in Domesday "Warewic," and by Hoveden "Wyrengwyke," is one of high antiquity, all authorities agree, but as to its foundation and the origin of the name opinions differ. The actual history of W. may be said to begin with the erection of the Castle or dungeon of Ethelfiede. In the reign of Ethelred W., together with a great part of the co., was devastated by Canute. In 1312 Piers Gaveston, Earl of Cornwall, the favourite of Edward II., captured in the Castle of Scarborough, was brought hither and lawlessly executed by the barons on Blacklow Hill, about a mile from the to. The Black Book of Warwick contains accounts of the visit of Queen Elizabeth to W. and Kenilworth in August, 1572. In 1617 James I. visited the to., and in 1695 William III. came to W. and was entertained by Lord Brooke at the Castle. The mun. bor. includes the pas. of W. St. Mary, W. St. Nicholas, and Guy's Cliff, with a total ac. of 5,512. W. Castle, on the south-east of the to., and built upon a rock washed by the river Avon, is a baronial residence of high antiquity, still maintained and inhabited by the hereditary descendants of the ancient line of Beauchamp. Its foundation is attributed to Ethelfleda, daughter of King Alfred; at the Conquest it was held by Turchil, the Saxon, as lieutenant of the King of Mercia, who enlarged its fortifications under the Conqueror's direction. In 1264 the rebellious barons, then holding Kenilworth, surprised and partly dismantled it. The great tower at the north-east corner, called Guy's Tower, was erected in 1394; but it is to Sir Fulke Greville, afterwards Lord Brooke, that we are indebted for the restoration of this historic pile; he received a grant of the castle from James I. at a time when much of the building had fallen into decay, only the strongest portions being made use of as a county gaol; and by expending on it the enormous sum, for that time, of £20,000, made it "the most princely seat within these midland parts of the realm." During the Civil War in August, 1642, it was unsuccessfully attacked by the Royalists, an event which closes its military history. On Dec. 3, 1871, the whole of the private apartments, together with the grand hall, and its interesting and valuable contents, were destroyed by fire; the damage to the structure has been repaired, but many valuable works of art were irretrievably lost. In the western wing, untouched by the fire, are the state rooms, the chapel, and the collections of sculpture, pictures, armour, and other curiosities. The famous Warwick vase, discovered in 1774 at the bottom of a lake near the Emperor Hadrian's villa at Tivoli, is in the conservatory, and in the porter's lodge are the imposing relics of the legendary Guy of Warwick. The castle is open by ticket to visitors every week day. The church of St. Mary is an ancient foundation, and in the reign of Henry I. was made collegiate. In 1694 the to. was visited by a terrible fire, by which most of the church was destroyed, and the rebuilding was completed in 1704, and the exterior was restored in 1884; the church now consists of a western tower, nave, with aisles, north and south transepts and choir; north of the chancel is the vestry and a spacious porch, and adjoining these northwards the chapter-house, while south of the chancel is the magnificent Chapel of Our Lady, or the Beauchamp chapel; above the vestry and lobby is a long room, occupying the entire space, and beneath the vestry and continued under the choir a vaulted chamber or crypt (which contains a portion of an ancient ducking-stool, used for the punishment of female offenders); on the south side of the choir are four sedilia, and eastward of these a piscina, under recessed canopies. Of the monuments still existing, the earliest and most important is that of the first Thomas Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and his countess (both d. 1369), in the choir, consisting of a high tomb, surrounded with niches containing figures, 36 in number, and bearing the recumbent effigies of the Earl and his wife; the incised brass effigies of the second Thomas Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick (d. 1401), and of Margaret his wife (d. 1406). In the centre of the chapter-house is the monument of Fulk Greville, first Lord Brooke (d. 1628), erected by himself during his lifetime. The Chapel of Our Lady, or the Beauchamp chapel, was completed in 1464, when the body of the founder, Henry Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, was removed from Rouen (where he died in 1439), and placed in the tomb prepared for it. There are also several monuments to the WARWICK CASTLE, FROM THE AVON.

(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warton (2), eccl. pa.	Kirkham (3)	217	516
Warton (2), tp.	Kirkham (3)	217	414
Warton (3)	Polesworth (1½)	106	550
Warton (4)	Rothbury (3½)	312	[illegible]
Warwick (1), parl. b.	Warwick	98	[illegible]
Warwick (1), mun. b.	Warwick	98	13905

Dudleys. The church of St. Nicholas was rebuilt in 1779–80 on the site of an older church. There are also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The Grammar School is a very ancient foundation, which can be traced back to the reign of Edward the Confessor. In 1875 it was reconstituted, and a handsome block of school buildings was then erected. Other public buildings comprise the Shire Hall, in Northgate Street, the Free Public Library (1866), and Her Majesty's Prison (1860). The most important industry is the manufacture of gelatine and isinglass; there are also ironworks, a brewery, and some brick-fields. The market day is Saturday. Fairs are held on Oct. 12 and the Monday before St. Thomas's Day, and there are frequent stock sales. Races are held in February, April, September, and November, and are much frequented. Leycester's Hospital and chapel, a very interesting example of the half-timbered domestic style, at the western extremity of the High Street, was originally the hall or mansion of the united Guilds of Holy Trinity and St. George, which, being acquired by Robert Dudley, Earl of Leycester, was by him, in 1571, converted into an hospital for a master and twelve impotent persons. By direction of their founder the members are habited, whenever they appear in public, in a gown of blue, with his cognisance of the bear and ragged staff upon the left arm. Each brother now receives £70, and it is intended eventually to increase the number of recipients to twenty-two. The charities are numerous and valuable, and are applied in various ways for the benefit of the to. The Hospital of St. Michael, founded about the end of Henry I.'s reign, was situated at the lower end of Saltisford Street, and in Dugdale's time lodged eight poor women, maintained from the revenues of the Priory lands. The Hospital of St. John the Baptist, founded about 1175 as a monastery for the reception, relief, and entertainment of pilgrims and strangers, was occupied by the Templars, and afterwards by the Knights of St. John; the site, a little distance outside the eastern gate of the to., is now occupied by a picturesque stone mansion of the Elizabethan period; the interior is adorned with a fine oak Tudor staircase, and has a large room containing some very interesting tapestry, etc., of ancient date; there is a subterranean passage leading to the priory. The hospital is open to visitors daily on payment of a small fee. In the western suburb stood the monastic house of the Dominican Friars, founded in the time of Henry III. The ancient entrances to the to., called the East and West Gates, at the opposite extremities of the main street, still remain, and are in good repair. The Priory of St. Sepulchre, founded 1124, on the site of an ancient church, at the Dissolution was made a mansion, and has been restored within recent years. It contains a great hall, a noble dining-room, a finely carved oak staircase, and some old heraldic glass.

Warwick (2), pa. and vil. on the Eden (here crossed by a handsome bridge of three arches), N. Cumb., 4 E. of Carlisle; ac. 1,815; soil principally sand and loam. The church of St. Leonard, anciently known as Warthewick chapel, has E. Norm. remains. It was given in 1088 by Ranulph du Meschines to the abbey of St. Mary at York; but after the Dissolution it was granted by Henry VIII. to the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Near the foot of an eminence named W. Knowe are the remains of extensive earthworks. W. Hall, standing in a park of about 200 ac., is a seat. Here Prince Charles Edward is said to have been entertained previous to his march on Carlisle.

Warwick and Leamington. [WARWICK (1).]

Warwick Bridge, vil., pa. of Wetheral (q.v.), N. Cumb., 5 E. of Carlisle. The church of St. Paul is in E. Norm. style. There is a Catholic church and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. Holme Eden is a seat.

Warwick St. Mary. [WARWICK (1).]

Warwick St. Nicholas. [WARWICK (1).]

Warwickshire, one of the midland cos. of England, of irregular contour, bounded on the north by Staffs. and Derbys., on the north-east by Leics., on the south-east by Northants and Oxon., on the south-west by Glouces., and on the west by Worcs.; ac. 566,271; the length from north to south is 50 miles, with a breadth of 33 miles. More than half of the inhabitants are within the bor. of Birmingham. In British times this co. was on the borders of the Cornubii, Coritani and Dobuni, three tribes, afterwards reduced by the Romans, and included in the province of Flavia Cæsariensis; it was skirted by Watling Street on the north-east, and crossed by the Fossway. The Ryknield, often called Icknield Way, skirts the shire on the west. Among the Roman stations were Tripontium, in Watling Street, at Don Bridge, where there are some remains; Venonæ, at High Cross, at the intersection of Watling Street and the Fossway; Manduessedum, now Mancetter, on Watling Street, where there are remains; Alauna, now Alcester, on Icknield Street, where coins have been found. Birmingham seems to have been a small Roman station, as was Coventry. Part of the co. seems to have been included in the kingdom of the Hwiccas; but the whole was dependent on the Middle English or Mercians, who were ruled over by the regal and sacred house of Woden. In King Alfred's time the kingdom of the Mid English came finally under the complete power of the Britwald, after which it was generally ruled by one of the great aldermen. The co. was, during the 10th and 11th cents., devastated by the Danes, who settled themselves in some of the large tos. Early Saxon remains have been discovered on the banks of the Avon, near Warwick. In the Parliamentary wars the battle of Edge Hill, in which the Royalists were defeated, was fought in this co. Part of the co. is watered by feeders of the Trent, but the greater part belongs to the basin of the Avon, which is the only navigable stream; there are, however, several canals, which give access to the Trent, the Mersey, the Thames and the Severn, and the greater part of the shire is intersected by them. The chief roads are the Shrewsbury and Holyhead, the Banbury and Birmingham, and the Oxford and Birmingham. The railways form a close network, from the London and North Western, Great Western and Midland lines coming to

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Warwick (2)	Wetheral (2)	327	269
Warwick St. Mary	Warwick	98	6137

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
WarwickSt. Nicholas	Warwick	98	5766
Warwickshire	.....	.....	806072

Birmingham, and thus opening up communications with all parts of the country. The surface of the shire is gently undulated, and without any important hills; the chief ranges are branches of the Cotswold and Edge Hill. The mineral productions are coal, iron-ore, fire-clay, pyrites. North W. is chiefly remarkable for its manufactures, seated at Birmingham and Coventry. South W. mostly depends on its husbandry; the climate being mild and healthy and the soil good, the harvests are generally forward. The chief soils are the red loam, sandy loam and clay. The co. is well provided with lime. The produce is wheat, oats, barley, beans, turnips, clover, potatoes and the usual crops. There is some good pasture, and much market garden, also orchards and fair woodlands; the Wyken pippin, a delicious eating apple, was first grown at Wyken, near Coventry. There is no peculiar breed of cattle, the old W. sheep having become extinct. The mun. bors. are Birmingham, Coventry, Leamington, Stratford-on-Avon, Sutton Coldfield, and Warwick; other tos. are—Alcester, Atherstone, Chilvers Coton, Coleshill, Foleshill, Henley-in-Arden, Kington or Kineton, Nuneaton, Rugby, Solihull, and Southam. For parliamentary purposes W. has four divs.—Nuneaton, Rugby, Stratford-on-Avon, and Tamworth. The carboniferous formation is the oldest in the co., and occupies the surface over a comparatively small area east and south-east of Tamworth; and Shuttington, Kingsbury, and Baddesley Ensor are respectively near the boundary line to the north and south. From these points a long narrow strip extends past Atherstone, Stockingford, Nuneaton, and Bedworth, which marks the north-eastern edge of a basin, the remainder of which is concealed by beds of Permian age, which cover it up to the south and west; a patch, however, peeps out near Arley, having been brought up by a fault. The millstone grit forms a high ridge between Nuneaton and Atherstone; it is traversed by intrusive beds of a volcanic rock, termed greenstone; these have so heated the grit that it is changed into a hard quartz rock. It is extensively quarried for road metal, and at one time was worked for manganese. These beds are overlaid by the Coal Measures, of which there is a tolerably complete series, although the total thickness of the beds, some 3,000 ft., is much less than in the great northern and western districts. At the base are about 1,500 ft. of reddish shales, containing no coal seams, and, like the millstone grit, traversed by dykes of intrusive greenstone. Above these is about an equal thickness of shales, clays, and sandstones, containing five workable seams of coal, having an aggregate thickness of from 26 ft. to 30 ft. Lastly, at the top are sandstones and shales, with a bed of limestone at their base, called erroneously the "fresh water limestone." Considering that this coal-field is the nearest to London, it is rather surprising that it has not been more energetically worked, but the future will doubtless see the annual output largely increased. The Permian Formation covers the Coal Measures from Baddesley Ensor on the north to within two miles of Warwick and Leamington on the south, there occur beds of red, brown, and purple sandstones, red marl, with here and there a bed of calcareous breccia or conglomerate. The total thickness of these beds is about 2,000 ft., and good sections are exposed in the large quarry near Kenilworth. The Trias wraps all around the region hitherto described, and consists of a considerable thickness of red and mottled marls, with here and there bands of sandstone, and pebble beds near the base; they form the high ground between Birmingham and Lichfield, and also crop out near Polesworth. On the west the Triassic beds occupy all the ground between the Warws. and S. Staffs. coal-fields, from each of which they are cut off by faults, this central region, in which Birmingham, Coleshill, and Sutton Coldfield are the principal tos., being let down as it were between the two. Thus, though it is likely enough that coal may exist beneath this part, yet it probably lies at such a depth (from 3,000 ft. to 5,000 ft.) as to prevent its being profitably worked. The Rhætic beds consist of black shales, above which are light and dark coloured clays, with nodular bands of limestone. These beds have been noted at Church Lench, near Evesham, at Wotton Park, near Alcester, and in the railway cuttings near Stratford-on-Avon. The upper div., sometimes called the White Lias, has been proved at Wilmcote and Binton, and in outliers at Wootton Wawen and at Copt Heath, near Knowle. The Lias runs in a broad band along the southern and eastern edge of the co. The Lower Lias is characterised by valuable beds of limestone noted for their property of setting under water. These are largely quarried at Stockton, Harbury, Wilmcote, Binton, Grafton, and at several places near Rugby. They are highly fossiliferous, containing the remains of insects, plants, fishes, and notably bones and even entire skeletons of gigantic saurians or lizard-like reptiles which inhabited the bays and estuaries of the Liassic sea. The Middle Lias caps Edge Hill, and is also present at Fenny Compton, and there are quarries on the Avon at Dassett hills, where it is got for building stone. The oolite occurs in the extreme south-west. Drift may be seen in the beds of sand, gravel, and clay scattered irregularly over the rock, and in the river gravels of the Avon, whence rhinoceros and mammoth remains have been obtained. Neolithic implements and weapons have been found, but no example of the Old Stone Age has as yet been met with.

Wasbister, ha., pa. of Rousay and Egilsbay (q.v.), N. Ork., Sc., in north of Rousay Island, 13 m. of Kirkwall. Here is a school.

Wasdale (1). [ESKDALE AND WASDALE.]

Wasdale, or Wast Dale, mountain valley, S.W. Cumb., extends from the foot of Styhead Pass 8½ m. by W. of Keswick, to the confluence of the Bleng and the Irt, 4½ m. by E. of Ravenglass. The valley consists of three portions, running W. by S., S.W., and again W. by S.; the first contains Wasdale Head, the second Wast Water, and the third Nether Wasdale. Its length is in all about 7½ miles. The scenery of Wasdale Head—engirt as it is by the steep and rugged precipices of Great Gable, Kirkfell, Lingwell, and other mountains which seem almost to overhang it—is extremely grand. The upper part of the valley was formerly celebrated for its red deer.

Wasdale Head, eccl. pa. at the head of Wast Water, pa. of St. Bees (q.v.), W. Cumb., 13 m. E. of Drigg. The church of St. Bega is said to be the second smallest church in England, measuring internally 36 ft. by 14 ft.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Dist. fr. Lon.	Dist. fr. Dub.
Wasdale Head	Irton Road (8)	291	75

Wasdale, Nether, eccl. pa. and tp. on the Irt, pa. of St. Bees (q.v.), W. Cumb., 7 S.E. of Ravenglass; ac. 8,273. The church (dedication unknown) is of mixed periods. The scenery in this neighbourhood is bold and of the most beautiful description. A sheep and pleasure fair takes place annually in September. Gale Syke and W. Hall are seats.

Wash. [GWASH.]

Washaway, vil., pa. of Egloshayle (q.v.), N.E. Cornw., 3 S.E. of Wadebridge.

Washbourne, ha., pa. of Halwell (q.v.), S. Dev., about 6½ N.E. of Kingsbridge.

Washbourne, Great, pa. and small vil., N. Glouc., 6 E. of Tewkesbury; ac. 470; soil good arable, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.

Washbourne, Little, tp., pa. of Overbury (q.v.), N. Glouc., 5 N.W. of Winchcomb; ac. 452. Here is a chapel-of-ease.

Washbrook, pa. and vil., S.E. Suff., 3½ S.W. of Ipswich; ac. 1,443; soil rich loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1886) is E. Eng.; it contains some ancient carved stone stalls. There is a small Baptist chapel.

Washburn, river, W.R. Yorks., rises on the Moors, 4 W.S.W. of Pateley Bridge, and runs S.E. to Fewston, and thence S.S.E. to the Wharfe, which it joins after passing Leathley, 1½ W. by N. of the to. of Otley. Its length is about 12 miles.

Washfield, pa. and vil. on the Exe, N.E. Dev., 2½ N.W. of Tiverton; ac. 3,319; soil light, overlying partly clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1874) is Perp., and contains a Norm. font and a richly carved Jacobean screen; there are 17th-cent. brasses and monuments. Easterlands and Worth House are seats.

Washford, ha. with railway station, pa. of Old Cleeve (q.v.), W. Somerset, 4 S.E. of Watchet. There is a Wesleyan chapel. In this ha. are the fine remains of the Cistercian abbey of St. Mary (founded 1188). The buildings comprised the conventual church, the cloisters, and the common hall; over these was the dormitory. The south side of the cloister consists of various apartments, above which is the refectory. The west side includes a buttressed structure of two storeys and the alley on this side, with four flat-arched openings, two of which retain a part of their Perp. tracery; the buttresses dividing these are standing, and there are existing carols; a modern roof covers this portion. The common hall is vaulted, and has at the east end two elegant E. Eng. windows. The most interesting and beautiful existing feature is the refectory, retaining a mural painting of the Crucifixion and an exquisitely carved roof lighted by Perp. windows. There are traces of the fireplace and pulpit at the east end of the south wall, and on the exterior north wall are remains of a gabled bell-cote. In the lower storey was the lavatory, and adjoining it an E. Eng. doorway. Of the church, the principal portions still extant are the south wall of the nave, south transept, and part of the east end of the presbytery. The great gatehouse, standing to the north-west of the monastery, is a singular but elegant gabled structure of two storeys (probably 13th cent.); the north front exhibits a fine, lofty arch; the upper floor is lighted by a mullioned window; the internal front has a similar arch. The abbey precincts extended over an area of several acres, and were enclosed on the north and west and partly on the south by walls engaged with the gatehouse, and on the east and some part of the south by a deep moat, over which, on the south-east, there is a ford. The last abbot succeeded in 1510.

Washford Pyne, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 9 N.W. of Crediton; ac. 1,140; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1883) is in Dec. style.

Washingborough, pa., tp., and large vil. on the south bank of the Witham, Mid Lincs., 4 E. of Lincoln; ac. of pa. 5,190, of tp. 1,985; soil loamy, overlying limestone. The church of St. John the Evangelist (restored 1859) is partly Norm.; the font is a fine example of Norm. work. Here is a Free Methodist chapel. The poor have about £120 a year for distribution, and a similar sum for apprenticing boys; there are other charitable donations, amounting to about £10, which are distributed in bread.

Washingley, pa., N. Hunts., 7 S. of Peterborough; ac. 1,260; soil stiff clay, overlying clay. There is no church. W. Hall, a plain building situated in a park, is a seat.

Washington (1), pa., tp., and vil. near the Wear, N.E. Dur., 7 W. of Sunderland; ac. of pa. 4,027, of tp. 1,973; soil various, overlying mixed loam and sand. The church of the Holy Trinity (rebuilt 1833) is in E. Eng. style. There are Catholic and Wesleyan chapels. There are some small charities. W. has ironworks, an extensive colliery and chemical works, and a bathbrick manufactory.

Washington (2), pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 7 N. of Worthing; ac. 3,172; soil and subsoil sand and clay. The church of St. Mary, formerly Norm. and E. Eng. date, was rebuilt (with the exception of the tower) in 1867; the Late Norm. arcades remain; in the tower is a monument (with kneeling figures) to John Byrne (d. 1600) and his family. On Chancton Farm, in this pa., in 1806, a crock of ancient coins was discovered, consisting of no less than 3,000 pennies, drawn from upwards of fifty mints, including Chichester, Hastings, Lewes, and Steyning, and belonging to the reigns of Edward the Confessor and Harold II. Highden and Rowdell House, pleasant mansions situated upon high ground, are seats.

Washington (3), vil., pa. of and 3¼ E.N.E. from Coupar Angus (q.v.), E. Perths., Sc., on Forfs. border.

Wash, The, estuary between S.E. Lincs. and N.W. Norf., 31 E.S.E. of Lincoln. The W. is formed by the Ouse and Nar, in Norf.; the Nen, between Norf. and Lincs.; and the Welland and Witham, in Lincs. It extends 22 miles in a north-east direction, and is 15 miles in breadth at its inner

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wasdale, Nether	Irton Road (3½)	291	156
Washbourne, Great	Ashchurch (4)	169	83
Washbourne, Little	Ashchurch (4)	169	16
Washbrook	Capel (2½)	65	337
Washfield	Tiverton (2½)	179	355
Washford Pyne	Eggesford (5)	194	141

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Washingborough, pa.	Washingborough	131	1254
Washingborough, tp.	Washingborough	131	611
Washingley	Holme (4½)	69	86
Washington (1), pa.	Washington	260	8427
Washington (1), tp.	Washington	260	3322
Washington (2)	Steyning (4½)	53	838

extremity, the shores inclining inwards as far as Hunstanton, where the breadth is 10 miles, beyond which it gradually widens, and, after 4½ miles, becomes merged in the North Sea. It has low, swampy shores, and is filled with sandbanks, dry at low water, between which are the channels of the rivers from which it is derived. They are very intricate, and vary in depth from 4 to 12 fathoms, the average depth of the estuary in general being about 5 fathoms. Operations begun in 1850 have resulted in the reclamation of large tracts of land on the banks of the Ouse on the west side of Lynn, formerly choked with mud and sand. By Ptolemy the W. is called Metaris. As King John was attempting to cross the estuary in 1216 all his valuables were carried away by a whirlpool, occasioned by the influx of theitide and the current of the Welland.

Washton, or Whashton, tp., pa. of and ½ S.E. from Kirkby Ravensworth (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.

Washwood Heath, ha., pa. of Aston (q.v.), N. Warws., 3 N. of Birmingham.

Wasing, pa., S. Berks., 10 S.W. of Reading; ac. 690; soil gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas (restored about 1876) is E. Eng. W. Place is a seat.

Waskerley, ha., pa. of and about 3 S. from Muggleswick (q.v.), N.W. Dur. Here is a goods station on the North-Eastern line, and the place is occupied to a great extent by railway workmen.

Wasperton, pa. on the Avon, S.W. Warws., 4 S.W. of Warwick; ac. 1,603; soil various, overlying clay, marl, and sand. The church of St. John the Baptist, anciently a chapel belonging to Hampton Lucy, was entirely rebuilt in E. Dec. style, and contains a rich wooden screen.

Wass, formerly a tp., pa. of Coxwold (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., now known as Byland-with-Wass (q.v.).

Wassand. [SEATON AND WASSAND.]

Wast Dale. [WASDALE.]

Wast Water, lake, S.W. Cumb., 10 S.S.W. of Keswick. The lake extends 3 miles N.E. and S.W., and has an average and almost uniform breadth of

HEAD OF WAST WATER AND GREAT GABLE.
(Photo. Green Bros., Grasmere.)

½ mile; it lies 204 ft. above the sea and is 270 ft. in depth, being the deepest lake in England. On its south-east side is the ridge called the Screes (q.v.), the surface of which is continually crumbling away and falling in great masses into the lake below. The shores of the lake are very scantily wooded, excepting at its southern extremity, but its bleak and desolate scenery is full of wild grandeur, especially at its head, where Great Gable, Kirkfell, Lingmell, Scafell, and other lofty mountains, rise precipitously above the bare valleys. Trout are abundant, and there are some char.

Watchet, small seaport to. on the Bristol Channel, pa. of St. Decuman's (q.v.), W. Somerset, about 18 N.W. of Taunton. The tidal harbour has an area of about 10 ac., and is well sheltered from all winds, being protected on the west by the old pier and new breakwater, and on the north-east by a pier which also forms a convenient pier for steamers and vessels. The harbour thus enclosed is lined with substantial quay walls and a landing slip; in its fine seaward approaches, the depth of water at its entrance, and its direct railway communication with the interior, W. harbour possesses advantages beyond any other small port on the Bristol Channel. Here is a lifeboat station-house, erected in 1875 at the cost of the Royal Lifeboat Institution, and a lifeboat has been presented. The cliffs east and west of the harbour are of blood-red conglomerate, intersected by bands of light-green limestone; toward Cleeve Bay, commonly called Blue Anchor, there is an abundance of alabaster, which is at times worked. A considerable trade is carried on in flour, meal, malt, coal, timber, and cement. An iron foundry and paper mills employ a number of hands. There is a recreation-ground near the cliffs.

Watchfield, chap., tp., and vil. on the Cole, pa. of Shrivenham (q.v.), N.W. Berks., 4½ S.W. of Faringdon; ac. 1,517. The church of St. Thomas was built 1858, in E. Eng. and Dec. styles. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Watch Gate, ha., pa. of Selside-with-Whitwell (q.v.), S. Westmd., 5 N. of Kendal.

Watch Hill, eminence on Bryher, one of the Scilly Isles.

Watchlaw Hill, eminence, N. Northumb., 2 N.E. of Ford. It commands a fine view.

Watcombe, coast ha., pa. of St. Mary Church (q.v.), S. Dev., about 2½ N. of Torquay. It abounds with the most delightfully picturesque scenery, and is a celebrated resort for picnic parties during the summer season. A valuable bed of terra-cotta clay is worked by a company, who have erected extensive works; they have a show-room here.

Watcombe Bay, bay near the Needles, I. of W., S. Hants, 2½ S. of Yarmouth. There are caves in the cliffs, which here rise to 490 ft.

Watendlath, romantic mountain valley, S.W. Cumb., 5 S. of Keswick. The vil. of W. is situated in a remote spot on the east side of a tarn 847 ft. above the sea. Beyond the meadows skirting it rise wild and desolate mountains. The tarn sends off a small stream—W. Beck—which runs 2 S.S.W. forming the famous Lodore Falls, just before it enters Derwent Water.

Waterbarn, ha., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., near Bacup.

Waterbeach, pa. and large vil. on the Cam, W.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Washton	Richmond (5)	237	134
Wasing	Aldermaston (2)	45	87
Wasperton	Warwick (4)	98	225

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Watchfield	Shrivenham (1)	72	354
Waterbeach	Waterbeach	61	136

Cambs., 5½ N.E. of Cambridge; ac. 556; the land in this neighbourhood is very fertile, and there are large market-garden grounds. The church of St. John the Evangelist (restored 1878) is E. Eng. with Perp. insertions. The mission church of St. Andrew is at the extreme end of the pa. Here is a Baptist chapel, of which the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon was for some years minister; there are also Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to £137 yearly. About 2 N.W. are the remains of the ancient abbey of Denny (Daneia), originally built in 1160 by Robert, chamberlain to the Duke of Bretagne, as a cell of Ely, but refounded in 1342 by Agnes, Countess of Pembroke, for nuns of the order of St. Clare, and dedicated to SS. James and Leonard; the refectory, of Norm. and Dec. work, remains.

Waterbeck, vil., pa. of Middlebie (q.v.), S.E. Dumfs., Sc., 7 E. by S. of Lockerbie. Here is a United Presbyterian church.

Water-Break-its-Neck, cascade, pa. of Llanfihangel Nant Melan, Mid Radnors., 2½ W. of New Radnor. The cascade, which has a fall of 70 ft., is situated on a rocky slope in a narrow ravine.

Watercombe, pa., S. Dors., 1 S. of Warmwell, to which it is attached for ecclesiastical purposes; ac. 378.

Water Crag, mountain (2,192 ft.), N.R.Yorks., close to the Westmd. border, 4½ N. of Muker. The face of the mountain is a bare undulating tract of moorland.

Watercrook, site of Roman station, S. Westmd., 2 S. of Kendal. W. has by some antiquaries been identified with Concangium. It covers about 8 ac. of ground formed by a curve in the river Kent, and resembles a horseshoe in shape. A memorial inscription has been discovered in the wall of a barn. The other antiquities found here include a bath or hypocaust constructed of bricks with a coating of cement, a semicircular row of hollow chambers resembling ovens divided from one another by thin bricks, a decorated altar, urns, coins, and a large brass monument of Faustina.

Waterden, pa., N.W. Norf., 4 W. by S. of Walsingham; ac. 763; soil rich loam, subsoil chiefly gravel, with some marl. The church of All Saints is E. Eng.; the existing church, almost entirely concealed by trees, is, however, but a portion of an earlier structure, of which the arches of a south aisle and some remains of a tower can still be traced.

Water Eaton (1), tp. on the Cherwell, pa. of Kidlington (q.v.), S.W. Oxon., 4 N. of Oxford; ac. 1,500. The manor-house, built toward the end of the 16th cent., now a farmhouse, retains much of its old beauty; in 1644 it was the residence of Lord Lovelace (d. 1670); the chapel is Jacobean.

Water Eaton (2), tp. on the Ouzel, pa. of Bletchley (q.v.), E. Bucks., ½ S.W. of Fenny Stratford; ac. 943. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Water End, ha., pa. of North Mimms (q.v.), W. Herts., about 3 S. of Hatfield.

Waterfall, pa. and tp., N. Staffs., 8 S.E. of Leek; ac. of pa. 2,868, of tp. 1,018; soil light, overlying limestone. The church of St. James (rebuilt 1890) is Norm., and contains a fine Norm. arch (discovered in 1887) and a Jacobean screen; there is an ancient silver-gilt paten, bearing the symbol of the Lamb and Flag. The pa. takes its name from the curious phenomenon presented by the river Hamps, which, after flowing 8 miles from its source, disappears near the vil. of Waterhouses among the limestone rocks, whence it runs underground in the neighbourhood of Ilam, and then again appears.

Waterfoot (1), eccl. pa., pas. of Bury and Rochdale (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 2½ S.W. of Bacup. The church of St. James (1865) is in E. Eng. style. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. In the neighbourhood are cotton mills and woollen manufactories. Springfield is a seat.

Waterfoot (2), harbour at mouth of Annan Water, pa. of and 1½ S. from Annan (q.v.), S.E. Dumfs., Sc.

Waterfoot (3), vil. on Red Bay, pa. of Layd (q.v.), N. co. Antr., Ir., 2 S. of Cushendall.

Waterford (1), ha., pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Bengeo (q.v.), E. Herts. The district church of St. Michael and All Angels (1872) is in Dec. style. W. House is a seat.

Waterford (2), a maritime co. of the province of Munster, Ir., lying on the shore of St. George's Channel, between the co. of Wexf. on the east and that of Cork on the west, having the cos. of Tip. and Kilk. on the north. Its extent from east to west is about 45 miles, and its breadth, at the narrowest part (from Tramore Bay to the river Suir, near Clonmel) is little more than 10 miles; while from Dungarvan Bay to the northern edge abutting on Tip., the breadth is nearly 30. The surface comprises 455,637 ac. and 5,915 water. There is only an ordinary coast-line stretching along the south boundary with but few breaks. The inlets after leaving Youghal Harbour are only Dungarvan Harbour and Tramore Bay and the entrance to W. Harbour. The north part of the western half has a broken chain of mountains, varying in height from 1,100 to 2,600 ft., the Knockmealdown range, and through the valley formed by the break in this range the Blackwater flows to Youghal Harbour; another double chain runs at a right angle to the north towards Clonmel; there are no inland loughs. The remainder of the co. is tolerably level, and the soil of the plains and the valleys is rich and fruitful. The occupations are chiefly pasturage and dairy-farming, but tillage is increasing. Large quantities of butter and bacon are exported. The geology exhibits no great variety, the whole co. being composed of clay-slate, sandstone, and some limestone. In the rocks north of Lismore, and some other parts, iron, copper, and lead ores are of frequent occurrence. There are copper mines at Knockmahon. In the neighbourhood of Cappoquin and Whitechurch are valuable quarries of marble. The fishery is a productive branch of industry, and the coast abounds with various shell-fish. Manufactures are inconsiderable, but the import and export trade through W. is very extensive. The principal rivers are the Suir, the Blackwater, and the Bride; they are all navigable streams, and of great importance to

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Watercombe	Dorchester (5)	135	63
Waterden	BurnhamMarket(4)	121	32
Water Eaton (1)	Woodstock Road(1)	69	161
Water Eaton (2)	Fenny Stratford (½)	48	241
Waterfall, pa.	Froghall (3)	153	453
Waterfall, tp.	Froghall (3)	153	354
Waterfoot (1)	Waterfoot	205	2988
Waterford (2)	.....	.....	98251

the districts through which they flow. The first falls into W. Harbour, the second into Youghal Bay, and the Bride is an important tributary to the Blackwater. In the bar. of Gaultiere are chalybeate springs; there is another at Clonmel, on the W. side of the Suir, and others between Dungarvan and Youghal. There are also some vitriolic spas at Modelligo and Cross. The climate is exceedingly variable, and the prevailing south and south-west winds by which the coast is assailed are at times extremely violent. In the more sheltered situations the climate is genial and healthful. The assizes are held at W., at which place are also held quarter sessions, and likewise at Dungarvan and Lismore. There are barrack stations at Dungarvan and W., this co. being included in the Cork military district. Prior to the Union, the co. sent two members to the Irish Parliament and two each for Dungarvan, Lismore and Tallow, and the city of W., but since, the members were two for the co. (one for each division—East and West W.), two for the city, and one for Dungarvan, but in 1885 Dungarvan was merged into the co. representation, and the city of W. lost one member. This co. confers the title of Marquess upon the family of Beresford, and Earl upon that of Talbot, Earls of Shrewsbury, hereditary great Seneschal of Ireland. The bar. of Decies, in this co., gives the title of Baron to a branch of the Beresford family. Ecclesiastically this co. is comprised in the Protestant province of Dublin, dioceses of Cloyne, Lismore, Ossory and Waterford, and in the Catholic province of Cashel and diocese of W. The Waterford and Limerick and the Waterford and Central Ireland and Kilkenny Junction Railways have terminal stations at W., but do not run through the co., though they skirt it on the north. The Waterford, Dungarvan and Lismore and Fermoy and Lismore Railway runs through the south centre of the co., starting from W., thence south-west to Kilmacthomas, to Dungarvan and on to Lismore, leaving the co. at Ballyduff. There is a short line running due south from W. to Tramore town.

Waterford (3), city, parl. and mun. bor., bishop's see, co. to., head of U. and petty sess. div., Middlethird bar., N.E. co. Waterf., Ir., about 12 s.w. of New Ross; ac. of mun. bor. 553, of parl. bor. 9,437. This city, seated on the south side of the Suir, which forms a junction with the Barrow, about 4 miles below, was originally built in 879, but destroyed in 981; it was much enlarged by Strongbow in 1171, and still more in the reign of Henry VII., who granted the citizens considerable privileges. In 1396 Richard II. landed and was crowned here, and in 1690 James II. embarked at this harbour for France, after his defeat by William III., who made it his residence for some time. At the extremity of the quay stands a massive round tower, which formed a portion of the city walls, and was built in the year 1003 by Reginald the Dane; in 1643 it was bombarded from the opposite side of the river by Cromwell, one of the cannon balls still remaining visible in its side near the summit, and in 1819 it was repaired and appropriated to the use of the police. The city extends principally along the margin of the river, having an elevation very little above high-water mark, except at the western extremity, where it occupies some eminences of considerable altitude, and at the eastern extremity there are some more gradual elevations. The houses, though frequently irregular, are many of them lofty and somewhat imposing. The streets, with the exception of some few that have been improved, are generally short, narrow and irregular. At the east end of the city is the Mall, from which a spacious street has been opened, forming the principal western entrance on the Cork road. Near the western extremity of the city, and connecting it with the suburb of Ferrybank, in co. Kilk., is a wooden bridge, opened 1794; it is 832 ft. in length and 40 ft. in width, and consists of stone abutments and 40 sets of piers of oak. John's river, which skirts the city on the east and south-east, is crossed by two ancient bridges and one more modern. On the Kilkenny bank of the Suir are some lofty hills, from which the city is seen to

WATERFORD, FROM THE NORTH BANK OF THE SUIR
(Photo. Poole and Co., Waterford.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Waterford(3), pl.bor.	Waterford	112	27713

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Waterford(3), m.bor.	Waterford	112	28[illegible]

dvantage. The first charter was granted by John n 1205, and W. first sent members to Parliament n 1374; after the Union it sent two members to he Imperial Parliament until 1885, when the umber was reduced to one. What is now the rotestant diocese of W. was founded about the los- of the 11th cent. and consolidated with ismore in 1363; in 1833 the two were united with ashel and Emly, forming the united dioceses of ashel and Emly, W. and Lismore. The Cathedral f the Blessed Trinity was originally built about 096. In 1773 this structure was demolished and he present church erected in the Italian style; the otal length is 170 ft.; some of the monuments rom the old cathedral are preserved, but the rest re said to have been buried under the altar. The ishop's palace, on the south side of the area in hich the cathedral stands, is a handsome stone uilding with a fine Doric portico. There are hree other churches, St. Patrick's, St. Olave's, and he Abbey church; the latter, on the opposite side f the river, has a tower, and faces the parade. V. is also the head of the Catholic diocese of W. nd Lismore. The cathedral of the Holy Trinity s a fine building with good internal decorations. here are six other places of worship for Catholics, ncluding one belonging to the Franciscans and ne belonging to the Dominicans. The Presby-erians, Baptists, Independents, Methodists, and Friends have each places of worship. St. John's ollege, erected by the Right Rev. Dr. Power early n the 19th cent. for the education of young men or the priesthood, is a spacious building of great rchitectural beauty. Among the other public uildings of the city are the Town Hall, Her Majesty's prisons for the city and co., the Chamber of Commerce, the Custom House, military barracks, nion workhouse, and the co. and city courthouse. The Custom House (1876) is a large and handsome tone building, and serves also as the post office, inland revenue office and income tax office. There re various benevolent and scientific institutions, nd hospitals and asylums for the indigent and ick. W., it may be said, enjoys privileges of this lass much above the average. There are several aluable institutions connected with the city, and iberally supported. The W. Institution was ounded in 1820; the members hold their meetings n the Chamber of Commerce, and have a library and reading-room. There exists a well-supported Literary and Scientific Society for the promotion of knowledge by means of lectures and essays, and during the session the latter are read and lectures delivered by the members. The Agricultural Society is liberally supported and has been of great benefit. W. has regular communication with the chief ports in the kingdom, and in addition to its local trade, which is considerable, exports large quantities of live stock and agricultural produce. The market days are Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs are held on the first Monday in each month, and also on May 4, June 24, and Oct. 25.

Waterford, East. [WATERFORD (2).]

Waterford Harbour, river and sea harbour between cos. Waterf., Kilk., and Wexf., Ir. The harbour comprises two portions, the upper part consisting of the channel of the Suir, the lower of the estuary formed by the confluence of the Suir and the Barrow. The Suir increases greatly in width a little above Waterford, the distance across it opposite that to. being 200 yds., thence it flows E.S.E. for about 3 miles, making a curve towards the north opposite the grounds of May Park. After flowing round Little Island it runs 3 N.N.E., joining the Barrow at Cheekpoint. The distance across the south side at Little Island is more than a mile, the channel on the north of the island being called the Ford, and that on the south-west and south-east side the King's Channel. At its mouth the breadth of the river is half a mile. The estuary of the Suir and Barrow extends 3 S. by E. from Cheekpoint to Passage (with a considerable curve towards the west), 5 S. from Passage to Creadan Head, and 5 S.S.W. from Creadan Head to Swines Head and Hook Head. The width opposite Passage is 800 yds., opposite Creadan Head 2 miles, and between Swines Head and Hook Head 4 miles. On the north side of the Suir are large shipbuilding yards. There are lighthouses at Black Head, Duncannon Fort, Dunmore and Hook Head. Since 1816 the Harbour has been under the management of twenty-four Commissioners appointed by the Corporation, the Chamber of Commerce, and the merchants of Clonmel. This body has carried out great improvements in connection with the construction and accommodation of the quays, and the Channel of the Suir has been straightened at great expense.

Waterford, West. [WATERFORD (2).]

Water Fryston. [FRYSTON, NEW.]

Water Fulford, tp., pa. of Fulford Ambo (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., forming part of the suburbs of York; ac. 436.

Watergall, pa., E. Warws., about 4 S. of Southam, on the road to Banbury; ac. 541.

Watergate Bay, inlet of the sea, W. coast of Cornwall, 8 S.S.W. of Padstow. The bay is 3½ miles wide at its mouth, its south-west extremity being formed by Towan Head; it extends about a mile inland; New Quay stands near the south-west end, on the shore of an inner portion of the bay, sometimes called Towan or New Quay Bay. There is a fine stretch of sand extending east from New Quay, backed by a romantic line of cliffs.

Watergore, ti., pa. of and ½ S. from South Petherton (q.v.), E. Somerset.

Watergrasshill, vil., pa. of Ardnageehy (q.v.), N.W. co. Cork, Ir., 10½ N.N.E. of Cork. The vil. is built on an exposed site between the Lee and Blackwater; it is said to occupy the highest ground in the co. Father Prout (d. 1830), the real person who suggested to the celebrated humourist Francis Sylvester Mahony (d. 1866) the pseudonym by which he is always known, was parish priest of W.

Waterhead (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., about 3 N.E. of Oldham. The church of Holy Trinity (1847) is in E. Eng. style, and was renovated in 1884.

Waterhead (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Lanercost (q.v.), N.E. Cumb., about 6 N.E. of Brampton, extending to the borders of Northumb., where the

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Waterford, East	.....	.....
Waterford, West	.....	.....
Water Fulford	York (2)	188	40
Watergall	Fenny Compton (2)	85	13
Watergrasshill	Cork (10½)	166	167
Waterhead (1)	Oldham Monks (1½)	189	6310
Waterhead (2)	Brampton Junc. (6)	317	248

Irthing separates the two cos.; ac. 4,577. In this tp. are the remains of the Roman station Amboglanna. The camp occupies a strong position on a lofty cliff overlooking the south bank of the Irthing. No remains of the north gateway now exist, but the double gateway on the south has two openings; the western gate, converted into a dwelling-house, retains its flagged pavement. Within the station the direction of the streets and the position of various buildings are clearly traceable. A sitting figure of the Dea Mater, statuettes, and Roman coins have been found. The Maiden Way (q.v.) runs through the station.

Waterhead (3), pl. at the head of Coniston Lake, pa. of and about 3½ S.W. from Hawkshead (q.v.), N. Lancs. Coniston Park is a seat.

Waterhead (4), ha., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., in tp. of Saddleworth.

Waterhead (5), ha., pa. of Aveton Gifford (q.v.), S. Dev., about 3 N.W. of Kingsbridge.

Waterhouses (1), eccl. pa. and colliery vil., pa. of Brancepeth (q.v.), S. Dur., 6 W. of Durham. The church of St. Paul dates from 1883. There are chapels for various bodies of Methodists. The Miners' Institute was opened in 1882, it has a library and reading room, and science and art classes are held.

Waterhouses (2), straggling vil., pas. of Cauldon and Waterfall (q.v.), N. Staffs., 1 S. of Waterfall. Fairs are held here on the Wednesday before Oct. 13 and Nov. 24.

Wateringbury, pa. and vil., Mid Kent, 5 S.W. of Maidstone, on the road to Tonbridge; ac. 1,466; soil principally rich loam, overlying rock. The neighbourhood abounds in hop gardens and fruit orchards. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1884) is chiefly E. Eng.; on the south side of the chancel is a Perp. niche, containing sedilia, and on the north a gorgeous Jacobean monument to the Style family. The churchyard is shaded with trees, and contains a remarkably fine yew. There are two extensive breweries. The charities amount to about £5 a year, distributed to the poor in bread.

Waterlip, ha., pa. of West Cranmore (q.v.), E. Somerset, about 3 E. of Shepton Mallet.

Waterloo (1), or Waterloo Ville, formerly extra-parochial, pa. and vil. (part of which is in the pa. of Farlington), S. Hants, 3 N. of Cosham; ac. 1,475; soil clayey, subsoil clay. The church of St. George (restored 1875) is a building of brick, rough cast, in mixed styles. There is a Baptist chapel, and the Brethren have a preaching room.

Waterloo (2), vil., pa. of Kirkheaton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 3 E.S.E. of Huddersfield.

Waterloo (3), vil., pa. of Cambusnethan (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc., 1 S.E. of Wishaw. Here is a school.

Waterloo (4), ha., pa. of Auchtergaven (q.v.), E. Perths., Sc., 4¼ S.S.E. of Dunkeld. The ha. was founded soon after the battle of W.; hence its name. The inhabitants are mostly weavers.

Waterloo Road, dis. of S. London, on south bank of Thames, pa. of Lambeth (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, ½ S. of St. Paul's. The dis. embraces the area between Blackfriars Road and Westminster Bridge Road, which, running respectively from Blackfriars Bridge and Westminster Bridge, meet at St. George's Circus. Waterloo Road runs south-east from Waterloo Bridge, through the middle of this dis. Adjoining it is the terminus of the South-Western Railway, a plain spacious edifice erected in 1848. Higher up the road is the Royal Infirmary for Women and Children, which was founded in 1816 and removed to its present site in 1823.

Waterloo Tower, monument in grounds of Wynnstay, pa. of and 1½ S.S.W. from Ruabon, S.E. Denbighs. The monument was erected by Sir Watkin Wynn as a memorial of the battle of Waterloo. The summit affords a fine prospect.

Waterloo Ville. [WATERLOO (1).]

Waterloo-with-Seaforth, to. and watering-pl. on the seacoast, near the mouth of the Mersey, S.W. Lancs., 4 N. by W. of Liverpool. The to. is a popular bathing resort, much frequented by the people of Liverpool, and has many pleasant villas and terraces facing the sea. It comprises the eccl. pas. of Christ Church, St. John, and St. Mary, W. Park. Christ Church (1891) is in E. Eng. and Dec. styles; the churches of St. John and St. Mary are in E. Eng. style. W. also contains a Roman Catholic church, and Presbyterian, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Welsh Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels.

Watermarske, pl., pa. of and about 1 S.W. from Masham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks. [SWINTON-WITH-WATERMARSKE.]

Watermillock, tp. and vil. on Ullswater Lake, S.E. Cumb., 7½ S.W. of Penrith; ac. 9,798; soil clay and loam, subsoil various. The church of All Saints (rebuilt 1884) occupies the site of the chapel which in 1558 was erected in place of the ancient building by the lake side. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a small charity, and the schools are endowed. There is a fine waterfall in Gowbarrow Park. Beauthorn, Hallsteads, Lowsy House, Lyulph's Tower, and Rampobeck are seats.

Watermouth Cove, inlet of the sea, north coast of Dev., 2 E. by N. of Ilfracombe. The cove is a wild, rugged spot, with a slight eminence on one side called Saxon's Burrow. It receives a stream from the grounds of W. Castle, which is beautifully situated near the verge of a green hollow, separated by a natural rampart of rocks from the sea. The mansion is an edifice in Gothic style, erected early in the 19th cent.

Water Newton, pa. and vil. picturesquely placed on the Nen, N. Hunts., 7 W.S.W. of Peterborough, on the Northants border; ac. 868; soil mostly gravel, resting on clay and sand. The E. Eng. church of St. Remigius (restored 1887) preserves in the ledge of a window in the south aisle a small recumbent male effigy in the costume of the time of Edward III., but without inscription; there is a ledger-stone inscribed to John Harbottle, of Baston (d. 1645). In the churchyard lies a massive stone coffin with lid. Here, according to some, is the site of the Roman station Durobrivæ; other authorities, however, fix it at Castor, on the opposite

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Waterhouses (1)	Waterhouses	258	2906
Wateringbury	Wateringbury	39	1324
Waterloo (1)	Cosham (3)	70	436
Waterloo (3)	Wishaw (1)	385	967

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Waterloo-with-S.	Waterloo-with-S.	209	1729
Watermillock	Penruddock (4½)	288	48
Water Newton	Castor (1½)	104	48

bank of the Nen. A considerable number of Roman coins and other Roman antiquities have been dug up in the pa.

Waternish. [VATERNISH.]

Water Orton, eccl. pa., pa. of Aston (q.v.), N. Warws., 2½ N.W. of Coleshill. It is pleasantly situated on the south bank of the Tame, and is remarkable chiefly for its ancient bridge, said to have been built by John Voysey or Harman, Bishop of Exeter, at his own cost, in Henry VIII.'s reign, with stone brought from the old manor-house of Sutton. The church of St. Peter is in E. Eng. style. In the churchyard is an ancient stone cross.

Waterperry, pa., tp., and vil. on the Thame, E. Oxon., 7 E. of Oxford; ac. 1,898; soil loam, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary has a wooden west tower and E. Eng. chancel, the rest of the building being of later periods; the font is Perp., and the rood turret with staircase remains; there is a monument by Chantrey to Anna Maria Rooke (d. 1819), a recumbent effigy of a member of the Fitz-Elys family (c. 1420), and some ancient glass and interesting brasses. W. House is a seat.

Watersay, or Vatersay, island, pa. of Barra (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, N.W. Invs., Sc., 60 S.W. of Portree. W. is separated from Barra Island on the north by the Sound of Watersay (q.v.), and from that of Sanderay on the south by a channel about ¾ mile wide. It is 3 miles long from east to west, with an extreme width of 2½ miles. It is deeply indented, consisting mainly of two hills united by a level sandy bar, on the east side of which is a secure harbour.

Watersay, Sound of, channel, Outer Hebrides, N.W. Invs., Sc. The sound separates Barra Island on the north from that of Watersay on the south. It is 4 miles long and about 1 mile in average width, and contains numerous small islands.

Watersfield, vil., pa. of Cold Waltham (q.v.), N.W. Sussex, 3 S.W. of Pulborough. There is a small Congregational chapel. W. derives some importance from the fact that a charter for its market and fair was obtained in 1316.

Waterside (1), ha., pa. of and adjoining Chesham (q.v.), Mid Bucks. Christ Church (1864) is in E. Eng. and Dec. styles. Chesham Cottage Hospital, which is situated in this ha., was opened in 1869. There are flour mills.

Waterside (2), vil., pa. of Whitkirk (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4½ E. of Leeds.

Waterside (3), ha. on the Don, pa. of Thorne (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 S.E. of Snaith.

Waterside (4), ha., pa. of King's Langley (q.v.), S.W. Herts., 3 N.E. of Watford.

Waterside (5), ha., pa. of and adjoining Bradwell-near-the-Sea (q.v.), S.E. Essex.

Waterside (6), vil. on the Doon, pa. of Dalmellington, Mid Ayrs., Sc., 8½ E. of Maybole. W. contains Established and Roman Catholic churches. There are important ironworks, founded in 1847.

Waterside (7), vil., pa. of and 2 E.S.E. from Kirkintilloch (q.v.), S.E. Dumbarts., Sc.

Waterside (8), ha., pa. of Fenwick (q.v.), N.E. Ayrs., Sc, 6 N.E. of Kilmarnock.

Waterside (9), east suburb of Londonderry (q.v.), on east bank of the Foyle, N.W. co. Londy., Ir. W. contains Protestant and Roman Catholic churches, and a Presbyterian chapel.

Watersmeet, romantic spot on the East Lyn, N.W. Dev., 1¼ E. by S. of Lynmouth. The river here passes through a rocky valley, the sides of which are beautifully wooded.

Waterson (1), ha., pa. of Puddletrenthide (q.v.), Mid Dors., about 4 N.E. of Dorchester. W. House, now a farm, is an ancient stone building, one of the oldest in the co.

Waterson (2), vil., pa. of Llanstadwell (q.v.), S. Pembs., 3 N.W. of Pembroke.

Water Sound, channel, S. Ork., Sc., 10 S. of Kirkwall. The channel separates the island of South Ronaldshay on the south from those of Burray and Hunda on the north. It is 6 miles long from east to west, and ranges in width from 1½ to less than ½ mile.

Waterstock, pa. and vil., S. Oxon., 5 W. of Thame; ac. 659; soil gravel and loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Leonard was rebuilt in 1792; the Perp. tower and north aisle and the rood stairs and window are the only ancient portions; in the north aisle is a canopied monument with the bust of a man, and an inscription to Sir George Croke (d. 1641), one of the judges in the reign of Charles I., a strenuous opposer of the Ship Money; some fragments of ancient glass remain; the wall painting is also noteworthy. Bennett's charity is distributed in money. W. House is a seat.

Water Stratford, pa. on the Ouse, N.W. Bucks., 3½ N.W. by W. of Buckingham; ac. 1,082; soil clay, stonebrash and gravel, subsoil various. The church of St. Giles (partly rebuilt 1828) is Norm., there is a curious monument to Mary Franckyshe (d. 1629), a piscina in the chancel, and a good Norm. south doorway. Here are traces of an ancient camp.

Waters Upton, or Upton Parva, pa. and vil. on the Tern, N. Salop, 5 N. of Wellington; ac. 702; soil of a mixed light sandy nature, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 1865) is in E. Eng. style. There is a charity of about £14 yearly. The Hall is a seat.

Waterswell Cross, pl., pa. of Tangley (q.v.), W. Hants, about 6 N.E. of Ludgershall.

Waterton, ha., pa. of Echt (q.v.), S.E. Abers., Sc., 5 S.S.W. of Kintore. Here is a school.

Waterville, ha., pa. of Dromod (q.v.), S.W. co. Kerry, Ir., 9 S. by E. of Cahersiveen. W. is picturesquely situated on a narrow strip of land running between Ballinskelligs Bay and Lough Cunane. The pure air and excellent bathing attract summer visitors. There are also golf links in the neighbourhood, and the salmon-fishing attracts many anglers. Two of the Atlantic Telegraph Companies have stations here. W. House is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Water Orton	Water Orton	124	545
Waterperry, pa.	Kiddington (2)	52	182
Waterperry, tp.	Kiddington (2)	52	164
Watersay	Oban (108)	504	32
Waterside (6)	Waterside	391	1222
Waterside (7)	Kirkintilloch (2)	402	446
Waterstock	Wheatley (3)	55	146
Water Stratford	Buckingham (3½)	60	137
Waters Upton	Crudgington (1)	166	214

Watford (1), pa. and mkt. to. (T.), W. Herts., 8 s.w. of St. Albans; ac. 10,699 and 81 water. The church of St. Mary (restored 1871) dates from the E. Eng. period; it has two chapels, one dedicated to St. Catherine and the other a mortuary chapel of the Capels, Earls of Essex; in the latter are some fine monuments to the Morrisons of Cashiobury; these include on the south side a marble tomb to Sir Charles Morrison, Knight (d. 1599), and Dorothy (Clark), his wife, with columns of the Corinthian order supporting a pedimented canopy, beneath which are kneeling effigies of both, the knight being in complete armour; on the north side is another marble monument to Sir Charles Morrison, his son (d. 1628), and the Hon. Mary (Hicks), his wife, with a recumbent effigy of the former placing his hand upon a skull, and below this a similar effigy of his lady in flowing robes; on either side are kneeling figures of his daughter

London Orphan Asylum, Watford.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Elizabeth, wife of Arthur, first Baron Capel of Hadham, and of two sons, who died young; above all rises a pedimented canopy supported on four columns of the Corinthian order. There are several brasses, of which the most interesting is that with effigies to Hugh de Holes or Huls, Justice of the King's Bench (d. 1415), and Margaret (Domville), his wife (d. 1416). W. has also eccl. pas., a Catholic church, and places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The endowed schools date from 1882, when the Free school (founded 1706) ceased to exist. W. Public Library and College of Science, Art, Music and Literature, Queen Street, was erected in 1873–74 in Italian style, and consists on the first floor of a lecture hall, rooms for painting and modelling and music rooms, and on the ground floor a lending and reference library. The London Orphan Asylum consists of a large block of buildings in Elizabethan style, covering with the playground 16 ac. Here are corn mills, steam laundry, several malt kilns, three extensive breweries and an iron foundry; agricultural fork handles are also made here. In Church Road, St. Andrew's, are the almshouses of the Salters' Company for twelve women and six men, and there are two in Rickmansworth Road for superannuated servants. There are other charities of about £80 yearly value for distribution, and the church lands produce £148 a year for church repairs.

Watford (2), pa., W. Northants, 4¾ N.E. of Daventry; ac. 3,176; soil clay and very productive, with a good loam near the surface. The Grand Union Canal and the Watling Street pass through the pa. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1884) is E. Dec. and Perp.; there are numerous monuments in the chancel, including one to Sir George Clerke, Knight (d. 1648); another with long Latin inscription, but undated, to George Clerke, Esq., and Mary his wife; and to George Clerke, Esq., the last male heir of this ancient family (d. 1787); and one with inscription to Susannah Eyton (d. 1631); there are others of later date; in the wall of the north chapel are three sepulchral arches, and in the south wall of the same is another with very rich mouldings; in the chancel are three sedilia and a piscina, and a piscina in the south aisle. There is a Wesleyan chapel. W. Court is a seat.

Watford Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Herts. It lies in the west of the co., and returns one member.

Wath (1), or Wath-by-Ripon, pa., tp., and vil., N.R. Yorks., 4 N. of Ripon; ac. of pa. 3,709, of tp. 766; soil sandy, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1873–74) is E. Eng. with Perp. insertions; the chancel retains triple sedilia and double piscina, and some fragments of heraldic glass, including the coat of Monthermer and that of Marmion. The chapel on the south side, known as the Norton chapel, contains some 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th-cent. brasses, with effigies. The church also contains an 18th-cent. brass to a rector, and on the south side is a tomb of the Dec. period, with gabled canopy, and the date 1333, to John de Appleby, founder of the church. During the restoration various ancient remains were found, including a coffin slab with a Latin inscription, and supposed to have covered the remains of Robert, brother of the founder. There is a fine pa. oak chest of Flemish make. Here is an almshouse for two poor persons, founded and endowed in 1690.

Wath (2), tp., pa. of Hovingham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 8 W. of Malton; ac. 350. Here are the remains of an old hall, supposed to have been a seat of the Mowbrays, ancient lords of this manor.

Wath (3), ha., pa. of Holme Cultram (q.v.), S. Cumb., about 1 mile from Cleator Moor.

Wath-by-Ripon. [Wath (1).]

Wath-upon-Dearne, pa., tp., and to., on a pleasant acclivity near the Dearne and Dove canal, W.R. Yorks., 6 N. of Rotherham; ac. of pa. 26,195, of tp. 1,724; soil sandy and clayey, but rich and productive. The church of All Saints (restored 1868) is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the church are four monuments and one brass, and the pews bear the arms of the Savile family. W. has also a Catholic church and places of worship for various Noncon-

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Watford (1), pa.	Watford Junction	17	20269
Watford (1), to.	Watford Junction	17	16826
Watford (2)	Welton (½)	75	394
Watford Division	.....	.....	63890
Wath (1), pa.	Melmerby (½)	216	685
Wath (1), tp.	Melmerby (½)	216	288
Wath (2)	Slingsby (1)	217	14
Wath-u.-Dearne, pa.	Wath (½)	165	31574
Wath-u.-Dearne, tp.	Wath (½)	165	3894

formist bodies. The National school is endowed. A market-place was constructed in 1886, and the market is held on Saturday. Statute fairs are held on Nov. 24 for hiring servants. A new building for the Mechanics' Institute was opened in 1883. In the vicinity are coal and iron works, stone quarries, an oil, soap and manure manufactory and a brewery. W. Hall, formerly the seat of the Saviles, has been converted into Local Board Offices, and the grounds have been opened to the inhabitants.

Watling Street, Roman road, intersecting England and part of Scotland. It started at Rutupiæ (Richborough), 2 N. by W. of Sandwich, and ran W. by N. past Canterbury, Rochester, and Southfleet to London, where there is still a street bearing this name, running from the south-east corner of St. Paul's Churchyard. From London it proceeded N.W. by St. Albans, Dunstable, Fenny Stratford, and Towcester, and along the border of Leics. and Warws. to Wall, in the southern vicinity of Lichfield. Here it divided into three branches, two of which ran to Bangor and Leintwardine respectively. The main branch went to Chester, and thence N.E., N.N.E., and N. to Lanchester (6½ W.N.W. of Durham), passing Northwich, Stretford, Manchester, Ilkley, Masham, Catterick, Pierce Bridge, and Binchester. From Lanchester its course was N.W. and N.N.W. by Ebchester, Corbridge, and Rochester (where was the station Bremenium) to a camp at Chew Green, near the source of the Coquet. From this point the road was carried N. to Burghead, on Solway Firth. It is said that the road followed the course of a British track called Guathelin, and that hence was derived the Roman name Via Vatelliana. In this case the Old English name Waetling Street is not a patronymic, as has been supposed, but a mere corruption. In many places the road still forms an excellent highway.

Watlington (1), pa. and small but ancient to. at the foot of the Chiltern Hills, S. Oxon., 8½ S.W. of Thame; ac. 3,440; soil mixed, overlying greensand and chalk. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1877) is mostly Perp. There are brasses to William Frankeleyn (1485) and his wife Sibill, with four children; Jeremiah, eldest son of Robert Ewstes (1587), and John Ewstes, his brother (1588). There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Town Hall is an ancient building in the centre of the to., erected in 1664. The Public Hall, High Street, is used for public meetings and similar purposes. The Police Station (1860) has a large room in which petty sessions are held. Two statute and pleasure fairs are held here on the Saturday before and the Saturday after old Michaelmas day. There is a Reading Room, with a lending library; and a Cottage Hospital for the sick poor. The charities for distribution amount to about £120 a year, and Hester's and Greendown's charities amount to about £73, which sum is distributed in various ways to the poor. Three-quarters of the Church Estate, which amounts to about £53 yearly, is applied to educational purposes and for recreation-grounds. W. Park, on the Chiltern Hills, is a seat; the house is surrounded by magnificent trees, and commands extensive views of the picturesque scenery around.

Watlington (2), pa. and vil. on the Great Ouse, S.W. Norf., 6 S. of Lynn; ac. 1,709; soil mostly gravel and silt, overlying gault and clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is Perp. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to £10 yearly.

Watnall, vil. with railway station, pa. of Greasley (q.v.), S.W. Notts., about 5 N.W. of Nottingham. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are collieries in the vicinity. W. Hall is a seat.

Watten, pa. and vil. with railway station, Mid Caiths., Sc.; ac. of pa. 30,579; soil various; in the neighbourhood of the moors are large tracts of peat-moss. The vil. is about 8 N.W. of Wick. There are places of worship in connection with the Established and Free Churches.

Watten, Loch, in the north-west of the pa. of Watten (q.v.), Mid Caiths., Sc. It is a fine sheet of water, about 3 miles long, from which issues a branch of the river Wick.

Wattisfield, pa. and vil., N.W. Suff., 12½ N.E. of Bury St. Edmunds, on the road to Norwich; ac. 1,517; soil principally heavy, with a small portion of mixed, overlying clay, gravel, brick-earth, and a fine bed of silver sand. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1872) is Perp. The Congregational chapel, which had been erected about two centuries, was rebuilt in 1877; the Brethren have a place of worship which formerly belonged to the Wesleyans. The rent of the to. estate, about £80 yearly, is expended partly for the general benefit of the pa., and partly for a supply of coals at reduced prices to the poor. Here are potteries, the ware of which is much noted for dairy and gardeners purposes.

Wattisham, pa. and agricultural vil., S. Suff., 6 S.W. of Needham Market; ac. 1,298; soil heavy, overlying clay and loam. The church of St. Nicholas is E. Eng.; the chancel screen has paintings of saints, and there is a curious stone tablet in the tower. In the pa. is a Baptist chapel, with burial-ground. W. Hall, near the church, and now occupied as a farmhouse, is surrounded by a double moat.

Wattlefield, ha., pa. of and 3 S. from Wymondham (q.v.), Mid Norfolk. There is a chapel-of-ease (erected 1843) and a Wesleyan chapel. W. Hall is a seat.

Wattlesborough, ha., pa. of Alberbury (q.v.), S. Salop, about 2 N.E. of Westbury railway station. W. Hall, an old moated mansion, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Watton (1), pa. and small mkt. to. (W.), S.W. Norf.; ac. 1,807. The to. is situated just within the woodland district, but near the open part, in a remarkably healthy and fertile country, 10 S. of East Dereham. There is a quaint old rebus or device on the clockhouse, expressive of the name of this to.; it consists of a W, a hare, and a tun; a hare was often called by the country people a "Wat," which, joined with "tun," makes, in the conceit of early times, "Watton." The church of St. Mary, originally dedicated to St. Giles (restored 1852), is Norm. and later. There are piscinæ in the chancel and south aisle, and the former retains a low-side window. A curious old poor-box is

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Watlington (1)	Watlington	51	1734
Watlington (2)	Magdalen Road	91	579
Watten	Watten	744	1390
Wattisfield	Mellis (6)	91	434
Wattisham	Hadleigh (5)	71	178
Watton (1)	Watton	103	1365

preserved bearing the date of 1552. Over the chancel arch, outside the church, is a beautiful and perfect specimen of a crucifix carved in stone, which was originally placed over the north porch. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. A Parish Room was erected in 1891. The Wayland Hall, in the market-place, is in Perp. style, and comprises a corn hall, magistrates' rooms, library and committee rooms, and has a hammer-beam roof of timber work with open tracery. A pump was erected at the west end of the to. in 1887. There are two small iron foundries. In the to. are almshouses for four poor widows, founded in 1612, and others (1840) for four poor married couples. Charities to the amount of about £90 a year are for the benefit of the poor, and there is a sum of about £30 devoted to the repairs of the church. On the south side of the to. is Wayland (or Wailing) Wood, confidently believed by the country people to have been the scene of the murder of "the Babes in the Wood" by their cruel uncle; a carved mantelshelf displaying the story, and forming a part of a very ancient building in this wood, probably gave rise to this quaint tradition, which is in a measure corroborated by the old ballad entitled "The Two Children in the Wood; or, The Norfolk Gentleman's Last Will and Testament," found in "Bishop Percy's Reliques of Ancient English Poetry."

Watton (2), pa. and vil. on the Beane, E. Herts., 5 N.W. of Hertford; ac. 3,579; soil clay and flint, subsoil various. The church of St. Andrew and St. Mary (restored 1851) is Perp. In the chancel are sedilia and a piscina, in the south aisle another piscina, and the doors of the rood-loft remain. Among the monuments are a brass to Sir Philip Peletoot (d. 1361), a brass to John Butler (d. 1514), a brass with the effigy of a priest (c. 1370), others to a civilian (c. 1470), to Sir Edmund Bardolf (d. 1455), unnamed effigies (c. 1470), slabs to Robert de Gravele, Roger de Larebi, and Walter de Molinton and Jane de Gutecester (1502), an alabaster slab to John Butteler, and a stone with brass effigy to Philip Peletoot (d. 1352). In the churchyard is an E. Eng. tomb. There are almshouses. Woodhall Park (built 1777) and W. House are seats.

Watton (3), pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 5½ S. of Driffield; ac. 4,709; soil clay, loam, and peat, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) is of various periods. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Here was anciently a priory (founded in 1150) on the site of a nunnery dating from 680. The house, now known as W. Abbey, is partly constructed from the materials of the priory.

Watton (4), ha., pa. of and 2 S.E. from Symondsbury (q.v.), W. Dorset.

Watt's Dyke, a boundary-line or rampart in North Wales, in many places parallel to Offa's Dyke. Murray says: "It is probable that it commenced at the sea-coast near Basingwerk Abbey, Flints., whence it ran south past Halkin, Hope, the gorge of the Alyn, Wrexham, Wynnstay (formerly called Wattstay from this circumstance), and Oswestry, finally disappearing in the flats to the north of the Severn. It has been conjectured with great probability that the ground between the two dykes was neutral."

Wattston, vil., pa. of New Monkland (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc., 3 N. by E. of Airdrie. The inhabitants are engaged in the neighbouring factories and in the coal and iron mines.

Wauchope (1), ancient pa. in west of pa. of Langholm (q.v.), S.E. Dumfs., Sc. W. has formed part of Langholm pa. since 1703.

Wauchope (2), estate, pa. of Hobkirk (q.v.), Mid Lanarks., Sc., 10 S.E. of Hawick. There is a mansion of the same name.

Wauchope Water, stream, S.E. Dumfs., Sc., flows 2 E. and then 6 N.E. through the pa. of Langholm, joining the Esk at the to. of Langholm.

Wauldby, tp., pa. of Elloughton (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 6 S.W. of Beverley; ac. 1,021. Here is an ancient chapel, which has been restored.

Waulkmills, vil., pa. of St. Vigeans (q.v.), S.E. Forfs., Sc., 2 N. by W. of Arbroath.

Waunarllwyd, vil., pa. of and 3½ W.S.W. from Swansea (q.v.), N.W. Glamorgs. The church of St. Barnabas (1888) is in E. Eng. style. There are Baptist and Congregational chapels.

Waunllwyd, pl. in Ebbw Vale, W. Mon., 2½ S.E. of Tredegar. Here is a Congregational chapel. W. has extensive coal-pits.

Wavendon, pa. and vil., N. Bucks. (extending to Beds.), 5 S.E. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 2,140; soil stiff loam, some sandy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1848–49) is chiefly Dec.; the clerestory, the roofs, and the upper part of the tower are Perp. In the chancel are triple sedilia and a double piscina of curious design; the aisles were formerly side chapels, and still retain their piscinæ. The church contains some memorials of the family of Saunders, of Battlesden, among which are two brasses of Richard Saunders, Esq. (1639), and his four wives. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The County Police have a station in the vil. Wells' charity, now realising £37 10s., is for educating, clothing, and apprenticing ten poor boys; there are other charities of £150 yearly for coals, £2 for bread, £10 for the general uses of the poor, and £22 for public purposes, and also almshouses for four poor widows. W. House, pleasantly situated in a well-wooded park of 118 ac., with an approach through an avenue of fine elm trees, and W. Tower, with an avenue of limes and chestnuts, are seats.

Waveney, river, forming the boundary between Norf. and Suff., rises in the pa. of South Lopham, close to the source of the Ouse, 5 S.S.E. of East Harling. It runs E. past Diss and Scole to Homersfield, whence it pursues a N.E. course, flowing near Harleston, which is about a mile from its left bank. In this part of its course it divides the pas. of Brockdish, Needham, Denton, and Earsham in Norf., from those of Syleham, Weybread, Mendham, and Homersfield, in Suff. At Bungay it makes a remarkable curve towards the S.S., almost returning on its own track, and then runs W. by N. past Beccles to Oulton. Between Bungay and Beccles, on the Suff. side of the river, are the

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Watton (2)	Hertford (5)	24	807
Watton (3)	Hutton Cranswick	210	311
Wattston	Ayr Road	394	354

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wauldby	Ferriby (2)	189	[illegible]
Wavendon	Woburn Sands (1)	51	125

vils. of Mettingham and Barsham. Formerly the river entered the sea at Lowestoft, 4 miles from Oulton, and this course is still preserved by means of artificial navigation; the stream itself, however, now turns inland, and runs first 7 miles N.E. to Fritton, and then 4½ miles N.N.W. to Burgh Castle, where it joins the Yare. The river is navigable to Bungay. Its length is about 50 miles. It yields very fine perch, eels, and smelts.

Waver, river, N.W. Cumb., rises on the fells in the tp. of Brocklebank, 3 E.N.E. of Ireby, and winds in a N.W. direction to Moricambe Bay, passing Waverton, Dundraw, and Abbey Holmes. Moricambe Bay is partly formed by the confluence of the Waver and the Wampool. The length of the river is about 10 miles.

Waverley, pa., S.W. Surrey, 2 S.E. of Farnham; ac. 541. Here are the remains of W. Abbey (founded 1129). A place called Abbot's Pond was once a large piece of water, but has for many years been dried up. W. Abbey, a modern structure, is a seat.

Waverton (1), pa., tp., and vil., S.W. Chesh., 4 S.E. of Chester; ac. of pa. 2,438, of tp. 1,094; soil mostly clay, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1888) is Perp., and contains on the wall underneath the belfry a quaint old table of tithes payable to the minister of W. There are Presbyterian and Wesleyan chapels. The charities amount to about £15 yearly. Here is a stone quarry and also a steam flour-mill.

Waverton (2), tp. and vil. on the Waver, pa. of and 2½ S.W. by W. of Wigton (q.v.), W. Cumb.; ac. 4,103. Christ Church, in E. Eng. style, is a chapel-of-ease.

Wavertree, tp. and to., pa. of Childwall (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 2½ E. by S. of Liverpool, of which it forms a sub.; ac. of tp. 1,838. W. is pleasantly situated, the ground towards the east rising above and sheltering the more westerly parts, which are inhabited to a large extent by wealthy Liverpool merchants. The to. comprises the eccl. pas. of Holy Trinity and St. Mary. Trinity Church (1793) is a plain edifice of the Doric order, with a tower and cupola. In this pa. is also St. Bridget's Church (1871), a brick structure in Romanesque style. St. Mary's Church (1849) is in Dec. style. The other places of worship include a Roman Catholic church (erected 1887, in Dec. style) and Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. There is a Town Hall, in Classical style, dating from 1872. W. Park—a public pleasure-ground 108 ac. in extent—was the gift of an unknown benefactor. W. contains an ancient well, which is believed to have been the property of Childwall Priory; on it is a curious inscription, with the date 1414, referring to the future punishment of those who withhold their wealth in this life. Brewing and ropemaking are leading industries, and operations are carried on in connection with the Liverpool Waterworks.

Wawne, or Waghen, pa. and tp., E.R. Yorks., 6 N. of Hull; ac. of pa. 5,440, of tp. 3,970; soil deep loam, with a little carr land, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Peter (restored 1874) is Perp. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There is a small charity. On the removal of an old wall near Kenley farmhouse some years ago a silver crucifix, a hawk's bell, a dagger, and some other curious relics were found.

Waxham, coast pa. and vil., E. Norf., 14 N.W. of Yarmouth; this was formerly a large pa., but has been reduced by the encroachments of the sea to 1,962 ac. and 125 of water; soil good mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. John is an ancient building of stone and flint, with a thatched roof; the chancel is in ruins.

Waxham, Little, formerly a pa., E. Norf., now amalgamated with Horsey (q.v.).

Waxholme, tp., pa. of Owthorne (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 2 N.W. of Withernsea; ac. 542. There is a coastguard station. The sea is continually encroaching on the coast.

Way-, for places not found under this spelling, see also WEY-.

Wayford, pa. and vil., S. Somerset, divided from Dors. by the Axe, 3 S.W. of Crewkerne; ac. 1,876; soil various. The church of St. Michael, erected about 1200, is a plain building of stone. Turberville's charity of £20 yearly is chiefly distributed in money to the poor, but £6 is reserved, together with Bragge's charity of £2 10s. for educational purposes.

Wayland Smith's Cave, cromlech, pa. of Uffington (q.v.), N. Berks. It is built up of megaliths called "Sarsen stones," found in the neighbourhood, and was doubtless the burial-place of some prehistoric chieftain. The tradition is that this spot was formerly inhabited by an invisible blacksmith who good-naturedly shod any horse that was left there, provided a piece of money was deposited at the same time to reward the labours of the workman. Sir Walter Scott, in "Kenilworth" (Chapter XIII.), has skilfully availed himself of this picturesque legend.

Wayland Wood. [WATTON (1).]

Weald (1), ha., pa. of and 3 E. from Eynesbury (q.v.), S. Hunts.

Weald (2), ha., pa. of and adjoining Bampton (q.v.), Mid Oxon.

Weald (3). [SEVENOAKS WEALD.]

Weald Bassett, North, pa. and vil., S.E. Essex, 3 N.E. of Epping; ac. 3,777; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (repaired and restored at various times) retains a piscina in the chantry, and a floor-stone with brass effigies to Walter Larder (d. 1617), his wife and children. There is a charity. In the pa. is a fort mounting six guns.

Weald, South, pa., tp., and vil., S. Essex, 5 N.E. of Romford; ac. of pa. 5,089, of tp. 4,629; soil clay and gravel. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is Dec. and Perp.; in the south aisle is a fine oak screen, the font is dated 1662, there are remains of a brass to Sir Anthony Browne (d. 1567), and

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Waverley	Farnham (2)	38	51
Waverton (1), pa.	Waverton	175	743
Waverton (1), tp.	Waverton	175	371
Waverton (2)	Wigton (2½)	210	439
Wavertree	Liverpool (2½)	198	13764
Wawne, pa.	Sutton-on-Hull (2)	200	393
Wawne, tp.	Sutton-on-Hull (2)	200	317

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Waxham	Stalham (5½)	145	111
Waxholme	Withernsea (2)	216	71
Wayford	Crewkerne (3)	132	367
Weald Bassett, North	North Weald	19	1117
Weald, South, pa.	Brentwood (2)	18	9962
Weald, South, tp.	Brentwood (2)	18	5013

monuments to the Neave family. St. Paul's, chapel-of-ease, is in E. Eng. style. The pa. has almshouses and various charities. Here is the County Lunatic Asylum. W. House, a seat, once the home of Queen Mary, contains a good collection of china and pictures, a ceiling by Adams, and some curious fire-places are dated 1555. Other seats are Gilstead Hall, Howhatch, Luptons, Millfield, Oakhurst, Pilgrims Hall and Rochetts.

Wealdstone, eccl. pa., pas. of Harrow, Harrow Weald, and Pinner, N.W. Middx., near the Harrow station of the London and North-Western Railway. Holy Trinity Church (1881) is in E. Eng. style. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels.

Weald, The, extensive woodland tract, S. Kent and N. Sussex. The W. is 40 miles long from east to west in Kent and 70 miles long in Sussex, with a breadth ranging from 10 to 15 miles. It is bounded on the north by the range of hills running by Shipborne (3½ N. of Tonbridge), Sutton Valence, and Egerton (7½ N.W. of Ashford). In Sussex it extends as far west as Petworth. Tonbridge, Cranbrook and Tenterden are situated within its limits. In ancient times it consisted of one vast forest along the north border of the South Saxon kingdom, and the whole district is still abundantly wooded. The surface is generally level, with a rich soil yielding good crops of grain, beans, turnips and clover. The "Wealden" series of clay, sand and lime is interesting to the geologist owing to its numerous fossils.

Wear, river, Mid Dur.; rises on the Cumb. border, 1½ S.W. of Kilhope Law, and flows first E.S.E. and E. along a narrow and romantic valley known as Weardale, surrounded by mountains and moors, by St. John Weardale and Stanhope to Wolsingham. From Wolsingham it runs S.E. to Witton-le-Wear, and thence E. by S. to Bishop Auckland. From this point it winds N. to Willington and afterwards N.W. by Croxton Hall and Shincliffe to Durham. The river winds round Durham in a magnificent curve between wooded banks more than 40 ft. in height, and the natural beauty of the scenery is enhanced by the picturesque views of the city with its stately cathedral. From Durham the W. proceeds N. with many bends past Cocken to Chester-le-Street, where it skirts the grounds of Lumley Castle and flows through those of Lambton Castle. At Fatfield, a mile further on, it becomes navigable, and at this point the coal trade begins. From Chester-le-Street to Pallion the course of the river is N.E., and thence E. to the North Sea. Between Chester-le-Street and Pallion it passes Penshaw and North and South Hylton, and between Pallion and the sea Bishop Wearmouth, Southwick, and Monkwearmouth. At its mouth is the important port of Sunderland. The length of the W. is about 65 miles.

Weardale. [WEAR.]

VIEW IN WEARDALE.

Weardale St. John, eccl. pa. and vil. on the south bank of the Wear, pa. of and 8 W. from Stanhope (q.v.), S.W. Dur. The church of St. John the Baptist, from which the vil. derives its name, has been rebuilt. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. A market was formerly held, and fairs are still held on the third Wednesday in April and second Wednesday in September. The town hall is a commodious building situated in the market-place, and used for public meetings and entertainments. The old market cross was taken down on the building of this hall. There are extensive ironstone mines in this district, and the land, where cultivated, is cut up into very small pasture farms, held by the workers in the mines.

Wearde, vil., pa. of St. Stephens by Saltash (q.v.), E. Cornw., 1 S.W. of Saltash.

Weardley, tp., pa. of Harewood (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3½ E. of Arthington; ac. 840.

Weare, pa. and vil. on the Axe, N. Somerset, 3 S.W. of Axbridge; ac. 2,196; soil variable, overlying clay. The church of St. Gregory (restored 1846) is Perp., and contains a brass to John Bedlow (c. 1500), an E. Eng. font, and some fragments of ancient glass. In the churchyard is an ancient

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wealdstone	Harrow	11	2503
Weardale St. John	Stanhope (8)	260	1318
Weardley	Pool (3)	205	140
Weare	Axbridge (3)	136	630

oss. Here are Wesleyan, Baptist, and Bible ıristian chapels, and a reading-room. The school ıs a small endowment. The market is extinct. adyworth Court is a seat.

Wear Gifford, pa. and vil. on the Torridge, . Dev., 4 s. of Bideford; ac. 1,587; soil loam, erlying clay. The church of the Holy Trinity estored 1869) is Dec.; the chancel has a fine roof Perp. date; in the north wall of the nave, within ro recessed arches, are two recumbent effigies of cross-legged knight and a lady; the former, aced on a wide altar tomb, is in a suit of mail, ith cowl, covered by a cyclas, or long-skirted nic, and carries a shield and sword; the figure of e lady wears a coronet, and is attired in wimple ıd flowing robes, covered by a mantle, and at the les are mutilated figures of angels holding up apery; these effigies may represent Sir Walter ffard, lord of this place in 1243, and his wife; ere are also memorials to the Fortescues, and a dern brass. Here are Wesleyan chapels. John verings' charity, amounting to £10 10s. yearly, is stributed in money, and the National school is dowed. There are lime-kilns on the quay. The ntry is finely wooded, and fish are abundant in e Torridge. Wear Hall, belonging to the Fortcue family, is an interesting structure of the th cent., consisting of a central block with wings, mpled for some time as a farmhouse, but restored 1832 by the late Hon. George Fortescue; the battled gatehouse remains, and the dining hall, noble apartment, has fine carved oak panelling d a beautifully carved oak roof; other portions the mansion retain similar work, and some ancient rtraits and tapestry.

Wearhead, vil., pa. of Stanhope (q.v.), W. Dur., S.E. of Heathery Cleugh.

Wearmouth. [BISHOP WEARMOUTH, MONKEARMOUTH.]

Wearne, ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Huish Episcopi .v.), E. Somerset.

Weasenham All Saints, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 8 N. Swaffham; ac. 1,948; soil brick-earth and clay, erlying brick-earth. The church of All Saints is Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. ere is a fuel allotment of about 20 ac. W. Hall a substantial building in a small but well-ooded park.

Weasenham St. Peter, pa., Mid Norf., 9 N. of affham; ac. 1,397; soil brick-earth and clay, erlying brick-earth. The church of St. Peter stored 1870) is E. Eng. Wilson's charity amounts £2 13s. yearly. The to. estate has been sold d the proceeds invested in the funds.

Weaste, eccl. pa., pa. of Eccles (q.v.), S.E. ncs., 3½ W. of Manchester. The church is dicated to St. Luke.

Weathercote Cave, large cavity, pa. of Bentham v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 N.N.E. of Ingleton. The solled cave is a deep, rugged fissure with a cascade 77 ft. at the lower extremity. The waterfall oduces a grand and solemn effect, due partly to e dim light occasioned by the overhanging rocks and trees. Its water forms a stream which, after a subterraneous course of about 1½ mile, reappears at the source of the Greta.

Weaver (1), former tp. on the Weaver, pa. of and 4½ W. from Middlewich (q.v.), Mid Chesh., now united with Darnhall. There is a Free Methodist chapel. W. Hall, once a seat, is now occupied as a farmhouse. The brine used in the salt-works at Winsford and neighbourhood is chiefly found in the vale of the Weaver, and, in consequence of the gradual drainage, the land on its banks has sunk below the level of the river, submerging a great portion of the tp.

Weaver (2), river, Mid Chesh., rises at Ridley, in the pa. of Bunbury, and flows first S.E. past Cholmondeley Castle and Wrenbury Hall to Adderley Hall, where it touches the Salop border. After winding for several miles in an easterly direction between Chesh. and Salop, it returns into the interior of the former co., running first N.N.W. to Wybunbury, and then W. and N.W. to Nantwich, whence it pursues a northerly course past Over to Northwich, and then, turning W.N.W., runs by Winnington Hall and Aston Hall to the Mersey, which it enters a little more than 2 miles N.W. of Frodsham and about the same distance S.S.W. of Runcorn. The W. and its affluents are remarkable for the salt-springs and rock-salt which abound on their banks, especially in the neighbourhood of Northwich, where there are extensive works. The river is navigable to Winsford.

Weaverham, pa., tp., and vil., Mid Chesh., 3½ N.W. of Northwich; ac. of pa. 5,990, of tp. 3,380; soil chiefly a sandy loam, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1855 and 1877) is Late Perp., and is supposed to occupy the site of the church which existed here at the date of the Domesday Survey. There are Wesleyan, Primitive and Association Methodist chapels. The charities amount to about £50 yearly. Hefferston Grange and W. Grange are seats.

Weaver Hills, hill range (1,500 ft.), N.E. Staffs., 5 W.N.W. of Cheadle. The hills are composed of huge masses of limestone, covered with a rich, chalky, loamy soil, which is capable of being made very productive. In many places, however, the surface is extremely rough, producing nothing but lichen and moss.

Weaverthorpe, pa., tp., and vil., in a valley of the Wolds, E.R. Yorks., 15 S.W. of Scarborough; ac. of pa. 5,600, of tp. 2,977; soil light, overlying chalk rock. The church of All Saints (restored 1872) is Norm.; the ascent to the belfry is by a turret staircase, access to which is obtained outside the building; the font is of very early date, possibly Saxon; the chancel retains a piscina, aumbry and priests' door; the chancel arch is Norm., and is crossed by a brass screen. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Webden, ha., pa. of Tidenham (q.v.), W. Gloucs., 2 N.E. of Chepstow.

Webheath, pa., E. Worcs., 2 S.W. of Redditch; ac. 2,152; soil stiff loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Philip (1870) is in the E. Dec. style. There is a Baptist chapel.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
ear Gifford	Bideford (4)	220	395
easenham All S.	East Rudham (3)	113	324
easenham St. P.	East Rudham (3)	113	270
easte	Weaste	187	6126
eaverham, pa.	Acton Bridge (½)	173	3242
Weaverham, tp.	Acton Bridge (½)	173	1761
Weaverthorpe, pa.	Weaverthorpe (4½)	221	898
Weaverthorpe, tp.	Weaverthorpe (4½)	221	540
Webheath	Redditch (2)	146	1148

Webley, or Weobley, Castle, ancient fortress, pa. of Llanrhidian (q.v.), N.W. Glamorgs., 10 W. of Swansea. The castle is situated on a low hill in the west of Gower peninsula, near the south bank of the estuary of the Burry. It is said to have been erected by the De La Beres; afterwards it passed into the possession of the Talbots. The remains consist chiefly of the outer walls, with towers at irregular intervals. Part of the building, which was originally very large, is now occupied by a farmer.

Wedderburn Castle, seat, pa. of and 2 E.S.E. from Duns (q.v.), E. Berws., Sc. The mansion, a handsome edifice in Classical style, stands in a luxuriant park.

Weddiker, tp., pa. of and 2 E.N.E. of Hensingham (q.v.), S.W. Cumb.; ac. 1,150.

Weddington, pa. on the Anker, N.E. Warws., 4 W. of Hinckley; ac. 911; soil loam, overlying marl. The church of St. James (restored 1881) was originally and is still partly Norm., but was rebuilt 1733 in E. Eng. style; there is a Norm. font, a monument to Humphrey Adderley (c. 1598), and a painting of the Crucifixion, said to be by Vandyke. W. Hall, a Tudor mansion, is a seat.

Wedge Rock, remarkable chalk formation on east side of Scratchell's Bay, near west extremity of I. of W., S. Hants. The "rock" is so called because it is wedged in between the cliffs and a detached rock of pyramidal form.

Wedgwood, ha., pa. of Wolstanton (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., near Newchapel.

Wedhampton, ti., pa. of and 1½ E. from Urchfont (q.v.), E. Wilts.

Wedmore, pa. and vil., Mid Somerset, 4 S. of Cheddar; ac. 9,985; soil various, abounding with very rich loam, and the moors are very valuable for dairy purposes, much of the celebrated Cheddar cheese being made here. A great quantity of turf is dug for fuel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1880) dates from the 14th and 15th cents., and contains some curious old monumental tablets and brasses of the 16th and 17th cents. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The charities amount to about £48 yearly, and the charity school is endowed. Two fairs for cattle are held annually in July and Sept. This place anciently belonged to the abbey of Glastonbury, and once had, it is said, not less than eleven chapels; the remains of one chapel are visible at a place called Marchey. A pot of silver coins of Sweyn (1013) and Hardicanute (1039) was found in the churchyard in 1851, and is now in the British Museum.

Wednesbury, parl. and mun. bor., pa., mkt. to., and head of petty sess. div., S. Staffs., 8 N.E. of Birmingham; ac. 2,130. An overhead electric tramway connects this to. with Walsall. W. is a place of considerable antiquity; by the early English it was named "Wodensbeorg," after the god Woden, and is popularly called "Wedgebury." Formerly a castle stood here, which was fortified in 916 by the Princess Ethelfleda; at the Norman accession it was held in royal demesne. The church of St. Bartholomew is situated on the summit of a hill at the northern extremity of the to., and occupying what was once the site of the heathen temple of Woden; it is a fine Perp. building, and belonged, until about 1535, to the Abbey of Halesowen; it several times has been extensively repaired. There is a monument with effigies to Thomas Parkes, General (1602), and Elianor his wife, and six children; another, with two alabaster effigies, to Richard Parkes, Esq. (1618); another, surmounted by a life-size bust, commemorates the Rev. Isaac Clarkson, nearly thirty-five years vicar of W. (1829–64); there are also slabs with incised effigies and inscriptions to Richard Jennyns (1521), and Isabel his wife, and to John Cumberfort, gent. (1559), and Emma his wife; the eagle-lectern is ancient and of good design. W. has also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church with priest's house, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The chief public buildings are the town hall, the Art Gallery, the Free Library, the Drill Hall, and the Baths. The manufactures are numerous and important, the principal being nails, boiler plates, bar iron, Bessemer steel, Siemens-Martin steel, railway carriage axles, general ironwork for railways, and gas, water and steam tubes, spades, shovels and edge tools, gunlocks, coach springs, hinges, bolts, nuts, and wrought iron of every description; there are also stoneware potteries. An abundance of coal is found here, as well as iron ore, limestone, clay (both potters' and brick), and a kind of coal which, from the intense heat it gives out, is admirably adapted for the forge. The market is held on Friday, and is well supplied with provisions and vegetables; there is also a market on Saturday. Fairs are held on May 6 and Aug. 5, chiefly for pedlery. The charities amount to about £350. Brunswick Park, comprising 21 ac., including a small lake, has been laid out as a public recreation ground.

Wednesfield, tp. and to., pa. of Wolverhampton (q.v.), and within the limits of W. parl. bor., S. Staffs.; ac. 3,535. The name (locally "Wedgefield") was formerly "Wodensfield," derived from Woden, the god of war; the Danes were defeated here in a battle with King Edward the Elder, A.D. 910. Here are eccl. pas. with modern churches, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and cottage-homes erected by the Wolverhampton Guardians for pauper children. The inhabitants are principally employed in the manufacture of keys, vermin traps, and locks, which are most extensively made here, especially cabinet, chest and trunk locks, and padlocks; files, rasps and latches are likewise made. The Birmingham Canal Navigation have a wharf here. The charities amount to about £20 yearly.

Weedon, tp. and vil., pa. of Hardwick (q.v.), E. Bucks., 14 S.E. of Buckingham; ac. 1,796. The charities amount to £20 yearly. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Islip is a seat.

Weedon Beck, pa. and scattered vil. (Weedon), S. Northants, 8 W. of Northampton; ac. 1,871; soil loamy, overlying gravel. The church of St. Peter

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weddiker	Whitehaven (3)	302	43
Weddington	Nuneaton (1½)	97	100
Wedmore	Draycot (2½)	132	2891
Wednesbury, p. bor.	Wednesbury	121	69083
Wednesbury, m. bor.	Wednesbury	121	25347

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wednesbury, pa.	Wednesbury	121	[illegible]
Wednesfield, tp.	Wednesfield (2)	143	[illegible]
Wednesfield, to.	Wednesfield (2)	142	[illegible]
Weedon	Aylesbury (3)	43	[illegible]
Weedon Beck	Weedon	79	[illegible]

is Norm., E. Eng., and later. On a tombstone in the churchyard is the following curious inscription: "Here lyth ye body of Alice Old, widow, who lived in ye reign of Queen Elizabeth, in ye reign of King James ye 1st, in ye reign of King Charles ye 1st & King Charles ye 2nd & King James ye 2nd, & deseased ye Second Day of Jany ye 3rd year of ye reign of King William and Queen Mary, 1691." There is a Catholic chapel for soldiers and civilians. The Congregationalists and Wesleyans have places of worship. Here are barracks capable of holding two batteries of artillery and one company of infantry, with a good parade-ground and several acres for manœuvring the batteries, and a small garrison hospital. The Royal Pavilion, now used as officers' quarters, was erected for George III. when the invasion of England was threatened by Napoleon I. There are also very large Government powder magazines and stores. The interest of about £300 is distributed to the poor; the poor's land is let in allotments, and the church land yields about £11 a year for repairs.

Weedon Loys, pa. and vil., S. Northants, 7 w. of Towcester; ac. 2,240; soil various. The church of St. Peter and St. Mary is an ancient cruciform building. There are some small charities and a reading-room.

Weeford, pa., tp., and vil., near Watling Street, S. Staffs., 4 S.S.E. of Lichfield; ac. of pa. 4,556, of tp. 2,645; soil various, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; the chancel window contains some rare stained glass, brought from the Duke of Orleans' private chapel, near Paris, during the French revolution of 1793, and represents Pontius Pilate washing his hands in exculpation of his share in the condemnation of Christ.

Week-, for places not found under this spelling, see also WICK- and WYKE-.

Week (1), ha., pa. of St. Mary Bourne (q.v.), W. Hants, 4 N.E. of Andover.

Week (2), ha., pa. of Glastonbury (q.v.), Mid Somerset, near Glastonbury to.

Week (3), ha., pa. of Stogursey (q.v.), W. Somerset, 6½ N.W. of Bridgwater.

Week (4), ha., pa. of Brent, South (q.v.), Mid Somerset, about 7 S.W. of Axbridge.

Week (5), ha., pa. of Binsted (q.v.), N.E. Hants, 2 N.E. of Alton.

Week Down, pl., pa. of Godshill (q.v.), I. of W., S. Hants, 2 N.W. of Ventnor.

Weeke, pa., W. Hants, a portion of which is within the boundaries of the city of Winchester; ac. 1,096; soil chalk and loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Matthew, commonly called St. Mary the Virgin, is a small Norm. structure of rubble with stone dressings; it contains a very curious brass, representing St. Christopher carrying Our Saviour, underneath a black-letter inscription to William Complyn (d. 1498) and Anness his wife. The Union House for Winchester stands within this pa. W. Manor, a brick mansion, pleasantly situated on the road leading from Winchester to Stockbridge, is a seat.

Weekley, pa. and vil., N. Northants, 2 N.E. of Kettering; ac. 1,540; soil clay, sand, and limestone, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1873) is E. Eng. Among the memorials are altar-tombs to Sir Edward Montagu (d. 1556) and to Sir Edward Montagu, son of the above (d. 1601); a monument to Lord Montagu of Boughton (d. 1644); a tablet to Dorothy Cotton (d. 1625); a slab to Elizabeth, Lady Lindsey (d. 1654); and the matrix of a brass effigy inscribed to Dame Anneys le Vavasour. W. has a Village Hall, a Lending Library, and a Club. Here are some small charities, an endowed Free school (built in 1624), and the Montagu Hospital, founded in 1611, for seven poor men. Boughton House, a seat, is a Queen Anne mansion of curious design. It contains some interesting portraits of the Montagu family, and of Edward VI., Queen Elizabeth, and others; some by Vandyke, Kneller, and Dutch painters; there are also two cartoons, possibly by Raphael, and some fine tapestries. Some of the ceilings are painted by Verrio, and there is some interesting old furniture. The park is famous for its noble avenues.

Week Orchard, ha., pa. of and 2½ N. from Week St. Mary (q.v.), N. Cornw.

Week St. Germans. [GERMANSWEEK.]

Week St. Mary, pa. and agricultural vil., N. Cornw., 7 S. of Stratton; ac. 5,824; soil and subsoil principally clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1880) is E. Eng. and Perp.; in the north aisle, once a chantry dedicated to St. John the Baptist, a piscina and fragments of an altar remain; in the north wall are the rood-loft stairs. Here is a Wesleyan Association chapel and one for Bible Christians. The poor have the rent of 2 roods of land, producing £3 annually. Fairs are held here on July 29, Sept. 15, and the Wednesday before Christmas Day. This was a place of considerable importance in earlier times, and its history is rendered interesting through an incident which occurred in the 14th cent. It is related that Thomas Bunsby, a London merchant, chancing to meet with Thomasine Bonaventure, a cottage girl of this place, entered into conversation with her, and eventually took her to London with him, where she became a member of his household, and on the death of his wife he married her; after having been twice a widow, she married Sir John Percival, Lord Mayor of London in 1498, whom she also survived, and eventually returned to her native vil. and spent the remainder of her life in acts of benevolence, and founded a chantry and a seminary. A portion of an embattled wall, still in existence and called "the college," is supposed to be the remains of Dame Thomasine Percival's chantry. There are two ancient earthworks in the pa.

Week St. Pancras. [PANCRASWEEK.]

Weel, tp. and vil. on the Hull, pa. of Beverley St. John (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., about 2 E. of Beverley by road and 1 E. by ferry; ac. 1,139. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Weeley, pa. and vil., N.E. Essex, 12 S.W. of Harwich; ac. 2,064; soil clay and loam. The church of St. Andrew was rebuilt 1881, in Perp.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Weedon Loys	Wappingham (1½)	71	397
Weeford, pa.	Lake Street (2)	120	417
Weeford, tp.	Lake Street (2)	120	213
Weeke	Alton (2)	47	2549

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Weekley	Kettering (2)	72	264
Week St. Mary	Tresmere (7)	231	548
Weel	Beverley (2½)	203	120
Weeley	Weeley	63	623

style. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and the school has a small endowment. Near the church are the iron gates of the old hall. Hill Side House and W. Manor House are seats.

Weel, The, large pool in the upper course of the Tees, between Westmd. and Yorks., 10 w. by N. of Middleton-in-Teesdale. The W. is a very still mountain pool, about 1½ mile long and extremely deep. At its lower extremity is the fine waterfall called Caldron Snout.

Weem, extensive Highland pa., W. Perths., Sc., formerly in various detached portions, but now consolidated; ac. previous to the alteration of the boundary 41,887. The vil. on the Tay is about 2 W. of Aberfeldy terminal station. The Episcopal church (St. David's) is in Norm. style. There are many objects of interest in the immediate vicinity. Near the church is the seat of Castle Menzies, a handsome building with lofty turrets, surrounded by fine plantations, pleasure-grounds, and orchards.

Weethley, pa., S.W. Warws., 3 S.W. of Alcester; ac. 550; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. James (rebuilt 1857–58) is in Dec. style.

Weeting, pa. on the Little Ouse, S.W. Norf., on the borders of Suff., adjoining Brandon; ac. 6,187; soil light and sandy, overlying chalk and sand. There were anciently two churches here, but that of All Saints was demolished in the 18th cent. by the falling in of the tower, and some of the ruins are still to be seen in the park. The remaining church of St. Mary is Dec The Devil's Dyke borders the pa. for about 3 miles on the north-west, Grimes Graves.

and there is an ancient mound or parapet of earth extending from the Ouse to Didlington. In the pa. are "Grimes graves," of which a scientific examination was made in 1870 by the Rev. Canon Greenwell; the main object of the examination was to test the conclusion that these works are the remains of an ancient British vil., when the primitive people of the period lived in dwellings partly sunk into the ground. The "graves," of which there are more than a hundred, are circular in form, situated in a wild and desolate locality; large numbers of animal bones have been turned up, also the horns of the red and the roe deer, the teeth of a small ox, goats, swine and dog, and other objects of interest. Sufficient was done to satisfy Canon Greenwell that "Grimes graves" are not the remains of a British vil., but ancient flint quarries, the pits having evidently been worked for some such purpose, no doubt in prehistoric times. In the flint quarries at Bromehill numerous flint implements of the earliest type, similar to the well-known St. Acheul specimens, have been found, with the bones of extinct species of animals. Here are the remains of a castle built in the 11th cent. by William de Warrenne, Earl of Warrenne and Surrey, and son-in-law of the Conqueror. The priory of Bromehill (or Bromwell) was founded here, in the time of King John, for Augustinian canons, and dedicated to SS. Mary and Thomas the Martyr; it was granted to Cardinal Wolsey, and intended by him as part of the endowment for his college at Ipswich, but was afterwards given to Christ's College, Cambridge. W. Hall, in an extensive park surrounded by plantations, is a seat Weeton (1), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Harewood (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N.E. of Otley; ac. 1,325. The church of St. Barnabas (1852) is in E. Eng style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £20 yearly. The Great Almes cliff, an immense mass of singularly shaped rock, is 1½ N.E.

Weeton (2), eccl. pa. and tp. (Weeton-with-Preese), pa. of and 4 N.W. from Kirkham (q.v.), W. Lancs. The church of St. Michael (1848) is in E. Eng. style.

Weeton (3), ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Welwick (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.

Weeton-with-Preese. [WEETON (2).]

Weetslade, ha., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Longbenton (q.v.), S.E. Northumb.

Weighton (or Weeton), Little, ha. with railway station, pa. of Rowley (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 7½ W. of Hull. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Weighton, Market. [MARKET WEIGHTON.]

Weir. [VIERA.]

Weir, Bridge of. [BRIDGE OF WEIR.]

Weir, The, eccl. pa. in the bor. of Bristol (q.v.), S. Glouc. The church of St. Matthias is in Dec style.

Weisdale, ancient pa., now incorporated in the pa. of Tingwall (q.v.), Mainland, Mid Shetld., Sc., 10 N.N.W. of Lerwick. The dis. comprises the north portion of the pa., extending inland from W. Voe, which penetrates the island for about 6 miles S. by E. A spot sacred to the Virgin, where formerly stood a church, was, and perhaps still is, visited by devout supplicants.

Wel-, for places not found under this spelling also WIL- and WELL-.

Welbeck, pa., W. Notts., 4 S.W. of Worksop; ac. 2,670 and 128 water. The pa. consists chiefly of W. Abbey and Park, the beautiful seat of the Duke of Portland, the main approach to which is by a magnificent drive; previously the chief approach was through a tunnel 2 miles long, passing under

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weem	Aberfeldy (1)	478	437
Weethley	Alcester (3)	121	37
Weeting	Brandon (2)	86	278
Weeton (1), ec. pa.	Weeton (1)	205	440
Weeton (1), tp.	Weeton (1)	205	304

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weeton (2), ec. pa.	Kirkham (4)	217	87
Weeton (2), tp.	Kirkham (4)	217	3[illegible]
Weir, The	Bristol	118	300
Welbeck	Worksop (3½)	147	71

the lake and lighted with gas, as well as by openings in the roof; the mansion is a structure of considerable extent, in varied styles of architecture, but is not externally attractive; the south front, of three storeys, is Italian, and has two boldly projecting square towers, the whole being finished with balustraded parapets; the east front, overlooking the lake, rises from a broad terrace with a double flight of steps to the lawns below, and exhibits a series of Tudoresque gables, agreeably breaking the long line of the roof; the west front is in a semi-castellated style and includes a large square embattled tower on which a flag is displayed. The fifth duke (d. 1879) had held possession of the estate since 1854, and during that period, while living almost wholly in retirement, expended vast sums of money in laying out the grounds, erecting farm buildings and lodges, and in constructing those subterranean apartments and corridors which have rendered W. unique and famous; extending in all directions from the abbey are some miles of wide underground passages; through one or two of these passages is reached the fine apartment formerly known as the riding school, but now converted into an art gallery. Other underground apartments are the library and the "ball room," now used as a picture gallery. The interior of the mansion contains a large Gothic hall, restored in 1751, and remarkable for its fan-traceried ceiling and elaborate decorations. Of the many buildings outside the abbey the most remarkable are the riding-school and the hunting stables. The extensive park, a portion of Sherwood Forest, abounds with deer and contains several venerable specimens of forest trees, among which may be specially named the Porter oaks, standing one on each side of the roadway, and the Green Dale oak, an ancient tree whose hollow trunk, carefully propped, still supports one huge and living branch; of seven other remarkable oaks, formerly known as "The Seven Sisters," only one now remains. The lakes include several fine sheets of water, upwards of 4 miles in length; the gardens are also of considerable extent and beauty.

WELBECK ABBEY FROM THE WEST.
(Photo. G. W. Wilson and Co., Aberdeen.)

Welborne, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 6½ S.E. of East Dereham; ac. 732; soil mixed, overlying brick-earth and clay. There is a good brick yard, manufacturing bricks, pavements and drain pipes. The church of All Saints, originally E. Eng., has Dec. windows, a south porch of Perp. date, and a modern chancel. The poor's land lets for £8 15s. a year, which is distributed in money.

Welbourn, pa. and vil., S. Lincs., 12 S. of Lincoln; ac. 3,211; soil fine strong loam, heath and stiff clay, overlying shale and clay. The church of St. Chad (restored 1884) is E. Eng., Dec. and Perp.; the south porch has canopied and crocketed buttresses, and is of excellent design. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Manor House is now occupied by a farmer.

Welburn (1), tp. and vil., pa. of and 2 E. from Bulmer (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 750. Here is a chapel-of-ease and a Wesleyan chapel. In this pa. is a reformatory school for juvenile offenders.

Welburn (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Kirkdale (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5 E. of Helmsley; ac. 1,681.

Welbury, pa. and vil., N.R. Yorks., 7 N.E. of Northallerton; ac. 4,129; soil clayey, overlying clay. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1887) is E. Eng.

Welby (1), pa. and vil., S. Lincs., about 4 E. by N. of Grantham; ac. 2,673; soil oreech land, subsoil stony. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1887) is E. Eng. and Perp. In the churchyard is a 14th-cent. gravestone, with the bust of a lady in relief, within a deeply recessed quatrefoil; another opening at the bottom shows her feet, and on one side is an infant in a shroud. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. A school and four almshouses, for as many poor persons, were founded in 1780. Of the interest of £1,600 Consols, bequeathed in the early part of the eighteenth century, £15 goes to the school, £10 for apprenticing a poor boy, and the remainder is distributed in clothing to poor parishioners.

Welby (2), tp., pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Melton Mowbray (q.v.), E. Leics.; ac. 1,177. The chapel is a small building in E. Eng. style.

Welch, for words not found under this spelling see also WELSH.

Welches Dam, pa. (formerly extra-parochial), N. Cambs., 5 E. of Chatteris; ac. 2,310; soil fen land, overlying clay. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Welchtown, small vil., pa. of Kilteevoge (q.v.), E. co. Don., Ir., 5 N.W. of Stranorlar. Here is a National school.

Welcombe (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Dev., on the borders of Cornw., about 16 S.W. of Bideford; ac. 1,751; soil light, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Nectan (restored 1883–84) dates from the 12th or 13th cent., and retains a beautifully carved oak screen. Over the arches of the transepts is some interesting carved work, representing on one side the fruitful vine, and on the other the barren fig-tree. Outside the churchyard gate is an ancient Holy Well. The Rev. R. S. Hawker (1753–1827), poet and antiquary, was 30 years curate here. The valleys and cliffs bordering on this pa. are extremely

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Welborne	Hardingham (3)	116	155
Welbourn	Leadenham (1)	118	546
Welburn (1)	Castle Howard (1)	204	480
Welburn (2)	Kirby Moorside (1)	225	125
Welbury	Welbury	223	217
Welby (1)	Grantham (4)	105	376
Welby (2)	Melton Mowbray (2½)	105	51
Welches Dam	Mar·a (2½)	80	141
Welcombe (1)	Bideford (16)	220	193 picturesque. W. Mouth and Marsland Valley, referred to in Charles Kingsley's "Westward Ho!" are especially noted for their wild and enchanting scenery.

Welcombe (2), pl., pa. of Old Stratford (q.v.), S.W. Warws., about 1 N. of Stratford-on-Avon. It was once the scene of conflicts between the Britons and Danes; large entrenchments—the Dingles—are still to be seen. At W. Lodge, now dismantled, the Combes, who were friends of Shakespeare, formerly resided. On its site stands a modern mansion in Elizabethan style.

Weldon, Great, pa., tp., and vil., N. Northants, 8 W.N.W. of Oundle; ac. of pa. 3,725, of tp. 1,286; soil clayey, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. Here is a Congregational chapel. There are several charities, of £30 yearly value, for food and clothing. In the pa. are extensive freestone quarries, said to have been worked by the Romans. The market has fallen into disuse, and the market-house has been pulled down. Four fairs were formerly held, but all are obsolete except one, on the Thursday following the second Sunday in July. In an enclosure called "Chapel Fields" the pavement of a Roman villa and a great number of coins of the Lower Empire, besides some of Constantine, Constans and Magnentius, were discovered in 1738.

Weldon, Little, tp., pa. of Great Weldon (q.v.), N. Northants, about 8 W.N.W. of Oundle; ac. 1,286.

Welford (1), pa. and large vil., Mid Northants, on the Avon, which here separates the co. from Leics., 14 N.N.W. of Northampton; ac. 3,063; soil mixed, with good gravel and clay, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1872) is E. Eng. and Perp.; the south aisle retains a fine Dec. piscina; there are a few tablets and an ancient marble monument, with brass effigies and inscription in verse, to Francis Saunders (d. 1585), his three wives and nine children, and the allusive motto, "Franck et saine counseil." There is a Congregational chapel and a vil. reading-room, built in 1870, with a library of 1,000 volumes. The rent of 30 ac. of land, let in allotments, is distributed to the poor on St. Thomas's Day, and there are also about 20 ac. vested in trustees for the benefit of the poor; other charities, amounting together to about £7 yearly, are for fuel and clothing. Hemploe Hall is a seat.

Welford (2), pa. on the Lambourn, S.W. Berks., 5 N.W. of Newbury; ac. 5,228; soil and subsoil gravel. The church of St. Gregory, dating from Saxon times, was partially rebuilt in 1855, and retains a curious tower. The chancel is E. Eng., and contains sedilia; the font is Norm., with traces of E. Eng. work; the north aisle is E. Eng., the south Dec., and the tower arch Norm. There is an altar-tomb to Anne Parry, a brass to John Westlake (d. 1489), another to John Younge (c. 1530), and monuments to the Archer, Mundy, and other families. In the churchyard there is an ancient cross. Thomas Sheaf (d. 1639), author of "A Plea for Old Age," was rector here. Roman coins and other relics have been found.

Welford (3), pa. and vil., N.E. Glouces. and partly in S. Warws., and bounded on the east, north, and west by the Avon, 4 S.W. of Stratford-on-Avon; ac. 2,797; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter, anciently called "Holy Trinity" (restored 1885), is Norm. and later. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some small charities.

Welham (1), pa. on the Welland, S. Leics., 4 S.E. of Market Harborough; ac. 1,143; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew is Dec., and contains an 18th-cent. marble monument. There are some small charities.

Welham (2), ha., pa. of and about a mile from Norton (q.v.), E.R. Yorks. W. Park, a handsome building standing on an acclivity, was burnt down in 1884 and rebuilt.

Welham (3), vil., pa. of Clarborough (q.v.), N. Notts., 1 N.E. of East Retford. W. Hall is a seat.

Well (1), pa., tp., and vil., N.R. Yorks., 8 S. of Ripon; ac. of pa. 6,690, of tp. 2,000; soil clayey, overlying clay and limestone. The church of St. James (restored 1854) is Dec. At the east end of the south chapel is an altar-tomb (with recumbent effigy in stone) to Sir John Nevill, fourth and last Baron Latimer (d. 1577). In the south aisle there is an alto-relievo mural monument in white marble, by Westmacott, to Lady Margaret Miltank (d. 1852); there is also an altar-tomb (with brass) to Lady Dorothy Nevill (1526). The Wesleyans have a chapel. Here is a hospital, with a chapel attached, dedicated to St. Michael (restored in 1883), for eight poor men and eight poor women. Holly Hill, a castellated building, is a seat.

Well (2), pa. and pleasant vil., E. Lincs., 1½ S. by W. of Alford; ac. 1,562; soil and subsoil clay and marl. The church of St. Margaret, on a wooded eminence in Well Vale Park, is in Classic style. A fine spring rises within the pa. and discharges itself into the sea at Anderby Creek. Near here, in 1725, two urns were found, containing some hundreds of Roman coins. W. Vale, a spacious mansion in a romantic and well-wooded valley, and surrounded by a park of 170 ac., is a seat.

Well (3), ha., pa. of Ickham (q.v.), E. Kent, near Littlebourne. There are ruins of the chapel which formerly existed here.

Welland (1), pa. and vil., S.W. Worcs., 9 N.E. of Tewkesbury; ac. 1,977; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. James is in E. Dec. style. There is a church mission-room and a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £14 a year.

Welland (2), river of Leics., Northants, Rutld., and Lincs., rises at Sibbertoft, in Northants, near the Leics. border. The general direction of its course is north-east, dividing Northants on its south bank from Leics., Rutlds., and a portion of Lincs. (from Tinwell to Crowland), after which it flows through Lincs. to the Wash. It runs by or through the tos. of Market Harborough, Stamford, Market Deeping, Crowland, and Spalding. Its

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weldon, Great, pa.	Weldon (1½)	80	759
Weldon, Great, tp.	Weldon (1½)	80	290
Weldon, Little	Weldon (1½)	80	469
Welford (1)	Welford (3)	92	882
Welford (2)	Newbury (5)	53	855
Welford (3)	Milcote & Weston(1)	107	591

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Welham (1)	Ashley & Weston(2)	89	60
Well (1), pa.	Bedale (5)	226	823
Well (1), tp.	Bedale (5)	226	534
Well (2)	Alford (1½)	130	708
Welland (1)	Upton-on-Severn(1½)	172	851

earlier part of its course is through an open champaign country, but after passing Stamford (where it becomes navigable) it traverses the fens. It passes by several finely wooded parks, amongst which that of Burghley House, opposite Stamford, is by far the most extensive and picturesque. At Crowland a branch of the river, now covered in, was formerly crossed by a very curious old bridge, still standing. Seven miles north-east of Spalding and the same distance south of Boston it enters the Fosdyke Wash, at the south-west extremity of the Wash. The navigation of the river below Crowland has been improved by means of embankments and artificial cuts. Its length is about 70 miles.

Wellesbourne, pa. and vil. on the Bourne, S. Warws., 6 S. of Warwick; ac. 4,606; soil variable, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Peter (largely rebuilt 1847) is E. Eng. and Perp., with traces of Norm. work, and contains a brass to Sir Thomas le Strange (temp. Henry IV.). Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Wellesbourne Hastings, tp., pa. of Wellesbourne (q.v.), S. Warws., 6 S. of Warwick; ac. 2,953.

Wellesbourne Mountford, tp., pa. of Wellesbourne (q.v.), S. Warws., 6 S. of Warwick; ac. 1,653. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Manor House is a seat.

Wellhaugh, tp., pa. of Falstone (q.v.), S.W. Northumb., about 9 W. of Bellingham; ac. 33,578 and 229 water.

Wellhope, ha., pa. of Stanhope (q.v.), W. Dur., 2 W. of Heathery Cleugh.

Welling, vil. at the foot of Shooter's Hill, pas. of Bexley and East Wickham (q.v.), N.W. Kent, about 3 S.E. of Woolwich. W. has a mission church and an endowed school. The grounds of Danson Park were laid out by "Capability" Brown.

Wellingborough, pa., mkt. and U. to., and head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., E. Northants, situated on the declivity of a hill near the junction of the Ise with the Nen, 10½ N.E. of Northampton; ac. 3,785. A promenade on the east side of the high road, planted with lime trees, extends from the to. to the North-Western Railway station. The air is healthy and the water particularly good; the red well and other chalybeate springs were once of great note, and the former was visited by Charles I. and his Queen in 1626, in order to drink of its waters. The church of St. Luke, nearly in the centre of the to., is Norm., E. Eng. and later; the inner doorway of the south porch is Norm.; the aisles are divided from the chancel by a fine Perp. oak screen; the roof of the south chapel displays some elaborate paintings symbolic of the four Evangelists and the instruments of the Passion. W. has also an eccl. pa. with a church in Dec. style, a chapel-of-ease, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The grammar schools were founded in 1595; the trust was reconstituted in 1876 to include an Upper Grammar and a Third Grade school. The Corn Exchange (1861) occupies a prominent position in the market square, the south front has a clock tower surmounted by a cupola and containing an illuminated clock; it comprises a large hall in which the corn market, musical entertainments and public meetings are held, and the Literary and Scientific Institute has spacious and comfortable reading and news rooms. The Co. Police Station (1867) consists of petty sessions room, waiting and witnesses' rooms, an inspector's house, and quarters for constables. The Co. Co. is now held here. There are Conservative, Liberal and Working Men's Clubs. W. is situated in the midst of an exceptionally fertile agricultural dis., and the staple industry, the leather trade, has been completely revolutionised by the introduction of the shoe-upper trade; there are many spacious factories devoted principally to the getting up of boot uppers for home and foreign use, while the machine shops where the uppers are closed (for the trade) are exceedingly numerous. In 1854 a very important occupation was introduced here in the raising and smelting of iron ore, the beds of which are very extensive and easily worked; the greater part of the ironstone raised is conveyed into Yorks., Staffs., Derbys. and Wales, since it is found more remunerative to take the ore into the coal districts for smelting purposes than to fuse it on the spot. The cattle market is an ancient one, and was enlarged in 1875; the market is held every Wednesday. Fairs are held in the market square on Wednesday in Easter week, Wednesday in Whitsun week, and Oct. 29 for cattle and pleasure. The charities include an annual sum of about £240 for church purposes, and of £766 yearly for education; the Orlebar charity of £20 yearly, derived from houses and land, is distributed in blankets; the charities for bread amount to about £13 yearly, and £12 yearly is distributed in money. In 948 Ædred, King of Mercia, gave the church at W. with 700 ac. of land to Croyland Abbey. The Hall or Manor House of the abbots of Croyland, said to have been originally erected by Abbot Richard in 1281, was subsequently converted into a dwelling-house; part of the moat, supplied by adjacent springs, still remains; the tithe barn is also standing. Hatton Hall, a gabled building of stone in the Tudor style, is a seat.

Wellingham (1), pa., Mid Norf., 6 N. of Fransham; ac. 1,056; soil various, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng. The poor have £19 yearly, distributed in coals.

Wellingham (2), ha., pa. of Ringmer (q.v.), S. Sussex, 4 N. of Lewes. W. House is a seat.

Wellingley. [STANCILL WITH WELLINGLEY AND WILSECK.]

Wellingore, pa. and large populous vil., W. Lincs., commanding extensive views of the surrounding country, 10 S. of Lincoln; ac. 2,993; soil light loam, overlying shale. The church of All Saints (restored 1878) is Trans., Dec. and Perp.; the chancel retains a Trans. piscina and Norm. sedilia in good preservation, and has a low window on the south side; the benches have good poppy heads; the font is a curious example of coarse Perp. work; in the north aisle is an altar-tomb with alabaster effigies of a knight in armour and his lady, supposed to represent Richard de Buslingthorpe and Isabella (St. George), his wife, through whom he acquired the manor of W.; there is a mural monument to one of the Wingfields dated 1575, and a brass to a member of

Place.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wellesbourne	Stratford-on-Av'n (5	101	1345
Wellesbourne H.	Stratford-on-Av'n (5	101	672
Wellesbourne M.	Stratford-on-Av'n (5	101	673
Wellhaugh	Plashetts (1)	319	250

Place.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wellingborough	Wellingborough	65	15068
Wellingham (1)	Raynham Park (4)	115	118
Wellingore	Navenby (1)	121	602

the Ellis family (d. 1637). The Wesleyans have a chapel. The poor have a yearly rent-charge of £4, and the interest of £20 is distributed yearly. In the centre of the vil. are some remains of a cross of the 14th cent. Hill House and W. Hall are seats.

Wellington (1), pa., U. and mkt. to. (TH.), head of a petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., W. Somerset, about 7 S.W. of Taunton, on the road to Exeter; ac. 5,132. The to. is about ¾ mile in length, and is composed of five streets, named High Street, Fore Street, Mantle Street, and South and North Streets respectively. The church of St. John the Baptist is a Perp. edifice of stone, of the 15th cent. There is a very fine western arch, nearly 40 ft. in height; the west window is Debased Perp. The east window of the chapel on the south side has on its centre mullion a tall bracket, and above it a singular crucifix in which the cross is budding into five lilies. There is a magnificent altar-tomb, with an arched canopy supported by shafts of black marble, beneath which are effigies of Sir John Popham, Kt. (d. June 10, 1607), Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 1592–1607, and of Amy (Gaines) his wife, with numerous other figures kneeling. The chancel was rebuilt in 1848, and on removing the floor of the sacrarium it was found to be composed in part of fragments of stone covered with fine sculptured work, coloured and gilt, which had been much defaced and then reversed to form the pavement; these sculptures appear to have originally belonged to a reredos of elaborate design, erected somewhat earlier than 1400, and arranged in a regular series of panels, containing a group of the Crucifixion and many figures of saints. On the nave gable is a bold but elegant cross. Some traces of the E. Norm. church have been found in carved work built into the walls. Trinity Church is a modern stone edifice, and there are several Nonconformist places of worship. The Market House or Town Hall is a building of stone, erected in 1833; the upper part consists of a room used for public meetings and entertainments, and a smaller room (occupied by the W. Literary Institutes) containing a library of 1,400 volumes, and a reading-room; the lower portion forms a corn and provision market, with butchers' shambles in the rear. There is a Literary Institution and a Masonic Hall. The West Somerset County School, opened in April, 1880, and enlarged in 1888, occupies a range of buildings situated in South Street. W. has woollen factories, iron foundries, and brick and tile works. A cattle and sheep market is held here on the first Thursday in every month, and fairs are held the second Wednesday in March and first Wednesday in June. The H Company of the West Somerset Yeomanry Cavalry is stationed here, and the C Company of the 2nd Volunteer Battalion Prince Albert's Somerset Light Infantry have headquarters in South Street. Here is an almshouse for six poor and aged men and the like number of women, founded and endowed in 1606 by Sir John Popham, who was a great benefactor to this to.; it was rebuilt in 1833, and has a yearly income of £200. About 2½ S. of the to., on the summit of a hill, a monumental pillar has been erected in honour of the Duke of Wellington, who took his title from this to., and in commemoration of the victory obtained at Waterloo, June 18, 1815; the prospect from this eminence is very striking, and the column is visible for many miles around. Fozdown, Linden, Old Court, Shuteleigh, The Cleeve, and The Priory are seats.

Wellington (2), pa., U. and mkt. to. (TH. & S.), head of a petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., Mid Salop, about 11 E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 8,672. From this to. branches the line of the Great Western to Manchester through Market Drayton and Crewe, the branch to Much Wenlock, Craven Arms, and the Severn Valley dis., and the London and North-Western branch to Coalport; and there is communication with the Severn by means of the Shropshire Union Canal, which passes in the immediate neighbourhood. The pa. church of All Saints (built 1790) is in Classic style; Christ Church (built 1838) is in the E. Eng. style. The Roman Catholics have a place of worship, and there are Nonconformist chapels. The headquarters of a squadron of the Shropshire Yeomanry are at the Ercall Assembly Rooms in Market Street, and there is a Volunteer Drill Hall in King Street. The Old Hall, in Watling Street, is supposed to be one of the oldest houses in the co. There are agricultural-implement works, foundry and engineering works, and a timber and woodware manufactory. A cattle sale takes place every Monday in the Smithfield. W. has several charities, and the National and Parochial schools have endowments. Watling Street, so called from its being situated on the Roman road of that name, forms the eastern sub. to the to. The Wrekin (q.v.), about 2 miles from W., forms a conspicuous feature in the landscape.

Wellington (3), pa. and vil. delightfully situated in a vale, S. Herefords., 5½ N. of Hereford, on the road to Leominster; ac. 3,060; soil red loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Margaret, formerly dedicated to St. Mary (restored 1887), is Norm. and E. Eng. The chancel contains a monument to Sir Herbert Perrott (d. 1682). Six almshouses (restored 1887) for aged men were endowed in 1682 by Sir Herbert Perrott, and there are other charities.

Wellington (4), eccl. pa., pa. of Stoke-on-Trent (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., adjoining Hanley. The church of St. Luke (renovated 1874) is in E. Eng. style.

Wellington (or Western) Division (1), one of the seven parl. divs. of Somerset. It returns one member.

Wellington (or Mid) Division (2), one of the four parl. divs. of Salop. It returns one member.

Wellington Heath, eccl. pa., pa. of and 2 N. from Ledbury (q.v.), E. Herefords. Christ Church (enlarged 1878) is chiefly in E. Eng. style.

Wellow (1), pa. and large vil., Mid Notts., 2 S.W. of Kneesall; ac. 944; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Swithin (restored 1879) is Dec. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. A new Maypole was erected in 1887. The inhabitants are engaged in agricultural pursuits. The poor's land produces £7 yearly, which is dis-

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wellington (1)	Wellington	165	6808
Wellington (2), pa.	Wellington	153	12276
Wellington (2), to.	Wellington	153	5909
Wellington (3)	Moreton-on-Lug (2½)	147	613
Wellington (4)	Stoke-on-Trent	146	12275

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wellington Div. (1)	....	.....	48129
Wellington Div. (2)	....	.....	46229
Wellington Heath	Ledbury (2)	133	413
Wellow (1)	Tuxford (6)	132	325

tributed in money. Jordan Castle, a fortified house of Sir Jordan Foliot, son of Sir Richard Foliot, Kt. (temp. Henry III.), is now occupied by a farmer.

Wellow (2), pa. and vil., N.E. Somerset, 5 s. of Bath; ac. 5,292; soil brashy, overlying bastard freestone and blue lias. The church of St. Julian (restored 1845) is Norm., and contains a fine oak roof and several monuments to the Hungerford family. The Wesleyans and Free Methodists have chapels. The school has a small endowment. The pa. contains an ancient burying-place and the remains of a Roman villa. There is a coalpit. A fair is held on Oct. 17. The Manor House was built in 1634.

Wellow (3), ha., pa. of and 2 s.w. from Shalfleet (q.v.), I. of W., S. Hants.

Wellow, East, pa., W. Hants, 12 s.e. of Salisbury; ac. 2,518; soil sand and loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Margaret is chiefly E. Eng.; there is a priest's door and a low-side window, an aumbry, remains of a piscina in the chancel, and remains of ancient decorative work. Here is a small charity. Embley Park, a seat, is an Elizabethan building.

Wellow, West, pa. and vil., E. Wilts., 12 s.e. of Salisbury; ac. 1,397; soil sand and loam, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Margaret is situated in East Wellow (q.v.). Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels and a mission-room.

Wells (1), city, mun. bor., mkt. and assize to., head of petty sess. div., U. and Co. Co. dis., at the foot of the Mendip Hills, Mid Somerset, 20 s.w. of Bath. W. contains three pas.—St. Andrew (ac. 50), St. Cuthbert In (ac. 667), and St. Cuthbert Out (ac. 14,873). The first charter was granted by King John, and the bor. returned two members to Parliament from 1295, but lost its representation in 1868. W. owes its modern name to the springs or wells near the eastern end of the cathedral; in early times it was also known as "Welle," "Welliae," "Fonticuli," and other names, all having reference to its remarkable springs, the chief of which, known as "St. Andrew's well," still exists in the palace gardens. The civil history of W., confined chiefly to a few royal visits, is of inferior interest. After the defeat of Monmouth at Sedgemoor (1685) a large number of the prisoners taken in that battle were confined at W., and received temporal relief and spiritual counsel from Bishop Ken. W. is essentially an ecclesiastical city, perhaps the most remarkable of its kind in the world, and its existence and importance are almost wholly due to the religious foundations of which it was the seat. The noble cathedral is the great attraction to visitors, and, with its group of subordinate buildings, offers the most complete example of a secular cathedral (i.e. of the old foundation) now left. A fine view of the exterior is obtained from the south-east, across the moat and battlemented walls which surround the gardens of the episcopal palace, and from the Shepton Mallet road; and from the Close an admirable prospect is afforded of the three towers, the majestic west front with its superb screen, the noble chapter-house, and the unique chain bridge between the transept and the Vicars' College. The whole of the glorious west front, save the upper portion of the towers, was chiefly the work of Jocelin, Bishop of Bath and Wells (1205–41), and forms as a whole one of the most extraordinary examples of mediæval sculpture in Europe. The beautiful north porch has a parvise, lighted by lancets in the gable. On the east of the transept is a gallery passing from the chapter-house and above the chain gate to the Vicars' College. The central tower is of three stages, the topmost pierced for windows. The ground plan comprises a choir with transepts and semi-octagonal Lady chapel at the east end; great central transepts, with tower; octagonal chapter-house eastward of the north transept, with crypt below it; nave with western towers, north porch, and on the south side the cloisters, extending from the west front eastwards to the transept. The nave has a triforium of extreme height, and a deeply recessed clerestory and stone roof; but its most prominent feature consists in the double-curved stone arches, remarkable for their boldness of outline and massive construction. On the south side of the nave is a minstrels' gallery of Perp. date, and in the arcades are inserted two chantry chapels—Bishop Bubwith's on the north (1424), and Treasurer Sugar's (1489) on the south. The main transept has chapels with Perp. screens on the east side and sacristies on the west, and in the northern arm there remains the face of a curious astronomical clock, the original works of which, now in the South Kensington Museum, were constructed by Peter Lightfoot, a monk of Glastonbury, about the year 1325, and brought here from Glastonbury Abbey church at the Dissolution. The entrance to the choir is through a rood-screen of Dec. work, with arcading and a central doorway; it contains forty-one stone stalls, erected 1848–54, but retaining the ancient misereres of 1335. The windows contain a good deal of ancient stained glass. The cloisters form an irregular parallelogram to the south of the nave. Above the east alley is the library, containing an Aldine "Aristotle," with MS. notes by Erasmus. There are many interesting monuments, principally to ecclesiastics, and in the nave is a slab said to cover the remains of Ina, King of the West Saxons (d. c. 728), who is said to have built the first church here. The internal length of the cathedral is 388 ft., and the breadth of the nave 69 ft.; the central tower is 160 ft. in height, the western towers 130 ft.; and the west front, 235 ft. wide, was thoroughly repaired and restored in 1873. The precincts were formerly surrounded by lofty and massive walls, and the enclosure was entered through three gates of great strength and architectural beauty, all of which, though dilapidated, still remain; these gates, called respectively the Dean's Eye or Browne's Gate on the north-west, the Chain Gate (north), and Penniless Porch or the Bishop's Eye (south-west), were the work of Bishop Beckington (d. 1465). The Deanery, with its gatehouse, was built 1472–98; but much of the present structure was the work of Dean Gunthorp, about 1475. In 1498 King Henry VII. was entertained at the Deanery on the occasion of his march to suppress the rebellion headed by Perkin Warbeck, having with him, in W., an army of 30,000 men. The southern front was built

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wellow (2)	Wellow	138	1430
Wellow, East	Romsey (4)	79	322
Wellow, West	Romsey (4)	79	631
Wells (1)	Wells	126	4822

by Cornelius Burgess, D.D., a Puritan divine and the despoiler of the palace, who fixed his residence here; but at the Restoration the building was appropriated to its original use. A pastoral staff, with a jewelled head of Limoges enamel, and supposed to have belonged to Savaric (bishop 1192–1205), is preserved here. The Archdeaconry, originally of the time of Edward I., has a hall and timbered ceiling of the 15th cent., and there are portions of the same date in the Canonry house on the south-east. The Vicars' College, founded by Bishop Jocelin in 1230, forms a charming oblong court, and originally consisted of forty-two double-storeyed houses; the hall (1340), with Perp. additions, retains its pulpit and some mediæval furniture; on the north side is a chapel (1408–25), and a library added by Bishop Beckington. The Bishop's Palace is one of the most interesting examples of castellated baronial mansions, as well as of early domestic architectural art, now existing. The first foundation of the palace is attributed to Bishop John de Villula, about 1088. The E. Dec. chapel, built by Bishop Burnell (1274–92), has a central row of pillars and a stained east window, given by Bishop Law. In the great hall (120 ft. by 70 ft.), now in ruins, Abbot Whiting, of Glastonbury, was tried and infamously condemned to death (Nov. 14, 1539); and here Bishop Ken (1684–91) sat down to dinner every Sunday with his poor guests. Bishop Beckington repaired and beautified the palace, and added the drawbridge and gateway, as well as the great gate leading from the market-place, a quadrangular structure with octagonal turrets at the angles. At the north-east angle of the moat a little cascade marks the fall of the springs rising from the "bottomless well" of St. Andrew. The church of St. Cuthbert, originally a cruciform stone structure of E. Eng. date (c. 1240), is now mainly of the later 14th cent., exhibiting Perp. work with details of Dec. character. The chancel retains three sedilia, and a water-drain and aumbry on the south side, and on the north is a small door leading to the groined sacristy. The south transeptal chapel, dedicated to St. Cuthbert, contained a chantry, founded in 1403; and against the east wall are the remains of a defaced altar, with a reredos representing "the root of Jesse." In the north transeptal chapel of the Holy Trinity is a tabernacled altar of the 15th cent. and an earlier reredos, with two tiers of niches, discovered in 1848, with other ornamental portions and statues which had been built up or hidden beneath coats of plaster. W. has also an eccl. pa. with a modern church, Catholic convents (to one of which a church is attached), and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Theological College was founded (1840) by Bishop Law, and is now carried on in the old Archdeaconry House; the library has a fine open timber roof of the 15th cent. The Grammar School is said to have been founded in the 13th cent.; the Bluecoat School dates from 1654, but a revised scheme was approved by the Commissioners in 1889. The Town Hall, an inelegant structure, was erected in 1779, in place of an earlier edifice raised on pillars in the middle of the square and built by Bishop Knight (1541–3) and Dean Woolman; it includes spacious and convenient courts for the assizes and quarter sessions.

Wells Cathedral.

and in the rear is a gaol for the temporary confinement of prisoners; in the council chamber, a well-proportioned apartment, are several interesting portraits, and the walls are adorned with curious manuscripts of considerable local historical interest and value. The Market House (1835), adjoining the Town Hall, is a light and spacious structure. The market is held every Saturday, and a large monthly market for cheese and cattle on the first Saturday in every month. Fairs are held on the first Tuesday in January, May, November, and December. The County Lunatic Asylum consists of an extensive and substantial pile of buildings on the Bath road. The chief industries are the manufacture of brushes and paper-making. There are several groups of almshouses, with rich endowments, and numerous other charities. Near the Bishop's Palace are the Recreation Grounds, consisting of about 6 ac.

Wells (2), or Wells-next-the-Sea, pa. and coast to., N. Norf., 10 N. of Fakenham; ac. 2,690 and 1,820 water; soil very light, subsoil chalky. The Perp. church of St. Nicholas, almost entirely destroyed by fire in 1879, has since been completely restored on the former plan, the stones, where possible, being exactly replaced; above a fine doorway in the chancel is a brass (1499) to a former rector. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £550, net yearly value £670, including 157 ac. of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Pilling. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The trade is chiefly in barley, linseed cake, corn, coals, timber, salt, manure and malt, the latter being supplied in large quantities to the Burton and Dublin breweries. There are fisheries for oysters and mussels; and malthouses, rope walks, machine works and corn mills. An embankment one mile in length runs parallel with the channel from the quay to the beach, the top of which, being level and gravelled, affords a good promenade, with a carriage drive at its base. The boating and bathing facilities are excellent; there are lofty sand hills facing the sea, and a firm, sandy beach. The drives in the neighbourhood are very attractive, especially that in Holkham Park, which, by the kindness of the Earl of Leicester, is open to the public. In 1885 a spacious hall of red brick was erected by the Oddfellows Society (U.), in which entertainments and public meetings are held. A fair is held on Shrove Tuesday, and there are cattle sales on alternate Mondays. Here is a lifeboat station. The charities, amounting to about £300 yearly, are now distributed in accordance with a scheme of the Charity Commissioners.

Wells (3), pa. on the Barrow, partly in Idrone West bar., W. co. Carlow, Ir., and partly in Gowran bar., E. co. Kilk., Ir., 3 S.W. of Bagenalstown; ac. 2,730. It contains the mkt. to. of Leighlin Bridge (q.v.). There are a Catholic church and a National school.

Wells (4), vil., pa. of Killincooly (q.v.), E. co. Wexf., Ir., 7 S.E. of Ferns.

Wellsborough, ha., pa. of Sibson (q.v.), S.W. Leics., 2⅛ W. of Market Bosworth.

Wells Division, one of the seven parl. divs. of Somerset; it returns one member.

Wellshotthill, north-west part of Cambuslang (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc., 1¾ E.S.E. of Rutherglen.

Wells-next-the-Sea. [WELLS (2).]

Wells, St. Andrew. [WELLS (1).]

Wells, St. Cuthbert In. [WELLS (1).]

Wells, St. Cuthbert Out. [WELLS (1).]

Wellwood (1), vil., pa. of and 1¼ N.N.W. from Dunfermline (q.v.), S.W. Fifes., Sc. Here is a colliery.

Wellwood (2), vil. on the Ayr, pa. of and 3 W. by S. from Muirkirk (q.v.), W. Ayrs., Sc. There is a seat of the same name.

Welnetham, Great, pa. and vil. on the Lark, N.W. Suff., 3½ S.E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 1,493; soil loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is E. Eng. In the chapel of St. Thomas the Martyr here were placed before the second year of Edward I. (1273) a prior and convent of the Crouched (or Crossed) Friars, subordinate to the principal house of that order near the Tower of London.

Welnetham, Little, pa., N.W. Suff., about 3½ S. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 592; soil mixed, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (restored 1880) is E. Eng.; it has an open timber single hammer-beam roof of rather late Perp. work; eastward of the chancel may be traced the formation of a semicircular apse, probably the remains of a Norm. church.

Welney, pa. and vil., partly in the Isle of Ely, N. Cambs., and partly in S.W. Norf., 13 S.E. of Wisbech; ac. 5,444; soil clay and fen, overlying clay. For civil purposes the Cambs. and Norf. portions are distinct. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (1848) is in E. Eng. style. Here are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. Marshall's charity has a net income of about £500 a year, of which one-third is given to the widows in the pa., and two-thirds are appropriated to the church, the schools and the roads.

Welsh Bicknor, pa. on the Wye, S. Herefords., about 5 S. of Ross; ac. 889; soil sandy and loamy, overlying rock and clay. The church of St. Margaret, rebuilt 1858–59, on the foundations of the old church, is a small but beautiful building in Norm. and E. Eng. styles; the walls are unusually massive, and the interior is enriched with bold carving in alabaster and Caen stone. A niche in the east wall of the aisle contains an effigy said to represent the Countess of Salisbury, nurse to Henry V. Courtfield, a seat, is celebrated as having been the home of Henry V. during his childhood; it is now an Elizabethan mansion, with a Roman Catholic chapel attached, surrounded by a park.

Welsh Frankton, eccl. pa., pas. of Ellesmere and Whittington (q.v.), W. Salop, 2½ S.W. of Ellesmere. The church of St. Andrew is in Dec. style. There

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wells (2)	Wells	128	2555
Wells (3)	Bagenalstown (3)	67	749
Wells Division	.....	.....	55581
Wellshotthill	Cambuslang	397	358
Wells, St. Andrew	Wells	126	4464
Wells, St. Cuth. In	Wells	126	3498
Wells, St. Cuth. Out	Wells	126	872
Wellwood (1)	Dunfermline (1)	433	590
Welnetham, Great	Welnetham	73	362
Welnetham, Little	Welnetham	73	174
Welney	Manea (2½)	80	1079
Welsh Bicknor	Lydbrook (½)	135	135
Welsh Frankton	Ellesmere (2½)	182	490

are Congregational and Methodist chapels, and a Free church.

Welsh Hampton, pa. and vil. on the Ellesmere Canal, W. Salop, 2½ E. of Ellesmere on the road to Whitchurch; ac. 1,511; soil chiefly loam and gravel, overlying gravel. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (built 1863) is in Gothic style. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Welsh Harp, pl., pa. of Hendon (q.v.), E. Middx., in north-west vicinity of London, 7 N.W. of St. Paul's. The "Old Welsh Harp" inn, well supplied with tea-gardens and similar attractions, is a favourite resort of Londoners, especially on Bank holidays. Hard by is the Brent reservoir or "Kingsbury Lake," about 350 ac. in extent, from which is drawn the water for the locks of the Regent's Canal. The fishing, which is preserved, is excellent, and the lake is also a favourite resort of skaters.

Welsh Newton, pa., S. Herefords., 8 S.W. of Ross; ac. 1,493; soil loamy, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Mary is Norm. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Pembridge Castle, built prior to the 13th cent., is now a farmhouse.

Welshpool, parl. and mun. bor., pa. and mkt. to. (M.), on the Severn and Montgomery Canal, N.E. Montgoms., 15 S. by E. of Oswestry; ac. of mun. bor. 20,426; of pa. 6,801. The "pool," from which the to. takes its name, is a small lake in the park of Powis Castle on the south side of the to. Locally the syllable "Welsh" is usually omitted. The to. is mentioned as far back as the beginning of the 12th cent. Its growth was due mainly to its proximity to Powis Castle. It was represented in Parliament from 1536 to 1728, regained its political privileges in 1832, and now belongs to the Montgomery dis.

POWIS CASTLE.
(Photo. Hudson.)

of bors. The municipal rights granted by the lords of Powis were confirmed by James I. in 1614, and the citizens received a fuller charter from Charles II. It is virtually the co. to., the assizes, sessions, and Co. Cos. being held here. The streets are broad and regular, lined with substantial, well-built brick houses, which give the place a very prosperous appearance. The church of St. Mary (partly rebuilt 1774 and restored and much altered 1871) is an ancient Gothic edifice with a massive tower and a fine Dec. east window; it contains a handsome monument to Earl Powis (d. 1848), and among the articles of plate is a golden chalice with an interesting Latin inscription, presented in 1662 by Thomas Davies, Governor of the Colonies in Africa, as a token of gratitude for the preservation of his health. Christ Church (1839) is in Norm. style. The other places of worship include a Roman Catholic church, and Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The Town Hall, a spacious brick edifice with a clock tower, is situated in the middle of the to. The Powysland Museum has good collections of shells and local fossils, stone implements, and sundry Roman antiquities; adjoining it are an antiquarian library and a news-room, and there is a School of Science and Art in connection with the institution. W. also contains a free library. A church-house, in memory of Earl Powis, was erected in 1893. An ancient mound on the opposite side of the canal, now converted into a bowling-green, is said to have been erected during the Anglo-Saxon period to guard the river. The to. is an agricultural centre, and malting and tanning are carried on largely. The flannel manufacture, which was formerly important, has to a great extent migrated to Newtown (q.v.). Powis Castle, the seat of the Earl of Powis, stands on a platform of rock commanding a magnificent view over a wide tract of country. Its walls are of red sandstone, and hence it is known among the Welsh as Castell Coch ("red castle"). They are believed to date, at least in part, from the 13th cent., but the interior was reconstructed about the beginning of the 17th cent. There is a gallery of late 17th-cent. date, communicating with a bedroom which remains as it was when fitted up for Charles II. The park, which is open to the public, contains some magnificent oaks.

Welsh St. Donats, pa., S.E. Glamorgs., 2 E.N.E. of Cowbridge; ac. 2,263. The church of St. Donat (restored 1891) is E. Eng.

Welsh Whittle, tp., pa. of Chorley (q.v.), Mid Lancs., 1¾ N.W. of Coppull; ac. 596. Here are some collieries. There is a charity of £78 yearly.

Welton (1), pa. and vil., S. Northants, 2 N. of Daventry; ac. 1,881; soil red loam, overlying clay. The Grand Junction Canal is continued by a tunnel to Braunston, where it joins the Oxford Canal. The church of St. Martin (restored 1866–67) is Perp.; in the chancel are several monuments to the Clarke family. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The interest of £200 is distributed yearly in bread and flannel; there is also an annual charity of £140 for the school, the repairs of the church, and the poor. W. Place, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Welton (2), tp., pa. of Ovingham (q.v.), S. Northumb., near the Roman wall, on its south side, 10½ N.E. of Hexham; ac. 1,144 and 59 water. The W. waterworks, from which Newcastle-on-Tyne is supplied with water, are partly in this tp. W. Tower, the ancient seat of the Welton family, situated on rising ground and dating from 1616, is fast falling into decay.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Welsh Hampton	Welsh Hampton	179	502
Welsh Newton	Monmouth (3)	144	207
Welshpool, parl. bor.	Welshpool	182	4765
Welshpool, mun. bor.	Welshpool	182	6501
Welshpool, pa.	Welshpool	182	4555

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Welsh St. Donats	Cowbridge (2)	180	18
Welsh Whittle	Coppull (1¾)	200	19
Welton (1)	Welton (2)	75	42
Welton (2)	Prudhoe (3)	279	9

Welton (3), pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 10 S.W. of Beverley; ac. of pa. 2,683, of tp. 1,778; soil heath land, overlying chalk. The church of St. Helena (restored 1863) is E. Eng. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Welton (4), vil., pa. of Sebergham (q.v.), Mid Cumb., 7½ S. of Carlisle. The church of St. James (1874) is a chapel-of-ease. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Welton (5), ha., pa. of Midsomer Norton (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, 7 S.W. of Bath.

Welton-by-Lincoln, pa. and large vil., W. Lincs., 6 N.N.E. of Lincoln; ac. 3,751; soil loamy, overlying oolite in the upper, clay in the lower part of the pa. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) is E. Eng. and Dec. In 1863 a number of very early graves, supposed to be Saxon, were discovered here on the site of an old chapel cemetery. Here are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Reformed Wesleyan chapels. The pa. was entitled to send to the Bluecoat school, Lincoln, eleven boys, who were fed, clothed and apprenticed from the hospital funds. By the new scheme of the Charity Commissioners this privilege has been exchanged for four exhibitions of £25 yearly, tenable at the Lincoln Middle School. The Countess of Warwick left £10 yearly to the vicar for delivering a lecture in the church every Sunday evening. The poor of the pa. have about £34 distributed amongst them yearly in clothes or money.

Welton-in-the-Marsh, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 6 E.N.E. of Spilsby; ac. 2,600; soil mostly clay, overlying clay and a little chalk. The church of St. Andrew (1792) is a plain building of stone and brick. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. A rent-charge of 10s. is distributed annually at Easter, in bread, among the poor parishioners. The poor's allotments, awarded at the Inclosure, comprise nearly 5 ac., which are occupied by labourers, rent free. Lime is burnt here.

Welton-le-Wold, pa. and pleasant vil., E. Lincs., 3½ W. of Louth; ac. 2,598; soil loam and chalk, on a chalk and gravel subsoil. The church of St. Martin (rebuilt 1850) retains an embattled western tower of the 14th cent. Here are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The rent of 7 ac. of land is devoted to the repairs of the church. W. Manor, surrounded by richly-wooded grounds, is a seat.

Welwick, pa. and pleasant vil., E.R. Yorks., 2 S.E. of Patrington; ac. 3,506; soil mixed, overlying strong clay marl. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone and brick; the south aisle has at its eastern end a low arched recess, richly canopied, within which is a kind of altar tomb, adorned with tracery and Evangelistic symbols, and bearing the effigy of a priest, vested in alb and cope; the tomb, moved here from some other site, probably dates from the middle of the 14th cent., and on the wall above are the arms of Edward the Confessor, the royal shield of the Plantagenets and that of the Percys; on the floor of the north aisle is a 17th-cent. brass, with effigies and arms. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels; the old Friends' meeting-house is now used as a school-room. The interest of £100 is spent in coals for the poor at Christmas or Easter, and the interest of a similar sum is applied for educational purposes. There is a brick and tile yard and a corn mill.

Welwyn, pa. and small to., and head of U. and petty sess. div., N. Herts., 5 N. of Hatfield; ac. 3,081. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, in the centre of the to., was originally E. Eng., but now chiefly Dec.; in the chancel is an ancient piscina. Dr. Edward Young, the author of "Night Thoughts," was rector here (1730–65), and here died (1765), and was buried in the church. Dr. Young is said to have composed his "Night Thoughts" beneath what is now a noble avenue of trees planted by himself about ten years previously; at the upper end of this avenue, on a square pedestal, is a memorial inscription in Latin to the poet. There are charities of about £30 yearly distribution, and of £4 for apprenticing poor boys. In the pa. are chalybeate springs. Donesbury, The Frythe, and The Grange are seats.

Wem, pa., U. and mkt. to. (TH.), head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., on the Roden, N. Salop, 10 N. of Shrewsbury; ac. 13,845 and 53 water. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1886) is in E. Eng. style; the Norm. tower of an earlier church destroyed by fire is still standing. At a considerable elevation in the walls are two ancient statues; the one looking east undoubtedly represents St. Chad. There are also Congregational, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Grammar School was founded and endowed in 1650, and rebuilt in 1776. The Town Hall (rebuilt 1848) is a plain brick building; it contains an assembly room. Here are steam and water mills and a tanyard. Fairs are held on alternate Mondays, and there are frequent cattle sales. The charities amount to about £30 a year. Judge Jeffreys, a native of W., was created Baron of Wem in 1685, but at the death of his son the title became extinct. W. was the first to. in the co. to declare for the Parliament in 1643. In 1677 it suffered from a dreadful fire, which consumed the church, market-house, and whole ranges of buildings, destroying property of the value of upwards of £23,000. W. Hall is a seat.

Wembdon, pa. and pleasant vil., W. Somerset, 1 N.W. of Bridgwater, to which to. it forms a suburb; ac. outside the bor. of Bridgwater 2,384; soil and subsoil red sand and marl mixed with loam. The church of St. George is E. Eng.; in 1868 a great part of it was destroyed by fire, but has been rebuilt. A charity of the yearly value of £6 is distributed in clothing. Here is a brewery and a quarry, the stone from which is much used in the neighbourhood for building purposes.

Wembley, eccl. pa., pa. of Harrow (q.v.), N.W. Middx., 3 E. of the to. of Harrow. The church of St. John the Evangelist is in Gothic style, from designs by the late Sir G. G. Scott, R.A. The Workmen's Hall and Institute, a handsome building, is near the station. W. Park, the property of a company, is in a finely wooded dis.; it consists of ornamental grounds, a lake for boating, etc. The chief feature will

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Welton (3), pa.	Brough (1½)	186	830
Welton (3), tp.	Brough (1½)	186	659
Welton-by-Lincoln	Lincoln (6)	130	660
Welton-in-the-Marsh	Burgh (1½)	124	322
Welton-le-Wold	Louth (3½)	141	289
Welwick	Patrington (2)	212	313
Welwyn	Welwyn	22	1745
Wem, pa.	Wem	174	3796
Wembdon	Bridgwater (1)	152	1193
Wembley	Wembley	8	2533

be the Watkin Tower; when finished the height will be 1,200 ft., or 200 ft. higher than the Eiffel Tower. The manor, which formerly belonged to the priory of Kilburn, has been bought by the Metropolitan Railway Company.

Wembury, pa. on the south coast, S. Dev., 6 S.E. of Plymouth; ac. 2,758 and 303 of tidal water and foreshore; soil loamy, overlying clay and slate. The church of St. Werburg, situated close to the sea and at some distance from the vil., is E. Eng., and contains several monuments, including one dated 1677 to the family of Calmady. One of the ancestors of Vincent Calmady, Esq., in 1682 bequeathed £500, now £522 3s. 10d. Consols, to the pa., the interest of which is distributed in bread, coals, and clothing. Langdon Court and W. House are seats.

Wembworthy, pa. and vil. on the Taw, Mid Dev., 15 N.W. of Crediton; ac. 2,411; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Michael (restored 1868) is in Gothic style. Here is a Congregational chapel. Eggesford House is a seat.

Wemyss, pa. on the Firth of Forth, E. Fifes., Sc., containing Buckhaven and East and West Wemyss (q.v.); ac. 4,732. The minerals are ochre, ironstone, and coal. A large portion of the W. estate consists of coal-seams of various depths, which have been increasingly wrought of late years, and a very large quantity of coal is yet unexcavated. Within the pa. is the ancient castle of Macduff, now a ruin. This massive structure crowns a height above the shore to the east of East Wemyss, commanding a most extensive view seaward. Near it are several extensive excavations at the base of the bank, which have evidently been formed by the action of the sea at a very remote period; one of these caves is called the "King's Cave," from the tradition that James V., in one of his frolics, joined an encampment of gipsies here. Some years ago Sir James Simpson discovered sculpturings on some of the walls of these caves of various animals and peculiar symbols, common on large stones in the north and east of Scotland, understood by archæologists to be of great antiquity. The cave immediately under Macduff's Castle is so narrow at the mouth that it is difficult to enter, but it expands so as easily to contain 100 persons; another near is about 50 ft. in height, and formed like a fine cupola; a third, still larger, between East and West Wemyss, termed the "Glass Cave," was used at the end of the 18th cent. for the manufacture of glass from kelp made from the seaweed. A fair is held on the second Wednesday in September. From this place the Earls of Wemyss and March (a branch of the Douglas family) derive their title.

Wemyss Bay, rising watering-place on the Firth of Clyde, pa. of Inverkip (q.v.), W. Renfs., Sc., 6 S.W. of Greenock. There are Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches. A number of good houses have been erected, all of which are well tenanted in the summer season. The steamboats of the Caledonian Railway Company call here.

Wemyss, East, vil. on the Firth of Forth, pa. of Wemyss (q.v.), E. Fifes., Sc., 5 N.E. of Kirkcaldy. There are Free and Established churches, and Public and Free Church schools. The manufacture of linen fabrics is carried on extensively; a brewery and malting-house are the other branches of business.

Wemyss Square, part of the vil. of Fordel (q.v.), pas. of Dalgetty and Aberdour (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc.

Wemyss, West, q.s. pa. and to. on the Firth of Forth, pa. of Wemyss (q.v.), E. Fifes., Sc., 4 S.E. of Kirkcaldy. The church is modern. The harbour is situated at the western extremity of the to., and has several vessels employed in the exportation of coal, which is wrought close to the harbour. A short distance east of the to., on the brink or face of an eminence, and surrounded on the land side by beautiful plantations and pleasure-grounds, is the seat of W. Castle.

Wen, ha., pa. of Llansawel (q.v.), N. Carmarths., 9 N. of Llandilo.

Wenden Lofts. [WENDON LOFTS.]

Wendens Ambo, pa. and vil., N. Essex, 2½ S.W. of Saffron Walden; ac. 1,383; soil principally light, overlying chalk. The name is due to the fact that the pas. of Great and Little Wenden were united in 1662. The church of Little Wenden, which formerly stood on the left side of the road from Wendon Lofts to Great Wenden, being ruinous, was pulled down. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is of different periods; a screen divides the nave from the chancel. There is a brass of a man in armour, perhaps of the Loveney family (c. 1410), and near this, on the end of a pew, is a curiously carved animal, possibly the crest of the family. On the chancel walls remains of fresco-painting were discovered in 1890. There is a very fine piscina in the chancel, and a remarkable carved pulpit. The south aisle and tower, the oldest portions of the church, date from about 1100. In the churchyard is a marble slab to William Nicholson, of this pa. (d. 1886, aged 104), once a midshipman in Nelson's ship Vanguard. Here is a small Congregational chapel. A charity left about three centuries ago now amounts to £13 14s. 8d. yearly.

Wendlebury, pa., Mid Oxon., 2½ S.W. of Bicester; ac. 1,096; soil stiff clay, with gravel in the bottom. The church of St. Giles (1761) is built on the site of a more ancient structure. There is a small charity. In this pa. are the remains of the Roman station Ælia Castra, or Alchester, the most conspicuous trace of which consists of a slightly elevated mound; it was excavated in 1776 and found to enclose a portion of the walls of a square building, 3 ft. in height, with tesselated pavement.

Wendling, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 4 W. of East Dereham; ac. 1,436; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is E. Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities are £24 yearly for distribution, and the fuel allotment of 9 ac. produces £11 for coals. Here was once an abbey, founded before 1267, for Premonstratensian canons, and dedicated to St. Mary. There are now

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wembury	Plympton (5)	237	524
Wembworthy	Eggesford (1½)	194	370
Wemyss	Wemyss Castle	421	10534
Wemyss, East	Wemyss Castle	421	1010
Wemyss Square	Crossgates (1½)	430	137
Wemyss, West, pa.	West Wemyss (1½)	420	174
Wemyss, West, to.	West Wemyss (1½)	420	13[illegible]
Wendens Ambo	Audley End	42	3[illegible]
Wendlebury	Bicester (2½)	66	2[illegible]
Wendling	Wendling	119	[illegible]

no remains, the ruins and foundations having been used some years since for the repair of the roads.

Wendon Lofts, pa., N Essex, 6 W. of Saffron Walden; ac. 778; soil chiefly heavy, overlying chalk. The church of St. Dunstan, in the grounds of and close to Lofts Hall, is an edifice of cut flint with stone dressings; there is a brass to William Lucas and Katherine his wife (c. 1450), with figures of these and of eight children, one being an abbot. Lofts Hall, an Elizabethan mansion of brick, dating from 1579, is a seat.

Wendover, pa. and mkt. to. (T.), formerly a bor., though not incorporated, Mid Bucks., 5 S.S.E. of Aylesbury; ac. 5,815; soil chiefly chalk and loam, overlying chalk and gravel. At the south-east entrance is Boddington Hill, a very pleasantly situated eminence, on the top of which is Halton Wood, and at the south-west entrance is Backham Hill, commanding fine views of the country for many miles around, and adjoining it Coombe Hill, from which St. Paul's Cathedral may be seen. The WENDOVER.

Chiltern range passes through this pa. and extends over many miles. The bor. sent two members to Parliament as early as 1300, and again in 1307 and 1309, but suffered its privilege to lapse until, in 1623, by the exertions of Mr. Hakeville, a barrister of Lincoln's Inn, the representation was, upon petition, recognised. John Hampden, the patriot, represented this bor. in five Parliaments, but under the Reform Act of 1832 W. was disfranchised. The Grand Junction Canal Company have a branch from W. to Marsworth, giving water communication to all parts of England. The church of St. Mary (restored 1869) is chiefly Dec. The chancel, restored in 1839, retains a piscina. The nave has arcades of five arches on either side, springing from clustered pillars with moulded bases and foliaged caps. The south aisle has a plain trefoiled piscina, and the south doorway good Dec. mouldings and ornament. There are some remains of a stoup. In the south aisle is a curious mural brass to W. Bradshaw, gent. (1537), and his wife, nine children, and twenty-three grandchildren. There are some Nonconformist places of worship. In High Street stands a red-brick building, erected in 1842 as a Market-house; in 1870 it was partly rebuilt. The annual fairs are held on May 13 and Oct. 2. The W. Literary Institution, built in 1865 comprises a commodious reading-room and a library. Here is a reservoir, covering 50 ac. There are charities of about £66 annually, for distribution in bread, clothing, and money; Hill's charity of £60 yearly is for educational purposes and apprenticing; and the Whitchurch charity, bequeathed in 1849, provides about £4 a year for education and £6 for medical aid. The Hale, a seat, stands about a mile and a half east of the to.; this estate belonged to the ancient family of Colet or Collet; Sir Henry Colet, knighted on Twelfth Day, 1486, twice Lord Mayor of London, and father of Dean Colet, founder of St. Paul's School, was of this family, and was born in this pa.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wendon Lofts	Audley End (3)	42	67
Wendover	Wendover	33½	2036

Wendron, pa. and tp., S. Cornw., 2½ N. of Helston; ac. of pa. 13,568, of tp. 13,129 and 86 water; soil loam, overlying granite. The church of St. Gwendron (restored 1868) is Dec. and Perp., and retains piscina, sedilia, and a credence, and the rood stairs also remain. In the north wall of the chancel is an Easter sepulchre, and over the western part of the recess is a low-side window. The altar-stone now forms the doorstep of the entrance to the chancel. On the south side of the communion table (but formerly in the south aisle) are brass effigies, now incomplete, of a civilian and his wife, and below these the figures of fifteen children (c. 1580), supposed to commemorate the Hill family, of Trenethick. On the north side is a fine but headless brass effigy of a priest in processional vestments, representing Warine Penhalluryk, LL.B., rector of St. Just and vicar of St. Stythians and Wendron (d. 1535); an inscription on a narrow banding of brass surrounds the margin of the slab. There are also places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The church of St. Decumanus, at Merther Uny, originally dedicated to St. Uny, an Irish saint, was licensed in 1427 and desecrated at the end of the 18th century; the north wall, which is in tolerable preservation, and part of a tall round-headed cross still remain on the site: the cemetery is now a garden. In the pa. are many relics of antiquity, chapels, holy wells, crosses, barrows, and ancient camps. This is a mining district, but not all the mines are worked. Fairs are held on July 27 and Sept. 29 yearly, for

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wendron, pa.	Helston (2½)	319	7448
Wendron, tp.	Helston (2½)	319	4250

cattle and sheep. Rowe's charity of £5 is for poor widows of this pa.

Wendy, pa., W. Cambs., 5 N. of Royston; ac. 947; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (rebuilt 1866) was originally E. Eng.; the roof of the nave, which is of open woodwork, was taken from the old church of All Saints, Cambridge.

Wenham, Great, pa., S.E. Suff., 8 S.W. of Ipswich; ac. 1,123; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. John (restored 1868) is a plain E. Eng. edifice.

Wenham, Little, pa., S.E. Suff., 6½ S.W. by W. of Ipswich; ac. about 1,203; soil strong clay, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Dec.; it contains a brass (1503) to the Brewse family and a particularly fine monument to Sir John Brewse (1585). W. Hall is now a farmhouse; it is one of the very few remaining relics of the domestic architecture of the 13th cent., and affords the earliest example of the use of Flemish bricks in this country; part of the building, now used as a granary, includes a great hall and a chapel with a groined roof.

Wenhaston, pa. and large vil. on the Blyth, N.E. Suff., 3 S.E. of Halesworth; ac. 2,326; soil light, a mixture of sand and loam, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Peter, on an eminence commanding a view of the sea, is a 15th-cent. Gothic building of flint. There is a chapel for the Wesleyans and one for the Primitive Methodists. The rent of 6 ac. of land is devoted to the education of poor children; the town estate, let for £50 a year, is applied to the service of the church, and there are some other small charities.

Wenlock, mun. bor., S. Salop, 11 S. of Wellington; ac. of bor. 22,657. Within the bor. are the pas. of Much W. and Little W. The bor. formerly returned two members to Parliament, and is stated to have been the first bor. which acquired this privilege by charter; but under the Redistribution of Seats Acts, 1885, the representation was merged in that of the co. The pa. and mkt. to. of Much W. is on the road from Shrewsbury to Bridgnorth. The to. has been honoured by many royal visits, which probably accounts for its numerous ancient charters and privileges. Henry III. visited it several times during the Welsh wars of the 13th cent. Charles I., about 1630, stayed at Ashfield Hall, then known as the "Blue Bridge" inn, one wing of which is still standing in High Street. Holy Trinity Church (restored 1880–84) is Norm. and E. Eng., with portions of Dec. and Perp. work. The chancel retains E. Eng. sedilia, and there are brasses with effigies to Richard Ridley of Lynley (d. 1592) and Eleanor (Sydenham), his wife, as well as some dating from the 17th cent. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have places of worship. The Guildhall, adjoining the church, is an ancient half-timbered, quaint-looking structure with piazzas beneath. The interior consists of two principal chambers; the first or common hall is used for quarter sessions, and over the recorder's chair are the arms of Elizabeth and the date 1589; the inner room is richly panelled, and contains elaborately carved oak furniture. The butter market is held underneath; two of the pillars near the gateway formed the ancient whipping-posts; the clasps for the wrists still remain, while inside are the now long-disused stocks. The Market Hall, opened 1879, is a small half-timbered building opposite the Guildhall. The Free Corn Exchange, built 1852, in Hospital Street, is a limestone structure on the site of the Hospital of St. John, some remains of which still exist. The building contains a museum and library. The market is held on Monday, and there are fortnightly auctions for the sale of stock. The annual hiring fair is held on May 12, and races (generally in April) take place near the to. The business of the place is chiefly connected with the surrounding agricultural district, but there is a considerable trade in lime and limestone, for which this neighbourhood is famous. The recreation ground, Linden Field, near the station, has an area of about 7 ac., and is approached by an avenue of lime trees. The Olympic games held here on Whit Tuesday are very popular, and include tilting at the ring. The charities amount to about £60 yearly, and there is a charity for establishing a cottage hospital at or near W. and a seaside convalescent home. The Cluniac Benedictine Abbey of St. Milburga at W. was founded in the 7th cent.; it suffered from the incursions of the Danes, and later, upon the arrival of the Normans, was forsaken. The edifice of which the present ruins are the remains was commenced by Roger de Montgomery, a kinsman of the Conqueror; the new foundation speedily rose to great magnificence. The existing remains include the southern half of the west front; three bays of the south aisle; three sides of the south transept and the west wall of the north transept, both with unique arcadings; a chapter-house of Trans.-Norm. date; cloister garth with lavatory, aumbries, guest-house; abbot's lodge, with a two-storeyed western gallery, and, on the west, other remains of the almonry and gatehouse. The Abbey, a seat, has a mansion dating from the 15th cent., and was formerly occupied by the priors, whence it is sometimes called the Prior's House.

PRIOR'S HOUSE, MUCH WENLOCK.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton W.)

Wenlock Edge, limestone ridge, S. Salop, runs 13 S.W. from Much W. to Wistanston and Hallet. The hills command very fine views. Silurian fossils abound.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wendy	Royston (5)	45	127
Wenham, Great	Raydon (2)	68	228
Wenham, Little	Raydon (2)	68	56

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wenhaston	Wenhaston	104	62
Wenlock	Much Wenlock	163	1,701

Wenlock, Little, pa. and vil. under the south side of the Wrekin, S. Salop, 3 s. of Wellington; ac. 2,808; soil clay and gravel, subsoil various. The pa. is included in the bor. of W. The church of St. Lawrence is E. Eng. There are some small charities. The Willow Moors and Wrekin Farm are supposed to have been the scene of a battle at some remote period; in 1835 was discovered a heap of broken spears numbering over 200. In the neighbourhood are five barrows.

Wenlock, Much, pa. and mkt. to., S. Salop; ac. 8,761. [WENLOCK.]

Wenning, river, W.R. Yorks. and N. Lancs., is formed by the union of several streams in the south vicinity of Clapham, 5 W.N.W. of Settle, and runs W. by N. past Bentham to Wennington, and then W.S.W. by Hornby to the Lune, which it joins 7½ N.E. of Lancaster. Its length from its remotest source is about 14 miles.

Wennington (1), small pa. and vil. near the shore of the Thames, S.E. Essex, 5 S.E. of Romford; ac. 1,301 and 207 water; soil gravelly and sandy, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary and St. Peter (restored 1886) is an ancient building of flint and stone; this church was originally of Norm. foundation, of which the chancel retains some traces, as well as of the E. Eng. period; but the structure was almost entirely rebuilt and probably enlarged at various times; the south aisle was eventually pulled down and its arcade bricked up; in the south wall of the chancel is a plain piscina, and there is another in the north aisle. The font, of Purbeck marble, consisting of an octagonal basin on a shaft and plinth, is 15th-cent. work. Some ancient oak benches with finials remain in the tower; the pulpit is Jacobean and retains an ancient hourglass stand, which has been utilised for the purpose of a pulpit lamp; in the north aisle is a small and curious mural tablet of alabaster, with kneeling figures and an inscription, to Henry Bust, M.A., rector of this church (d. 1624), and his wife Margaret (d. 1625); below are verses in Latin and English, and above a shield of arms; there is also an inscription to William Gordonman (buried 1609). In the course of the restoration the ends of the Perp. rood-screen, bearing traces of colour, were discovered embedded in the nave walls.

Wennington (2), tp. on the Wenning, pa. of Melling (q.v.), N. Lancs., 11 N.E. of Lancaster; ac. 980. W. Hall is a seat.

Wennington (3), ha., pa. of Abbot's Ripton (q.v.), N. Hunts., 6 N.E. of Huntingdon.

Wensley (1), pa., tp., and vil., N.R. Yorks.; ac. of pa. 14,445, of tp. 2,051 and 28 water; soil limestone. The vil. of W. was once a considerable mkt. to., but a great plague having occurred about a hundred years prior to, and in its effects similar to, the Great Plague of London, the greater part of its inhabitants were compelled to leave the place, from the effects of which it has never recovered; it is situated in Wensleydale, 1½ S.W. of Leyburn, on the north bank of the Ure, which is crossed near the vil. by a handsome bridge of four arches, first built about five hundred years ago, and widened and repaired in 1818. The church of the Holy Trinity, made collegiate in 1399, is E. Eng. and Perp.; the chancel retains very fine carved oak stalls, erected in 1527; the poppy heads include spirited figures of animals, and the carving is much enriched with heraldic shields. In the chancel is a fine Flemish brass to Sir Simon de Wenslagh, rector (c. 1360), with effigy, the hands crossed on the breast, and over these a chalice; the marginal inscription is lost, but let into the same slab is an inscription to Oswald Dykes, twenty years rector here (d. 1607). In the vestry are preserved some fragments of E. Saxon work recovered from the churchyard. At the east end of the north aisle is a portion of a richly-carved parclose formerly in the Scrope chantry in the Abbey of St. Agatha-juxta-Richmond, but now enclosing the manorial pew; in the same aisle is a monument to Alice and Elizabeth, infant daughters of Henry, seventh Baron Scrope of Bolton (d. 1525). There are modern memorials to the Powletts. Here are lead mines. There is a free library and reading-room. Bolton Hall, a stone mansion pleasantly situated 1 W. of the church, amidst extensive and well-wooded grounds, was erected about 1686 by the first Duke of Bolton.

Wensley (2), ha., pa. of Darley (q.v.), Mid Derbys., 1 mile from Darley Dale railway station.

Wensley and Snitterton, tp., pa. of Darley (q.v.), Mid Derbys., 3½ N.W. of Matlock; ac. 1,959. [DARLEY, SOUTH.]

Wensleydale, valley, N.R. Yorks., 2 W.S.W. of Leyburn. The valley takes its name from the pa. of Wensley, in the western vicinity of Leyburn. It extends from that place to the source of the river, a distance of about 20 miles. The soil of the valley is rich, and affords excellent pasturage.

Wensum, river, N. Norf., rises 5 W. of Fakenham, and runs 30 miles in a S.E. direction, joining the Yare immediately below Norwich. Between Fakenham and Elmham it passes between Great and Little Ryburgh. On its left bank, between Elmham and Norwich, are Billingford, Attlebridge, and Taverham; and on the east side Lyng, Merton-on-the-Hill, and Costessey. Approaching Norwich, it runs past the pleasant villas which form the western sub. of Heigham. It contains roach, perch, tench, and various other fish, and eels and smelts are abundant.

Went, river, W.R. Yorks., rises in the N.W. vicinity of Ackworth, 4 W.S.W. of Pontefract, and runs 16 E. past Kirk Smeaton, joining the Don 2½ S.S.E. of Snaith. Below Kirk Smeaton it flows through a level, swampy district.

Wentbridge, ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Badsworth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Wentlooge St. Bride, pa. on the Bristol Channel, S.W. Mons., about 4 S. of Newport; ac. 1,832 and 1,690 of water. A high sea-wall has been erected on the coast to prevent the tide overflowing the district. The church of St. Bride is Dec. and Perp., and has a fine Perp. tower. On the south wall of the church, within the porch, is an inscription

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Wenlock, Little	Horsehay (1¼)	161	420
Wenlock, Much	Much Wenlock	163	2180
Wennington (1)	Rainham (1)	13	310
Wennington (2)	Wennington	249	139

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Wensley (1), pa.	Wensley	238	1933
Wensley (1), tp.	Wensley	238	261
Wensley&Snitterton	Darley Dale (1)	147	754
Wentlooge St. B.	Marshfield (2)	157	241

marking the height of a flood in 1606. The Baptists and Congregationalists have chapels. The Usk Lighthouse is built on the shore of the Bristol Channel, south of this pa.

Wentnor, pa. and vil., S. Salop, 5½ N.E. of Bishop's Castle; ac. 6,699; soil light sandy loam. The church of St. Michael (partially rebuilt 1885) incorporates some of the ancient portions of the older fabric, including a Norm. doorway and window. The upper portion of the tower is covered with oak shingles. The clock is about a century old, and was originally made by a vil. workman.

Wentwood Forest, ancient forest, S.E. Mon., 4½ S.S.E. of Usk. The remains of the forest extend some 3 or 4 miles in an E. and N.E. direction from the left bank of the Usk. Although much denuded in modern times, it still comprises extensive tracts of woodland. It formed a barrier against the incursions of the Welsh, the English frontier being protected by the six important castles of Dinham, Penhow, Pencoed, Llanvaches, Llanvair, and Striguil or Troggy; of some of these there are considerable remains, others are represented only by scanty traces, and Llanvaches Castle has entirely disappeared.

Wentworth (1), or Wingford, pa., Isle of Ely, W. Cambs., 4½ W. of Ely; ac. 1,437; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is Norm. and E. Eng., with Norm. doorways; the chancel retains a piscina.

Wentworth (2), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Wath-upon-Dearne (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. of Rotherham; ac. 2,328. Holy Trinity Church (1877) is in Gothic style. The chancel of the old church, containing several monuments of the Wentworth family, and in particular one to Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, beheaded on Tower Hill, May 12, 1641, after a notable trial in Westminster Hall, has been converted into a mortuary chapel; the tower also remains. Here is also a mission church and a Wesleyan chapel. The Barrow Hospital (1696), to which the Barrow School is attached, maintains twelve houses for poor and aged persons. The Mechanics' Institution contains a good library. W. Woodhouse is a Classic mansion, in a well-wooded deer-park of 1,500 ac., a mile E. of the vil. The south front consists of a centre and two wings, with a fine portico on a raised staircase, supported by columns of the Ionic order surmounted by a pediment, on which are statues. The stables are very fine, and many hunters are kept here for the Fitzwilliam Hunt. The mausoleum, on an eminence in the park, is of three storeys of freestone, with a lofty cupola supported by Ionic columns, and having in a chamber in the lower storey a life-size marble figure of the second Marquess of Rockingham (d. 1782); also busts of Fox and of Edmund Burke, who were associated with him in the Rockingham administration, 1782, and one also of Admiral Keppel (d. 1786), to whom there is a monumental column in the grounds.

Wentworth Castle. [STAINBOROUGH.]

Wenvoe, pa. and vil., S.E. Glamorgs., 6 S.W. of Cardiff; ac. 3,035, comprising a large extent of arable and pasture land and some common. The church is dedicated to St. Mary. W. Castle is a seat.

Weobley, pa. and ancient to., head of a U. and petty sess. div., N. Herefords., 8 S.W. of Leominster; ac. 3,889; soil clayey and loamy, overlying clay and gravel. The to. consists principally of two streets. W., previous to the passing of the Reform Act of 1832, returned two members to Parliament. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1865) is Norm., Dec., and Perp. The chancel contains a full-length marble effigy of Colonel John Birch (d. 1691), and an altar-tomb with a recumbent stone effigy supposed to represent Sir Walter Devereux (d. 1402); another altar-tomb, with recumbent male and female effigies in stone, is believed to represent Sir John Marbury (d. 1437) and Agnes his wife (d. 1433); and there are several monuments to the Birch and Peploe families. The Roman Catholics and Primitive Methodists have places of worship. There are some small charities, and the National school is endowed. The trade of the to. is chiefly local. A pleasure fair is held on May 8. Formerly a castle stood here, and the embankments with the moat can still be traced. About a mile S. of the to. is Garnstone Castle, a seat, with a modern castellated mansion standing in a park.

Wepre, vil., pa. of Northop (q.v.), S.E. Flints., 2½ N.N.W. of Hawarden. The vil. is situated at the head of the estuary of the Dee, at its S.W. extremity; it is mentioned in Domesday. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel. W. Hall is an ancient mansion.

Wereham, pa. and vil., S.W. Norf., 5 E. of Downham Market; ac. 2,231; soil mixed loam, overlying in some parts gravel and in others sand and clay. The church of St. Margaret, erected in the 13th cent., is a small and plain building of flint and stone. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £40 yearly. In the centre of the pa. is a large pond, supplied by a fine spring of water called St. Margaret's Well. W. Hall is a seat.

Wergs, The, ha., pa. of Tettenhall (q.v.), S. Staffs., 5 N.W. of Wolverhampton.

Werneth (1), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and 4 N.E. from Stockport (q.v.), N.E. Chesh.; ac. 1,571. W. extends from the Tame, separating it from Lancs. on the N.W., to the Etherow, which divides it from Derbys. on the S.E. It is traversed by the Peak Forest Canal, and includes part of the bor. of Hyde (q.v.). The church of St. Paul's (1841), situated at Compstall, is a plain edifice in E. Eng. style. There are Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. The Athenæum, a building in Gothic style, contains a public assembly-room and the class-rooms of the National schools. Calico-printing is carried on very extensively, and the cotton manufacture is also important. Grove Hill is a handsome modern edifice.

Werneth (2), eccl. pa., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., in the bor. of Oldham. The church of St. Thomas (1855) is in E. Eng. style.

Werneth Low, eminence (821 ft.), pa. of and 5 E.N.E. from Stockport (q.v.), N.E. Chesh. It

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wentnor	Eaton (2½)	176	583
Wentworth (1)	Wilburton (2)	73	149
Wentworth (2), ec. pa.	Chapeltown (2½)	168	1567
Wentworth (2), tp.	Chapeltown (2½)	168	1926
Wenvoe	Ely (2½)	165	445

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weobley	Moorhampton (3)	154	864
Wereham	Abbey (2½)	88	658
Werneth (1), ec. pa.	Woodley (1)	179	1961
Werneth (1), tp.	Woodley (1)	179	2567
Werneth (2)	Oldham	188	11549

forms a conspicuous feature in the landscape and commands extensive views.

Werrington (1), pa. and vil. on the Tamar, W. Dev., 2 N.E. of Launceston; ac. 4,240; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Martin and St. Giles (restored 1891) was built 1743, in Classic style; around the exterior are some ancient statues; there is a Norm. font and an Elizabethan mural monument. The Bible Christians and Wesleyans have chapels. Polapit, Tamar, and W. Park are seats.

Werrington (2), tp., eccl. pa., and vil., pa. of Paston (q.v.), N.E. Northants, 3 N. of Peterborough; ac. 1,420. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1892), chiefly Perp., retains some Norm. and E. Eng. work; in the chancel are an aumbry and a piscina; the font is E. Eng. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are some charities.

Werrington (3), ha., pa. of Caverswall (q.v.), N. Staffs., about 4 W. of Cheadle. Here is a County Industrial School.

Wervin, tp., pa. of St. Oswald, Chester (q.v.), W. Chesh., 3½ E. of Mollington; ac. 710.

Wesham. [MEDLAR-WITH-WESHAM.]

Wessington, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Crich (q.v.), Mid Derbys., 1½ N.W. of Wingfield; ac. 73. Christ Church (1858) is in E. Perp. style. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. At the back of the church are remains of monastic buildings now converted into cottages. The inhabitants are principally employed at the surrounding collieries.

West, for places not found under this prefix, the principal element should be consulted; thus WEST ARDSLEY will be found under ARDSLEY, WEST.

Westacre, pa. and vil. on the Nar, N.W. Norf., 5 N.W. of Swaffham; ac. 3,433; soil sandy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Perp. Near it are the ruins of the Augustinian priory of St. Mary and All Saints, founded in the reign of William I. as a cell to Lewes. W. High House, in Italian style, and situated in an extensive park, is a seat.

Westalby, ha., pa. of Wickenby (q.v.), W. Lincs., 3 N.W. of Wragby.

Westbarns. [BARNS, WEST.]

West Benhar. [MUIRHEAD (1).]

Westbere, pa. and vil. on the Stour, S.E. Kent, 3 N.E. of Canterbury; ac. 1,173; soil light loam, overlying gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1885) is E. Eng.; on the walls of the chancel are traces of 12th-cent. frescoes, and on its north side is a tomb believed to be that of the founder. The sedilia are good examples of the 14th cent. Here is a Catholic convent. The charities amount to £6 2s. for bread.

Westborough, pa. and vil. on the Witham, S.W. Lincs., 7 N.W. by N. of Grantham; ac. 1,973; soil strong clay, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is E. Eng., with chapel or sacristy containing a stone altar; the chancel retains the remains of sedilia and an aumbry; the font is Trans. Norm. Near the south porch stands an interesting churchyard cross, and the wall enclosing the churchyard is coped in part with tombstones, one of which has a finely-carved floriated cross. The Catholic chapel is served from Grantham. W. was a Roman settlement. In the churchyard is the pedestal of an ancient cross, and there is another in the centre of the vil.

Westbourne (in Domesday "Borne"), pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 7 W. of Chichester; ac. 4,056 and 561 water; soil rich loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1863) is chiefly Perp.; there are monuments to former rectors and others. In the north porch is a large beam, on which is carved the running horse of Arundell, with the oak sprig and other badges, and a shield with the arms of Fitzalan impaling Grey; the northern approach to the church is through a fine avenue of yew trees, planted in 1530 by Henry (Fitzalan), Lord Maltravers, afterwards eighteenth Earl of Arundel, K.G. A charity of about £50 yearly is for bread, clothing, and general aid to the poor. St. Faith's Convalescent Home is for women and children.

Westbourne Park, dis. of N.W. London, pas. of Paddington and Kensington (q.v.), E. Middx., 4 W. by N. of St. Paul's. W. Park takes its name from the Westbourne (now the "Ranelagh Sewer"), which rises to the north of Paddington and runs past Bayswater to the east extremity of the Serpentine, and thence through Belgravia and Chelsea to the Thames. This district, formerly known as W. Green, retained its rural character down to the time of George IV. or later; even in 1852 W. Grove was a quiet road lined by cottages with gardens in front. The Grove is now famous for its shops.

Westbriggs, ha., pa. of Tottenhill (q.v.), S.W. Norf., 6 N. of Downham.

West Bromwich, parl. and mun. bor., extensive pa., U. and mkt. to. (S.), and head of petty sess. div., S. Staffs., 6 N.W. of Birmingham; ac. of pa. 5,710. W. B. occupies the centre of an extensive manufacturing and mining district, within which, owing to the variety and extent of its manufactures and trade, it has risen with amazing rapidity from a state of comparative insignificance to one of considerable importance, and is now a populous and flourishing to., extending for considerably more than 3 miles along the old road from London to Holyhead. The trade of the place—the manufactures of all kinds of ironwork, smelting furnaces, slitting mills, maltings, brass foundries, boat-building, brick-making, the distillation of tar, and the manufacture of washing and baking powders—and the transport of the produce of its mines are greatly facilitated by the numerous branches of canals which intersect the pa., in addition to which two lines of railway traverse it. The to. consists of one main street, the High Street, a mile and a half in length, running north and south, with many other streets branching off on each side. The church of St. Clement, given to the Convent of Worcester by Henry I., was afterwards granted by

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Werrington (1)	Launceston (2)	223	658
Werrington (2)	Peterborough (3)	76	710
Wervin	Chester (4½)	179	94
Wessington	Wingfield (1½)	142	610
Westacre	Narborough (2)	105	416
Westbere	Sturry (1)	72	357
Westborough	Claypole (3½)	115	138
Westbourne	Emsworth (1½)	77	2409
West Bromwich	West Bromwich	134	59474

that house to the priory of Sandwell, and was rebuilt by its new possessors in the Dec. period; in 1872 the church was thoroughly restored in Dec. style, the plan of the old church pulled down in 1786 being adhered to as closely as possible. The Whorwood chapel dates from 1619; and in the church are monuments to the Whorwood and Turton families. Here are also eccl. pas. with churches in Gothic style, Catholic and Catholic Apostolic churches, and places of worship for the chief Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall (1874–75) is of bold proportions, with a massive tower 130 ft. in height; the interior comprises the borough offices, a council chamber, committee-room, town clerk's office, and mayor's parlour; but the main feature is the hall, with an orchestra and spacious galleries on three sides. The Market Hall adjoins the Town Hall, and at the back are the baths. The Institute (1885), nearly opposite the Town Hall, comprises a lecture theatre, reading-room, council chamber and secretary's office, and class-rooms. The Free Library (1874) has a good collection, and there are branches in connection with it. The Oak House, formerly one of the finest half-timbered houses in the Midlands, and for several centuries the seat of the Turton family, is still a mansion of much interest, with picturesque gables and tall clustered chimneys, and is in fair condition. W. B. Hall, near the church, is now a farmhouse. Dartmouth Park is a public recreation ground of 56 ac. of undulating land well laid out. A Benedictine priory was founded about the close of the reign of Henry II., but was suppressed for the endowment of Wolsey's intended colleges in the reign of Henry VIII., at which time its revenue was estimated at £38 8s. 7d.; the present Sandwell Hall is built upon the site of the priory, and was for many years the seat of the Dartmouth family, but is now occupied as an educational establishment.

Westbrook (1), ha. with railway station, pa. of Clifford (q.v.), N. Herefords., 1½ E. of Hardwick.

Westbrook (2), ha., forming part of the to. of Margate (q.v.), E. Kent.

Westbrook (3), ha., pa. of and adjoining Boxford (q.v.), S. Berks.

Westburn, vil., pa. of and 1 mile from Cambuslang (q.v.), N. Lanarks.

Westbury (1), pa. and U. to., and head of a petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., W. Wilts., 5 S. of Trowbridge; ac. 11,901, principally pasture, arable, and down land. The to. is very ancient, and is supposed to have been the scene of an engagement between Alfred and the Danes in the year 890, to commemorate which there is a figure of a horse, of enormous size, cut on the side of Bratton Hill. [Bratton (1).] In the reign of Henry IV. W. had a charter of incorporation granted, but the Corporation was dissolved in 1886. The bor. formerly returned two members to Parliament, but in 1885 the representation was merged in the co. The church of All Saints (restored 1867) is Perp.; it contains, among others, a fine monument to James Ley, first Earl of Marlborough, and Lord Treasurer (d. 1629). There are Congregational, Baptist, and Wesleyan chapels. Other public buildings are the Laverton Institute, containing a hall for public meetings, and the Baths. The trade of the to. is chiefly in the manufacture of fancy woollen coatings and meltons, employing about 400 hands; malting is likewise carried on, and there are brick and tile works. At Ham, close to the railway station, are ironworks. On the Downs a sheep fair is held annually on the first Tuesday in September, and pleasure fairs in the to. on Easter Monday and Whit Monday. A market is held on the first Monday in each month. The market-house, erected in 1815, is now used as a town hall. The charities for distribution amount to £200 yearly, and the interest of £1,000 goes to purchase clothing. The family of Bethell take their title of Westbury from this place. Leighton House, in park-like grounds, is a seat.

Westbury (2), or Westbury-sub-Mendip, extensive agricultural pa. and vil. on an elevated declivity of the Mendip Hills, N. Somerset, 4 N.W. of Wells; ac. 3,022. The soil on the higher side of the pa. is a thin stratum of red loam, resting on mountain limestone and conglomerate; the lower part is a red marl, and the moor is alluvial, of a rich quality. W. derives its name from its situation to the west of Wells, and the term "Burg," or "Bury," a fortified to. or vil. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1887) is chiefly Debased Perp., with some remains of Saxon, Norm., and E. Eng. work; there are monuments to the Rodney, Spencer, and Knyfton families. A venerable yew-tree, supposed to be about 800 years old, stands on the east side of the church. Here are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels and a Temperance Hall. At an intersection of the roads in the vil. stand the remains of a cross, to which at one time the stocks were attached, and one of the fastenings still remains.

Westbury (3), pa., tp., and vil., W. Salop, 9 W.S.W. of Shrewsbury, on the road to Montgomery; ac. of pa. 11,274, of tp. 8,783; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1878) is an ancient building much modernised; it contains mural monuments to the Corbett, Topps, and the Severne families. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There are charities amounting to about £70 yearly, and the National school has an endowment. A fair is held on Sept. 15. Cause Castle, formerly a Border stronghold and the seat of the Corbetts, is now in ruins, though a portion is occupied as a farmhouse. Wallop Hall, a brick mansion situated in a beautiful valley, is a seat.

Westbury (4), pa., N. Bucks., separated from Oxon. by the Ouse, 5 W.N.W. of Buckingham; ac. 1,327; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Augustine (restored 1863) is E. Eng., with a saddleback tower. The poor's land is let for £10 a year. W. Manor is a seat.

Westbury (5), ha., pa. of and 2 W. from East Meon (q.v.), E. Hants. W. House is a seat.

Westbury Division, one of the five parl. divs. of Wilts. It lies in the west of the co., and returns one member.

Westbury Leigh, ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Westburn	Cambuslang (1)	397	790
Westbury (1)	Westbury	101	5634
Westbury (2)	Lodge Hill (½)	130	605
Westbury (3), pa.	Westbury	173	2059

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Westbury (3), tp.	Westbury	173	[illegible]
Westbury (4)	Westbury	65	[illegible]
Westbury Division	.....	.....	[illegible]

Westbury (q.v.), W. Wilts. There is a chapel-of-ease (erected 1880), and there are also two Baptist chapels.

Westbury-on-Severn, pa., head of U., and large vil., W. Gloucs., 9 S.W. of Gloucester; ac. 8,185 and 657 water and foreshore; soil various, overlying clay and marl. The church of the Virgin Mary (restored 1878) is Dec. and Perp.; the detached tower on the north side belonged to an earlier church; in the chancel are marble tablets to the Colchester and the Boughton families, and an inscribed brass (1642) to Mr. Serjeant Maynard. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The charities and endowments, derived chiefly from land, are now of £33 yearly value, and are chiefly applied to school purposes. In 1871 Mr. Wintle, of Bristol, bequeathed £18 annually for twenty aged women. The Court gardens in this vil. are in the quaint and formal Dutch style, and were laid out in the reign of William and Mary. In the neighbourhood is Garden Cliff, celebrated for its fossil remains, and a favourite resort of geologists. In the garden of Chaxhill House is a life-sized figure of Charles I., once forming a portion of the ancient cross at Gloucester.

Westbury-on-Trym, pa. and vil., S. Gloucs., 3 N.W. of Bristol; ac. 5,236; soil sand and clay, overlying limestone. The church of the Holy Trinity, formerly attached to the college founded here in 1288 by Bishop Giffard, was erected in the beginning of the 13th cent.; there are several ancient monuments, the most prominent being that of John Carpenter, Bishop of Worcester (1444–76), provost of Oriel College, Oxford, and chancellor of that University, who was a great benefactor to the church and the adjoining monastery, and was buried here; his tomb stands on the south side of the chancel. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities are of £420 yearly value, of which about £200 are applied to church purposes and the remainder given to the poor. The convent of the Visitation of the Blessed Virgin Mary stands in grounds of 10 ac. The County Police Station (1869) is in the Elizabethan style. The Village Hall, occupying an elevated site in the vil., is a building in the E. Dec. style. The college of the Holy Trinity was among the earliest foundations of this kind in England; it was built on the site of the Benedictine priory of St. Mary, a cell of Worcester, and was rebuilt by W. Cannyngs in the reign of Edward IV. The college formed an extensive pile of buildings covering a large area, and, besides its valuable possessions, was assisted by rich endowments and benefactions. It was a flourishing body, with its dean and canons, in the time of Wycliffe, himself prebendary of Aust-on-the-Severn, a place under the ecclesiastical control of Westbury College. At its dissolution the revenues were estimated at £232. During the Civil War the buildings of the college were almost completely demolished; the remains consist principally of a massive square tower and a small round tower, now forming part of a modern structure which occupies the place of the old college and retains its name.

Westbury-sub-Mendip. [WESTBURY (2).]

Westby-with-Plumpton, tp., pa. of and about 3 N.W. from Kirkham (q.v.), W. Lancs.; ac. 3,598. St. Ann's Catholic Chapel was built in 1860.

West Close Booth. [HIGHAM WITH WEST CLOSE BOOTH.]

Westcombe, ha., pa. of Batcombe (q.v.), E. Somerset, about 3 N. of Bruton.

West Cornforth, pl. with railway station, pa. of Bishop Middleham (q.v.), N. Dur., about 5 N.W. of Sedgefield. It is occupied principally by colliers.

Westcote (1), pa., E. Gloucs., 4 S.E. of Stow-on-the-Wold; ac. 1,503; soil and subsoil stonebrash and clay. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1876 and 1886) is chiefly in the E. Eng. and Perp. styles. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Westcote (2), ha., pa. of Binstead (q.v.), N.E. Hants, 3 N.E. of Alton.

Westcote (3), ha., pa. of Tysoe (q.v.), S.E. Warws., 3 S.E. of Kington.

Westcott (1), or Westgate Street, eccl. pa., pa of and 1 W. from Dorking (q.v.), S.E. Surrey. The church of Holy Trinity (consecrated 1852) is in Dec. style. The Rookery and W. Heath are seats.

Westcott (2), tp. and vil., pa. of and adjoining Waddesdon (q.v.), Mid Bucks.; ac. 1,367.

Westcott (3), ha., pa. of and ½ W. from Sparsholt (q.v.), N. Berks. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Westcott Barton, pa. and vil. on the road from Chipping Norton to Bicester, N. Oxon., 7 N. of Woodstock; ac. 933; soil chiefly limestone brash, overlying clay and white limestone. The church of St. Edward (restored 1856) is of various periods, its earliest portion being Norm. The chancel retains sedile and piscina, and on the north side a credence; the chancel arch is Trans., and has an ancient screen with doors, probably dating from the 13th cent. The cornice of the rood-loft has been renewed and painted in gold and colours; two original Norm. arches and piers of the aisle arcade remain, but the windows of the aisle are Perp.; the font is Norm. In the churchyard is the base of a cross and half of a stone coffin. There is also a large memorial granite cross of the Celtic type. The charities are small.

West Cowes. [COWES.]

West Cowick. [EAST COWICK.]

Westcraigs, ha. with railway station (in Lanarks.), pa. of Torphichen (q.v.), W. Linliths., Sc., 5½ S.W. of Bathgate.

West Derby Division, one of the parl. divs. of the bor. of Liverpool; it returns one member. [DERBY, WEST.]

West Dunley, ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Littleton Drew (q.v.), N.W. Wilts.

Westend (1), ha., pa. of and ½ N.W. from Eastington (q.v.), N. Gloucs. There is a Baptist chapel.

Westend (2), ha., pa. of Hambledon (q.v.), E. Hants, 4½ S.E. of Bishop's Waltham.

Westend (3), ha., pa. of Burgh-by-Sands (q.v.), N. Cumb., 5 W. of Carlisle.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist., fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Westbury-on-Severn	Grange Court (1)	121	2005
Westbury-on-Trym	Bristol (3)	118	19841
Westby-with-P.	Wrea Green (1)	219	491
Westcote (1)	Stow-on-Wold (4)	89	206
Westcott (1)	Dorking (1)	25	1433
Westcott (2)	Westcott	57	282
Westcott Barton	Heyford (3)	75	215
West Derby Div.	.....	.....	76971

Westend (4), ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Stanton Harcourt (q.v.), Mid Oxon.

Westend (5), ha., pa. of Northolt (q.v.), N. Middx., 2½ N. of Hanwell.

Westend (6), ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Esher (q.v.), Mid Surrey.

Westend (7), ha., pa. of Fewston (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 N.E. of Otley.

Westenhanger. [STANDFORD (1).]

Wester Balgrochan. [TORRANCE AND WESTER BALGROCHAN.]

Westerdale (1), tp., eccl. pa., and vil. on the E-k, pa. of Stokesley (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 10 S.E. of Guisbrough; ac. 9,881. Christ Church is a plain structure, rebuilt 1838; in the churchyard is a floriated grave slab. Here is a Wesleyan chapel and a parochial library. The charities are of £5 yearly value. Part of the site of an ancient British vil. may be traced in the pa. W. Hall is a seat.

Westerdale (2). ha. on the Thurso River, pa. of Halkirk (q.v.), Mid Caiths., Sc., 10½ s. of Thurso. Here is a Free church, also a school.

Wester Duddingston. [DUDDINGSTON.]

Westeredge, ha., pa. of Streatley (q.v.), N. Berks., adjoining the vil. of Aldworth.

Westerfield, pa. and vil., S.E. Suff., 2 N.E. of Ipswich; ac. 1,070; soil mixed. The church of St. Mary (restored 1867) is Perp.; it has a piscina and an aumbry, and the font is very ancient. There are charities for the relief of the poor and for educating poor children.

Westergate, ha., pa. of and a little E. from Aldingbourne (q.v.), S.W. Sussex.

Westerhall, estate, with seat of the same name, pa. of Westerkirk (q.v.), E. Dumfs., Sc., about 5 W. of Langholm.

Westerham, pa. and mkt. to. (W.), W. Kent, on the Surrey border, 6½ W. of Sevenoaks; ac. 5,803; soil various, with some loam, subsoil gravelly. The pa. extends northward to the summit of the chalk hills, where it is bounded by Cudham, and southward beyond the sand hills into the Weald. The Perp. church of St. Mary (restored 1883) is beautifully situated on a rising ground; there are several 16th-cent. brasses with effigies, and others with inscriptions; there are also effigies of two civilians (c. 1545), six daughters (c. 1520) (palimpsest), and seven sons (c. 1540). There are Congregational and Baptist chapels. The Public Hall, in the Tudor style, includes a large hall and a billiard-room. In the market-place is a granite drinking fountain, erected by subscription 1887. A cattle fair is held on May 3. Two remarkable landslips occurred here on the southern escarpment of the sand hill in 1596 and 1756; in the former 9 ac. of ground continued in motion for eleven days, and in the latter 2½ ac., some parts of the ground sinking into pits and other portions rising into hills. Dr. Benjamin Hoadley, successively Bishop of Bangor, Hereford, Salisbury, and Winchester, was born here (Nov. 14, 1676); and this was also the birthplace (Jan. 15, 1726) of General James Wolfe, the victor of Quebec (Sept. 13, 1759); a tablet in the church and a cenotaph in the grounds of Squerryes have been erected to his martyr, burned at Smi born here. The chari of £25. A block of cottage hospital were Court, a 16th-cent. buil hall containing some case and in the picture of family portraits ar the south-western ent springs in the park. thickly timbered grou

Wester Hatton, pl., Abers., Sc., 6 N. of Ab

Westerkirk, pa. and Sc., about 6 N.W. of L the whole of this porti to pasturage for shee stands on the left ban a parochial library est the engineer (1757–183

Westerleigh, pa. an Chipping Sodbury; a lying principally lim James the Great is i There is a Congregat amount to about £100

Wester, Loch of, l Bower pas., N.E. Cait The lake extends abo giving off Wester Wat

Western Bay. [SID

Western Town, ec (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., of North Shields. Th a modern building. T

Westerton (1), smal S. Dur., 2½ N.E. of Bish old Westerton Folly, landmark and beacon Colliery is situated he

Westerton (2), ha., S.W. Sussex, 1 N.E. of Westerton (3), ha., W.R. Yorks., about 4 N

Westerton (4), pl., Sc., 4 S.W. of Montrose

Wester Water, stre Bower pas., N.E. Cait from the foot of th middle of Sinclair's Ba

West Ferry. [OWST

West Fenton, ha., Haddings., Sc., about

West Ferring. [FE

Westfield (1), pa. a Hastings; ac. 4,194; The church of St. John is chiefly E. Eng.; Here are Congregatio Primitive Methodist ch smelted here. Near

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Westerdale (1)	Castleton (3)	247	245
Westerfield	Westerfield	72	367
Westerham	Westerham	24	2631
Westerkirk	Langholm (6)	320	454

PLACE.	Nea fr.(
Westerleigh	Ya
Western Town	Ty
Westerton (1)	Co
Westfield (1)	Ba

mansion, now a farmhouse. Crowham Manor, Oaklands, and W. Place are seats.

Westfield (2), pa., Mid Norf., 2 S. of East Dereham; ac. 569; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The rent of the fuel allotment is distributed in coals to the poor.

Westfield (3), pl., pa. of Torphichen (q.v.), W. Linliths., Sc., 2¾ N.W. of Bathgate. Here is a paper mill.

Westfield (4), part of Roughrigg (q.v.), pa. of New Monkland, N. Lanarks., Sc., 5½ E. by N. of Airdrie.

Westfield (5), vil. on the Ericht, pa. of Rattray (q.v.), N.E. Perths., Sc., 2 N. of Blairgowrie.

Westfield (6), vil., pa. of Clackmannan (q.v.), S. Clacks., 2½ E.S.E. of Alloa.

Westgate (1), eccl. pa. and vil. on the Wear, pa. of and 5 W. from Stanhope (q.v.), W. Dur. The church of St. Andrew (1869) is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Fairs are held in Feb. and Oct.

Westgate (2), tp. within the bor. of Newcastle-on-Tyne (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 225.

Westgate (3), ha., pa. of Belton-by-Gainsborough (q.v.), N. Lincs., 2 N. of Epworth.

Westgate Common, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Wakefield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Michael (1858) is in E. Eng. style.

Westgate-on-Sea, watering-place on the north coast of Kent, pa. of and 2 W. from Margate (q.v.), N.E. Kent. It is built upon a range of chalk cliffs, and on the shores of two bays, separated by a promontory, and it is noted for the salubrity of its air; sea walls have been built along the curves of the bays forming two promenades over a mile in length, with steps giving access from the summit of the cliffs to the sands, which are firm and safe for bathing; gardens have also been formed with walks at different levels facing the sea, giving protection against keen winds, and a marine drive has been constructed along the top of the cliffs for about 2 miles; the sea here has formed caverns in the chalk, and in some places masses have been isolated from the main land by the action of the waves. The eccl. pa. of St. James has a church of Kentish rag and Bath stone in Gothic style. St. Saviour's is an eccl. pa. with a church of Kentish rag. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The local cricket and lawn-tennis club has a ground of 9 ac., and the W. club occupies premises on the Sea road. The links of the Golfing Association are on the Canterbury road.

PLEASURE GROUNDS AND BAY, WESTGATE-ON-SEA.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Westgate Street. [WESTCOTT.]

West Green (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Tottenham (q.v.), E. Middx., about 5 N.E. of St. Paul's, London. Christ Church is in E. Eng. style.

West Green (2), ha., pa. of Hartley Wintney (q.v.), N.E. Hants, 2 N. of Winchfield.

Westhall (1), pa. and vil., N. Suff., 3½ N.E. of Halesworth; ac. 2,316; soil and subsoil principally clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1882) is of various periods; in the south aisle are two fine Norm. arches; the tower is Perp.; the font has the Seven Sacraments and the Baptism of our Lord carved on the sides. Here is a chapel for Primitive Methodists. The old Hall (now rebuilt) was the residence of Edmund Bohun, the celebrated political writer and antiquary in the times of James II., William III., and Queen Anne.

Westhall (2), ha., pa. of Lanercost (q.v.), N.E. Cumb., about 5 N.E. of Brampton.

West Ham. [HAM, WEST.]

Westham, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, adjoining Pevensey on the west; ac. 5,005 and 74 water; soil rich loam, overlying marl. The church of St. Mary (restored 1877) is E. Eng. and Perp., with some portions of Norm. date; the stairway to the rood-loft remains and is interesting, but the great beam of the rood-loft with part of the old chancel screen have been removed into the tower; there is a piscina in the chapel and one in the north aisle, and an aumbry behind the pulpit; on the floor of the aisle is an ancient altar stone, with its five consecration crosses, apparently used as a gravestone in 1602; some very fine old glass remains in the east window. There is a Congregational chapel. St. John's Hospital is for four aged people, and there is a charity of £3 4s. yearly for educational purposes. Glenleigh, built during the Elizabethan period, is a seat.

Westhampnett, pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 1½ E. of Chichester; ac. 1,908; soil light loam. The church of St. Peter (restored 1876) is E. Eng.; it contains a mural monument to Richard Sackville, Esq., and Elizabeth his wife, with kneeling effigies, and between these a personification of the Trinity; portions of Roman materials worked up by the builder in the chancel arch and elsewhere still remain. The fine stables attached to Goodwood House are in this pa.

West Haven. [NEWTON AND WEST HAVEN.]

Westhay (1), ha., pa. of Meare (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 4½ N.W. of Glastonbury. There is a bridge of three arches over the river Brue.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Westfield (2)	Yaxham (1)	120	119
Westgate (1)	Stanhope (5)	250	820
Westgate (2)	Newcastle-on-T. (1)	271	30264
Westgate Common	Wakefield (1½)	176	3998
Westgate-on-Sea	Westgate-on-Sea	73	2670
West Green (1)	West Green	6	6110
Westhall (1)	Halesworth (2)	101	391
Westham	Pevensey	60	1140
Westhampnett	Drayton (1½)	68	505

Westhay (2), vil., pa. of King's Cliffe (q.v.), N. Northants, 9 N.W. of Oundle.

Westhide, chap. and tp., pa. of Stoke Edith (q.v.), E. Herefords., 5¾ N.E. of Hereford; ac. 1,246. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1886–87) is Gothic, and contains the tomb of the founder, with effigy, and also a fine piscina and altar slab. There are two quarries.

Westholme (1), ha., pa. of East Stoke (q.v.), E. Dors., about 1½ S.W. of Wareham.

Westholme (2), ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Pilton (q.v.), E. Somerset.

Westhope, ha., pa. of and 4 W. from Diddlebury (q.v.), S. Salop.

Westhorpe (1), pa. and small vil., N.E. Suff., 8 N. of Stowmarket; ac. 1,309; soil principally heavy, with some mixed, overlying clay and brick-earth. The church of St. Margaret is E. Eng., and contains a marble monument to Maurice Barrow, and others to the Shelton family. The charities amount to about £12 yearly, which are applied to the use of the church and the poor. Mary Tudor, third daughter of Henry VII., King of England, was married in 1514 to Louis XII., King of France; afterwards, in 1517, to Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, who resided at the manor-house here; she died in 1533, and was interred in the monastery of Bury St. Edmunds; her remains were removed into St. Mary's Church there after the dissolution of the abbey.

Westhorpe (2), ha., pa. of and adjoining Southwell (q.v.), Mid Notts.

Westhorpe (3), ha., pa. of Gosberton (q.v.), S. Lincs., about 6 N.W. of Spalding.

Westhoughton. [HOUGHTON, WEST.]

Westhoughton Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of S.E. Lancs.; it returns one member.

West Humble, ha. on the Mole, pa. of Mickleham (q.v.), Mid Surrey, 3 S. of Leatherhead.

West Huntington. [HUNTINGTON (1).]

Westing, pl., pa. of Unst, on west side of Unst Island, N. Shetland, Sc., 42 N. by E. of Lerwick. Here is a school.

Westleigh (1), pa. and vil. on the Torridge, N. Dev., 7 S.W. of Barnstaple; ac. 2,456; soil good, overlying clay and light shale. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Tapeley Park is a seat.

Westleigh (2). [LEIGH, WEST (2).]

Westleigh (3), ha., pa. of Burlescombe (q.v.), E. Dev., on the Somerset border, about 5 S.W. of Wellington.

Westleton, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 6 N.E. of Saxmundham; ac. 5,975, of which 2,000 are sandy heath; soil loamy, sandy, and clayey, overlying loam, stones, and gravel. The church of St. Peter (restored 1891) is Perp.; there is an E. Eng. piscina in the chancel, also several monuments to the Woods family; the font is very ancient, and has sculptured figures on its sides. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. There is a charity of £17 10s. a year to provide clothing for poor widows and children of this pa. The church lands are let in allotments for £15 a year.

Westley, pa., N.W. Suff., 2 W. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 1,216; soil mixed, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (1836) is in Dec. style. The old church, which was dedicated to St. Thomas à Becket, is in ruins.

Westley Waterless, pa. and small vil., E. Cambs., 5½ S.W. of Newmarket; ac. 1,088; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of the Blessed Virgin is E. Eng., and has a brass to Sir Thomas De Creyke and his wife (1325). There are charities of about £32 yearly, distributed in coal to the poor.

West Lindsey Division. [GAINSBOROUGH DIVISION.]

West Lothian. [LOTHIAN.]

Westmancote, ha., pa. of Bredon (q.v.), S. Worcs., 4½ N.E. of Tewkesbury. There is a Baptist chapel.

Westmarsh, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Ash-next-Sandwich (q.v.), E. Kent, about 4½ N.W. of Sandwich. The church of the Holy Trinity is modern.

Westmeath, an inland co. of the province of Leinster, Ir., bounded on the east by co. Meath; on the west by cos. Longford and Roscommon, being separated from the latter by Lough Ree and the Shannon; on the north by a small portion of each of the cos. of Cavan and Meath, and on the south by King's Co. Its greatest extent from north-east to south-west is about 40 miles, and its breadth, in a direct line, east and west, 20 miles. Its area comprises 431,588 ac. of land and 21,685 of water. The inland loughs are a great feature of this co., the principal being Lough Ree (an expansion of the Shannon), which gives an irregular coast-line to about 8 miles of its western border; Lough Derevaragh, south-west of Castlepollard, to the east of which lie Loughs Glore and Lene; Lough Owel to the north and Lough Ennel to the south of Mullingar; while Lough Sheelin touches its north boundary: nearly all these loughs abound with fish. There are no mountains, except along the coast of some of the large loughs, and a few small scattered peaks, the highest being only 850 ft.; but though the surface of the co. nowhere rises to any considerable elevation, it is much diversified by hill and dale, and highly picturesque in many parts, and abounds in all the essentials of rural beauty except timber. Both the pasture and arable land is exceedingly fertile, the latter especially, occupying tracts of from 10,000 to 30,000 ac., the soil of which is so deep and rich as almost to defy exhaustion. The southern part is flat and overspread with bog, and the hills on the shores of Lough Derevaragh have their sides clothed with stunted oak and underwood, the remains of ancient forests. The manufactures are merely such as supply the demands of the inhabitants, being confined to friezes, flannels, and coarse linens. The mineralogy of the co. is not important; W. is included within the great limestone plain of Ireland. Copper, lead, coal, and marble have been found, but not sufficiently abundant to induce speculation or search for the different beds. The Brosna and the Inny are the

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Westhide	Withington (2)	142	150
Westhorpe (1)	Finningham (2)	87	216
Westhoughton Div.	.....	.....	83063
Westleigh (1)	Bideford (2)	220	483
Westleton	Darsham (2)	95	807

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Westley	Bury St. Edmunds (2	77	15
Westley Waterless	Dullingham (2½)	66	18
Westmarsh	Sandwich (4½)	85	45
Westmeath	.....	.....	6518

only important rivers, but the Shannon is a boundary stream on its western side, and there are several inferior ones. The Midland Great Western and the Great Southern and Western Railway Company pass through the co. For parl. purposes the co. has two divisions—North W. and South W.—each returning one member. From this co. the Nugent family takes the title of Earl.

Westmeath, North. [WESTMEATH.]

Westmeath, South. [WESTMEATH.]

Westmeston, pa. and tp., Mid Sussex, 6 N.W. of Lewes; ac. of pa. 4,107, of tp. 2,436; soil and subsoil chalky. The church of St. Martin is chiefly E. Eng., but portions of Norm. work remain. In the course of the restoration in 1862 some early wall paintings were discovered in the nave and on the chancel arch; these were all, however, destroyed. Charities of about £18 a year are devoted to educational purposes.

Westmill, pa. and vil. on the Rib, N. Herts., 1½ S. of Buntingford; ac. 2,597; soil heavy, overlying clay upon chalk. The church of St. Mary, dating probably from the end of the 13th cent., is E. Eng. The interior is particularly striking on account of the height of the nave; on the floor of the nave is an ancient slab with incised inscription in Norman French; in the sacrarium are several other slabs dating from the 18th cent. There is a charity (£28 yearly) applied to the school. Coles Park is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Westmeath, North	.....	.....	33735
Westmeath, South	.....	.....	31374
Westmeston, pa.	Hassocks (3)	44	718

Westminster, parl. bor. in Central London, E. Middx., ¾ W. of St. Paul's; ac. 823. W. comprises the ancient pas. of St. James, W.; St. Margaret and St. John the Evangelist, W.; the Close of the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, W.; St. Anne, Soho; St. Clement Danes; St. George's, Hanover Square; St. Martin-in-the-Fields; St. Mary-le-Strand; St. Paul's, Covent Garden; and the Savoy Precinct. On the east it adjoins the City of London, from which it was formerly separated by Temple Bar. It extends to the bors. of Marylebone on the north, Finsbury on the north-east, and Kensington and Chelsea on the west; on the east and south it is bounded by the Thames. From the time of its formation in 1547 the bor. returned two members; since 1885 it has comprised three divisions (St. George's, Hanover Square; Strand; and Westminster), each returning one member. The Minster from which the name is derived is said to have been founded during the reign of Offa in the 8th cent.; it was refounded by Dunstan during Edgar's reign (about 971), the term "west" being prefixed to distinguish it from the neighbouring minster of St. Paul. The Abbey Church was rebuilt by Edward the Confessor, but of his work only an archway in the south transept is known with certainty to remain. The oldest parts of the existing structure—the choir, transept, and Confessor's chapel or chapel of the kings—date from the reign of Henry III.; they afford a very fine example of E. Eng. architecture. Of the nave

WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Westmeston, tp.	Hassocks (3)	44	282
Westmill	West Mill	33	348
Westminster	.....	.....	55774

the four easternmost bays are E. Dec., the remainder Perp. The west towers were not finished till 1739, and consequently exhibit a curious intermixture of Italian features. At the east end of the church are nine chapels, the most interesting being those of St. Edward the Confessor and St. Mary, better known as Henry VII.'s Chapel. The latter, constituting the Lady Chapel, is a very rich example of Late Perp. work with a beautiful fan-tracery vault; it contains the altar-tomb, with effigies, of Henry VII. and his queen, and elsewhere in the Abbey are buried Edward the Confessor, Henry III., Edward I., Edward III., Richard II., Henry V., Edward V., Edward VI., Mary, Elizabeth, Mary Queen of Scots, James I., Charles II., William III. and Mary, Anne, and George II. The tomb of Saeberht (d. 616), King of the East Saxons, and Ethelgoda, his queen, is on the left side of the gateway leading to the chapels; it has a plain arch forming a recess, above which are some traces of paintings. It would be impossible to enumerate all the famous men buried within the Abbey; special interest, however, attaches to the Poets' Corner at the east angle of the south transept, where rest the remains of Chaucer, Spenser, and Dryden. The church was restored by Sir Gilbert Scott in 1849–78, and in 1890 a new north front was substituted for Wren's. Of the monastic buildings the most interesting is the beautiful octagonal E. Eng. chapter-house with a central pillar. After the Dissolution W. was for some years (1541–50) the seat of a bishop; the Abbey church was eventually made collegiate by Elizabeth. The church of St. Margaret is Perp., but it has been much altered in modern times; it is the place of worship for the House of Commons. St. John's Church (1728) is in debased Classical style. The church of St. James, Piccadilly (1684), has internally some of Wren's best work. Of the ancient palace, built originally by Edward the Confessor, the only portions which now remain are W. Hall and the crypt of St. Stephen's Chapel. The Hall is a magnificent chamber, with a beautiful hammer-beam roof; the Grand Councils and early Parliaments often assembled within its walls, and the four supreme judicial courts—those of Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer—were located here from 1224 to 1882, when the New Law Courts were opened. W. Hall now forms the approach to the new Houses of Parliament, a magnificent pile of buildings in Perp. style, begun by Sir Charles Barry in 1840. It has four fronts, the principal one being that towards the river. The three chief towers—the Royal or Victoria Tower (340 ft.), the Central Tower (300 ft.), and the Clock Tower (320 ft.)—owing to their great height and bulk, contribute greatly to the impressive character of the edifice. Beneath the Victoria Tower is the Royal entrance, which communicates by means of the Victoria Gallery and the Prince's Chamber with the House of Lords. The Central Tower rises above a central octagonal hall, from which there are passages leading to the House of Lords on the right and the House of Commons on the left. The House of Lords is very richly ornamented. W. School, on the south side of the Abbey, consists partly of the old monastic buildings, the College Hall having formed the refectory; modern buildings have also been added. The school, originally attached to the Abbey, was reconstituted by Queen Elizabeth (1560), and is now one of the leading public schools. W. Hospital, Broad Sanctuary, north-west of the Abbey, founded 1720, was the first establishment of the kind in Great Britain; the existing edifice, erected in 1832, is in Late Gothic style. W. contains three of the principal London Parks—viz. Hyde Park, St. James's Park, and Green Park. St. James's Park (58 ac.) was originally designed for Henry VIII., greatly improved by Charles II. and completed by George IV. in 1829. The Park contains an artificial canal, formed by Charles II.; it is a fine sheet of water embosomed amongst trees and surrounded by pleasant walks; across it runs a bridge with a span of 140 ft., constructed in 1857. On the north side of Buckingham Palace is the Green Park, embracing 56 ac Westmoor, ha., pa. of Curry Rivell (q.v.), S. Somerset, about 2 S.W. of Langport.

West Moors, ha. with railway station, pa. of West Parley (q.v.), E. Dors., about 4 N.E. of Wimborne.

West Morden, ha., pa. of Morden (q.v.), E. Dors., 4 E. of Bere Regis. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Westmorland, a small northern shire, near the western shore of England, having Cumberland on the north and west, Durham on the east, Yorkshire on the south-east, and Lancashire on the south and west. Its greatest breadth is 40 miles and length 33 miles, but it is very irregular in shape; its area is 500,906 ac. W. is a co. of hills, the only level portions being that along the vale of the Eden, stretching across the eastern part of the co. from north to south, and that along the south of Kendal on the Lancs. border. The elevations in the north-east, on the borders of Cumb., are over 2,000 ft.; those in the centre of the co. are more varied, ranging from less than 1,000 ft. to over 2,000 ft. The mountains are separated by pleasant and fertile valleys. Many beautiful lakes adorn the numerous romantic and sequestered dales, and, together with those of Cumberland, have afforded an abundant theme for description, and have been the subjects of some of the finest efforts of landscape painting. Amongst the most important lakes are Windermere, Ullswater, Haweswater, and Grasmere. The rivers of the co. are numerous, the principal being the Eden, the Eamont, the Lowther, the Lune, and the Kent. The climate of W. is wet, and among the mountains a very heavy fall of rain takes place, ranking among the greatest in England; and the hills are very bleak, but the valleys and borders of the lakes are well sheltered and warm. The prevailing soil is a dry gravelly mould. Clay is found in a few places near the Eden, and bordering on the eastern mountains, and a heavy moist soil in the northern parts of the co. The rocks of this co. belong to the Palæozoic group. The general structure of the region may be roughly described as consisting of a central mass of Silurian rocks, round which are beds of Carboniferous and Permian age; the northern and more perfect half of this area forms the co. of Cumberland; the southern half constitutes W. The strata of the Lower Silurian formation consist of the Skiddaw Slates, which occupy so much of the surface of Cumberland; the Volcanic Series of Borrowdale are composed of matter ejected from the craters of volcanoes which must formerly have been in active eruption in this region, but whose cones have long since been swept away; and the Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. from place, (1) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Pop. (2)

Westmorland	.....	6068

Coniston Series. The Coniston Limestone is a hard compact greyish blue, grey, or nearly black rock; associated with it are highly fossiliferous beds of shale. The Upper Silurian formation consists of the Stockdale shales, the Coniston flags and grits, the former being dark blue sandy mudstone, and the latter tough sandstone, or grit with interstratified slates or flags; the Bannisdale slates; and the Hay Fell and Kirkby Moor flags. Nearly all the intrusive igneous rocks of W. are found in Silurian strata. The well-known Shap granite occupies an area of 4 or 5 square miles on Shap Fells, rising at Wasdale Crag to a height of nearly 1,500 ft.; it is a beautiful rock formed of crystalline quartz, plates of black mica, and small crystals of red and white felspar; but its distinguishing feature is the presence of numerous very large oblong crystals of pink felspar. This granite is largely quarried for building stone, and is polished for many ornamental purposes. To the Carboniferous formation belong the Carboniferous Conglomerate, made up of rounded and angular fragments of Upper Silurian rocks, and between 200 and 300 ft. in thickness; and the Carboniferous or Mountain Limestone. This is a greyish or greyish-blue rock, weathering to a lighter tint. It forms picturesque escarpments called "scars"; is traversed by many fissures, on whose sides ferns grow luxuriantly, and "sink-holes" or "swallow-holes" abound, in which the streams disappear, so that the surface of the rock is usually dry. Fossils are numerous, especially near the bottom and top of the formation. It is extensively quarried for building purposes, road-mending, and burning into lime; near Kendal it is cut and polished for marble. Veins of lead-ore are worked near Kirkby Stephen, and hematite is also obtained. In the Carboniferous Limestone of the Pennine Chain is an intrusive sheet of igneous rock, called the Great Whin Sill. It is a greyish black basalt, and is finely exposed in Teesdale at the waterfalls called High Force and Caldron Snout. Red rocks of Permian age lie between Brough and Kirkby Stephen, and extend thence in a north-westerly direction towards Penrith and Long Marton; they are bounded on the east by the Pennine Fault, and are also faulted on the west against the Carboniferous Limestone. They are well exposed between Appleby and Hilton. Evidences of the Glacial Period are seen in the ice-marks borne by the hard and lofty rocks; and in the valleys between Ambleside and Ullswater there are striations or scratches on the rocks, the grooves pointing down the valleys. Most of the lake-basins, as Ullswater, Windermere, etc., are now believed to have been ploughed out by glaciers. The lines or mounds of sand and gravel called "eskers" were probably formed by currents washing and reassorting the materials of the boulder-clay during the period of depression. Few traces of early man have occurred in W., the chief finds being a stone axe-head and a net-sinker. The mineral productions of W. are not extensive; the principal lead-mine is near Greenside. Slate is found in the western mountains, and is considered the finest in England, while marble and granite are also found in many parts. The manufactures are of minor importance, consisting chiefly of woollen cloths at Kendal, where the trade was first introduced in the reign of Edward III. by emigrants from Flanders. Combs were for a long time extensively manufactured at Kendal, but very little is done now. The mun. bors. are Kendal and Appleby, and among the most important towns are Ambleside, Brough, Burton-in-Kendal, Grasmere, Kirkby Lonsdale, Kirkby Stephen, and Windermere. The co. has good communications by railway. The country was taken from the Welsh by the Romans, and thinly settled by them. In later ages this co. has been very little distinguished in history, except that it several times suffered severely from the hostile incursions of the Scotch. In 1173 King William of Scotland took Appleby Castle by surprise and destroyed the to.; during this inroad the Scottish monarch also sacked Brough Castle. In 1388 Appleby was again reduced to ashes by these northern invaders. At the commencement of the Civil War of the 17th cent., Appleby Castle was garrisoned by Anne, Countess of Pembroke, for the king, for whom it held out until October 16, 1648, when it surrendered to the Parliamentarian forces. For parl. purposes W. is divided into two divisions (Appleby and Kendal), each returning one member.

Westnewton, tp., pa. of and a little w. from Kirk Newton (q.v.), N. Northumb.; ac. 1,115.

Westoe, tp., pa. of Jarrow (q.v.), N.E. Dur., forming part of the bor. of South Shields; ac. 2,160. In this part of the bor. are eccl. pas. with modern churches.

Weston (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the north bank of the Wharfe, W.R. Yorks., 2 N.W. of Otley; ac. of pa. 4,732, of tp. 1,418; soil clay, overlying sandstone. The church of All Saints is Norm. and E. Eng. In the Dawson family pew the following inscription is engraved on a plate and fixed in the wall:—"In a stone coffin underneath are deposited the remains of Sir William Stopham, Knight, lord of Weston, living A.D. 1312," from whom certain lands in the pa. have descended in a direct line to the present owner. The church contains a brass to the memory of William Vavasour (d. 1587), besides small tablets to members of the same family. W. Hall was in part erected in the reign of Henry VII. (about 1497); the southern portion is of a much later date; the estate is well wooded.

Weston (2), pa. and vil. and head of petty sess. div., E. Somerset, about 2 N.W. of Bath; ac. 2,600; soil loamy, overlying stone and blue clay. The Avon (here crossed by a stone bridge) skirts the southern boundary of the pa., and a tributary to the Avon flows through the vil. The church of All Saints, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1832, is in Later Eng. style. The eccl. pa. of St. John the Evangelist has a modern church. Various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The charities amount to about £30 yearly. Partis College, at New Bridge Hill, is a home for thirty widows or orphan daughters of officers in the army or navy, or members of the legal, medical, or clerical professions who have attained their fiftieth year. On a hill in this pa. is a monument to Sir Bevill Grenville, an officer

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Westnewton	Kirknewton (½)	336	48
Westoe	South Shields (1)	268	72445
Weston (1), pa.	Otley (2)	208	347
Weston (1), tp.	Otley (2)	208	116
Weston (2)	Bath (2)	107	4933 of the Royalist army who fell in an engagement here in 1643.

Weston (3), pa. and vil. on a tributary of the Beane, N. Herts., 6 E. of Hitchin; ac. 4,325; soil and subsoil mostly clay, intermixed with chalk and flint. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1867) is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the south wall of the nave is an E. Eng. piscina; the transept has two fine Norm. windows. The chancel contains a tablet with Latin inscription and verses to John Fairclaugh (d. 1630). There is a Catholic Apostolic chapel and a Wesleyan chapel. W. has some small charities, and two almshouses for widows, who also receive weekly a small sum of money. A pleasure fair is held on June 11. Straw-plaiting is carried on by women and children. W. Park is a seat.

Weston (4), pa. and pleasant vil., S. Lincs., 4 E. of Spalding, on the road to Holbeach; ac. 5,389; soil rich, overlying silt and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1885) is Trans., E. Eng., and later; there is a piscina in the south wall; the Trans. font is probably that of the foundation. St. John's chapel-of-ease adjoins the National schools, and there are Free and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to about £80 yearly, and are distributed in money twice a year. There is also a dole of coal.

Weston (5), pa. and vil. on the Great North Road, E. Notts., 10 N. of Newark; ac. 1,666; soil clay, overlying clay and limestone. The church of All Saints (restored 1880) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the chancel retains sedilia and there are two piscinæ; arcades of four bays divide the aisles from the nave. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. There are corn-mills and a malt kiln.

Weston (6), pa., N. Suff., 2¼ S. of Beccles; ac. 1,532; soil generally heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is Perp.; there is a sculptured sacramental font, resting on a Maltese cross, with octagonal base, the eighth panel representing the Baptism of Our Lord.

Weston (7), eccl. pa., pa. of St. Mary Extra (q.v.), S. Hants, 2½ S.E. of Southampton. The church of the Holy Trinity is in Dec. style. On the shore is a curious and ancient seaweed hut used by the fishermen.

Weston (8), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Wybunbury (q.v.), S. Chesh., 2¼ S.E. of Crewe; ac. 1,851. The church of All Saints (1858) is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Weston (9), tp. and vil. at the confluence of the Mersey and Weaver, pa. of Runcorn (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 2½ S.W. of Runcorn; ac. 865 and 226 water and foreshore. The mission church of St. John the Evangelist is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Here are some of the largest freestone quarries in the co., and near the banks of the Weaver are large chemical works and extensive bone-manure works.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weston (3)	Stevenage (3)	29	806
Weston (4)	Weston	96	808
Weston (5)	Crow Park (1½)	127	332
Weston (6)	Beccles (2½)	109	253
Weston (7)	Sholing (½)	79	304
Weston (8), eccl. pa.	Basford (1)	128	624
Weston (8), tp.	Basford (1)	128	485

Weston (10), ha., pa. of Weedon Loys (q.v.), S. Northants, about ½ W. from the pa. church. There is a Baptist chapel and a reading-room. W. House, an ancient building of stone, the south front of which was erected in 1647, is a seat.

Weston (11), ha., pa. of and 3 W. from Hodnet (q.v.), N. Salop.

Weston (12), ha., pa. of Stalbridge (q.v.), S. Dors., 3½ N.W. of Sturminster Newton.

Weston (13), ha., pa. of and adjoining Worth Matravers (q.v.), E. Dors.

Weston (14), vil., pa. of Portland (q.v.), S. Dors., about 6 S. of Weymouth.

Weston (15), ha., pa. of and 1¼ S. from Awliscombe (q.v.), E. Dev.

Weston (16), ha., pa. of Wanstrow (q.v.), E. Somerset, 5 N.E. of Bruton.

Weston (17), ha., pa. of Long Compton (q.v.), S. Warws., 4 S.E. of Shipston-on-Stour.

Weston (18), ha., pa. of Standon (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., 6 S. of Stoke.

Weston (19), ha., pa. of and ½ N.W. from Welford (q.v.), S. Berks.

Weston (20). [Weston Green.]

Weston (21). [Weston-in-Arden.]

Weston and Wixhill-under-Redcastle, tp., pa. of Hodnet (q.v.), N. Salop, 7 S.W. of Market Drayton; ac. 2,244. The chapel attached to Hodnet (rebuilt in 1791) is in Perp. style.

Weston Bampfylde, pa. (named after the Bampfylde family), E. Somerset, 5¾ S.S.W. of Castle Cary; ac. 631; soil sandy clay, overlying clay. The church of the Holy Cross (restored 1873) is an ancient building; the font is of early date; the approach to the rood-loft still remains and is in a good state of preservation, and there are two squints. Morris's charity of £10 10s. yearly is for distribution.

Weston Beggard, pa. and vil., S. Herefords, 6 N.E. of Hereford; ac. 925; soil red loam upon marl; in the upper part of the pa. limestone abounds, and in the lower part a grey sandstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1881) is mainly of the 14th cent., and contains two E. Eng. altar-tombs. There is a small Methodist chapel. There are charities bequeathed to the Sunday-school.

Weston Birt, pa. and vil., E. Glouces., 3½ S.W. of Tetbury; ac. 1,658; soil light loam, overlying principally oolite. The church of St. Catherine (restored 1841) is E. Eng., and contains a beautiful monument to the Holford family. There are some small charities. W. B. House is a seat.

Weston-by-Welland, pa., N. Northants, 4 S.E. of Market Harborough, bounded on the west and north by the Welland, which here separates this co. from Leics.; ac. 1,100; soil clay and gravel overlying clay and ironstone. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt in E. Eng. style in 1866, in exact facsimile of the old church.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Weston (9)	Runcorn (1¼)	180	[illegible]
Weston and Wixhill	Wem (4)	174	[illegible]
Weston Bampfylde	Sparkford (1)	125	[illegible]
Weston Beggard	Stoke Edith (2)	139	[illegible]
Weston Birt	Malmesbury (5)	94	[illegible]
Weston-by-Welland	Ashley & Weston (1)	89	[illegible]

Weston Cold. [COLD WESTON.]

Weston Colly. [COLLY WESTON.]

Weston Colville, pa. and vil., E. Cambs., 7 S. of Newmarket; ac. 2,943; soil chalk, overlying chalk and clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; the western tower was rebuilt about 1820, the former tower having fallen down. There is a piscina and a locker in the south wall of the nave, and in the chancel are brasses with effigies of an armoured knight and a lady. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel and a parish reading-room and library.

Weston Coney. [CONEY WESTON.]

Weston Corbett, pa., N. Hants, 3½ S.E. of Basingstoke; ac. 514; soil and subsoil chalk. It was formerly extra-parochial, and consists of two farmhouses only.

Weston Coyney, ha., pa. of Caverswall (q.v.), N. Staffs., about 4½ W. of Cheadle. W. C. Hall, an old mansion, has been in the possession of the Coyney family for a very long period.

Weston Favell, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 2½ N.E. of Northampton, and bounded on the south by the Nen; ac. 1,081; soil marl and clay, overlying clay and stone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1881) is Trans. A slab on the north side of the chancel marks the grave of the Rev. J. Hervey, the author of "Meditations among the Tombs." He was rector here (1752–58), and rebuilt and enlarged the rectory. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The school is endowed, and the charities produce about £60 a year.

Weston Green, or Weston, ha., pa. of and adjoining Thames Ditton (q.v.), Mid Surrey. Here is a cottage hospital, and there are also six almshouses.

Weston Head, another name for Anchor Head (q.v.).

Weston-in-Arden, or Weston, ha., pa. of and ½ N. from Bulkington (q.v.), N. Warws.

Westoning, pa. and large vil., S. Beds., 4 S. of Ampthill; ac. 1,589; soil very varied, overlying strong clay. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1857) is E. Eng. Here are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The Manor House, in Elizabethan style, was erected in 1843, when the old manor-house was pulled down.

Weston-in-Gordano, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, N. Somerset, 10 W. of Bristol; ac. 693; soil loamy, overlying limestone. The church of St. Paul is a small Perp. building; of the monuments erected to the Percival family, lords of the manor for many generations, only one—that of Richard Percival (d. 1482)—now remains. A portion of the outer walls of the court-house, anciently the residence of the Percivals, is still standing, a short distance south of the church.

Weston Jones, tp., pa. of Norbury (q.v.), W. Staffs., 3 N.E. of Newport; ac. 1,249 and 10 water.

Weston Longville, pa. and scattered vil., N. Norf., 9 N.W. of Norwich; ac. 2,749; soil mixed, overlying clay and marl. The church of All Saints is Dec. and Perp.; there are three stone sedilia in the chancel, and some remains of ancient stained glass; a large altar-stone or slab, marked with the usual five crosses and formerly in the nave, was in 1880, on the restoration of the chancel, removed and placed under the altar-table. There is also a rood-screen, dating from early in the 15th cent. Here is a Free Methodist chapel. W. House, in a park near the Wensum, is a seat.

Weston, Lower, ha., pa. of and ½ W. from Weston-under-Penyard (q.v.), S. Herefords. Penyard House is a seat.

Weston Lullingfield, eccl. pa., pa. of Baschurch (q.v.), W. Salop, 12 N.W. of Shrewsbury. The church of the Holy Trinity (1857) is in E. Eng. style. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Weston Market. [MARKET WESTON.]

Weston, North (1), ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Thame (q.v.), E. Oxon.

Weston, North (2), ha., pa. of Portishead (q.v.), N. Somerset, about 8 N.W. of Bristol.

Weston, Old, pa. and vil., S. Hunts., 5½ N.E. of Kimbolton; ac. 2,012; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Swithin is E. Eng.; it retains two piscinæ and a squint, and the entrance to the ancient rood-loft remains. There are some charities, and the clerk has the rent of a rood of land, on condition of strewing the church with grass on Feast Sunday (the first Sunday after July 12).

Weston-on-Avon, pa. (extending into Warws.) and vil., E. Gloucs., about 4 S.W. of Stratford-on-Avon; ac. 1,469; soil rather heavy loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is in Late Perp. style.

Weston-on-the-Green, pa. and vil., Mid Oxon., 9 N. of Oxford; ac. 2,466; soil stonebrash, gravel, and clay, overlying clay and stone. The church of St. Mary, in Classic style, was built in 1743 on the site of an older church, only the tower of which now stands. There are some 17th-cent. monuments to the Norreys and Bertie families. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Manor House is a seat.

Weston-on-Trent, pa. and large and picturesque vil. on the Trent and Mersey Canal, W. Staffs., 4½ N.E. of Stafford; ac. 806 and 27 water; soil alluvial, overlying sand and gravel. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Eng.; it contains an ancient monument, supposed to be that of a prebendary of Lincoln. The register contains entries of the burials of soldiers killed in the fight at Hopton (March 19, 1643), and also entries in 1649 and 1848 of two centenarians. The salt works of this pa. have long been famed for the quality of the salt produced.

Weston Patrick, pa., N. Hants, 5½ S.E. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,183; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Lawrence (rebuilt 1868) is in E. Eng. style. There is a small charity.

Weston Peverel. [PENNYCROSS.]

Weston Point, vil., pa. of Runcorn (q.v.), N. Chesh., ½ N. of Weston. Christ Church (1841) is

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Weston Colville	Six Mile Bottom (3)	63	493
Weston Corbett	Basingstoke (3½)	49	22
Weston Favell	Northampton (2½)	66	505
Westoning	Harlington (2)	37	525
Weston-in-Gordano	Clevedon (3)	134	182
Weston Jones	Newport (3)	145	132
Weston Longville	Norwich (8)	114	389
Weston Lullingfield	Baschurch (1½)	178	280
Weston, Old	Kimbolton (5½)	87	245
Weston-on-Avon	Milcote (1)	107	140
Weston-on-the-Grn.	Islip (3)	72	325
Weston-on-Trent	Weston	132	453
Weston Patrick	Hook (5)	42	133

in Gothic style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Here are the Docks of the Weaver Navigation, connected both with the Ship Canal and the Weaver Canal. There is a lighthouse.

Weston, South, pa. and vil., S. Oxon., 5½ s. of Thame; ac. 471; soil heavy, subsoil mixed. The church of St. Lawrence is Norm. with some later work; above the Dec. east window is a niche, with a statue of the patron saint; on the north side is a blocked Norm. doorway. There is a charity of £3 yearly for bread.

Weston-sub-Edge, pa. and vil., E. Gloucs., 2 W. by N. of Campden, on the road to Evesham; ac. 2,632; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist (anciently dedicated to St. Lawrence), restored 1861, is Gothic, and contains a 16th-cent. brass to the Giffords, and a modern monument with recumbent figure to Captain Bourne. In the churchyard are the remains of several stone coffins. The rectory-house (restored) was formerly a residence of the bishops of Worcester, and still retains portions of the ancient fabric. The charities amount to about £20 yearly.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.
(Photo. Davies Bros., Weston-super-Mare.)

Weston-super-Mare, pa., to., and popular watering-place on the Bristol Channel, N. Somerset, 20 N. of Bridgwater; ac. 1,601, and 1,480 of foreshore. W. is altogether a to. of modern construction; at the beginning of the 19th cent. it was only a small fishing vil. It is sheltered from the north winds by Worlebury Hill, and is the resort in the season of large numbers from Bath, Bristol, Cheltenham, Taunton, and Oxford, as well as other parts of the kingdom. W. has found considerable favour as a winter residence, as there is very little frost or snow, and the air is said to possess peculiarly invigorating qualities from the large amount of iodine which it contains. In 1887 a new sea front was completed, forming a continuous promenade, 2½ miles long, well provided with wind shelters and seats. The Pier, a handsome iron structure, starts from the Anchor Head, the entrance being by elaborate iron gates, and continues in a straight line to the Island of Birnbeck, a distance of 1,040 ft.; the promenade is further continued across the whole breadth of the island, the termination of which is so laid out as to give facilities for gymnastics and other sports. A landing-stage, 300 ft. in length, runs out at a right angle to the pier, and in a northerly direction, whereby it is well sheltered from the prevailing westerly gales, and otherwise well adapted for the large traffic which it receives from the Welsh coast. The pa. church of St. John was for the most part rebuilt in 1824, in E. Eng. style, and there are some eccl. pas. with modern churches. The Roman Catholics have a place of worship, and various Nonconformist bodies have chapels. Among other public buildings are the Town Hall (1856), in Italian style; the Assembly Rooms (1858), in High Street; the Market House (1845), also in High Street; the Free Library, in The Grove; the Church Institute buildings (1881), in the Boulevard; and the W. and County Club, a Bath-stone building on the Marine Parade. Here are potteries at which a great number of beautiful fictile articles and specimens of vases and fountains are manufactured; there is also a large mineral-water manufactory. The Royal West of England Sanatorium stands in 3 ac. of ground, in the front of which are the sands, and on that side of the building are two long glass conservatories, warmed by hot-water pipes and intended for the use of convalescents. The chapel at the south end is in E. Eng. style. There are some small charities. Clarence Park has an area of 16 ac., and the Recreation Grounds, adjoining the railway station, cover an area of about 14 ac. The neighbourhood abounds with objects of interest, and there are some beautiful drives and walks. The Lodge is a seat commanding fine views.

Weston Town, ha., pa. of Marshfield (q.v.), S. Gloucs., 8 E. of Bath.

Weston Turville, pa., Mid Bucks., 3 S.E. of Aylesbury; ac. 2,323 soil gravelly, with loam and some clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored) is chiefly Dec.; the east window is of three lights, with flowing tracery in the head, and has a small demi-figure of the Madonna and child; on the south side of the chancel, projecting from the wall, is a double piscina of E. Eng. date. Within recesses in the south wall are portions of an earlier church and some sculptured figures discovered during the restoration. In one of the chancel windows are the arms of John of Ghent, Duke of Lancaster; north of the chancel arch, under a tall and narrow arch in the eastern pier of the arcade, are the remains of the rood-loft steps. The font is Norm.; the pulpit is of Tudor or Jacobean date, hexagonal in shape, well carved in panels; there are some remains of a carved wood screen in the south aisle, which has also a trefoil-headed piscina and several large brackets. There is an ancient lich-gate. The Baptists have a chapel. There is a charity of about £28, distributed twice a year in bread, and some others of less importance. The women and children are largely employed in plaiting straw. Ducks of the Aylesbury breed are reared here, and more than 26,000 are sent annually to London. In 1855 a Roman amphora, various vessels of glass and Samian ware, pieces of iron with rivets and nails and some other

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weston, South	Thame (5)	48	93
Weston-sub-Edge	Honeybourne (2)	101	363
Weston-super-M. pa.	Weston-super-Mare	138	15520
Weston-super-M. to.	Weston-super-Mare	138	15864
Weston Turville	Aylesbury (3)	43	73

objects, with evidences of the burial of a female, were discovered in the rectory garden.

Weston-under-Lizard, pa. and small vil., W. Staffs., on the borders of Salop, 7 S.E. of Newport; ac. 2,437; soil marl, loam, and gravel, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Andrew (restored and enlarged 1876) is E. Eng. and Dec. On the north side of the chancel, within an arched recess, is an altar-tomb supporting a knightly effigy of wood, cross-legged, with the feet resting on a lion, and a small scrip or purse pendent to the girdle, believed to represent Sir Hamo De Weston, a Knight Templar (d. c. 1188); under a similar arch on the south side is another altar-tomb, with the effigy of a Knight Templar, also of wood, cross-legged, the head on a cushion, the right hand grasping a sword and the feet on a lion, representing another of the family of De Weston (c. 1304); there are also memorials in the chancel to other members of the family, and to the Myttons, Newports, and Bridgmans (Earls of Bradford). There are evidences of a Norm. church having existed on the same site. There is a substantial row of almshouses, built in 1874, for the poor of the pa. The charities amount to about £15 a year. W. Park, a substantial mansion in a well-wooded park, commanding extensive prospects of the surrounding country, is a seat. The park is bounded by the old Roman road, Watling Street.

Weston-under-Penyard, pa. and vil., S. Herefords., 16 S.E. of Hereford, on the road to Gloucester; ac. 3,210; soil loamy, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1867) is Norm. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The pa. contains several seats.

Weston-under-Wetherley, or Weston (in Domesday "Westone"), pa. and scattered vil., S.E. Warws., 4 E.N.E. of Leamington; ac. 1,297. The church of St. Michael, anciently belonging to the canons of Erdbury, is E. Eng., and contains a monument to Sir Edward Saunders, dated 1573, with kneeling effigies of himself and wife. The County Reformatory for Boys was erected here in 1856.

Weston Underwood (1), pa. and vil. on the Ouse, N. Bucks., 6½ N. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 1,839; soil loam of various quality, overlying clay. The church of St. Lawrence is Perp., with nave arcades and font of E. Eng. date. The east window retains its original glass; the chancel has a piscina and sedilia; a helmet and coat of early date are preserved in the church, which also contains some memorials of the Throckmortons. There is also a tomb with marginal inscription to John Olney, a former rector, and Dionisia his wife (d. 1450); his epitaph records the fact that he converted the ancient and dilapidated chapel into a church. Here is a Catholic chapel with school, for which there is a resident priest. The feoffees' estate produces £24 14s., distributed in coal; the Town Dudley charity produces £24 14s. 8d. for six poor widows; Higgins's charity of £17 yearly is for the clothing of ten poor women; and Mrs. Spink's charity provides 30 blankets, which are given away at Christmas; there is also a charity of £2 a year for apprenticing. Cowper the poet resided here from 1786 to within a few years of his death (1800), and here he wrote his translation of Homer. The "wilderness" referred to in the second book of "The Task" still remains; much of the surrounding scenery is described in his poems, and an oak tree is shown as "Cowper's oak." Sir John and Lady Throckmorton, who then had a seat here, paid marked attention to the poet. Weston Park is about 30 ac. in extent; it is well wooded and contains fine avenues of lime, beech, elm and chestnut trees; the house, which formerly stood here, was pulled down in the early part of the 19th cent., and the park is now let for grazing purposes.

Weston Underwood (2), tp., pa. of Mugginton (q.v.), S. Derbys., 6 N.W. of Derby; ac. 3,177. Weston Lodge is delightfully situated, and commands some very fine views.

Weston-upon-Trent, pa. on the Trent and Mersey Canal, S. Derbys., 7 S.S.E. of Derby; ac. 1,959; soil chiefly loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1877) is of different periods, and retains sedilia and piscinæ. On the north wall of the chancel is a tablet to Richard Sale (d. 1615) and Dorothy, his wife; the quaint kneeling effigies of these with their children were at the restoration removed to the east end of the south aisle. An oak bier, dated 1653, is still in use. The Baptists and Wesleyans have chapels. There is a small charity.

Weston Zoyland, pa. and vil. on the Parret, W. Somerset, 4 E.S.E. of Bridgwater; ac. 3,172; soil various. The church of St. Mary is Gothic. After the battle of Sedgemoor (July 5, 1685) 500 rebel prisoners were confined here. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The charities are about £10 yearly. Fairs for cattle and horses are held on Sept. 9. The battle of Sedgemoor, between the forces of James II. and a body of insurgents under the Duke of Monmouth, took place on the confines of this pa. and that of Chedzoy.

Westover, ha., pa. of Drayton (q.v.), S. Somerset, about 2 S. of Langport.

Westow, pa., tp., and well-built vil., E.R. Yorks., 6 S. of Malton; ac. of pa. 3,290, of tp. 1,190; soil light, overlying limestone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1864) is E. Eng.; the exterior walls exhibit many fragments of carved work, and in the churchyard are several stone coffins. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Westpalstown, pa., West Balrothery bar., N. co. Dub., Ir., 12 N. of Dublin; ac. 1,595.

Westport (1), ha., pa. of Barrington (q.v.), S. Somerset, near Hambridge.

Westport (2), seaport, U. and mkt. to., pa. of Oughaval (q.v.), S.W. co. Mayo, Ir., 10 S.W. of Castlebar, at the mouth of a small river which falls into Clew Bay, forming the harbour of W.—a name derived from its situation. The to. is of modern date and consists of several streets and a mall.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Weston-under-L.	Codsall (5½)	146	816
Weston-under-P.	Ross (2)	132	809
Weston-under-W.	Leamington (4)	97	250
Weston U. (1)	Newport Pagnell (4)	56	325
Weston U. (2)	Duffield (3)	133	375
Weston-upon-Trent	Weston-upon-Trent	126	322
Weston Zoyland	Bridgwater (4)	152	659
Westow, pa.	Kirkham Abbey (2)	203	485
Westow, tp.	Kirkham Abbey (2)	203	315
Westpalstown	Lusk (6)	14	83
Westport (2)	Westport	163	4070

The approach from Castlebar is beautiful, being enriched with the well-planted demesne of the Marquess of Sligo, and commanding a fine view of Clew Bay, studded with picturesque islands and the lofty mountains of Nephin, Achill Enis, and Croaghpatrick. The Protestant church is a handsome stone structure in Gothic style, and on the Mall is a spacious Catholic church, also in Gothic style. The Wesleyans and Presbyterians have places of worship. The market, a well-attended one for linen, corn, provisions, etc., is held on Thursday, and fairs on Jan. 1, March 21, May 22, Aug. 6, Sept. 22, and Nov. 1. W. Quay is the port of the to., at the eastern extremity of Clew Bay, but has declined considerably during the last few years. The exports comprise grain, principally oats, together with oatmeal and flour. The imports consist of timber, foreign wheat, wines, spirits, tea, sugar, and various goods of British production. The neighbourhood of W. is the residence of many respectable families, and some of the mansions are placed in situations of great beauty, commanding extensive views of Clew Bay with its many islands. The bay is a favourite resort for visitors in the summer season for bathing.

Westport Quay. [WESTPORT (2).]

Westport St. Mary, pa., N.W. Wilts., within the bor. of Malmesbury; ac. 4,341. The church of St. Mary is of various periods. There is a Catholic chapel and a Congregational place of worship.

West Quarter (1). [HEXHAM, WEST QUARTER.]

West Quarter (2), vil., pa. of Glassford (q.v.), W. Lanarks., Sc., 2 N.E. of Strathaven. W. Q. House is a seat.

Westray, island, pa. of Westray and Papa Westray (q.v.), N. Ork., Sc., 17 N. of Kirkwall. A channel of 2¼ miles separates it from Eday, and one of 1 mile from Papa Westray, which runs parallel to a peninsula forming its north extremity. It extends 10 N.W. and S.E., and has an extreme breadth of 7½ miles. Several large bays pierce the coast, which is rocky and steep, with bold headlands. The scenery in the west is in some places very grand. A range of hills running from north to south in the western part of the island reaches an extreme height of 556 ft. Noltland Castle, an ancient fortress which was never finished, is said to date from the early part of the 15th cent. The building is quadrilateral in form, with an inner court entered through a richly ornamented archway; on one side of the court is a large hall with a handsome vaulted ceiling of stone, 20 ft. in height. It was intended that Mary Queen of Scots should seek refuge here after her escape from Loch Leven.

Westray and Papa Westray, pa. comprising the islands of Westray (q.v.) and Papa Westray (q.v.), N. Ork., Sc., 17 N. of Kirkwall; ac. 13,585; soil in some places sandy, elsewhere gravel, clay, and loam, mostly overlying trap and limestone. The Established church in W. Island was erected in 1845. The other places of worship include Free churches in W. and Papa W., and a United Presbyterian church and Baptist chapel in W.

Westrill and Starmore, pa., S. Leics., 5 S.E. of Lutterworth; ac. 1,458. Stanford Hall, standing in a fine park, was erected in 1690, and contains some fine paintings and tapestry, and has a chapel attached.

Westrip, ha., pa. of Cherrington (q.v.), E. Glocs., about 3¾ N. of Tetbury.

West Rocks, shoal off north-east coast of Essex, 5 E. of the Naze. The shoal is 2 miles in length and is covered by water; there is a buoy on the shoal. Navigation is dangerous.

Westruther, pa. and vil., W. Berws., Sc., 8 N.E. of Lauder, on the road to Duns; ac. 14,630; soil of a barren nature, but greatly improved by cultivation. There are Established and Free churches. At the north-east extremity of the pa. stand the ruins of Ively Castle, one of those castellated mansions of residence and defence common on the borders before the Union. Spottiswoode and Wedderlie are seats.

Westsandwick, ha., pa. of Yell, on west side of Yell Island, N. Shetland, Sc., 31 N. of Lerwick. Here is a school.

West Town (1), eccl. pa., bor. of Dewsbury (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Matthew (restored 1889) is in Perp. style.

West Town (2), ha., pa. of Kingsland (q.v.), N. Herefords., 4 N.W. of Leominster.

West Town (3), ha., pa. of Backwell (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, about 6 W.S.W. of Bristol.

Westville, pa., Mid Lincs., about 7 N.W. of Boston; ac. 1,950; soil and subsoil clay.

Westward, pa. and vil., W. Cumb., 3 S.E. of Wigton; ac. 13,213; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Hilda is a small building of stone. The charities are devoted to the school. At "Old Carlisle" is the Roman station Olenacum, of which there are considerable remains; there are also traces of other camps. Isle Kirk Hall, now a farmhouse, was the site of a religious house dedicated to St. Hilda. Here are freestone and slate quarries; limestone abounds, and coal and iron ore exist.

Westward Ho! coast vil. and watering-place, pa. of Northam (q.v.), N. Dev., 2½ N.W. of Bideford. The place derived its name from the Rev. Charles Kingsley's novel of that name, the scene of which is chiefly laid in this vicinity. It is situated on the Northam Burrows, an extensive common of about 1,000 ac., protected from the waves by the Pebble Ridge, a remarkable barrier which extends about 2 miles in a straight line, like an artificial embankment. It is about 50 ft. wide and 20 ft. high, and consists of rolled slate-stones or pebbles which vary in size from half a foot to 2 ft. in diameter; it is singularly uniform and compact, on the one side sloping steeply to the turf of the Burrows; on the other at a less inclination to a broad area of sand. In this form it stretches from the distant cliffs to a point opposite the bar of the Taw and Torridge; but once within the influence of this obstruction, it loses the character of a ridge and lies heaped upon sloping sandhills. The chief

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Westport St. Mary	Malmesbury (½)	94	1669
West Quarter (2)	Glassford (1½)	402	384
Westray	Thurso (52)	744	2108
Westray & Papa W.	Thurso (52)	744	2445
Westrill & Starmore	Yelvertoft (1)	88	22

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop. LATION.
Westruther	Greenlaw (7)	366	6[illegible]
West Town (1)	Dewsbury	182	[illegible]
Westville	Sibsey (3)	112	[illegible]
Westward	Curthwaite (3)	306	[illegible]

of the Holy Trinity, a chapel-of-ease, is in E. Eng. style. There is a coastguard station. The United Services College gives public-school education to sons of officers in the two services. There is a golf club, bathing establishments with large swimming baths, many good lodging-houses and private residences. Zoophytes are found in abundance among the rocks, and the locality is of great interest to the antiquarian and geologist. The climate is mild but bracing, and the winter is on a par with that of the Riviera.

West Water. [DYE (3).]

Westwell (1), pa. and vil., S. Kent, 3½ N. of Ashford; ac. 5,180; soil various, overlying gravel, chalk, and loam. The church of St. Mary (restored 1884) is E. Eng. and later; the nave is divided from each aisle by arcades of four arches resting on columns alternately circular and octagonal, and the chancel has on each side two arches similar to and forming a continuation of those of the nave. The church dates from the middle of the 13th cent. (about A.D. 1240 to 1260), and to this date belong the west door, the east window, and the tower arch; the nave is probably coëval with the tower (about 1250 or 1260), although by some archæologists the tower is believed to be Saxon; the chancel is of the same date, with internal arcade, a groined E. Eng. roof, a handsome triplet east window and florid sedilia of Bethersden marble, and beyond these a cinquefoil-headed piscina; the most curious and beautiful portion is, however, the lofty, triple-arched open chancel screen, dating from 1250; in the north aisle there is some stained glass, probably unique in England, exhibiting the arms of Anne of Bohemia, wife of Richard II., and of Edward the Confessor and his queen; the east window has three equal lancets, filled with ancient glass of the richest colouring, and resembling some examples in Canterbury Cathedral; in different parts of the church are various arched recesses, some of which are groined and adorned with tabernacle work, and there are three monumental slabs bearing crosses, one of which has a mutilated inscription in Lombardic characters. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The pa. contains the West Ashford Workhouse.

Westwell (2), pa., W. Oxon., on the borders of Glouc., 9 W. of Witney; ac. 1,300; soil chiefly stonebrash, overlying rock. The church of St. Mary is mostly of the Trans. Norm. period, and surmounted by a curious wooden turret containing two bells and a sanctus bell. In the chancel is a very fine altar-tomb with a recumbent male effigy of a civilian in the costume of the Jacobite period; the porch is Perp. and has a trefoil-headed stoup and a good Norm. doorway; the north doorway is also Norm. An inserted Perp. window on the south side of the nave has some very curious ancient stained glass; and on the north side is a fine mural tablet to Charles Trinder (d. 1657) with a recess, in which are kneeling figures of himself, his wife, six sons and eight daughters; surmounting the whole is an emblazoned shield. A curious sundial, formerly attached to the gable of the porch, is now fixed on an adjoining tombstone. The font is Norm., with a quatrefoil-shaped basin on four massive shafts, and a square base. The charities for distribution in clothing, fuel, and money amount to £13 15s. yearly value; there is also £1 yearly for the parish clerk.

Westwick (1), pa. and scattered vil., E. Norf., 2¼ S. of North Walsham; ac. 1,043; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Botolph (restored 1845) is Dec. and Perp.; it has a richly-carved screen, and several monuments to the Berney and Petre families. W. House, built in the reign of Queen Anne, is surrounded by a noble park and plantations; not far from the house is a look-out, about 90 ft. high, commanding a view of the coast.

Westwick (2), tp. on the Ure, pa. of Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 W. of Boroughbridge; ac. 423, comprised in two farms.

Westwick (3), tp., pa. of Gainford (q.v.), S. Dur., 2 S.E. of Barnard Castle; ac. 1,455.

Westwick (4), tp., pa. of and ½ N.E. from Oakington (q.v.), W. Cambs.; ac. 240.

Westwick (5), ha., pa. of Banwell (q.v.), N. Somerset, about 3½ N.W. of Axbridge.

Westwood (1), or Westwood-with-Iford, pa. on the Avon and Frome, W. Wilts, 2 S W. of Bradford; ac. 807; soil and subsoil clayey. The church, which is supposed to have been dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, is E. Eng.; the north aisle has an exquisitely carved oak ceiling; the chancel arch does not spring from a like point on each side. A parish room adjoins the church. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. In the pa. are freestone quarries. The Bradford Union House is in this pa., on the side of the Avon and Kennet Canal. W. Manor House, now occupied as a farmhouse, was built by Thomas Hungerford, yeoman of this pa. and the founder and benefactor of the church; although much reduced in size, the house has some fine specimens of oak ceiling—one on the ground floor has 88 oblong compartments, each 18 inches long and 12 in width; the upper storey has the greater portion of a fine banqueting hall, having a rich ceiling, with pendent bosses and deep cornice with tracery.

Westwood (2), eccl. pa., pa. of Stoneleigh (q.v.), S.E. Warws., about 2 S.W. of Coventry. The church of St. John the Baptist (built 1844) is in E. Eng. style.

Westwood (3), ha., pa. of St. Peter's, Thanet (q.v.), E. Kent, 1 N. of Ramsgate.

Westwood (4), ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Southfleet (q.v.), N.W. Kent.

Westwood (5), vil., pa. of Selston (q.v.), W. Notts., 5 S. of Alfreton.

Westwood (6), ha., pa. of Broad Clyst (q.v.), S.E. Dev., 2 N.E. of Exeter.

Westwood (7), ha., pa. of Dawlish (q.v.), S. Dev., 3 N. of Teignmouth.

Westwood (8), ha., pa. of Huddersfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 9 N. of Sheffield.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Westwell (1)	Charing (1)	53	958
Westwell (2)	Shipton (7)	81	90
Westwick (1)	North Walsham (3)	130	190
Westwick (2)	Boroughbridge (3)	210	19
Westwick (3)	Barnard Castle (2)	249	72
Westwick (4)	Oakington (½)	63	55
Westwood (1)	Bradf'd-on-Avon (2)	97	540
Westwood (2)	Coventry (2)	94	604

Westwood Park, pa., Mid Worcs., 2 w. of Droitwich; ac. 741. It belonged anciently to the Benedictine nunnery founded here in the reign of Henry II. The present mansion, which was built in the time of Elizabeth, is a fine quadrangular edifice standing in an extensive deer-park.

Westwoodside, vil., pa. of and ¾ w. from Haxey (q.v.), N.W. Lincs. Here are chapels for Wesleyans, Methodist New Connexion, and Primitive Methodists.

Westwood-with-Iford. [WESTWOOD (1).]

Wetheral, pa. and picturesque vil. on the Eden, N. Cumb., about 5 E.S.E. of Carlisle; ac. 11,489; soil loam, overlying clay. The river is here crossed by a fine railway bridge of five semicircular arches, and crossing a valley is another bridge of seven arches. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored) was originally Norm., but is now chiefly Perp.; it contains some fine monuments to the Howard family, and recumbent effigies of Sir Richard Salkeld (knighted 1487) and Jane, his wife. Pre-Roman stone implements have been found here, and an inscribed rock of Roman date.

WETHERAL BRIDGE.

The Benedictine priory of W. was founded in or about 1100 as a cell to York. The remains consist only of the gatehouse, which has a fine elliptical arch and flanking turrets. Excavated in the face of a perpendicular rock about 40 ft. above the river, at a short distance from the ruins, are St. Constantine's cells, which consist of three caves traditionally said to have been once occupied by this saint as a hermitage. On the opposite side is a full-length figure of the saint, placed in 1843.

Wetherby, eccl. pa., tp., mkt. to., and head of U. and petty sess. div., pleasantly situated on a bend of the Wharfe, pa. of Spofforth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,601. The church of St. James is a fine modern building; there is also a Catholic church, and the Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have places of worship. The Town Hall, in the centre of the market-place, comprises magisterial and assembly-rooms, reading-room and two ante-rooms upstairs, with rooms for the National school on the ground floor. The Conservative Club dates from 1892. A market for corn, butter, eggs and other provisions is held every Thursday, the rich agricultural district surrounding the to. rendering this market of great importance. A fair for cattle is held every alternate Thursday and is well attended. Statute fairs are held on the Thursdays before and after Nov. 22. An Agricultural Society was established here in 1840, and exhibitions take place annually. Here is a brewery and a large corn mill; agricultural implements are also made here. W. was anciently in the possession of the Templars, but on the abolition of that order it was given by the Pope to the Knights Hospitallers. During the Civil War this to. had a small Parliamentary garrison commanded by Fairfax. The foundations and basement chambers of a castle, supposed to date from the time of Henry I., have been met with on a high and commanding site on the bank of the Wharfe, at the centre of the curve near the bridge. A short distance below the to. is St. Helen's Well, where the Roman military road crossed the river. W. Grange, in a park with woodlands interspersed, is a seat.

Wetherden, pa. and scattered vil., N.W. Suff., 4 S.W. of Stowmarket; ac. 1,830; soil mixed loam, sand and clay, overlying gravel, sand and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1872) is E. Eng.; there is an ancient stone font, a brass, and a curious monument in the aisle to one of the Sulyard family, who resided at W. Hall, now a farmhouse. Here is a small Baptist chapel. The town lands are let for £20 yearly, which sum is applied to the relief of the poor; the sum of £1,500 was bequeathed for the endowment of the school, erected by public subscription, and the interest of £3,000 Consols is applied for the maintenance of six poor widows.

Wetheringsett-cum-Brockford, pa. and vil. (Wetheringsett), N.E. Suff., 5 S. of Eye; ac. 3,722; soil heavy land, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1857) is Perp. The town lands are let for about £70 yearly, divided into three equal portions—one for the church, one for the school, and one for the poor. There are also small charities for distribution. The Manor House, near the church, is a handsome mansion in Elizabethan style.

Wetherlam, mountain (2,502 ft.), N. Lancs., on the Cumb. border, 4½ W.N.W. of Hawkshead. It is situated 2½ N. by E. of the Old Man of Coniston. The ridge which connects it with that mountain dips from 500 to 600 ft., forming a great notch. The views from the summit of W. are very grand.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Westwood Park	Droitwich (2)	126	36
Wetheral	Wetheral	327	3272
Wetherby, eccl. pa.	Wetherby	195	2016

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Wetherby, tp.	Wetherby	195
Wetherden	Elmswell (2)	86
Wetheringsett-c.-B.	Finningham (6)	87

Wethersfield, pa. and vil. near the Blackwater, E. Essex, about 7 N.W. of Braintree; ac. 4,213; soil various, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1877) is of various periods, and contains among several other monuments the recumbent alabaster figures of a man and his wife, dated 1462. The nave is separated from the chancel by an ancient oak screen. The vicarage house contains an old library left by a clergyman in the reign of Charles II. The Congregationalists have a chapel. From £80 to £100 is yearly distributed in bread and coals, and about £31 for the maintenance of the W. schools. Great Codham Hall, formerly a seat, is now a farmhouse. W. Manor House and W. Place are seats.

Wetley Rocks, eccl. pa. and vil. on the Churnet, pa. of Cheddleton (q.v.), N. Staffs., 5 S. of Leek. The church of St. John (built 1834) is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Fairs are held on May 3, and on the first Thursday after October 23. On one side of the vil. is a ridge of rocks, upwards of 150 ft. high, extending for nearly a mile. Rownall Hall, Westwood Manor, and Wetley Abbey are seats.

Wetmoor. [STRETTON-WITH-WETMOOR.]

Wet Mountain (1,753 ft.), on border of Hollywood and Donard pas., N.W. co. Wick., Ir., 3 N.E. of Donard.

Wettenhall, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Over (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 5½ E. of Tarporley; ac. 1,999. The church of St. David is a plain brick structure. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. W. Hall, a 17th-cent. gabled building, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Wetton, pa. and vil. on the moorlands, N. Staffs., 8 N.W. of Ashbourne; ac. 2,610; soil calcareous, subsoil limestone. The church of St. Margaret (rebuilt with the exception of the tower in 1820) is in Perp. style. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. The charities are small. Near the vil., in a lofty and precipitous cliff which rises above the Manyfold, is Thor's Cave (q.v.).

Wetwang, pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 6½ W. of Driffield; ac. of pa. 5,361, of tp. 3,437; soil light, overlying chalk. The church of St. Michael is Norm. and Perp. The chancel is fitted with oak stalls, enriched with carved poppy heads; the nave and north aisle are separated by an arcade of four arches, one of which is Norm. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels.

Wetwood, ha., pa. of and 4 N.W. from Eccleshall (q.v.), W. Staffs.

Wexford (1), a maritime county, and the most southernly one of the province of Leinster, Ir., situated at the south-eastern extremity of Ireland, bounded on the east by St. George's Channel, on the south by the Atlantic Ocean, on the west by the cos. of Kilkenny and Carlow and Waterford Harbour, and on the north by Carlow and Wicklow. In length, from its north-eastern extremity to the south-western apex, next Waterford Haven, it is (upwards of 60 miles, and its breadth east and west from W. Bay to New Ross) is about 30. Its area comprises 572,920 ac. of land and 3,668 covered by water. The coast line, beginning at Kilmichael Point, in the north, follows a shallow curved line to Cahore Point, thence trending south-west in a straight line to W. Harbour, then along W. Bay to Greenore Point, opposite which are the Tuskar rocks, with a lighthouse; thence south to Carnsore Point, where it turns west to the open bay of Ballyteige and the inlet of Bannow, thence round the far projecting Hook Head and forming the east coast of Waterford Harbour. The south coast is broken by the narrow entrances to the three large sea loughs of Lady's Island, Tacumshin and Duncormick. The mountains are neither numerous nor lofty, and include part of the Blackstairs Mountains and Mount Leinster, south of Newtownbarry, a low range north-east of New Ross and around Enniscorthy (including Vinegar Hill), and a few hills south-east of W. The soil is mostly of a cold, clayey nature, being deficient in the substrata of limestone found in the midland counties; on the whole the entire co. may be considered aggregately fertile; it is remarkable for its beautiful scenery, its verdant eminences, its delightful bays, fine coast and salubrious climate. Snow seldom continues on the ground, and although the southern district is subject to storms and heavy rains at certain seasons, vegetation and crops are as early in this co. as in the opposite Welsh cos. of Pembroke and Carmarthen, and earlier than in the north of Devon. The manufactures are of little importance. The fishery districts are Gorey and W., together comprising 108 miles of maritime boundaries, employing a large number of men and boys. Marble is quarried on the right bank of the Barrow, about 10 miles from New Ross, and ochres are found on the coast district. The chief rivers connected with the co. are the Slaney and the Barrow; these have several tributaries, and there are a few independent but small streams which flow into the sea. The Dublin, Wicklow, and W. Railway and a joint line of the Great Southern and Western and the Dublin, Wicklow, and Waterford railways pass through the co. For parl. purposes W. has two divisions (North and South W.), each returning one member.

Wexford (2), seaport, mun. bor. and co. to., Forth bar., S.E. co. Wexf., Ir., 15 S.E. of Enniscorthy. The to. is situated on the Slaney, which here flows into W. Harbour. W. was called by Ptolemy "Menapia," afterwards, in the annals of the four masters, "Carmen"; the Danes called it "Weifsfiord," and it was of considerable importance. It was one of the earliest colonies of the English, and the first forces from England that attempted the conquest of Ireland landed here. At W. King Henry II. embarked for England in 1172, after receiving homage from most of the kings and princes of this nation, and here, in St. Selskar church, the marriage ceremony was performed between Raymond, afterwards Viceroy of Ireland, and the Lady Basil, sister to Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke; it was also the second to. that Cromwell besieged, and fell quickly into his possession. There are several parts of the walls standing, and

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wethersfield	Braintree (7)	45	1300
Wetley Rocks	Cheddleton (2)	157	876
Wettenhall	Calveley (2)	166	182
Wetton	Ashbourne (8)	152	308

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wetwang, pa.	Wetwang	220	724
Wetwang, tp.	Wetwang	220	566
Wexford (1)	.....	.....	111778
Wexford (2)	Wexford	93	11545

the gates were taken away about 1836. On the site of the old castle, which stood on a rocky hill near the to., barracks are situated. W. suffered as much as any place from the conduct of the rebels in 1798. From 1559, and probably earlier, W. sent two members to the Irish parliament. After the Union it had a single member, and in 1885 its representation was merged in that of the co. There are two Protestant churches, one St. Iberius, the other St. Selskar. At the west end of the latter are the ruins of the monastery of SS. Peter and Paul, the tower of the church being a portion. In a return to a royal visitation in 1615 it is stated that there were then twenty churches in W. There are three Catholic churches, and places of worship for Presbyterians, Wesleyans, and the Society of Friends, and Collegiate, Convent and National schools. At St. Peter's College pupils are prepared for the universities and the higher ecclesiastical colleges. The other public structures are a court-house, Her Majesty's prison, college, convents, infirmary, fever hospital, chamber of commerce, union workhouse and barrack. The harbour is exceedingly capacious, but unfortunately a bar of sand at its mouth prevents the entrance of ships requiring more than 10 ft. of water. Steamers sail from here to Liverpool and Bristol weekly. The chief exports are cement, agricultural implements and poultry. The imports are slates, coal, tiles, and earthenware. The coal, corn and timber trades and malting are conducted on a considerable scale by several establishments, and there is an extensive distillery and a shipbuilding yard. Fishing is also an important industry. The market days are Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs are held on the third of every month, with the exception of the month of May, when the fair is held on the first.

Wexford Haven, natural harbour on east coast of co. Wexf., Ir. The harbour resembles a lagoon, being enclosed towards the east by two tongues of land, one of which, running north and terminating in Rosslare Point, is 3½ miles long, with an average breadth throughout the greater part of this distance of only 100 or 200 yds. The distance between Rosslare Point and the Raven Point at the mouth of the harbour is one mile. The harbour itself, which is really the estuary of the Slaney (q.v.), extends nearly 9 miles from north to south and 4 miles from east to west; but a considerable part of this area is filled with sand, especially on the south side, where there is but a narrow water passage called the Coal Channel. The to. of W. is situated on the west side of the Haven towards its north extremity, The quays are upwards of ½ mile in length, with a dockyard and patent slip. Not only is the harbour shallow and its navigation intricate, but a bar of sand has accumulated at the mouth, preventing the ingress of vessels which draw more than 10 ft. of water. This circumstance has necessitated the new harbour, protected by a breakwater, at Rosslare.

Wexford, North. [WEXFORD (1).]

Wexford, South. [WEXFORD (1).]

Wexham, pa. and vil., S. Bucks., 2 N.E. of Slough; ac. 670; soil loam and clay, overlying gravel.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wexford, North	.....	.....	55357
Wexford, South	.....	.....	56421

Ragstone is found in this neighbourhood. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. Grainger's charity is the interest of £100 Consols. W. Park is a seat.

Wey (1), river, N.E. Hants and S.W. Surrey, is formed by the union of two headstreams, which have their sources 1½ S. of Alton and 1½ W. of Haslemere. The former stream runs E.N.E. past Alton, Bentley, and Farnham, and then winds S. by E. by Moor Park and Waverley Abbey; the latter makes a great curve towards the east, passing Bramshot, Headley, and Frensham, and uniting with the other stream at Tilford. The course of the river is now E. past Elstead and through Pepperharrow Park to Godalming and Bramley, whence it runs N. by Shalford to Guildford and Stoke; the scenery on its banks near Guildford is extremely picturesque. From Stoke it winds N.N.E. past Send and Woking to Pirford, where its course becomes more regular, continuing N. by E. till it joins the Thames at Weybridge. It is navigable to Godalming, to a great extent through artificial courses. The carp are remarkably fine, and other kinds of fish are abundant. The length of the river is about 35 miles.

Wey (2). [UPWAY.]

Wey and Arun Canal, or Surrey and Sussex Canal, extends from Stopham, on the Arun, W. Sussex, to Godalming, on the Wey, S.W. Surrey, passing Loxwood, Aldford, and Bramley. The canal was constructed in 1813. It is 18 miles in length and has 23 locks. It affords a means of direct navigation from the Thames to the Channel, but is now very little used, and has in some places become dry, although the locks and towing-path are uninjured.

Weybourne, or Wabourne, coast pa. and vil., N. Norf., 9 W. of Cromer; ac. 1,600, of which 1,168 are arable, pasture and meadow, and the remainder heath and woodland and 80 water; soil very variable, overlying sand, gravel and clay. The vil. is picturesquely situated in a hollow half a mile from the sea. The pa. is bounded on the east, south and west by a range of sand hills 200 ft. above sea level, covered alternately by plantations, furze and heather, Telegraph Hill, the highest point (and the starting-point of the cable to Emden), being 269 ft. above the sea level. Here the range of cliffs forming a barrier to the North Sea for a part of North Norfolk end, and the salt marshes begin and continue to Hunstanton. The church of All Saints (restored 1888) is Norm. and Dec. Of the ancient church, reputed to be Saxon, part of the tower and the west end are still standing. In the reign of King John, Sir Ralph Meinilwaring, then holder of the manor, married Amicia, daughter of Hugh Kivileoc, Earl of Chester; this Ralph, who was Chief Justice of Chester, appears to have founded here a priory for Augustine canons, dedicated to St. Mary and All Saints, the cloisters of which were on the north side of the Saxon church and the priory church at the east end of it; although the priory was subsequently enlarged and again reduced before the Reformation, it never appears to have been a house of any great consequence. Here is a coastguard station. Wabourne Hall, pleasantly situated on an eminence commanding extensive views, is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Wexham	Slough (2)	18	[illegible]
Weybourne	Sherringham (3)	138	[illegible]

Weybread, pa. and large and pleasant vil., N.E. Suff., 9 E. of Diss; ac. 2,431; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1864) is Perp. and Dec.; there are piscinæ in the chancel and south aisle, and the remains of the stairs leading to the rood-loft. The charities amount to about £20 yearly. W. Hall and Instead Manor House, two ancient mansions, have been converted into farmhouses.

Weybridge, pa and vil., N.W. Surrey, 3 S.E. of Chertsey; ac. 1,332 and 4 water; soil sand, overlying gravel. The Basingstoke Canal and the river Wye here form their junction with the Thames below Shepperton lock. The church of St. James (1847–48) is in E. Eng. style; there are many ancient and curious brasses removed from the old church, including one with skeleton effigies to three children of Sir John and Lady Trevor. The other brasses are to Thomas Inwood the elder, late of W. (d. 1586); to Humphrey Dethick, Esq., Gentleman Usher to King Charles I.; and to John Woulde, gent. (d. 1598), and Adrye (Strety), his first wife (d. 1596); there are also some modern monuments, including one by Chantrey to the Duchess of York (d. 1820), whose remains are deposited in a vault in the churchyard. St. Michael and All Angels, a chapel-of-ease, is in Gothic style. There is also a Congregational church. In the Catholic church of St. Charles Borromeo were temporarily deposited the remains of Louis Philippe, King of the French (d. 1850), and Amélie, his Queen (d. 1866), and also the Duchess of Orleans, the Duchess de Nemours and the Duc de Condé; the bodies of the Orleans family, with the exception of that of the Duchess de Nemours, were removed to the family burying-place at Dreux in France in 1876. The Comte de Paris, who died at Stowe, Bucks. (1894), was also buried here. Near the river Wey are seed-crushing mills worked by steam and water power. The Village Hall (1883) is used for concerts, etc. There is a watermen's regatta yearly in September. Here are some remains of a palace built by Henry VIII., several of the gateways and underground passages remaining entire; the grounds, formerly part of the park, are now occupied as a nursery ground and fruit garden. On the green is a column, about 30 ft. high, erected August 6, 1822, to the Duchess of York. The charities amount to about £100 yearly. Brooklands, Oakfield, and Oatlands Lodge, a mansion in Italian style, are seats.

Weydale, vil., pa. of and 2¼ S.E. from Thurso (q.v.), N.W. Caiths., Sc. W. has a school. The sandstone quarries here yield the well-known Caithness flags.

Weyhill, vil., pa. of Penton Grafton (to which the name of Weyhill is also popularly applied), N. Hants, 3 W. by N. of Andover, on the road to Amesbury. The vil. is celebrated for the great fair held in the neighbourhood for six days, commencing on October 10, for horses and sheep; the fair is visited by persons from all parts of the kingdom. Cheese and hops are also sold in considerable quantities. The hop fair commences on the 12th and is very largely attended, this fair being considered as the key to the whole year's hop trade. There is also a fair for sheep, cows and pigs on the second Thursday in April, and a lamb fair on the last Friday in July. [PENTON GRAFTON.]

THE ESPLANADE, WEYMOUTH.
(Photo. Wheeler and Co., Weymouth.)

Weymouth and Melcombe Regis, mun. bor., seaport, U. and mkt. to., and watering-place, S. Dors., 8 S. of Dorchester. The bor. includes the pas. of W. and Melcombe Regis and parts of the pas. of Wyke Regis and Radipole; ac. of bor. 453. W. stands on the south bank of the Wey (here crossed by a bridge) and Melcombe Regis on the north bank; ac. of W. 77, of Melcombe Regis 102. W. is more ancient than Melcombe Regis, although the latter appears to have enjoyed greater privileges. Between the two places arose a great controversy, both claiming the same privileges and

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Weybread	Harleston (2)	107	638
Weybridge	Weybridge	19	3944

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Weymouth & M. R.	Weymouth	142	13866

both challenging the particular immunities of the haven until the reign of Elizabeth, when they were amalgamated by Act of Parliament. W. and M. R. each separately returned two members to Parliament from the reign of Edward II.; the united bors. subsequently returned two members only until the passing of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," by which the representation was merged in that of the co. The to. is situated on the English Channel at the western side of a beautiful and expansive bay, which forms a semicircle, making a sweep of upwards of 2 miles, sheltered by a range of hills to the north and the Isle of Portland to the south. The site of the to. is supposed to have been known to the Romans; its existence in Saxon times is undoubted, and in the time of Edward III. it became a place of consequence. It subsequently fell into decay, and was merely a small fishing to., till it began to acquire celebrity as a fashionable bathing-place by the frequent visits of George III. towards the end of the 18th cent. The harbour is protected on the south-east by a concrete breakwater extending from the Nothe fort; a pier forms the entrance to the north side of the harbour, and the Nothe forms the south-west side. The backwater or estuary of the Wey is formed into a lake by means of a dam, and a small island, known as Swan Island, in the centre has been converted into a swannery. The Esplanade is a handsome terrace fronting the sea, about a mile in length and provided with sheltered seats. At the south end of the Esplanade is a pier with octagonal pavilion. The church of St. Mary, Melcombe Regis, was rebuilt in 1817; the chancel has a beautiful altar-piece, the Last Supper, painted by Sir James Thornhill, who for some years represented this parl. bor. There are some eccl. pas. with modern churches, and the Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Guildhall, in St. Edmund Street, has a fine façade and Ionic pillars; the old Town Hall stands at the end of High Street; the general Market House is in St. Mary Street. The Masonic Hall, in Frederick Street, is in Ionic style; the Royal Victoria Jubilee Hall, St. Thomas Street, was built 1887; and the Royal Baths were built for George III. At the top of St. Mary Street is a life-size figure on a granite pedestal of George III., standing and robed; it was erected to commemorate the fiftieth year of his reign; and a Victoria Jubilee Memorial Clock has been erected on the Esplanade. The W. and Dorset County Royal Eye Infirmary (1872) is in Gothic style, the W. Royal Hospital and Dispensary (1872) is a brick building, and the W. Sanatorium is a stone structure. The Alexandra Gardens, at the W. end of the Esplanade, are attractive pleasure grounds, and at the E. end of the Esplanade are other gardens, known as the Greenhill Gardens. A market is held daily, and a special market on Tuesdays and Fridays. The prosperity of the place depends mainly on its visitors. It is the Great Western Railway packet station for the Channel Islands. The exports are Portland stone, bricks, tiles, and corn; the imports are coal, timber, and wines. Ship and boat building, sail and rope making and brewing are carried on. Many legacies have been left for the purpose of educating, apprenticing, and for the relief of the poor, and there are several charitable institutions. In Wyke Road are four almshouses for four poor widows. To the west of the to., on an eminence, is the Nothe and Look-out; infantry barracks are also situated here. A horseshoe-shaped fort stands on the cliffs and commands the bay from the east side of the Nothe. Further along the cliffs are the ruins of Sandsfoot Castle, erected in 1533 by Henry VIII.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whaddon (1), pa.	Swanbourne (3)	52	704
Whaddon (1), tp.	Swanbourne (3)	52	398

Weythel, pl., pa. of Old Radnor (q.v.), S.W. Radnors., 3 S.S.E. of New Radnor.

Whaddon (1), pa., tp., and vil., N. Bucks., 7 E. of Buckingham; ac. of pa. 3,770, of tp. 2,489. The church of St. Mary (restored 1891), on high ground near the Chase, is of various periods, from Trans. Norm. to Perp.; the north aisle has on the north side a handsome monument with long epitaph to Arthur, fourteenth Lord Grey de Wilton (d. 1593), who was Lord-Deputy of Ireland during Desmond's rebellion, and one of the commissioners who tried Mary Queen of Scots; and a very rich and curious brass to Margaret Missenden (1612). Each doorway retains a stoup; the font is E. Eng. The Congregational chapel was erected in 1865. The poor's land consists of 4 ac. In a part of W. Chase called "Nasbury" about 320 ancient British gold coins were discovered in 1849 and claimed by the lord of the manor; they are of a later period than those of Cunobelin, and are stamped with a wheat ear and rampant horse. In the coppice adjoining are indications of a large rectangular encampment, evidently Roman, enclosing a space of about 5 ac., with a vallum and fosse quite perfect. Three miles west of W., and near the site of the battle which is said to have been fought by Cunobelin at Thrasborough Bridge, are two tumuli, one of which was opened in 1842 and disclosed many Roman relics; other Roman antiquities were met with in 1857 and 1858, chiefly consisting of coins, about 200 in number, all of which, as treasure trove, were surrendered to the lord of the manor. W. Chase was formerly the principal woodland in this part of the co. and contained 2,200 ac. of coppice, with valuable timber, and maintained 1,000 head of deer; the greater part of it is now enclosed and cultivated. W. Hall is a mansion of stone containing many spacious and elegantly fitted apartments; the pleasure grounds, gardens and park extend over 315 ac.; great numbers of the forest trees are of immense size, and the views from the place are delightful; up to 1840 the deer were allowed to roam wild over the Chase, but they have now a portion of the grounds fenced off for them.

Whaddon (2), pa. near the Great North road, W. Cambs., 4 N. of Royston; ac. 1,493; soil chiefly gault and loam, overlying gault, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1869) dates from the 14th cent.; it retains an old oak screen, and the ceiling is also of carved oak; on the chancel floor are several armorial slabs inscribed to the Tempests and Pickerings.

Whaddon (3), pa. and vil., N. Glouces., 3 S. of Gloucester, on the road to Stroud; ac. 520; soil clay, overlying blue lias. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1855) is an ancient stone building; the nave and chancel belong to the 13th cent. and the tower to the 15th cent. There are some small charities.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whaddon (2)	Meldreth (2)	48	361
Whaddon (3)	Gloucester (3)	114	198

Whaddon (4), pa., W. Wilts., 3 N.E. of Trowbridge; ac. 383; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church (dedication unknown), restored 1879, is partly Norm.; there is a 17th-cent. brass, and a mausoleum containing the remains of the Long family since 1778.

Whale Chine, ravine on south-west coast of I. of W., 6 W. of Ventnor. The Chine is a huge fissure reaching inland upwards of ¼ mile. On either side of the entrance, which is 60 yds. in width, the cliffs rise to the height of 140 ft.

Whale Firth, inlet of the sea, west coast of Yell Island, N. Shetland, Sc., 35 N. of Lerwick. It runs 3 S. and then 2 S.E., and has a mean breadth of only ¼ mile.

Whaley (1), ha., pa. of Bolsover (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., 1½ W. of Langwith. It had anciently a chapel; there is now a mission room.

Whaley (2). [YEARDSLEY-CUM-WHALEY.]

Whaley Bridge, vil., pa. of Taxal (q.v.), N.E. Chesh., 3 W. of Chapel-en-le-Frith. W. B. is situated on the Peak Forest Canal and the river Goyt, which separates it from Derbys. It is on the outskirts of the manufacturing district, and retains its picturesque character, the houses being mostly built on the steep river-bank. The vil. contains Baptist and Congregational chapels. The Mechanics' Institute, a handsome edifice erected in 1876, contains a library and reading-room. Adjoining the vil. are large and important collieries.

Whalley, pa., tp., and vil. on the Calder, E. Lancs., 7 N. of Blackburn; ac. of pa. 115,380, of tp. 1,502 and 24 water; soil loam, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary, also called "All Saints," is chiefly Dec. and Perp.; it was rebuilt during the incumbency of Peter de Cestria, the first and only rector, about 1245. In the south aisle or Lady Chapel is a piscina; the east window is brilliant with the heraldry of various local families, and includes rebuses of the names of Bolton and Ashton; the finely-carved stalls formerly belonged to the abbey church, and there is a rood-screen and roof of open timber work. The north aisle or Mitton chapel belonged to the manor of Little Mitton, and contains a floorstone carved with a cross and chalice and believed to be the gravestone of John Paslew, seventeenth and last abbot, who, having joined in the resistance to the King's Commissioners, called "the Pilgrimage of Grace," was hanged March 12, 1537. On the south side of the chancel are sedilia, a piscina and locker; and a monument with recumbent effigy to the Rev. Thomas Dunham Whitaker, LL.D., the historian of "Whalley," "Craven," and "Richmond," who was vicar here 1809–18 and died at Blackburn (1822). The church also contains some 16th-cent. brasses. In the churchyard is a stone inscribed to George Crawshaw, of Read (d. 1811, aged 105); a stone coffin, several coffin-lids bearing crosses, and three ancient crosses about 8 ft. in height, covered with interlaced knot work, and commemorative of the preaching of Christianity in this district in the 7th cent. by Paulinus, afterwards Archbishop of York. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Grammar School, founded about 1300 as the chantry school of W. Abbey, was reorganised in 1890. There are six almshouses for as many poor widows, and the interest of £1,000 is also available for charitable purposes. In the neighbourhood are the remains of several Roman camps and roads. The ruins of W. Abbey, a Cistercian house founded in 1173 and translated from Stanlaw in Cheshire in 1186 by Henry de Laci, Earl of Lincoln, are situated to the south of the church. The erection of the abbey was commenced about 1270, the church dating from about 1296; it was 255 ft. in length, with a transept of 142 ft., having three chapels in each arm; the nave was of ten bays and the presbytery of two; a portion of the south side of the nave and the west and south walls of the transept remain. South of the church were the cloisters, bounded on the east by the sacristy and chapter-house, on the west by the dormitory, and on the south by the refectory; south of the choir was another quadrangle, of which the abbot's house formed the east side; there is a gatehouse near the railway of two storeys, with a groined roof, which constituted the north-west entrance to the precincts, 36 ac. in extent; there is also a second gatehouse.

Whalley Range, dis. in south of Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. The dis. comprises the eccl. pas. of St. Margaret and St. Edmund. St. Margaret's Church (1848) is in Dec. style. The Lancashire Independent College, erected in 1842, is an edifice in Gothic style with a central tower.

Whalsay, island, pa. of Nesting (q.v.), Mainland, Shetland, Sc. It lies to the east of Mainland, from which it is divided by Lunna Sound, and is about 15 N.E. of Lerwick, with which to. it has steam communication three times a week. There is an Established church on the island.

Whalsay and Skerries, q.s. pa., pa. of Nesting (q.v.), Mainland, Shetland, Sc. The church is on the island of Whalsay (q.v.).

Whalton, pa., tp., and vil., S.E. Northumb., 6 W. by S. of Morpeth; ac. of pa. 6,041, of tp. 2,128; soil clayey and sandy, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is of various periods. W. has a reading-room with library attached.

Whaplode, pa. and scattered vil., S. Lincs., 2 W. of Holbeach, on the road to Spalding; ac. 10,224; soil light loam and clay, overlying silt. The church of St. Mary is of various periods from Norm. to Perp.; the tower, unusually placed on the south side of the easternmost compartment of the south aisle, is a lofty and very striking object; it is four stages in height, of which the three lowest, belonging to the original design, are arcaded. In the south aisle is a fine altar-tomb of stone, bearing the recumbent effigies of Sir Anthony Irby (d. 1593) and Alice his wife (d. 1625); on the base of the tomb are the figures of five children kneeling, and above rises a canopy supported on ten columns of the Composite order and adorned with shields of arms. Roman pottery has been met with in the churchyard. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Almshouses for six poor widows were built by an ancestor of Lord Boston;

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whaddon (4)	Holt	94	18
Whalley, pa.	Whalley	218	302608
Whalley, tp.	Whalley	218	1142
Whalsay	Thurso (160)	744	927
Whalsay & Skerries	Thurso (160)	744	1094
Whalton, pa.	Meldon (2)	293	498
Whalton, tp.	Meldon (2)	293	361
Whaplode	Whaplode	98	2216

two of these receive 10d. a week. There are also charities of about £8 a year. Irby Hall, now a farmhouse, was anciently a seat of the Irby family.

Whaplode Drove, eccl. pa. and scattered ha., pa. of Whaplode (q.v.), S. Lincs., 6 N.E. of Crowland. The church of St. John the Baptist is a plain structure of brick. In 1860 the churchyard was enlarged, and during the construction of a dyke to enclose the new portion, a large quantity of Roman pottery was met with, together with coins of Vespasian (A.D. 69–79), Antoninus Pius (A.D. 138–161) and others. A charity of £4 10s. is distributed yearly to the poor in money.

Wharf Bank, North, sandbank in the North Sea, off Fleetwood, W. Lancs., on west side of the mouth of the Wyre. At the north-east extremity of the bank, 2¾ N. by W. of Fleetwood, there is a fixed light, visible 10 miles.

Wharfe, river, W.R. Yorks., rises 7½ S. by W. of Hawes, on the south-east side of Carn Fell, and runs E. through Langstrothdale, and then S.S.E. past Kettlewell, Grassington, Linton, Burnsall, Barden, Bolton Abbey, and Addingham to Ilkley; this is the most romantic part of Wharfedale (q.v.). From Ilkley the W. proceeds E. to Wetherby, passing Burley, Weston, Otley, Leathley, Poole, Arthington, Harewood, and Collingham. From Wetherby its course is E.S.E. by Thorp Arch, Boston Spa, Newton Kyme, Tadcaster, Bolton Percy, and Nun Appleton to the Ouse, which it joins 1 N.W. of Cawood. The river abounds in fine trout and grayling. Its length is about 60 miles.

BOLTON WOODS, WHARFEDALE.
(Photo. G. W. Wilson and Co., Aberdeen.)

Wharfedale, valley of the Wharfe (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The upper part of the valley, as far as Bolton Abbey, is extremely wild and romantic; as the river approaches the monastery the scenery becomes more varied and interesting, the moorland heights of Simon Seat and Barden Fells contrasting finely with the rich luxuriance of Bolton Park and the woods and copses round Barden Tower. The ruins of the abbey are a picturesque feature, and poetical associations have gathered round the neighbourhood. [STRID.] Near Wetherby the valley contracts, and the river is overhung by limestone crags, which at Boston Spa have been artificially ornamented. At this point W. comes to an end.

Wharles. [TREALES, ROSEACRE, AND WHARLES.]

Wharncliffe Side, ha., pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 6 N.W. of Sheffield. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some quarries. W. Chase, covering an area of about 2,000 ac., is the oldest and most extensive in the W.R.; it has pleasant walks, and forms a favourite resort of the inhabitants of Sheffield. From the summit of W. Crags extensive views are obtained. W. Lodge, built in 1510, was for some time the residence of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, the accomplished traveller and letter writer.

Wharram-le-Street, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 6 S.E. of Malton, on the road to Beverley; ac. 2,072; soil sand and rocks, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1863) is Norm.

Wharram Percy, pa. and tp., E.R. Yorks., 8 S.E. of Malton; ac. of pa. 9,092, of tp. 1,459; soil chalk. The church of St. Mary is Norm. and E. Eng.; the interior is very plain.

Wharton (1), eccl. pa. and tp. on the Weaver, pa. of Davenham (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 2½ W. of Middlewich; ac. 1,253. The tp. lies wholly within the tn. of Winsford. Christ Church (rebuilt 1849) is in Perp. style; the transept of the old building remains. W. contains Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Free Methodist chapels. On the banks of the Weaver are numerous salt works, the brine being mostly found between 90 and 180 ft. from the surface.

Wharton (2), tp., pa. of and 2 S. from Kirkby Stephen (q.v.), N. Westmd.; ac. 1,496. W. Hall, on an eminence near the Eden, is now occupied as a farmhouse, but was formerly the seat of the Wharton family. It is a castellated mansion of the E. Tudor period, though some portions of the building probably date from the reign of Henry VI. The gatehouse is an embattled structure of three storeys; on one side is the guard-room; on the other, which adjoins the chapel, are various rooms believed to have been assigned to the resident

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whaplode Drove	Whaplode (1)	98	765
Wharram-le-St.	Wharram	216	133
Wharram Percy pa.	Wharram (1)	216	436
Wharram Percy, tp.	Wharram (1)	216	56

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wharton (1), ec. pa.	Over & Wharton	168	[illegible]
Wharton (1), tp.	Over & Wharton	168	[illegible]
Wharton (2)	Kirkby Stephen (2)	266	[illegible]

priest. The sixth Baron, after being created Duke of W. in 1718, espoused the cause of the Old Pretender, and was attainted. He entered the service of the King of Spain, but afterwards retired to a monastery near Tarragona, where he died in 1731.

Wharton (3), ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Blyton (q.v.), N.W. Lincs.

Whaston. [WASHTON.]

Whatborough, tp., pa. of Tilton (q.v.), E. Leics., about 6 S.W. of Oakham; ac. 477. It was the site of a Roman settlement.

Whatcombe House. [WINTERBORNE WHITECHURCH.]

Whatcote, pa., S.W. Warws., 5 S. of Kineton; ac. 480; soil marl, overlying blue lias. The church of St. Peter is of various periods; the nave and chancel are Perp.; the tower is E. Eng., and on the north side still remains a Norm. arch in a fair state of preservation. The church retains several interesting tablets to former rectors; there is also a stone slab to Thomas Nelle, rector, on a tomb near the south wall of the chancel, with an incised cross and chalice; and another, with a mutilated effigy, to William Auldyngton (d. 1511), rector. In the churchyard are the steps and shaft of an ancient cross, the top of which has been made to serve as a sun-dial.

Whatcroft, tp., pa. of Davenham (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 3 S.E. of Northwich; ac. 641.

Whatfield, pa. and vil., S. Suff., 3 N. of Hadleigh; ac. 1,571; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret is Dec. There is a small Congregational chapel.

Whatley, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 3 W. of Frome; ac. 1,106; soil inferior oolite, subsoil various. The church of St. George (restored 1870) is E. Eng., and contains an altar-tomb in the south chapel, with a recumbent figure, dating from 1350, and a remarkable squint. The charities are of £2 14s. yearly value. W. House is a seat.

Whatlington, pa. and vil. on the Brede, E. Sussex, 2 N. of Battle; ac. 1,234; soil loamy, subsoil sandy. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (restored 1862) is E. Eng., and contains a pulpit of richly-carved oak and a brass of the 17th cent. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Whatstandwell Bridge, ha. with railway station, pa. of Crich (q.v.), Mid Derbys., 3½ N. of Belper.

Whatton, pa. and vil., S.E. Notts., 2½ E. of Bingham; ac. 1,759; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. John of Beverley (partly rebuilt 1870) is Perp., and among other monuments has one representing a priest simply dressed in a cassock, and another to Thomas Cranmer, father of Archbishop Cranmer, bearing date 1501. The font is dated 1662. In the church are some remains of an ancient cross found buried near the guide post in the vil. in 1877. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some small charities. W. Manor House, a fine mansion near the vil., is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whatborough	Tilton (2)	97	19
Whatcote	Moret'n-in-the-M. (9	91	111
Whatcroft	Middlewich (3)	166	135
Whatfield	Hadleigh (4)	71	365
Whatley	Frome (3)	107	404
Whatlington	Battle (2)	54	348

Whatton, Long, pa. and vil., Mid Leics., 4½ W.N.W. of Loughborough; ac. 2,002; soil and subsoil chiefly clay. The church of All Saints (partially rebuilt 1866) is E. Dec.; at the east end of the south aisle is a raised tomb to members of the Dawson family. There are two piscinæ, one in the south and one in the north aisle, which has also a blocked doorway, and in the chancel an ancient carved oak chair initialled and dated "I. W. 1655." The Norm. font is carved with the star and cable ornament. The Bible belonging to the church was once stolen by a man of the pa. named Garner, who when pursued threw it into a stream, for which he was condemned to death; the Bible was subsequently recovered, and is now in the chest. The Wesleyan Methodists and Baptists have chapels. There is a charity of £5 yearly. W. House, in a park, is a seat.

Whauphill, small vil. with railway station, pa. of Kirkinner (q.v.), E. Wigs., Sc., 5 S. of Wigtown.

Whaw, ha., pa. of Arkengarth Dale (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5½ N.W. of Reeth.

Wheatacre, pa. and small vil., S. Norf., 4½ N.E. of Beccles; ac. 1,163; soil mixed, one half being marsh land; subsoil marl, sand, and a little clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1885) is Perp.; the nave is separated from the chancel by a carved screen, and the chancel arch is decorated with carved roses; there is an ancient font, and in the chancel a piscina. The rent of the poor's land is distributed in coals amongst the poor.

Wheatacre Burgh. [BURGH ST. PETER.]

Wheatenhurst, pa. on the Severn, N. Gloucs., 6 W. by N. of Stroud; ac. 1,237; soil principally clay, overlying blue lias and oolite. The church of St. Andrew (enlarged and restored) is E. Eng. There are charities of about £70 yearly value. Parklands and W. House, a fine old mansion, are seats.

Wheatfield, pa. and vil., S. Oxon., 4½ S. of Thame; ac. 722; soil mixed, overlying ragstone. The church of St. Andrew, rebuilt about 1750, is a very small edifice of flint; the original Perp. chancel arch remains; there are several marble tablets to the Rudge family, one to Lord Charles Spencer, son of Charles, third Duke of Marlborough (d. 1820), and others to various members of his family. The Spencer family had formerly a mansion here, the stables of which, situated close to the church, are still standing.

Wheathampstead, pa. and to. pleasantly situated on the Lea, Mid Herts., 5 N.E. of St. Albans; ac. 5,168 and 19 water; soil and subsoil flinty and chalk. The church of St. Helen is chiefly E. Eng., with Dec. and Perp. insertions; in the chancel are triple sedilia and a piscina with a lofty Dec. canopy; in the south transept or Brocket chapel are the remains of an ancient shrine, and in its south wall is a piscina and a very ancient doorway; beneath the east window of the north transept is a reredos of luxuriant design, consisting of seven niches under floriated canopies; the pews here were brought from the private chapel at Lamer

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whatton	Aslockton	117	281
Whatton, Long	Hatherne (2)	114	638
Wheatacre	Aldeby (1½)	112	164
Wheatenhurst	Stonehouse (2)	105	360
Wheatfield	Thame (4½)	48	80
Wheathampstead	Wheathampstead	25	2371

and bear date 1638; a dwarf screen, from the same chapel, separates this transept from the body of the church. There are brass figures of a man and woman, and a rhymed inscription to Hugh Bostock and Margaret his wife (c. 1450), the parents of Abbot John, of W. Near this is another brass with figures, inscribed to John Heyworth, gent. (d. 1520), and his wife Elizabeth, with nine children; and a third with similar figures, but without inscription (c. 1510). Against the east wall of the Brocket chapel, in front of the shrine above mentioned, is a large altar-tomb, with alabaster effigies of Sir John Brocket, Knight, in plate armour, and his wife Margaret (1543); there are other memorials of this family up to 1699, and of the family of Garrard from 1622 to 1862, including the fine monument in the north transept, with life-sized recumbent effigies in marble, to Sir John Garrard, Bart., of Lamer (d. 1637), and Elizabeth (Barkham) his wife (d. 1632); in the same spot is an incised marble tablet, with kneeling figures, to John Heyworth and his wife Joan (1558). Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. Charities for apprenticing poor children amount to about £100, and for distribution to £6 a year. In 1312 the Barons assembled their troops at W. when leagued against Piers Gaveston, the favourite of Edward II. John Bostock, commonly known as John of W., thirty-third abbot of St. Albans, was born at Mackrey End, the seat of his father, in this pa.; the present Mackrey End House is a brick building, and bears the date 1666. Delaport and W. House are seats.

Wheathampstead Cross, pl., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Wheathampstead (q.v.), Mid Herts.

Wheathill (1), pa., bounded on the south by the Carey, E. Somerset, 5 S.W. of Castle Cary; ac. 312; soil clayey, subsoil various, but chiefly blue lias. The church of St. John (restored 1887) is an ancient Gothic building. The manor formerly belonged to Glastonbury Abbey; the site of ancient buildings here, connected with the abbey, is now occupied by a farmhouse.

Wheathill (2), pa., S. Salop, 9 N.W. of Ludlow; ac. 1,415; soil light clay, overlying limestone and freestone. The church of the Holy Trinity is Norm.

Wheatley (1), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Cuddesdon (q.v.), S. Oxon., adjoining Oxford on the east; ac. 930. The church of St. Mary was erected in 1857 on a site above the vil. Here is a Congregational chapel, built in 1841. The charities for the poor amount to about £36 yearly, and for education to between £40 and £50; there is also a yearly sum of about £5 for apprenticing.

Wheatley (2), tp. in the pa. of Doncaster (q.v.), from which to. it is 2 N.E., W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,204. The lands lie low, and 20 ac. are liable to be overflowed from the Don. W. Hall was built about 1680; to the south is a lawn, ornamented by some fine oaks; the park extends over 103 ac.

Wheatley (3), vil., pa. of and about 5 N. from Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Wheatley (4), another name for Ben Rhydding (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Wheatley (5), ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Binstead (q.v.), E. Hants.

Wheatley (6). [THORNLEY-WITH-WHEATLEY.]

Wheatley Booth. [BARLEY-WITH-WHEATLEY BOOTH.]

Wheatley Carr Booth, tp., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., about 3 S.W. of Colne; ac. 245 and 5 water.

Wheatley Hill, colliery vil., pa. of Kelloe (q.v.), S.E. Dur., about 8 E. of Durham.

Wheatley, North, pa. and vil., N.E. Notts., 5 S.W. of Gainsborough; ac. 2,180; soil clayey, overlying marl and hard clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, on an elevated site, is chiefly Late Perp.; there is a roughly hewn Norm. font and an incised slab of alabaster to — Haket (1452). Here are Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. The charities, amounting to £13 yearly, are for distribution. The Old Hall, now occupied as a farmhouse, has over the door the arms of Thomas Cartwright, with the date 1673.

Wheatley, South, pa., N.E. Notts., about 5 S.W. of Gainsborough; ac. 641; soil clayey, overlying marl and hard clay. The church of St. Helen was taken down in 1883, with the exception of the tower. A charity of £1 5s. is distributed yearly.

Wheaton-Aston, vil., pa. of and 1½ W. from Lapley (q.v.), W. Staffs. There is a chapel-of-ease (rebuilt 1857) in Dec. style. There are also Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Wheeler, river, N.W. Flints. and N. Denbighs., rises on the border of Flints. and Denbighs. and runs first N. to Ysceifiog, and then E. by N., S.E. and E. to the Clwyd, which it joins 4½ miles (in a direct line) from its source, and 2½ N.N.E. of Denbigh.

Wheelock (1), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Sandbach (q.v.), S. Chesh., 5 N.E. of Crewe; ac. 628. Christ Church (1838) is in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Baptist, and Congregational chapels. Salt is made in considerable quantities, and the tp. contains a silk factory and extensive ironworks.

Wheelock (2), river, S. Chesh., is formed by the union of three headstreams at the vil. of Wheelock, and runs W., N.W., and N.N.W. past Warmingham and Sutton to the Dane, which it joins about ¾ S.W. of Middlewich. Its length from its remotest source is about 16 miles.

Wheelton, tp., pa. of Leyland (q.v.), W. Lancs., 3 N.E. of Chorley; ac. 1,691 and 5 water. W. has a mission church, and the interest of £30 is yearly distributed to the poor. Here are excellent stone quarries, and mills for cotton-spinning and manufacturing, and for calico-printing.

Wheery, or Killagally, pa., Garrycastle bar., N. K. Co., Ir., 4 N.E. of Cloghan; ac. 17,557. It contains the mkt. to. of Ferbane (q.v.).

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wheathill (1)	Castle Cary (5)	121	30
Wheathill (2)	Cleob'ry Mortimer(7	143	123
Wheatley (1)	Wheatley	55	920
Wheatley (2)	Doncaster (2)	156	1795
Wheatley Carr B.	Colne (3)	219	51
Wheatley, North	Sturton (1½)	145	400
Wheatley, South	Sturton (2)	145	46
Wheelock(1),eccl.pa.	Sandbach (3)	163	2244
Wheelock (1), tp.	Sandbach (3)	163	826
Wheelton	Chorley (3)	202	1328
Wheery	Kilmarnock (5)	390	1772

Wheldale, ha., pa. of Pontefract (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., near Ferrybridge.

Wheldrake, pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 8 S.E. of York; ac. of pa. 4,921, of tp. 781; soil strong clay and loam, except on the moor, where it is sandy. The church of St. Helen, rebuilt in 1779, is an edifice of brick. The Wesleyans have a chapel in the vil.

Whelford, ha. on the Coln, pa. of Kempsford (q.v.), E. Glouc., about 2 S. of Fairford.

Whelpington Kirk. [KIRKWHELPINGTON.]

Whelpington, West, tp., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Kirkwhelpington (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 4,002.

Whempstead, ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Watton (q.v.), N. Herts. Here is a small lecture hall. W. chapel (so-called), now a dwelling-house, was probably a kitchen or a refectory of a building attached to the ancient chapel here, founded and endowed about the beginning of the 13th cent. North of the existing building is the well, 200 ft. deep, which once supplied this religious house. In the vil. are almshouses for three aged widows and as many widowers.

Whenby, pa. and small vil., N.R. Yorks., 8 E. of Easingwold; ac. 1,395; soil and subsoil clayey and loamy. The church of St. Martin (restored 1871) is E. Eng.; an old doorway in the church is supposed to have led into some building closely connected with the fabric. The charities are small.

Whepstead, pa. and large scattered vil., S. Suff., 4 S.S.W. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 2,670; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Petronella is Norm. Here is a place of worship for Baptists. There is an educational charity of about £25 yearly, one of about £48 yearly for keeping the church in repair, and several small charities distributed to the poor. Plumpton Hall, about 1 W. of the vil., is a seat.

Whernside, mountain (2,414 ft.), W.R. Yorks., 3 S.E. of Dent. W. extends 6 miles N.N.E. and S.S.W., its south extremity being 2 N. by E. of Ingleton and 2 W.N.W. of Ingleborough Mountain. It is composed of limestone with an overlying stratum of millstone grit. The mountain commands very extensive views. It rises abruptly towards the west, but on the east and south-east sides the ascent is very gradual.

Whernside, Great, mountain (2,310 ft.), W.R. Yorks., about 2 N.E. of Kettlewell.

Whernside, Little, mountain (1,958 ft.), W.R. Yorks., about 4 N.E. of Kettlewell.

Wherstead, pa. and pleasant vil. in the vale of the Orwell, S.E. Suff., 2 S. of Ipswich; ac. 2,027 and 135 water; soil light loam, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Mary is Perp. W. Park is a handsome modern building, pleasantly situated on an eminence, with commanding prospects of the river Orwell and the surrounding country.

Wherwell, pa. and vil. on the Test, W. Hants, 4 S.E. of Andover; ac. 3,532; soil part light gravel, part heavy gravel, and part white loam, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Peter and Holy Cross, built on the site of an older church, is in E. Eng. style. In digging the foundation for the present church a curious stone figure, representing an abbess, also several stone carvings, one of which represents the Expulsion from Paradise, were found; they are now placed in the churchyard. There is also an ancient stone tomb to Charles West and his wife (date 1551), which was removed from the old church and placed in the wall of the churchyard; there is also a large and handsome mausoleum, built out of the materials of the old church, belonging to the Iremonger family in the churchyard. The Wesleyans have a chapel. In 1691 John Lord De La Warr left by will the sum of twelve shillings, to be given yearly at Christmas to twelve old men and women for ever. A large sheep fair is held here on Sept. 24. The Priory occupies the site of a priory founded by Queen Ethelred; and in the churchyard wall facing the Priory there is a very curious stone, dated 1649, stating that the Priory of Whorwell formerly stood on that spot; in the Priory are two paintings by Sir Joshua Reynolds of members of the Iremonger family.

Whessoe, tp., pa. of Haughton-le-Skerne (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 2 N.W. of Darlington; ac. 1,412. The schools of St. Peter (1871) are now used for divine service.

Wheston, tp., pa. of and 1½ W. from Tideswell (q.v.), N. Derbys.; ac. 1,394. Here is an ancient stone cross, 7 ft. in height, on a pedestal 4½ ft. high and curiously carved. There is a picturesque manor-house.

Whetstone (1), pa. and vil. on the Soar, S. Leics., 5 S.W. of Leicester; soil variable, overlying sand and clay; ac. 2,026. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng.; it was repaired in 1856, but was very seriously damaged by a great storm in 1895. There are Baptist and Congregational chapels. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in shoemaking.

Whetstone (2), eccl. pa. and vil. on the road from London to St. Albans, pa. of Finchley (q.v.), N. Middx., about 2 S. of Barnet. The church of St. John is in E. Eng. and Perp. styles. The Woodside Home for Incurables (females only) was transferred here from London in 1888. There are many fine suburban residences.

Wheyrigg, ha., pa. of and 4 W. from Broomfield (q.v.), W. Cumb.

Whicham. [WICKHAM (2).]

Whichford, pa. and tp., S.W. Warws., 6 S.E. of Shipston-on-Stour; ac. of pa. 3,100, of tp. 2,040; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael (restored 1885–91) is E. Dec. and Perp., and contains two altar-tombs to former rectors. The Wesleyans have chapels.

Whickham, pa. and to. on the road from

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wheldrake, pa.	Naburn (4)	184	580
Wheldrake, tp.	Naburn (4)	184	528
Whelpington, West	Knowesgate (2)	303	68
Whenby	Flaxton (5)	197	97
Whepstead	Bury St. Edmunds (4	77	502
Wherstead	Ipswich (2)	69	315
Wherwell	Wherwell	67	583
Whessoe	Darlington (2) .	232	278
Wheston	Miller's Dale (3)	159	37
Whetstone (1)	Countesthorpe (2)	98	1117
Whetstone (2)	Oakleigh Park	8	2522
Whichford, pa.	Hook Norton (2½)	91	507
Whichford, tp.	Hook Norton (2½)	91	354
Whickham, pa.	Swallwell (1)	273	9143
Whickham, to.	Swallwell (1)	273	9174

Newcastle to Shotley Bridge, N. Dur., 3½ W.S.W. of Gateshead; ac. 5,993; soil clay and loam, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1862) is Norm. and Trans.; the chancel arch is Norm. and has cushion capitals enriched with a flower ornament; on the north side of the arch is a squint. There are several 18th-cent. mural monuments. At the west end of the churchyard are two 17th-cent. grave slabs removed from a field in the pa. in 1784. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities are of about £30 yearly. The to. has saw-mills, steel and chemical works, and a paper-mill. Gibside is a seat; the mansion has mullioned bay windows, and in the drawing-room is a fine mantelpiece, above which are the arms of Sir William Blakiston (d. 1607). East of the house a handsome Doric column surmounted by a figure of Liberty stands conspicuously in the grounds.

Whiddon Cross, ha., pa. of Cutcombe (q.v.), W. Somerset, about 7 S.W. of Minehead.

Whiddy Island, in upper part of Bantry Bay, pa. of Kilmocomoge (q.v.), S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 2 W. by N. of Bantry. The island extends 3 N.E. and S.W., and has a mean breadth of 1 mile. The soil—partly rich loam, but elsewhere rock, sand, or stiff clay—is for the most part very productive. Three batteries—called the East, Centre, and West Redoubts—were built after the French attempt at invasion in 1796; they are all round towers surrounded by deep ditches. Near the East Redoubt are the remains of a castle built by O'Sullivan Bear in the 15th cent. The island was at one time a deer-park belonging to the Bantry family.

Whiffiet, south suburb of Coatbridge (q.v.), pa. of Old Monkland, N.W. Lanarks., Sc., 2½ S.W. of Airdrie. Here is a Free church and a Roman Catholic church.

Whilborough, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Kings Kerswell (q.v.), S. Dev.

Whilton, pa. and vil., W. Northants, 4 N.E. of Daventry; ac. 1,270; soil chiefly light sand and gravel, overlying stone, with traces of ironstone. The London and North-Western Railway, the Grand Junction Canal, and the Roman Watling Street pass through the pa. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1877) is E. Eng. It contains several mural tablets. The charities amount to about £12 a year. W. Lodge is a seat.

Whimple, pa. and vil., E. Dev., 8½ N.E. by E. of Exeter; ac. 3,019; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1845) is Perp. Here is a Congregational chapel. The charities are small. A fair is held on the Monday before Michaelmas. Strete Raleigh is a seat.

Whinbergh, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 3½ S. of East Dereham; ac. 1,241; soil heavy, overlying principally clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; the south wall retains a piscina. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities are of £10 yearly value.

Whinfell (1), tp., pa. of and about 5 N.E. of Kendal (q.v.), S. Westmd.; ac. 4,346. It contains some lakes.

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
Whiddy Island	Bantry (2)	195	347
Whilton	Weedon (4)	70	351
Whimple	Whimple	163	686
Whinbergh	Yaxham (1)	120	245
Whinfell (1)	Cliburn (1½)	290	167

Whinfell (2), tp., pa. of Brigham (q.v.), S.W. Cumb., 4½ S.E. of Cockermouth; ac. 1,751.

Whinfell Beacon, mountain (1,500 ft.), S.W. Cumb., about 3 S. of Cockermouth.

Whinlatter, mountain (1,696 ft.), S.W. Cumb., 5 W.N.W. of Keswick. W. is a large mountain with a broad base, extending N.N.W. and S.S.E. on the north-west side of Lorton Fells. It commands magnificent views. W. Pass, ascending W. by S. from Braithwaite, passes along the south side of the mountain.

Whinnyleggatt, pl., pa. of and 3 N.E. from Kirkcudbright (q.v.), S. Kirkcuds., Sc.

Whins of Milton. [Milton, Whins of.]

Whinyeon, Loch, on border of Girthon and Twynholm pas., S. Kirkcuds., Sc., 7 N.N.W. of Kirkcudbright. The lake is nearly circular, the distance across it being a little more than ½ mile.

Whippingham, pa., I. of W., 3½ N. by E. of Newport; ac. 3,093. The church of St. Mildred, originally dedicated in the 12th cent., was rebuilt in the years 1861 and 1862, in the Trans. style from E. Eng.; the chancel belongs to Her Majesty the Queen, and was built at her sole cost in 1855; it contains a very fine memorial to the Prince Consort and memorials to the Prince Leopold and Princess Alice, executed at the expense of Her Majesty. There is a very fine organ; a piece of curiously carved stone from the original structure has been built into the west wall of the south porch. In 1668 John Mann left a yearly rent-charge out of Lazenby Grange, Yorkshire, for apprenticing poor children of the pa. In 1856 Beatrice Shedden left by will £1,000, producing £27 10s. yearly for distribution among the poor; there are also eight almshouses erected and endowed by Her Majesty the Queen. Osborne House (q.v.) is in this pa.

Whipsnade, pa. and vil., S. Beds., on the borders of Herts., 3 S. by W. of Dunstable; ac. 1,205; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is a structure of brick, rebuilt on the foundation of an earlier church. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. The scenery surrounding the church and the downs is beautiful and picturesque.

Whipton, ha., pa. of Heavitree (q.v.), E. Dev., 1 N.E. of Exeter. All Saints' chapel-of-ease is in Gothic style.

Whisby, tp., pa. of Doddington (q.v.), W. Linc., ½ N. of Thorpe; ac. 1,634.

Whispering Knights. [Rollright, Little.]

Whissendine, large pa. and scattered vil., N.W. Rutld., 6 E. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 4,053; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored) is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp. There is an ancient carved oak screen, removed from the old chapel of St. John's College, Cambridge, and placed at the entrance to the south transept from the south aisle. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are some charities. The manor-house, a fine old mansion, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
Whinfell (2)	Cockermouth (4½)	311	2[illegible]
Whippingham	Whippingham	86	3[illegible]
Whipsnade	Dunstable (3)	37	1[illegible]
Whisby	Thorpe (½)	151	[illegible]
Whissendine	Whissendine	99	7[illegible]

Whissonsett, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., about 5 S. of Fakenham; ac. 1,344; soil mixed, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1873) is E. Eng.; the chancel retains good sedilia and a piscina, and there is an ancient font; in the church are memorials to the families of Guybon, Bozoun, and Hopton. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Rural sports are held here on Whit Wednesday.

Whistlefield, pl., pa. of Row (q.v.), W. Dumbarts., Sc., 1¼ N.W. of Garelochhead.

Whistley, or Whistley-in-Hurst, tp., pa. of Hurst (q.v.), E. Berks., about 6 E. of Reading; ac. 1,917. Hurst Grove and Hurst Lodge are seats.

Whiston (1), small pa. and vil. near the Nen, Mid Northants, 6¾ E. by S. of Northampton; ac. 797; soil red and heavy land, overlying clay, ironstone, and limestone. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is Late Perp., and was founded in 1534 by Anthony Catesby, as is recorded on his monument in the chancel. The rectors can be traced back as far as 1277, before the present edifice was erected. Place House, a building attached to a farmhouse and formerly much larger than it now is, is an ancient and curious structure, chiefly remarkable for the local tradition that it was once the residence of King John.

Whiston (2), pa., tp., and vil., W.R. Yorks., about 6 E. of Sheffield; ac. of pa. 3,194, of tp. (partly in the bor. of Rotherham) 3,948; soil red sandstone, subsoil red gritstone. The church of St. Mary Magdalene, restored and partly rebuilt, is Norm. and later. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some charities. Oakwood Hall, in Italian style, is a seat.

Whiston (3), eccl. pa. (extending into the pa. of Huyton) and tp., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., adjoining Prescot on the south; ac. 1,783. The church of St. Nicholas is in Dec. style. Here are Wesleyan, Free, and Welsh Methodist chapels. Charities amounting to £19 yearly are applied to the relief of the poor. Here is the Prescot Union Workhouse, with an attached chapel. Halsnead Hall, a large mansion in a park of upwards of 500 ac., is a seat.

Whistones, tp., pa. of Claines (q.v.), W. Worcs., forming part of the city of Worcester; ac. 88.

Whit-, for words not found under this spelling, see also WHITE-.

Whitacre, Nether, pa. and vil., N. Warws., 3 N.E. of Coleshill; ac. 1,886; soil loam and gravel, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Giles (restored 1870) is E. Eng. and Dec. There are some charities, and a National endowed school. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Whitacre, Over, pa. and small vil., N. Warws., 4 N.E. of Coleshill; ac. 1,379; soil loam, subsoil marly and loamy. The church of St. Leonard, standing on an eminence commanding a fine view, was built in 1766 on the site of an earlier structure; it is in Italian style. W. House, on an eminence, is a seat.

Whitbarrow (1), pl., pa. of Greystoke (q.v.), Mid Cumb., 7 W. of Penrith.

Whitbarrow (2), mountain ridge, S.W. Westmd., near the Lancs. border, 5 W.S.W. of Kendal. The ridge is a mass of lofty and barren rock extending 3 N. and S., and terminating in the latter direction in a precipitous cliff.

Whitbeck, coast pa. and vil., S. Cumb., 3 S. of Bootle; ac. 4,470 and 578 of foreshore; soil sand and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1883) is Gothic, and contains an ancient stone effigy and traces of a piscina. There are some small charities, and Parke's Hospital, endowed in 1722. Here are megalithic remains.

Whitbourne, pa. and vil., N. Herefords., 5 N.E. of Bromyard; ac. 3,087; soil clayey, overlying gravel and sandstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1867) was originally Norm. There is a mission church and a Primitive Methodist chapel. Ferneybank, Gaines, W. Court and W. Hall are seats.

Whitburn (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Dur., 3½ N. of Sunderland; ac. 4,250; soil limestone and clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. and Dec., and contains a very interesting and almost unique pointed oval window and a low-side window; into the walls of the church are built some early mediæval grave-covers. There is a mission room and a Primitive Methodist chapel. In the neighbourhood are collieries and limestone quarries. W. Hall is a seat.

Whitburn (2), pa. and vil. on the Almond, W. Linliths., Sc.; ac. of pa. 9,775; the soil varies considerably. In the upper portion of the pa. is much moss and pasture land; in the lower the surface is arable. Some small tributaries of the Almond rise in the pa. The vil., which is well built and regular, lies on the road from Edinburgh to Glasgow, 3½ S.W. of Bathgate. The inhabitants are supported by the coal and iron mines with which the pa. abounds, and a little weaving of cotton goods for the Glasgow houses. There is a public coffee-house and reading-room. Prof. John Brown, the well-known Biblical expositor, was a native of this pa.

Whitby (1), pa., tp., seaport, watering-place, U. and mkt. to. (S.), and head of a Co. Co. dis., N.R. Yorks., 20 N.W. of Scarborough; ac. of pa. 28,226, of tp. 78. The Esk divides the to. into two parts, the larger division being on the west bank of the river, but the more ancient on the east. Both are connected by a bridge of three arches, with an iron swivel centre-piece for admitting vessels into the harbour, which is tidal, and is divided by the bridge into an inner and outer harbour. The piers extend from the bridge for a distance of about 800 yds. At the end of the west pier is a lighthouse, and another is situated on the east pier.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whissonsett	Ryburgh (3)	131	577
Whistley	Twyford (3)	31	1617
Whiston (1)	Castle Ashby (1)	74	67
Whiston (2), pa.	Rotherham	163	1650
Whiston (2), tp.	Rotherham	163	1687
Whiston (3), eccl. pa.	Prescot (1)	195	2634
Whiston (3), tp.	Prescot (1)	195	3117
Whistones	Worcester (2)	120	2862
Whitacre, Nether	Whiteacre Junc. (1)	122	543
Whitacre, Over	Shustoke (1)	120	297
Whitbeck	Silecroft (1½)	277	188
Whitbourne	Bromyard (5)	135	672
Whitburn (1)	Cleadon Lane (1)	265	2738
Whitburn (2), pa.	Whitburn	398	5782
Whitburn (2), vil.	Whitburn	398	1185
Whitby (1), pa.	Whitby	244	17586
Whitby (1), tp.	Whitby	244	7501
Whitby (1), to.	Whitby	244	13075

The views seaward are extremely fine, and the country round is varied and strikingly picturesque. W. returned a member to Parliament from 1832 to 1885, when it was merged in the co. The church of St. Mary was originally Norm., but subsequently enlarged by the addition of transepts, and has been so completely modernised that traces of ancient work are difficult to discover. The chancel is considerably higher than the aisle, and is approached by a flight of steps. There are eight galleries, surrounding not only the nave and aisle, but also the transepts. The church contains numerous mural monuments to the Cholmley, Lascelles, Yeoman, and Chapman families. The churchyard is reached from the to. by a winding ascent of 199 stone steps. There are some modern churches, and the Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. Among the principal public buildings are the Town Hall, in Classic style; the court-house, a building of red brick faced with stone; the Temperance Hall, also a red-brick building; the Museum, a building of three storeys; and the Seamen's Hospital, in Elizabethan style. In Grape Lane is a house, dated 1688, in which it is said Captain Cook served a three years' apprenticeship to a shipowner. Shipbuilding has long been a leading pursuit in the to., and there are sail-cloth, rope, and other manufactories connected with the equipment of ships. Quantities of fish are caught here and transmitted into the interior, especially during the herring season. W., however, is chiefly noted for its jet industry, and the polishing of jet and ammonites and the manufacture therefrom of trinkets now constitute a trade of great importance, fostered by the number of visitors who frequent this watering-place during the summer months. The jet is obtained from the laminated lias shale which chiefly forms the lower part of the cliffs between W. and the south end of Robin Hood's Bay, but is also found at various spots inland. On the West Cliff is a terrace 500 ft. long and 100 ft. wide carved out of the side of the cliff, and on the terrace is a handsome building in Queen Anne style, with concert room, reading and cloak rooms, and a refreshment department. The building is surrounded with pleasure grounds, including lawn-tennis courts. A cattle show is held in August. George Chambers, the marine painter, was born here about 1800. The Abbey of W. was first founded as a priory in 657, and here five of the early Saxon bishops received their training, and Caedmon, the father of Anglo-Saxon poetry, was a brother of the monastery. In 664 the famous synod was held here to determine the controversy concerning Easter. About 867 the establishment was destroyed by the Danes, and in 1074 the monastery was refounded for monks of the Benedictine order, and in the reign of Henry I. was raised to the dignity of an abbey. The west side of the nave was blown down in 1763 during a great storm, and the tower fell in 1830; the still existing choir, propped with balks of timber, is E. Eng., exquisitely beautiful in design; the triforium displays a circular arch, enclosing two pointed arches, which are in turn subdivided; the clerestory is arcaded; the north transept is of later date; of the south transept one pier only remains, and of the nave part of the north side and a fragment of the west front, including the central doorway. On the south side of the nave it is possible to trace the foundations of the cloisters and south transept, and of the chapter-house which adjoined it; of the domestic buildings a portion remains in the Abbey House, supposed to be the prior's kitchen. Below the terrace on which the ruins stand is a mutilated cross. The Abbey House, a seat, is a Jacobean mansion.

Whitby Abbey.

Whitby (2), tp. on the Ellesmere Canal, par. of Stoke and Eastham (q.v.), N.W. Ches., 1 s. of Ellesmere Port; ac. 1,214. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. W. Hall is a seat.

Place.	Nearest Railw. Stn., and dist. from (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Fare
Whitby (2)	Ellesmere Port (1)	189	8d

Whitby Division, one of the four parl. divs. of the N.R. Yorks. It returns one member.

Whitchester, tp., pa. of Heddon-on-the-Wall (q.v.), S. Northumb., on the north side of the old Roman wall; ac. 817. It was once a place of considerable strength. At the south extremity of the tp. is a well, known as "Finer's Well."

Whitchurch (1), pa. (extending into Chesh.), tp., U. and mkt. to., and head of a Co. Co. dis., N. Salop, 12 N.W. of Market Drayton; ac. of pa. 15,416, of tp. 14,445. The church of St. Alkmund is in Classic style, and contains a remarkable monument to Sir John Talbot, first Earl of Shrewsbury, who died from a wound received at the battle of Bordeaux (1453); his bones were removed from France and interred in the old church at W., and during the erection of the present church the urn which contained his embalmed heart was found enclosed in a crimson velvet covering, and was replaced in the spot where it was found; the tomb bears a recumbent figure of the Earl in armour. In 1874 the monument was restored, and the bones of the Earl, found in an iron-bound box, were replaced in a new coffin under the monument. In the north aisle is a monument (restored 1876) to Sir John Talbot (d. 1550), once rector of W. and founder of the Grammar School. The Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. Among the public buildings are the Town Hall and covered market in High Street, built in Domestic Gothic style; the Public Baths, in Brownlaw Street, in Queen Anne style; the Working Men's Hall, on Castle Hill, comprising a library, reading and other rooms; and the W. Cottage Hospital and Dispensary, in Brownlaw Street, a half-timbered structure, erected in 1886. The market is held every Friday for corn, butter, and wheat, the cheese fair being held on the fourth Wednesday in each month, except December. A market is also held every alternate Monday, and a horse auction is held monthly. There is a brewery, and malting and cheese-making are carried on. The charities amount to about £400 yearly, and there are almshouses for six aged widows, and another set for four widows. The Grammar School, founded in 1550, was rebuilt in 1849, in Elizabethan style, and there is an endowed girls' school built in 1708. The Jubilee Park, on the west side of the to., has an area of about 11 ac. The district affords good hunting, two or three packs of hounds meeting in the neighbourhood.

Whitchurch Church and Mill.
(Photo. Taunt and Co., Oxford.)

Whitchurch (2), pa. and straggling vil., S. Oxon., 5½ N.W. of Reading; ac. 2,070; soil chalk and gravel, with chalky subsoil. The vil. is beautifully situated, and surrounded by wooded hills. The church of St. Mary, close to the Thames, was originally Norm., but was rebuilt in 1858 with the exception of the Norm. south doorway; there are several tablets to the Lybbe, Powys, and Gardiner families, including one to Richard Lybbe, of Hardwick (1658), and Anne (Blagrave), his wife (1651). There is a brass, with effigy in armour, to Thomas Walysh, trayer (or food taster) to Henry IV., V., and VI. (1420), and to his wife, but the inscription is incomplete; another brass commemorates Roger Gery, vicar, with his effigy bearing the chalice and Host (c. 145–); there is a third to Peter Windsor, curate (1610), with effigy, robed and kneeling: and an inscription to Thomas Percyvalle, rector (1533). In the north aisle is a mural monument to Richard Lybbe, of Hardwick (1599), and Joanna, his wife, with their effigies, painted and gilt, the former in armour, and the latter in a ruff and quaint head-dress; both kneel at a desk, and above is a shield with crest. St. John the Baptist's chapel-of-ease dates from 1883, and there is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £49 yearly for the purchase of bread, fuel, great-coats, and red cloaks for the poor of the pa. Bozedown, in Elizabethan style; Combe Park, in Italian style; Hardwick House, an ancient mansion, and Swanston House are seats.

Whitchurch (3), pa., small to., and head of a U., W. Hants, 7 E. by N. of Andover; ac. 6,348; soil clayey loam, overlying chalk. The to. consists of five streets, all diverging from the market-place, and although built on rather low ground, is considered extremely healthy, being near the head of the Test valley and sheltered on all sides but the south by neighbouring hills. Over the Test is a bridge of five arches. Though W. is a bor. by prescription it was never incorporated; it returned two members to Parliament from the reign of Elizabeth to the Reform Act of 1832. The church of All Hallows (restored 1868) is Trans., E. Eng.,

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whitby Division	.....	.....	54776
Whitchester	Newcastle-on-T. (9½	271	57
Whitchurch (1), pa.	Whitchurch	171	6753
Whitchurch (1), tp.	Whitchurch	171	6647
Whitchurch (2)	Pangbourne (1)	42	934
Whitchurch (3)	Whitchurch	59	2119

and later, and contains a tomb bearing a fine brass, with effigies, to Richard Brooks (1603), Elizabeth his wife, and six children; there is also an effigy of a female reclining on a cross, with an inscription, found embedded in one of the walls. Various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Town Hall, in which court leets are held, is a small but ancient structure; the Mechanics' Institution occupies part of the Town Hall, and has a good library and reading-rooms. The charities amount to about £70 yearly There are corn mills on the Test, and whitening is made here.

Whitchurch (4), pa. and vil. on the west bank of the Wye, S. Herefords., 4 N.E. of Monmouth, on the road to Ross; ac. 2,191; soil sandy and loamy, overlying chiefly rock and sandstone. The vil. is pretty and contains some good houses; it is surrounded by Welsh mountain scenery of the most picturesque description. The Wye and Garron afford good fishing. The church of St. Dubricius (restored) is Dec., and contains several tombs to the Davis family. In the churchyard is a tomb to the ancient family of Gwillim, and a cross, which has been restored. The Congregationalists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. A tower with clock was erected in 1860, near the centre of the vil. There are some charities. Symond's Yat (or Gate) was formerly a pass on the road to Wales. There are petrifying streams at the dripping well. Sellarsbrook is a seat.

Whitchurch (5), pa. and vil., Mid Bucks., 4½ N. of Aylesbury; ac. 1,671; soil loam, overlying limestone and gravel. The church of St. John the Evangelist (partially restored 1853) is E. Eng., and contains a piscina and aumbry in the south aisle and a double piscina and triple sedilia in the chancel. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There is a charity of about £15 a year. Here was formerly a castle, and the sites of the drawbridges are still traceable; at the outer edge of the moat is a remarkable spring called "Fair Alice," flowing out from beneath the trunk of a tree and affording excellent water.

Whitchurch (6), or Felton, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 3 S. of Bristol, on the road to Wells; ac. 1,911; soil clayey, overlying stone. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1861) is Norm.; at the end of the south aisle is the Smyth chapel, now used as a vestry; there is a fine old Norm. font. Here is a Congregational chapel. The charities amount to £10 14s. yearly, of which £4 4s. is paid to the vicar for sermons and the remainder distributed in bread.

Whitchurch (7), pa. and vil., S.W. Dev., 12 N. of Plymouth; ac. 5,317; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1878) is Perp., and contains a monument to the Moringe family (1617), and piscinæ in the chancel and transept. Here are tin, copper, and lead mines. Grenofen, Holwell, Merevale, and Walreddon House are seats.

Whitchurch (8), pa., S.W. Warws., 4 S.E. of Stratford-upon-Avon; ac. 1,987; soil various, overlying principally gravel. The church of St. Mary was restored in 1890. There are two small charities.

Whitchurch (9). [STANMORE, LITTLE.]

Whitchurch (10), pa. and vil. on the Taff, S.E. Glamorgs., 1½ N. of Llandaff; ac. 3,269; soil mostly productive. The church of St. Mary (1883) is in Gothic style. W. contains Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The important iron and tin-plate works occupy a large proportion of the inhabitants. A camp (said to be of Roman origin) and a tumulus remain. Green Meadow is a large mansion beautifully situated beside the Taff, below the slope of a high mountain. Greenhill, The Firs, Tyn-y-Park, and Velindra are other seats.

Whitchurch (11), pa. and vil. on St. Bride's Bay, W. Pembs., 12 N.W. by W. of Haverfordwest; ac. 3,177. The surface is broken into hills and valleys, presenting much varied and picturesque scenery. The church of St. David (restored 1874) is E. Eng.; it has a panelled barrel-vault, and there are oak stalls in the chancel. The pa. contains Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. Adam Houghton (d. 1389), Chancellor of England, was a native.

Whitchurch (12), pa., N.E. Pembs., 6½ S. by W. of Cardigan; ac. 2,519. The church of St. Michael is an ancient Gothic edifice. The pa. contains Baptist and Independent chapels. There are traces of an ancient encampment.

Whitchurch (13), pl., pa. of and 1½ E. from Denbigh (q.v.), N. Denbighs. The church of St. Marcellus, formerly the pa. church of Denbigh, is an ancient Gothic edifice; it contains several interesting memorials, including a brass for Richard Myddelton and his children, the youngest of whom was Sir Hugh Myddelton (d. 1631), celebrated as the projector of the New River Company. The church is now a cemetery chapel.

Whitchurch Canonicorum, large pa. and vil. on the Char, W. Dors., 5 W.N.W. of Bridport; ac. 4,253; soil various, but principally light clay, overlying red sand and strong clay. The church of St. White, or Candida and the Holy Cross, originally dedicated to the saint only, is a fine cruciform building of stone; the tower, south porch, and transepts are Perp.; the south arcade, a fine specimen of Norm. work, and the north arcade are E. Eng.; in the north transept is an old tomb supposed to be the shrine of St. Candida, and the chancel contains a very curious elaborately carved monument to John Jeffery, of Catherstone, Kt. dated 1611. There is a small chapel-of-ease, St. John the Baptist, and a Congregational chapel. From Conig Castle Hill in the north of the pa. and Hardown Hill in the west fine views of the surrounding scenery and of the English Channel are obtained; on the former hill is an ancient entrenchment.

Whitcliffe-with-Thorpe, tp. and vil., pa. of and 1½ S. from Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,32[illegible]. Here are brick works. Thorpe Lodge is a seat.

Whitcombe (1), pa. comprising a single farm

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitchurch (4)	Monmouth (4)	144	684
Whitchurch (5)	Aylesbury (5)	43	709
Whitchurch (6)	Bristol (3)	118	495
Whitchurch (7)	Tavistock (1½)	251	1144
Whitchurch (8)	Stratford-on-A. (5)	101	194
Whitchurch (10)	Llandaff (1)	166	3322

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POP.
Whitchurch (11)	Haverfordwest (12)	264	[illegible]
Whitchurch (12)	Crymmych Arms (2)	263	[illegible]
Whitchurch C.	Bridport (5)	154	[illegible]
Whitcliffe-w.-Thorpe	Ripon (1½)	224	[illegible]
Whitcombe (1)	Dorchester (3)	135	[illegible]

S.E. Dors., 3 S.E. of Dorchester, on the road to Wareham; ac. 738; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church (not dedicated) is a small ancient building of stone, partly Saxon, with several modern additions; the burial-ground contains many ancient tombs, one bearing date 1626.

Whitcombe (2), ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Carisbrooke (q.v.), I. of W., S. Hants.

Whitcombe, Great, pa. and vil., N. Glouc., 5 S.E. of Gloucester; ac. 909; soil loamy, subsoil clayey. The church of St. Mary (partially restored 1889) is Norm., with a fine specimen of Norm. work in the chancel arch. There are various memorials to members of the Hicks family. Here are the reservoirs of the Gloucester waterworks, and in the pa. are remains of a Roman villa.

Whitcombe, Little, vil., pa. of Badgeworth (q.v.), N. Glouc., 5 S.W. of Leckhampton. There is a Baptist chapel.

White-, for words not found under this spelling, see also WHIT-.

Whiteabbey, vil. on the shore of Belfast Lough, pa. of Carnmoney (q.v.), S.E. co. Antr., Ir., 5 N. of Belfast. Here are extensive flax-spinning and weaving mills, and bleach works. The abbey from which the vil. derives its name was, in early times, an extensive building, but its traces are almost obliterated, little remaining but fragments of walls, whilst its history is involved in obscurity. W., owing to its convenient distance from Belfast, has become the residence of many of the merchants of that city.

Whiteadder Water, river, S.E. Haddings. and N.E. Berws., Sc., rises in Whittinghame pa., and runs at first S.E., skirting the pas. of Whittinghame, Stenton, Cranshaws, and Longformacus. In the early part of its course it flows through a bleak moorland district, but after entering Berws. it traverses a richly cultivated tract abounding in picturesque scenery of a soft and gentle character. The beauty of the views on its banks is due in great measure to the succession of curves which it forms as it passes through or alongside the pas. of Longformacus, Abbey St. Bathans, Duns, and Bunkle and Preston. On reaching the north vicinity of the to. of Duns its course becomes more regular, and it continues to flow E. by S. till it joins the Tweed 2 W.S.W. of Berwick-upon-Tweed. In the last part of its course it divides the pas. of Bunkle, Chirnside, Foulden and Mordington on the north from those of Duns, Edrom, and Hutton on the south, and it finally traverses the liberties of Berwick-upon-Tweed. Its length is about 34 miles.

White Ball Head, headland a little to the west of the north side of the entrance to Bantry Bay, pa. of Kilnamanagh (q.v.), S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 7 S.W. of Castletown Bearhaven.

Whitebridge, ha., pa. of Boleskin and Abertarff (q.v.), Mid Invs., Sc., 10 N.E. of Fort Augustus.

Whitebrook, ha., pa. of and 2½ N. from Llandogo (q.v.), S. Mon. There is a chapel-of-ease (1891) and a Baptist chapel.

Whitecairns, pl., pa. of Belhelvie (q.v.), E. Abers., Sc., 3 S.E. of New Machar.

White Cart. [CART.]

Whitecastle, ha., pa. of Moville, Upper (q.v.), N.E. co. Don., Ir., 6 N.E. of Muck.

Whitechapel (1), pa. of East London, E. Middx., 1 E. by N. of St. Paul's; ac. 170. W. is partly in Tower Hamlets parl. bor., partly in the City of London. It is traversed by a broad thoroughfare extending E.N.E. from Aldgate to Mile End, called W. High Street in its west portion and W. Road further east; it formed the principal exit from the metropolis in the direction of Essex. W. comprises the eccl. pas. of St. Mary Matfellon, St. Jude, St. Mark, and part of St. Paul, Dock Street. The ancient pa. church of St. Mary Matfellon was rebuilt 1877 and again after a fire in 1880; it is in E. Dec. style; it is supposed to have been called "white chapel" from its covering of whitewash, or perhaps, in a more general way, from its stately appearance. The London Hospital, on the south side of W. Road, is one of the most important London charities; the edifice dates from 1752. Near it are the new East London and Pavilion Theatres. Iron-founding, bell-founding, dyeing, sugar-refining, distilling, and brewing are carried on; there are also floor-cloth factories, and slop-clothes are made on a large scale. The minor industries are principally in the hands of Jews, who form a prominent element in the population. W. is famous for the hay and straw market held in the High Street; the collection of waggons and carts on market days forms a very curious sight. Many parts of W. are extremely squalid, especially the district north of the High Street; but this quarter was greatly improved by the construction of the Commercial Street in 1870. Rag Fair, or Rosemary Lane (now Royal Mint Street), and Petticoat Lane (now Middlesex Street) have long been famous for their sales of old clothes. In the vicinity of Houndsditch are some of the most extensive bonded tea warehouses in England. Adjoining a street off W. Road is the Jews' Burial Ground, wherein is interred the celebrated stock-broker, Nathaniel Rothschild (d. 1836).

Whitechapel (2), eccl. pa., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The "old white chapel of the North" was rebuilt in 1831. [CLECKHEATON.]

Whitechapel (3), eccl. pa., pa. of Kirkham (q.v.), W. Lancs., 5 S.E. of Garstang. The church of St. James is a small plain stone building.

Whitechapel Division, one of the seven parl. divs. of Tower Hamlets, E. Middx. It returns one member.

Whitechurch (1). [WINTERBORNE WHITCHURCH.]

Whitechurch (2), pa. and vil., Rathdown bar., S. co. Dub., Ir., 2 S. of Rathfarnham; ac. 2,868. It contains the vils. of Ballyboden and Edmondstown (q.v.). The church is a plain old stone edifice. From a road in this neighbourhood is a delightful view of the south environs of Dublin and across Dublin Bay. In this locality is St. Columba's College, founded in 1843.

Whitechurch (3), pa. along the Barrow, Bantry and Shelburne bars., S. co. Wexf., Ir., 4 S.W. of

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitcombe, Great	Gloucester (4)	114	123
Whiteabbey	Whiteabbey	118	1326
Whitechapel (1)	.....	.....	32326
Whitechapel (2)	Howden Clough	185	3513
Whitechapel (3)	Garstang (5)	219	927
Whitechapel Divis'n	.....	.....	74420
Whitechurch (2)	.....	.....	960
Whitechurch (3)	New Ross (4)	102	595

New Ross; ac. 5,342. There are Protestant and Catholic churches and National schools. Stokestown is a seat.

Whitechurch (4), pa., Decies-without-Drum bar., S. co. Waterf., Ir., 5 W.N.W. of Dungarvan; ac. 9,951. Cappagh is a seat.

Whitechurch (5), pa., Iffa and Offa bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 3 S.W. of Caher; ac. 3,921. Here is a Catholic church.

Whitechurch (6), pa., Barretta, Barrymore, and Cork bars., S. co. Cork, Ir., 6 N. of Cork; ac. 10,514.

Whitechurch (7), pa., North Naas bar., N. co. Kildare, Ir., 3½ N.E. of Sallins; ac. 3,167.

Whitechurch (8), pa., Iverk bar., S. co. Kilk., Ir., 2 N.E. of Carrick-on-Suir; ac. 2,186.

Whitechurchglynn, pa., Bantry and West Shelmaliere bars., S. co. Wexf., Ir., 3 N. of Taghmon; ac. 7,187. Bricketstown is a seat.

Whitecliff Bay, inlet of the sea on north-east side of Culver Cliff, east coast of I. of W., S. Hants, 2 E. by S. of Brading. The cliffs have successive strata of limestone, sand, clay, and chalk. Near Culver Cliff, some 50 ft. from the summit, is a natural cavity called the Hermit's Hole, very difficult of access. The obelisk on the down which rises behind the bay is a memorial of the first Earl of Yarborough (d. 1846), commander of the Royal Yacht Squadron.

White Colne. [COLNE, WHITE.]

White Coomb, mountain (2,695 ft.), pa. of and 8 N.N.E. from Moffat, N. Dumfs., Sc., near the Peebs. border. The mountain is on the south-west side of Loch Skene.

White Cragg, ha., pa. of Fewston (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 6 N. of Otley.

Whitecroft, ha. with railway station, pa. of West Dean (q.v.), W. Glouc., 5 S.E. of Coleford.

Whitecross, small vil., pa. of Ballymyre (q.v.), Mid co. Arm., Ir., 5 S. of Markethill.

Whitefield (1). [Stand.]

Whitefield (2), ha., pa. of Deerhurst (q.v.), N. Glouc., about 4 S.W. of Tewkesbury.

Whiteford Point, headland, N.W. Glamorgs., 13½ W. by N. of Swansea. Here is a fixed light, visible 9 miles.

Whitefriars Precinct, pa. in the City of London, E. Middx., ½ W. of St. Paul's; ac. 8½. The pa. lies between Fleet Street on the north, Whitefriars Street on the east, the Thames on the south, and the Temple on the west. The name is derived from the Carmelite friary founded by Sir Richard Grey in 1241. The church was taken down after the dissolution of the monasteries, and its site became covered with stately houses. W., however, retained the privileges of sanctuary which had belonged to it before the Reformation, and consequently became a notorious haunt of thieves, generally known as Alsatia; this right was withdrawn by Act of Parliament in 1697. The district has been much improved of late years; the Victoria Embankment now runs along the riverside, and the City of London School and Sion College have taken the place of wharves and gas-works.

Whitegate (1), pa. on the west bank of the Weaver, Mid Chesh., about 4½ S.S.W. of Northwich; ac. 4,384. The church of St. Mary, a brick structure, was erected in 1726 on the site of an earlier building. Vale Royal is a seat on a gentle elevation near the Weaver, and occupies part of the site of the abbey, some portions of the ancient building being retained in the basement. The mansion, of red sandstone, consists of a centre with two wings; some of the windows are enriched with a profusion of stained glass, chiefly heraldic; the great hall has some fine portraits, including some painted by Rubens. The Old Hall suffered considerably during the Civil War, and was plundered by the troops of General Lambert. Vale Royal became the site in 1277 of a Cistercian monastery translated here from Dernhall.

Whitegate (2), fishing vil. on east side of Cork Harbour, pas. of Aghada and Corkbeg (q.v.), S.E. co. Cork, Ir., 3 S.E. of Queenstown. The Protestant church of St. Michael and All Angels (1881) is a small plain stone building.

Whitegate (3), pl., pa. of Clonrush (q.v.), S.E. co. Galway, Ir., 8 N.E. of Scarriff.

Whitehall, vil., pas. of Kilmacahill and Shankill (q.v.), N.E. co. Kilk., Ir., 3½ S.W. of Bagenalstown.

Whitehaven, parl. bor. (returning one member), tp., seaport, and mkt. to. (T., TH., & S.), head of a U. and Co. Co. dis., pa. of St. Bees (q.v.), W. Cumb., 12 S.S.W. of Maryport; ac. of bor. 1,693, of tp. 176. The to., situated on a small but fine bay and enclosed on the north and south by lofty wooded hills, contains a number of well-built and generally wide streets. From the heights on either side good views are afforded of the to. and harbour, the Scottish coast on the opposite side of the Solway Firth, and the Isle of Man. The to. comprises four pas.—St. Nicholas, Holy Trinity, St. James, and Christ Church. The church of St. Nicholas was rebuilt in 1883, but retains the old porch bearing the date 1693; the church of Holy Trinity (1714–15) has some 18th-cent. monuments; that of St. James (1752) has an altar-piece, a painting of the Transfiguration, the work of Procaccini; that of Christ Church (1847) is in E. Norm. style. The Roman Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The public buildings include a Town Hall, in Duke Street, with large public and other rooms and offices; the Union Hall, in Scotch Street; the Free Public Library, in Queen Street; the Theatre, in Roper Street; the Baths, in Duke Street; the County Court, in Sandhill's Lane; and the County Police Station, in Scotch Street. The W. collieries have been worked since about 1650; the mines are both on the north and south sides of the to. Hematite iron ore is sent coastwise and abroad, as is pig iron, of which a considerable quantity is shipped. Steel rails and sleepers are often exported from the neighbouring steel works. Fine alabaster, building stone, lime, and pottery ware

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitechurch (4)	Dungarvan (5)	141	1325
Whitechurch (5)	Caher (3)	124	422
Whitechurch (6)	Blarney (4)	160	1579
Whitechurch (7)	Sallins (3½)	15	223
Whitechurch (8)	Carrick-on-Suir (2)	149	324
Whitechurchglynn	Wexford (7)	93	892

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitefriars Precinct	.....	.....	[illegible]
Whitegate (1)	Whitegate	177	[illegible]
Whitegate (2)	Queenstown (3)	178	[illegible]
Whitegate (3)	Killaloe (11)	138	[illegible]
Whitehaven, parl. bo.	Whitehaven	302	[illegible]
Whitehaven, tp.	Whitehaven	302	[illegible] are occasionally shipped. The leading imports are West Indian, American, and Baltic produce, both grain and timber. Amongst the principal manufactures of the to. are bricks, tiles, and sewage pipes, earthenware, cabinet ware, and spun tobacco. There are also engineering works and iron foundries, a tannery, steam flour mills, steam saw mills, breweries, coke ovens, cement and alabaster works, and quarries of red sandstone. W. is also the nearest and most convenient point of export from the West Cumberland iron ore deposits, and is consequently the centre of a large and increasing number of smelting and finished ironworks erected near the iron ore mines. There are several charities, including some for educational purposes, and an endowed school. The harbour of W. is easy of access, deep water extending at all times close to the outer pier heads. It is protected on the north and west by noble piers of solid masonry, while six others intersect the enclosed area. The whole of the piers and quays are lighted by electricity, and on the West pier is W. lighthouse, with light visible 11 miles. Little is known of the history of W. prior to the early part of the 17th cent., but it is asserted that the site of the present to. and the adjacent heights were formerly covered by a forest, to which the Irish resorted during the 10th cent. for the supply of wood. In the 17th cent. Sir John Lowther settled here, erected a mansion, the commencement of the present castle, and began the working of the mines and the improvement of the harbour. The port has since progressively risen to its present rank and importance, and is now the chief seaport of the co. In 1778 Paul Jones landed at W. and set fire to three ships, hoping to destroy the remainder in the harbour, but was forced to make a precipitate retreat after spiking the guns in the battery. Jones served his apprenticeship as a seaman in a vessel belonging to this place. W. Castle, near the outskirts of the to., is a large quadrangular mansion surrounded by pleasure grounds. In the entrance hall are two Roman altars, one of which, 5 ft. high, is said to be the largest discovered in England; the other, erected in honour of the Emperor Hadrian, was found at Moresby.

THE HARBOUR, WHITEHAVEN.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, London.)

Whitehead, small watering-place on the north shore of Belfast Lough, pa. of Templecorran (q.v.), S.E. co. Antr., Ir., 5 N.E. of Carrickfergus, and near a headland of the same name at the mouth of the lough. [BLACK HEAD (3).] It attracts many visitors during the summer months on account of its beautiful and romantic scenery, and is increasing in population and extent.

White Hill, eminence, pa. of Caterham (q.v.), E. Surrey, 6½ E.N.E. of Reigate. On it is a large camp called Cardinal's Cap, supposed by some to be of British origin, surrounded by a deep fosse and extensive earthworks. A Roman road runs beneath the hill, and near it some remains of a bath, lined with tiles, were discovered in 1813.

Whitehill, vil., pa. of New Deer (q.v.), N.E. Abers., Sc., 2¼ S. of New Pitsligo. Here is a United Presbyterian church, also a school.

Whitehills, coast vil., pa. of Boyndie (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc., 2½ W.N.W. of Banff. It is chiefly inhabited by fishermen.

White Horse, fishing harbour on south side of Bantry Bay, West Carbery bar., S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 10 W.S.W. of Bantry.

White Horse Common, pl., pa. of and 2 N.E. from North Walsham (q.v.), E. Norf. It was enclosed about 1830, and many houses have been since built on it.

White Horse Hill, ha., pa. of and 1 from Chislehurst (q.v.), N.W. Kent.

White Horse Vale. [VALE OF WHITE HORSE.]

Whitehouse (1), ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Alnwick (q.v.), E. Northumb.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Whitehills	Banff (2½)	592	1097

Whitehouse (2), pl., pa. of Kilcalmonell (q.v.), S. Args., Sc., 6 S.W. of Tarbert.

Whitehouse, Lower and Upper, adjacent vils. on west coast of Belfast Lough, pa. of Carnmoney (q.v.), S.E. co. Antr., Ir., 3½ N. of Belfast. Here is a Presbyterian chapel. The cotton manufacture has been a thriving industry since it was first established in 1784. There are considerable remains of a bawn, said to date from the early part of the 17th cent.

Whiteinch, q.s. pa. on north bank of the Clyde, pa. of Govan (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc., 3 W.N.W. of Glasgow. Here are Established and Free churches, and also a public school.

White Island, one of the Scilly Islands, S.W. Cornw., 2½ W. of St. Mary's.

Whitekirk and Tynninghame, coast pa. on the Tyne, N.E. Haddings., Sc.; ac. 6,288; soil generally rich brown loam, mixed in some places with clay. The vil. of W. is about 5 S.E. of Berwick; it consists of but a few dwellings, the ancient pa. church and manse, and a public school. [TYNNINGHAME.]

Whiteknowe, estate, pa. of Hutton and Corrie (q.v.), N. Dumfs., Sc., 5 N.E. of Lockerbie. There is a seat of the same name.

White Lackington, pa. and vil., S. Somerset, 7 W.S.W. of Martock; ac. 1,449; soil clay and loam, overlying lias stone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1884) is E. Eng.; it contains some fine windows of the 13th and 14th cent.; in the south transept is a monument to Sir George Speke (d. 1637), and in the nave are two brasses to Anthony Poole (d. 1587) and Margaret his wife (d. 1606).

White Ladies Aston, pa. and vil., Mid Worcs., 3½ N.W. of Pershore; ac. 1,230; soil chiefly clay, with a little sand, overlying stiff clay, sand, and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1861) is of Norm. origin, but is now chiefly E. Eng. In 1708 Dr. William Lloyd, Bishop of Worcester (1700–17), endowed a school at Worcester with an estate in this pa., which had become forfeited to the Bishop by the execution of its owner for an atrocious murder.

Whiteleaf, ha., pa. of and ¾ S.E. from Monks Risborough (q.v.), Mid Bucks. It is situated at the base of W. Cross Hill, one of the eminences of the Chiltern range, on the side of which is cut a gigantic cross.

Whiteless Pike, mountain (2,159 ft.), S.W. Cumb., 6 S.W. by W. of Keswick.

White Loch, small lake, pa. of Mochrum, S.E. Wigs., Sc., 1 E. of Port William. The lake extends upwards of ½ N. by E. and S. by W., and is a little over ¼ mile in extreme breadth.

Whitemire, vil., pa. of Dyke (q.v.), N.W. Elgs., Sc., on the Nairns. border, 5 S.W. of Forres.

White Mountain (1) (1,259 ft.), eminence in the Blackstairs Range, Bantry bar., W. co. Wexf., Ir., near the Carlow border, 7½ N.N.E. of New Ross.

White Mountain (2) (1,774 ft.), eminence in the Sperrin Range, Keenaght bar., Mid co. Londy., Ir., 6 S.S.E. of Dungiven.

Whitemount Deer Forest, on south side of Balmoral Forest, S.W. Abers., Sc., 5 S.E. of Castleton-of-Braemar.

Whiteness, vil., pa. of Tingwall (q.v.), Mainland, Shetland, Sc., about 9 N.W. of Lerwick.

Whiten Head, or Kennageall, headland (935 ft.), pas. of Durness and Tongue (q.v.), north coast of Suths., Sc., 7 N.N.W. of Tongue. The white cliff, rising abruptly from the shore, stretches about 3 E. and W. between the Kyle of Tongue and Loch Eriboll. Many fantastic caverns have been formed by the action of the waves; one of them is entered through an archway 50 ft. high and 20 ft. broad, and penetrates ½ mile inland.

White Nose, or Whitenore, headland on south coast of Dors., 6 E. by N. of Weymouth. The headland consists of chalk, forming the east extremity of Ringstead Bay.

White Notley. [NOTLEY, WHITE.]

Whiteparish, pa. and vil., S. Wilts., on the borders of Hants, 7 S.E. of Salisbury; ac. 6,316; soil chalk, sand, and gravel, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints is of various periods, and contains several monuments to the Eyre and St. Barbe families. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities amount to about £6 10s. yearly. Brickworth House, Bramshaw House, and Cowesfield House are seats.

White Pebble Bay, cove, north coast of Dev., 4 W. of Ilfracombe. The maidenhair fern here grows wild.

Whitepit, ha., pa. of and ½ W. from Swaby (q.v.), E. Lincs. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Whiterashes, pl., pas. of New Machar and Udny (q.v.), E. Abers., Sc., 3½ N.W. of New Machar.

Whiterigg, vil., pa. of New Monkland (q.v.), N.E. Lanarks., Sc., 3 N.E. of Airdrie.

White River, co. Louth, Ir., rises in the grounds of Oriel Temple in Collon pa., S. co. Louth, and runs E., E.N.E., and N., passing Dunleer, and joining the Dee at Drumcar. Its length is 10 miles.

White Rocks, spot on the cliffs in east vicinity of Portrush, coast of Lower Dunluce bar., N.W. co. Antr., Ir. The chalk here is much worn, and presents a fantastic outline.

White Roding, or Roothing, pa. and vil., W. Essex, 8 S.W. of Dunmow; ac. 2,535; soil heavy, overlying clay. The name is supposed to have been derived from the whiteness of the church, which exceeds in importance any other of the Roding churches and is seen from a considerable distance. It is dedicated to St. Martin, and was restored 1879; it is an edifice of rubble of various periods. The nave is E. Norm. with Perp. insertions, the chancel chiefly Perp. with Dec. remains; the tower is Perp., and the wood south porch chiefly of the same date. There is a Congregational chapel.

Whitesand Bay (1), inlet of the sea, south-west coast of Cornw., 7 W. by S. of Penzance. The bay is nearly a mile and a half wide at its mouth, and extends less than ½ mile inland. Vessels

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitehouse, Lower	Greencastle	116	418
Whitehouse, Upper	Greencastle	116	619
Whiteinch	Whiteinch	409	6488
Whitekirk and T.	East Linton (2½)	372	933
White Lackington	Ilminster (1½)	165	183

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
White Ladies Aston	Pershore (3)	112	[illegible]
Whiteparish	Dean (2)	83	[illegible]
Whiterigg	Whiterigg	208	[illegible]
White Roding	Sawbridgeworth (6)	27	[illegible]

navigating the channel put in here when overtaken by contrary winds. The coast scenery is picturesque, and some uncommon shells of minute size are found embedded in the sand. Several famous persons are said to have landed here, including King Stephen (1135), King John (1210), and Perkin Warbeck (1497).

Whitesand Bay (2), inlet of the sea on west coast of Pembs., 1½ W.N.W. of St. David's. The bay is about a mile and a half wide at its mouth, and extends ¾ mile inland.

Whiteshill, eccl. pa., pas. of Stroud and Standish (q.v.), Mid Glouc., 1 N.W. of Stroud. The church of St. Paul (1841) is in Norm. style. There is a Congregational chapel.

Whiteside, mountain (2,317 ft.) on the east side of Lorton Vale, S.W. Cumb., near the north extremity of Crummock Water, 7 W. of Keswick.

Whiteside Law, ha., pa. of Chollerton (q.v.), S. Northumb., 9½ N. of Hexham.

White Staunton, pa. and vil., N.W. Somerset, 3½ N.W. of Chard; ac. 1,937; soil and subsoil flint and chalk in parts, and greensand, clay, and blue lias in parts. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1883) is Perp. Of the two chapels, one is used as the family pew of the Eltons; the other, containing several tombs with shields of arms, serves as a vestry. There is also a brass tablet to the coheiresses of John Brett, dated 1582, and in the nave are some benches with carved ends, bearing curious devices, and the arms of Brett, Paris, and the Borough of Chard. The chancel retains a piscina, and some very early heraldic tiles; the font is supposed to date from the 12th cent. Nearly opposite the porch, and raised on steps of local stone, is the shaft of an ancient cross. The charities amount to £21, half of which is assigned for the education of twenty-one children, and the other half is distributed in bread; seven loaves at 6d. to be given away every Sunday to the poor not receiving relief. W. Manor House, part of which was erected in 1493, was enlarged in the 16th cent.; it has large and commodious rooms and contains some good ancient carved work. The ruins of a Roman villa have been discovered in the grounds, and may now be viewed by permission. Many objects of interest have been found in ancient barrows and in a British camp in this pa.

Whitestone, pa. and vil., Mid Dev., 6 S.E. of Crediton; ac. 4,077; soil clayey, subsoil schistous. The church of St. Catherine (renovated 1887) is Gothic. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, and there are some charities and an endowed school.

Whitestown, vil., pa. of and 4 S.S.E. from Carlingford (q.v.), N.E. co. Louth, Ir. The vil. is situated near the extremity of the peninsula between Carlingford Lough and Dundalk Bay.

White Strand, bay on west shore of I. of M., 1½ E.N.E. of Peel. Here is a fine gravelly beach, famous for its pebbles.

Whitevale, suburb of Glasgow, Barony pa., N.W. Lanarks., Sc.

White Water, stream, Mourne bar., S.W. co. Down, Ir., rises on the south-east side of Eagle Mountain, and meanders in a southerly direction, entering Carlingford Lough 3 W. by S. of Kilkeel. Its length is about 10 miles.

Whitewater Dash, mountain torrent, S.W. Cumb., rises on the south-west side of Caldbeck Fells, 4 N. of Keswick, and flows N.W. during the former half of its course and during the latter part S.E., entering Bassenthwaite near the north extremity of its east shore. The length of the stream is about 6 miles.

Whitewell, eccl. pa., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 8½ N.W. of Clitheroe. The church was formerly appendent to "St. Michael's in castro," a chapel within the precincts of Clitheroe Castle, and in ancient times was a "Field Chapel" for the use of travellers on their journey to Lancaster; the present structure (1818) is a plain rectangular building in Gothic style. W. is a well-known and favourite resort for anglers, the river, which flows through the valley, affording good fishing. The scenery is attractive, and presents, on a small scale, features resembling those of a Swiss valley. Browsholme Hall, an ancient mansion in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Whitfield (1), pa. and vil., S.W. Northumb., 8 S.E. of Haltwhistle; ac. 13,904; soil sand and clay, but the cultivated land bears but a small proportion to the woods and moorlands. The church of the Holy Trinity (1860) is in E. Eng. style; the old church is now only used for mortuary purposes. There is a small charity. Lead ore was formerly obtained here. W. Hall is a seat.

Whitfield (2), pa. and vil., S. Northants, on the Bucks. border, 2 N.E. of Brackley; ac. 940; soil clay, subsoil brashy and heavy clay. The church of St. John the Evangelist was rebuilt 1870, in E. Eng. style. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £21 a year.

Whitfield (3), or Beauxfield, pa. and vil. on high ground, E. Kent, about 3 N. of Dover; ac. 914; soil light and chalky, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Peter (restored and enlarged 1894) is Norm. with some Saxon remains. There is a Congregational chapel.

Whitfield (4), eccl. pa., pa. of and 1 S. from Glossop, and partly within that bor., N. Derbys. The church of St. James is in E. Eng. style. The Sumner Memorial Catholic church (1887), Sumner Street, is also in E. Eng. style; a handsome stone screen separates the chancel from the side chapels. The Sisters of Charity have a convent; there are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Congregational schools, Victoria Street, are also used for lectures and concerts. The inhabitants are employed in the large cotton and paper mills and bleach works.

Whitford (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Flints., 3 W.N.W. of Holywell; ac. 8,247; soil partly clayey and stiff, in the higher parts dry and light, overlying limestone, with some gravel. The surface rises gradually from the shore of the estuary of the Dee, reaching in the west of the pa. a considerable

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whiteshill	Stroud (1)	102	1695
White Staunton	Chard (3)	143	205
Whitestone	Exeter (3)	172	494
Whitestown	Dundalk (14)	55	182
Whitewell	Clitheroe (8½)	221	429

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whitfield (1)	Staward (3)	300	310
Whitfield (2)	Brackley (2)	68	193
Whitfield (3)	Kearsney (1½)	76	335
Whitfield (4)	Glossop (1)	192	9031
Whitford (1)	Mostyn (2)	199	3158 height. The pa. contains a sheet of water, some 50 ac. in extent, known as Llyn Helig. The church of St. Beuno and St. Mary was rebuilt about 1845; it contains a monument to the antiquary Thomas Pennant (d. 1798), executed by Westmacott. There are Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The collieries have been worked since the 13th cent.; there are also limestone and freestone quarries, and lead and zinc mines. The pa. contains some interesting antiquities, including part of Offa's Dyke, the pillar stone of Maen Achwynfan, and the remains of a round tower, said by some to have been a Roman lighthouse, at the summit of the Garreg. Downing, the seat of the Earl of Denbigh, was the abode of the celebrated antiquary Thomas Pennant. The mansion, erected in 1627, contains a spacious library, in which is an excellent collection of books, manuscripts, and antiquities. Mostyn Hall is a handsome Elizabethan edifice.

Whitford (2), ha., pa. of and ½ S.E. from Shute (q.v.), E. Dev. The Bible Christians have a chapel here.

Whitgift, pa., tp., and vil. on the south bank of the Ouse, W.R. Yorks., 6 E. of Goole; ac. of pa. 9,940, of tp. 1,309; soil rich warp, overlying clay and peat. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is E. Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. A fair is held here on July 22 and 23, and a statute fair for hiring servants at Martinmas. Several small doles arising from land are distributed here in bread and clothing on the first Sunday after each quarter-day, and 20s. each is given annually to the clerk and sexton on St. Thomas's Day. W. Hall, the ancient manor-house, is a handsome Elizabethan structure of brick on the banks of the Ouse, in a well-wooded park.

Whitgreave, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of St. Mary, Stafford (q.v.), W. Staffs., 1 N.E. of Great Bridgeford; ac. 1,199. The church is dedicated to St. John.

Whithorn, coast pa. and royal burgh, S.E. Wigs., Sc., 11 S. of Wigtown; ac. 11,891; soil generally fertile, in some parts rich vegetable mould, resting on rock. The pa. is bounded on the south and east by the Irish Channel. The to. consists chiefly of one street running from north to south, with several others diverging from it. The places of worship are the pa. church, a Free church, one each for United and Reformed Presbyterians and Roman Catholics. The pa. church is a spacious building, erected partly on the ruins of the priory founded by St. Ninian, of which there now only remains a fine 12th-cent. chancel, roofless, but containing some good E. Eng. work, and a perfect western doorway. The see has long been united to that of Glasgow, and now forms part of the revived see designated Glasgow and Galloway. St. Ninian built a church here in 397, and attached a monastery to it; this church Bede mentioned as being the first built of stone in Scotland. During the 8th cent. it was the seat of the bishops of Candida Casa, and formed the episcopal capital of a bishopric of Galloway in the 12th cent. After the Reformation, however, it is seldom mentioned in public transactions, and seems to have sunk into obscurity. The Town Hall (1885) is a plain but substantially built structure. The local trade is inconsiderable, and merely of a retail character. A cattle market is held on the Thursday following the first Friday in each month from April to December, and an annual fair in July.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whitgift, pa.	Goole (6)	173	2162
Whitgift, tp.	Goole (6)	173	286
Whitgreave	Norton Bridge (1)	139	160
Whithorn, pa.	Whithorn	401	2574
Whithorn, roy. bur.	Whithorn	401	1403

Whithorn, Isle of. [Isle of Whithorn.]

Whiting Bay (1), vil. on W. Bay, pa. of Kilbride (q.v.), Arran Island, S. Butes., Sc., 3½ S. by E. of Lamlash. Here are Established and Free churches and a school.

Whiting Bay (2), inlet of the Firth of Clyde on east coast of Arran Island, S. Butes., Sc., 3 S.S.E. of Lamlash. The bay is 3 miles wide at its mouth and reaches about ¾ mile inland. The coast scenery is picturesque.

Whiting Bay (3), inlet of the sea, south coast of Decies-within-Drum bar., S.W. co. Waterf., Ir., 3 E. of Youghal. The bay is situated between Youghal and Ardmore. It is 2 miles wide at its mouth, and extends nearly a mile inland.

Whitkirk, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 4 E. of Leeds, on the road to Selby; ac. 5,638; soil sandy, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1856) is Perp.; there are several important and interesting memorials, including an alabaster monument with two recumbent figures representing Sir Robert Scargill (knighted 1525) and his lady, former occupiers of Thorpe Hall; a carved monument to Edward Ingram, second Viscount Irvine (d. 1688), erected by his widow, and another to Charles, tenth and last Viscount (d. 1778). On the north wall of the chancel is a tablet to John Smeaton, the builder of the Eddystone lighthouse (1724–92), who was born and died in the pa.; there are also several memorials of the Ingrams. The charities amount to about £100 a year.

Whitland, vil., pas. of Llangan, Llanboidy, and Cyffic (q.v.), W. Carmarths., on the Pemts. border, 6 E. by N. of Narberth. Here is an E. Eng. church dedicated to St. Mary. There are Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The ruins of W. Abbey or Albalanda are situated in a secluded valley; they are very scanty, consisting chiefly of piers with clustered shafts. It was a Cistercian house, dedicated to St. Mary, and, according to the most probable account, was founded by Bernard, Bishop of St. David's from 1115 to 1147. Hywel Dda (d. 950), Prince of Wales, frequently resided at W., and it was here that his celebrated code of laws was promulgated. W. Abbey occupies part of the site of the monastery.

Whitleigh, ha., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from St. Budeaux (q.v.), S.W. Dev.

Whitletts, vil., pa. of St. Quivox (q.v.), Mid Ayrs., Sc., 2 E.N.E. of Ayr.

Whitley (1), eccl. pa., tp., and popular bathing-place, with excellent sands, on the North Sea, pa. of Tynemouth (q.v.), S. Northumb., about 2½ N.E. of North Shields; ac. 387. The church of St. Paul is in E. Eng. style, and there are Wesleyan

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whitkirk	Cross Gate (½)	191	332
Whitletts	Newton-on-Ayr (1½)	332	57
Whitley (1), ec. pa.	Whitley	281	308
Whitley (1), tp.	Whitley	281	2[illegible]

and Free Methodist chapels, and a Free Library, established in 1870. The North Shields Waterworks Company's reservoirs form a pleasant skating ground in winter. The Prudhoe Memorial Convalescent Home is arranged on the pavilion plan; the Northumberland Village Homes for Girls are intended for the reception of the "waifs and strays" of society.

Whitley (2), eccl. pa., pa. of and 5 S. from Hexham (q.v.), S. Northumb. The church of St. Helen dates from the middle of the 18th cent.

Whitley (3), tp. and long straggling vil., pa. of Kellington (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 E. of Pontefract; ac. 1,843. Here are a chapel-of-ease and a Wesleyan chapel.

Whitley (4), eccl. pa., pa. of St. Giles, Reading (q.v.), now included in the extended bor. Christ Church is a modern building in E. Eng. style. Southcot House is a large ancient brick edifice, built by John Blagrave, the mathematician, to whose family for more than two centuries it belonged.

Whitley (5), vil., pa. of St. Michael, Coventry (q.v.), N. Warws., 1 S.E. of Coventry, on the road to Southam. W. Abbey, an Elizabethan mansion on an eminence in a beautiful park, is a seat. Here Charles I. stayed when he unsuccessfully summoned the inhabitants of Coventry to surrender in 1643.

Whitley (6), vil., pa. of and ¾ N. from Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Whitley (7), pl., pa. of and about 2 N.W. from Melksham (q.v.), W. Wilts. [SHAW AND WHITLEY.]

Whitley Bridge, vil. with railway station, pa. of Kellington (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 7 E. of Pontefract.

Whitley, Higher. [WHITLEY, OVER.]

Whitley, Lower (1), eccl. pa. (Whitley Nether), and tp., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 5 N.W. of Northwich; ac. 1,118. The church (dedication unknown) is a brick structure.

Whitley, Lower (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Thornhill (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 3 S.W. of Dewsbury; ac. 1,011. The church of SS. Mary and Michael (1842) is in Norm. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Whitley Nether. [WHITLEY, LOWER (1).]

Whitley Over (or Higher), tp., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 5 S. of Warrington; ac. 1,020. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Whitley, Upper, tp., pa. of Kirkheaton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 6 E. of Huddersfield; ac. 2,053. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. W. Beaumont, a fine mansion standing in well-wooded grounds, is a seat.

Whitlingham, pa., overlooking the Yare, S. Norf., 3½ E. of the Market-place, Norwich; ac. 542; soil clay and sand, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew, on high ground near the river, is now a ruin, within the walls of which are several stately trees; the tower, the greater part of which remains, is round, and is ornamented with four full-sized statues.

Whitminster. [WHEATENHURST.]

Whitmore, pa. and vil. on the Sowe, N.W. Staffs., 4½ S.S.W. of Newcastle-under-Lyme; ac. 2,004; soil in parts light, in others stiff clay, overlying gravel and sandstone. The church of St. Mary and All Saints (restored 1880) is Gothic; at the north end is the family vault of the Mainwarings, and there is an altar-tomb with incised effigies to Edward Mainwaring and Alice (Boghey) his wife, dated 1580. There is a small charity. Sales are held fortnightly for cattle. W. Hall, situated in a romantic valley, just below the vil., is a brick mansion, standing in a large park, with a splendid avenue of trees; it was greatly injured by fire in August, 1880.

Whitnash (in Domesday "Witenas"), pa. and vil., S.E. Warws., 1 S.S.E. of Leamington; ac. 1,242; soil mixed, overlying chiefly marl. The church of St. Margaret is E. Eng. and later; it contains several ancient monuments and two brasses to Benedict Medley (d. 1504), Clerk of the Signet to Henry VII., and his wife. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Whitney, pa. and vil. on the Wye, N. Herefords., 4 N.E. of Hay; ac. 1,514; soil rich alluvial on the lower level, the higher parts are clay and loam; the subsoil is gravelly in the valley. The church of St. Paul was erected in 1740, the old church of SS. Peter and Paul having been washed down in 1730. W. Court, pleasantly placed on the banks of the Wye, is a seat.

Whitridge, tp., consisting of one farm, pa. of and 4 N.W. from Hartburn (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 201.

Whitrigg (1), ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Torpenhow (q.v.), Mid Cumb. A Roman road runs through the ha.; on Caer Mote are vestiges of a Roman camp in which two Roman querns were discovered. [TORPENHOW AND WHITRIGG.]

Whitrigg (2), ha. with railway station, pa. of Bowness (q.v.), N. Cumb., 5½ S.E. of Annan.

Whitsbury, pa., S. Wilts., extending into Hants, 8 S. of Salisbury; ac. 1,824; soil chalk and light sand, overlying chalk and sandstone. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1878) is E. Eng. There is a charity of about £7 a year for providing medicine for the industrious poor, and for apprenticing. In this pa. is W. Camp, an eminence supposed to have been an ancient British stronghold, and afterwards used by the Romans.

Whitsome, pa. and vil. on Leet Water, S.E. Berws., Sc., about 6 S. of Chirnside; ac. 4,896; soil fertile, overlying sandstone and whinstone. The Templars formerly held lands in this pa., and in 1482 the Duke of Gloucester, afterwards Richard III., in his progress through the co., burnt the vil. and laid waste the surrounding land.

Whitson, pa. on the Bristol Channel, S. Mon., 6½

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitley (2)	Hexham (5)	289	604
Whitley (3)	Whitley Bridge (½)	175	407
Whitley (4)	Reading (2)	36	4812
Whitley, L. (1), ec. pa.	Acton Bridge (3)	173	508
Whitley, L. (1), tp.	Acton Bridge (3)	173	205
Whitley, Lower (2)	Thornhill (2½)	182	879
Whitley, Over	Acton Bridge (3)	173	303
Whitley, Upper	Mirfield (1½)	185	844
Whitlingham	Whitlingham	116	57
Whitmore	Whitmore (1)	148	318
Whitnash	Leamington (1)	97	520
Whitney	Whitney-on-the-W.	163	250
Whitridge	Angerton (3)	295	4
Whitsbury	Breamore (3)	93	174
Whitsome	Edrom (3)	355	573
Whitson	Magor (2½)	144	107

S.E. by E. of Newport; ac. 1,908; soil good loam, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Eng.; the nave has been restored and the chancel substantially rebuilt; there is a handsome Norm. font. A great quantity of land, formerly waste, which extends through the pa. on both sides of the roads has been enclosed at the cost of the landowners.

Whitstable, pa. and seaport and watering-place on the bay of the same name, E. Kent, 6 N. of Canterbury; ac. 3,598 and 564 water. W. and Seasalter (q.v.) include what was formerly known as the "Borough of Harwich," but its boundary is said to be now unrecognizable. W. is remarkable for its oyster fishery, the produce of which is highly esteemed; beside the natives grown here spat from other districts is laid in these beds to mature; this fishery is under the control and management of the Incorporated Company of Dredgers. A fleet of smacks is employed in carrying oysters to London and in dredging. The trade of the to. arising both from its fishery and coal trade is considerable, and it has a good harbour, the property of the South-Eastern Railway Company. The church of All Saints, situated on an elevated spot in the ha. of Church Street, at a distance from the to., is Dec. and Perp.; on the south side of the entrance to the chancel are traces of the rood door and steps; in the nave is a brass inscription dated 1449, and there is another to Joane, wife of Christopher Govlsonn and afterwards of Thomas Gold (d. 1629). There are also Congregational, Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The W. Institute, for the promotion of literature, science and art, was established in 1864; in 1885 a museum containing a carefully arranged collection of specimens, illustrative of zoology, botany, geology and archæology, was added and a marine aquarium formed; there is a circulating library in connection with the Institute. The almshouses (1873) consist of six dwellings, occupied by eight single women and four married couples. Before the depreciation in the value of land the charities of the pa. amounted to over £400 yearly. In dredging for oysters round the Pudding Pan sand much Roman pottery has been found; this ware probably formed the cargo of vessels from Italy bringing merchandise for the use of the Roman colony in Britain, but which were wrecked near the coast, as no traces of Roman occupation have been met with on this spot. Tankerton Castle is a handsome structure standing in extensive grounds beautifully wooded to the edge of the cliff; a company has been formed to develop for building the seaside portion of this property, which has a sea frontage nearly a mile in length. The pier, constructed in 1894, is approached by winding paths down the cliff.

Whitstone, pa. and vil. on the Tamar, N. Cornw., 9 N.W. of Launceston; ac. 3,787; soil and subsoil chiefly clay. The Bude canal runs through the pa. The church of St. Ann (restored 1882) is Perp.; at the west end of the nave is a memorial to John Cornishe, formerly rector of this pa. 1525, and there are others to the Hill and Symons families; the font, of Norm. date, is circular and adorned with foliated ornament; in the churchyard, which is

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whitstable	Whitstable	59	4828
Whitstone	Launceston (9)	223	394
Whittingham (1), pa.	Whittingham	318	1512
Whittingham (1), tp.	Whittingham	318	481

entered through a handsome lich-gate, is an ancient well, enclosed within a canopied Gothic arch, and at the back is a niche. Robyn's charity is of the yearly value of 10s. [Hilton Wood Castle.] W. Head, a handsome modern mansion of red brick, is a seat.

Whittaker Flat, sandbank in North Sea, off E. coast of Essex, 5 N.E. of Foulness. The sandbank is on the west side of the channel leading from the Thames.

Whittingham (1), pa., tp., and vil., N. Northumb.; ac. of pa. 7,838, of tp. 6,216; soil in the dale loamy, on the acclivities light, overlying clay and gravel. The vil. is picturesquely situated on the banks of the Aln, 8 W. of Alnwick, in a fertile vale, surrounded by hills well studded with woods and plantations. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1840) is chiefly E. Eng.; the lower part of the tower is supposed to date from the 9th cent.; the upper portion, which was of great interest and value, was destroyed, in spite of remonstrances, in 1841; the octagonal font is supported by a carved stone pillar; there are tablets to the Collingwood, Liddell, Hargreave, Law and Pawson families. The Catholic chapel is a plain building of stone with priest's house adjoining. There are small charities for the poor of all denominations distributed at Christmas. In the vil. is an ancient peel tower of the 14th cent., formerly used as a place of refuge and security for the inhabitants against the incursions of their border neighbours; it was restored in 1845 and converted into almshouses for four poor persons of the pa.

Whittingham (2), tp., pa. of Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs., about 5 N. of Preston; ac. 3,192. The dis. is entirely agricultural. Here is one of the co. asylums. The charities amount to about £8 yearly. The two ancient halls called Higher and Lower Gingle, now used as farmhouses, were once occupied by families of distinction. W. House, a good mansion beautifully situated, is a seat.

Whittinghame, extensive pa., S. Haddings., Sc., reaching from the borders of Berws. 11 miles northward; ac. 15,595; soil in some parts light and sandy, in others sterile clay, and in some rich fertile loam. The vil. is very small, and near the northern extremity of the pa., 6 E. of Haddington. There is a church of the Establishment and two public schools. Whittinghame, a fine mansion on W. Water, surrounded by pleasure grounds and plantations, is a seat. The grounds are open to the public under certain restrictions.

Whittinghame Water, stream, S. Haddings., Sc. It has its source in the pa. of Garvald, and flows eastward through a beautiful and romantic glen, between banks, of which the acclivities are embellished with stately trees, and falls into the sea at Belhaven.

Whittington (1), pa. and compact vil., S.E. Staffs., about 4 N.E. of Tamworth; ac. 2,921; soil gravelly, overlying sand, rock, and clay. The church of St. Giles (restored 1881) is a plain brick building. There is a small Congregational chapel. The charities amount to about £6 yearly. The barracks and depôt of the 38th and 64th regimental

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whittingham (2)	Grimsargh (2)	214	1749
Whittinghame	East Linton (3)	372	558
Whittington (1)	Lichfield (2½)	116	2033

districts (Lichfield), on the Heath, occupy a site of 40 ac., in a fine position; the buildings comprise armoury, officers' quarters, recreation rooms, and a chapel, a brick building in E. Eng. style. The Heath, consisting of 338 ac., on the south-east side of the vil., and formerly used as an open sheep walk, is now the property of the War Department; the Lichfield horse-races are held here. Market-gardening is extensively carried on. Broom Leasoe is a seat, as is W. Hall, a large and ancient brick mansion, with stone mullioned windows, added about the Elizabethan period; nearly all the rooms are wainscoted, and some of the walls are loop-holed for small arms; the front of the house is covered with ivy.

Whittington (2), pa. and vil., W. Salop, 2½ E. by N. of Ellesmere; ac. 8,335; soil various, overlying chiefly gravel. The Perry and the Shropshire Union Canal pass through the pa. The church of St. John the Baptist was rebuilt 1804. The Congregationalists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities amount to about £77 yearly, some of which are applied to educational purposes. W. Castle, now in ruins, is supposed to have been first built in 843 by a British chieftain, whose descendants possessed it till the Conquest, when it was given to Peverel, the founder of the family of the Peverels of the Peak, by whom it was rebuilt. The castle, before its demolition, was strongly fortified with five round towers and walls 12 ft. thick. The towers of the gatehouse are still entire, and some portions of the ancient building have been modernised and used as a parochial reading-room; the ancient fosses and entrenchments may still be traced. Fernhill Park, Henlle Hall, and Park Hall are seats. The latter is a fine Elizabethan timbered mansion with projecting gables.

Whittington (3), pa. on the Rother, N.E. Derbys. 9½ S.E. of Sheffield; ac. 1,581. The church of St. Bartholomew, erected in 1863, was destroyed by fire in 1895, but has since been rebuilt. The pa. has also a mission church and Methodist chapels. Charities producing £20 yearly are distributed in money and kind. In this vil. still stands the tiny stone cottage known as the "Revolution House," being the place where, in 1688, William, fourth Earl and first Duke of Devonshire, K.G., Sir Thomas (Osborne), first Earl of Danby, and afterwards Duke of Leeds, and John D'Arcy, Esq., met and planned the rising which resulted in the overthrow of James II. It was then a well-furnished country inn, with the swinging sign of "The Cock and Pynot."

Whittington (4), pa. and vil., E. Gloucs., 4½ S.E. of Cheltenham; ac. 1,422; soil and subsoil gravel. The church (dedication unknown), restored 1872, was originally Norm., and has E. Eng., Dec., and Perp. portions; the monuments, which have been carefully preserved, include three life-sized recumbent effigies, temp. Edward III. and Henry III. The charities amount to £39 yearly. W. Court is a seat.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whittington (2)	Whittington	185	2103
Whittington (3)	Whittington	149	8798
Whittington (4)	Cheltenham (5)	109	179
Whittington (5)	Kirkby Lonsdale (2)	272	349
Whittington (6)	Brandon (9)	86	208
Whittington (7)	Worcester (2½)	120	423
Whittington, Great	Corbridge (6)	286	221

Whittington (5), pa. and vil. on the west bank of the Lune, N. Lancs., 13 N.E. of Lancaster; ac. 4,416; soil loam, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown), restored 1865, is Perp. There are some small charities. W. Hall, with extensive grounds, is a seat.

Whittington (6), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Northwold (q.v.), S.W. Norf., 9½ N.W. of Brandon railway station. Christ Church is a modern building in Gothic style. Here is an extensive malthouse.

Whittington (7), or Wittington, tp. and ha., pa. of Worcester St. Peter (q.v.), Mid Worcs., 2½ S.E. of Worcester; ac. 989. The church of SS. Philip and James is in E. Eng. style. Here is Crookbarrow Hill, an artificial mound, elliptical in shape and crowned with trees.

Whittington (8), ha., pa. of Grendon (q.v.), N. Warws., adjoining the to. of Atherstone.

Whittington, Great, tp., pa. of Corbridge (q.v.), S. Northumb., 6 N. of Corbridge; ac. 1,494. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Whittington, Little, tp., pa. of and 3½ N. from Corbridge (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 362.

Whittington Moor, ha., pas. of Whittington and Chesterfield (q.v.), N. Derbys., about 2 N. of Newbold.

Whittington, New, vil., pa. of Whittington (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., about 2½ N.E. of Chesterfield. There is a mission church.

Whittington, Old, vil., pa. of Whittington (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., about 2 N.E. of Chesterfield. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Whittle (1), tp., pa. of Ovingham (q.v.), S. Northumb., 1½ N. of Prudhoe; ac. 288. It is situated on a tributary of the Tyne, and has a corn-mill.

Whittle (2), tp., pa. of Shilbottle (q.v.), E. Northumb., 5 S. by W. of Alnwick; ac. 549. Coal and limestone abound.

Whittle (3), ha., pa. of and 1 N.E. from New Mills (q.v.), N.W. Chesh.

Whittle (4). [Beard, Thornsett, Ollersett, and Whittle.]

Whittlebury, pa. and vil., S. Northants., 3½ S. by W. of Towcester; ac. 3,218; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1878) is E. Eng. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. The charities consist of land in lieu of forest rights, and investments, producing £23; a sum of £6 19s. is also annually distributed to the "most deserving and God fearing widows." W. Forest was a favourite hunting resort of our early monarchs, who had a residence within its area, and included also the Benedictine priory of Luffield, founded in 1124. W. Lodge, a seat, destroyed by fire in 1863, has since been rebuilt; attached is a park of over 600 ac.

Whittle-le-Woods, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Leeds and Liverpool canal, pa. of Leyland (q.v.), W. Lancs., 6 S. of Preston; ac. 1,335. The church of St. John is in E. Eng. style, and the Catholics

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Whittington, Little	Corbridge (3½)	286	14
Whittle (1)	Prudhoe (1½)	279	30
Whittle (2)	Alnwick (5)	309	9
Whittlebury	Towcester (4)	67	488
Whittle-le-W., ec. pa.	Leyland (2)	205	2662
Whittle-le-W., tp.	Leyland (2)	205	2120

and Wesleyans have places of worship. W. has several stone quarries from which are obtained millstones of excellent quality, and there is an extensive brewery. The alkaline springs, discovered in 1845, are now utilised for brewing purposes. There is a small charity. Shaw Hill is a fine mansion on an eminence.

Whittlesey, or Whittlesea, pa., ancient U. and mkt. to. (F.), N. Cambs., 6½ E. by S. of Peterborough; ac. 24,700, and about 1,500 of water and waste land. "Witesie" is the name given to it in Domesday Book; but the name of the to. is derived from the English clan of the Whittlings. Traces of a Roman road are found at Eldernell, where several antiquities have been dug up, including a massive gold ring. W. Wash, which forms an extensive portion of this pa., is about seven miles long, and varies from half a mile to one mile and a quarter in width; the land is chiefly used for pasturage, but for many months in the year is covered with water to a depth of several feet. There are ferry-boats at several parts of the Wash; wild fowl and other migratory birds abound in the vicinity. The Nen and the W. dyke run on either side of the to., on the south side of which the dyke banks are shaded by trees overhanging the pathway, which thus forms an agreeable promenade. W. formerly consisted of two pas., St. Mary and St. Andrew, now consolidated for all civil purposes. St. Mary's church (restored 1862) is an ancient building; two Norm. pillars remain in the north side; the south aisle is Dec.; a chapel, formerly a school-room, was restored in 1862 in memory of Lieut.-General Sir H. G. Smith, G.C.B. (born at W. in 1788, d. 1860); a life-size bust and a tablet have been erected as memorials; in the chancel are sedilia and a holy-water stoup. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1872) is Perp. and Dec. There are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall (1857) is a plain brick building, in Almshouse Street. The Public Hall (1880), the property of a company, will seat 400 persons; it is licensed for theatrical and other performances. The Market House, in the market-place, a large open square, is a small ancient structure. There are some excellent beds of gravel and a yard for manufacturing bricks, tiles and drain pipes. A fair for horses and cattle is held June 13. There are several charities, with an income of about £150 a year. W. Mere, so named from this place, was 6 miles distant, but in Hunts.; it has now been drained by the Middle Level Commissioners, and an area of 1,500 ac. brought under cultivation.

Whittlesford, pa. and vil. near the Cam, E. Cambs., 7 S. of Cambridge; ac. 1,915; soil gravelly, overlying chalk. The church of SS. Mary and Andrew (restored 1870–79) is a 14th-cent. building, but retains traces of an older church which stood on the same site; the font is Norm., and there are some ancient carved oak screens; on the north side of the tower is a turret, which gives access to the belfry, and formerly also to the rood loft; the chancel retains a small piscina and sedilia in three divisions, formed by the continuation downwards of the mullions of the south-east window; the south chantry or chapel, which opens into the chancel by two Perp. arches, has also a small piscina; the nave arcade is E. Eng.; on the eastern battlements of the tower are two shields of arms; during the restoration the remains of an alabaster reredos were discovered in the chancel wall. Here is a Congregational chapel. There are various charities, amounting to £132 yearly, distributed to the poor in coals and money. The Working Men's Institute (1866) contains lecture hall, reading rooms, and bagatelle room. In the vil. are engineering works.

Whittle, Welsh. [WELSH WHITTLE.]

Whitton (1), pa. and small vil. on the Humber, N. Lincs., 5 N. of Winterton; ac. 1,330, and 1,110 water; soil principally gravel, overlying clay and gravel. Here is a ferry across the Humber to Brough. In 1868 a pier was opened, at which the steamboats to and from Gainsborough, Goole and Hull call daily. The church of St. John (rebuilt) was originally Norm. In the river near here is a dangerous sandbank called "Whitton Middle."

Whitton (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Grindon (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 1 S. of Stillington; ac. 741. The Wesleyans have a chapel; and there is a workmen's club in connection with large ironworks here.

Whitton (3), tp., pa. of and ½ S. from Rothbury (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 674. W. Tower, a seat, is a modern structure attached to an ancient fortified tower of the 14th cent.

Whitton (4), tp. and vil., pa. of and 5 N. from Burford (q.v.), S. Salop; ac. 810. There is a chapel-of-ease dating from the 12th cent.

Whitton (5), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Twickenham (q.v.), S. Middx., about 10 W. of London. The church of SS. Philip and James is in E. Eng. style. Kneller Hall, erected in 1710 by Sir Godfrey Kneller, the famous painter, and called by him W. House, is in Jacobean style; the hall and staircase were painted by Louis Laguerre. In 1847 it was purchased by the Committee of Council on Education for the purposes of a training school; in 1856 it was acquired by the War Department, and re-established as a school of military music for the complete training of musicians and bandmasters for the army. W. Park, formerly the residence of Sir William Chambers, the distinguished architect, was built about 1724, and contains many valuable pictures, ancient marbles, and original drawings.

Whitton (6), pa. and vil. on the Lug, E. Radnors., 3½ W.N.W. of Presteigne; ac. 1,564; soil light. The vil. is pleasantly situated in a narrow and secluded valley. The church of St. David (restored 1874) is a small plain Perp. edifice. There is an endowed school.

Whittonditch, ha., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Ramsbury (q.v.), E. Wilts.

Whitton Middle. [WHITTON (1).]

Whittonstall, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Bywell St. Peter (q.v.), S. Northumb., 9 S.E. of Hexham; ac.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whittlesey, pa.	Whittlesey	95	6345
Whittlesey, to.	Whittlesey	95	3556
Whittlesford	Whittlesford	49	875
Whitton (1)	Frodingham (2)	169	257
Whitton (2)	Carlton (2)	239	1081
Whitton (3)	Rothbury (½)	312	64

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitton (4)	Tenbury (3½)	152	2?
Whitton (5)	Hounslow (1)	14	937
Whitton (6)	Knighton (4)	181	135
Whittonstall, ec. pa.	Stocksfield (2)	281	589
Whittonstall, tp.	Stocksfield (2)	281	153

2,176. The church of SS. Philip and James was rebuilt in 1830; the ancient church was E. Eng.; only a fragment of it is now left; in 1830, previous to the rebuilding, only the chancel, which had three lancets at the east end, was in use, the nave being ruinous.

Whitton-with-Thurlston, pa. and vil., S.E. Suff., 2½ N. of Ipswich, principally within the bor. of Ipswich; ac. 1,459; soil some light and some heavy, overlying clay, chalk, and gravel. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt in E. Eng. style, and much enlarged in 1852 and again enlarged in 1862, when the remains of Old Thurlston church, which had been long used as a barn, were rescued from desecration and used in adding to this sacred edifice. In the register under date Oct. 3, 1678, occurs an entry of a subscription having taken place towards the building of the cathedral church of St. Paul; it is also stated that one John Dawson obstinately refused. The poor's land lets at £9 per year.

Whitwell (1), pa. and large agricultural vil., N.E. Derbys., 4½ S.W. of Worksop, on the road to Chesterfield; ac. 5,231; soil limestone and loamy. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1886) is chiefly Norm. with Dec. insertions. There are two piscinæ, one in the chancel and the other in the south transept, and two stone sedilia in the chancel with lofty and richly carved tabernacle work; and a 17th-cent. monument with recumbent effigy to Sir Roger Manners. The Wesleyans and Free Methodists have chapels. There are some small charities. On a farm about 1½ N. of the vil. is a Norm. church, partially covered with ivy, restored and reconsecrated in 1880; the chancel is divided from the nave by a fine arch of three orders, on piers with curiously carved capitals. W. Hall, a large and ancient building, has for many years been used as a National school.

Whitwell (2), pa., I. of W., 4 W. of Ventnor; ac. 1,907; soil strong loam, overlying chalk and some good freestone for building. The church is formed from two ancient chapels, dedicated respectively to the Blessed Virgin Mary and St. Rhadagund, and is Norm. There are churchwardens' accounts from the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The Bible Christians have a chapel. Charities of £4 yearly are for bread. There is a coastguard station in this pa. A portion of the pa. is within the Undercliff (q.v.). Old Park is a seat.

Whitwell (3), pa. and vil., Mid Rutld., 5 E. of Oakham; ac. 629; soil clayey, with rocky and clayey subsoil. The church of St. Michael (restored 1881), on a knoll near the road, is E. Eng.; in the church is an ancient monument to a member of the Noel family.

Whitwell (4), pa., N. Norf., 2 S. of Reepham; ac. 1,511; soil sand and loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Michael is chiefly Perp. The charities amount to about £12 12s. yearly. There is a tannery here.

Whitwell (5), tp. and vil., pa. of Catterick (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 6 N.W. of Northallerton; ac. 1,084.

Whitwell (6), ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from St. Paul's Walden (q.v.), N. Herts. There is a Baptist chapel.

Whitwell (7). [SELSIDE AND WHITWELL.]

Whitwell House, pa., Mid Dur., 3 S.E. of Durham; ac. 642. It consists of four farms and a colliery.

Whitwell-on-the-Hill, pa. and pleasant vil., N.R. Yorks., 5½ S.W. of Malton; ac. 1,507. The church of St. John the Evangelist (1860) is in Gothic style. W. Hall is a seat in Gothic style, standing on an eminence and commanding fine views of the surrounding country.

Whitwick, pa., tp., and ancient to., Mid Leics., 13 N.W. of Leicester; ac. of pa. 6,220, of tp. 3,528; soil and subsoil mixed. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1848–49) is Gothic. Under the chancel is a crypt, and in the north aisle is an ancient tomb with recumbent effigy to a member of the Talbot family. The Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. Charnwood Forest commences in this pa., and amid the forest hills is the modern Cistercian abbey of St. Bernard, founded in 1835, the first Catholic abbey built and continuously used as such in England since the Reformation; the buildings, in E. Eng. style, were designed by the elder Pugin, and comprise a church, cloisters, chapter-house, refectory, and other domestic buildings and a museum; there are also farm buildings and a cemetery, and in one part of the grounds a "Calvary," formed on a huge and lofty mass of rock; the abbey is open to the inspection of visitors, who are attended by a guest-master. W. Castle, some traces of which remain on the Castle Hill, belonged to the Earls of Leicester, and was once an important fortress.

Whitwood, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Calder, pa. of Featherstone (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4½ N.W. of Pontefract; ac. 1,082. The church of St. Philip (1865) is in E. Dec. style, and the Wesleyans have a chapel. There are several collieries.

Whitwood Mere, eccl. pa., pas. of Featherstone and Methley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., adjoining Castleford on the west. The church of All Saints (1864) is a plain stone building. There is a mission church and also a Free Methodist chapel at the Potteries. Various manufactures are carried on.

Whitworth (1), pa., tp., and vil. near the Wear, S. Dur., 6 S.W. of Durham; ac. of pa. 2,094, of tp. 1,568; soil clayey, overlying rock. The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient Gothic edifice; in the churchyard are two ancient monuments with figures, one of a knight in full armour with vizor closed, and the other of a female, supposed to represent members of the Neville family. W. Park is a seat.

Whitworth (2), eccl. pa. and large vil., pa. of and

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitton-w.-Thurlst.	Bramford (1)	71	680
Whitwell (1)	Whitwell	151	1908
Whitwell (2)	Wroxall (2¼)	90	653
Whitwell (3)	Oakham (5)	94	108
Whitwell (4)	Whitwell & R.	137	402
Whitwell (5)	Scorton (4)	231	43
Whitwell House	Shincliffe (1½)	249	210
Whitwell-on-the-H.	Kirkham Abbey (1)	203	213

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whitwick, pa.	Whitwick	116	7186
Whitwick, tp.	Whitwick	116	4564
Whitwood	Altofts	186	4806
Whitwood Mere	Castleford	175	3675
Whitworth (1), pa.	Spennymoor (¾)	249	7203
Whitworth (1), tp.	Spennymoor (¼)	249	6295
Whitworth (2)	Whitworth	199	4508

3 N. from Rochdale (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. The church of St. Bartholomew (1850) is in E. Eng. style. The Roman Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship.

Whixall, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Prees (q.v.), N. Salop. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1867) is in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Independent chapels.

Whixley, pa., tp., and vil., W.R. Yorks., 7 E. of Knaresborough; ac. of pa. 4,083, of tp. 2,265; soil loamy, overlying red sand. The church of the Ascension is E. Dec.; there is an ancient font. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Near the church is a large building called the Hospital, the ancient residence of the Tancred family; it was converted in 1754 into a hospital for twelve decayed gentlemen by C. Tancred, Esq. The other charities amount to about £40 annually.

Whixoe. [WIXOE.]

Whorlton (1), pa., tp., and vil., N.R. Yorks., 6 S. by W. of Stokesley, and contains only a few scattered farmhouses and cottages; ac. of pa. 9,726, of tp. 6,812. The old church of The Holy Cross, now ruinous, is Norm. and Dec.; in the chancel is a piscina, and the east window retains a small portion of the original stained glass; on the north side of the chancel is an E. Eng. chantry, and between this and the chancel stands a fine altar-tomb, with canopy, of the Dec. period, and bearing the effigy of a knight, cross-legged, carved in oak; the tomb is supposed to be that of Sir Nicholas Meinill, Baron Meinill (d. 1343); the effigy, of much earlier date, is conjectured to represent Sir Nicholas de Meinill, Baron Meinill (d. 1299); the north aisle with its arcade fell about 1810, but the piers were rebuilt; in the tower walls are many tomb slabs with crosses. The new church of The Holy Cross is in E. Eng. style. Here was formerly a castle erected in the 12th cent., but little of it remains except the gatehouse, a fine example of its kind, dating from the 14th cent., and still in a tolerably good state of preservation; over the entrance are three shields of arms; a staircase leads to the top; some vaults, formerly part of the castle, also remain. In an adjoining field a large amount of gold and silver coin was discovered about 1838.

Whorlton (2), chap. and tp., pa. of Gainford (q.v.), N. Dur., on the north bank of the Tees, which here separates the co. from Yorks., 3½ E.S.E. of Barnard Castle; ac. 1,760. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1853) is in Dec. style. Here is a Congregational chapel. W. Grange is a seat.

Whorlton, East and West, tp., pa. of Newburn (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., 4 N.W. of Newcastle; ac. 591. The chapel of St. John is a stone building.

Whyteleafe, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Warlingham (q.v.), N.E. Surrey.

Wi-, for names not found under this spelling, see also WY- and WHI-.

Wiay (1), or Wia, island, pa. of South Uist (q.v.), on south-east side of Benbecula, Outer Hebrides, N.W. Invs., Sc., 39 W. of Portree. The island is upwards of 2 miles long from north to south, and about 1¼ miles wide. It is composed of gneiss, and has a deeply indented shore.

Wiay (2), Wia, or Vuiay, island, in Loch Bracadale, pa. of Bracadale (q.v.), W. coast of Isle of Skye, N.W. Invs., Sc., 12½ W.S.W. of Portree. The island is about 10 furlongs long from north-east to south-west, and 7 furlongs wide; it rises 190 ft. above the sea.

Wibsey, eccl. pa., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Bradford (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Mark (1857) is a plain stone building. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Horse fairs are held in Oct. and Nov.

Wibtoft, tp., pa. of Claybrook (q.v.), S.E. Warws., 2 E. of Ullesthorpe; ac. 826. W. lies very near the crossing of the two famous old Roman roads, the Foss Way and Watling Street, on the site of the Roman city of Cleychester. The chapel of St. Mary is in a debased style.

Wicca Cove, inlet of the sea, S.W. coast of Cornw., in north-east vicinity of Zennor, 3½ W. of St. Ives. The cove is nearly 3 furlongs wide at its mouth, and extends nearly ¼ mile inland.

Wich-, for names not found under this spelling, see also WITCH-.

Wichaugh, or Wychough, tp., pa. of and 1 S. from Malpas (q.v.), S.W. Chesh.; ac. 323.

Wichenford, pa., Mid Worcs., 6 N.W. of Worcester; ac. 2,669; soil clay. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1863) is E. Eng. and Dec.; at the west end of the nave is an altar-tomb of alabaster, with recumbent effigies, to John Washbourne, Esq. (1454), and Margery (Power) his wife, and on the north side of the chancel an alabaster monument of the 17th cent. with effigies. W. Court, now a farmhouse, was once a seat, and has some interesting features in the interior.

Wichnor, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Tatenhill (q.v.), S.E. Staffs., 6½ N.E. of Lichfield; ac. 1,691. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1871) is in E. Eng. style. There formerly existed a custom similar to that of Dunmow (q.v.), but it has long been obsolete. W. Park is a seat.

Wick, for names not found under this spelling, see also WEEK and WYKE.

Wick (1), or Wick, near Pershore, pa. and vil., S.E. Worcs., ½ E. of Pershore; ac. 1,558; soil three-fourths sandy and loam and one-fourth strong land, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Lawrence (repaired 1861) is an ancient edifice of stone, of various periods. Arrowhead, Bryn Issa, The Grange, Upper W. House, Vandyke Court, and W. House are seats.

Wick (2), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Wick and Abson (q.v.), S. Glouc., 7 E. of Bristol. The church of St. Bartholomew is in E. Eng. style. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Whixall	Prees (2½)	176	1070
Whixley, pa.	Cattal (1)	198	769
Whixley, tp.	Cattal (1)	198	473
Whorlton (1), pa.	Potto (2)	232	733
Whorlton (1), tp.	Potto (2)	232	434
Whorlton (2)	Barnard Castle (4)	249	249
Whorlton, E. & W.	Newcastle-on-T. (4)	271	122
Wibsey	Bradford (2)	192	4[illegible]80
Wibtoft	Ullesthorpe (2)	105	[illegible]7
Wichaugh	Malpas (1)	177	[illegible]9
Wichenford	Worcester (6)	129	[illegible]20
Wichnor	Wichnor	122	[illegible]16
Wick (1)	Pershore (½)	112	[illegible]98
Wick (2)	Bristol (7)	118	[illegible]72

Wick (3), ha., pa. of and 1 s. from Lyminster (q.v.), S.W. Sussex.

Wick (4), ha., pa. of Brent Knoll (q.v.), N. Somerset, 6 s. of Weston-super-Mare.

Wick (5), vil., pa. of and 2 N. from Berkeley (q.v.), W. Gloucs.

Wick (6), pa. and vil. on the sea coast, S.E. Glamorgs., 5 s. by E. of Bridgend; ac. 1,439; soil partly stiff clay, elsewhere rich loam. The church of St. James (restored) is E. Eng. There are Calvinistic, Methodist and Unitarian chapels.

Wick (7), pa., seaport, parl. and royal bur., and chief to. of the co., E. Caiths., Sc., 20 S.E. of Thurso; ac. 47,264. W. is divided into three parts —Louisburgh and W. on the north side of the river and bay, and Pulteneytown (q.v.) on the south. The old to., or W. proper, is composed of the High Street and Bridge Street; the former runs from the bay along the curvature of the river, and is flanked on either side by several lanes. The port of W. consists of two harbours of fair dimensions, which are being greatly improved by deepening, so that the fishing fleet can enter at all states of the tide. There are places of worship of the Establishment and the Free Church of Scotland, and others for Episcopalians, United Presbyterians, Independents, Evangelical Union, Baptists, and Roman Catholics. Bridge Street is ornamented by several fine buildings, among which are the Town and County Buildings, a handsome pile surmounted by a cupola with a public clock. The Town Hall has a spacious apartment, containing portraits of local celebrities, and used as a council-room. The Temperance Hall is one of the chief places in which public meetings and entertainments are held. Within the last few years the aspect of this street has entirely changed, many new buildings having taken the place of the old houses. The herring trade must be taken as the staple, and in the season, commencing in July and ending in September, the home fishery is prosecuted to a very large extent. From May to July the fishermen are busily engaged with the summer fishing in the Western Hebrides. During the home fishing the population is increased by a large influx of Highlanders, men and women, who come as hired hands. The gutting and curing of the herrings gives employment to hundreds of men and women, and on a busy day the quay presents a scene both animated and picturesque. The winter herring-, cod-, and ling-fishing is carried on extensively; it brings to the to. fish-buyers from the principal tos. in England. The railway transports the whole winter catch to the southern markets; while the vessels belonging to the port and a large contingent from other Scotch ports, and also foreign vessels, are busily engaged taking the summer fish to places on the Continent and various ports in Ireland. Shipbuilding has now entirely ceased; but the business of boatbuilding is carried on and, with the manufacture of herring barrels and nets, is the principal source of employment for the non-fishing class. Cattle markets are held at W. on the second and fourth Thursday of each month, but the ancient markets and fairs have been discontinued. The Caithness Agricultural Society holds an important annual cattle and sheep market at Georgemas on the second Tuesday of August, and an annual show in August at W. and Thurso alternately. An interesting ruin in the vicinity is W. Castle, known as "the Old Man of Wick," which, along with the lighthouse on Noss Head (one of the best lights around the British Isles), form excellent landmarks to seamen. There are numerous remains of Pictish dwellings in the district; five stone coffins and a number of weapons and a collection of pottery have been found in different parts of the pa. Ackergill Tower and Stirkoke House are seats.

BRIDGE STREET, WICK.
(Photo. J. G. Humphreys, Wick.)

Wick and Abson, pa., S. Gloucs., about 7 E. of Bristol; ac. 2,433; soil loamy, overlying chiefly rock. Coal is found here. [WICK (2).] The most remarkable objects in this pa. are the rocks, lining each side of a deep glen, about three-quarters of a mile in length, and rising in some places to above 200 ft. in height; a beautiful sparry substance, found in many places on these rocks, is known as "rock (or Bristol) diamonds"; on the summit of the northern cliff is a Roman camp of oblong form, defended on three sides by a broad ditch and double vallum. In a field are two large stones, about 5 ft. high, said to be the remains of monuments erected to British chiefs.

Wick Burghs, a collective name for Cromarty, Dingwall, Dornoch, Kirkwall, Tain, and Wick, which together return one member to Parliament.

Wick, East, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from South Tawton (q.v.), Mid Dev.

Wicken (1), pa. and vil., E. Cambs., 8 N.W. of Newmarket; ac. 3,812; soil various, overlying chiefly clay. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1880) is an ancient Gothic edifice; there is a vault within the church in which the remains of several members of Oliver Cromwell's family were buried, but these remains have been removed from the vault to make room for those of another family; on the chancel floor is a marble inscribed slab to Henry Cromwell, fourth son of the Protector (d. 1673). There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, three almshouses endowed with £30 yearly, and a few other charities for the poor. Ancient

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wick (6)	Bridgend (5)	183	327
Wick (7), pa.	Wick	751	8464
Wick (7), parl. bur.	Wick	751	2962
Wick (7), royal bur.	Wick	751	13105
Wick (7), to.	Wick	751	8512
Wick and Abson	Bristol (7)	118	986
Wicken (1)	Soham (2)	72	716

coins and other antiquities have been found in the neighbourhood. The monastery of Spinney, or de Spineto, a cell of Ely in 1449, was founded here in the time of Henry III. for Augustinian canons; the remains now serve as a farmhouse.

Wicken (2), pa. and vil., S. Northants, on the Bucks. border, 3½ W.S.W. of Stony Stratford; ac. about 2,280; soil clay, overlying principally limestone. The church of St. John the Evangelist is an edifice of stone, designed and built by Thomas Prowse, Esq., in 1758, and finished after his death; in the south aisle is a brass to Thomas Howse (d. 1633), and Mary (Clarke), his wife. The charities produce £14 yearly, of which £4 is for educational purposes, and the remainder is distributed in bread and fuel. W. Park, about 1 S. of the vil., is a seat.

Wicken Bonhunt, pa. and small vil., N. Essex, 5 S.W. of Saffron Walden; ac. 822; soil heavy on the hills and mixed, overlying chalk, with some gravel in the lowlands. The church of St. Margaret has been rebuilt, but retains the original E. Eng. chancel, which is fitted with stalls. About ¼ E. of the church is the desecrated chapel of St. Helen of E. Norm. work, which is used as a barn. The Hall, now a farmhouse, was formerly surrounded by a moat.

Wickenby, pa., W. Lincs., 6½ S. of Market Rasen; ac. 2,003; soil stiff loam, overlying white chalky clay. The church of SS. Peter and Lawrence (restored 1878) is Perp. Here is a Free Methodist chapel.

Wicker, eccl. pa. in the bor. of Sheffield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church is dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

Wickeralack, ha., pa. of Crosby Ravensworth (q.v.), N. Westmd., 1 N.W. of Maulds Meaburn. Near here was once a British camp.

Wickersley, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., about 3 E. by S. of Rotherham; ac. 1,230; soil sandy and gravelly. The church of St. Alban is in Gothic style. There is a complete list of the rectors from the Reformation. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There is a lecture hall, with a library and museum attached. The charities amount to about £8 yearly. W. is celebrated for its quarries of fine soft grit stone, of which grindstones are made.

Wickford, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 5½ E. of Billericay; ac. 1,751; soil mixed, overlying heavy loam. W. is named from its situation at the ford of the Crouch, in a hollow between Billericay and Rayleigh, where a village of this name existed in the time of Edward the Confessor. The Crouch is here crossed by three bridges. The church, supposed by an inscription on one of the bells to be dedicated to St. Catherine, was rebuilt in 1876 in E. Eng. style. Here is a Congregational chapel.

Wickham (1), or Wykeham, pa. and pleasant vil., S. Hants, 12 N.W. of Portsmouth; ac. 2,427; soil loam, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1862) is Gothic. Among the monuments is a very handsome one to Sir William Uvedale; the whole is surmounted by a shield, bearing the quarterings of the Uvedale family; below is a figure of the knight recumbent, and at his head and feet are shields with the quarterings of the Nortons; below him the figure of his lady, recumbent; and at the base are the figures of his four sons and five daughters kneeling. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £25 yearly. William Long, afterwards known as William of Wykeham, the great Bishop of Winchester, and munificent founder of St. Mary's College, Winchester, and New College, Oxford, was born in this pa. in 1324. Here is a large flour mill, a brewery, and two malting establishments. A fair is held annually on May 20, for the sale of farming stock.

Wickham (2), or Whicham, pa., W. Cumb., 4 S.W. of Bootle; ac. 4,882; soil sand, clay, and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary contains an ancient font. There is a large tumulus in a piece of ground called Arrow Field. A Roman road ran through this pa. Kellet House is a seat.

Wickham (3). [WICKHAM BISHOPS, WICKHAMBREUX.]

Wickham (4), chap., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Welford (q.v.), S. Berks., on the line of the great Roman highway connecting Gloucester and Silchester with London. The church of St. Swithun is a building of squared flint, rebuilt in 1846–49. The tower is the only portion of the ancient church now remaining, and may possibly belong to the close of the 11th cent.; it has a balustered belfry window and quoins which appear like Saxon long and short work.

Wickham (5), ti., pa. of and 2 S. from Banbury (q.v.), N. Oxon.

Wickham Bishops, pa. and vil. on the Blackwater, E. Essex, about 3 N. of Maldon; ac. 1,540; soil chiefly light, overlying gravel and sand. W. B was from time immemorial in the possession of the Bishops of London, who occasionally resided here, and stands on one of the highest points in the co., commanding a beautiful and extensive view from all points. The church of St. Bartholomew is in E. Eng. style. The old church, a small and ancient edifice at some distance from the vil., is now disused. On an eminence adjoining the pa., at the head of Tiptree Heath, is a beacon, erected during the time of the threatened invasion of Napoleon I.

Wickhambreux, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 5½ E. of Canterbury; ac. 2,370; soil loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1878) is E. Eng.; there are several memorials to the families of Beake and Larkins. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The poor have a charity of about £7.

Wickhambrook, pa. and vil., S. Suff., 10 N.E. of Haverhill; ac. 4,239; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1886) is E. Eng.; in the chancel is an altar-tomb, with recumbent effigy in marble of Sir Thomas Heigham (1630), a military knight, distinguished in the Irish rebellion; there are also several monumental tablets.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wicken (2)	Castlethorpe (4)	55	442
Wicken Bonhunt	Newport (2)	40	166
Wickenby	Wickenby	141	232
Wicker	Sheffield	158	13146
Wickersley	Rawmarsh (2)	164	732
Wickford	Wickford Junction	29	501

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wickham (1)	Fareham (4)	76	1161
Wickham (2)	Silecroft (1)	277	456
Wickham Bishops	Wickham Bishops	41	471
Wickhambreux	Bekesbourne (2)	65	428
Wickhambrook	Clare (6)	62	1228 and in the chancel a curious brass in memory of Thomas Burroughs (d. 1597). Here are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. There are several charities, and an almshouse built by Anthony Sparrow, afterwards Bishop of Exeter, in 1615. Badmondisfield Hall, surrounded by a deep moat, is a seat.

Wickham Childs. [CHILDS WICKHAM.]

Wickham, East, pa. and vil., N.W. Kent, 5 N.W. of Dartford, on the road to London; ac. 895; soil various, overlying gravel. The church of St. Michael is a small plain building with some E. Eng. work. The endowed school was founded in 1727, and has an annual income of £427.

Wickhamford, pa. and vil., S.E. Worcs., 3 S.E. of Evesham; ac. 1,234; soil rich mould, very fertile, overlying some sand and clay. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1841) is E. Eng.; in the church are two elaborate altar-tombs of the Sandys family; on each tomb are the recumbent figures of a knight in half-armour and his lady, and at the back are shields of arms; these commemorate Sir Samuel Sandys, Knight, eldest son of Edwyn Sandys, D.D., Archbishop of York (1577–88), d. 1626, and Mercy (Culpeper) his wife (1629); and Sir Edwyn Sandys, Knight (son of Sir Samuel), (also 1626), and Penelope (Bulkeley or Buckley) his wife (1680).

Wickham Heath, pl., pa. of Boxford (q.v.), S. Berks., 4 N.W. of Newbury.

Wickham Market, pa. and to., S.E. Suff., 5 N. of Woodbridge; ac. 1,186. The to. is pleasantly situated on an eminence near the river Deben. The church of All Saints is Dec. and Perp., with a steeple rising to about 140 ft. above the ground and forming a conspicuous seamark. The south aisle was erected at the cost of Walter Fulburn, who was buried here in 1489; in the chancel are sedilia and a piscina. The register contains the following entry:—"John the Sonne of John Barker gent and Alice his wife was borne the 22 April, being Easter day, and was baptised the 8th day of May, being the day whereon our Souveraigne Lord Charles the 2nd was solemnly proclaimed of England, Scotland, ffrance, and Ireland King, Defender of the fayth." There is a Congregational chapel. The charities, which are considerable, are chiefly distributed in money and kind. This was formerly a to. of some consequence, with a town hall, in which quarter sessions were held, but the hall has been taken down and the sessions removed to Woodbridge; it had a weekly market and two fairs (now disused), granted in 1440 by Henry VI. Here are ironworks and an engineering establishment for the production of machinery. John Kirby, who published the "Suffolk Traveller," resided here from 1732 until his death in 1753. Thomas Harsant, well known for his mechanical attainments, died here in 1852, aged eighty-eight.

Wickham St. Paul, pa. and vil., N. Essex, 5 N. of Halstead; ac. 1,224; soil strong loam, subsoil mixed. The church of All Saints (restored 1866) is E. Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities amount to about £12 yearly.

Wickham Skeith, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 5 S.W. of Eye; ac. 1,770; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1857) is Perp. The Wesleyans have a small chapel. Under an ancient oak on Wizard Farm many Saxon coins of Harold and Edward the Confessor have been found; they are now deposited in the British Museum.

Wickhampton, pa., E. Norf., 8 S.W. of Yarmouth; ac. 1,636; soil and subsoil mixed. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp., and contains an altar-tomb, with effigies of Sir William Gerbrygge and lady, who are supposed to have founded the church (A.D. 1272). There are remains on the north wall of the nave of some mural paintings of the early 15th cent., representing an allegorical hunting scene with figures of nobles and skeletons, known as "Les Trois Vifs et Les Trois Morts." Over the north door is a figure of St. Christopher carrying the infant Christ over a river, and the seven acts of mercy; there is also a carved Elizabethan pulpit. On the apex of the gable of the porch is a small rood in stone, supported by the figures of St. Mary and St. John. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel here.

Wickham, West (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Kent, 4 S.E. of Croydon; ac. 2,658; soil gravelly loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1889) is Perp. The nave is separated from the aisle by two E. Eng. arches, and between the nave and chancel is a Perp. wooden screen. The chancel aisle has some fine remains of ancient glass, and is hung with ancient banners and helmets. There are also several monuments to the Lennard, Hobbs, Farnaby, and Cator families, as well as brasses of two former rectors and a piscina with trefoiled niche. The Congregationalists have a chapel. There are some small charities. W. W. Court is a turreted manor-house, built in the reign of Henry VII., to which additions were made in 1867. It contains some valuable portraits, including one of Sir Walter Raleigh by Zucchero. W. Hall is another seat.

WEST WICKHAM COURT.

Wickham, West (2), pa. and vil., E. Cambs., on the borders of Suff., 10 S. of Newmarket; ac. 2,937; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary is Dec. and Perp. There is a mission-hall and reading-room in the vil.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wickham, East	Woolwich (2½)	7	1303
Wickhamford	Evesham (2)	106	137
Wickham Market	Wickham Market	85	1537
Wickham St. Paul	Castle Hedingh'm (3)	59	324
Wickham Skeith	Finningham (3)	87	439
Wickhampton	Reedham (2)	119	116
Wickham, West (1)	West Wickham	12	417
Wickham, West (2)	Linton (3)	51	1262

Wicklewood, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 3 w. of Wymondham; ac. 1,601; soil clayey, overlying brick-earth. The church of All Saints is Perp. The lower stage of the tower forms a porch. There is an ancient but undated brass in the floor of the nave to John Dufeld, and there are some 18th-cent. monuments. The steps leading to the rood-loft remain, and the heads of the benches exhibit some excellent carving. Here are two chapels for the Primitive Methodists. The fuel allotment of 12 ac. produces £6 yearly, which is given to the poor in coals.

Wicklow (1), maritime co. of the province of Leinster, Ir., bounded on the east by St. George's Channel, on the west by the cos. of Kildare and Carlow, on the south by a small intersection of the latter co. and by a limited extent of Wex., on the north by the co. of Dub., and on the north-west by that of Kildare. Its greatest length from north to south is 40 miles, and its breadth east and west somewhat exceeds 30. Its area comprises 498,668 ac. of land and 1,413 water. The coast-line from Bray, in the north, is tolerably regular and almost devoid of openings; it runs S. by E. until it reaches Brides Head, below W. harbour, when it trends westward, ending a little below Arklow. The harbours of W. and Arklow are of small depth and capacity. The coast, which is mostly precipitous, is dangerous from sandbanks, the north and south extremities being marked by floating lights; there are also two fixed lights on W. Head. The co. is decidedly mountainous, intersected by deep and romantic valleys and glens, and embellished by several beautiful lakes, an irregular range of hills (1,000 to 1,100 ft. high) following the line of the northern border, another series of hills running along the coast to W. town, a range of lofty hills on the west side of the co. from Blessington to Donard, another range (including Lugnaquilla, 3,039 ft.) down the west centre, and a curious five-armed range north of Rathdrum, with a solitary hill (known as Troopers' Town) standing between two of its spurs; whilst further south the country assumes a tamer and more wooded aspect, as that portion round Ovoca. In the hills north of W. are the Dublin water reservoirs. W. is not less remarkable for the variety and importance of its minerals than for the wild and picturesque beauties of its scenery; it comprises the greater portion of the south-eastern mountain chain of Ireland, composed of formations of granite, mica-slate, clay-slate, quartz rock, trap, and porphyry. The soil is very fertile in the lower tracts, and along the river courses marl prevails; the subsoil is granite in the mountain district and clay-slate on the declivities. The co. is rich in a variety of minerals; lead and copper are found in large quantities, and even gold has been obtained. The exportation of pyrites containing sulphur, from the Ovoca district, has at times amounted to 100,000 tons a year, affording employment to a large number of persons. The climate of the mountains, though remarkably mild for their elevation, is moist, and rain falls frequently. The low lands near the sea, although exposed to easterly winds, yet, being completely sheltered on every other side, render the climate in this part more genial than that of any other quarter of the co., and it is here that the arbutus, laurustinus, and other delicate shrubs flourish. Fisheries, once so productive, have failed of late years; oysters, however, are still obtained at Arklow. The rivers are numerous, but their courses are rapid and short, except some of those flowing westward, of which the principal are the Slaney, the Ovoca, and the Vartrey; the Liffey has its origin in W., and leaves the co. for that of Dub. The principal lakes are Glendalough and Dan. Railway communication is afforded by the Dublin, Wicklow, and Wexford and the Great Southern and Western Companies. Prior to the Union, W. sent ten representatives to the Irish Parliament; now it has two divisions (East and West W.), each returning one member. The co. confers the title of viscount and earl upon the family of Howard. The Dublin, Wicklow, and Wexford Railway enters the co. at Bray.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wicklewood	Kimberley (2)	114	686
Wicklow (1)	....	.....	62136

Wicklow (2), capital of the co. of its name, assize and mkt. to. (w.), and seaport, partly in the pa. of Rathnew (q.v.), Newcastle bar., and partly in those of Drumkay and Kilpoole (q.v.), Arklow bar., E. co. Wick., Ir., 31 S. by E. of Dublin, is situated on the estuary of the Vartrey, which forms the harbour on the eastern side of the co. Some fragments of a castle remain on a rock rising perpendicularly from the sea. W. was constituted a bor. by James II., and returned members to the Irish Parliament down to the Union. The Protestant and Catholic churches crown the summit of opposite hills; and the Wesleyans, Presbyterians, and Friends have places of worship. Other public buildings are the market-house, court-house, infirmary, and gaol. The chief trade of the to. consists of imports of coal, culm, limestone, timber, salt, slates, and iron, which are increasing; but the exports of grain and metallic ore have fallen off considerably of late years, the latter owing to W. sulphur ore having been superseded by Spanish ore. Salt cake and bleaching powder and artificial manure are largely manufactured. Monthly fairs are held for cattle, sheep, and pigs; and there is a horse fair four times a year. The harbour is at the mouth of the Vartrey river, the estuary of which is separated from the sea by the narrow neck of land called the Morrough. The harbour has two piers (east and west); the east pier has a lighthouse at its extremity; there is a draught of water at both to float ships of upwards of 3,000 tons, and they have proved a great acquisition to the port. The bay, bounded on the south by W. Head, is sheltered from southerly, westerly, and north-westerly winds. When King James II. held his Court at W., after the battle of the Boyne, it is recorded that he occupied a room in front of the barracks, which were then in Main Street, but owing to improvements all traces of the building are now removed. The environs of W. are singularly beautiful and studded with demesnes.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wicklow (2)	Wicklow	29	5[illegible]
Wicklow, East	....	.....	2[illegible]

Wicklow, East. [Wicklow (1).]

Wicklow Gap, mountain pass on the border of North Ballinacor and Lower Talbotstown bars., Mid co. Wick., Ir., 9½ S.S.E. of Blessington. The Gap lies between the valley of the King's River on the north-west and the Vale of Glendasan on the south-east. From its highest point, 1,[illegible] ft. above the sea, there are beautiful views of the mountainous country in the neighbourhood. The Gap is traversed by the high road from Rathdrum to Holywood. There are traces here of an ancient paved causeway.

Wicklow Head, headland (218 ft.) in Kilpool pa., east coast of co. Wick., Ir., 2 S.E. of Wicklow. Here is a lighthouse, erected in 1818, with an intermittent white light visible at a distance of 16 miles. There are two other towers on the headland. The cliff scenery towards the north-west from W. Head is very fine.

Wicklow, West. [WICKLOW (1).]

Wickmere, pa. and vil., N. North., 9 W. of North Walsham; ac. 973; soil good loam, overlying brick earth. The church of St. Andrew is chiefly E. Eng. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Wick near Pershore. [WICK (2).]

Wick Rissington, pa. and vil., E. Gloucs., 3 S. of Stow-on-the-Wold, ac. 1,140; soil stonebrash, loam, and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1879) is Norm. and E. Eng.; the chancel retains a piscina and six aumbries, and in the north porch is a Norm. doorway. Land left for the repair of the church produces £5 a year. Wyck Hill House, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Wick St. Lawrence, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, on the east bank of the Severn, on a low alluvial and fertile plain, 6 N. of Weston-super-Mare; ac. 1,440; soil loam, overlying brick clay. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1865) is Perp.; the ancient pulpit, of carved freestone, of about the same date as the church and a work of great beauty, was formerly in Woodspring Priory. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. There is an ancient cross in the centre of the vil.

Wickwar, pa. and small to., formerly a bor. by prescription, S. Gloucs., 4 N. of Chipping Sodbury; ac. 2,307; soil clayey, overlying marl, clay, and limestone. The corporation, constituted under a charter of Charles II., was abolished under the Municipal Corporation Act. Holy Trinity Church (restored 1881) is E. Eng. There are Congregational and Baptist chapels. The Grammar School (founded 1684) was reorganised in 1869. The Literary Institute has a library and a reading-room. There are four malt houses and two extensive breweries. The charities produce about £60 yearly, and are distributed principally in bread and clothing. Fairs were formerly held on April 6, for cattle, pigs, and sheep, and on the first Monday in Nov.; but these, as well as the weekly market, have fallen into disuse.

Wick Water, stream, N.E. Caiths., Sc.; issues from the foot of Loch Watten and runs 2 E. through Watten pa., and then about 6 E.S.E. through Wick pa., entering the North Sea at the to. of Wick, at the head of Wick Bay. Its course is slow, and it frequently overflows the neighbouring tracts.

Wid, river, S. Essex; rises in the east vicinity of Blackmore, and after making a curve to the S., runs N.N.E. past Ingatestone and Margaretting, and then N. and N. by W. past Widford and Writtle to the Can, which it joins 2 W. by N. of Chelmsford. Its length is about 11 miles.

Widcombe. [LYNCOMBE AND WIDCOMBE.]

Widcombe, North, tp., pa. of Chewton Mendip (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, about 2 W. of Clutton; ac. 705.

Widcombe, South, ha., pa. of Hinton Blewett (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, about 5 S.W. of Clutton.

Widdale, ha., pa. of Aysgarth (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 4 S.W. of Hawes.

Widdecombe in the Moor. [WIDECOMBE IN THE MOOR.]

Widdendown, ha., pa. of S. Tawton (q.v.), N.E. Dev., 4 S.E. of Okehampton.

Widdington (1), pa. and vil. on the Cam, N. Essex, 8 N.N.E. of Bishop Stortford; ac. 1,997; soil mixed and heavy, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1872–73) is chiefly E. Eng.; the tower was been rebuilt on the foundations of the old one, which fell down in 1871. The Congregationalists have a chapel. W. Hall, now a farmhouse, had formerly a private chapel, which has been converted into a parlour.

Widdington (2), tp. on the Ouse, pa. of and 3½ S.E from Little Ouseburn (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 667.

Widdrington, eccl. pa., tp. and vil., pa. of Woodhorn (q.v.), E. Northumb., 9 N.N.E. of Morpeth; ac. 4,697. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected in the 14th cent., has a chancel retaining a trefoil piscina, with a bracket over, and a recess below the adjoining window serves as a sedile; on the north side are two other niched recesses for tombs, and in the westernmost is a slab with a rude cross crosslet; the other has the arms of W. above the crown of the arch. In this pa. are the remains of a preceptory of the Hospitallers. The principal dwelling-house, which is still standing on the west side, is a long low structure of two storeys, with projecting upper windows carried on corbels; on the south side is the ruined chapel of St. John. The place is now converted into dwellings for labourers.

Widecombe, or Widdecombe, in the Moor, pa. and vil. on the Dart, Dev., 12 N.W. of Newton Abbot; ac. 10,614; soil light and sandy, overlying granite. The church of St. Pancras is Perp.; in the chancel are remains of a sedile and a mural tablet to Mary Elford (1642), and in the south transept a piscina; the church was struck by lightning in 1638. There are Calvinistic and Wesleyan chapels, and a charity of about £15 yearly. A fair is held on the second Tuesday in September. There are the remains of a British village and two logan stones.

Wideford Hill, eminence (740 ft.), pa. of Kirkwall and St. Ola, S. Ork., Sc., 1 W. by N. of Kirkwall. The hill is completely covered with heather. It commands a fine view. There are considerable remains of a Picts' house.

Widemouth Bay, inlet of the sea, on N.W. coast of Cornw., 2 S.W. of Stratton. The bay is upwards

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wicklow, West	.....	.....	30754
Wickmere	Aylsham (5)	132	236
Wick Rissington	Bourton-on-W'ter(1	91	226
Wick St. Lawrence	Worle (2)	135	218
Wickwar	Wickwar	133	933
Widcombe, North	Clutton (2½)	121	61

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Widdington (1)	Newport (2)	40	412
Widdington (2)	Hammerton (3)	197	19
Widdrington, ec. pa.	Widdrington	294	1006
Widdrington, tp.	Widdrington	294	947
Widecombe	Bovey (7)	215	744 of 5 miles wide at its mouth, and extends about a mile inland. On the shore is the Black Rock, a dark column of schist, said to be haunted by a wrecker named Featherstone, who is employed in making cords out of sand.

Wide Open, vil., pa. of Longbenton (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., about 2 N.E. of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Widewall, vil. on N.W. coast of South Ronaldshay Island, S. Ork., Sc., 12 S. of Kirkwall. Here is a school.

Widford (1), pa. and vil., E. Herts., 4 E. of Ware; ac. 1,162; soil mixed, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1869) is Dec. and Perp.; on the south side of the nave is a piscina, and on the north side a circular stone staircase, formerly leading to an ancient rood loft; the chancel has sedilia or recesses, and on both sides of the east windows are several highly interesting paintings of figures, faintly coloured; in the tower are some memorials to the family of Hamond (1824–37). The charities amount to about £28 yearly.

Widford (2), pa. on the Windrush, Mid Oxon., 6 N.W. of Witney; ac. 549; soil stonebrash, overlying rock. The church of St. Oswald (now closed and disused except for burials) is chiefly of the Dec. period; the nave and chancel are mostly Norm.; the north door is Norm. and there is a good Norm. font. The church is noteworthy as occupying the site of a Roman villa, fragments of tessellated pavement and other remains being frequently met with in the churchyard. There is a charity of about £15 yearly.

Widford (3), pa. and vil. on the road from London to Colchester, Mid Essex, 2 S.W. of Chelmsford; ac. 632; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary, erected 1862 on the site of an older edifice, is in Gothic style; in the churchyard is the tomb of Sarah (d. 1776), widow of Henry, tenth Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire. The charities are about £22 yearly. Hylands, standing in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Widley, pa., S. Hants, about 4 N. of Portsmouth; ac. 1,111; soil loamy, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (rebuilt 1849) is in Norm. style, but retains a few interesting fragments of the old structure, including some portions of the old dog-tooth moulding. In 1894 the pas. of W. and Wymering were amalgamated for civil purposes under the name of Cosham.

Widmerpool, pa. and small vil., S. Notts., 9 S.E. of Nottingham; ac. 2,106; soil heavy clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1882) is E. Eng.; the spire was destroyed by lightning in 1832. A vil. reading-room was erected in 1889. W. Hall, a spacious mansion, is a seat.

Widmore, ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Bromley (q.v.), W. Kent. In the vil. is an ancient gabled house, the gateway leading to which, almost overhung with ivy, bears the date 1599, and the initials "A.B."

Widnes, mun. bor., tp., and manufacturing to. on the banks of the Mersey, pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 13 S.E. of Liverpool; ac. 3,339. The bor. was incorporated by royal charter on May 25, 1893. W. has eccl. pas. with modern churches. The Roman Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Drill Hall, built 1873, is a brick structure, with a central tower flanked by two smaller. "Tueller's Girder," a wrought-iron bridge over the Mersey, connecting Lancs. with Chesh., was completed in 1868, and is 1,000 ft. long and 95 ft. in height above high-water mark, being supported over the river by two stone piers, each 80 ft. in depth by 30 ft. in width, placed 300 ft. apart in mid-channel, thus forming three openings of 300 ft., exclusive of piers and abutments; there are two lines of railway and one footway for passengers. W. is the principal seat in the kingdom of the manufacture of alkalies and soap; copper-smelting is also carried on here, and there are ironworks, foundries, limestone mills, sail-cloth manufactories, oil and paint and locomotive and waggon grease works.

Widnes Division, one of the 23 parl. divs. of Lancs.; it lies in the south-west of the co., and returns one member.

Widworthy, pa., E. Dev., 3½ E. by S. of Honiton; ac. 1,437; soil clay and marl, overlying marl and gravel. The church of St. Cuthbert is Dec.; over the west doorway in the tower is a carving of figures within a panel, and three shields of arms; in the north transept is a fine effigy of a knight in armour, probably representing Sir Hugh Prous, of the time of Edward III. In the south transept is a handsome monument by Bacon to James Marwood (d. 1769) and there are several other monuments. The pa. has some small charities. W. Court, standing in a park and extensive woods, is a seat.

Wield, pa. and vil., E. Hants, 6 W. of Alton; ac. 2,104; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. James (restored 1884–85) is Norm., and contains a fine alabaster monument to William Wallop and his third wife; both effigies are full length and recumbent, the former in complete armour. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Wigan, parl., mun., and co. bor., pa., tp., U. and mkt. to. (M. & F.), on the Douglas, S.W. Lancs., 18 N.W. of Manchester; ac. of pa. 29,033, of bor. and tp. 2,188. W. was first incorporated by Henry III. in 1245, and has received several subsequent charters. It returned members to Parliament in the time of Edward I., but not again until the twenty-seventh year of the reign of Elizabeth; it formerly returned two members, but by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the representation was reduced to one. The pa. church of All Saints (restored) is Late Perp.; in the Lindsay or Bradshaigh chapel is an altar-tomb with recumbent figures, in stone, of Sir William Bradshaw, Knight, cross-legged and in armour, and Dame Mabel his wife; there is also a monument to Dr. George Hall, Bishop of Chester 1662–68, and previously rector of W., who was accidentally killed by falling on a knife while walking in his garden at W. Dr.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Widford (1)	Widford	24	461
Widford (2)	Shipton (5)	81	52
Widford (3)	Chelmsford (1)	30	293
Widley	Cosham (2)	70	1350
Widmerpool	Widmerpool	116	183
Widnes	Widnes	189	30011

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Widnes Division	.....	.....	64387
Widworthy	Honiton (3½)	155	153
Wield	Alton (6)	47	258
Wigan, pa.	Wigan	194	129881
Wigan, bor. and tp.	Wigan	194	3001

John Wilkins, Bishop of Chester 1668–72, who succeeded Bishop Hall, was also rector here, and three subsequent rectors were chosen to the same see. W. has several eccl. pas. with modern churches, and the Roman Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The chief public buildings include a Public Hall; the Borough Courts (1866), in Italian style; the Arcade (1872), in Gothic style; the Volunteer Drill Hall (1884), in Queen Anne style; the Free Public Library (1878), in Gothic style; the Baths (1882), in Millgate; the Market Hall (1877), a red-brick structure; and the Royal Albert Edward Infirmary (1873), a brick edifice with Yorkshire stone dressings, built on the pavilion plan. The Manor House, in Bishopgate, is an ancient structure, and here in 1745 Charles Edward Stuart stayed for two days. The poor of the pa. have £185 yearly in bread and clothing from James Brown's charity; the poor of the tp. £370 yearly in bread and clothing from several charities; and there is in addition £140 for apprenticing. Fairs are held the day before Holy Thursday, June 27, and Oct. 28 for horses and horned cattle. W. is celebrated for its immense coal formations, which extend for miles in every direction. There are extensive oil and grease works; cotton-spinning is also largely carried on, ginghams and other cotton goods are made, and there are iron forges, iron and brass foundries, railway waggon, bolt, screw, and nail works. In the Civil War W. took the king's side and was often the headquarters of James, Earl of Derby, K.G., one of the devoted adherents of King Charles I. In 1651 this nobleman arrived from the Isle of Man to sustain the cause of Charles II., but was encountered and defeated by Colonel Lilburne in the battle of W. Lane, Aug. 25, 1651. At W. Lane fell Sir Thomas Tyldesley, Knight, the ablest of the Royalist leaders in this co., who was shot while scrambling through a hedge; a monumental pillar, with inscription, at the north end of the to., near the spot on which he fell, was erected in 1679. W. gives the title of Baron to the Lindsay family. Mesnes Park, with an area of about 27 ac., is well laid out, and has a lake stocked with swans and waterfowl. Westwood House, standing in a well-wooded park, is a seat; attached to the mansion is a Catholic chapel designed by Pugin, in Gothic style.

Wiganthorpe. [TERRINGTON.]

Wigborough, Great, pa., N.E. Essex, 7 S.W. of Colchester; ac. 2,524, and 86 water; soil heavy, overlying strong loam. The pa. anciently belonged to the Abbess of Barking, and is so recorded in the Domesday Survey; it afterwards passed to the priory of St. Osyth. The church of St. Stephen, situated on the top of a hill, is E. Eng. and Dec. Near the church is a tumulus.

Wigborough, Little, pa. near the marshes and creeks of the Blackwater, N.E. Essex, about 1 S.E. of Great Wigborough; ac. 1,214, and 168 water; soil heavy, subsoil loamy. The church of St. Stephen, near the seashore (restored 1886), is E. Eng.

Wigford St. Mary. [ST. MARY-LE-WIGFORD.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wigborough, Great	Colchester (7)	52	270
Wigborough, Little	Wyvenhoe (6)	56	84
Wiggenhall St. G.	Magdalen Road (3)	91	542
Wiggenhall St. M.M.	Magdalen Road (1)	91	678

Wiggenhall St. Germans, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, N.W. Norf., 4 S. of Lynn; ac. 1,219, of which 1,031 are on the west side of the river; soil and subsoil clayey. The church of St. Germain (restored 1872), on the east side of the river, is Perp. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Methodist New Connexion have chapels here. The charities amount to £1 5s. yearly, derived from the bridge tolls, and 6s. 8d. left by an unknown donor. The four Wiggenhalls are in a great part below the high-water level of the Ouse, which is confined by strong banks; the Middle Level sluice, constructed in 1877 for draining the fens of the Middle Level district, is in this pa.

Wiggenhall St. Mary Magdalen, pa. and vil. on the west side of the Ouse, N.W. Norf., 7 S. of Lynn; ac. 4,114; soil clay or fen, overlying clay, with a little silt. Three-quarters of the pa. are fen, and drained by a steam-engine. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is Perp. Here are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. Crabb, or Crabhouse Abbey, situated here, was founded in 1181 by the convent of Rainham, for nuns of Fontevrault; at its dissolution there were seven nuns, and revenues estimated at £24; the house is now occupied by a farmer.

Wiggenhall St. Mary the Virgin, pa. on the Ouse, N.W. Norf., 4 S.W. of Lynn; ac. 2,815; soil rich loam, overlying silt and gault. The church of St. Mary is Perp.; in the chancel is an alabaster altar-tomb, with effigies of a man in armour, his wife and child; there are also memorials to the Kervile and Berners families; since 1869 the church has been repaired, and during the alterations numerous lead coffins of the Berners family were found; the benches in the south aisle, which have been restored, are of oak and very finely carved. Some part of the Islington Lodge estate, reclaimed from the Ouse in 1821, is in this pa. St. Mary's Hall is a mansion erected at different periods. The centre was originally the embattled gatehouse of a more ancient hall or manor-house of brick, probably erected by the family of Kervile, or Capraville, in the reign of Henry VII.

Wiggenhall St. Peter, pa., N.W. Norf., 4½ S.S.W. of Lynn; ac. 994; soil clay and silty loam, overlying clay and silt. The church of St. Peter is Perp.

Wigginton (1), pa. and vil., N. Oxon., 6½ S.W. of Banbury; ac. 1,780. The church of St. Giles, restored, is chiefly E. Eng.; the chancel is Dec., and has a piscina, a sedile in the sill of the window, and a stone seat with crocketed canopy and finial at the south-west angle; it also contains two recumbent effigies, one of which appears to be a crusader, and a singular tomb, apparently of the 13th cent., with the figure of a man and two children standing erect with clasped hands. There is a Wesleyan chapel. A plot of 30 ac. of common land produces about £30 yearly, and is spent in coal for the poor of the pa. Extensive Roman remains have been found near the church; in 1824 a chamber of semi-octagonal form was discovered, the pavement of which was composed of small tesseræ of four colours; on the south-south-

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wiggenhall St. M.V.	Magdalen Road (4)	91	305
Wiggenhall St. P.	Magdalen Road (2)	91	135
Wigginton (1)	Bloxham (2)	87	245

east side the remains of an inferior room or court were found, the pavement of which was of a coarser kind; beneath this pavement was a small skeleton; and among other relics found were an ivory or bone pin and some small copper coins of the Emperor Constantine (306–37).

Wigginton (2), pa. and vil. on an eminence, W. Herts., 1½ S. of Tring; ac. 1,647; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1861) is chiefly E. Eng.

Wigginton (3), pa. and small vil., N.R. Yorks., 4½ N. of York; ac. 1,881; soil sandy and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (built 1860) is in E. Eng. style.

Wigginton (4), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Tamworth (q.v.), S.E. Staffs., 7 E. of Lichfield; ac. 3,667. The church of St. Leonard (rebuilt in the 18th cent.) was enlarged in 1862. W. Park is a seat.

Wigglesworth, tp., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Long Preston (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 4,288. There is a Wesleyan chapel. At W. Hall (built 1691) is a barn supposed to be the largest in England; here also is a sulphur well.

Wiggonby, vil., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Aikton (q.v.), N. Cumb. There are remains of a Roman camp.

Wiggonholt, pa., N.W. Sussex, 8 S.E. of Petworth; ac. 854; soil sandy, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown), restored, is E. Eng. W. appears to have been a Roman settlement; in 1827 a number of sepulchral urns and other relics were discovered.

Wighill, pa., tp., and vil. near the Wharfe, W.R. Yorks., 2½ N. by W. of Tadcaster; ac. of pa. 2,624, of tp. 2,247; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Norm., and contains an ancient monument (with a figure of a knight in armour) of the Stapylton family, besides several memorials of that family dating from 1500 downwards. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some small charities. Brook Hall and W. Hall are seats.

Wight, Isle of, island lying off the south shore of Hants, of which co. it forms a part, and from which it is separated by the Solent (q.v.). The island is of a lozenge shape, 22½ miles from east to west, 13 from north to south, about 60 in circumference, and including 93,341 ac. On the north the land slopes to the margin of the sea, woods and meadows stretching to the water's edge; but on the southern shore is a precipitous barrier of cliffs, with here and there a stream falling through a ravine; occasionally the coast curves inward, and at either extremity is a bold rocky promontory. A high range of chalk hills, or downs, stretch from east to west, and a still higher range runs southward, terminating abruptly at the Undercliff (q.v.). St. Boniface Down (900 ft.) at Ventnor is the highest in the island. On Ashey Down (420 ft.) is a sea mark built of stone by the Trinity Board in 1795. The Needles (q.v.) are at the western extremity. At St. Catherine's Point, at the southern end, is another lighthouse; near here is a rock worn by the action of the sea into the shape of an arch; the cliffs at this part rise to the height of 600 ft., and are frequented by numbers of aquatic birds. There are in the cliffs several singular chasms, or chines, as they are called, produced by the continued action of water, of which Shanklin, Blackgang, and Luccomb are the principal. The principal bays are Alum Bay and Totland Bay, remarkable for sands of variegated hues, at the western end of the island; Sandown Bay, with its fine sands, on the south-east; Freshwater and Brixton Bays, on the south-west; and Thorness Bay, on the north-west. The principal rivers are the Medina and the Yar. The seaports derive some advantage from supplying the shipping lying in Spithead and the neighbouring roads; but the chief source of prosperity to the island is from the numerous visitors who resort to its romantic scenery. From its sheltered position and the mildness of its climate it is a favourable resort for invalids, more especially those suffering from chest complaints; it is likewise covered with the seats of wealthy residents. The tos., which are all more or less frequented by pleasure visitors, are Newport, Ryde, West Cowes, East Cowes, Ventnor, Yarmouth, Freshwater and Shanklin, Sandown, and St. Helen's. Cowes and Ryde, on the north, carry on the chief trade, and are the ports of entrance for steamers from the railway stations on the mainland, and also the headquarters of yacht clubs. There is some intercourse between Yarmouth and Lymington. There are no seaports on the south. In the island there are large military establishments, and at Parkhurst is a convict station. Railways run from Cowes to Newport, from Ryde to Ventnor, from Sandown to Newport, from Newport to Ryde, and from Newport to Yarmouth and Freshwater. Coaches run frequently to various parts of the island, and communication is made with the mainland by steam vessels from Ryde and Cowes to Southampton and Portsmouth. The island seems to have received its name from the Iberians, and was an early seat of trade with the Continent. After being held by the Britons and Belgians, it was settled by the Romans, who had their chief post at Carisbrooke. When the English conquered Britain it became a Jutish kingdom, and was a separate commonwealth until seized by the more powerful English kings; in the Middle Ages it was constituted a feudal kingdom, under the Rivers or De Redvers. Geologically the rocks of the island offer an epitome of those of the south-east of England. The oldest strata are those of the Neocomian formation. Wealden beds run uninterruptedly across the island, but over the central part they are concealed by newer beds. These deposits are fossiliferous, and afford evidence of a mighty river which flowed from west to east, draining a continent which stretched far into the Atlantic. The delta of the Ganges affords us at the present day an instance of a tract of land similar in origin and of about the same area. The Lower Greensand, well exposed on the coast, consists of clayey strata, sandy clays and concretionary

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wigginton (2)	Tring (1½)	32	707
Wigginton (3)	Haxby (1)	192	366
Wigginton (4), ec.pa.	Tamworth (1½)	110	596
Wigginton (4), tp.	Tamworth (1½)	110	1079
Wigglesworth	Long Preston (2)	282	207

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wiggonholt	Pulborough (2)	50	51
Wighill, pa.	Tadcaster (3)	189	227
Wighill, tp.	Tadcaster (3)	189	227
Wight, Isle of	.....	.....	79873

sands, sandy clays and ferruginous sands. The Cretaceous formation is well represented, and the white chalk forms the ridge of hills which stretches east and west right across the island from Culver Cliff to the Needles, isolated masses of rock standing in the sea and marking the former extension of the chalk, once continuous with that of Dorsetshire. The chalk hills, or downs, as they are called, are easily distinguished by the bold, rounded outline which they present; scantily furnished with soil, they are covered by dense short herbage on which sheep do well, but woods are wanting, though the beech in places grows fairly well; the surface is dry, for the chalk is a very porous rock and rapidly absorbs the rain. Good sections are exposed in the numerous pits where the chalk is extracted for lime-burning, while the flints furnish fair road-metal. To the Tertiary epoch belong the Eocene, Upper Eocene, and Miocene beds, which are highly fossiliferous; in the Upper Eocene the bones of large mammals allied to the Tapir have been found. Of the boulder-clay of the Northern and Midland Counties there are no traces in the Isle of Wight; neither are there any signs of the passage of glaciers over its rocks. The gravels, however, which cap the hills on the northern side of the island are certainly of high antiquity. Of later date are the brick-earths and marls at Totland Bay, Wotton Creek, Brook Chine, and the Foreland. In beds of sand and peat trunks of trees and hazel-nuts have been found; the latter are locally called "Noah's nuts." In the gravels at Freshwater Gate teeth of the mammoth have been found. But few traces of prehistoric man have been met with. The I. of W. returns one member to Parliament.

Wighton, pa. and vil., N. Norf., 3 s. by E. of Wells; ac. 2,932; soil light, overlying gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1886) is Perp.; on the south side of the chancel arch is an almost perfect rood staircase; the chancel retains a piscina, and at the north door is a holy-water stoup. In the pa. are some traces of an ancient chapel. The Primitive Methodist chapel was erected in 1874. There are charities to the amount of £91 yearly. At Crabbe's Castle, about 1½ W. of the vil., are traces of ancient entrenchments; several Roman coins and other relics have been found there.

Wigland, tp., pa. of and 2½ s. by E. from Malpas (q.v.), S.W. Chesh.; ac. 562. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Wigley, ha., pa. of Eling (q.v.), S. Hants, 5 W. of Southampton.

Wigmore, pa. and vil., N. Herefords., 8 S.W. of Ludlow; ac. 3,480; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. James is E. Dec. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. A fair is held on May 6 for hiring servants, and on August 5 for cattle and sheep. A small charity is distributed in bread quarterly. Near the vil. are the ruins of W. Castle, and the pa. contains the remains of an Austin priory, founded by the Mortimers. W. Hall, an ancient mansion, is a seat.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wighton	Walsingham (2)	132	491
Wigland	Malpas (2½)	177	152
Wigmore	Kingsland (4)	161	385
Wigsley	Saxilby (3½)	136	78
Wigston Magna	Wigston East	95	7013

Wigsley, tp., pa. of and 1½ s. from Thorney (q.v.), E. Notts.; ac. 1,233.

Wigsthorpe. [Lilford-cum-Wigsthorpe.]

Wigston Magna, pa. and vil., S. Leics., 4 s. of Leicester; ac. 1,988; the land is rich and highly cultivated. The church of St. Wolstan (restored 1877) is Dec. All Saints' Church is also of the Dec. period; and from the fact of there being two churches, the place is frequently called Wigston-two-Steeples. There are also Congregational, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Calvinistic chapels. The Conservatives have a club, and there is a Working Men's Club and Institute. Charities producing about £90 a year are distributed in bread, fuel, and clothing. The Midland Railway Company have engine sheds here, which provide employment for a large number of persons; and from the facility of communication by the railway, trade here is on the increase. W. Hall, in extensive well-timbered grounds, is a seat.

Wigston Parva, tp., pa. of Wigston Magna (q.v.), S. Leics., 3 N.W. of Ullesthorpe; ac. 386. The chapel of St. Mary is a small Norm. building; some of the windows are E. Eng., and there is a large font of the same date.

Wigston, South, vil., pa. of Aylestone (q.v.), S. Leics., about 4 s. of Leicester.

Wigtoft, pa., S. Lincs., 3 S.E. of Swineshead; ac. 3,444; soil loam, overlying loam and clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1891–92) is Norm., E. Eng., Dec. and Perp.; the porch exhibits portions of Norm. and later work; portions of a lofty Perp. rood screen exist, as well as the entrance to the rood loft, and there is a good Jacobean pulpit; in the south aisle is a piscina, and some fragments of old glass remain in the windows; in the chancel are two chairs, partially constructed from old carved bench ends. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £53, distributed at Easter and Christmas.

Wigton (1), pa., tp., mkt. to., head of a U. and Co. Co. dis., Mid Cumb., 11 W.S.W. of Carlisle; ac. of pa. 12,021, of tp. 4,603; soil loam, clay, and gravel. W. is pleasantly situated in a healthy and attractive neighbourhood. The church of St. Mary, rebuilt 1788 on the site of an ancient edifice, is a red brick structure. In the churchyard was buried, in 1856, Mr. John Rooke, an eminent geologist and writer on political economy; and there is also a stone to Thomas Warcop, vicar, dated 1632, with a rhyming epitaph said to have been cut by himself, but now almost illegible. The Catholic church of St. Cuthbert, from designs by Benomi, is in Gothic style, and the Convent of Sisters of Mercy was built in 1857. Various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Mechanics' Institution in West Street was built in 1849. A handsome drinking-fountain was erected 1872 in the market-place; it is constructed of variously coloured granite, and is surmounted by a massive gilt cross; on the four sides of the structure are bas-reliefs in bronze, representing the four acts of Mercy. The market is held every Tuesday in the street for

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wigston Parva	Ullesthorpe (3)	105	47
Wigtoft	Algarkirk (2½)	101	653
Wigton (1), pa.	Wigton	310	5102
Wigton (1), tp.	Wigton	310	4346
Wigton (1), to.	Wigton	310	3965

corn and farm produce, and on St. Thomas's Day there is a large market for meat, apples, and honey. Fairs are held on February 20 for horses and cattle, on April 5 for cattle and merchandise, and Whit-Tuesday and Martinmas Tuesday for hiring agricultural servants. The manufacture of checks, ginghams, and winseys is carried on here; the other principal industries are tanning, brewing, and the making of spade and shovel handles; a trade in timber is also maintained. W. has several charities, some of which are devoted to educational purposes, and there is a Free Grammar School, founded 1730. Several persons of celebrity were natives of this place; among others, Robert Smirke, R.A. (1752–1845), the historical painter. Highmoor, standing in a deer-park, is a seat.

Wigton (2), tp., pa. of Harewood (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N. of Leeds; ac. 1,294. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Here is the site of a Roman encampment, where many stone coffins, ancient urns, and coins have been discovered.

Wigtown, pa., royal burgh, to., seaport, and the capital of the co., W. Wigs., Sc. The pa. extends 5 miles in length by 4 miles in breadth, and is bounded on the south by the Bladenoch river, north-west and north-east by Newton Stewart, and east by W. Bay. It has several eminences throughout, but is in general flat and fertile; ac. 7,805. The to. is pleasantly seated on an eminence near the west side of W. Bay, and is 8 s. of Newton Stewart. It is a place of considerable antiquity, having come into existence during the Middle Ages from the erection of a castle on the spot by a band of Saxon invaders; the castle subsequently became a royal residence, but the to. itself does not appear to have been conspicuous till the reign of David II., when it gave the title of Earl to the family of Fleming. Besides the Established church there are Free, United Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic places of worship. The principal street is a parallelogram, of which the internal space is enclosed by a wall and iron railings, and the centre laid out in walks and a bowling green, forming an agreeable promenade; at the end is a modern granite cross; at the other extremity are the County Buildings, having a tower of considerable height. The harbour is safe, and has a depth of water for vessels of 300 tons; it is the seat of a customs port. The chief industry is fishing, and a large number of well-found boats belong to the port. The market, entitled by charter to be holden on Saturday, is now discontinued. Fairs are also chartered to be held at Candlemas, on the first Monday in April, and the first Friday in July and August, all old style, but they also are discontinued; a monthly cattle market, on the fourth Friday of each month during the season, has been established, and there is an annual cattle show in July. A monument has been erected here to Margaret Wilson and Margaret M'Lachlan, the martyrs who were put to death in the Bladenoch Water in the year 1685; it is on the top of Windy-hill, from which there is a magnificent view of the to. and surrounding country. At the western extremity of the pa. is a prehistoric monument, consisting of 19 large granite stones placed in a circular form; tradition points to the spot as the tomb of King Galdus.

Wigtown Bay, an inlet of the Irish Sea, running up for about 15 miles between the cos. of Kirkcudbright and Wigs., Sc. The width at the entrance is about 12 miles.

Wigtownshire, the extreme S.W. co. of Scotland, is extremely irregular in shape. Its boundaries are the Irish Channel on the west and south, Wigtown Bay and Kirkcudbrightshire on the east, and Ayrshire on the north, its length being 32 miles and extreme breadth from east to west 28, and contains about 486 square miles, or 310,747 ac. When the Romans crossed the Solway into North Britain the ancient British tribes of the "Novantes" inhabited the whole of Western Galloway, having "Leucophibia" (the modern Whithorn) for their principal to., and "Rerigonium" (Loch Ryan) for their principal port. After the Romans had evacuated the kingdom in 410, the Strathclyde Britons gained the upper hand; but the Anglo-Saxons overran the district in the 6th cent., and Oswy, the Northumbrian king, settled at Whithorn. During the 9th and 10th cents. the country on the west was inhabited by the Picts from Ireland and the Isle of Man, and hence the name of Galloway, or "the country of the Gael," was conferred on the territory. About the 12th cent. Galloway passed into the hands of the Scottish king, Alexander II. The position of the shire so much to the west preserved it from many of the border raids; nor was it mixed up to any extent in the movements of 1715 and 1745, and Queen Mary's progress from Langside to cross to England led her through Kirkcuds. The co. is one of the most level districts in Scotland; and the hills, of which there are none of great altitude, are generally pretty free from rocks. The best lands lie near the shores, the inland division being more elevated and largely mixed with heath and moss. The major part of the soil is dry loam, though it often inclines to a gravelly nature. The co. presents an exposure to the south, and its waters mostly descend to the Irish Sea. The climate is moist, with winds from the south-west, which prevail during the greater part of the year. In early times this district of Galloway, like most other sections of the country, was covered with woods; and in modern days planting has been pursued most extensively, and the salutary improvements that have been effected in this co. have been ascribed to the efforts of the Agricultural Society of Dumfries. Now black cattle, wool, sheep, and swine are largely exported. This district has long been pre-eminent as being an excellent pastoral one, and for the superiority of its wool. The mineral resources of the co. are by no means extensive. There is no coal, at least not for any useful purpose; and although there is plenty of iron ore, the absence of the coal renders it of comparatively little value. In the northern part of the Rhinns the existence of sandstone has been ascertained. Quarries of slate of different qualities are found in various places, and lead mines were formerly wrought within the district. The coasting trade of the co. is considerable. There is much activity in the fisheries connected with the Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.

Wigton (2)	Scarcroft (2½)	195	193
Wigtown, pa.	Wigtown	389	1911
Wigtown, burgh	Wigtown	389	1509

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wigtown, to.	Wigtown	389	1[illegible]
Wigtownshire	.....	.....	2[illegible]

numerous ports and lochs. There is an almost entire absence of manufactures in this shire, except at Kirkcowan and Minnigaff, where blankets, tweeds, etc., are made. The great industry of W. is, however, the production of cheese. The principal rivers are the Cree, the Bladenoch, and the Tarf, with a few of smaller size. The railway system belongs to the Glasgow and South-Western and the Portpatrick and Wigtownshire lines. Wigtown, Stranraer, Whithorn, and Newton Stewart are the chief tos. The co. returns one member to Parliament.

Wike (1), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 E.N.E. of Halifax; ac. 967. The church of St. Mary is in E. Eng. style, and there are Nonconformist chapels. There is a small card manufactory, but agriculture, manufactures, and coal-mining are the chief occupations of the inhabitants.

Wike (2), tp., pas. of Harewood and Bardsey (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 8 S.E. of Otley; ac. 879.

Wilbarston, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 5½ E. of Market Harborough; ac. 2,850; soil various, overlying ironstone. The church of All Saints (restored 1884) is E. Eng. Here is a Congregational chapel. There are some small charities for distribution, and one of 3s. 4d. yearly for "a godly sermon."

Wilberfoss, pa., tp., and pleasant vil., E.R. Yorks., 8 E. of York; ac. of pa. 3,063, of tp. 1,350; soil chiefly light sandy loam, overlying sand. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1868–69) is Norm.; on the south aisle floor is an ancient brass, with the effigies engraved thereon of Sir Robert Hoton and his lady, who died about the middle of the 15th cent. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities are small. A rivulet crosses the vil., and near it was anciently a Benedictine nunnery, founded by Helias de Catton before 1153. The building included a church, the choir containing sixteen stalls and three altars. The pa. church adjoined that of the priory at its western end. There was a cloister on the north side 60 ft. square, and on the east the chapter-house, with dorter over; on the north and west, the hall and various other chambers and offices. The site was granted to George Gale in 1554, and no remains now exist. The manor-house, an ancient building on the north side of the churchyard, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Wilbraham, Great, pa. and vil., E. Cambs., 7 E. of Cambridge; ac. 2,707; soil various, overlying stone and clunch. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1878–79) is principally E. Eng. and Perp.; there is a beautiful E. Eng. east window, and the chancel retains piscina and sedilia and a curious aumbry; in the east wall of the south transept is a window exhibiting fine examples of dog-tooth moulding; the font is Trans. Norm. There is a small Baptist chapel. W. Temple is a seat.

Wilbraham, Little, pa. and vil., E. Cambs., 7 E. of Cambridge; ac. (including fen lands) 1,838; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. John is principally Dec. and Perp., but with traces of much older work. The chancel has two graduated sedilia with a stone elbow between them, some stalls, and the remains of a Late Dec. rood screen; the doorways to the rood-loft also remain. The south porch has a curious inner doorway enriched with tracery and shields of arms. The tower is Dec. and stands on open arches. In the chancel is a plain high tomb, with kneeling effigy in brass on the side to William Blakwey, M.A. (d. 1521). In the churchyard is the base of a cross, consisting of the steps and part of the shaft, and a tombstone to Elizabeth Hobbs, who died in 1803, and is stated to have attained the age of 104 years, having consequently lived in three different centuries. Johnson's charity consists of 80 ac., producing about £98 yearly, chiefly distributed amongst the poor of the pa.

Wilbrighton, ha., pa. of Gnosall (q.v.), W. Staffs., 1½ N. of Moreton.

Wilburton, pa. and vil., partly in the fen lands, Isle of Ely, W. Cambs., 6½ S. of Ely; ac. 2,367; the soil varies from red sand to stiff clay on the upper land. The whole of the fen land is in good cultivation. St. Peter's Hall, High Street, is used for pa. meetings and science and art classes. The church of St. Peter (restored 1851) is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style of the 15th cent., but retains traces of Norm. work. Here is a Baptist chapel. New Manor House is a seat.

Wilbury Hill, eminence, N. Herts., on the Beds. border, 2½ N.N.E. of Hitchin. It lies on the line of Icknield Street, and on it is a camp, which was formerly supposed to be Roman, but is now said to be of more ancient origin. The camp is 7 ac. in extent, and is surrounded by a single fosse.

Wilbury House. [NEWTON TONEY.]

Wilby (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 8 S.E. of Eye; ac. 2,064; the soil is a mixture of rich loam and clay with a subsoil of clay, and is very fertile. The church of St. Mary (restored 1879) is Perp.; the pulpit of oak with canopy is very ancient and elaborately carved; there are several brasses in the chancel floor to the Bayles family (1588–1638); in the south wall of chancel are two brasses, one to James Tamplin (d. 1569), the other to the Rev. Joseph Fletcher, a former rector (d. 1637). The charities, which amount to about £70 yearly, are for the poor, the school, and repairs of the church.

Wilby (2), pa. and small vil., E. Northants, 2 S.W. of Wellingborough, on the road to Northampton; ac. 1,130; soil rich loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1879) is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp.; on the south side of the chancel are piscina and sedilia; there is also a piscina at the east end of the aisle. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The charities are of about £1 10s. yearly value.

Wilby (3), pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 4 S. of Attleborough; ac. 1,400; soil and subsoil various. The church of All Saints is E. Eng., with a Norm. south porch.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wike (1), eccl. pa.	Wyke	192	4938
Wike (1), tp.	Wyke	192	5929
Wike (2)	Bardsey (1¾)	197	108
Wilbarston	Ashley & Weston (2¼)	89	516
Wilberfoss, pa.	Fangfoss (1½)	200	585
Wilberfoss, tp.	Fangfoss (1½)	200	381

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wilbraham, Great	Six Mile Bottom (1½)	63	523
Wilbraham, Little	Six Mile Bottom (2½)	63	396
Wilburton	Wilburton	73	452
Wilby (1)	Framlingham (8)	91	400
Wilby (2)	Wellingborough (2)	65	357
Wilby (3)	Eccles Road (1)	101	104

Wilcot, pa. and vil. close to the Kennet and Avon Canal, E. Wilts., 6 S.W. of Marlborough; ac. 2,765; soil clay, overlying flint and chalk. The church of the Holy Cross is E. Eng. Stowell Lodge and W. Manor House, an old-fashioned gabled building of red brick standing in a small park, are seats.

Wilcote, pa., Mid Oxon., 4½ N.N.E. of Witney; ac. 314; soil loam, overlying limestone. W. contains only two houses besides the church. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is chiefly Dec.; walled up on the south side of the nave is a Norm. doorway.

Wilcrick, pa., S. Mon., about 7 E. from Newport, on the road to Chepstow; ac. 1,073; soil clay and sand, overlying sandstone and limestone. The church (dedication unknown) was almost entirely rebuilt in 1861.

Wild Boar Clough, tp., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 6 S.E. of Macclesfield; ac. 5,040. There is a mission room. A great part of the tp. is unenclosed moorland, and there are quarries. Crag Hall is a seat.

Wild Boar Fell, eminence, E. Westmd., on the Yorks. border, 6 S. by W. of Kirkby Stephen. It commands a very fine view.

Wilden, pa. and vil. in a pleasant vale, N. Beds., 8 S.W. of St Neots; ac. 2,205; soil clay and loam, overlying principally Oxford clay. The church of St. Nicholas is Gothic; there are four monuments, one of which, to a former rector, is dated 1643. There is a charity amounting to about £6 yearly for widows; about £23 yearly has also been left for the repairs of the church.

Wildmore, pa., S. Lincs., 11 S. of Horncastle; ac. 4,066; soil clay, overlying gravel. The church (not dedicated) is in Perp. style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Wildon Grange, tp., pa. of and 6 N. from Easingwold (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 698. Here was formerly a grange belonging to the monks of Byland, built about the year 1138; there are some few remains of the old buildings, and a portion of the roadway that communicated with Byland Abbey.

Wildsworth, tp., pa. of Laughton (q.v.), N.W. Lincs., 8 N. of Gainsborough; ac. 978. Here is a chapel-of-ease in Norm. style.

Wiley, Willey, Wily, or Wylye, river, S.W. Wilts., rises in the pa. of Kilmington, E. Wilts., and runs, partly by subterraneous channels, to Kingston Deverill. From this place it proceeds N. by E. to Warminster, thence E.S.E. past Heytesbury to Stapleford, and finally S.S.E. to Wilton, where it joins the Nadder. The W. flows through a fertile agricultural district, and prosperous villages line its banks. Its length is about 24 miles.

Wilfholme, ha., pa. of and 2½ E. from Kilnwick (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.

Wilford, pa. and pleasant vil., S. Notts., 1 S. of Nottingham, but partly within that mun. bor.; ac. 1,320; soil and subsoil various. W. stands on the south bank of the navigable river Trent, over which is a bridge. The church of St. Wilfrid (restored 1891) is Perp.; the chancel retains a piscina and sedilia. The various charities for distribution in money and clothing amount to about £50, and there is an endowed school. In October 1875, owing to the heavy rains, the Trent overflowed its banks and caused great destruction of property and some loss of life.

Wilkinthroop, ha., pa. of Horsington (q.v.), S.E. Somerset, about 3½ S.W. of Wincanton.

Wilkesley. [DODCOTT-CUM-WILKESLEY.]

Wilkieston, vil., pa. of and 3 E. by N. of Kirknewton (q.v.), N.W. Edins.

Wilkinstown, pl. with railway station, pa. of Kilberry (q.v.), N. co. Meath, Ir., 7 N. of Navan.

Wilksby, pa., Mid Lincs., 5 S. by E. of Horncastle; ac. 522; soil black sand and loam, overlying white clay and sand. The church of All Saints, erected in the 18th cent. on the site of an earlier church, is a very small plain structure; it contains a very good stone font, supposed to date from the time of King John, and the church plate includes an ancient chalice of beaten metal.

Willand, pa. and vil., N.E. Dev., 2½ N. of Cullompton; ac. 989; soil loamy, subsoil gravelly. The church of St. Mary (repaired 1863) is Perp., and contains a handsome screen and pulpit. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £18 yearly.

Willapark Point, headland, north-west coast of Cornw., 1 N.W. of Boscastle. The headland rises grandly from the sea, and is crowned by a tower which commands a magnificent view of the neighbouring coast. The precipices on its south side encircle a chasm known as the Black Pit.

Willaston (1), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of and 2½ N.E. from Neston (q.v.), W. Chesh.; ac. 1,941. Christ Church (1854) is in Gothic style. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Willaston (2), tp. and vil. with railway station, pa. of Wybunbury (q.v.), S. Chesh., 2½ S. of Crewe; ac. 1,010. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. W. Hall is a seat.

Willbrook, vil., pa. of Rathfarnham (q.v.), S. co. Dub., Ir., about 4 S.W. of Dublin.

Willen, pa., N. Bucks., 2 S. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 654; soil mixed, overlying gravel and stone. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (restored 1863) was built by Sir Christopher Wren in the Italian style. There are some small charities.

Willenhall (1), tp., manufacturing to., and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Wolverhampton (q.v.), S. Staffs., 3 E. of Wolverhampton, on the road to Walsall; ac. 2,025, and 42 of water. The to. has some eccl. pas. The church of St. Giles (rebuilt

PLACE	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wilcot	Pewsey (2)	75	548
Wilcote	Charlbury (3)	76	8
Wilcrick	Magor (2½)	144	24
Wild Boar Clough	Macclesfield (6)	165	220
Wilden	Bedford (5)	50	388
Wildmore	Langrick (3)	112	736
Wildon Grange	Coxwold (1½)	208	23
Wildsworth	Blyton	152	118
Wilford	Nottingham (1½)	124	2769

PLACE	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wilksby	Horncastle (5)	130	59
Willand	Collumpton (2½)	177	353
Willaston (1), ec. pa.	Hadlow Road (4)	189	685
Willaston (1), tp.	Hadlow Road (4)	189	582
Willaston (2)	Willaston	160	2899
Willbrook	Dundrum (2)	3	780
Willen	Newport Pagnell (1½)	56	88
Willenhall (1), tp.	Willenhall	122	13365
Willenhall (1), to.	Willenhall	122	16282

1867) is in Dec. style; that of St. Stephen is in Gothic style. The church of St. Anne is a plain stone building. The Roman Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. W. has a Free Library situated in Clemson Street. The charities amount to about £10 yearly. The manufactures consist principally of door locks and brass and other padlocks of every description, including South American, rim, mortice, cabinet, Dutch, portfolio, trunk, door, dead, iron-gate and carpet-bag locks; also bolts, latches, gridirons, keys, hasps, hinges, ferrules, files, snuffers, wood screws, steel traps, box-iron stands, fancy castings and curry-combs, for home and foreign trade; these are exported in large quantities. There are varnish works, maltings, and brass and iron foundries.

Willenhall (2) (frequently pronounced "Winnall"), tp., pa. of Holy Trinity, Coventry (q.v.), N. Warws., 3 S.E. of Coventry; ac. 440. Although not mentioned in the charter of Earl Leofric to the monks of Coventry upon the foundation of the priory, this was then a portion of that half of Coventry given by him to the monks. A mission church and school have been erected here.

Willerby (1), pa., E.R. Yorks., 6½ S.W. of Scarborough; ac. 4,567; soil chalk, sand, and peat, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored 1882) is E. Eng. and Late Perp., and contains a font of very early date.

Willerby (2), tp., pas. of Kirk Ella and Cottingham (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., about 4 W. of Hull; ac. 982. The Hull Borough Asylum is in this tp.

Willersey, pa. and vil., E. Glouc., on the Worcs. border, 7 S.E. of Evesham; ac. 1,179; soil and subsoil clay and gravel. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is E. Eng.; it retains some ancient glass. Charities of about £20 yearly value are distributed to the poor.

Willersley, pa. on the north bank of the Wye, N. Herefords., 6 N.E. of Hay; ac. 391; soil loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1877) is a plain stone building.

Willesborough, pa. and vil., S. Kent, 1½ S.E. of Ashford, on the road to Hythe; ac. 1,478; soil light, subsoil loamy. The church of St. Mary (restored 1868) is of various periods, and retains sedilia, piscina, and a priest's doorway. The north and south windows are filled with 14th-cent. stained glass. Christ Church is in E. Eng. style. The ancient house opposite the church once belonged to the family of William Harvey, the discoverer (about 1628) of the circulation of the blood. The charities amount to about £20 yearly.

Willesden, large pa., Mid Middx., about 5 N.W. of London; ac. 4,382; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. There is an important junction station here of the North-Western and North London Railways and of the railways south of the Thames viâ the West London and North and South-Western Junction Railways. The church of St. Mary is a building of flint, stone, brick and tooled stone of considerable antiquity, and contains fragments of all periods since the Conquest, but has suffered much from additions and restorations; the font is probably Norm. There are brasses with effigies to Bartholomew Willesden, comptroller of the great roll of the Pipe (d. 1492), his two wives and four daughters; Margaret Roberts (d. 1505), with six children; William Lichefeld, LL.D., vicar (d. 1517); Edmund Roberts, Esq., of Neasdon (d. 1585), and his wives Frances (Welles) and Fayth (Patenson), with nine children; and Jane, wife of John Barne, Esq. (d. 1609), with two daughters; in the church are also several ancient monuments, including a mural monument in the chancel (dated 1595) to Richard Paine, Esq., J.P., and his wife, with kneeling figures of both; there are others to Sir John Francklyn, Knight, of Wilsden (d. 1647); Richard Francklyn, Esq., of Wilsden (d. 1615); John Barne, Esq., J.P. (d. 1615); and to Francis Roberts, Esq., of Wilsden (d. 1631). The eccl. pa. of St. Andrew has a church in E. Eng. style, and there are various Nonconformist places of worship. The W. Green Public Library was erected at a cost of about £2,000; the Cottage Hospital is a red-brick building. The National Athletic Grounds of 27 ac. were laid out in 1890; and there is a recreation ground of about 27 ac.

Willesley (1), pa., S.E. Derbys., 1½ S.W. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch; ac. 802; soil heavy, overlying yellow clay. The church of St. Thomas, beautifully situated close to the Hall, is a building of stone dating generally from the first half of the 14th cent.; there are some interesting monuments to the Hastings and Abney families, including, on the floor of the chancel, two alabaster slabs, with figures and inscriptions much worn, to John Abney and Maria his wife (1505), and to George Abney and Ellen his wife (1571); on the floor of the nave is another alabaster slab with inscription to Sir John Wylkins, priest; in the chancel windows are some fragments of old glass. W. Hall, in a well-timbered park, is a seat.

Willesley (2), ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Sherston Magna (q.v.), N.W. Wilts.

Willey (1), pa. near the Severn, S. Salop, 4 E. of Much Wenlock; ac. 1,376. The church of St. John (restored and enlarged 1880) is Norm., E. Eng., and Late Perp., and contains several monuments to the Weld and Forester families; a small memorial chapel contains a fine monument by Sir J. E. Boehm to Lord Forester. The Forester charities were left for the purpose of establishing a cottage hospital and a convalescent home. W. Hall, a freestone mansion in a well-timbered park, is a seat.

Willey (2) (in Domesday "Welei," and in Henry II.'s time "Wilega"), pa. and small vil., S.E. Warws., on the Leics. border, 8 N. of Rugby; ac. 758; soil mixed, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1884) is a small E. Eng. building.

Willey (3), tp., pa. of and about 3 N. from Presteigne (q.v.), N. Herefords.; ac. 2,186. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. It is a

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Willenhall (2)	Coventry (2½)	94	105
Willerby (1)	Ganton (2)	223	446
Willerby (2)	Willerby	207	719
Willersey	Honeybourne (3½)	101	353
Willersley	Eardisley (1)	159	9
Willesborough	Ashford (2)	55	3234
Willesden	Willesden Junction	5	61265
Willesley (1)	Ashby (2)	118	64
Willey (1)	Linley (2)	154	148
Willey (2)	Ullesthorpe (3½)	105	133
Willey (3)	Knighton (3)	181	102

mountainous part of the co., and possesses some beautiful scenery.

Willey (4), ha., pa. of Sampford Courtney (q.v.), W. Dev., 4 N.E. of Okehampton.

Williamsburgh, vil., pa. of and 1 E. from Paisley (q.v.), E. Renfs., Sc. W. is a small suburb of Paisley, stretching E. from the newer part of the to. It contains infantry barracks and a large public school, built 1893.

Williamscote, ha., pa. of Wardington (q.v.), N. Oxon., about 4½ N.E. of Banbury, on the borders of Northants.

Williamstead. [WILSHAMSTEAD.]

Williamston, East, chap. and tp., pa. of Begelly (q.v.), S.E. Pembs., 3½ N.N.W. of Tenby; ac. 1,454. The church (dedication uncertain) is E. Eng. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels.

Williamstown (1), vil., pa. of Booterstown (q.v.), S.E. co. Dub., Ir., 2 N.W. of Kingstown. W. is situated on the south shore of Dublin Bay, adjacent to Blackrock. During the summer it is much frequented as a watering-place, its fine sandy beach affording excellent bathing. Near the vil. are many pleasant villa residences.

Williamstown (2), vil. and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Templetogher (q.v.), N. co. Galway, Ir., 5 S. of Ballymoe.

Willian, pa. and vil., N. Herts., 2½ E. of Hitchin; ac. 1,812; soil light loam, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (built probably about the latter end of the 14th cent.) is of various periods, and contains in the chancel a Norm. arch. There is a monument of the 17th cent., and brasses with effigies of the 15th and 17th cents. In the church is an illustrated Bible printed at Oxford in 1717.

Willimoteswyke, ha., pa. of and about 5 E. from Haltwhistle (q.v.), S.W. Northumb. Here are extensive remains of the castle, formerly the seat of the Ridley family, part of which is now occupied as farm buildings. Some authorities say that Nicholas Ridley, Bishop of London (burnt at Oxford 1555), was born here, but others give Unthank as the place of his birth.

Willingale Doe, pa., W. Essex, 9 W. of Chelmsford; ac. 1,763; soil various, subsoil loamy. The church of St. Christopher is Dec.; the tower was rebuilt in 1853, when the north wall of the nave, the most ancient part of the church, was destroyed and a north aisle built; the chancel retains its sedilia and piscina; on the south side of the chancel is a marble monument to Sir Richard Wyseman (d. 1618) and to his son Robert (d. 1641). At the end of the nave is a brass with full-length figure of Dorothy, wife of Thomas Brewster and daughter of Sir Thomas Joycelyn, Kt. (d. 1611); on the south side are full-length figures in brass of a man and his wife; the inscription attached to the former is effaced, but the latter appears to represent Anne, widow of John Sackfild, Esq. (d. 1582). This church and that of Willingale Spain are in the same churchyard.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Williamston, East	Tenby (3½)	263	399
Williamstown (2)	Ballymoe (7)	110	133
Willian	Hitchin (2½)	32	212
Willingale Doe	Ongar (4½)	23	371
Willingale Spain	Ongar (4½)	23	215

Willingale Spain, pa., W. Essex, 8½ W. of Chelmsford; ac. 1,215; soil mixed, overlying marl. The church of St. Andrew and All Saints, in the same churchyard as that of Willingale Doe, is the southern and more ancient of the two churches; it is a small E. Eng. structure. The porch is modern, but the north doorway is a curious relic, constructed with very thin bricks, and entirely destitute of mouldings; the ancient ironwork, made to the form of an arch, is of corresponding date; the primitive ladder and supports of the ancient belfry remain, the latter being massive timbers spanning the nave. The font is a good example of Perp. work. Spain Hall is a seat.

Willingdon, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 3 N. of Eastbourne; ac. 4,274; soil loam, overlying marl. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Eng. with Perp. insertions and additions, and contains some 17th-cent. monuments with effigies to the Parker family, and two 16th-cent. brasses. Of the ancient house of Ratton nothing remains but a building used for farm purposes; the modern mansion, a little north of the old house, on the declivity of the Downs, screened by timber and ornamental shrubs, has been burnt down.

Willingham (1), pa. and vil., W. Cambs., about 6 E. of St. Ives; ac. 4,485; soil various but very fertile, overlying mostly blue clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary and All Saints is chiefly Dec.; in the chancel are sedilia and a fine piscina; some mutilated stalls remain, and there is an excellent Perp. roof with carved foliage; on the north side of the chancel is a small Dec. chapel, now used as a vestry. The original benches, with good carved standards, remain; in the north aisle are two fine canopied tombs, and an altar step remains at the east end, which formed a chantry chapel belonging to the manor of Willingham, and is still enclosed by a beautiful though much mutilated Dec. screen; the roof is Perp., with carved bosses; the south aisle has a similar roof, and its eastern end, enclosed by a Perp. screen, was also a chapel attached to the manor of Brunes; it retains a piscina and a canopied tomb, and at the west end stands an octagonal Perp. font. The pulpit, of the same period, is pentagonal, on a single octagonal shaft. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, and a small public reading-room. At Belsar's Hill are the remains of a Roman encampment. The charities amount to £110 yearly, distributed in the following manner:—£50 for educational purposes, two almswomen to receive from 5s. to 8s. per week, and the residue to be given to the deserving poor.

Willingham (2), pa. and vil. on the Till, N.W. Lincs., 6 S.E. of Gainsborough; ac. 2,203; soil various, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Helen was rebuilt in 1880; the body of the church dates from the 11th cent. and the tower from the 14th, and there are mural monuments to the Peel, Dymoke-Wells, and Hawke families. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels and a Cottage Hospital.

Willingham (3), pa. and small vil., N. Suff., 3½ S.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Willingdon	Willingdon (1)	59	122
Willingham (1)	Long Stanton (2)	65	1629
Willingham (2)	Stow Park (2)	141	486
Willingham (3)	Beccles (4)	109	113

of Beccles; ac. 1,007; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary has long been in ruins.

Willingham (4), ha., pa. of Carlton (q.v.), E. Cambs., 5 S.E. of Dullingham.

Willingham, Cherry, pa. and small vil. on the Witham, W. Lincs., 3 E. of Lincoln; ac. 1,089; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is a small building in Classic style. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The interest of £50 goes to provide Bibles and prayer books for the poor. The interest of £200 Consols is distributed in money yearly at Christmas.

Willingham, North, pa., N. Lincs., 3½ E. of Market Rasen; ac. 2,287; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Thomas the Apostle is an ancient edifice of stone. W. Hall, a mansion of stone in a well-wooded park of 80 ac., is a seat.

Willingham, South, pa. and vil. with railway station, N. Lincs., 8 S.E. of Market Rasen; ac. 1,995; soil clayey, overlying clay. The church of St. Martin was rebuilt in 1838 in E. Eng. style. Here are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The rent of a field of 9 ac. and the interest of £400 Consols are devoted to the repair of the fabric of the church. The charities are of the yearly value of 13s. 4d.

Willington (1), pa. and vil., N. Beds., 4½ E. of Bedford, on the road to St. Neots; ac. 1,617; soil gravel, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Laurence (restored 1877) is Perp.; in the church are memorials, including some altar-tombs, to the Gostwick family, the earliest of which is a brass to Robert Gostwick (1315); the others comprise a canopied altar-tomb of marble, with recumbent effigy, and inscribed to Sir William Gostwick, Bart. (1615), and Jane (Owen) his wife, with eleven children; and on the south side of the chancel is another tomb, with kneeling effigies and figures of children, to Sir Edward Gostwick, Knight and Bart., with a chronogrammatic inscription to himself (1630) and his wife (1633); there are also inscribed slabs to other members of the family. Suspended from the wall is an ancient helmet said to have been worn at the "Field of the Cloth of Gold" in 1520. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. In 1860 some Roman remains were discovered here, and were sent to Woburn Abbey. The Park farmhouse is a portion of the ancient residence of Sir John Gostwick, Master of the Horse to King Henry VIII., who once held a court therein; one large and peculiar building, probably once a stable, together with a dovecote, still exists; the upper chamber was used for domestic purposes.

Willington (2), pa. and pleasant vil., S. Derbys., 6½ S.W. of Derby; ac. 1,288; soil chiefly light, overlying gravel. The Grand Trunk Canal and the rivers Dove and Trent pass through the pa. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone; the south doorway, now built up, is of Norm. date, as was also the chancel arch, recased in 1824; the chancel itself has two short lancet windows of E. Eng. work. In the chancel are some modern brasses of the Spilsbury family (1864–78), and on the nave floor two white gravestones, with defaced inscriptions. The Baptists and Wesleyans have chapels. The charities are small.

The Collieries, Willington.

Willington (3), pa., W. Chesh., 3 N.W. of Tarporley; ac. 910; soil light, overlying sandstone and clay. W. Hall is a seat.

Willington (4), eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Wear, pa. of Brancepeth (q.v.), S. Dur., 4 N. of Bishop Auckland; ac. 1,472. The church of St. Stephen is a modern Gothic building. Here are Catholic, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and New Connexion Methodist chapels. There are very extensive collieries and a great number of coke ovens.

Willington (5), eccl. pa., pa. of Wallsend (q.v.), S. Northumb., 5 N.E. of Newcastle-on-Tyne. The church of St. Mary is in Gothic style. Here are also Reformed Methodist and Wesleyan chapels and a Presbyterian church.

Willington (6), tp., pa. of Hanmer (q.v.), S.E. Flints., 6 S.W. of Whitechurch; ac. 1,950.

Willington (7), ha., pa. of Barcheston (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 1½ S.E. of Shipston-on-Stour.

Willington Quay, to. on the Tyne, pa. of Wallsend (q.v.), S. Northumb., 4½ E. by N. of Newcastle. It contains the eccl. pa. of Willington (q.v.), and here are also Catholic, United Presbyterian and Free Methodist chapels. George Stephenson resided here, and the site of his cottage is now occupied

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Willingham, Cherry	Reepham (1)	135	119
Willingham, North	Market Rasen (4)	145	172
Willingham, South	South Willingham	140	313
Willington (1)	Cardington (2)	53	234
Willington (2)	Repton and W.	132	596
Willington (3)	Beeston Castle (5)	169	153

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Willington (4), ec. pa.	Willington	248	6850
Willington (4), tp.	Willington	248	5107
Willington (5)	Howdon-on-T. (1½)	276	2073
Willington (6)	Ellesmere (5)	182	288
Willington Quay	Willington Quay	278	6383

by the Stephenson Memorial Institute; he was at this time employed as a brakesman, but continued to interest himself with various mechanical experiments, and practised as a repairer of clocks; during his residence here his son Robert was born (Dec. 16, 1803). The Mechanics' or Stephenson Memorial Institute, in Church Street, is in a simple style of E. Gothic; it comprises reading and recreation rooms and a library. Here are iron, shipbuilding, engineering, smelting, and cement works, and chemical manufactories.

Willisham, pa. and small vil., S.E. Suff., 7½ N.W. of Ipswich; ac. 916; soil heavy, overlying principally clay. The church of St. Mary, in a most picturesque position, was rebuilt in Norm. style on the old foundations in 1878. The charities amount to about £9 a year.

Willitoft, tp., pa. of Bubwith (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 1 W. of Gribthorpe; ac. 1,628.

Williton, small to., pa. of St. Decuman's (q.v.), W. Somerset, pleasantly situated on the road from Taunton to Minehead, from which it is about 8 S. The church of St. Peter (restored) is E. Eng. Here are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. In the reign of Henry II. this place was the residence of Sir Reginald Fitz-Urse, one of the four knights who took part in the murder of Archbishop Thomas à Becket. A fair for cattle is held the second Monday in Dec. Markets are held during the summer months on the second and fourth Mondays in the month, and during the remainder of the year on the second Monday only. Orchard Wyndham is beautifully situated in a pleasant vale about 1 W. of the to.; the mansion is surrounded by fine lawns and a picturesque and thickly wooded park.

Willmington, ha., pa. of Priston (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, about 4 S.W. of Bath.

Willough Beck, stream, N.R. Yorks., runs about 3 W. by S. to the Swale, which it joins at Dalton.

Willoughby (1), pa. and pleasant vil., E. Lincs., 8 N.E. of Spilsby; ac. 4,280; soil heavy loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Helen (restored 1878–79) is Perp.; in the church is an inscribed stone to Gilbert West (d. 1404), and another stone with the bust of a man in low-relief. The rectory, a good house, is surrounded by a moat. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. There is a charity of £10 yearly for apprenticing poor boys, and £6 is distributed yearly amongst the poor in boots and shoes. W. was formerly a Roman station, and to the west is a large camp, supposed to be Danish.

Willoughby (2) (in Domesday "Wilbere," "Wilebre," "Wilebene," and "Wilebec"), pa. and ancient vil., S.E. Warws., on the borders of Northants, 7½ S. of Rugby; ac. 1,704; soil clay and some gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas is E. Eng.; there are monuments to Thomas Clerk (d. 1663), Henry Clerk, president of Magdalen College, Oxford (d. 1687), and to Captain George Watson (d. 1674). Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £300 a year.

Willoughby (3). [SCOTT WILLOUGHBY, SILK WILLOUGHBY.]

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Willisham	Needham (3)	77	177
Willitoft	Bubwith (1)	181	48
Willoughby (1)	Welton (4)	75	524
Willoughby (2)	Willoughby	128	282
Will'ghby-on-the-W.	UpperBroughton(1½)	113	414

Willoughby (4), ha., pa. of and ¾ N.E. from Norwell (q.v.), Mid Notts.

Willoughby (5), ha., pa. of and ¼ E. from Walesby (q.v.), N. Notts.

Willoughby-on-the-Wolds, pa. and vil., S. Notts., 7 N.E. of Loughborough; ac. 2,103; soil principally clay, overlying lias clay. The church of St. Mary and All Saints (restored 1891) is E. Dec., and contains seven fine monuments to the Willoughby family, and a brass to Colonel Stanhope, slain in a battle fought here between the Royalist and Parliamentary forces in 1648. The font is said to be Norm., and there are two piscinæ. The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. A charity of £2 10s. yearly is partly appropriated to educational purposes. Cross Hill is an old barrow on which games were yearly held.

Willoughby Waterless, pa. and vil., S. Leics., 6 N.E. of Lutterworth; ac. 1,140; soil and subsoil gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1874–75) is chiefly Norm. and Dec., and contains in the chancel sedilia and a piscina. There is a Baptist chapel.

Willoughby, West, ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Ancaster (q.v.), S. Lincs.

Willoughton, pa. and vil. near the Wolds, N. Lincs., 9 E. of Gainsborough; ac. 2,684; soil sandy mould in the high land, and clay in the low land, overlying sand and clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1888) is a plain building of stone; the chancel arch, which is E. Eng., and a Jacobean tomb in the chancel are the only remains of the original church. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Willowbridge, ha., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Ashley (q.v.), N.W. Staffs.

Willsbridge, ha., pa. of Bitton (q.v.), S.W. Glouc., 7 S.E. of Bristol.

Wills Pastures, or Lower Hodnell, pa., E. Warws., about 3½ S. of Southam; ac. 145.

Willybrook, river, N.E. Northants, rises at Corby in Rockingham Forest, and winds in a north-east direction through Deene Park and by Bulwick Park and Blatherwycke Park to King's Cliffe. Here it alters its direction, and, pursuing a sinuous course past Apethorpe, Wood Newton, and Fotheringay, joins the Ouse 4 N.N.E. of Oundle. The length of the river is about 15 miles.

Wilmcote, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Aston Cantlow (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 4 N.W. of Stratford-on-Avon. The church of St. Andrew (1843) is in E. Eng. style. There is a Congregational chapel. There was a chapel here, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, as early as 1368. The Stratford-on-Avon Canal intersects this pa. There are extensive quarry and cement works.

Wilmington (1), pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 6 N.W. of Eastbourne; ac. 1,788; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of SS. Mary and Peter (restored 1883) retains some Norm. portions. Here are the ruins of a Benedictine priory, founded in 1088 by the Earl of Moreton; the gateway, of the 15th cent., with flanking turrets, still exists;

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Willoughby Waterl's	Countesthorpe (2)	98	279
Willoughton	Northorpe (3)	155	457
Wills Pastures	Fenny Compton (3)	85	7
Wilmcote	Wilmcote	113	422
Wilmington (1)	Berwick (2½)	58	274

other remains serve as a farmhouse, including the former porter's lodge, with a groined roof, and a crypt or cellar 23 ft. square, with a central pillar. The Green or Long Man of W. was originally a very rude and narrow outline of a man cut in the turf on the side of the chalk downs; the arms were partly extended, a staff was clasped by the right hand and a scythe by the left; this figure, supposed to have represented a husbandman, has been renewed (a staff similar to that in the right hand being substituted for the scythe) and the outline marked with white brick, by subscription, under the direction of the Sussex Archæological Society; it was again renewed in 1893; there is a similar figure on a hill near Cerne Abbas, Dorsetshire.

Wilmington (2), pa. and vil., N.W. Kent, forming a suburb of Dartford; ac. 1,715; soil loam, overlying gravel, chalk, and clay. The pa. is surrounded by gardens and cherry orchards. The church of St. Michael is chiefly Perp.; during some alterations in 1883 two Saxon windows were exposed at the west end of the nave. The Saxon font which was lying in the churchyard has been restored, and a Perp. holy-water stoup has been placed in the sanctuary as a piscina. The Masonic Hall and buildings were erected in 1883. The Retreat for aged governesses consists of five cottages, each containing two rooms. There are some charities. The manor-house, of which only the wall of the kitchen garden now remains, was the residence of the Earl of Warwick, the King Maker.

Wilmington (3), vil., pas. of Offwell and Widworthy (q.v.), E. Dev., 1 N.E. of Offwell.

Wilmington (4), ha., pa. of and 3 N. from Priston (q.v.), N. Somerset.

Wilmslow, pa. and to. on the Bollin, N.E. Chesh., 6 N.W. of Macclesfield; ac. 8,064. W. is a picturesque little to.; it has grown much of late years and is now a favourite place of residence. The church of St. Bartholomew is a handsome and spacious cruciform edifice, mainly Perp., with portions dating from the 12th cent.; it retains an ancient rood-screen and monuments of the 15th and 16th cents., including brasses with figures of Sir Richard de Bothe (d. 1459) and his lady. The other places of worship include a Roman Catholic church and Baptist, Wesleyan, Methodist New Connexion, Congregational, and Unitarian chapels. Fulshaw Hall (a picturesque old gabled edifice with bay windows), Hawthorne Hall, Norcliffe Hall, and Pownall Hall are seats.

Wilne, pa. and vil., S. Derbys., 6½ S.E. of Derby; ac. 5,713. The church of St. Chad is E. Eng.; the chancel retains a piscina; a mortuary chapel belonging to the Willoughby family is divided from the rest of the church by a carved oak screen. In the church are monuments to Hugh Willoughby (1491) and Isabel his wife, besides others to the Scott family. There is a very early font with carvings symbolising the triumph of Christianity over Paganism. The pa. contains some extensive cotton factories.

Wilnecote, eccl. pa. (extending into the pa. of Polesworth), tp., and vil. on Watling Street, pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Tamworth (q.v.), N. Warws.; ac. 1,012. The church of the Holy Trinity (rebuilt 1821) is in E. Eng. style, and the Congregationalists and Wesleyans have chapels. There is a large colliery, and the vil. possesses valuable clay beds, and has been for years famous for the manufacture of bricks, tiles, and pottery ware.

Wilne, Great, ha. on the Derwent, pa. of and 2 N.E. from Shardlow (q.v.), S. Derbys. There is a Methodist New Connexion chapel.

Wilpshire, tp., pa. of and 3 N. from Blackburn (q.v.), Mid Lancs.; ac. 1,002. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Wilsden, eccl. pa. (Wilsden-with-Allerton), tp., and vil., pa. of Bradford (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Keighley; ac. 2,607. The church of St. Matthew is in Perp. style, and there are various Nonconformist chapels. The Mechanics' Institute (erected 1837) contains a library, a lecture-room, and an interesting museum. Worsted spinning and the manufacture of stuffs are carried on here, and there are several coal pits in the neighbourhood. Bradford obtains its greatest supply of water from springs in this tp., called Many Wells, and considered to be amongst the most copious in England. Goitstock Woods and Waterfall, in this neighbourhood, and other interesting spots, give a romantic character to the scenery.

Wilsden-with-Allerton. [WILSDEN.]

Wilseck. [STANCILL WITH WELLINGLEY AND WILSECK.]

Wilsford (1), or Wilsford-near-Salisbury, pa. and vil. on the Avon, S. Wilts., 2½ S.W. of Amesbury; ac. 1,603; soil light and chalky, overlying chalk. The church of St. Michael was rebuilt, with the exception of the Norm. tower, in 1858; it contains monuments to the Duke family. On the downs are many barrows. Lake House, an Elizabethan mansion embosomed in woods, and W. House, a handsome mansion, are seats.

Wilsford (2), or Wilsford-near-Pewsey, pa., tp., and vil. on the Avon, E. Wilts., 7 S.E. of Devizes; ac. of pa. 2,997, of tp. 1,603; soil and subsoil greensand, with some clay. The church of St. Nicholas is Norm. and E. Eng.; the pulpit dates from the early part of the 17th cent.

Wilsford (3), pa. and small vil., S. Lincs., 9 N.E. of Grantham; ac. 2,860; soil various, subsoil principally stone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1860) is Norm., E. Eng., Dec., and Perp. The E. Eng. chancel, repaired by Roger Warde, rector, in 1479, as appears from an inscription on his tomb, retains a double piscina, a credence, and an aumbry on either side, and has also some remains of Norm. work; the axis of the chancel diverges considerably from that of the nave; the old bench ends have been preserved. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Sir Charles Cotterell, of Queen's College, Cambridge, Master of Ceremonies to

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wilmington (2)	Farningdon Road (½)	21	1722
Wilmslow, pa.	Wilmslow	177	9744
Wilmslow, to.	Wilmslow	177	6344
Wilne	Sawley (1½)	121	2210
Wilnecote, eccl. pa.	Wilnecote	128	2933
Wilnecote, tp.	Wilnecote	128	2351
Wilpshire	Wilpshire	213	413
Wilsden	Wilsden (1)	200	2503
Wilsden-with-A.	Wilsden (1)	200	2764
Wilsford (1)	Salisbury (7½)	84	414
Wilsford (2), pa.	Woodboro' (3)	79	197
Wilsford (2), tp.	Woodboro' (3)	79	174
Wilsford (3)	Ancaster (1½)	115	687

Charles II., was born here. A priory founded here in the reign of Stephen, as a cell to the Abbey of Bec in Normandy, was afterwards given to Bourn Abbey, and at the Dissolution was granted to Charles, Duke of Suffolk; traces of the buildings are still evident. On the heath, enclosed in 1775, are the celebrated W. quarries, which produce a white and durable freestone, commonly called "Ancaster stone," from its having been first wrought in that pa.; many of the churches, public edifices, and mansions in this co. have been built of this stone. W. Hall, a 17th-cent. building, is a seat.

Wilsford-near-Pewsey. [WILSFORD (1).]

Wilsford-near-Salisbury. [WILSFORD (2).]

Wilshamstead, or Wilstead (formerly called "Williamstead"), pa. and vil., N. Beds., 4 s. of Bedford; ac. 3,027; soil cold loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1873) is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp.; there is a very ancient font and a piscina, and in the north aisle is a brass, with the effigy of a priest fully vested, with Latin inscription. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are charities of £8 yearly value for distribution.

Wilshaw, eccl. pa., pa. of Almondbury (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 s.w. of Huddersfield. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was erected in 1863. There are six almshouses. A cattle fair is held in April and October.

Wilsill, ha., pa. of Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1½ s.e. from Pateley Bridge.

Wilson, ha., pa. of Breedon-on-the-Hill (q.v.), Mid Leics., 2¾ s. of Castle Donington. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Wilsontown, vil. on Mouse Water, pa. of Carnwath (q.v.), N.E. Lanarks., Sc., 6 s.s.w. of West Calder. The vil. is named from the family of Wilson, who established ironworks here in 1779. The inhabitants are now occupied chiefly in coal-mining. The vil. contains a Free church. The sculptor James Fillans (1808–52) was born here.

Wilstead. [WILSHAMSTEAD.]

Wilsthorpe (1), tp., pa. of Greatford (q.v.), S. Lincs., 2 s.e. of Braceborough; ac. 800. The old church was pulled down in 1715 and a new one (reconstructed 1862) built in E. Eng. style; it contains an ancient effigy of a knight in mail armour of the 13th cent. Here is the pumping-house of the Peterborough waterworks. Many Roman coins have been found here.

Wilsthorpe (2), tp., pa. of Bridlington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 2 s. of Bridlington; ac. 276.

Wilsthorpe (3), ha., pa. of Sawley (q.v.), S. Derbys., 1½ N. from Sawley vil. The Derby and Erewash Canals pass through this ha. [SAWLEY AND WILSTHORPE.]

Wilstone, chap. and small ha., pa. of Tring (q.v.), W. Herts., 6½ E. of Aylesbury. The vil. is pleasantly situated in a valley under the hills, on the Aylesbury Canal. The church of St. Cross (1877) is in E. Eng. style. Straw-plaiting is the principal employment of the women and girls.

Wilstrop, tp., pa. of and 1½ E. from Kirk Hammerton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,079.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wilshamstead	Bedford (4)	50	787
Wilshaw	Huddersfield (6)	188	287
Wilsontown	Wilsontown	382	651
Wilsthorpe (1)	Braceboro' Spa (2)	91	84
Wilsthorpe (2)	Bridlington (2)	225	16

Wilsworthy, ha., pa. of and 2½ N.E. from St. Peter Tavy (q.v.), S. Dev.

Wilton (1), mun. bor., pa., and U. to., near the confluence of the Nadder and Wiley, S. Wilts., 3 N.W. of Salisbury; ac. of mun. bor. 1,915, of pa. 1,827; soil alluvial and clay, overlying chalk and gravel. The to. is supposed by Baxter to have been the Caer Guilo, or capital of the British prince Caroilius, and subsequently an important seat of the West Saxons; it was certainly an important place previous to the Norman accession; in 871 King Alfred fought a battle against the Danes. It was in 1579 visited by Queen Elizabeth, and in 1603 it was for a time the residence of the Court. The bor. first sent two members to Parliament in 23rd Edward I.; in 1885 it lost its separate representation, and was made the head of a parl. div. From a period prior to the reign of Henry I., W. has been a corporate bor. The church of SS. Mary and Nicholas was built by Lord Herbert of Lea and the Countess of Pembroke in 1844, in lieu of the old one; it is in the Romanesque style, and richly decorated; the pulpit is of Caen stone, supported by 16 black marble pillars; the body of it is beautifully inlaid with mosaic work, brought from the church of Santa Maria Maggiore. The church contains a marble bust of Henry, ninth Earl of Pembroke, who held many offices of state under George II.; also monuments with two recumbent figures in white marble of the Countess of Pembroke and Lord Herbert of Lea. Here also are Nonconformist places of worship. W. is noted as the first place in England where carpeting was manufactured, and in addition to W. carpets the celebrated Axminster carpets are largely produced; there is also a large pianoforte-felt factory. Fairs are held on May 4 for horses, cattle, and sheep, and on September 12, when between 90,000 and 100,000 sheep are generally penned, this being one of the largest fairs in the west of England. The charities are important, and there is an endowment for a trained nurse for the poor. [DITCHAMPTON.] At the Dissolution W. Abbey, founded in very remote times, was granted to Sir William Herbert, afterwards Earl of Pembroke, who commenced the erection of W. House, the present stately pile, on the ancient site; the designs were by Holbein and Inigo Jones. Here Sir Philip Sidney is said to have composed the "Arcadia"; in this house is an extensive and beautiful collection of paintings, several of them Vandykes, and one of the finest collections of that eminent artist, and ancient marble sculpture, and also many suits of armour, several being trophies from the battle of St. Quentin in 1557, at which an Earl of Pembroke commanded the English; the river Nadder flows through the grounds, and is crossed by an elegant bridge with an open Ionic colonnade; the park of 250 ac. contains some fine cedars and a herd of deer.

Wilton (2), pa., W. Somerset, within the bor. of Taunton; ac. 700. The church of St. George is Perp., with some slight remains of E. Eng. work.

Wilton (3), pa. and vil., N.R. Yorks., 4 s. of Redcar; ac. 4,050 and 641 of tidal water and for-

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POP.
Wilstrop	Marston (1)	194	[illegible]
Wilton (1), pa.	Wilton	86	[illegible]
Wilton (1), mun. bor.	Wilton	86	[illegible]
Wilton (2)	Taunton (1)	158	[illegible]
Wilton (3)	Eston Grange (1)	225	[illegible]

shore; soil clay, overlying ironstone. The church of St. Cuthbert (partially restored 1850) is E. Eng., with an E. Norm. porch, and contains two 16th-cent. recumbent figures of Sir William and Lady Bulmer. W. Castle, an embattled structure rebuilt about 1807, is a seat.

Wilton (4), chap. and tp., pa. of Ellerburne (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 E. of Pickering; ac. 1,784. The church (dedication unknown) is Norm.

Wilton (5), ha. on the Wye, pa. of Bridstow (q.v.), S. Herefords., about 1 W. of Ross. Just above the bridge which here crosses the river stand the remains of W. Castle.

Wilton (6), ha., pa. of Haile (q.v.), W. Cumb., 2 E. of Egremont.

Wilton (7), vil., pa. of Hockwold-with-Wilton (q.v.), S.W. Norf., 4 W. of Brandon.

Wilton (8), pa. and vil., W. Roxbs., ½ N.W. of Hawick; ac. 8,760; soil various, mostly productive. The pa. is bounded by the Teviot on the east and by Borthwick Water on the south; the greater part of it is now included in Hawick parl. bor. The vil., situated on the left bank of the Teviot, forms a north-west suburb of Hawick (q.v.), with which it is connected by two stone bridges. The hill-ridges in this pa. enclosing the valley of the Teviot render the scenery near Hawick extremely picturesque. The Established church (1861) is in E. Eng. style. Stirches and W. Lodge are seats.

Wilton, Bishop. [BISHOP WILTON.]

Wilton Division, one of the five parl. divs. of Wilts.; it lies in the south of the co., and returns one member.

Wilts and Berks Canal, N.W. Wilts. and N.W. Berks., runs from the Kennet and Avon Canal at Semington to the Thames at Abingdon. Its course is N.N.W. past Melksham and Chippenham to the pa. of Clack, and then W. by N. past Wootton Bassett, Swindon, Shrivenham, and Wantage. The canal passes through the Vale of White Horse. It was constructed in 1801, and is 69 miles in length.

Wilts Canal, North, N.W. Wilts., runs 8 N.N.W. and N. from the Wilts and Berks Canal near Swindon to the Thames and Severn Canal near Cricklade. The canal was constructed in 1813, and has twelve locks.

Wiltshire, a south-western inland co. of England, south of the Thames, bounded on the north-west by Gloucestershire, on the north-east by Berks., on the east by Hants, on the south by Hants and Dorset, and on the west by Somerset; its shape is generally oblong, but rounded towards the north. Its greatest length from north to south is 54 miles, and the greatest breadth from east to west 37 miles; ac. 880,248, of which 2,110 are heath land. N.E. Wilts. is drained by the feeders of the Thames, N.W. Wilts. by those of the Severn, and S. Wilts. by the heads of the Salisbury Avon. Another important river is the North, or Bristol, Avon, with its feeders. Wiltshire has in the north three great lines of canal. The Thames and Severn Canal skirts the north border; the Kennet and Avon Canal passes through the middle of the co. to Bath and Bristol; the Wilts and Berks Canal joins the above south of Melksham, and then is itself joined to the Thames and Severn Canal by a branch between Cricklade and Swindon. South Wilts. is almost destitute of canal service. Railway communication is effected by the Great Western and London and South-Western Companies and their branches and connections. In South Wilts. and North-East Wilts. there is tillage only in the dales. The great downs are grazed by sheep, though in some places they have been broken up for tillage. North-West Wilts. has a subsoil of broken stone, with clay or reddish chalky loam lying upon it; here are richer soils, with much corn land, meadow and dairy ground; the grazing is for cows and oxen, and much cheese is made. The curing of bacon is carried on largely, principally at Calne, and many thousand pigs are slaughtered yearly. There is little market gardening. The co. yields limestone and freestone, chalk, marl, brick-earth, corn, oxen, cheese, sheep and wool. Iron ore is raised, and there are works for smelting at Westbury; the quarrying of freestone is a considerable industry. Wilts. was formerly a great seat of the clothing trade, but this has much fallen off, though in and around Bradford-on-Avon are many mills and looms. The municipal boroughs are Calne, Chippenham, Devizes, Marlborough, Salisbury, and Wilton. Other towns are Bradford-on-Avon, Cricklade, Downton, Malmesbury, Melksham, New Swindon, Trowbridge, Warminster, Westbury, and Wootton Bassett. Many of these are very well built, and with good churches and town buildings. Salisbury is well known for its cathedral. There is a large college or grammar school at Marlborough, and grammar schools in the large towns. There are no watering places or towns of resort other than for the purposes of business. Swindon has large works of the Great Western Railway. W. seems to take its name from Wilton, the town on the Wiley; it was first held by the Britons. The Romans, under Vespasian, took the country and built many towns and laid out roads. Sorbiodunum (Old Sarum) seems to have been of some note. The Welsh, who invaded the co., were repulsed with great slaughter, but from the end of the 9th to the beginning of the 11th cent. it was frequently overrun by the Danes. In the Parliamentary war there was a battle in 1643 on Roundway Down, and the castles and towns of Salisbury, Marlborough, Devizes, Malmesbury, Ludgershall, Warminster, and Wardour were besieged. For parliamentary purposes the co. has five divisions, Chippenham, Cricklade, Devizes, Westbury, and Wilton, each with one member. The rocks belong mainly to the Secondary or Mesozoic epoch; they run across the co. in broad irregular bands, which have a general line of direction or strike from north-east to south-west; they incline or slant or dip to the south-east, not lying now horizontally as they did when they were originally deposited on some sea-floor, but tilted up towards the north-west, so that the edges of a number of successive rock-beds are visible. The entire co. may be divided into two regions, whose wide difference in appearance, agriculture, and population is entirely owing to geological causes. The first of these lies in the north-west, and includes about one-third of the co.; it has a level or undulating surface and a south-easterly slope; it is a district of oolitic limestones and clays, and

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wilton (4)	Wilton (1)	242	151
Wilton (8)	Hawick (½)	344	6375

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wilton Division	.....	.....	42896
Wiltshire	.....	.....	264997

the chalk escarpment forms its boundary. The remainder—the southern and eastern parts—is mainly formed of chalk, where breezy downs and long level treeless plateaux have a distinctiveness which reveals the nature of the rock of which they are composed. The Liassic strata only enter Wilts. in the extreme west, running up the valley of the Box Brook. Of the Oolitic strata, the most important is the Great Oolite, also known as the Bath Oolite, which furnishes perhaps the most famous building stone in England. From near Limpley Stoke and Corsham it can be traced to Yatton Keynell and Castle Combe; it is again exposed in the valley which runs east and west by Great Sherston, and on the east of Tetbury. When first removed from the quarry the stone is soft and moist, and easily carved or sawn, but as it dries it hardens and becomes an excellent hard white stone. The Portland beds at Chilmark and Tisbury also yield good building stone, used in the erection of Salisbury Cathedral and Wilton Abbey. To the Greensand belong some sandy beds, which commence near Poulshot Green. The Chalk occupies a larger area in the co. than all the other strata together. From Cranborne Chase it stretches over Salisbury Plain, and then passes north-east by Marlborough; its total thickness is here about 800 feet, in which the following subdivisions can be traced:—The Marl, about 6 ft. thick; the Chalk Marl (locally called Malm), or Grey Chalk, about 50 ft. thick; the Lower Chalk, or Chalk-without-flints, about 300 ft. thick; the Upper Chalk, or Chalk-with-flints, about 400 ft. thick; the layers of flint which mark the planes of bedding form a conspicuous feature in pits in the Upper Chalk. Fossils are common, mostly rounded sea-urchins, with remains of sponges. The Upper Chalk forms a white land, with a scanty covering of soil and a short sweet turf; beech and box grow well upon it, and it affords pasturage for great flocks of sheep; much of it, however, has of late years been brought under cultivation. The great expanse of this rock is the centre whence all the ranges of chalk traversing our island diverge. There are many pits or quarries where the chalk is worked to burn into lime. Belonging to the Tertiary epoch are some Eocene beds, about 5 S.E. of Salisbury, and at Great and Little Bedwin are Sarsens, or Grey Wethers, huge blocks of a siliceous sandstone, which are strewn in great numbers over the surface of the Chalk. The circles of Stonehenge and Avebury are mainly formed of these stones; the inner circles at Stonehenge, however, are of greenstone; similar, Professor Ramsay says, to some of the Silurian rocks of North Wales. The co. is rich in relics of prehistoric man; rough and polished flint tools and weapons have been found, and a collection of these is in the museum at Salisbury. [AVEBURY, SILBURY HILL, STONEHENGE.]

Wily. [WYLYE.]

Wim, another name for the Allen. [ALLEN (2).]

WIMBLEDON COMMON.

Wimbish, pa. and vil., N. Essex, 4½ S. of Saffron Walden; ac. 4,920; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1868) is chiefly Dec. In the porch, which has a Norm. arch, is a stoup, and near the vestry entrance is a small but fine brass to Sir John de Wantone (d. 1347) and Ellen his wife, within the head of a mutilated cross. There is some fine glass of the 15th cent. in the vestry windows.

Wimbish Green, ha., pa. of and 1½ S. from Wimbish (q.v.), N. Essex.

Wimbledon, pa. and to. at the N.E. extremity of W. Common (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, 3 S.W. of Wandsworth; ac. 3,173 and 47 water. W. is one of the oldest historical places in England, and under its earlier name, "Wibbandune," was, it is believed, in 568, the scene of a battle between Ceawlin, King of Wessex, and Ethelbert, King of Kent, in which the latter was defeated; a circular encampment of 7 ac., called "Bensbury," at the south-west corner of the common, remains, and there is a still lingering tradition that Julius Cæsar encamped here B.C. 54. The pa. church (rebuilt 1833) is in Perp. style; there is a small mortuary chapel on the south side of the chancel, erected by Sir Edward Cecil, Viscount Wimbledon, in the early

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Wimbish	....	729

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Wimbledon	Wimbledon	7	25761

part of the 17th cent., containing an altar-tomb of black marble to the Viscount (d. 1638) and to other members of the Cecil family. In the churchyard is the tomb of one Hopkins, a usurer, mentioned by Pope as "Vulture Hopkins." There are also eccl. pas. with modern churches and chapel-of-ease, and the Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Free Public Library (1887) is a brick building with stone dressings. W. has three hospitals—the Cottage Hospital (1869), one for infectious diseases (1877), and the Atkinson Morley Convalescent Hospital (1867), which commemorates the name of the donor. There are twelve almshouses, founded in 1838 and supported mainly by an endowment fund. The charities for distribution amount to about £220 yearly. John Horne Tooke resided at W., in one of the fine old houses on the west side of the common, and died here (1812); in another, on the south side, the philanthropist, William Wilberforce, spent his boyhood, after the death of his father in 1768. In the manor of W. the custom of "borough English"—the descent of lands to the youngest child—prevails.

Wimbledon Common, pa. of Wimbledon (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, consists of about 1,000 ac., and is under the control of a Board of Conservators; it adjoins Putney Heath, and the views are picturesque, from the undulating nature of the ground; Cæsar's camp here is a circular entrenchment or earthwork. The National Rifle Association, founded in 1860, held its meetings on the common annually in July, for twelve days, up to 1889, when the meetings were transferred to new ground at Bisley, commencing there in the summer of 1890.

Wimbledon (or North-Eastern) Division, one of the six parl. divs. of Surrey; it returns one member.

Wimbledon Park, eccl. pa., pa. of Wandsworth (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, about 3 S.W. of Wandsworth. The church is dedicated to St. Paul.

Wimblington, pa. and vil., Isle of Ely, N. Cambs., 3 S. of March, on the road to Chatteris; ac. 7,565; soil clayey, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is a modern building in Gothic style; there are also two Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. At Stonea Grange, a short distance from the vil., there was formerly a Roman station, traces of which still remain, and on the site of which coins have been frequently found; it is considered by some antiquaries to have been originally formed by the early inhabitants of these isles for the purpose of enclosing their cattle during the winter time, and afterwards to have been occupied as a military encampment.

Wimboldsley, tp. on the Weaver, pa. of and 2 S.W. from Middlewich (q.v.), Mid Chesh.; ac. 1,690. Lea Hall, now a farmhouse, is an old half-timbered mansion, formerly enclosed by a moat, which has been filled up with the exception of a small portion on the western side.

Wimbolds Trafford, tp., pa. of Thornton-le-Moors (q.v.), W. Chesh., 4 N.E. of Chester; ac. 574. W. T. Hall is a seat.

Wimborne, or Wimborne Minster, pa., U. and mkt. to. (F.), head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., E. Dorset, 6 N. of Poole; ac. 12,848; soil light loam, overlying clay and gravel. From the small river Wim, or Allen, and the Saxon word "bourne" (a brook), and its minster, its name is derived. It is called by Richard of Cirencester "Venta" and "Ventageladia"; by Antonine, "Vindocladia"; and by Ravenna, "Bindogladia"; the Saxons called it "Viburnan," and Henry of Huntingdon styles it "Winburnham." During the Saxon period, according to Camden, it was a place of much note and may have been a Roman station. The collegiate church of St. Cuthberga belonged to a college of secular canons founded here in 1043 by Edward the Confessor. The church is a cruciform structure, consisting of choir and presbytery, with aisles, transepts, central tower, nave of six bays, with aisles, north and south porches, crypt below the choir, sacristy, and a western tower. The finest part of the building is the E. Eng. choir and presbytery, an addition to the Norm. choir, one arch of which remains next to the tower piers; the clerestory of the choir was several times altered and finally removed. On the south side are three graduated sedilia, with canopies, continued over a piscina; the reredos is adorned with fine mosaic work, encaustic tiles, and carving in Belgian marble; fourteen of the eighteen stalls, dating from 1610, remain, but the screen and canopies have been removed; below the choir is a Dec. crypt. The presbytery is considerably higher than the rest of the church and is approached by fifteen steps disposed at intervals; on the south side is an altar-tomb, with alabaster effigies, to John Beaufort, Duke of Somerset (1444), and Margaret (Beauchamp) his wife; and opposite, another altar-tomb to Gertrude (Blount), wife of Henry Courtenay, Marquess of Exeter (1557); near this tomb is a floor slab of Purbeck marble, with a copper plate bearing an inscription to King Ethelred, eldest brother of Alfred the Great, who was buried here in 871. The north choir aisle, also called St. George's aisle, retains a piscina in the east wall and a chest with six locks, containing muniments; here also is the parish chest, the records preserved in which include accounts from 1475. There is a fine mural monument in the Renaissance style to Sir Edmund Uvedale, Knight (1606), with effigy in plate armour recumbent on a high base; also the mutilated effigy of a Crusader, bearing a shield with the arms of Herbert. The south choir, or Trinity aisle, has a piscina and contains a chest formed out of solid oak trunk with six locks; in this aisle is a brass to William Smith, B.D., Fellow of Eton College, preacher here (1587); and a tomb, with arms, to Anthony Ettricke, first Recorder of Poole, who as a magistrate committed the Duke of Monmouth (1703); there remains a portion of the tomb of John de Berwick, dean (1312); in this aisle was a chantry, founded in 1496. The arms of the transepts are unequal; at the intersection are the massive Norm. piers and arches sustaining the central tower; these constitute the oldest portion of the existing church and formed part of the original fabric; the lantern has triforium and clerestory, and with the exception of the topmost storey is open to the church. The western tower, erected at intervals between 1448 and 1464, is 87 ft.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wimbledon Division	.....	.....	69239
Wimbledon Park	Wimbledon Park	8	1997
Wimblington	Wimblington	79	1158
Wimboldsley	Winsford (2)	166	219
Wimbolds Trafford	Dunham Hill	184	93
Wimborne	Wimborne	109	6253

in height; on the south wall is a curious old orrery on the Ptolemaic system, with the earth in the centre, worked by a rod from the clock, and dating from c. 1320. Attached to the south choir aisle is a vaulted sacristy of the Dec. period, and over it a Perp. library, reached by a turret stair; the books were given in 1686 by the Rev. William Stone for the free use of the townsfolk; they are about 243 in number, many having chains. The church of the eccl. pa. of St. John is in E. Eng. style, and there are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Free Grammar School was originally founded by the Lady Margaret, Countess of Richmond and mother of Henry VII., and was re-established by Queen Elizabeth; it is now administered under a scheme (1877) approved by the Charity Commissioners. Exclusive of the church estate and St. Margaret's almshouses, there are charities of about £360 a year, distributable according to the will of the donors.

Wimborne St. Giles, pa. and vil., E. Dorset, 8½ N. of Wimborne; ac. 5,936 and 11 water; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Giles is a Georgian structure, the interior of which has been remodelled and beautified. Here are the tombs of the Earls of Shaftesbury. There are almshouses for aged persons. St. Giles's House, the seat of the Earl of Shaftesbury, is principally in Elizabethan style; it is situated in a beautifully wooded park, containing 423 ac., including the lake, which is 7 ac. in extent; in the pleasure grounds attached to the mansion is a grotto, principally composed of Indian shells, erected about 150 years since. The Allen (a trout stream) skirts the pleasure grounds on the west.

Wimbotsham, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, S.W. Norf., 1 N. of Downham Market, on the road to Lynn; ac. 1,510; soil and subsoil clay and sand. The church of St. Mary, on rising ground, was originally Norm.; the north and south doorways are fine specimens of the architecture of that period; in 1854 the church was restored, the chancel being entirely rebuilt. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Between £40 and £50 yearly from the fuel allotment is for coals.

Wimpole, pa., W. Cambs., about 8 N.W. of Royston; ac. 2,428; soil stiff clay, overlying clay and gault. The church of St. Andrew (rebuilt with the exception of the chantry in 1749) is in Dec. and Perp. style; there are many marble monuments to former lords of the manor, an altar-tomb to a member of the Chichele family, and in the chantry chapel are many memorials to members of the Yorke family, including an imposing monument to Lord Chancellor Hardwicke, who rebuilt the nave, and an altar-tomb, with recumbent effigy, in marble, to Philip, third Earl of Hardwicke (d. 1834). The Chichele charity of £20 yearly is for fuel, and Beho's of £1 1s. for bread. W. Hall is a spacious brick mansion, the central part of which was built by Sir Thomas Chichele about 1632, the wings being added by Lord Oxford, and the house newly fronted and the principal apartments fitted up by Philip, first Earl of Hardwicke and Lord Chancellor, in 1736–37. It contains a valuable collection of pictures by old masters; the deer park, which consists of 300 ac., contains two small lakes, and in front of the house is a spacious avenue extending 2¾ miles in length.

Wimpstone, ha., pa. of Whitchurch (q.v.), S.W. Warws., about 3½ S.E. of Stratford-upon-Avon.

Wincanton, pa. and mkt. to. (w.) on the Cale, from which it derived its ancient name of "Wyndcaleton," E. Somerset, 5 S. of Bruton; ac. 2,478. Stavordale, in this pa., gives the title of viscount to the Fox-Strangways family, Earls of Ilchester The church of SS. Peter and Paul, almost rebuilt 1889, with the exception of the tower, is Perp. The Carmelite Priory in South Street has an attached chapel, dedicated to St. Luke, and there is an Ursuline convent. The principal Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Town Hall, on the west side of the market-place, destroyed by fire in 1877, was rebuilt in the following year, and consists of a spacious hall, used as a court-room and for public meetings, and an arcade beneath used as a market. W. has a Constitutional Club (1884) in High Street, a Freemasons' Hall, and a Good Templars' Hall. The Field Club was formed for the purpose of examining the interesting features of the locality. Fairs are held on Tuesday in Easter week and on Sept. 29. Various charitable bequests, amounting to about £70 annually, have been made at different times, about £40 being allotted to church purposes, and the remainder distributed amongst the poor. In this pa. are the remains of the priory of Stavordale, founded in the reign of Henry III. for Augustinian canons, and dedicated to St. James. But little of the conventual buildings now exists; the shell of the church remains, the choir having been converted into a dwelling-house, and the nave into a barn; on the north side of the choir is an exquisite chapel, with a fan-traceried roof and a panelled arch, by which it opened to the choir; it is now divided into several floors, the lowermost being used as a dairy; in these are some elegant brackets and shields of arms of the Lovel, St. Maur, and Zouch families; the existing work is Perp., and some of the woodwork in the house is of the same period. In the centre of a wood near this to. is the site of a British fort, called by the woodmen "Kennewilkins" or "Kenwalch" Castle. The first blood in the Revolution of 1688 was shed here, the Prince of Orange, who had landed at Torbay on Nov. 5th of that year, being attacked on his way towards London by a party of the King's dragoons. The place suffered by a calamitous fire in 1707, when about forty-four houses were consumed. During the latter part of the war with France, in the beginning of the 19th cent., it was made a depôt for French officers, prisoners of war, more than 400 of whom were at one time resident here. Henry Sacheverell, D.D., impeached by the House of Commons in 1710 for his sermon, was the grandson of John Sacheverell, a Presbyterian minister of this to.

Winceby, pa., E. Lincs., 5 E. of Horncastle; ac. 842; soil mostly heavy loam, overlying white clay. The church of St. Margaret (1866) is in E. Eng. style. A battle was fought here in 1643

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wimborne St. Giles	Verwood (3¼)	101	560
Wimbotsham	Downham (1)	86	573
Wimpole	Old North Road (3)	82	290

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
Wincanton	Wincanton	116	2108
Winceby	Horncastle (4)	130	61

between the Parliamentary forces and the Royal army, resulting in the signal defeat of the latter. The scene of the encounter is still known as Slash Lane.

Wincham, tp., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 1½ N.E. of Northwich; ac. 941. Here is a Free Methodist chapel. There are several rock-salt mines and salt manufactories. W. Hall is a seat.

Winchburgh, small vil., pa. of Kirkliston (q.v.), E. Linliths., Sc., 6 E. of Linlithgow. It has a mission church under Kirkliston. The inhabitants are employed in the large shale works and brick and tile works in the pa.

Winchcomb, pa., ancient mkt. to. (s.), and head of U., co. co. dis. and petty sess. div., N. Glouc., 7 N.E. of Cheltenham; ac. 5,700. W. is in a deep valley, near the N.E. base of the Cotswolds, and was a bor. by prescription, but the corporation is now extinct. The church of St. Peter, erected towards the end of the 15th cent. by Abbot William of Winchecomb, Lord Boteler, and the inhabitants, in place of the ruined church of St. Nicholas, is Perp. The chancel retains a piscina bearing the arms of the founders; a singular 16th-cent. alms box with three locks is affixed to one of the pillars; the octagonal stone font, with cover, dates from 1635. In the chancel is a piscina with two shelves, and above it an embattled corbel supporting a projecting panelled ornament of three sides, adorned with the arms of Lord Boteler and the Abbeys of Winchcombe and Gloucester, and a monument with kneeling effigy to Thomas Williams, Esq. (d. 1636); in 1872 the church was thoroughly restored; in the churchyard stands the base and part of the shaft of a cross. There are Wesleyan, Baptist, and Congregational chapels. The Town Hall, in the centre of the to., was rebuilt in 1871 in Elizabethan style. The Public Reading-room and Library were established in 1868. The fairs are: May 6, for cattle; last Saturday in March and July 28, for horses; two statute fairs are also held for hiring servants, one on the Saturday before, and the other on the Saturday after, Old Michaelmas Day. In the vicinity are flour mills, a paper mill, tan-yard, and a skin-yard and leather-dressing works. There are twelve almshouses (founded c. 1573, and rebuilt 1841). The Chandos arms appear over one of the doorways; the inmates are allowed to receive parish relief. Ten almshouses for poor tradesmen and women were erected in 1866. Charities of £136 are distributed to the poor yearly. Here was formerly a Benedictine abbey; it was refounded by St. Oswald, Archbishop of York, in 985, and was subsequently made a mitred abbey; at its dissolution there were twenty-six monks and ninety servants and officers, with revenues estimated at £759. In the spandrels of the doorway of the George Inn are the initials of Richard Kyderminster, abbot (1488–1531). Here was born, in the reign of Edward IV., John Smallwood, or Winchcomb, better known as "Jack of Newbury," a wealthy clothier, who equipped and led a force of 100 men in the expedition to Scotland in 1513. [NEWBURY.]

Winch, East, pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 5½ S.E. of Lynn; ac. 2,388; soil various, overlying carr stone and clay. The church of All Saints, situated on high ground (restored 1875), is Perp. The organ occupies the site of a chapel of the Howards, Dukes of Norfolk, who formerly held an estate here and had a mansion, the moated foundations of which are still discernible; in the east wall of the organ chamber is a brass tablet recording the burial in 1309 of Sir William Howard, Kt., Justice of the Common Pleas, and founder of the family of the Howards, and of ten other members of the Howard family, to the year 1400. The charities amount to £50 yearly, half of which is devoted to church repairs, and the other half is expended in coal for the poor.

Winchelsea (from gwent-chesel-ey, words signifying the heaping up of shingle banks [chesel] on the seaward edge of the muddy flats), eccl. pa., small corporate to., and a cinque port, formerly a seaport, situated on the road from Rye to Hastings, E. Sussex, 8 N.E. of Hastings; ac. 826, and 156 of water; soil loamy, overlying sand. W. was formerly a place of some importance, and was granted by Edward the Confessor to the monks of Fécamp, in Normandy; in 1067 William the Norman landed here, in 1188 Henry II., both returning from Normandy; and later, but before the accession of King John, it was made a cinque port; in LAND GATE, WINCHELSEA.

(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

1250 more than 300 houses were destroyed by the sea; and in 1266 the to. was stormed by Prince Edward, when Simon de Montfort the younger was defeated; the inhabitants subsequently petitioned Edward I. to grant them a site for a new to.; and a hill in the pa. of Icklesham, at that time a rabbit warren, called "Ilham," was granted and built upon. In 1287 the old to. of W. was swallowed up by the sea. The new to. afterwards became the place of import for French wines, for which massive crypts were built, and in the time of Henry VI. was one of the chief ports of embarkation for France, but in the time of Queen Elizabeth the harbour became choked; in 1360 it was pillaged by the French and in 1380 by the Spaniards. Henry VIII. built the castle of Camber, the ruins of which are still standing. W. formerly returned two members to Parliament; by the Reform Act of 1832 it was attached to the bor. of Rye, which

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wincham	Northwich (1½)	172	1229
Winchburgh	Winchburgh	403	424
Winchcomb	Cheltenham (7)	109	2864

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Winch, East	East Winch	102	367
Winchelsea, eccl. pa.	Winchelsea (1)	70	686

was in turn disfranchised by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885." The churches of St. Giles and St. Leonard have long ceased to exist. The church of St. Thomas à Becket from its remains may be judged to have been originally a large and beautiful building; the part now standing is principally of the E. Eng. and Dec. periods; there are several monuments, including two tombs of stone and marble, canopied, to Gervase and Stephen Alard, admirals of the cinque ports (d. 1310 and 1330), and three altar-tombs of the time of Edward I., with effigies of Crusaders or Templars; on the south side are three stalls and a water drain; a stained window was inserted (1890) in memory of Ashton B. Inderwick (d. 1888), and is composed of glass removed from the east window and considered to be 600 years old. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The to. has a Court House. The Town Hall, which had passed out of the possession of the inhabitants many years ago, has been presented to the to. by Dr. Freshfield, vice-president of the Society of Antiquaries. A market used to be held on Saturdays, but has been discontinued for many years. Here was once a convent of Franciscans or Grey Friars, founded about 1233; the aisleless E. Eng. choir, with sedilia, some beautiful arches and windows, including a very lofty east window of five lights, still remains. There was also a convent of Dominicans, or Black Friars, founded in the time of Edward II., and a preceptory of St. Anthony, of which no relic exists. Of the four town gates, Land Gate, Strand Gate, and New Gate are still standing, but in a ruinous condition.

Winchendon, Nether or Lower, pa. and vil. on the Thame, Mid Bucks., 6½ W. of Aylesbury; ac. 1,520; soil and subsoil limestone and clay. The church of St. Nicholas (partially rebuilt 1891) dates from the 14th or 15th cent.; the chancel retains a piscina and sedilia, and there are several ancient brasses. The vil. has some very old cottages. W. Priory is a seat; the mansion is ancient, and is believed to occupy the site of a monastic house, of which, however, no trace remains.

Winchendon, Upper or Over, pa. and vil., Mid Bucks., 5 W. of Aylesbury; ac. 1,030; soil loam, overlying limestone. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (restored) is of various periods, and retains a brass (dated 1515) to a former vicar. The ambulatories and chancel are laid with old tomb slabs, one of which retains a good brass. This place formerly gave the title of Viscount to the Wharton family.

Winchester, city, seat of a bishopric, mun. and parl. bor., U. and mkt. to., head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., W. Hants, 12 N.E. of Southampton. W. was originally called "Caer Gwent" and "Venta Belgarum," having, before the time of the Romans, been occupied by the Iberians, Britons, and Belgians. Traces of its fortification by the Romans yet remain, and Roman relics are occasionally found. There are six Roman roads running out of W.; these connected the city with Old Sarum, Cirencester, Silchester, Alresford, Porchester, and Bitterne or Southampton. On the retirement of the Romans W. became the metropolis of South Britain, and subsequently of the kingdom of Wessex and of Egbert's dominion, from which time it was the frequent residence of the English and Norman monarchs, some of whom were crowned and others held parliaments here. To the especial favour of Alfred the city owed much of its greatness; under the protection of Henry I. it attained its highest pitch of prosperity, being alike the seat of empire and focus of commerce; the city suffered much from a desolating fire in that reign, but more in the contest between Stephen and Matilda. Henry VIII. closed the long annals of its splendour by entertaining for a week within its walls the Emperor Charles V., to whom the round table, popularly called "King Arthur's," but ascribed with more probability to Stephen, and supposed to have originally borne a Mappa Mundi, was exhibited as an unquestionable monument of glorious antiquity. At the dissolution of monasteries W. was a prey to fresh devastations, and in the Civil War, when its royal and episcopal castles were destroyed. The Great Plague, in the reign of Charles II., exceeded its ravages to W. Charles II. commenced the erection of a new palace, which, being left incomplete, was afterwards converted into a receptacle for prisoners of war, and a barrack called the King's House; it was partially destroyed by fire in 1894. The diocese of W. extends over Hants and part of Surrey and the Channel Islands, and its foundation may be traced from the 7th cent. until the Dissolution, when it was refounded by Henry VIII. The cathedral church of St. Swithin is said to have had its origin in a foundation of Lucius, King of the Britons, after his conversion A.D. 164. There is no doubt that a church existed here from very early times, and the oldest part of the present structure dates from the latter part of the 11th cent., when the church was rebuilt by Bishop Walkelin, in whose time the incident which gave rise to the St. Swithin legend is said to have taken place. Of Walkelin's work, the transepts and crypt, with portions of the substructure of the nave, remain; the tower fell in 1107, owing, as some believed, to the fact that William Rufus had been buried beneath it, but was rebuilt, together with the piers, as it now stands. Bishop de Lucy's work (E. Eng.) includes most of the eastern part of the fabric, and was begun in 1202; the apsidal presbytery was taken down and replaced by the present polygonal Dec. termination in 1330; the Norm. clerestory and triforium between the apse and the tower was removed about 1350 by Bishop Edyngdon, who also erected the present west front and a small portion of each aisle; the complete transformation of the nave was begun in 1394 by Wykeham, and, being left incomplete at his death in 1404, was finished by his successors; the Norm. aisles of the presbytery were reconstructed by Bishop Fox and Prior Silkstede in 1500–28, the side screens erected in 1524, and the lady chapel lengthened eastwards in 1470–1524. The cathedral stands in a spacious close crossed by a magnificent avenue of elms and lime trees leading up to the west front, the finest in England of those which have no towers; the exterior, with the exception of the panelled east end, is plain and sombre, and the low heavy lantern tower furnishes almost the only relief to its great length of outline, W. being, in fact, the longest cathedral in England; but the richness and grandeur of the interior amply atone

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Winchendon, Nether	Aylesbury (6½)	43	272
Winchendon, Upper	Aylesbury (5)	43	150

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Winchester, mun. bo.	Winchester	65	1903
Winchester, parl. bo.	Winchester	65	1903

for the want of impressiveness without, and make it, in this respect, incomparably the first among English minsters. The ground plan comprises a nave of eleven bays; transepts of three bays each; presbytery or choir of five bays, and an eastern lady chapel of three bays, all having aisles; and a central tower 50 ft. by 48 ft., and 140 ft. high; the total internal length is 545 ft., transept 208 ft., nave 250 ft., and the general height 78 ft. The west front, 118 ft. wide, consists of a panelled gable, set between hexagonal panelled turrets crowned with spirelets; there are three porches, and over the central one a gallery for singers on Palm Sunday; the west window, 47 ft. by 32 ft., has Perp. glass, and on the apex of the gable above is a canopied niche containing a statue of William of Wykeham (1324–1404), whose chantry, containing his altar-tomb, is in the north aisle. Other chantries are those of Bishop Waynflete (1447–86) and Cardinal Beaufort (1404–47). The choir is separated from the nave by a screen of oak, designed by the late Sir G. G. Scott; the canopied stalls of black oak date from about 1296, and form a series of examples of the finest E. Dec. woodwork in the kingdom; the misericordes are late E. Eng.; the bishop's throne is a modern work. In the Lady Chapel (E. Eng. and Perp.) Queen Mary I. was married to Philip of Spain (1554). The cloisters and the chapter-house were taken down by Bishop Horne in 1563. Wolvesey Castle, the ancient episcopal residence, built in 1138 by Henry de Blois, Bishop of W., was pleasantly situated on a branch of the Itchen, a short distance south-east of the cathedral; it remained entire until the Civil Wars of Charles I., when it shared the destruction of the royal castle; its picturesque ruins are of considerable extent. Close by stands the palace erected by Bishop Morley in 1684, now used for lecture-rooms, etc.; the bishop's residence is Farnham Castle, Surrey. The city comprises several pas., mostly with ancient churches varying from Norm. to Dec.; the church of St. Swithin occupies a unique position over King's Gate, formerly one of the entrances to the city on the south; there are also eccl. pas. with modern churches, and places of worship for the principal bodies of Nonconformists. The College of St. Mary, situated in the S.E. suburb of the city, and outside the boundary of the ancient city walls, was founded by William of Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester (1367–1404), who laid the first stone March 26, 1387, in the chapel, and entered the college March 28, 1396. The college was granted a royal charter Sept. 28, 1396; and this was confirmed by Edward IV. and by all succeeding monarchs, except Queen Mary, till the end of the reign of Charles II. The college buildings are arranged in two quadrangles, occupying an area of about 200 by 300 ft., with detached cloisters on the south. Among the great public schools, W. College holds a high rank; and many of our greatest poets, divines, and statesmen have here received their education. The City Cross, in a somewhat cramped position in the High Street, is a light and elegant structure of three stages, erected in the earlier part of the 15th cent. by the Fraternity of the Holy Cross. The Guildhall (1873), in High Street, is a handsome building in Geometric Gothic style. Adjoining is a building containing the Public Reading-room and Library and the School of Art. The great hall is now the only remaining portion of the castle-palace. On the eastern wall is suspended the famous round table, 18 ft. in diameter. For nearly three centuries the interior of the hall was fitted up as magisterial and assize courts, but new courts were some time since erected and the hall completely restored and decorated. The market-house (1857) is a brick building; markets are held on Wednesday and Saturday, the latter the principal for agricultural produce. The fairs are held on the first Monday in Lent and on Oct. 23 and 24, St. Magdalen's (now neglected) on Aug. 2, and St. Giles' on Sept. 12 for cheese. The corn market is held on Saturdays at the Corn Exchange, a handsome and commodious building. The Mechanics' Institution (1835) occupies a handsome building in the square, and has a library and reading-rooms. W. is a considerable military station. The barracks (1684) stand in a commanding position on the west side of the city, and will hold 2,000 infantry. Her Majesty's Prison and House of Correction (1849), with county Police Station and offices, stand on West Hill, without the west gate. Races are held annually in July upon some extensive downs about 3 N.W. of the to. The Royal Hants County Hospital (1736) was the earliest provincial hospital in the kingdom. The new building is in Elizabethan style. There is also a provident dispensary. There are several "hospitals" or almshouses, the chief of which is that of St. Cross (q.v.), and the charities for distribution in money and kind amount to about £500 a year. Hyde Abbey, founded in 965 by King Edgar, under the wills of King Alfred and his son Edward the Elder, originally stood within the cathedral precincts, but was removed in the reign of Henry I. to Hyde, on the north side of the city; the abbey was destroyed soon after the Reformation, and its only remains are the precinct walls and the foundations of the church. Many other monastic institutions disappeared at the general Dissolution. The city was anciently surrounded by continuous walls, forming in plan an irregular quadrangle, strengthened at intervals with towers, and pierced at different points by gateways, of which only two—viz. King's Gate and West Gate—now remain; the latter, erected in the reign of Henry III., is a valuable specimen of the military architecture of that period.

WINCHESTER CATHEDRAL.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

Winchfield (called in the "Domesday Book" Wenesflet, the manor at that time being held by the Abbey of Chertsey), pa. and vil., N. Hants, 8½ E. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,572; soil light, subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1850) is Norm.; the chancel arch is a very elaborate specimen of late Norm., and is composed of three receding semicircular arches, ornamented with zigzag mouldings and others of a different character, the archivolt being enriched with a kind of billet moulding very unusual and rich in its effect; in the restoration some very curious frescoes were found on the walls, illustrating the custom of teaching Scripture lessons by pictures, so common in the middle ages; here are several mural tablets to the Beauclerk family. W. House is pleasantly situated on an eminence in well-wooded grounds, commanding extensive views.

Winchmore Hill, eccl. pa. and large vil., pa. of Edmonton (q.v.), E. Middx., 8 N. of London. The church of St. Paul, partly destroyed by fire in 1844, is in Perp. style, and various Nonconformist bodies have chapels. There are three almshouses for twelve spinsters. The Convalescent Fever Hospital (built 1886), standing on a site of 36½ ac., is arranged on the pavilion principle, and consists of sixteen separate blocks. Old Park, a seat, was formerly the home park of the ancient manorial palace of Enfield in which the Princess Elizabeth for some time resided. The old house was partially destroyed and rebuilt in the early part of the 18th cent., but the original open fireplace remains in the library. The lawn in front of the house is partially surrounded by a circular entrenchment, and there is a park of about 200 ac.

Winch, West, pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 3 S. of Lynn; ac. 970; soil mostly gravel and sand. The Nar runs through the western side of the pa. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. and Perp.; on the tower are the arms of the Cholmondeley family. The rents of the church lands are applied to the repair of the fabric and ornamentation of the church. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The poor's lands yield a rental of about £35, which is chiefly expended in coals.

Wincle, tp. and chap., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 5 S.E. of Macclesfield; ac. 2,819. The church of St. Michael is a plain stone fabric of the 17th cent. The tp. consists principally of a number of small farms, scattered over a mountainous district stretching almost to the borders of Staffs., from which the co. is separated by the Dane. The valley of this river and the surrounding hillsides being thickly wooded afford some of the most picturesque scenery in the co.

Wincobank, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1 N.W. of Brightside. The church of St. Thomas (1876) is in E. Eng. style. There are Primitive Methodist and Congregational chapels. Forks are manufactured here.

Windcliffe, or Wyndcliff, eminence (970 ft.) on right bank of the Wye, S.E. Mon., 2¾ N. by W. of Chepstow. W. rises on the north side of the grounds of Piercefield Park. The summit commands a magnificent view.

Winder, ha. with railway station, pa. of Lamplugh (q.v.), W. Cumb., 6½ E. of Whitehaven.

Winder, Low, tp., pa. of and 1½ E. from Barton (q.v.), N. Westmd.; ac. 339. W. Hall (built about 1612) is now occupied as a farmhouse; it contains a fine carved oak cupboard dating from 1417.

Windermere (1), pa. and to. on the eastern shore of Lake Windermere, W. Westmd., about 4 S.W. of Ambleside; ac. 17,139; soil sandy, overlying rock and gravel. The to., formerly known as Birthwaite, is situated amidst picturesque scenery, and is of recent growth. The church of St. Martin (restored 1871–73) is Gothic; the east window of seven lights is filled with ancient stained glass, principally of the 15th cent., brought from Cartmel Priory about 1523, and afterwards patched with earlier fragments from other windows. The walls are painted with questions, Scripture texts, and comments relating to baptism and the Lord's Supper, taken from a catechism by Robert Openshawe, vicar of Weymouth, 1590. On the west wall is a painting of the Majesty, and on the north

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Winchfield	Winchfield	39	466
Winchmore Hill	Winchmore Hill	8	3110
Winch, West	Hardwick Road (2¼)	96	421
Wincle	Macclesfield (5)	165	254

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wincobank	Wincobank	162	457
Winder, Low	Clifton (4)	282	7
Windermere, pa.	Windermere	259	601
Windermere, to	Windermere	259	594

side of the chancel are other paintings. On the easternmost pier of the south arcade is a Latin inscription, placed in 1629 by Christopher Philipson in commemoration of the deliverance from the Gunpowder Plot, Nov. 5, 1605. The rectory house is ancient and retains a fine porch. The Catholics and some Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. W. Grammar School was founded in 1613, and has an endowment of about £215 yearly. There are several charities. In the neighbourhood are several seats, among others Elleray, formerly the property and home of Professor John Wilson ("Christopher North") (1785–1854).

Windermere (2), lake on west border of Westmd., 8 W. of Kendal. The lake is 10½ miles long from north to south, and has an extreme breadth of one mile. Although it belongs geographically to Westmd., it is bordered by Lancs. throughout nearly three-fourths of its circuit, touching Westmd. only in the northern half of its east shore. It is the largest lake in England, and partly for this reason, and partly because of the beauty of its scenery, it has been called the "Queen of the Lakes." W. lies 134 ft. above the sea, and has an extreme depth of 240 ft., being the deepest lake in England with the exception of Wast Water (q.v.). The united streams of the Brathay and Rothay flow into it at its north extremity, Troutbeck descends to its north-east shore, and at its foot it gives off the Leven. Ambleside stands at the head of the lake, and Bowness about midway along its east shore. On its north-east side are Dove Nest and Elleray, famous as the abodes of Mrs. Hemans and Christopher North respectively. W. is studded with numerous small islands, especially near its centre; the largest of these is Belle Isle, with an area of about 30 ac. The hills bordering the lake are beautifully wooded, and the scenery is of a soft, graceful, and rich character; only at its north extremity does it present features which add an element of grandeur. Here the heights of Scafell, Bow Fell, and the Langdale Pikes, rising conspicuously above the wooded shores and the hills clad with copse and bracken in their rear, afford a diversity of beautiful views. The lake contains great quantities of pike, perch, trout, and char.

LAKE WINDERMERE.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, London.)

Winderton, ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Brailes (q.v.), S.W. Warws. The memorial church of SS. Peter and Paul (1878) is in E. Eng. style.

Wind Fell, mountain (2,180 ft.), N. Dumfs., Sc., on the Selks. border, 6 E. of Moffat.

Windgap, vil., pa. of Killamery (q.v.), S.W. co. Kilk., Ir., 5½ S. of Callan. Here is a Roman Catholic church.

Windgate, pl., pa. of and 2 S. from Bray (q.v.), N.E. co. Wick., Ir.

Windhill, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Calverley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2½ N. of Bradford. W. is situated at the junction of the Bradford and Leeds and Liverpool Canals, and is bounded on the north by the Aire. Christ Church is in Gothic style, and there are several Nonconformist chapels. The worsted manufacture is carried on here.

Windle, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.; ac. 3,150. The greater part of this tp. was formerly within the bor. of St. Helens, but in 1893 that part was amalgamated with the bor. Adjoining Old Windleshaw (the burial-ground of the Catholics for upwards of a century past), about 1 N.W. of St. Helens, is a new cemetery with three mortuary chapels, for the Church of England, Catholics, and Dissenters. There are collieries in the tp. and large chemical works.

Windlesham, pa. and vil., N.W. Surrey, on the Berks. border, 8 W. by S. of Chertsey; ac. 2,943; soil peat; much of the land belongs to the Bagshot sand formation. The church of St. John the Baptist (erected 1680 on the destruction of the old church by lightning) is in E. Eng. and Dec. styles. The Institute and Reading Rooms were erected in 1880. There are six almshouses, founded 1757 for six aged people, and charities of about £36 yearly.

Windlestone, tp., pa. of Coundon (q.v.), S. Dur., 4 E. by S. of Bishop Auckland; ac. 1,188. W. Hall is a seat; the extensive grounds are well laid out and diversified with plantations; service is held on Sunday at the chapel in the grounds. The kennels for the South Durham Fox Hounds are in this tp.

Windlestraw Hill, mountain (2,161 ft.), E. Peebs. and N. Selks., Sc., 9 W.N.W. of Galashiels.

Windley, tp., pa. of Duffield (q.v.), Mid Derbys. about 2 W. of Belper; ac. 1,159.

Windmill Creek. [SHEPPEY.]

Windrush (1), pa. and vil. on the Windrush, E. Gloucs., 16 N.E. of Cirencester; ac. 1,835; soil and subsoil oolite. The church of St. Peter (restored 1874) is Perp.; the transept retains a piscina, discovered with other remains during the restoration; in the east wall are some Norm. corbels and a memorial stone to the Hungerford family, dated 1579; the south doorway is a fine specimen of Norm. work. There is an endowment of £10 yearly for the use of the church. Within the pa. is a Roman encampment.

Windrush (2), river, N.E. Gloucs. and N.W. Oxon., rises at Temple Guiting, 4 E. of Winchcombe, and runs S. by E. to Naunton, then E.S.E. to Bourton-on-the-Water, and from Bourton S.S.E. to the vil. of Windrush. On leaving Windrush the river proceeds E. between Great and Little Barrington,

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Windgap	Ballyhale (9)	97	109
Windhill	Shipley & Windhill (½)	196	7344
Windle, eccl. pa.	St. Helens (1)	192	1839
Windlesham	Bagshot (1)	32	2965

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Windlestone	Bishop Auckland (4)	244	176
Windley	Duffield (3)	133	169
Windrush (1)	Shipton (7)	81	228

and, entering Oxon., reaches the to. of Burford. From Burford it flows on with many curves past Widford, Swinbrook, Asthall, and Minster Lovel to Witney, the general direction of its course being E. by S. At Witney it divides into many streams which meander S.E. past Standlake, entering the Thames in the south vicinity of that vil. The length of the W. is about 35 miles.

Windstone Pits, another name for Vincent's Pits (q.v.).

Windsor, or New Windsor (anciently called Windlesora, the "winding shore"), pa., mun. and parl. bor., head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., and U. and mkt. to. (S.), on the Thames, E. Berks., 22 W. of London; ac. 2,528 and 56 water. The to. consists of New W. and part of the suburb of Clewer, on the west. Over the Thames, connecting the bor. with Eton, is a bridge supported by three arches of cast iron. The to. was given by Edward the Confessor to Westminster Abbey, but first acquired importance by the building of the Castle, in which William the Conqueror is said to have lived. In 1276 it was made a free bor., and from the year 1302 (though not uninterruptedly till 1424) sent two members to Parliament until 1867; it now returns one. Portions of Clewer and Eton are included in the parl. bor. The church of St. John the Baptist was rebuilt in 1822, in modern Gothic style; on the south side is a chapel with a carved oak screen by Grinling Gibbons. [CLEWER.] The Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Town Hall (1686) is a plain building, in Italian style, supported on arches and columns; it contains an interesting series of portraits. The area beneath the building forms a Corn Exchange, and adjoining is the market-place. Other public buildings are the Theatre Royal (1815); the Masonic Hall, designed by Wren (as was the Town Hall); the Albert Institute (1881), containing reading rooms and lecture hall; and the Royal Dispensary. There are almshouses for forty amount to between Castle Hill is the Ju and in the Great P

WINDSOR CASTLE, FROM THE THAMES
(Photo. York and Son, Notting Hill, W.)

the Prince Consort
the women of the U
are held on the co
Acre is a public rec
On account of its R
military station, or Cavalry and one bat always stationed
W., instituted by E on the south side o
Castle, occupying a chalk, on the right begun by William Henry I., who held with Adelais or Ad of Louvain. In 11

here, at which tim
King of Scotland,
John retired here
barons, and went t 1215) to sign the G son, Henry III., it contending parties.
lived at W., where born, including E
Edward of W.; th part of the Castle, t then one of the king
this great undertak to 1373, and includ
the east and south
Round Tower, St. houses, and the wh
with the towers ar was, however, built roof, and choir adde
Most of the succe
some way to the bu

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Windsor, pa.	Windsor	21	8251
Windsor, mun. bor.	Windsor	21	12327

PLACE.
Windsor, parl. bor.

chief restorer, and devoted nearly a million to the beautifying of this, the most magnificent building of the kind in Europe, the whole of the work being effected from the designs and under the superintendence of James Wyatt, the king's surveyor-general. The Castle comprises two quadrangles, or Upper and Lower wards, between which is the Round Tower or keep, raised on an artificial mound surrounded by a moat, and formerly separated from the Lower ward by a moat with a drawbridge. The Long Walk, a noble avenue of oaks and elms, stretches from the grand entrance for about 3 miles, and at the further end of the Walk is a bronze equestrian statue of George III. Queen Anne's Ride, extending to the boundary of the Great Park near Ascot Heath, is also 3 miles in length. The Home Park, adjoining the Castle, contains 400 ac. and is about 4 miles in circumference; avenues of stately elms and noble groups of various forest trees adorn its wide expanse, conspicuous among which are a number of magnificent oaks; here stood for six centuries the celebrated Herne's Oak immortalised by Shakespeare in his "Merry Wives of Windsor"; this tree fell on August 31, 1863. [FROGMORE.] The Great Park, open to the public, is about 14 miles in circumference, and contains about 1,800 ac., through which extend both the Long Walk and Queen Anne's Ride; it abounds in delightful walks, affording rich glimpses of forest scenery, and is well stocked with herds of red and fallow deer, white harts and Cashmere goats, etc. Oaks and beeches are very numerous, some specimens of which are known to be several centuries old.

Windsor, Old, pa. and vil. on the Thames, E. Berks., adjoining New W.; ac. 5,393, and 137 water; soil gravel and clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored 1864) is E. Eng.; it contains a brass to John Michel, founder of the Michel Fellowships at Queen's College, Oxford, and monuments to the Powney family. The Royal Chapel of All Saints, in W. Park, is for the inhabitants residing in the Park. The charities for distribution are of about £46 yearly value. Beaumont College, once occupied by Warren Hastings, is now a Catholic college under the direction of Jesuits; it has a chapel attached. Moat Farm is said to have been the hunting seat of the Saxon kings, and also the place where Earl Godwin died. Cumberland Lodge, within W. Great Park, is a handsome mansion of red brick, once the seat of William, Duke of Cumberland; the front facing the south has a battlemented roof with small turrets at the angles; adjacent is the Royal Lodge, once the summer residence of George IV., and there are several other handsome residences scattered over the pa.

Windsor, St. Nathaniel, eccl. pa., pa. of West Derby (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 4 N.E. of Liverpool. The church of St. Nathaniel (1868) is in Italian style.

Windygates and Cameron Bridge, vil., pa. of Markinch (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc., about 2 W. of Leven. Contiguous to the vil. is an extensive distillery.

Windy Harbour, vil., pa. of Taney (q.v.), Mid co. Dub., Ir., 3 S. by E. of Dublin.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Windsor, Old	Windsor (2)	21	2980
Windsor, St. N.	West Derby	202	6192
Windygates & C. B.	Markinch (2)	421	522
Windy Harbour	.....	.....	315
Winestead	Winestead	212	151

Windynook, vil. on the summit of a steep hill, pas. of Gateshead and Jarrow (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 2½ S.E. of Gateshead. [HEWORTH (2).]

Winestead, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 13 E. of Hull; ac. 2,570; soil partly clay, partly light, overlying clay. The church of St. German (restored 1890) is a Perp. building of rough cobbles and brick. In the nave is an altar-tomb, with fine recumbent effigy, to Sir Christopher Hildyard (d. 1602), and another effigy of an ecclesiastic of the 15th cent. In the chancel is a 16th-cent. brass, with effigies of a knight and lady and fourteen children, supposed to represent Sir Robert Hildyard (Bulwer's "Robin of Redesdale"), his wife and family; and another to William Retherby, rector and builder of the church (d. 1418). The register contains an entry of the birth, in 1620, of Andrew Marvell, and of the induction of his father to the rectory. W. Hall is a seat.

Winfarthing, pa. and pleasant vil., S. Norf., 4 N. of Diss; ac. 2,583; soil heavy, overlying mostly clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1873) is Perp., and there is an oak chest of the 16th cent., in which are kept many old and valuable deeds relating to the church property. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The fuel allotment produces £50 yearly and the town's land about £80 yearly, of which amount £40 is applied to the support of the school, in coals for the church, and bread for the poor. There is an old tradition here respecting a sword called "the Good Sword of Winfarthing," said to have belonged to a thief who had taken sanctuary, and afterwards to have been preserved by the monks, who found it to possess such virtues that they placed it in a shrine, to which many superstitious folk from far and near came and offered gifts. Here was formerly a deer park, containing 1,000 ac., enclosed by Philip, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, in 1604; the Lodge Farm, on which are two oak trees of extraordinary dimensions, is a portion of the land.

Winford, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 7 S.W. of Bristol; ac. 3,003; soil sandy, overlying ironstone. The church of SS. Mary and Peter (rebuilt 1796) is in Gothic style. Here are Congregational and Baptist chapels. The charities amount to about £85 yearly. There are iron mines in the pa. W. Manor is a seat.

Winforton, pa. on the Wye, N. Herefords., 6 N.E. of Hay; ac. 1,114; soil chiefly alluvial, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Michael (restored 1895) contains a pulpit, dated 1613, with some good carving. In the churchyard are several fine yew trees. There are some small charities. W. House is a seat.

Winfrith Newburgh, pa. and vil. (Winfrith), S. Dors., 8 W. by S. of Wareham; ac. 4,496; soil chalky loam and sand, overlying chalk. The church of St. Christopher (restored 1854) presents some interesting remains of Norm. architecture, especially the north doorway. The pa. derives its epithet from the family to which it formerly belonged.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Winfarthing	Tivetshall (3)	101	543
Winford	Nailsea (4)	126	935
Winforton	Eardisley (2)	159	132
Winfrith Newburgh	Wool (3)	125	869

Wing (1), pa. and vil., Mid Bucks., 3 S.W. of Leighton Buzzard; ac. 5,310; soil various, overlying clay. W. was formerly a place of some importance. In 1255 a charter was granted by Henry III. for a market every Thursday and a fair for three days at Michaelmas. The church of All Saints (restored) is of various periods, and includes some Saxon work. There are monuments to the family of Fynes from 1686 to 1758, and several monuments to the Dormers, with others, ranging from 1542 to 1729. There are also brasses with effigies dating from the 15th cent. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. Dormer's Hospital was founded 1562 for eight men and women, and there are several charities. Charlotte Cottage, built 1886, is a hospital for the sick poor of the vil. W. Lodge is a seat.

Wing (2), pa. and pleasant vil., S. Rutld., 3½ N.E. of Uppingham; ac. 1,116; soil red loam, overlying clay and stone. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, originally Norm., was rebuilt in 1335; the chancel was entirely rebuilt in 1877, portions of the old church being used in the reconstruction, and the old altar-stone was then replaced. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. Near the vil. is an ancient maze, which the inhabitants visit at the feast time. The Grange is a seat.

Wingate, tp., pa. of Kelloe (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 9 E. of Durham; ac. 4,176.

Wingate Grange, eccl. pa., pas. of Kelloe and Castle Eden (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 9 E. of Durham. Trinity Church (1840) is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. In the neighbourhood are brick manufactories and an extensive colliery. W. Grange is a seat.

Wingates (1), eccl. pa., pas. of Bolton-le-Moors and Deane (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., adjoining Bolton on the south. The church of St. John the Evangelist (1859) is a plain stone building.

Wingates (2), tp., pa. of Long Horsley (q.v.), E. Northumb., 10 N.W. of Morpeth; ac. 2,617.

Wingberry, ha., pa. of Wing (q.v.), Mid Bucks., 4 S.W. of Leighton Buzzard.

Wingerworth, pa. and small vil., N. Derbys., 2½ S. of Chesterfield; ac. 2,931; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints is Norm.; a rood-loft crosses the chancel arch. There are monuments to the Brailsford and Hunloke families. W. has some small charities. The neighbourhood abounds with stone quarries and coal mines. Stubbing Court and W. Hall are seats.

Wingfield (1), pa. and pleasant vil., N.E. Suff., 6½ N.E. of Eye; ac. 2,441; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1866) is E. Eng.; the chancel contains three table monuments; on one are the effigies of Michael de la Pole, second Earl of Suffolk (d. 1415), and Catherine his wife; on another is the effigy of William de la Pole, Duke of Suffolk, son of Earl Michael, Prime Minister to Henry VI.; he married Alice, daughter of Chaucer, the poet, and was murdered on his passage to England and afterwards interred here in 1450; on the third are the effigies of John de la Pole, Duke of Suffolk (d. 1491), son of Duke William, and Elizabeth his wife, sister to Edward IV.; there are also monuments to the Wingfields, formerly resident here. The charities amount to about £35 yearly, which is applied to the repair of the church and use of the poor. Within half a mile of the vil. are the remains of W. Castle, formerly the seat of the Wingfields, an ancient building with towers, turreted walls, and battlements; it is surrounded by a deep moat, and the walls are still to be seen, with the drawbridge; part of this castle, mantled with ivy, has been converted into a farmhouse.

Wingfield (2), ha., pa. of Chalgrave (q.v.), S.W. Beds., about 3 N.W. of Dunstable.

Wingfield (3). [WINKFIELD WITH ROWLEY.]

Wingfield, North, pa., tp., and vil., N. Derbys., 4 S. of Chesterfield; ac. of pa. 7,603, of tp. 1,464; soil and subsoil chiefly clay and loam. The church of St. Lawrence or St. Helen (restored) is of various periods; there are still existing some remains of the earlier fabric of Late Norm. date, comprising a window in the north aisle, with toothed mouldings and singularly designed capitals, and an arch between the north aisle and the small transeptal chapel at its eastern end; the chancel has the unusual feature, on both sides, of three clerestory windows. On the exterior south wall of the chancel, within an ogee arch, lies the mutilated figure of a knight; in the north aisle, at its south-east angle, are the stairs, still perfect, which anciently led to the rood-loft; at the foot of these stairs is a square recess or almery. There are also several stone effigies of the Deincourt family, and the shattered remains of an early memorial slab with a figure in slight relief, taken from the arch on the outside wall of the chancel, and upon which the knightly effigy formerly there had been placed; in the south aisle is an interesting piece of sculpture representing the martyrdom of St. Lawrence, found in 1860 beneath a crocketed canopy. In the wall of the aisle were found various fragments of ancient incised slabs, and its inner face had been covered with scriptural texts, in black letter, of the Elizabethan age, and a fresco of St. George and the Dragon. In the churchyard are several interesting old monuments and a stone sundial of great antiquity. The chantry house, which adjoins the north-east angle of the churchyard, has for many years been an inn, and is now known as the "Blue Bell," still retaining, however, some of its original features. Various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The charities amount to about £25 yearly.

Wingfield, South, pa. and vil. on an eminence, Mid Derbys., 10 S. of Chesterfield; ac. 3,364; soil loamy, overlying chiefly clay. The church of All Saints (restored) is of various periods; the chancel retains a Dec. piscina with trefoil head and good crocketed carving, and in the opposite wall is an almery; on the chancel floor is a ledger stone singularly used to commemorate three different

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wing (1)	Leighton (3)	40	1799
Wing (2)	Manton (½)	90	353
Wingate	Wingate (½)	247	4403
Wingate Grange	Wingate (½)	247	5310
Wingates (1)	Bolton (2)	196	4234
Wingates (2)	Ewesley (3)	304	94

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wingerworth	Chesterfield (2½)	146	37
Wingfield (1)	Harleston (5)	107	46
Wingfield, North, pa.	Clay Cross (½)	142	1464
Wingfield, North, tp.	Clay Cross (½)	142	250
Wingfield, South	Wingfield	142	139

interments, its upper portion being incised with the rude figure of a cross-bow, the centre bearing the initials C. M. A. and the date 1634, and the lower part an inscription to Mary Toplis (1760); here is also another large slab inscribed to the Rev. Peter Cotes, vicar (d. 1675); from a beam in the south-west corner hangs a funeral garland, carried at the funeral of Ann Kendall, a maiden of this vil. (d. 1745). In the churchyard are two sepulchral stones of the 13th cent., one a coped slab and the other bearing in high relief the full-length effigy of a knight in a coif of mail and wearing a hauberk. There are Nonconformist chapels, and some charities. The old manor-house, now an interesting ruin, was a splendid and spacious edifice, enlarged and beautified by Sir Ralph Cromwell, treasurer to Henry VI.; at the commencement of the Civil War the mansion was garrisoned for the Parliament, but was taken by the Earl of Newcastle in 1643; in 1644 it sustained a siege, ultimately surrendering to the Parliamentary troops, and in 1646 was dismantled by order of Oliver Cromwell.

Wingham, pa. and vil., and head of petty sess. div., E. Kent, 6 E. of Canterbury, on the road to Sandwich; ac. 2,647; soil loam, overlying clay. W. was formerly a mkt. to., but the market granted by Henry III. has long since fallen into disuse. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (partially restored 1874) is chiefly Dec. and Perp. The chancel retains piscinæ and sedilia; a 17th-cent. wood screen separates the chancel from the nave. The north chancel has a fine alabaster monument to James Palmer, dated 1627; the south chapel belongs to the Oxenden family, and contains a pyramidal marble monument, dated 1666, with Cupids and other pagan adornments, to one of the Oxendens. The Congregationalists have a chapel. In 1881 some remains of a Roman villa were uncovered in a meadow, including three mosaic floors. W. gives the title of Baron to the Cowper family.

Wingland, Central, formerly extra-pa., now a pa. on the Nen, S.E. Lincs. and N.W. Norf., about 7 N. of Wisbech; ac. in Lincs. 1,649, in Norf. 1,652; soil alluvial deposit, rich and fertile. The whole has been enclosed from the sea. There is neither a place of worship nor a public-house in the pa.

Wingletang Hill, eminence on the island of St. Agnes, Scilly Islands, S.W. Cornw., 2 S.W. of Hugh Town. Here on the surface of an immense block of granite, which rests on another block, is a rock basin about 3 ft. deep and 12 ft. in circumference, known as the "Punchbowl."

Wingrave-with-Rowsham, pa. and vil. (Wingrave), Mid Bucks., 6 N.W. of Tring; ac. 2,600; soil chiefly clayey, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1887) is E. Eng. and Perp. The Congregationalists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities amount to about £100. A curious and ancient custom of strewing the church with hay on the first Sunday after St. Peter's Day (June 29) is still observed, about half an acre of grass land having been left for that purpose. W. Manor House is a seat.

Win Hill, eminence (1,532 ft.), N.W. Derbys., 4 E.N.E. of Castleton. According to an ancient legend W. Hill and the neighbouring height of Lose Hill took their names from two hosts which descended from them to join battle in the valley of the Noe. It has, however, been suggested that the names are really corruptions of Whin and Laws. About 1779 a clay urn was discovered in a large cairn on the east side of the hill.

Winkbourn, pa. and vil., E. Notts., 8 N.W. of Newark; ac. 2,353; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. John of Jerusalem is Norm.; the chancel is divided from the nave by an ancient oak screen. There are monuments to the Burnell family. In the pa. are several mineral springs. W. Hall, standing in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Winkfield, pa., E. Berks., 6 S.W. of Windsor, one of the largest pas. in the co., being more than 8 miles across; ac. 10,207 and 71 of water; soil heath, subsoil clay, gravel, flint, and sand. It contains many gentlemen's seats, in consequence of the beauty of its scenery and its vicinity to Windsor. The church of St. Mary (restored 1884) is Dec.; there are monuments to the Metcalfe and Blanc families, and a brass, with effigy, to Thomas Montague, yeoman of the guard (d. 1630), representing him in the act of distributing bread. The charities are important. Here is an ancient hill entrenchment, possibly Roman. Ascot Place, in a well-wooded park, Foliejon Park, New Lodge, and Tower Hill are seats.

Winkfield (or Wingfield) with Rowley, pa. and scattered vil. (Winkfield), W. Wilts., 2 S.W. of Trowbridge; ac. 1,383; soil clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (enlarged 1861) is Perp. There are two charities, one of £4 for apprenticing boys, and one of £3 for distribution to the poor. Midway Manor House, a seat, was the residence of General Shrapnel, the inventor in 1785 of the shell which bears his name; on the pillars of the park gates are carved the names of 23 battles won with the Shrapnel shell. W. House is also a seat.

Winkhill, ha., pa. of Waterfall (q.v.), N. Staffs., 6 S.E. of Leek, on the road to Ashbourne. The Hamps is here crossed by a one-arch bridge, and near it are colour and corn mills.

Winklebury or Vespasian's Camp. [BERWICK ST. JOHN.]

Winklebury Hill, eminence, N. Hants, 1½ W. by N. of Basingstoke. Here is a large circular camp.

Winkleigh, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 12 S.E. of Torrington; ac. 9,118; soil dunland, overlying clay with some rock. The church of All Saints (restored 1873) is Late Dec., and retains a Dec. trefoiled piscina with projecting basin. The ancient priest's door on the south side still remains. The pa. has Bible Christian, Congregational, and Wesleyan chapels. Cattle fairs are held on the first Monday after July 8 and the first Wednesday in October.

Winksley, tp., pa. of and 4½ W. from Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 729.

Winksley-with-Grantley, eccl. pa., pa. of and

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wingham	Adisham (2½)	68	1246
Wingland, Central	Walpole (2)	106	180
Wingrave-with-R.	Marston Gate (2)	39	927
Winkbourn	Southwell (3)	139	115
Winkfield	Bracknell (3)	32	4005

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Winkfield-with-R.	Trowbridge (2)	97	302
Winkleigh	Eggesford (4)	194	1066
Winksley	Ripon (4½)	214	122
Winksley-with-G.	Ripon (4½)	214	362

4½ W. from Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of SS. Oswald and Cuthbert (restored 1882) was originally a chapel belonging to Fountains Abbey. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Winkton, vil. on the Avon, pa. of and 2 N. from Christchurch (q.v.), S.W. Hants.

Winlaton, pa. and tp. on the Tyne, S.E. Dur., 5 W. of Gateshead; ac. of pa. 9,063, of tp. 5,217; soil clayey loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Paul (erected 1828) is in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan, Congregational, and Primitive Methodist chapels. There are several collieries, some quarries of excellent stone, and extensive fire-brick and retort works. Here are also several large firms, which manufacture all kinds of iron work for shipbuilding purposes, forgings, chain cables, hinges, screws, bolts, spades, shovels, thimbles, shackles, and every variety of black ironmongery. Park Head Hall is a seat.

Winmarleigh, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Garstang (q.v.), N. Lancs.; ac. 2,342. The church of St. Luke (built 1876) is in Dec. style. W. gives the title of Baron to the Wilson-Patten family. W. House, in Elizabethan style, is a seat.

Winnall (1), pa., W. Hants, partly within the city of Winchester; ac. 532. The church of St. Martin (rebuilt in 1858) is in E. Eng. style.

Winnall (2), ha., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Allensmore (q.v.), Mid Herefords.

Winnats, Winnatts, or Windgates, The, rocky mountain pass, N.W. Derbys., 1 W. from Castleton. The pass takes its name from the gusts of wind which are continually sweeping through it. It extends a mile east and west between limestone

THE WINNATS.
(Photo. Richard Keene, Derby.)

cliffs of the most grotesque shapes, 400 ft. or more in height. Along it runs the upper road from Castleton to Chapel-en-le-Frith and Buxton. It commands a beautiful view of Castleton and the neighbouring country. At its east end is the entrance to the Speedwell Mine.

Winnersh, tp., pa. of Hurst (q.v.), E. Berks., about 5 S.E. of Reading; ac. 2,034.

Winnington (1), tp. on the Weaver, pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., forming a suburb of Northwich, from which it extends about 1 m 583. Here are large chemical works, wh employment to nearly 3,000 workmen; an tp. are several white-salt works. W. Bri the Weaver was the scene during the C of a sharp conflict between the Parlia troops and the Royal forces, in which th were defeated.

Winnington (2), vil., pa. of Alberbury (Salop, 13 W. of Shrewsbury.

Winnington (3), ha., pa. of Muckleston N.W. Staffs., 4 E. of Market Drayton. H cheese factory.

Winscales, tp., pa. of Workington (q Cumb., 2½ S. of Egremont; ac. 974.

Winscombe, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, of Axbridge; ac. 4,140; soil various, o limestone; in the valley light loam, subsoil The church of St. James (restored 1863) Here are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels meeting-house for the Society of Friends. for cattle is held in May. There are sou charities. Calamine is found in Sandfo and there are lime-kilns and limestone In 1830 a jar containing Roman silver and coins was discovered. W. Hill is a seat.

Winsford (1), pa. and vil. on the river on the road to Exmoor and Lynton from W. Somerset, 12 S.W. of Dunster; ac. 8,6 clay and loamy, overlying clay-slate. The of St. Mary Magdalen (restored 1891) Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities to £30 yearly.

Winsford (2), to. on the Weaver, pa. of D (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 3½ W. of Middlewic river is here crossed by a one-arched iron Christ Church (rebuilt 1849) is in Per There are Wesleyan, Free Methodist, and Methodist chapels. W. is a place of importance, owing to its salt manufac industry in which it ranks next to Northwi public buildings include a town hall (bu and enlarged 1879), a market hall (1859), library (1888), and public baths (1887). T two public recreation grounds. The salt is obtained on the banks of the Weaver and in flats to Liverpool, whence it is expo India and other parts of the world. There an important rock-salt mine. Flat-buildi boat-building are carried on.

Winsham, pa. and vil. on the Axe, S. So 4 E. by S. of Chard; ac. 3,178; soil chalk, fl loam, overlying chalk and flint. The ch St. Stephen is E. Eng. and Perp.; on the south wall of the tower is a panel pain the Crucifixion, probably of the 14th cent.; originally placed over the rood-screen, a been carefully restored; there is a 15t screen at the west end, filling the lower part tower arch; the church contains some monuments to the Henly and Royse families. is a Congregational chapel, with a min

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Winlaton, pa.	Blaydon (1)	272	12583
Winlaton, tp.	Blaydon (1)	272	10390
Winmarleigh, ec. pa.	Winmarleigh	223	471
Winmarleigh, tp.	Winmarleigh	223	371
Winnall (1)	Winchester (1)	65	147
Winnersh	Wokingham (2)	36	701

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Winnington (1)	Winnington	175
Winscales	Workington (2½)	310
Winscombe	Winscombe	136
Winsford (1)	Dulverton (5)	179
Winsford (2)	Winsford	166
Winsham	Chard Road (2)	140

residence. The Brethren have also a place of worship. W. was formerly a mkt. to., with shambles in Church Street; the other streets, Fore Street, Back Street, and Western Way, still remain; it was at one time celebrated for its narrow and broad cloths, and has still a reputation for its butter. A large room for public meetings has been erected in Church Street; opposite the "George" Hotel is a large stone cross without date or inscription, but supposed to be an ancient market cross. Leigh House is a seat.

Winshill, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and about 1 E. by N. from Burton-on-Trent (q.v.), S. Derbys.; ac. 1,150. The church of St. Mark, on the summit of an isolated hill overlooking the Trent valley, is a fine building in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan, Free Methodist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. In the vicinity is a tape mill, which gives employment to many hands; here also is the ancient corn mill of Burton Abbey, which is still in use.

Winskel. [HUNSONBY AND WINSKEL.]

Winslade, pa. and vil., N. Hants, 3 S.E. of Basingstoke; ac. 712; soil clay, with subsoil of chalk. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (nearly rebuilt 1816) is Perp. The Rev. Thomas Warton, D.D., Poet-Laureate, who died May 20, 1790, was rector of this pa.

Winsley (1), vil., pa. of and 2 W. from Bradford-on-Avon (q.v.), W. Wilts. [WINSLEY-WITH-LIMPLEY STOKE.]

Winsley (2). [HARTWITH-WITH-WINSLEY.]

Winsley-with-Limpley Stoke, eccl. pa., pa. of and about 2 W. from Bradford-on-Avon (q.v.), W. Wilts. The church of St. Nicholas (rebuilt 1841 with the exception of the tower) is in Perp. style; the tower stands away from the church, and is a fine specimen of a saddleback. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a charity of about £17 yearly. The inhabitants are employed chiefly in agriculture and in working in the freestone quarries. Near the church is a small gorge called Danes-bottom, where, according to tradition, a battle was fought between these invaders and the troops of Alfred.

Winslow (1), pa., U. and mkt. to. (W.), N. Bucks., 10½ N.W. of Aylesbury; ac. 1,920. The official name of the pa. is Winslow-cum-Shipton. The to. stands on the brow of a hill, overlooking a fertile vale on the road from Aylesbury to Buckingham. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1884) is Dec.; in the chancel are canopied sedilia and a piscina. There are Congregational and Baptist chapels. Statute fairs are held on the Wednesday before Oct. 11 and the two following Wednesdays. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in agriculture. Lace-making, once largely carried on here, is now extinct. The charities are administered under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners. Redfield and W. Hall are seats, in well-planted grounds; the last-named was designed by Wren.

Winslow (2), tp., pa. of Bromyard (q.v.), N. Herefords., adjoining the to. of Bromyard, and extending thence about 2 S.; ac. 3,029. Munderfield Harold, Rowden Abbey, and Rowden House are seats.

Winslow-cum-Shipton. [WINSLOW (1).]

Winson, tp. and chap. on the Coln, pa. of Bibury (q.v.), E. Glouc., 7 N.E. of Cirencester; ac. 1,216. The church of St. Michael is E. Eng. and Perp., with a fine south porch of Norm. date.

Winstanley, tp., pa. of and 3½ S.W. from Wigan (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.; ac. 1,855 and 4 water. There are collieries in the tp. W. Hall, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Winster (1), eccl. pa., tp., and to., pa. of Youlgrave (q.v.), W. Derbys., 5 W. of Matlock; ac. 1,123. The church of St. John the Baptist was originally E. Eng., and has been rebuilt in the style of that period; the font is Late Norm. The curfew is still rung here. Various branches of the Methodists have places of worship. The to. contains a hall used for public meetings. The charities for distribution amount to £25 a year.

Winster (2), eccl. pa., pa. of Kendal (q.v.), N. Westmd., 4½ S.W. of Windermere. The church of Holy Trinity (1874) is in E. Eng. style.

Winster (3), river, Westmd. and Lancs., rises in Westmd. in the south-east vicinity of Bowness, and flows 11 S., entering the estuary of the Kent 2½ E. of Cartmel. Throughout nearly its whole course it separates Westmd. and Lancs.

Winston (1), pa., tp., and vil. on high ground overlooking the Tees, S. Dur., 6 E. of Barnard Castle; ac. of pa. 3,106, of tp. 3,050; soil strong and firm, overlying loose sandstone. The Tees is here crossed by a fine stone bridge of a single arch, erected in 1763–64, and when most of the bridges in the north of England were washed away by the great flood in 1771 it remained uninjured. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng.; in the chancel is a piscina, with ball flower ornament; the font dates from about the year 1260, and in the churchyard are the remains of an ancient cross. Stubb House, on the site of a much older mansion, of which there are still some remains, and Westholme Hall, an Elizabethan house, are seats.

Winston (2), pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 8 W. of Framlingham; ac. 1,476; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building faced with flint; the south door is Norm., richly carved. Here are extensive brick and tile works.

Winstone, pa. and vil., E. Glouc., 6½ N.W. of Cirencester, on the road to Gloucester; ac. 1,491; soil stonebrash, overlying tenacious clay. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1876) is E. Eng. Here is a Baptist chapel and one for the Brethren. There is a charity of about £1 5s yearly.

Winterborne Abbas, pa. and vil., S. Dorset, 5 W.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Winshill	Burton (1)	127	3752
Winslade	Basingstoke (3)	48	114
Winsley-with-L. S.	Bradford (2)	97	1151
Winslow (1)	Winslow	54	1704
Winslow (2)	Bromyard	135	461
Winson	Cirencester (7)	93	134
Winstanley	Pemberton (½)	196	568
Winster (1)	Darley Dale (2½)	147	840
Winster (2)	Windermere (4½)	259	100
Winston (1), pa.	Winston (1)	243	327
Winston (1), tp.	Winston (1)	243	312
Winston (2)	Framlingham (8)	91	285
Winstone	Cirencester (6½)	93	200
Winterborne Abbas	Dorchester (5)	135	287

of Dorchester; ac. 1,540; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The vil. is pleasantly situated in a vale, on the high road from Dorchester to Bridport; the surrounding hills are covered with barrows, and here was supposed to have been a great encampment of the Romans. About 1 w. of the vil. are the remains of an ancient British circle, consisting of several rough stones thrown into circular forms and known as the Nine Stones. The church of St. Mary is Perp., and has an E. Eng. arch. The Baptists have a chapel.

Winterborne Anderson. [ANDERSON.]

Winterborne Ashton, ti., pa. of and about 1 S.E. from Winterborne St. Martin (q.v.), S. Dorset.

Winterborne Came, pa., S. Dorset, 2 S.E. of Dorchester; ac. 1,540; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng.; it has a carved oak screen and two full-sized effigies in a recumbent position. In the churchyard is the Damer family vault, and a tomb erected to the memory of the Rev. William Barnes, B.D. (the Dorsetshire poet), rector here 1862–86. In the pa. are many barrows. The charities amount to £19 yearly. Came House, a large handsome mansion in the Corinthian style, built in 1750, is a seat.

Winterborne Clenston, pa. on the Winterborne, N. Dorset, 5 S.W. of Blandford; ac. 1,312; soil light, overlying gravel and chalk. The church of St. Nicholas (rebuilt 1840) is Perp. Formerly this pa. had a large population, for the benefit of whom there were three churches. The Manor House is a seat.

Winterborne Herringstone, pa., S. Dorset, 2 S. by W. of Dorchester; ac. 490; soil gravel, overlying chalk. H. House, surrounded by a finely-wooded park, is a seat.

Winterborne Houghton, pa. and vil., N. Dorset, 5 W.S.W. of Blandford; ac. 1,975; soil light chalky loam, overlying chalk and flint. The church of St. Andrew, originally E. Eng., was rebuilt in 1862.

Winterborne Kingston, pa. and vil., E. Dorset, 6½ S.S.W. of Blandford; ac. 2,513; soil chalky loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1873) is E. Eng. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels.

Winterborne Monkton, pa., S. Dorset, 2 S.W. of Dorchester; ac. 631; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The rectory house and one farm, with a few small cottages, comprise the whole pa. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1878) is a small Norm. building. Here was once a priory or cell.

Winterborne Quarleston, ti., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Winterborne Stickland (q.v.), N. Dorset.

Winterborne St. Martin, or Martinstown, pa. and vil., S. Dorset, 3 S.W. of Dorchester; ac. 3,546; soil loam, overlying gravel and chalk. The church of St. Martin, in the middle of the pa., is an ancient edifice of different periods; the eastern end appears to have been rebuilt at a much later period than the rest of the church. Blanchard's charity of £33 yearly is for distribution. The fair is held on St. Martin's Day, and is well supplied with cattle; there was once a market. There are several well-built modern houses. In the pa. are many barrows. [MAIDEN CASTLE (1).]

Winterborne Steepleton, pa. and pretty vil., W. Dorset, pleasantly situated in a vale, 4 W. by S. of Dorchester; ac. 1,831; soil light gravel, overlying chalk. The church of St. Michael is a long narrow building, chiefly of the Perp. period; the south porch is a curious specimen of ancient Eng. architecture; over the south door and the blocked-up north door are Norm. arches. At the south-west angle outside is the sculptured figure of an angel, supposed to date from the 9th cent., to which period the upper portion of the font is assigned.

Winterborne Stickland, pa. and vil., N. Dorset, about 4 W.S.W. of Blandford; ac. 2,234; soil light chalky loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary, nearly in the centre of the pa., is of the Trans. period. During the restoration (1891–92) portions of an old oak waggon-headed roof, part of an oak screen, and a rude sculpture of the Holy Rood were discovered. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Malting is carried on. There is a charity of £6 14s. yearly for bread.

Winterborne Thompson, pa., N. Dorset, 7 S. by W. of Blandford; ac. 477; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The pa. consists of a single farm. The church (dedication unknown), originally E. Eng., was rebuilt by Archbishop Wake early in the 18th cent.

Winterborne Whitchurch, pa. and vil. (Whitchurch), N. Dorset, 5 S.W. of Blandford: ac. 2,922; soil light, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1870) is of different periods. The yew trees in the churchyard form an avenue from the east entrance to the church. The Wesleyans have a chapel, and there is a working-men's club and reading room. The grandfather of John and Samuel Wesley, founders of Methodism, was vicar here (1651–62). Whatcombe House, with a good collection of pictures and a fine library, is a seat, beautifully situated in a richly-timbered park.

Winterborne Zelstone, or Marwood, pa., N. Dorset, 7½ S. by W. of Blandford: ac. 848; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary, originally Perp., was in 1866 rebuilt, with the exception of the tower. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Winterbourne (1), pa. and vil., S. Glouc., 6 N.E. of Bristol; ac. 3,112; soil loamy brash, subsoil pennant stone. The church of St. Michael (partially rebuilt 1880) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the chapel under the belfry was decorated with wall paintings in the 14th cent., portions of which remain. In the chapel are two effigies of knights in full armour and others of females; and also the brass of a lady (c. 1370), the oldest extant in Glouc.; the canopy and marginal inscription are lost. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities are of £5 yearly value. There are ten almshouses for ten aged or infirm

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Winterborne Came	Dorchester (2)	135	130
Winterborne Cl'nst'n	Blandford (5)	121	103
Winterborne H.	Dorchester (2)	135	51
Winterborne H.	Blandford (5)	121	221
Winterborne K.	Spettisbury (4)	118	500
Winterborne M.	Dorchester (2)	135	71
Winterborne St. M.	Dorchester (2)	135	393

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Winterborne S.	Dorchester (4)	135	19
Winterborne S.	Blandford (4)	121	40
Winterborne T.	Bailey Gate (4)	115	2
Winterborne W.	Blandford (5)	121	41
Winterborne Z.	Bailey Gate (4)	115	17
Winterbourne (1)	Patchway (2)	123	330 persons, each of whom receives 4s. weekly. A fair is held on June 29 and October 18 yearly for cattle.

Winterbourne (2), chap. and tp., pa. of Chieveley (q.v.), S. Berks., 4 N.W. of Newbury; ac. 2,112. The church of St. James (restored 1854) is E. Eng.

Winterbourne Bassett, pa., E. Wilts., 7½ N.W. of Marlborough; ac. 2,210; soil clay and loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Catherine (restored 1857) is chiefly Dec.; it contains several monuments to the Baskervilles, who were settled at Rickarston. The font is E. Eng.

Winterbourne Cherborough, an alternative name for Winterbourne Gunner (q.v.).

Winterbourne Dauntsey, pa., S. Wilts., 4 N.E. of Salisbury; ac. 1,143; soil and subsoil chalk. The church was taken down in 1867. Here is a chapel used by the Methodist New Connexion. [WINTERBOURNE EARLS.]

Winterbourne Down, eccl. pa., pa. of Winterbourne (q.v.), S. Glouc., 6 N.E. of Bristol. The church of All Saints is in Gothic style. There is a Free Methodist chapel.

Winterbourne Earls, pa. and vil. in the Bourne valley, S. Wilts., 3½ N.E. of Salisbury; ac. 2,252; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Michael is in E. Eng. style, built near the site of the old church in 1868; the new church serves for this pa. and that of W. Dauntsey, as these have been united for ecclesiastical purposes. There is a small Wesleyan chapel.

Winterbourne Gunner, or Winterbourne Cherborough, pa. in the Bourne valley, S. Wilts., 4½ N.E. of Salisbury; ac. 1,481; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Mary is a plain structure, built in the 13th cent.; it was somewhat injured by the Cromwellians, and was repaired in 1810. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Tanner's charity of £12 11s. yearly was left in 1848 by Miss Jane Tanner to keep in good repair a monument erected to her memory in the churchyard, the residue to be distributed to the poor.

Winterbourne Monkton, pa., E. Wilts., 6½ N.W. of Marlborough; ac. 1,481; soil chalk, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1878) is a small Norm. building.

Winterbourne Stoke, pa. and vil. on Salisbury Plain, S. Wilts., 5 W. of Amesbury; ac. 3,399; soil light loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter is chiefly E. Eng.; there are two fine Norm. doorways to the nave; the arch into the south transept is of pure E. Eng. detail; in the chancel is a good piscina and aumbry of E. Dec. character; in the south transept is a piscina; the pulpit of carved oak is dated 1621.

Winterbrook, ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Cholsey (q.v.), N. Berks.

Winterburn. [FLASBY-WITH-WINTERBURN.]

Winterhays, ha., pa. of and about 1 S. from Yetminster (q.v.), N.W. Dorset.

Winteringham, pa. and vil., formerly a corporate to. with a market, on the south bank of the Humber, N. Lincs., 2½ N. of Winterton; ac. 3,509 and 1,456 water; soil rich loam, resting on limestone. On the opposite shore of the Humber is a station of the Hull and Selby Railway, and on the river side are wharves for corn, malt, coal, and timber. The church of All Saints is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the south aisle is a recumbent effigy of a Knight Templar in chain mail in a very good state of preservation; the chancel retains a piscina and credence table. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Charities amount to a little more than £100 a year. In the old Rectory house, now used as stables and outhouses, Henry Kirke White, the poet, was, for a brief period in 1799, under the tuition of Mr. Grainger. A pleasure fair is held on July 14. About ½ E. of the vil. the Roman to. Ad Abum is supposed to have stood. Near the vil. is a chalybeate spring, thought to possess great medicinal qualities.

Wintersett, tp., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Wragby (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,170.

Winterslow, pa. and vil. on the Bourne, S. Wilts., 7 N.E. of Salisbury; ac. 4,698; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (restored and enlarged 1851) is of different periods, and contains some interesting monuments of the Thislethwaite family. St. John's, on W. Common, is a chapel-of-ease. The charities amount to nearly £100 a year. On Oct. 20, 1816, one of the horses of the Exeter mail coach was attacked at the Pheasant Inn, or W. Hut, by a lioness which had escaped from a caravan on its way to Salisbury fair. Roche Court, in a park and pleasure grounds of about 80 ac., is a seat.

Winterton (1), pa. and small mkt. to., N. Lincs., 10 N.N.W. of Brigg; ac. 3,818; soil loam, peat, and sand, overlying oolite and lias. The church of All Saints is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the floor of the chancel is a slab, which has lost some of its brasses, to John Rudd, merchant to the Staple of Calais (d. 1504); in the chancel is a bas-relief, with arms, to Peter Gering (d. 1590); a grave slab of the Anglo-Saxon period now serves as the lintel of the tower doorway; the chancel retains a double piscina; the north transept has also a piscina, and the south a piscina and aumbry; the base and shaft of the old churchyard cross remain near the south porch. There are also Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. A Roman oven was discovered in 1868 in the side of a sand pit near the road to Winteringham. W. cliff was evidently once occupied by the Romans, for in 1747 several tessellated pavements, as well as Roman urns and other antiquities, were discovered at a spot about 3½ E. of the vil. The Roman road, Ermine Street, joining London, Lincoln, and York, passes through this pa. There are charities of about £5 a year, and £10 a year is devoted to the repairs of the church. W. has a police station (1853) and Oddfellows' Hall (1850). Fairs for cattle are held here on the Tuesday before Palm Sunday and on Sept. 23, and there is a statute fair on May 9. An agricultural show is held on July 6, and a corn

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Winterbourne (2)	Newbury (4)	53	270
Winterbourne B.	Wootton Bassett (5)	83	271
Winterbourne D.	Porton (2)	78	135
Winterbourne Down	Patchway (2)	123	840
Winterbourne Earls	Porton (2½)	78	237
Winterbourne G.	Porton (1½)	78	166
Winterbourne M.	Marlborough (6½)	76	210
Winterbourne Stoke	Wishford (4)	120	249
Winteringham	Appleby (6)	165	584
Wintersett	Ryhill (1½)	172	74
Winterslow	Porton (3)	78	786
Winterton (1)	Appleby (4)	165	1400

market every Wednesday evening. Agricultural implement and machine making is carried on here.

Winterton (2), pa. and fishing vil., E. Norf., about 8 N. by W. of Yarmouth; ac. 1,295, exclusive of 220 sea-beach and warren; soil light, overlying gravel and sand. The church of the Holy Trinity and All Saints, built in the early part of the 14th cent., was restored in 1878. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. Here is a coastguard and lifeboat station, and a lighthouse. About 150 fishermen are employed in the herring and mackerel fisheries. W. once had a market and fair, which have long been obsolete. Hill House is a seat.

Winterton Ness, promontory, E. Norf., about 1 N. of the vil. of W. The coast at this point is very dangerous to shipping, and in 1850 the Trinity Board placed a buoy on it. In ancient times the wreckage belonged to the manor, and was at one time the subject of a dispute between the Abbot of St. Benet's and the Prior of Norwich. A communication relative to this dispute is included in the Paston Letters.

WINTERTON (NORFOLK).

Winthorpe (1), coast pa., E. Lincs., 2 N. of Skegness; ac. 2,284; soil loam, silt, and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1880) is Dec. and Perp.; there is a chantry or chapel at the end of each aisle, formed by parclose screens across the eastern bays; the chancel is wholly Perp., and is remarkable for the beauty of its carved work; the nave roof was renewed during the Perp. period; a good oak screen divides the nave and chancel, above which remain the bracket supports of the rood-loft; near the screen is an aumbry; the windows of the north aisle retain some fragments of ancient glass; the Perp. porch is a beautiful example of that style, and the barge-boards are carved with gracefully trailing foliage; the sepulchral slab of a civilian and his wife, of the 15th cent., is built into the face of the porch; in the north chantry there remains a slab with a cross fleury and an inscription to Richard Arglys, of Brington, priest (d. 1392); in the nave is a small kneeling effigy in brass of a civilian, and below it an inscription to Robert Palmer (d. 1515); adjoining this are brasses of a civilian, his wife and three children, with a shield of arms and other ornaments, and an inscription to Richard Barowe (d. 1505), merchant of the Staple of Calais, and Batavick his wife; the font is Perp. On the south side of the churchyard is an ancient stone cross, raised on three steps and surmounted by a dial. There are charities of £6 yearly value for the aged poor.

Winthorpe (2), pa. and vil. on an eminence, E. Notts., 2 N.N.E. of Newark; ac. 638; soil sandy loam, overlying principally gravel. The church of All Saints (rebuilt 1887–88) is a red-brick structure. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a charity of £48. W. Hall is a seat.

Winton (1), tp. and vil., pa. of Kirkby Stephen (q.v.), N. Westmd., about 1 N. of the to. of Kirkby Stephen, on the road to Brough; ac. 4,499. Richard Burn, LL.D. (d. 1785), the author of "The Justice of the Peace," and John Langhorn (d. 1772), who, with his brother, translated Plutarch's "Lives," were natives.

Winton (2), tp., pa. of Sigston (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3½ N.E. of Northallerton; ac. 1,347.

Winton Castle, estate on the Tyne, pa. of Pencaitland, W. Haddings., 3 S.E. of Tranent. The mansion, a handsome edifice both externally and internally, was partly built by the third Earl of Winton in 1620; the remainder is more modern. The grounds are beautifully wooded. The fifth Earl of Winton forfeited the estate, in consequence of his share in the rising of 1715.

Wintringham, pa., tp. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 7 E. of Malton; ac. of pa. 8,230, of tp. 5,340; soil partly sandy, partly chalk, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter is Norm. and Dec.; the chancel contains a piscina, and the east end of each aisle has formerly been a chapel; the screen of the south chapel is still in good preservation, and its east window and others in the church contain fragments of old glass (c. 1350). The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some charities. Place Newton, standing in a park, is a seat.

Wintringham, Lower, ha., pa. of and about 2 S.E. from St. Neots (q.v.), S. Hunts.

Wintringham, Upper, ha., pa. of and about 2 S.E. from St. Neots (q.v.), S. Hunts.

Winwick (1), pa., tp., and vil., S.W. Lancs., 3 N.W. of Warrington; ac. of pa. 2,293, of tp. 1,360; soil various, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Oswald, considerably altered at different times, dates from pre-Norm. times. The entrance to the Gerard chapel is adorned with the crest of that family and grotesque carving. In the Legh chapel there are brasses and monuments to Sir Peter Legh and his wife, with other members of

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Winterton (2)	Hemsby (1½)	135	723
Winthorpe (1)	Skegness (2)	132	326
Winthorpe (2)	Newark (2)	120	277
Winton (1)	Kirkby Stephen (1)	266	256
Winton (2)	Northallerton (3½)	218	81

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Wintringham, pa.	Knapton (2)	216
Wintringham, tp.	Knapton (2)	216
Winwick (1), pa.	Newton-le-W. (1½)	188
Winwick (1), tp.	Newton-le-W. (1½)	188

this family; and in the chancel is an obituary window to James, seventh Earl of Derby, K.G., beheaded Oct. 15, 1651. In the vestry is an oak bench, carved with shields of the Lathams and Stanleys; and in the Gerard chapel a brass to Piers Gerard, Esq., son of Sir Thomas Gerard (d. 1485). There are also several brasses and mural tablets to the Hornby family. The charities amount to about £18 yearly. During the Civil War W. was the scene of two encounters between the Royal and Parliamentary forces, first in 1643, when a body of Cavaliers were routed by the Roundheads under Col. Ashton, and again in 1648, when Cromwell met and defeated James, Duke of Hamilton.

Winwick (2), or Winwick near Daventry, pa. and small vil., Mid Northants, 9 N.E. of Daventry; ac. 2,038; soil clayey, overlying clay. The Grand Union Canal passes on the west. The church of St. Michael (restored 1856) is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp.; the font is E. Eng.; at the end of each transept is a sepulchral recess, and in the north transept are two large monuments of the Craven family; the base of a rood-screen and a stall, both Late Perp., remain. About £20 a year is distributed in money at Christmas. The Manor House, an ancient and substantial building close to the church, and approached through a fine stone arch supported by four fluted pillars, is now occupied by a farmer.

Winwick (3), pa. and vil., S. Hunts., extending into Northants, 7 S.E. of Oundle; ac. 1,710; soil stiff clay, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1864) is E. Eng. Here is a small Congregational chapel, with a residence for the minister and a small endowment. There is a charity of about £32, distributed to the poor yearly in clothing and money.

Wire, Weir, or Viera, island, pa. of Rousay and Egilshay (q.v.), Mid Ork., Sc., 9 N. of Kirkwall. The island lies on the south-east side of Rousay, from which it is separated by a channel varying in width from ½ to 1 mile. The island extends more than 2 N.E. and S.W., and has an extreme breadth of less than a mile. The surface is low and flat, with a rich soil. There are some remains of an ancient church, and near it on a hill stands a castle, said to have been built about 1150.

Wirksworth, pa., tp., and mkt. to. (T.), W. Derbys., 13 N.W. of Derby; ac. of pa. 14,154, of tp. 3,020. The to. is pleasantly situated in a valley nearly surrounded by hills, at the southern extremity of the mining district. The church of St. Mary (restored) dates from the 13th cent. There are monuments to Anthony Lowe, Esq., servant to Henry VII., Henry VIII., Edward VI., and Queen Mary (1555); to Anthony Gell, Esq., founder of the school and almshouses, with his effigy in a gown and ruff, dated 1583; and a mural monument to Sir John Gell, Bart., of Hopton, a Parliamentary commander (d. 1671). There are two fonts, the more ancient being a Norm. basin without date; the other bears date 1662. In several parts of the walls are pieces of rude sculpture, discovered during repairs in 1820; one of these, inserted in the north aisle, represents some events in the life of Our Saviour. The chancel was restored in 1855, when an ancient piscina and an aumbry were discovered. Various Nonconformist bodies have chapels. The public buildings include a Town Hall (1871), in Italian style; the Moot Hall, built 1814; Bole Hill Institute (1889), a brick structure; and the Cottage Hospital, established in 1867. Fairs are held on Shrove Tuesday, Easter Tuesday, the second Tuesday in May, July, and September, and the third Tuesday in November, principally for cattle, the last being also a statute fair. There are lead mines in the neighbourhood, which, by an inscription on a pig of lead found in 1777, appear to have been worked so early as the time of the Emperor Adrian, at the commencement of the 2nd cent. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the numerous quarries and in the manufacture of tape. There are several charities, and almshouses for six poor men. The Grammar School was founded and endowed in 1576; the present building was erected in 1828, in Gothic style. Dinah Morris (Mrs. Elizabeth Evans), the once celebrated exponent of Methodism, whose character has been so powerfully depicted by George Eliot in "Adam Bede," lived and died here, her death taking place in 1849; the part of the hero of the story is also supposed to have been founded on the life of her husband's brother William.

Wirral, peninsula, N.W. Chesh., between the Mersey and the Dee, with an acreage of over 100,000. The tongue of land, about 12 miles long by 7 miles broad, is flat and low-lying, and is protected from encroachments of the sea by a long embankment. The southern subs. of Liverpool are seated on its northern shores. Numerous interesting remains of Roman, later British, Saxon, and Mediæval times have been found in its silt and peat beds.

Wirral Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Cheshire. It lies in the north-west of the co. and returns one member.

Wirswall, tp., pa. of Whitchurch (q.v.), S. Chesh., 6 S. of Malpas; ac. 971.

Wisbech, or Wisbeach, mun. bor., pa. (W. St. Peter), port, U. and mkt. to. (TH. & S.), head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., on the Nen, Isle of Ely, N. Cambs., on the borders of Norf., 15 W.S.W. of Lynn; ac. 6,432; soil loam, overlying clay. The Nen (here crossed by an iron bridge) is joined to the Ouse by a canal, thus bringing the to. into communication by water with Cambridge, Hertford, and London. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1873) is Norm. and Perp., and has a double nave; in the chancel floor is a very large brass to Sir Thomas de Branstone, constable of Wisbech Castle (d. 1401), with effigy in armour and mutilated inscription in French. W. has also an eccl. pa. with a modern church, a chapel-of-ease, a Catholic chapel, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Corn Exchange, Post Office, Public Hall, the Museum and Literary

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Winwick (2)	Welton (5)	75	137
Winwick (3)	Barnwell (5)	94	286
Wire	Thurso (41)	744	67
Wirksworth, pa.	Wirksworth	141	6973
Wirksworth, tp.	Wirksworth	141	3725

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wirral Division	.....	.....	73119
Wirswall	Whitchurch (2)	171	106
Wisbech, bor.	Wisbech	94	9395
Wisbech, pa.	Wisbech	94	9395

Institution, and the Working Men's Club are the chief public buildings. The fair days are the Saturday after the end of Lynn Feb. 14 fair (which lasts fourteen days), Thursday before Whit-Sunday, and July 25 for horses and Aug. 12 for beasts; Wednesday about the middle of September for hiring. The market-place is a fine open space, and, as well as portions of the streets, is flagged. The Crescent, a handsome part of the to., is planted with shrubs and trees. The Old Market, in which the corn merchants' offices are chiefly situated, is a spacious square. The chief trade is in shipping, importing corn, potatoes, bones, wool, seeds, coal, timber, and iron; and the chief exports are corn, coal, and salt, the latter arriving from Worcs. by the Midland Railway. In the surrounding district fruit, potatoes, and asparagus are extensively grown. There are planing and sawing mills, breweries, rope works, printing offices, numerous wind and some steam corn and oilcake mills, coach factories, and agricultural-implement works. W. has a park and pleasure-grounds of 18 ac., and close by is the N. Cambs. Cottage Hospital. The memorial to Thomas Clarkson (d. 1846), the indefatigable advocate for the abolition of the slave trade, consists of a canopied statue on a platform; on three sides of the base are bas-reliefs, representing respectively Wilberforce, Granville Sharp, and a manacled slave in a beseeching attitude; the fourth side bears the inscription, "Clarkson, born at Wisbech, 1760." The charities are numerous and important.

Wisbech Division, one of the three parl. divs. of Cambs. It lies in the north of the co. and returns one member.

Wisbech St. Augustine, eccl. pa., pas. of Leverington and Wisbech St. Peter, N. Cambs., in the to. of Wisbech. The church of St. Augustine (1868–69) is in E. Eng. style.

Wisbech St. Mary, pa. and vil., N. Cambs., 3 s.w. of Wisbech; ac. 9,270; soil loam, subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1873) is Perp.; there are some curious brackets about the church, and the remains of an unusually large stoup in the south porch. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. Here are several important charities, the principal consisting of land yielding about £240 yearly, given to the poor, and 21 ac. of land for the endowment of a school.

Wisbech St. Peter. [WISBECH.]

Wisborough Green, pa. and vil. on the Arun, N.W. Sussex, 6 N.E. of Petworth; ac. 8,475; soil principally clay. The church of St. Peter ad Vincula (restored 1868) is chiefly Norm. and E. Eng. During the restoration some reputed Saxon windows, which had been built up, were reopened; within a recess on the south side of the chancel arch is a wall painting of the late 12th or early 13th cent. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel. Agricultural implements and machinery are manufactured here. Harsfold Manor, commanding fine views, is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wisbech Division	.....	.....	49645
Wisbech St. A.	Wisbech	94	2950
Wisbech St. Mary	Wisbech St. Mary	94	1887
Wisborough Green	Billingshurst (3½)	45	1629
Wiseton	Ranskill (3)	144	116
Wishaw (1)	Water Orton (3)	124	180

Wiseton, or Wyest Clayworth (q.v.), N.

Wisewood, ha., pa. Yorks., ½ s. of Wadsl

Wishaw (1), pa., ac. 1,196; soil marly reddish marl. The 1886–87) is E. Eng. monuments. There Moxhull Hall is a sea

Wishaw (2), q.s. pa (q.v.), N. Lanarks., & to., pleasantly situa comprises several sp Main Street, is a la The W. iron and ste the malleable iron w employment to a l Large cattle sales Thursday.

Wishford, or Wisht Wylye, S. Wilts., 6 soil gravel and chalk, of St. Giles (restored and contains monum his wife, and nine c Sir Richard Grobha houses, endowed in housekeeper, each i W. has some small ch

Wiske, river, N.R. Ingleby-Arncliffe, an runs N.W. to West a W. to Great and Li its course, running Wiske, Yafforth, Nor Kirby Wiske, to the N. of Thirsk. The length is about 24 m

Wisley, pa., N.W. 1,326; soil sand, sub Nicholas is small and Wisp Hill, mount (q.v.), E. Dumfs., S 8 N. of Langholm.

Wispington, pa., E ac. 1,183; soil very The church of St. M rebuilt in 1863, in cised slab in the vest a former rector (139

Wissett, pa. and worth; ac. 2,259; principally clay. E. Eng.; there is a work, forming one o gational chapel was Wissey, stream, N Dereham, flows firs has a N.W. course to W. and falls into the Downham.

PLACE.	N f
Wishaw (2), q.s. pa.
Wishaw (2), to.
Wishford
Wisley
Wispington
Wissett

Wissington, or Wiston, pl. (formerly a pa.), pa. of Nayland-with-Wissington (q.v.), S. Suff., about 9 S.E. of Sudbury. The church of St. Mary (restored 1853) is an Anglo-Norm. building of rubble and cement, and contains a brass to the Le Gris family.

Wistanstow, pa. and vil., S. Salop, 9 N.W. of Ludlow; ac. 5,160; soil gravel and clay, overlying chiefly sand. The Roman road, Watling Street, passes through the pa. The church of the Holy Trinity, restored 1881, is Norm., E. Eng., and Dec. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The charities amount to about £15 yearly.

Wistanswick, ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Stoke-upon-Tern (q.v.), N. Salop. There is a Congregational chapel.

Wistaston, pa. and vil., S. Chesh., 2 S.W. of Crewe; ac. 1,645; soil sand, overlying clay. The church of the Virgin Mary (1828) is a plain building of brick and stone. W. Hall is a seat.

Wisteston, vil., pa. of and 1 N. from Marden (q.v.), S. Herefords. W. Court is a seat.

Wiston (1), pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 9 N.N.E. of Worthing; ac. 2,162; soil various, overlying principally clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1862) is Dec., and contains a perfect brass to John de Brewys (d. 1426) and an effigy of a child; in the north wall is a slab with matrices of brasses of a man and his wife with six children; there is also a monument with effigies to Sir Richard Sherley (d. 1540) and his two wives. W. House is an ancient mansion much modernised; it stands in a large deer park, and commands fine views.

Wiston (2). [WISSINGTON.]

Wiston (3), pa. and parl. bor., Mid Pembs., 5 E.N.E. of Haverfordwest; ac. 7,186; soil mostly poor. W. is called in Welsh Castell Gwys, a name derived from the family of Gwys or Wiz, probably of Flemish extraction, which settled here during the Norm. period. From the Gwyses through the female line were descended the Wogans, who remained the proprietors till the 19th cent. The place is a bor. by prescription, but it has no real municipal existence, the mayor's functions being merely nominal. As a parl. bor. it belongs to the Pembroke and Haverfordwest District (q.v.). The church of St. Mary is Norm. and Perp.; it is pleasantly situated in a secluded spot surrounded by trees. The Calvinistic Methodists have chapels. The ruins of the castle include part of the keep, which crowns a conical hill, and is surrounded by a deep fosse. The ancient abode of the Wogans, the walls of which are remarkably thick, is occupied by a farmer.

Wiston (4). [WISTON AND ROBERTON.]

Wiston and Roberton, pa., E. Lanarks., Sc., bounded by the Clyde; ac. 13,140. The vil. of W. is on the Garf Water, a tributary of the Clyde, 3 N.W. of Lamington station and 7 S.W. of Biggar, the nearest mkt. to. Hardington House and W. Lodge are seats.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wistanstow	Craven Arms (1½)	170	825
Wistaston	Crewe (2)	158	610
Wiston (1)	Steyning (1½)	53	352
Wiston (3)	Clarbeston Road (2)	259	673
Wiston & Roberton	Lamington (1½)	362	497
Wistow (1), pa.	Glen (1)	92	203
Wistow (1), tp.	Glen (1)	92	36

Wistow (1), pa. and tp. on the Union Canal, S. Leics., 7 S.E. of Leicester; ac. of pa. 2,100, of tp. 910. The church of St. Winstan, in the park near the Hall, is E. Eng.; in the Halford chapel is a marble tomb in good preservation to Sir Richard Halford, Kt. (d. 1658); on the upper slab is a recumbent effigy of the knight in armour, and there are other monuments to members of the same family. W. Hall, a large ancient mansion with extensive pleasure-grounds, is a seat; here are preserved the saddle and stirrups used by Charles I. at Naseby, and left here on his retreat.

Wistow (2), pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 8½ S.E. of Tadcaster; ac. 4,117; soil chiefly light and loamy. The church of All Saints (restored 1888) is of various periods, and contains tablets to the Hawksworth and Wynn families; there is a small lancet window filled with 15th-cent. glass. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities are of about £70 yearly value, and the school is partly supported from Archbishop Mountaigne's charity.

Wistow (3), pa., N. Hunts., 7 N.N.E. of Huntingdon; ac. 2,371; soil of a clayey nature, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist is Perp.; in the chancel are ancient sedilia and a piscina; the font consists of an octagonal basin supported on slender shafts. There is a small Congregational chapel. The poor's estate produces £7 10s. yearly.

Wiswell, tp., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), Mid Lancs., 3 S. of Clitheroe; ac. 1,693. W. House, once a seat, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Witch-, for places not found under this spelling, see also WICH-.

Witcham, pa., N. Cambs., about 6 W. of Ely; ac. 2,671; soil gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Martin is E. Eng.; it retains a Norm. font with curious carved figures, a carved stone pulpit, and an oak screen. The Wesleyans have a small chapel.

Witchampton, pa. and vil. on the Allen, E. Dors., 8 E. of Blandford; ac. 2,111; soil loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1832) is Dec. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are five almshouses (built 1831) for aged persons.

Witchford, pa., Isle of Ely, W. Cambs., 2½ S.W. of Ely; ac. 2,376; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1887) is E. Eng.; it retains a Norm. font, a piscina and a double aumbry in the chancel, and another in the north wall of the nave. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Witchingham, Great, pa. and vil. near the Wensum, N. Norf., 9 N.E. of East Dereham; ac. 2,245; soil sand and loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary is Perp.; the font is ancient and richly carved. The Primitive and Free Methodists have chapels. An allotment of 25 ac. of common land is for such poor parishioners as shall not occupy land and tenements of more

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wistow (2)	Selby (3)	174	674
Wistow (3)	Ramsey (3½)	75	401
Wiswell	Whalley (1)	218	728
Witcham	Haddenham (3)	374	322
Witchampton	Wimborne (5)	109	537
Witchford	Stretham (1½)	71	426
Witchingham, Great	Lenwade (½)	139	668

than £5 yearly value. The church land of 15a. 10p. is for the repair of the pa. church. John Norris's charity of £12 is for the education of twelve poor children, and there are some other small bequests. W. Hall, surrounded by a park and woods, is a seat.

Witchingham, Little, pa., N. Norf., 10 N.W. of Norwich; ac. 726; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Faith is a plain building of stone. L. W. Hall, a square mansion of brick, almost surrounded by a thriving plantation, is now occupied by a farmer.

Witchling, or Wychling, pa., Mid Kent, 8 S.W. of Faversham; ac. 1,316; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1887) is E. Eng.; on the north side is a fine Norm. arch; the font is Saxon.

Witcombe, ha., pa. of Martock (q.v.), S. Somerset, 1 N. of Ash.

Witham (1), pa. and pleasant and ancient to. on an affluent of and near its confluence with the Blackwater, E. Essex, 14 S.W. of Colchester; ac. 3,633 and 16 water; the land is principally arable and level, with a gravel subsoil. Part of the to. lies on the ancient Roman and modern high road from London to Colchester, and the other part, known as "Chipping Hill," lies around the church, ½ mile from where the main part of the to. is now situated. The church of St. Nicholas is chiefly E. Dec. The Trans. south door, dating from the 12th cent., is the most ancient feature in the present structure, but the body of the church appears to have been erected about 1327. It contains a fine tomb with effigies and a Latin inscription to John Southcote, a justice of the Queen's Bench (d. 1585), and to his wife; there are others to Sir Robert Nevill (d. 1593), Robert Barwell, gent. (d. 1697), also several tombs of the East family. In the floor of the chancel is a stone with a much obliterated inscription to Bishop Lindsell, second Bishop of Colchester and one time vicar of this pa. All Saints' chapel-of-ease is in E. Eng. style. W. has also a Catholic church, Congregational, Baptist, and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and the Peculiar People have a meeting-house. The Public Hall was erected in 1894. There are three blocks of almshouses in the pa., one connected with the Nonconformists; the total income of these charities amounts to about £180 yearly. There are other charities, amounting to £57 yearly, which sum is distributed in bread and fuel. The market, originally held on Sunday, afterwards on Wednesday, and then on Tuesdays, on Chipping Hill, where the pa. church is situated, is now discontinued. There is a Literary Institution and a Library. On Chipping Hill are the remains of a circular camp, with a double vallum, probably of British origin.

Witham (2), river of S. Lincs., rises at Market Overton, N. Rutld., 5 N. by E. of Oakham, and after running 3 or 4 E.N.E. enters the co. of Lincs. In the upper part of its course it traverses an upland valley, flowing almost due N. by South and North Witham, Colsterworth, Stoke Rochford, and Great and Little Ponton to Grantham, and on past Belton and Syston to Barkston. A little below this it enters a more open tract of country, winding W. by N. by Marston, Hougham, and Westborough to Long Bennington, and then N. and N.N.W. past Claypole, Barnby-in-the-Willows, Beckingham, Stapleford, Thurlby, and Aubourn. As it proceeds N. by E. to Lincoln, the river skirts the west base of the ridge of cliff which extends north and south through nearly the whole co. After leaving Lincoln it runs about 8 miles almost due E., and then some 25 or 30 S.S.E. and S.E., intersecting Boston and entering the Wash 5 miles below that to. From Lincoln onwards its course is through the Fens; the navigation of the river in this district has been greatly improved by artificial means, and its stream is replenished by numerous dikes. The W. is navigable as far as Lincoln. It is famous for its pike. The length of the river is about 80 miles.

Witham Friary, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 6 S. of Frome; ac. 5,497; soil and subsoil clay and stone-brash. The land is used solely for dairy farms. The church of Mary the Virgin (restored 1877) is Trans. and E. Eng. It was the church of the Carthusian Priory founded in 1181 by Henry II., and did not become a pa. church till 1458. On the south side of the apse is a double piscina with square trefoiled head, and on the north side, in the thickness of the wall, the rood-loft staircase remains; near it is a doorway (now built up) with a very low segmental arch, and probably leading originally to the domestic buildings of the monastery. The original font, placed in the church in 1458 by Prior John Porter, and found buried in the foundations of the old tower, has been restored to its proper place. This church, erected by the Carthusians on their first coming here, was much altered and improved by St. Hugh, the third prior, who vaulted the roof and thickened the walls in order to support the vaulting; the windows, round-headed and splayed deeply on both sides, are original, though altered both in proportions and detail. Some portions of the domestic buildings of the Priory remain.

Witham, North, pa. and vil. in a valley on the Witham, S.W. Lincs., 10 S. of Grantham; ac. 2,723; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1887) is Trans. and Perp.; it contains several monuments of the Sherard family, including a brass to Roland Sherard (1592). The charities amount to about £6 yearly.

Witham-on-the-Hill, pa., tp., and well-built vil., S. Lincs., 7 N. of Stamford; ac. of pa. 4,210, of tp. 2,150; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1874) is an ancient building of stone; it contains a brass. The charities amount to £23 a year. W. Hall, an 18th-cent. mansion in well-wooded pleasure grounds, is a seat.

Witham, South, pa. and large vil. on the Witham, S.W. Lincs., 11 S. of Grantham; ac. 1,674; soil loam, overlying clay and stone. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient edifice, originally cruciform, but the chancel, having been suffered to fall into ruin, was many years since removed; the portion still standing consists of nave, transepts, and a stone turret, but is in a very dilapidated condition; there are several ancient monuments

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Witchingham, Little	Lenwade (1)	139	78
Witchling	Faversham (8)	53	116
Witham (1)	Witham	39	3444
Witham Friary	Witham	112	413
Witham, North	Corby (5)	97	18
Witham-on-H., pa.	Little Bytham (2)	92	44
Witham-on-H., tp.	Little Bytham (2)	92	79
Witham, South	Little Bytham (7)	92	25

and brasses. Here are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. There is a charity of £30, and the rent of two fields, after paying small sums to the clerk and constable respectively, is distributed yearly.

Withcall, pa., E. Lincs., 4½ S.W. of Louth; ac. 2,650; soil loam and chalk, overlying chalk. The church of St. Martin, erected near the site of the old one in 1883, is in Gothic style.

Withcote, pa., E. Leics., on the borders of Rutld., 3 E. of Tilton; ac. 747; soil chiefly clay with red loam in parts, overlying chiefly clay. The church (dedication unknown) is Late Perp., and contains memorials dated 1584. There are distinct traces of Sanvey Castle, an outpost of Rockingham Castle, Northants, and the mound and moat remain. W. Hall is a seat.

Withdean, pleasant ha., pa. of Patcham (q.v.), S. Sussex, 1½ N. of Brighton, of which it may be considered a suburb. W. Hall, in Late Tudor style, is a seat.

Witherholm, ha. consisting of two farms, pa. of Dalby-with-Skewsby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 1 S. of Dalby Church.

Witheridge, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 10½ S.E. of South Molton; ac. 9,043. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored) is Perp. Here are Congregational and Bible Christian chapels. The poor have £16 yearly in money. There are four fairs—one, the last Thursday but one in April, the first Thursday after Midsummer Day, the first Thursday after Sept. 21, and the first Thursday in Nov.

Witherington, ha., pa. of Downton (q.v.), S. Wilts., 2 S. of Alderbury.

Witherley, pa., tp., and vil., W. Leics., separated by the Anker and Watling Street from Warws., 7 N.W. of Hinckley; ac. of pa. 1,570, of tp. 844; soil various, overlying clay and marl. The church of St. Peter (the chancel of which was rebuilt in 1858) is Dec. Adjoining the vil. are extensive stables and kennels erected by members of the Atherstone Hunt. W. Hall is a seat.

Withern, or Withern-with-Stain, pa. and large vil., E. Lincs., 8½ S.E. of Louth; ac. 2,677; soil strong loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret is a modern structure of brick. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. There are some small charities. The ancient seat of the Fitzwilliams, now occupied as a farmhouse, has a large moated area adjoining it.

Withernsea, tp. and vil. on the sea coast, pa. of Hollym (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 5 N.E. of Patrington; ac. 746 and 275 foreshore. The church of St. Nicholas, a building of rubble, was unroofed by a storm in 1609 and remained in ruins till its restoration in 1859. During some later alterations a stone was found in the nave inscribed to William Copland, Esq. (d. 1491). There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The pier has a length of about 300 ft., and a sea wall has been built to resist the encroachments of the sea. The Royal National Lifeboat Institution has a station here, and there is a Board of Trade life-saving rocket apparatus.

Withernwick, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 12 N.W. of Hull; ac. 2,692; soil clay, overlying marl clay. The church of St. Alban is in the Gothic style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and charities of £10 8s. The Foresters' Hall (1890) is used for public meetings and lectures.

Withersdale, vil., pa. of Fressingfield (q.v.), N.E. Suff., 8½ S.W. of Bungay. W. was formerly a pa., but for civil purposes has been amalgamated with Mendham and Metfield. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is a small building dating from the Norm. period. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities arise from the rent of 2 ac. of land left for the use of the poor and let for £2 yearly. W. Hall, an ancient mansion with a large lake in front, is now used as a farmhouse.

Withersden, ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Wye (q.v.), S. Kent.

Withersfield, pa., S. Suff., on the Cambs. border, 1½ N.W. of Haverhill; ac. 2,452; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a building of flint and stone; the chancel is E Eng., but has Dec. and Perp. insertions; the chancel arch and rood screen are Perp.; the screen towards the west has been repainted and gilded, but the carved work is very much fuller and richer in detail on the eastern face; over this screen was the rood, broken down in 1643; the north aisle appears to have been built by one Robert Wyburgh, or Whybrow, commemorated by a small brass. There is a charity producing £3 a year, applied to church expenses; and about £10 a year is distributed in coals and clothing.

Witherslack, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Winster, pa. of Beetham (q.v.), S. Westmd., 6 N.W. of Cartmel; ac. 4,586 and 304 of foreshore. The church of St. Paul, built 1604, is an edifice of local stone faced with rough cast. Brocklebank's charity produces £15 a year for distribution, and there is an endowed school founded in 1664. W. Hall is a seat.

Witherston, ti., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Poorstock (q.v.), W. Dorset.

Withiel, pa. and vil., Mid Cornw., 5 W. of Bodmin; ac. 3,005; soil clay and marl, overlying stone intermixed with iron. The church of St. Uvell is Perp. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. There is a charity of about £3 yearly.

Withiel Florey, pa. and vil., W. Somerset, 7 N.E. of Dulverton; ac. 2,485; soil shaly and rocky. The church of St. Mary (repaired 1882) is Perp.

Withington (1), pa., tp., and vil., S. Herefords., 4½ N.E. of Hereford; ac. of pa. 2,392, of tp. 2,201; soil clayey and loamy, overlying block stone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1858) is Norm. and E. Eng., containing an ancient wood rood-screen elaborately carved. There is a Baptist chapel.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Withcall	Withcall	145	250
Withcote	Oakham (5)	94	44
Witheridge	Lapford (7½)	190	868
Witherley, pa.	Atherstone (1½)	102	490
Witherley, tp.	Atherstone (1½)	102	455
Withern	Aby (2½)	134	447
Withernsea	Withernsea	216	933
Withernwick	Whitedale (1½)	206	865
Withersfield	Haverhill (1½)	55	634
Witherslack, eccl. pa.	Milnthorpe (6)	244	462
Withiel	Bodmin Town (5)	271	338
Withiel Florey	Combe Row (3)	181	114
Withington (1), pa.	Withington	142	862
Withington (1), tp.	Withington	142	744

There are works for the manufacture of encaustic tiles, where a great many hands are employed. W. Court, once a seat, is now occupied as a farm-house. Thinghill is a seat.

Withington (2), pa. and vil., E. Glouc., 6 N.W. of Northleach; ac. 6,105; soil various, overlying stonebrash. The church of St. Michael (restored 1873) is Norm., and contains some fine memorials. There is a Wesleyan chapel and a Baptist chapel. There are several sums of money, amounting to £660, left for apprenticing poor children and for the use of the poor.

Withington (3), pa. and vil. on the Shropshire Canal, N. Salop, 6 E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 1,131; soil a mixture, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (rebuilt 1874) is in E. Eng. style, and contains 16th-cent. brasses with effigies.

Withington (4), eccl. pa., tp., and to., pa. of and 3 S. by E. from Manchester, S.E. Lancs.; ac. 2,484. The tp. lies partly within Manchester parl. bor. It contains many handsome villas inhabited by the wealthy citizens of Manchester. The church of St. Paul (1841) is an edifice of red brick in Romanesque style. Among the other places of worship are Roman Catholic, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The Public Hall and Library dates from 1861. The Lancashire Independent College is a spacious and handsome structure, in which students are prepared for the Congregational ministry.

Withington (5), vil., pa. of Leigh (q.v.), E. Staffs., 4 N.W. of Uttoxeter.

Withington, Lower, tp. and pleasant vil., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., about 7 N.N.W. of Congleton; ac. 2,393.

Withington, Old, tp., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., about 7½ N.W. of Congleton. W. Hall, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Withnell, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Leyland (q.v.), N. Lancs., 5 S.W. of Blackburn; ac. 3,615 and 13 water. The church of St. Paul is in Norm. style. Here is a reservoir of the Liverpool Waterworks; there are also quarries, and cotton, paper, and bleaching mills.

Withnell Fold, ha., pa. of Leyland (q.v.), N. Lancs., 1½ N.W. of Withnell.

Withybrook, pa. and vil., N.E. Warws., 8 N.W. of Rugby; ac. 2,521; soil heavy, overlying clay and sand. The church of All Saints (restored 1893) is Perp., and contains a monument to the Wright family (dated 1609), an Easter sepulchre, and an ancient font. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Withycombe, pa. and vil., W. Somerset, 2½ S.E. of Dunster; ac. 1,787; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Nicholas is Perp. There is a Bible Christian chapel.

Withycombe Raleigh, pa. and vil., S.E. Devon, 9½ S.E. of Exeter; ac. 1,882 and 635 of water; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The remains of the old pa. church of St. John the Baptist are now used as a mortuary chapel. On the south side of the churchyard is a fine yew tree, supposed to be 800 years old. The new church of St. John the Evangelist (1864) is in Dec. style. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a charitable institution, founded 1811, comprising dwellings for four aged maidens, with a small Congregational chapel and a house for the minister. There are some charities. In the neighbourhood are several seats.

Withygate Field, pl., pa. of Staines (q.v.), S.W. Middx. It lies about 2 S.E. of Staines, on the road to Sunbury.

Withyham, pa. and vil., N. Sussex, 7 S.W. of Tunbridge Wells; ac. 8,057; soil sandy loam and clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Michael (restored 1844) is chiefly Perp.; at the north-east angle is a private chapel, belonging to the Sackvilles, hung with banners and adorned with shields of arms; beneath is their vault, which for many centuries has been their place of burial; there are monuments by Nollekens, Flaxman and Chantrey; the north window exhibits, in stained glass, the intermarriages of the family from the time of the Conquest. There is also a chapel-of-ease and a Presbyterian chapel. The charities amount to about £23 a year. Near the church are some remains of Buckhurst House. Buckhurst Park, in Elizabethan style, is a seat; the park contains red and fallow deer.

Withypoole, pa. and vil., W. Somerset, 8 S.W. of Dulverton; ac. 3,630; soil shillet and peat, overlying rock. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1887) is E. Eng. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The pa. is purely agricultural, adjoining Exmoor, and is famous for its little horned sheep and North Devon cattle.

Witley, pa. and vil., S.W. Surrey, 4 S. of Godalming; ac. 6,352; soil loam, overlying sand and gravel. The church of All Saints (restored) is partly E. Eng.; the north transept is divided from a chapel by a carved oak screen. There are 16th-cent. brass effigies; on the north wall of the chancel is a defaced memorial to a former Duke of Clarence, and at the west end is placed a list of the vicars of this pa. from 1321. There is a Congregational chapel. The Bethlehem Convalescent Home for women and children was opened in 1850. The Witley Institute (1883) is a red-brick building, and has reference and lending libraries. The charities amount to about £110 yearly. Lower House is a seat.

Witley, Great, pa. and vil., W. Worcs., 10½ S.W. of Worcester; ac. 2,535; soil new red sandstone and clay, overlying gravel and broken marl. The church of St. Michael (restored 1862) is in the Italian style, and contains a large and famous marble monument by Rysbrach to Thomas, first Baron Foley (d. 1732-3), and Mary (Strode), his wife, formerly of W. Court. W. Court, a mansion in Italian style, is a seat.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Withington (2)	Cheltenham (7)	109	583
Withington (3)	Wolcot (3)	156	197
Withington(4),ec.pa.	Withington	185	5813
Withington (4), tp.	Withington	185	14213
Withington (4), to.	Withington	185	25729
Withington, Lower	Chelford (2)	172	550
Withington, Old	Chelford (2)	172	131
Withnell, eccl. pa.	Withnell	207	2831

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Withnell, tp.	Withnell	207	277
Withybrook	Shilton (2)	91	2[illegible]
Withycombe	Washford (1)	177	3[illegible]
Withycombe Raleigh	Exmouth (2)	189	2[illegible]
Withyham	Withyham	35	3[illegible]
Withypoole	Dulverton (8)	179	1[illegible]
Witley	Witley (1)	38	2[illegible]
Witley, Great	Stourport (5)	134	4[illegible]

Witley, Little, chap. and tp., pa. of and 2 w. from Holt (q.v.), W. Worcs.; ac. 960. The church of Holy Trinity (rebuilt 1867) is in Trans. Norm. style.

Witnesham, pa. and scattered vil., S.E. Suff., 4 N.E. of Ipswich; ac. 1,996 and 191 water and foreshore; soil mixed, in parts stiff loam, overlying clay and loam. The church of St. Mary (restored 1845) is partly E. Eng. and partly Perp. The Baptists have a chapel.

Witney, pa., tp., mkt. to., and head of U. and Co. Co. dis., on the Windrush (here crossed by a bridge of three arches), Mid Oxon., 11 w. by N. of Oxford; ac. of pa. 7,083, of tp. 188. W. was a royal bor. and sent two members to Parliament from 1312 to 1360, when the inhabitants petitioned to be released from the privilege. The church of St. Mary (restored 1867) is of different periods from E. Eng. to Late Perp., with some remains of Norm. work; the north transept, which belongs to the 13th and 14th cents., appears to have been a chantry or chapel with a separate altar, and contains a monument to Henry Box (1662), founder of the Free Grammar School; the south transept was originally E. Eng., but was heightened and extended in the 15th and 16th cents. In the north transept are two canopied recesses with recumbent figures, besides a number of mural tablets; the chapel at the north-west angle of the nave is the burial-place of the Wenman family, and has a quaint monument to members of this family in its eastern wall; and in a recess on the north side is a recumbent effigy of an ecclesiastic, besides a number of incised slabs to the Wenmans. From early Saxon times this church appears to have been connected with the see of Winchester, and the bishops long possessed a summer palace in the grounds eastward of the chancel. W. has also a chapel-of-ease and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall, in the market-place, is an ancient rectangular stone building consisting of one room, supported on stone columns, and occasionally used for lectures and public purposes. The Corn Exchange (1863), also in the market-place, has in the basement a large room, a market hall (used also for public meetings), rooms occupied by the W. Athenæum and the W. Natural History Society; in the upper part of the building is a public hall with offices. On the west side of the Green is the Police Station, in which the petty sessions are held. In the market-place is the Butter Cross (1683), a wooden structure supported by thirteen cylindrical pillars; the basement was used at one time on market days for the sale of butter, eggs, and other commodities. W. has been long celebrated for the manufacture of blankets, which gives employment to a large portion of the population. Other woollen goods and gloves are made here, and there is a brewery. A fortnightly market for cattle and pigs is held in the market-place, and a corn market weekly on Thursdays. Fairs are held on Thursday in Easter week, Thursday after July 9, Thursday after August 24, Thursday following the first Sunday after Sept. 8, Thursday before Oct. 10, and Thursday after Dec. 1 for cattle and cheese. Close to the pa. church are six almshouses for widows of weavers. At the west end of the to. six other houses were built in 1821 for the aged unmarried women. The Grammar School was founded in 1662, and reconstituted in 1877, and the Blue Coat School in 1723. There are other charities producing about £200 a year for distribution, besides about £12 a year for church purposes.

Wittenham, Little, pa. on the Thames, N. Berks., 4¾ N.W. of Wallingford; ac. 888; soil and subsoil clay and chalk. The church of St. Peter (restored 1862) is E. Eng., and contains several very fine tombs and memorials; in a recess on the north side of the chancel is an altar-tomb, with a brass effigy of a priest, dated 1433; there are also several good 16th-cent. brasses, some with effigies. There is a small charity. W. Hills, to the south of the pa., are interesting from the remains of British or Roman fortifications.

Wittenham, Long, pa. and vil. on the Thames, N. Berks., 4 S.E. of Abingdon; ac. 2,248; soil in the south part of the pa. upper greensand, the remainder gault clay covered with drift gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1850) is Norm., E. Eng., Dec., and Late Perp. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities amount to about £33 a year. In 1893 extensive indications of Romano-British occupation were discovered, and traces of a still earlier people are met with in the shape of round huts and circles, in which flint arrowheads, celts, and stone implements have been found. In the vil. is a fine old cross (restored 1853) supposed to be of Saxon date; there is also here an ancient burial-ground of the West Saxons.

Wittering, pa., N. Northants, 3 S.E. of Stamford; ac. 2,720; soil sand and loam, subsoil rocky. The church of All Saints is an ancient edifice; the chancel arch, worked in rude and massive moulding, is conjectured to be Saxon, and portions of the structure exhibit the long and short work peculiar to that style. In the vil. is a clothing club. There are some excellent springs here and stone quarries.

Wittering, East, pa., S.W. Sussex, 7 S.W. of Chichester; ac. 1,176 and 177 water; soil loam, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown) is partly Norm. Here the sea has encroached and absorbed a large portion of the prebendal manor of Bracklesham.

Wittering, West, coast pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 8 S.W. of Chichester; ac. 2,286, and 980 water; soil of rich quality. The church (dedication not known) is mainly E. Eng.; there is a Norm. font, and in the chancel, on the north side, are two ancient monuments and a coffin-lid of Purbeck marble, discovered during the restoration in 1875, and said to be a memorial of a "Boy Bishop," and almost unique, a similar memorial in Salisbury Cathedral being the only other known to exist; there is also a monument, richly decorated with bas-reliefs, but without inscription; from its shield of arms it has been attributed to William Ernle, or Ernley, Esq., who died here in 1545. Here is a Bible Christian chapel. The charities amount to

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Witley, Little	Stourport (6)	134	185
Witnesham	Westerfield (2)	72	488
Witney, pa.	Witney	75	5376
Witney, tp.	Witney	75	3110
Wittenham, Little	Culham (2)	56	135
Wittenham, Long	Culham (3)	56	477
Wittering	Wansford (2)	100	228
Wittering, East	Chichester (7)	69	214
Wittering, West	Chichester (8)	69	582

about £24 a year. There are two coastguard stations in this pa. The sea has of late made great inroads on the south-west of this pa.

Wittersham, pa. and vil., S. Kent, 5 N. of Rye; ac. 3,591; soil various, overlying flinty gritstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1892) is Dec., and forms a conspicuous landmark. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some charities, and an endowed National school. A fair for pedlery is held on May 12.

Witton (1), or Witton-near-Blofield, pa. and vil., E. Norf., 5 E. of Norwich; ac. 576; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret is E. Eng. and Dec., with a chancel rebuilt in 1857.

Witton (2), or Witton-near-North Walsham, pa., E. Norf., 4 N.E. of North Walsham; ac. 1,704; soil light mixed, overlying sand, gravel and clay. The church of St. Margaret is E. Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. W. Park is a seat.

Witton (3), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and mostly within the bor. of Blackburn (q.v.), Mid Lancs.; ac. 574. The church of St. Mark (1837) is in Norm. style. W. Hall is a seat.

Witton (4), eccl. pa., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., forming part of the to. of Northwich. The church of St. Helen stands on high ground near the river Dane, and was erected about 1560; the east end of the south aisle was formerly a chantry.

Witton (5), ha. on the Tame, pa. of Aston (q.v.), N. Warws., 3 N. of Birmingham. Here are large ammunition works.

Witton-cum-Twambrooks, tp., pa. of Great Budworth, N. Chesh., amalgamated with the town of Northwich (q.v.) in 1894.

Witton, East, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Leyburn; ac. 7,054; soil sandy, subsoil gravelly. The church of St. John the Evangelist (rebuilt 1809) is in Gothic style, and the Wesleyans have a chapel. The charities amount to about £20 yearly. Jervaulx (q.v.) is in this pa.

Witton, East, Within, tp., pa. of Witton, East (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 4 S.E. of Leyburn; ac. 2,603.

Witton, East, Without, tp., pa. of Witton, East (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 4 S.E. of Leyburn; ac. 4,395.

Witton Gilbert, pa. and vil., S. Dur., 3½ N.W. of Durham; ac. 2,535; soil sandy, gravelly and loamy, subsoil gravelly and sandy. The church of St. Michael was taken down (with the exception of the chancel) and rebuilt in E. Eng. style in 1863. There is a Methodist New Connexion chapel. The reading room, formerly a schoolroom, is well supplied with papers, magazines, etc. There are charities to the amount of £4 yearly. Here was formerly a small hospital for lepers, founded by Bishop Pudsey. W. Hall, used as a farmhouse, now occupies the site.

Witton-le-Wear, pa., tp., and vil. on the Wear, S.W. Dur., 4 W.N.W. of Bishop Auckland; ac. of pa. 6,037, of tp. 3,168; soil various, overlying clay. The church of SS. Philip and James (restored) is ancient; in the churchyard is the shaft of an ancient cross, now surmounted by a sun-dial. The Primitive Methodists and Wesleyans have chapels. There are charities. Fire-bricks, sanitary pipes, and ornamental ware are manufactured here. W. Castle, a fine castellated stone mansion with an ancient keep, and W. Tower are seats.

Witton, Long, tp. on the north bank of the Hart, pa. of Hartburn (q.v.), Mid Northumb., about 10 W. of Morpeth; ac. 2,399. There are three mineral springs named the Holy Wells, and though close together, each has different virtues. Longwitton Hall is a seat.

Witton-near-Blofield. [WITTON (1).]

Witton-near-North Walsham. [WITTON (2).]

Witton, Nether. [NETHERWITTON.]

Witton Park, eccl. pa., pa. of Auckland St Andrew (q.v.), S. Dur., 2½ W. of Bishop Auckland. The church of St. Paul is in Gothic style. Here are Catholic, Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Congregational, and Presbyterian chapels.

Witton Shields, tp., pa. of and 3½ S.W. from Long Horsley (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 570. In the tp. is an ancient peel tower of considerable strength.

Witton, West, pa. and vil. on the south bank of the Ure, N.R. Yorks., 5 W. of Middleham; ac. 3,852; soil loam, overlying limestone. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1876) is E. Eng.; during the restoration a Saxon cross and several figures of the same period were found. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Swinethwaite Hall is a seat.

Wiveliscombe (locally pronounced "Wilscombe"), pa. and mkt. to. (T.) and head of petty sess. div., situated on elevated ground in a combe or valley among lofty hills, W. Somerset, 11 W. of Taunton; ac. 5,985; soil red sand and clay-slate, overlying clay-slate and red sandstone. The church of St. Andrew was rebuilt in 1827, in debased Gothic style, with Italian details; some of the windows have excellent Perp. tracery. In the south aisle is a tomb with recumbent effigies to Humphrey Wyndham (d. 1622) and Margery (Stevenson) his wife (d. 1670); under the church are catacombs. The pa. has also a Church of England mission room and Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The Market and Town Hall (1840) forms a good brick building with a portico and balcony, and comprises a spacious hall with ante-room for meetings and entertainments, and meat, corn, and fish markets, with a pig market in the rear. A monthly auction for sheep and cattle is held the third Tuesday in the month. The Free Library and Reading Room were erected in 1887 to commemorate the Jubilee of the reign of Queen Victoria. There are nineteen cottages for industrious reduced ratepayers, who are expected to keep the same in repair. The other charities, amounting in all to about £100 yearly, are administered by trustees. Here is a dispensary, in

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wittersham	Rye (5)	70	803
Witton (1)	Brundall (2)	120	133
Witton (2)	North Walsham (4)	130	233
Witton (3)	Cherry Tree (¾)	210	5210
Witton (4)	Northwich (½)	172	12033
Witton-cum-T.	Northwich (½)	172	7591
Witton, East	Leyburn (4)	236	390
Witton, E., Within	Leyburn (4)	236	257
Witton, E., Without	Leyburn (4)	236	133

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Witton Gilbert	Witton Gilbert	256	421
Witton-le-Wear, pa.	Witton-le-Wear	248	318
Witton-le-Wear, tp.	Witton-le-Wear	248	303
Witton, Long	Long Witton	302	8
Witton Park	Etherley (1)	246	254
Witton Shields	Scots Gap (3)	299	4
Witton, West	Leyburn (4)	236	64
Wiveliscombe	Wiveliscombe	168	2[illegible] connection with which is a maternity charity for poor married women. There are extensive slate quarries in this neighbourhood. The brewery at Golden Hill gives employment to upwards of 50 hands. There are traces of a residence here formerly belonging to the Bishops of Bath and Wells, some of the windows from which are now in the schoolhouse. Remains of Roman and Danish encampments are to be traced near the to. Abbotsfield, commanding an extensive view through the valley, Bourne House, Oakhampton House, and The Castle are seats.

Wivelsfield, pa. and vil., N. Sussex, 4 S.E. of Cuckfield; ac. 3,142; soil clay and mixed with sand, overlying clay and sandstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1869) is E. Eng.; there are piscinæ in the chancel and south chantry, and an aumbry in the chancel; the north doorway is Norm.; there are tablets to the More family. Here are Baptist and Congregational chapels, the latter with minister's residence attached. The charities amount to about £15 a year. Great Ote Hall, an ancient mansion, formerly the residence of the Countess of Huntingdon, is a seat.

Wivenhoe, pa. and river-port on the Colne, N.E. Essex, 5 S.E. of Colchester; ac. 1,542, and 42 of water; soil light, subsoil gravelly. W. forms, with Brightlingsea and Rowhedge, a member of the Cinque Port of Sandwich in Kent. There is a good quay, and the population is largely engaged in the fishery of oysters and sprats. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was restored in 1860. There are brasses to Sir Thomas Westeley, priest, chaplain to the Countess of Oxford (d. 1535), with effigy, vested, and bearing a chalice and host; another of Flemish work to William, second Viscount Beaumont and titular Baron Bardolf (d. 1507), with effigy in armour; the third is to Elizabeth (Scroope) (d. 1537), second wife of John de Vere, fourteenth Earl of Oxford, and widow of William Beaumont, and exhibits her effigy with coronet. This church suffered considerable damage by the shock of an earthquake, April 22, 1884. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. Ship and yacht building is carried on here, and boats for the oyster-dredging trade are also built. A fair is held on Sept. 4. There are almshouses for six poor widows, and the charities for distribution amount to £21 yearly. W. Hall, a fine old mansion with pleasant grounds, and W. Park are seats.

Wiverton Hall, pa., S. Notts., about 2 S. of Bingham. The pa. contains the demesne of W. Hall, and consists of 1,026 ac. of fine grazing and arable land. The mansion was garrisoned and held for the King during the Civil War, but was destroyed by the Parliamentarians. The present house is modern.

Wiveton, or Wiverton, pa. near the coast, N. Norf., 4½ N.W. by N. of Holt; ac. 1,504; soil mixed, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary is chiefly Perp.; there are brasses to George Brigge (d. 1597) and Anne his wife, with effigies and shields of arms; an inscription on brass of the bequests to the pa. by Raulf Grenewey (d. 1558), citizen and alderman of London, with merchants' mark and shield of arms of the Grocers' Company. Other brasses of William Bisshop, priest (d. 1512), and of a skeleton in a shroud (c. 1540) have been wholly or partially removed. The charities amount to about £450 yearly, one-sixth of which is applied to the repairs of the church, the remainder being devoted to the weekly distribution of bread and money among the poor, and to educational purposes. W. Hall is a seat; it contains some fine carved-oak panelling.

Wix, pa. and vil., N.E. Essex, 5 E.S.E. of Manningtree; ac. 3,129; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) is a small stone building. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. Here was a Benedictine convent, founded in the reign of Henry I.

Wixford, pa. on the Arrow, S.W. Warws., 2 S. of Alcester; ac. 550; soil various, subsoil various. The chapel of St. Milburg (restored 1881) is partly Norm. and partly E. Eng. and Perp.; the chantry chapel of St. John the Baptist, attached to the south side of the nave, was built about 1400, and still retains a handsome raised tomb to the founder and his wife. There are several ancient brasses; in the chancel and chantry chapel are piscinæ and a low-side window in the north wall of the chancel. The east side of the churchyard abuts on one of the ancient Roman streets.

Wixhill. [WESTON AND WIXHILL-UNDER-REDCASTLE.]

Wixoe, pa. on the Stour, S. Suff., 4 W.S.W. of Clare; ac. 547; soil and subsoil clay. The church (dedication unknown, but supposed to be St. Leonard) is a small Dec. structure; it has a good Norm. arch, and there are monuments to the Berkley and Payne families.

Woburn, pa., U., and mkt. to. (F.), and head of petty sess. div., W. Beds., on the borders of Bucks., 15 S.W. of Bedford; ac. 3,200; soil the lower greensand, which stretches from Leighton to Sandy, subsoil gravel. In September, 1595, it was almost destroyed by fire; during the civil war the co. was chiefly attached to the Parliamentary party, and in 1642 the Royal troops burnt a part of the to. It also suffered from the plague in 1625–26, when about 30 died. The old church of St. Mary the Virgin, in Bedford Street, rebuilt by Richard Hobbs, last abbot of W., was pulled down in 1868 and a mortuary chapel erected on its site with the materials, but the tower remains; in the mortuary chapel are memorials to Sir F. Staunton and Elizabeth, his wife (1630), and others to the Kay family, removed from the old church. The new church (1868), erected on a commanding site near the park gates, is in the Continental Gothic style of the 13th cent. There are also Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. The Town Hall, near the centre of the to., was built in 1830; it is now used for petty sessions and also for entertainments. The Institute (rebuilt 1884) is open daily. The reading-room is well provided with daily and weekly papers, and magazines; in connection with it is a library and a billiard room. The inhabitants are employed to some extent in lace and straw-plait making, but these handicrafts are gradually

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wivelsfield	Burgess Hill (3)	41	1983
Wivenhoe	Wyvenhoe	56	2309
Wiverton Hall	Barnston (2)	119	18
Wiveton	Holt (4)	133	220
Wix	Wrabness (2)	65	682
Wixford	Wixford	156	105
Wixoe	Stoke (1½)	60	100
Woburn	Woburn Sands (2½)	51	1193

dying out. There are four fairs in the year—Jan. 1, March 23, July 13, and Oct. 6. The endowments of this to., derived chiefly from the Bedford family, are considerable, and in addition to charities for distribution, there are 20 almshouses for the poor. The Free School has ceased to exist; the endowment has been vested in trustees, under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners in 1884. W. Abbey, the seat of the Duke of Bedford, retains its conventual name, although no part of the ancient structure now remains. The abbey was founded in 1145 for Cistercian monks; it was surrendered by Richard Hobbs, the last abbot, 1534–35, when the revenues were estimated at £391 18s. 2d. clear yearly value; the abbot, having thrown off his allegiance and joined the insurgents in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire, was at length taken prisoner and hanged on an oak tree in front of the abbey; the tree is said to be still standing. In 1547 the site and circuit of the abbey were granted to John, Lord Russell, of Chenies, Bucks. Queen Elizabeth visited the abbey in 1572, and Charles I. was also entertained here on three occasions, in 1644, 1645, and 1647. The present mansion was built about 1744, in the Italian style, forming a quadrangle, with corridors on the north, east, and south sides, surrounding a great court. The entrance to the park exhibits a façade decorated with Ionic columns, and surmounted by the arms of Russell. The art treasures of this house are famous. The park is stocked with deer, and diversified with abundance of wood and water.

Woburn Park, formerly a seat, pa. of Chertsey (q.v.), W. Surrey, 1 N. of Addlestone. It is now occupied as a Catholic college.

Woburn Sands, eccl. pa., pas. of Aspley Guise, S. Beds., and Wavendon (q.v.), E. Bucks., 4 E. of Bletchley. The church of St. Michael (1868) is in the French Gothic style. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Particular Baptist chapels, and a Friends' meeting-house. Edgebury, Mount House, and Sandy are seats.

Wodencroft, ha., pa. of Romaldkirk (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2 E. of Hunderthwaite.

Wokefield, tp., pa. of and 1 N. from Stratfield Mortimer (q.v.), S. Berks.; ac. 664.

Woking, pa. and mkt. to. (T.) on the Wey, N.W. Surrey, 6 N. of Guildford; ac. 8,804 and 85 water. The Basingstoke Canal passes through the pa. The church of St. Peter (founded in the early part of the 12th cent.) is E. Eng. and later, with some portions of the original Norm. fabric; the arcades were reconstructed and the chancel arch enlarged in the 15th cent.; the pulpit is probably Jacobean; the chancel contains a mural monument to Sir John Zouch (d. 1630), and some brasses (one of 1553). There are also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The London Necropolis (W. Cemetery) adjoins the Brookwood station of the South-Western Railway. The Council Offices are in new premises erected near the station. The W. Crematorium was erected in 1889. Here is a paper mill, and there are several fine nursery grounds. The Oriental Institute is situated at Maybury (q.v.). The Mayford Industrial School for destitute boys not convicted of crime was removed to its present site in 1887. The Surrey County Asylum is at Brookwood (q.v.). The Cottage Hospital was opened in 1893. H.M. Male Convict Prison, situated upon the highest part of Knapp Hill, is now occupied by a company of the Royal Engineers; opposite is the Female Convict Prison, opened in 1869. The charities of the pa. amount to £32 yearly for bread, grocery and clothing. St. Peter's Memorial Home provides a home for such of the sick poor as are members of the Church of England and require nursing. On rising ground on the west side of the river, about a mile from the London Road, stands the ancient mansion of Sutton Place, built by Sir Richard Weston about the year 1550; this house was visited by Queen Elizabeth. Hoe Place and Whitmoor House are also seats.

Wokingham, pa., mun. bor., U., mkt. to. (T.), and head of petty sess. div., S.E. Berks., 7 S.E. of Reading; ac. 8,530; soil loam, overlying sand and gravel. The to. occupies an elevated and healthy situation within the ancient limits of Windsor Forest, and consists of several irregularly built streets, meeting in a central spot used as a market-place. The church of All Saints (restored 1880) is E. Eng., and contains a flat stone to the memory of Dr. Thomas Godwin, Bishop of Bath and Wells (1584–90), who was a native of this to. (1517), and died here Nov. 19, 1590; the font is very old. The eccl. pa. of St. Paul has a church in Dec. style, that of St. Sebastian a church in E. Eng. style, and there are Nonconformist chapels. In the centre of the to. stands a block of buildings, consisting of the Town Hall, Market House, Police Station, and Reading Room, erected on the site of the old Town Hall; in the Town Hall is a parochial library. John Westende, of this to., left in 1451 eight almshouses for deserving poor, each of whom receives an allowance of coal, grocery, and meat weekly. The Victoria Almshouses, built in 1887 by public subscription, will hold four persons. Chapel Green, in this pa., has a hospital. [CHAPEL GREEN (1).] W. is endowed with many charities, producing over £400 yearly, for food, clothing, and fuel. In the "Rose" Inn here John Gay the poet, Dr. Arbuthnot, Pope, and Dean Swift are related to have once been weather-bound, and to have whiled away the time by commemorating in verse the charms of the landlord's daughter. Several fine residences are in the neighbourhood.

Wokingham Division, one of the three parl. divs. of Berks. It lies in the east of the co. and returns one member.

Wolborough, pa., S.E. Dev., containing the greater part of the to. of Newton Abbot; ac. 1,231. [NEWTON ABBOT.]

Wold. [OLD.]

Wold Hills, the name given to the high ground in the north and north-east of Leics. It forms the north-east and north-west boundaries of the basin of the Wreak.

Woldingham, pa., S.E. Surrey, 6 S.E. of Croydon; ac. 683; soil gravelly loam, overlying chalk. The church (dedication unknown) is a small E. Eng.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Woburn Sands	Woburn Sands	51	1506
Wokefield	Theale (4)	41	126
Woking	Woking (2)	24	9776
Wokingham, pa.	Wokingham	36	5314

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wokingham, m. bor.	Wokingham	36	3514
Wokingham Div.	.....	.....	6838
Wolborough	Newton Abbot (1)	209	5521
Woldingham	Marden Park (1¼)	17	161 building (restored 1890); it is supposed to have been formerly a pilgrim's or wayside chapel.

Wold Newton (1), pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 12 N. of Driffield, on the road to Scarborough; ac. 2,029; soil light loamy, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (restored 1839) is Norm. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. W. N. Hall is a seat.

Wold Newton (2), or Newton-le-Wold, pa. and vil., N.E. Lincs., 5 W. of North Thoresby; ac. 2,060; soil heavy loam, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (rebuilt 1862) is in E. Eng. style, and contains a font of 14th-cent. date. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Wolds, The (1), chalk-hill dis., E.R. Yorks., extending in the form of a crescent from Flamborough Head to Ferriby and Hessle, on the Humber. The W. consist of a series of green, rounded, smooth-faced summits open towards the north and west, and commanding beautiful views of the Vale of York. They extend 35 miles, the distance across them from east to west ranging from 5 to 30 miles. From Flamborough Head (400 ft.) their height increases to 805 ft. at Wilton Beacon (near Bishop Wilton), beyond which there is a gradual descent to Hunsley Beacon (531 ft.), in the north-east vicinity of South Cave. A broad hollow, called the Great Wold Valley, runs across their north portion from Bridlington to Settrington. From places such as Leavening, where the country is open in all directions, the views from the W. are magnificent. At their foot is a series of ancient vils., supposed to occupy the sites of British settlements. A remarkable feature of the W. consists in the deep verdant hollows with precipitous sides which are found everywhere in their midst. The whole tract has of late years been enclosed, and is now a thriving agricultural district. There are traces of camps near the Roman roads which ran from York towards Bridlington and Filey.

Wolds, The (2), chalk-hill dis., N.E. Lincs., extend about 40 miles N.N.W. from Spilsby to Barton-upon-Humber, with a width varying from 5 to 10 miles. They form a continuation of the Yorkshire Wolds (q.v.), which come to an end at Ferriby and Hessle on the opposite side of the Humber.

Wolferlow, pa., consisting of scattered farms, N. Herefords., 7 S.E. of Tenbury; ac. 1,583; soil clayey, overlying rock. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1863) is Norm. The charities are about £2 yearly. Cider is made here.

Wolferton, coast pa. and small vil., N.W. Norf., 7 N. by E. of Lynn; ac. 2,744; soil light, except the marsh land, which is stiff, subsoil sand and carr stone on the higher land, with clay in the marsh. The church of St. Peter is a large edifice, rebuilt after a fire which appears to have occurred before 1486; but some parts of the building indicate the existence of a church of considerable size in the early part of the 13th cent.; the chancel retains three sedilia and a piscina, and has stalls, partly ancient; each of the aisles has a chapel at its eastern end, enclosed by screen work. Remains of mural decoration, in red, yellow and black, have been discovered; the painting has been carefully cleared of whitewash and preserved.

Wolfhamcote, or Wolfhampcote, pa. and vil., E. Warws., 9 W. of Rugby; ac. 3,997; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Peter (restored) is a plain stone building. The church of St. Mark (1891) at Flecknoe is also a plain structure. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Wolfhill (1), ha., pa. of Cargill (q.v.), E. Perths., Sc., 6 N.E. of Perth.

Wolfhill (2), vil., pa. of Rathaspick (q.v.), E. Q. Co., Ir., about 8½ from Athy. The trade of the place is mainly supported by the agriculturists of the surrounding districts.

Wolford, Great, pa. and tp., S.W. Warws., 4 S.W. of Shipston-on-Stour; ac. of pa. 2,712, of tp. 1,369; soil clay, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Michael (restored 1885) is Perp.

Wolford, Little, tp., pa. of Great Wolford (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 3 S. of Shipston; ac. 1,343. Little Hall, a seat, is a mansion dating from the 16th cent.

Wolf Rock, islet off S.W. coast of Cornw., 8 S.S.W. of Land's End. The rock is said to be so named from the roar of the waves dashing against it. It is surmounted by a lighthouse with a revolving light visible 16 miles.

Wolfs Castle, ha., pa. of Hayscastle (q.v.), N. Pembs., 7 N. of Haverfordwest.

Wolfsdale, ha., pa. of Camrose (q.v.), W. Pembs., 3½ N.N.W. of Haverfordwest.

Wollaston (1), pa. and vil., E. Northants, on the Beds. border, 3½ S.S.E. of Wellingborough; ac. about 2,812; soil of a good fertile mixed character, overlying great oolite limestone, sand, ironstone, and upper lias clay. The church of St. Mary was originally cruciform; the greater part of the structure fell down in 1735, and the tower and spire with the old north transept are the only portions of the original church now remaining. In the chancel are several mural tablets to the Neale, Dickins, and Shipton families; there is a quaint monument to a member of the Shipton family, and one mural tablet to Edmond Neale (1617). There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The charities amount to £21 11s. yearly. Boot and shoe making is carried on here and affords employment to a large number of the inhabitants; others are engaged in agriculture, and in making mats of the rushes which grow in the Nen and neighbouring streams. South-south-west of the church is Beacon Hill, a high conical mound about ½ ac. in extent, planted with shrubs and trees. W. Hall, pleasantly situated in park-like grounds, is a seat.

Wollaston (2), tp., pa. of Alberbury (q.v.), S. Salop, about 10 W. of Shrewsbury; ac. 3,406.

Wollaston (3), eccl. pa. and tp. on the Stour, N. Worcs., adjoining Stourbridge; ac. 471. The church of St. James is E. Eng.

Wollastone, or Woollastone, pa. and vil. on the Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.

Wold Newton (1)	Ganton (4½)	223	292
Wold Newton (2)	Ludborough (5)	146	172
Wolferlow	Bromyard (5½)	135	118
Wolferton	Wolferton	103	218
Wolfhamcote	Weedon (7)	70	304
Wolford, Great, pa.	Moreton in the M. (4)	91	375
Wolford, Great, tp.	Moreton in the M. (4)	91	202
Wolford, Little	Moreton in the M. (4)	91	173
Wollaston (1)	Wellingborough (2½)	65	1905
Wollaston (2)	Middletown (1¼)	177	356
Wollaston (3)	Stourbridge (1)	141	2333
Wollastone	Wollastone	136	852

Severn, W. Glouc., 5 N.E. of Chepstow; ac. 4,169; soil mostly gravel, overlying limestone and sandstone. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1859) is Norm. There are charities of about £8 yearly.

Wollaston, Great, eccl. pa., pa. of Alberbury (q.v.), S. Salop and Montgoms., about 12 w. of Shrewsbury. The church of St. John (restored 1885) is a plain stone edifice; it contains a brass tablet to the memory of "Old Parr," said to have attained the age of 152 years (1483–1635).

Wollaton, pa. and vil., S.W. Notts., 3 w. of Nottingham; ac. 2,064; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1886) is Perp.; the chancel contains several tombs of the Willoughby family, surmounted by recumbent figures of mail-clad knights, and at the end of the north aisle are other fine monuments. The nave has a brass to Robert Smythson (d. 1614). W. is a colliery district, and the Nottingham Canal passes through. W. Hall is an Elizabethan building. The deer park contains some magnificent trees.

Wollescote, tp., pa. of Old Swinford (q.v.), N. Worcs., 1½ E. of Stourbridge; ac. 442. [LYE, THE.]

Wolseley Bridge, vil., pa. of Colwich (q.v.), W. Staffs., about 2 N.W. of Rugeley. W. Hall is a seat.

Wolsingham, pa. and small to., formerly with a market, S. Dur., 16 S.W. of Durham. The Wear is here crossed by a stone bridge, erected on the site of the old bridge, which was swept away by a great flood in November, 1771. The church of St. Matthew, rebuilt in 1848, except the tower, is in E. Eng. style; the churchyard is bordered with rows of fine trees. The Catholic church of St.

WOLSINGHAM.

Thomas of Canterbury is in Dec. style. There are also Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Town Hall, in the market-place, was enlarged in 1880; the upper part is used for public meetings. The Police Station, situated near the market-place, is a substantial building, with lock-up attached. The W. Mechanics' Institute is carried on at a house in the market-place. Here is a woollen manufactory, a saw mill, and a shovel manufactory. Near the to. is an extensive factory where steel of a superior character is produced. The Ganister fire stone and barytes quarries and mines are situated in this pa. There are lead

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wollaston, Great	Middletown (2)	177	544
Wollaton	Radford (1)	126	654
Wollescote	Stourbridge (2)	141	3458
Wolsingham	Wolsingham	255	7533
Wolstanton	Burslem (1)	150	50885
Wolston, pa.	Brandon and W.	89	1114

mines in the pa., whi early period, and ha
ore. The market, fo obsolete. There we these are almost ob is held annually in S considerable, and a Bishop Oak is a seat.

Wolsonbury Beaco
combe (q.v.), S. Suss
Here are the remains

Wolstanton, exten
Staffs., 1½ N. of Newc soil and subsoil clay
cluded in the parl. b
The church of St.
Norm. and later style tomb of alabaster, v
William Sneyd (157 his wife; in panels o
the tomb are standi
There are several mu members of the Sneyd chapel-of-ease, is in various Nonconformi

Wolston, pa., tp., a bank of the Avon, S. of pa. 4,798, of tp.
overlying clay. The various periods. Th priory was founded
some remains of whi
W. Grange and W.

Wolston Mynd, em of Welshpool.

Wolsty, coast ha.,
N.W. Cumb., 2 S. of
of a castle, formerly

Wolterton, pa., N.
722; soil good loam,
greater part of the attached to W. Ha short distance north ruins of the church o
the tower now rem yearly from Scamler'

Wolvercote. [Wo

Wolverdington. [

Wolverhampton, p tp., U., mkt. and ma N.W. of Birmingham;
and co. bor.) 3,494 and siderable antiquity, w ton" prior to 996, w
Edgar and widow of ton, founded a colleg prebendaries, and en
leges, that in her ho franes Hamton," of corruption St. Pete is Dec. and Perp.; th altar-tomb and a mon

| PLACE. | N
fr |
|---|---|
| Wolston, tp. | |
| Wolterton | |
| Wolverhampton, p.b. | |
| W'verhampton, m.b. | |
| Wolverhampton | |

who aided the escape of Charles II. after his concealment in the woods of Boscobel; the Parliamentary troops, quartered here in 1642, ruthlessly mutilated the interior and destroyed the records. In 1846 the collegiate establishment ceased to exist, and its property became vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. In the churchyard is an ancient shaft, supposed to be of the E. Eng. period. There are several eccl. pas. with modern churches, Catholic churches, and places of worship for the principal Nonconformist bodies. The Grammar School (founded in 1515) was reorganised by the Charity Commissioners in 1874, when new buildings were erected. The principal public buildings are the Town Hall, in Italian style; the Exchange, used for public meetings; the Agricultural Hall, now used as a Corn Exchange and for public meetings; the Market Hall; the Post Office (1895); the Art Gallery and Museum, adjoining which is the School of Art; the Free Library, containing lecture hall, museum, and class rooms; the Church Institute, the theatres, and several club-houses. The markets are held twice a week—on Wednesday for cattle, corn, and provisions, and on Wednesday and Saturday for meat and vegetables. A large pleasure fair is annually held on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday in Whitsun week. The Cattle Market occupies an area of 4½ ac., and adjoining is the Fat Pig Market. The chief charitable institutions are the General Hospital, in Italian style; the Eye Infirmary, the District Hospital for Women, the Victoria Nursing Institution, the Society for the Outdoor Blind, and the Orphan Asylum. The charities, amounting to £55 yearly, are distributed in bread, and there is £8 for clothing and other relief. The manufactures of the to. consist principally of ironmongery, hardware, locks and keys, gas, locomotive and other tubing, pump work, guns, gun-locks, tools, malt and coffee mills, kitchen furniture, coach ironmongery, iron fencing and steel toys, and the manufacture of bicycles and tricycles. The district S.E. of the to. is worked for coal and ironstone, great quantities of which are supplied to the blast furnaces in the co. The W. Park, formerly the racecourse, is now planted with shrubs and trees. The parl. bor. has three divs.:—W. East, W. South, and W. West, each returning one member.

St. Peter's Church, Wolverhampton.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

Wolverhampton, East. [Wolverhampton.]

Wolverhampton, South. [Wolverhampton.]

Wolverhampton, West. [Wolverhampton.]

Wolverley, pa. and vil., N. Worcs., 2½ N. of Kidderminster; ac. 5,532; soil light, overlying sandstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1882) is in Italian style. Lea Castle and W. House are seats.

Wolvershill, ha., pa. of Bulkington (q.v.), N.E. Warws., 4 S.E. of Nuneaton.

Wolverton (1), pa. and to., N. Bucks., 2 E. of Stony Stratford; ac. 2,260. The church of the Holy Trinity is in Norm. style, on the site of a former structure; in the chancel is a recumbent marble effigy of Sir Thomas Longueville, killed by a fall from his horse in 1685. There is an eccl. pa. (New Wolverton) with a modern church, and the Catholics and Wesleyans have places of worship. The Science and Art Institute (1864) is a structure of red brick and stone, containing class rooms, reading-room, and library, and a large lecture hall. A cattle market is held every third Monday in each month. The London and North-Western Railway Company have here extensive workshops for the manufacture and repair of railway carriages, which afford employment to a large number of hands.

Wolverton (2), Wolfreton, or Woolverton, pa. and small vil., W. Hants, 7 N.W. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,461; soil various, subsoil chalk and sand. The church of St. Catherine (restored 1872) is in Classic style, by Sir Christopher Wren. Brown's charity of £22 is for distribution to the poor. Near the church is W. Park, a handsome mansion standing in a finely-wooded park.

Wolverton (3), pa., S.W. Warws., 5½ W.S.W. of Warwick; ac. 1,112; soil gravelly loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1869) is E. Eng. and Dec.; it contains an Easter sepulchre, a sedile and piscina, and some ancient glass.

Wolverton (4), ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Stoulton (q.v.), W. Worcs.

Wolverton, New. [Wolverton (1).]

Wolves Newton, pa., S.E. Mon., 8 N.W. of Chepstow; ac. 2,641; soil clayey loam, overlying marl. The church of St. Thomas-à-Becket is partly E. Eng. There is a Congregational chapel. The farmhouse known as Court-y-Gaer occupies

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wolverhampton, E.	.....	.....	54511
Wolverhampton, S.	.....	.....	62744
Wolverhampton, W.	.....	.....	57110
Wolverley	Kidderminster (2½)	135	2600

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wolverton (1)	Wolverton	52	4147
Wolverton (2)	Basingstoke (7)	48	157
Wolverton (3)	Claverdon (1)	114	151
Wolves Newton	Usk (5)	157	158

the site of an ancient camp or stronghold; a large portion of the moat is still remaining.

Wolvey, pa. and vil., N.E. Warws., on the borders of Leics., 5½ S.E. of Nuneaton; ac. 3,303; soil clay and sand. The church of St. John the Baptist, originally Norm., is now chiefly Dec.; the south aisle retains the remains of a chantry founded in 1344 by Alice Lady Astley, and in the north aisle is a monument, with recumbent effigies of freestone, to Sir Thomas de Wolvey and his wife (c. 1300), and one of alabaster with effigies to Sir Thomas Astley and his wife (1603). Here is a Baptist chapel. The charities amount to about £36 a year. Leicester Grange and W. Hall (with a private Catholic chapel) are seats; the latter, built in 1676 to replace an older house destroyed in the Civil War, contains some interesting old glass.

Wolviston, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Billingham (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 5 N. of Stockton; ac. 2,447. The church of St. Peter is a modern brick edifice. There are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. W. Hall is a seat.

Womaston. [WALTON AND WOMASTON.]

Wombleton, tp., pa. of Kirkdale (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 S.W. of Kirkby Moorside; ac. 1,187. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Wombourne, pa. and vil., S. Staffs., 5 S.W. of Wolverhampton; ac. 4,328; soil light loam, overlying sand. The church of St. Benedict (restored 1867) is in Gothic style. Here is a Congregational chapel. Foxhills and The Wodehouse are seats; the latter, which has been restored, dates from 1500, and contains a fine collection of old oak furniture, china, and paintings.

Wombridge, pa. and vil., Mid Salop, 3 E. of Wellington; ac. 698; soil and subsoil various. The church of SS. Mary and Leonard (rebuilt 1869) is in various styles. There are extensive ironworks, and the minerals are ironstone and coal. Near the church are some slight remains of a priory of canons regular of St. Augustine.

Wombwell, eccl. pa., tp., and large vil. on the Dove and the Dearne and Dove Canal, pa. of Darfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 N.W. of Rotherham; ac. 3,851. The church of St. Mary is a very low but in part ancient building of stone; the chancel is E. Eng., but the rest of the church was built in 1835. There are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. There is a market and a sewage farm.

Womenswould, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 7 S.E. of Canterbury; ac. 1,410; soil chalky, overlying chalk. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1870) is chiefly E. Eng.; there are sedilia, aumbry, a piscina, and several ancient monuments of the Winchester, Nethersole, and other families. The Baptists have a chapel.

Womersley, pa., tp., and vil., W.R. Yorks., 11 N.N.W. of Doncaster; ac. of pa. 7,013, of tp. 3,850; soil clay, marl, sand, and limestone; of the last there are several quarries. The church of St. Martin (restored 1868) is principally E. Eng., with some traces of Norm. work. During the restoration a stone coffin-lid was found buried beneath the floor, bearing the figure of a crusader with the arms of the De Lacy family, the supposed founders of the church, since the same coat is repeated in various parts of the building; an ancient crucifix of peculiar workmanship was also found. Woodhall, 1 N. from the vil. and once belonging to the Vavasour family, was anciently surrounded by a moat; it is now a farmhouse. W. Hall, a noble edifice in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Wonastow, pa., E. Mon., 2 W.S.W. of Monmouth; ac. 1,615 and 9 water; soil stiff clay, overlying marl. The church of St. Wonnow is E. Eng. There is a chapel for Primitive Methodists. Treowen Castle, now a farmhouse, has many interesting and ancient features. W. Court, supposed to have been built in the reign of King Henry VI., was at one time the residence of a branch of the Herbert family; the old chapel belonging to the mansion has been converted into domestic offices.

Wonersh, pa. and vil., S.W. Surrey, 3½ S. of Guildford; ac. 4,427; soil light loam, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (1793) is a plain structure of brick and stone in Norm. style. Here is a Congregational chapel. St. John's Seminary is for the education of priests for the Catholic diocese of Southwark, and there is a Franciscan monastery. In the vil. is a Liberal Club. The charities amount to about £80 yearly, chiefly distributed in bread, coals and clothing. W. Park is a seat; the central part of the mansion, which formed the ancient manor-house, is Elizabethan; the ancient deer park is well stocked with deer. Little Tangley, Tangley Hill, and Tangley Manor, an Elizabethan moated timber house, are also seats.

Wonford, East, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Milton Damerel (q.v.), W. Devon.

Wonston, pa. and vil., W. Hants, 7 N. of Winchester; ac. 5,448; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1871-72) is an ancient structure.

Wooburn, pa. and scattered vil., S. Bucks., 4 S.E. of Wycombe; ac. 2,951; soil loam and gravel, overlying chalk and sand. The church of St. Paul (restored) is Dec. and Perp.; there are brasses to John Goodwin and Pernell his wife, who built the church tower, A.D. 1488; to Thomas Swaine, S.T.P., prebendary of Aylesbury (1519), and to Arthur, infant son of Philip, fourth Baron Wharton (1642); one other brass, with a single figure in shroud, surrounded by shields and scrolls, has a rhyming inscription of eleven lines, but no name or date; there are memorials to the families of Bertie and Wharton. There are various Nonconformist chapels, and a Working Men's Institute and reading-room. There are several charities. The pa. contains extensive paper and millboard mills. Fairs are held here on May 4 and Nov. 12. W. House is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wolvey	Shilton (2¾)	91	715
Wolviston, eccl. pa.	Billingham (1)	239	711
Wolviston, tp.	Billingham (1)	239	585
Wombleton	Nawton (½)	222	290
Wombourne	Wolverhampton (5)	125	1910
Wombridge	Wombridge	152	2786
Wombwell	Wombwell	168	10942

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Womenswould	Barham (1)	76	[illegible]
Womersley, pa.	Womersley	167	[illegible]
Womersley, tp.	Womersley	167	[illegible]
Wonastow	Monmouth (2)	144	[illegible]
Wonersh	Bramley and W.	54	[illegible]
Wonston	Sutton Scotney (½)	73	[illegible]
Wooburn	Wooburn Green	30	[illegible]

Wood, another name for Acol (q.v.).

Wooda or Woody Bay, inlet of the sea, north coast of Dev., 2½ W. of Lynton. The bay is nearly ½ mile wide at its mouth. Its shores are beautifully wooded.

Woodale, ha., pa. of Coverham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 7 S.W. of Middleham.

Woodall (1), ha., pa. of Swine (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 7 N. of Hedon. Woodhall is a seat.

Woodall (2), vil., pa. of and ¾ W. from Harthill-with-Woodall (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Woodbank, tp., pa. of Shotwick (q.v.), W. Chesh., about 5 N.W. of Chester; ac. 161.

Woodbastwick, pa. and vil. near the Bure, E. Norf., 8 N.E. of Norwich; ac. 2,157; soil mixed, overlying brick-earth. The church of SS. Fabian and Sebastian (restored 1879) is Dec. There is an ancient endowment of about 7 ac. of land for the poor. W. Hall is a seat.

Woodborough (1), pa. and vil., Mid Notts., 3 N.N.E. of Nottingham; ac. 1,940; soil sand and clay, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Swithin (restored 1886–91) is of various periods; the chancel retains sedilia and aumbry, and there are some remains of an oak rood-screen, and some ancient stained glass. The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. W. Hall is a seat.

Woodborough (2), pa. and vil. near the Kennet and Avon Canal, E. Wilts., 4 W. of Pewsey; ac. 1,014; soil clay and greensand, subsoil chalky. The church of St. Mary is in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Woodborough (3), ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Winscombe (q.v.), N. Somerset.

Woodbridge, pa., mkt. and U. to., head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., on the Deben, S.E. Suff., 8 N.E. of Ipswich; ac. 1,100 and 109 water. The to. is regularly built, and consists principally of four streets, forming the roads to Ipswich, Saxmundham, Debenham, and Bredfield. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1874–75) is Perp. The tomb of Thomas Sekforde, Esq. (the munificent benefactor of this to.), has been restored and placed against his chapel on the north side of the chancel, and his armour, with the carved wood crest of the Deuth hound, placed upon it. During the restoration the base of the old rood-screen, erected by John Albrede (c. 1450), was discovered; three piscinæ and the sedilia were also discovered. There are several brasses (the oldest bearing the date 1601), and a large marble monument to Jeffrey Pitman, Esq., sometime Sheriff of Suffolk (d. 1627). W. has an eccl. pa. with a modern church in E. Eng. style, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Dissenting bodies. The Grammar School was founded in 1662, but has been remodelled by the Commissioners and new buildings erected in 1865. The charities are very important; the income of the Seckford estate being £3,173 2s., and the trustees having a sum of £20,500 invested in the Consols, a new scheme for the management of the charity has been settled by the Court of Chancery. The Hospital is a magnificent range of buildings in Elizabethan style, comprising the almshouse chapel and two wings east and west, having fine open arcades; the inmates have two rooms and a plot of garden ground. There are several other charities for the repair of the church and the relief of the poor. The Shire Hall, Market Hill, is a large brick building of Flemish design. Corn and cattle markets are held on Thursdays, and the to. being advantageously situated in an extensive corn and grazing dis.,

Woodbridge.

the markets are abundantly supplied and well attended. Fairs are held on the third Friday in March and Michaelmas Day and the day following; the Lady Fair, held in March, is celebrated for its annual show of entire horses. The Public Room or Lecture Hall, in St. John's Street, is used for public meetings; there are reading-rooms adjoining, in which the library of the Mechanics' Institution is kept. The W. Horticultural Society hold their annual meetings in the month of July. Large quantities of malt and corn and bricks are shipped from W., and the imports are coal, timber, seeds, oilcake, wine, spirits, and other goods. There are bonded warehouses, corn-mills, maltings, and an iron-foundry. Bernard Barton, the Quaker poet, resided here, and lies buried in the graveyard of the Friends' meeting-house.

Woodbridge (or South-Eastern) Division, one of the five parl. divs. of Suff. It returns one member.

Woodburcote, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Towcester (q.v.), S. Northants.

Woodburn, pl., pa. of Carrickfergus (q.v.), S.E. co. Antr., Ir. It stands on a rivulet of the same name, and is 2 N.W. of Carrickfergus, on the road to Ballynure. A Premonstratensian priory was founded here in 1242 and surrendered to Henry VIII. in 1542. The linen manufacture is carried on here extensively.

Woodburn, East, vil., pa. of and 1 E. from Corsenside (q.v.), Mid Northumb.

Woodburn, West, vil., pa. of Corsenside (q.v.), Mid Northumb., 4½ N.E. of Bellingham.

Woodbury (1), pa. and large vil., S. Dev., near the estuary of the Exe, 7 S.E. of Exeter; ac. 6,864; soil clay and good marl, overlying clay with large pebbles. The church of St. Swithin (restored) is Dec. and Perp. In the church is a monument to

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Woodbank	Ledsham (2)	186	84
Woodbastwick	Brundall (4)	120	264
Woodborough (1)	Lowdham (3)	131	768
Woodborough (2)	Woodborough	79	424

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Woodbridge	Woodbridge	79	4480
Woodbridge Division	.....	.....	56543
Woodbury	Woodbury Road (1½)	176	1644

Sir Henry Pollexfen, Kt., Chief Justice of the Common Pleas (d. 1691); in the north aisle is a flat stone with matrices of ancient brasses to the Haydon family; on the north side of the chancel is an altar-tomb with recumbent effigies of a knight in armour and a lady, probably representing Sir Thomas Prideaux, Kt. (d. 1640), and Joan (Cole) his wife. W. has also a chapel, a Free church, and a Unitarian chapel. The charities amount to about £37 yearly. Here is a tannery, two malting establishments, and a manure manufactory. A pleasure fair is held on the Wednesday in Whitsun week. On the lofty summit of Woodbury Common, which commands a fine view, are the remains of an ancient entrenchment called "Woodbury Castle," of British or Saxon origin. Nutwell Court is a seat.

Woodbury (2), ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Gamlingay (q.v.), W. Cambs.

Woodbury Hill (1), eminence, E. Dors., 1 E. of Bere Regis. Here is a circular encampment, embracing an area of 10 ac., with three ramparts and fosses. Woodbury Fair, formerly one of the most famous in England, is still held on the hill; it begins on the Nativity of the Virgin (Sept. 18). The hill commands a very extensive view.

Woodbury Hill (2), eminence, N.W. Worcs., 6 S.W. of Stourport. On it is a pre-Roman camp, 27 ac. in extent, surrounded by a single rampart. Here Owen Glendower and his French allies withdrew after sacking Worcester in 1405.

Woodbury Salterton, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Woodbury and Colaton Raleigh (q.v.), S. Dev., 6 S.E. of Exeter. The church of the Holy Trinity is a modern building in Gothic style.

Woodchester, pa. and vil., Mid Glouc., 12 S. of Gloucester; ac. 1,188; soil clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (1864), in Gothic style, contains a number of monuments removed from the old church. Underneath a part of the old churchyard are remains of a Roman pavement. The Dominicans have a priory here, and in connection with the Franciscan convent are an orphanage and a workroom where employment is found for girls of the neighbourhood. The chief industry is the manufacture of superfine broadcloth; pins are also made here. The Priory, in the gardens of which are remains of a Roman villa, W. House, and W. Park, to which a Catholic chapel is attached, are seats.

Woodchurch (1), pa. and tp., N.W. Chesh., 3 W.S.W. of Birkenhead; ac. of pa. 5,798, of tp. 338. Holy Cross Church is Dec. The pa. contains a Primitive Methodist chapel. Arrowes Hall stands in a large and well-timbered park.

Woodchurch (2), pa. and vil., S. Kent, 5 E. of Tenterden; ac. 6,982; soil heavy, subsoil clayey. The church of All Saints (restored) is chiefly E. Eng.; the north porch has a parvise, and the chancel retains sedilia, piscina, and an aumbry. There are several ancient monuments, and 14th- and 16th-cent. brasses. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. The charities amount to about £28 yearly. Henghurst is a seat.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Woodbury Salterton	Topsham (5)	175	385
Woodchester	Woodchester	196	867
Woodchurch (1), pa.	Thurstaston (3)	196	7607
Woodchurch (1), tp.	Thurstaston (3)	196	129
Woodchurch (2)	Appledore (4)	63	1179
Woodcote (1)	Newport (2)	145	204

Woodcombe, ha., pa. of and adjoining Minehead (q.v.), N.W. Somerset.

Woodcot, vil., pa. of South Stoke (q.v.), S. Oxon., 3½ N.E. of Goring. The church of St. Leonard (rebuilt 1845–46) is in Norm. style.

Woodcote (1), chap. and tp., pa. of Sheriff Hales (q.v.), N. Salop; ac. 1,983. There is a church (restored 1883) containing two full-length incised effigies (date 1500) and several mural tablets. Hall is a seat.

Woodcote (2), ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Westhampnett (q.v.), S.W. Sussex.

Woodcote, Great, ha., pa. of Beddington (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, 2½ S.W. of East Croydon railway station. Roman foundations have been uncovered here, and arms and spearheads found.

Woodcote, Little, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Carshalton (q.v.), N.E. Surrey.

Woodcott (1), pa., W. Hants, 2 W. of Litchfield; ac. 1,350; soil rather heavy, overlying chalk. The church of St. James (rebuilt 1704) is a stone and flint edifice.

Woodcott (2), tp., pa. of Wrenbury (q.v.), S. Chesh., about 1 N.E. of Wrenbury station; ac. 153.

Woodcott (3), ha., pa. of and ½ E. from Bramdean (q.v.), E. Hants.

Woodcutts, ti., pa. of Handley (q.v.), N. Dors., about 2 N.E. of Farnham. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Wood Dalling, pa. and vil., N. Norf., 7 W. of Aylsham; ac. 2,444; soil sand and loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1867) is Perp.; there are several memorial brasses and slabs to the Bulwer and Fleetwood families. Here are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. The late Lord Dalling and Bulwer (d. 1872), ambassador to the Ottoman Porte 1858–65, took his title from this pa. Bulwer's charity of £6 10s. yearly is distributed to the poor.

Wood Ditton, pa. and vil., E. Cambs., 3¼ S. of Newmarket; ac. 4,852; soil various, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. with Perp. additions. Here are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a Congregational mission room.

Wood Eaton (1), pa. and picturesque vil., Mid Oxon., 6½ N. of Oxford; ac. 744; soil clay, overlying sand and clay. The church of the Holy Rood is of various periods; it retains a piscina and a Late Perp. rood-screen. Near the church are the remains of a cross. In 1676 some ancient British coins were found, and Roman urns and fibulæ have been discovered. W. E. House is a seat.

Wood Eaton (2), ha., pa. of and adjoining Church Eaton (q.v.), W. Staffs.

Wood Eaves, ha., pa. of and 1½ E. from High Offley (q.v.), W. Staffs.

Wooden, ha., pa. of Lesbury (q.v.), N.E. Northumb., 4 S.E. of Alnwick.

Wooden Bridge, pl. with railway station, pa. Castlemacadam (q.v.), S. co. Wick., Ir., about

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Woodcott (1)	Litchfield (2)	63
Woodcott (2)	Wrenbury (1)	166
Wood Dalling	Corpusty (2)	133
Wood Ditton	Newmarket (3½)	70
Wood Eaton (1)	Islip (2)	72

¼ N.W. of Arklow. It is much frequented by tourists visiting the Vale of Ovoca. [OVOCA (1).]

Woodend (1), tp., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Blakesley (q.v.), S. Northants; ac. 1,743. There is a Baptist chapel.

Woodend (2), vil., pa. of Torphichen (q.v.), W. Linliths., Sc., 3 W. by N. of Bathgate.

Woodend (3), vil., pa. of Newhills, E. Abers., Sc., 4½ N.W. of Aberdeen.

Wood Enderby, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 4 S. by E. of Horncastle; ac. 749; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Benedict is E. Eng. and Dec., and the Wesleyans have a chapel. At the south end of the vil. is a small barrow.

Woodford (1), pa. and residential dis., S.W. Essex, forming a north-east sub. of London; ac. 2,126 and 20 water; soil loam and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1889) is a brick building covered with stucco; it contains several 17th-cent. monuments. (For the eccl. pas., see HERMON HILL, WOODFORD BRIDGE, and WOODFORD WELLS.) There are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The W. Art and Industrial Society, for the encouragement of local amateur talent, holds yearly exhibitions, including collections on loan. The "Wilfrid Lawson" Temperance Hotel is a structure of brick in Gothic style; the Local Board have their offices in its buildings, which include a hall for meetings and entertainments. W. Hall, formerly a seat, is now a convalescent home for the poor of London. The interest of £1,000 is given to the poor in clothing in October, and of £750 in coals yearly to twenty-five families. The custom of Borough English prevails in these manors.

Woodford (2), pa. on the Avon, S. Wilts., 4½ N.W. of Salisbury; ac. 2,292; soil and subsoil chalk and gravel. The church of All Saints was, with the exception of the tower, rebuilt in 1845. In the pa. is Heale House, now occupied as a farmhouse; here Charles II. was concealed for fourteen days before his departure from England. Here was formerly a palace of the Bishops of Salisbury; a farmhouse stands on part of the site.

Woodford (3), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 5 S. by W. of Stockport; ac. 1,449. Christ Church (restored 1891) is a plain modern building.

Woodford (4). [WOODFORD-NEAR-THRAPSTON.]

Woodford (5), ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Morrenstow (q.v.), N.E. Cornw.

Woodford (6), small to., and head of petty sess. div. on the Rosmore or Woodford, pa. of Ballynakill (q.v.), S.E. co. Galway, Ir., 6 W.S.W. of Portumna. Here is a Catholic church. Fairs are held on March 18, May 12, June 25, and Dec. 26.

Woodford (7), stream, rises in Carrigallen bar., E. co. Leit., Ir., and flows in a general N.E. direction to Upper Lough Erne.

Woodford (8), stream, Leitrim bar., S.E. co. Galway, Ir., rises in the Slieve Aughty Mountains and runs E. by N. and E.S.E. to Lough Derg.

Woodford Bridge, eccl. pa. on the Roding, pa. of Woodford (q.v.), S.W. Essex, 2 N.E. of Woodford. The church of St. Paul is in Gothic style. Here is the London County Asylum, opened in 1893.

Woodford-cum-Membris, pa. and vil. on the Cherwell, S. Northants, 9 S. of Daventry; ac. 2,649; soil marlstone, upper lias, and sand. The church of All Saints (restored 1878) is E. Eng.; the chancel retains a piscina, and on the floor is a brass, with the effigy of a priest, to Nicholas Stafford, vicar (d. 1400). During the restoration a stone effigy of a lady was discovered about 2 ft. below the surface; it is now placed in a recess in the chancel. Here is a place of worship for the Moravians. The charities are of £11 yearly value.

Woodford Grange, pa., S. Staffs., adjoining Wombourne; ac. 197.

Woodford Green, part of the pa. of Woodford (q.v.), S.W. Essex, lying about 1 W. of Woodford railway station.

Woodford Halse, vil., pa. of Woodford-cum-Membris (q.v.), S. Northants, about 8 S. of Daventry.

Woodford-near-Thrapston, or Woodford, pa. and vil. on the Nen, N. Northants, 3 S.W. of Thrapston; ac. 2,126; soil clay, overlying clay and ironstone. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1867) is E. Eng. and later; at the east end of the north aisle are two curious recumbent wood effigies conjectured to represent Sir Walter de Trayly, or Treylli (1290), and Alianora his wife (1316); there is also a brass with effigy and inscription to Simon Malory the elder (d. 1580). There are Baptist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. The Temperance Hall is used for lectures and entertainments. There are some charities. Shoe-making is carried on largely by the villagers for the manufacturers of the neighbouring tos. W. House is a seat.

Woodford Wells, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1 N. from Woodford (q.v.), S.W. Essex. All Saints' Church is in Gothic style. Here is a mineral spring.

Woodgarston, ha., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Monk Sherborne (q.v.), N. Hants.

Woodgreen, pa., S.W. Hants, 1 S.E. of Breamore; ac. 35.

Wood Green (1), eccl. pa. and dis., forming a north suburb of London, pa. of Tottenham (q.v.), E. Middx., 5¾ N. of St. Paul's. The church of St. Michael and All Angels is in E. Eng. style, and there are several Nonconformist chapels. The Town Hall—originally a private mansion called Earlham Grove House—was opened in 1893; adjacent to it is a public recreation ground. The other public buildings include Assembly Rooms and a Masonic Hall. The Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, in Lordship Lane, was established in 1798; the present building was erected in 1866. Fuller's Almshouses date from 1592. The Printers' Almshouses, the Fishmongers' and Poulterers' Almshouses (1835) are in Elizabethan style.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Woodend (1)	Blakesley (1)	71	213
Woodend (2)	Armadale (1)	399	346
Woodend (3)	Buxburn (1)	532	677
Wood Enderby	Woodhall Spa (3)	124	147
Woodford (1)	Woodford	9	10984
Woodford (2)	Salisbury (4½)	84	427
Woodford (3)	Handforth (1½)	178	332
Woodford (6)	Loughrea (14)	116	276
Woodford Bridge	Woodford (1)	9	1955
Woodford-cum-M.	Weedon (8)	70	527
Woodford Grange	Wolverhampton (5)	125	8
Woodford-near-T.	Twywell (1)	76	1547
Woodford Wells	Woodford (1)	9	3352
Woodgreen	Breamore (1)	93	268
Wood Green (1)	Wood Green	5	15539

Wood Green (2), eccl. pa., pas. of Wednesbury and West Bromwich (q.v.), S. Staffs. The church of St. Paul (1874) is in Dec. style.

Woodhall (1), pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 3 S.W. of Horncastle; ac. 2,231; soil sand and loam, overlying mostly blue clay. The church of St. Margaret (restored) is Gothic.

Woodhall (2). [BRACKENHOLME-WITH-WOODHALL.]

Woodhall (3), estate with mansion, pa. of Colinton (q.v.), N.W. Edins., Sc., 5 S.W. of Edinburgh.

Woodhall Spa, vil., pa. of Woodhall (q.v.), E. Lincs., 6½ S.W. of Horncastle. The Spa extends over a strip of light sandy soil, protected from the north and west winds by a long range of lofty wolds parallel with the coast.

Woodham (1), tp., pa. of Waddesdon (q.v.), Mid Bucks., about 5 N.W. of Aylesbury; ac. 313.

Woodham (2), tp., pa. of Aycliffe (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 8 N. of Darlington; ac. 3,811.

Woodham Ferris, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 9 S.E. of Chelmsford; ac. 4,476 and 22 water; soil stiff clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1884) dates from the reign of Henry II. Here is a Congregational chapel. The charities amount to about £30 yearly.

Woodham Mortimer, pa., S.E. Essex, 7 E. of Chelmsford; ac. 1,385; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Margaret is Perp., with some Norm. and E. Eng. remains; the original piscina remains in the south chancel wall. The charities amount to £9 yearly. W. M. Place, in a pleasant park, is a seat.

Woodham Walter, pa. and picturesque vil., S.E. Essex, 9 E. of Chelmsford; ac. 2,462 and 15 water; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Michael is a Perp. building of brick.

Woodhaven, vil. on the Firth of Tay, pa. of Forgan (q.v.), N.E. Fifes., Sc., 1 S.W. of Newport.

Woodhay, East, pa. and vil., W. Hants, 6 S.W. of Newbury; ac. 5,070; soil various, overlying chalk. The church of St. Martin (rebuilt 1822) is in Norm. style. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities amount to about £50 yearly.

Woodhay, West, pa., S. Berks., 3 S. of Kintbury; ac. 1,432; soil light, overlying chalk and clay. The church of St. Lawrence (1882–83) is in Dec. style. The Manor House is a seat.

Woodhead (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Mottram-in-Longden-Dale (q.v.), N.E. Chesh., about 4 E. of Tintwistle. The church of St. James is a plain stone building. Here are extensive reservoirs of the Manchester Corporation Waterworks.

Woodhead (2), small vil., pa. of Fyvie (q.v.), N. Abers., Sc., 2½ miles from Fyvie station.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wood Green (2)	Wood Green	119	4320
Woodhall (1)	Woodhall Spa	124	871
Woodham (1)	Quainton Road (2½)	55	61
Woodham (2)	Aycliffe (3)	237	122
Woodham Ferris	Woodham Ferris	34	769
Woodham Mortimer	Maldon (3)	44	298
Woodham Walter	Maldon (3)	44	491
Woodhay, East	Woodhay (1)	56	1693
Woodhay, West	Kintbury (3)	58	124
Woodhead (1)	Woodhead	184	174
Woodhorn, pa.	Newbiggin (1)	295	5200

Woodhead (3), vil., pa. of Carsphairn (q.v.), N. Kirkcuds., Sc., 11 S.E. of Dalmellington.

Woodhorn, pa. and tp., E. Northumb., 8 N.E. of Morpeth; ac. of pa. 12,400, of tp. 1,485. The church of St. Mary (restored 1843) is Norm. and E. Eng.; here is preserved an ancient Celtic cross. In the pa. are stone quarries.

Woodhorn Demesne, tp., pa. of and ½ S.E. from Woodhorn (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 312.

Woodhouse (1), pa. S. Salop, 2 W.N.W. of Cleobury Mortimer; ac. 108; soil clayey, overlying rock.

Woodhouse (2), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Barrow-upon-Soar (q.v.), N. Leics., 3½ S. of Loughborough. The church of St. Mary-in-the-Elms (restored 1858) is Perp.; the interior is rich in heraldry and has numerous monuments to the Herrick family. The Free School, founded in 1691, has been removed by the Charity Commissioners to Quorn; the gross income of this charity is £600; there are also some small charities for apprenticing. Here are four almshouses, erected in 1857.

Woodhouse (3), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Handsworth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Sheffield. The church of St. James (1878) is in E. Eng. style, and there are Nonconformist chapels.

Woodhouse (4), eccl. pa., pa. of and in the to. of Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Mark is in Perp. style.

Woodhouse (5), tp., pa. of and 1 E. from Shilbottle (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 567.

Woodhouse (6), ha., pa. of Bolsover (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., 5 N.E. of Chesterfield.

Woodhouse (7), ha., pa. of Belton-by-Gainsborough (q.v.), N. Lincs., 2 N.E. of Epworth.

Woodhouse (8), vil., pa. of and adjoining Normanton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Woodhouse (9), vil., pa. of Kirkburton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1 E. of Shelley.

Woodhouse (10), ruined fortress, pa. of Kirkpatrick Fleming, S.E. Dumfs., Sc., 5 N.E. by E. of Annan. This old tower is said to have been the first place which harboured Robert Bruce when he was fleeing from Edward I.

Woodhouse Cross. [WOODHOUSE-WITH-BRADLEY.]

Woodhouse Eaves, eccl. pa. and vil. (so called from its situation on the Eaves [or edge] of Charnwood Forest), pas. of Barrow-upon-Soar and Maplewell-Longdale (q.v.), N. Leics., 4 S. of Loughborough station. The church of St. Paul is in E. Eng. style. There are Nonconformist chapels.

Woodhouse Hall, pa., W. Notts., adjoining Welbeck; ac. 394.

Woodhouse Mill, vil., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Aston (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop.
Woodhorn, tp.	Newbiggin (1)	295	16
Woodhorn Demesne	Newbiggin (1)	295	3
Woodhouse (1)	Cleobury Mort'r (4)	143	1
Woodhouse (2), ec. pa.	Barrow-on-Soar (3)	106	3
Woodhouse (2), tp.	Barrow-on-Soar (3)	106	57
Woodhouse (3)	Woodhouse	157	38
Woodhouse (4)	Leeds (4½)	185	44
Woodhouse (5)	Warkworth (1½)	303
Woodhouse Eaves	Barrow-on-Soar (4)	105	14
Woodhouse Hall	Worksop (4½)	147	1

Woodhouse Moor. [NEWLAND-WITH-WOODHOUSE MOOR.]

Woodhouses (1), tp., pa. of Mayfield (q.v.), E. Staffs., about 4 N.W. of Ashbourne; ac. 200.

Woodhouses (2), vil., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Ashton-under-Lyne (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.

Woodhouses (3), ha. on the Bollin, pa. of Bowdon (q.v.), N. Chesh., 1 S.W. of Frodsham.

Woodhouses (4). [BURNTWOOD.]

Woodhouse-with-Bradley, eccl. pa. within the bor. of Huddersfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. Christ Church is in E. Eng. style. In the grounds of the vicarage, on a slight eminence, is W. cross, which has stood there from a very early period.

Woodhurst, pa. and vil., N. Hunts., 4 N. of St. Ives; ac. 1,749; soil clayey, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1871) is E. Eng. Here are Baptist and Congregational chapels.

Wood Island, islet in the Foyle, pa. of Clonleigh, E. co. Don., Ir.

Woodland (1), pa. and vil., S. Dev., 6 S.W. of Newton Abbot; ac. 1,634, soil clayey, overlying slate. The church of St. John the Baptist is Late Perp.; the east window retains fragments of stained glass. There are charities of the yearly value of £20. Here are slate quarries.

Woodland (2), eccl. pa. and ha., pa. of Kirkby Ireleth (q.v.), N. Lancs., about 3 N.E. of Broughton-in-Furness. The chapel of St. John the Evangelist is in E. Eng. style.

Woodland (3), tp., pa. of Cockfield (q.v.), S. Dur., about 7 N.E. of Barnard Castle; ac. 1,885.

Woodlands (1), pa., E. Dors., 7 N.E. of Wimborne; ac. 2,594; soil heavy, overlying clay and chalk. [KNOWLTON (2).]

Woodlands (2), eccl. pa., pa. of Lambourn (q.v.), S. Berks., about 5 N.E. of Hungerford. The church of St. Mary (1852) is in E. Eng. style.

Woodlands (3), eccl. pa., pa. of Wrotham (q.v.), W. Kent, 4 N.E. of Sevenoaks. The church of St. Mary is in E. Eng. style.

Woodlands (4), eccl. pa., pa. of and adjoining Kingsclere (q.v.), N. Hants. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (1859) is in Gothic style.

Woodlands (5), eccl. pa., pa. of and forming part of Frome (q.v.), E. Somerset. The church of St. Katharine (1880) is in Late Dec. style.

Woodlands (6), ha. and dis. of scattered farms, pa. of and 2 S.E. from Uttoxeter (q.v.), E. Staffs.

Woodlands (7), ha., pa. of and adjoining Netley Marsh (q.v.), S.W. Hants.

Woodlands (8), ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Mere (q.v.), S. Wilts.

Woodlands-cum-Oakenshaw, eccl. pa., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 9 S.W. of Leeds. The church of St. Andrew (1889) is in E. Eng. style, and there are Nonconformist chapels.

Woodlands Eyam. [EYAM WOODLANDS.]

Woodlawn. [KILLAAN.]

Woodleigh, pa. and small agricultural vil., S. Dev., 3½ N. of Kingsbridge; ac. 2,596; soil loam and clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1893) is Perp., and contains some monuments of the Luscombe and Cornish families. There is a rent-charge of £1 15s. for the poor.

Woodlesford, eccl. pa., pa. of Rothwell (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Leeds. The church of All Saints (1870) is in Gothic style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. There are some small pottery works and a large brewery. [OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD.]

Woodley (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Sonning (q.v.), E. Berks., about 2 E. of Reading. The church of St. John the Evangelist is in the style of the transition between E. Eng. and Dec. Here is a Congregational chapel.

Woodley (2), vil., pa. of and 5 N.E. from Stockport (q.v.), N.E. Chesh.

Woodley and Sandford. [SANDFORD AND WOODLEY.]

Woodmancote (1), pa. and vil., Mid Sussex, 9 N.W. of Brighton; ac. 2,236; soil and subsoil various. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Eng. The Baptists have a place of worship. There is a charity of £9 yearly. Bramlands, an old-fashioned house, and W. Place are seats.

Woodmancote (2), or Woodmancott, pa. and vil., N. Hants, 9 S.W. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,402; soil clay, loam, and chalk, subsoil chalk. The church of St. James (erected 1855) is in Norm. style.

Woodmancote (3), tp., pa. of Bishops Cleeve (q.v.), N. Gloucs., 2½ N.E. of Cleeve; ac. 983.

Woodmancote (4), ha., pa. of and forming part of the to. of Dursley (q.v.), Mid Gloucs. The church of St. Mark (1844), a chapel-of-ease, is in E. Eng. style. There are almshouses for three men and three women, and an endowed school.

Woodmancote (5), ha., pa. of North Cerney (q.v.), E. Gloucs., 5 N.W. of Cirencester.

Woodmansey, or Woodmansey with Beverley Parks, tp., pa. of Beverley St. John (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 1½ S.E. of Beverley; ac. 2,963.

Woodmansterne, pa. and small vil., N.E. Surrey, 6 S.W. of Croydon; ac. 1,591; soil light, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1876) is in Dec. style. The charities amount to £18 a year. Fairlawn House, Manor House, Stagbury, and The Oaks are seats. This last was once the hunting seat of Edward, twelfth Earl of Derby, who founded the Derby and Oaks stakes at Epsom races, and named the latter from this estate; it is a fine Elizabethan mansion of red brick, in a well-wooded park of 181 ac., with fine pleasure grounds.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Woodhouses (1)	Hammerwich (1½)	121	17
Woodhouse-with-B.	Huddersfield	188	4543
Woodhurst	St. Ives (4)	64	295
Woodland (1)	Newton Abbot	209	184
Woodland (2)	Woodland	273	352
Woodland (3)	Barnard Castle (7)	249	694
Woodlands (1)	Verwood (3)	101	416
Woodlands (2)	Hungerford (5)	61	390
Woodlands (3)	Shoreham (2)	23	122
Woodlands (4)	Midgham (4)	47	1128
Woodlands (5)	Frome (3)	107	340
Woodlands-cum-O.	Low Moor (1)	190	1978
Woodleigh	Kingsbridge (3½)	242	198
Woodlesford	Woodlesford	190	1890
Woodley (1)	Reading (2)	36	687
Woodmancote (1)	Henfield (2)	50	314
Woodmancote (2)	Micheldever (4)	58	62
Woodmancote (3)	Cleeve (2)	172	312
Woodmansey	Beverley (1½)	203	774
Woodmansterne	Banstead (2½)	16	408

Woodnesborough, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 1½ S.W. of Sandwich; ac. 2,899; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (partially restored 1884) is E. Eng. and Perp., and retains a piscina and 16th-cent. brasses. The Congregationalists have a chapel, and there is a charity. Flemish settlers in the reign of Elizabeth introduced the manufacture of baize and other woollen stuffs. Saxon antiquities have been found here.

Wood Newton, pa. and vil., N. Northants, 4½ N. of Oundle; ac. 1,332; soil principally arable, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1862) is chiefly Perp., with Norm. portions. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The church estate produces about £28 yearly, and there is a charity of £9 yearly for apprenticing.

Wood, North, pa. (formerly extra-parochial) N. Essex, 4 W. of Sudbury; ac. 261.

Wood Norton, pa. and small vil., N. Norf., 8 S.W. of Holt; ac. 1,726; soil mixed, overlying clay and marl. The church of All Saints (restored 1881) is E. Eng. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The fuel allotment is 18½ ac., let for £20 yearly.

Woodplumpton, chap. and tp., pa. of St. Michael-on-Wyre (q.v.), N. Lancs., 4½ N. by W. of Preston; ac. 4,506 and 14 water. The church of St. Anne was rebuilt 1630, in E. Eng. style. There is a charity of £35 yearly value.

Wood Rising, pa. and vil. on the Blackwater, Mid Norf., 8 S. of East Dereham; ac. 1,364; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1888) is Perp.; the tower has for a long period been in ruins. In the chancel is an ancient monument, with a recumbent figure in armour. W. Hall is a seat.

Woodrow (1), ha., pa. of and forming part of the to. of Melksham (q.v.), W. Wilts.

Woodrow (2), ha., pa. of and 1½ N. from Chaddesley Corbett (q.v.), Mid Worcs.

Woodsetton, vil., pa. of Sedgley (q.v.), S. Staffs., 3 N. of Dudley.

Woodsetts, pa. and tp., W.R. Yorks., 4 W. of Worksop; ac. of pa. 2,077, of tp. 808; soil light loam and limestone. The church of the Virgin Mary is a small stone building.

Woodsford, pa. and vil. on the Frome, S. Dors., 5 E. of Dorchester; ac. 1,748; soil light gravel, overlying sand. The church of St. John the Baptist was rebuilt in 1863, in E. Eng. style. The pa. consists of two farms, on one of which are the remains of the castle of Woodsford-Strangways, still used as a farmhouse; the Earl of Ilchester takes the title of Baron Strangways from this estate. The other farmhouse was also formerly a Tudor manor-house.

Woodside (1), eccl. pa., pas. of Adel, Headingley, Horsforth, and Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5½ N.W. of Leeds. The church of St. James (1848) is in Gothic style.

Woodside (2), eccl. pa., pas. of Flaxley, East Dean, Newland, and Hinders Lane (q.v.), W. Glouc. The church of St. Stephen was erected in 1889-90.

Woodside (3), eccl. pa., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Croydon (q.v.), N.E. Surrey. The church of St. Luke was erected in 1872.

Woodside (4), tp., pa. of and about 3 N. from Elsdon (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 6,629.

Woodside (5), ha., pa. of Bolsover (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., 5 W. of Langwith.

Woodside (6), ha., pa. of Over (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 5 S.E. of Tarporley.

Woodside (7), ha., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Ranton (q.v.), W. Staffs.

Woodside (8), ha., pa. of Brougham (q.v.), N. Westmd., 8 N.W. of Appleby.

Woodside (9). [ROSLEY-WITH-WOODSIDE.]

Woodside (10), burgh on the Don, pa. of Old Machar (q.v.), E. Abers., Sc., forming a north-west suburb of Aberdeen. W. is situated within Aberdeen parl. bor. It contains Established, Free, and United Presbyterian churches, also a Roman Catholic church and a Congregational chapel. Here are large paper works.

Woodside (11), small vil., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Markinch (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc. The inhabitants are chiefly employed at the paper mills and bleachfields in the neighbourhood.

Woodside (12), ha., pa. of and 3½ N. from Largo (q.v.), N.E. Fifes., Sc.

Woodside (13), vil. with railway station, pa. of Cargill (q.v.), E. Perths., Sc., 2 S.W. from Coupar Angus, on the main road to Perth.

Woodside (14), pl., pa. of Penpont (q.v.), N.W. Dumfs., Sc., 7½ S. of Sanquhar.

Woodside of Arbeadie, east suburb of Banchory, pa. of Banchory Ternan (q.v.), N.W. Kincs., Sc., 13 W.N.W. of Stonehaven.

Woodsome Hall. [FARNLEY TYAS.]

Woodspring Priory. [KEWSTOKE.]

Wood Stanway, ha., pa. of and ½ S. from Stanway (q.v.), N. Glouc.

Woodstock (anciently "Wudestoc," the "woody place"), pa., mun. bor., U. and mkt. to., and head of Co. Co. dis., Mid Oxon., about 10 N.W. of Oxford; ac. 470. The bor. sent members to Parliament, with some intermissions, from A.D. 1301-2 until 1885, when the representation was merged in that of the co. The church of St. Mary Magdalene, originally Norm., has been partly rebuilt, but much E. Eng. and Perp. work still remains; the windows formerly contained a great deal of heraldic glass, but this was greatly damaged by the Puritans. On the south side of the nave is a brass to Richard Bailly (1441), and in the west wall are two monuments to Jerome Keyte, B.C.L. (d. 1631). St. Andrew's mission chapel dates from 1886. The Wesleyan Methodists, United Free Methodists, and Baptists have places of worship. The Town Hall dates from 1766. The leather-glove trade

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Woodnesborough	Sandwich (1½)	85	921
Wood Newton	Elton (2½)	100	349
Wood, North	Sudbury (4)	58	11
Wood Norton	Guestwick (2½)	133	265
Woodplumpton	Barton&Br'ghton (2	214	1184
Wood Rising	Hardingham (4½)	116	90
Woodsetts, pa.	Shireoaks (1½)	149	328
Woodsetts, tp.	Shireoaks (1½)	149	263

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Woodsford	Moreton (2)	128	168
Woodside (1)	Horsforth (½)	201	236
Woodside (2)	Coleford	134	464
Woodside (3)	Woodside	11	309
Woodside (4)	Scots Gap (9)	229	85
Woodside (11)	Woodside	530	5570
Woodstock, pa.	WoodstockRoad(2½)	69	1136
Woodstock, mun. bor.	WoodstockRoad(2½)	69	1828

has been carried on in W. from a very remote period. Queen Elizabeth, in one of her "progresses," received gloves from the W. glovers, and the University of Oxford presented James I. in 1616 with "very rich gloves" made in W.; the trade, though now somewhat decayed, still gives employment to a considerable number of men, women, and girls. Tuesday is market day; cattle and cheese fairs, formerly well attended, have ceased to be held, but there is a statute fair on the first Tuesday in October; there is also a cattle market on the first Tuesday in each month. W. gives its name to one of Scott's historical novels, and the principal scenes are laid in this neighbourhood. Almshouses were erected and endowed at Hensington, in the pa. of Bladon, in 1798, by Caroline, Duchess of Marlborough, for six poor women. Other charities of about £60 are for distribution in money or kind.

Woodstock, or Mid Division, one of the three parl. divs. of Oxon. It returns one member.

Woodstone, pa. and vil., N. Hunts., 1 S.W. of Peterborough; ac. 1,028; soil various, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Augustine (restored 1884) is Norm., with a Perp. parapet; over the western door there remains a considerable portion of well-preserved Saxon masonry. During the restoration a fine trefoil-headed piscina was discovered and restored, and several good crosses found at the same time were placed on the gables. There are numerous memorials, some dating from the 17th cent. The charities are considerable.

Market Place, Church, and Town Hall, Woodstock.

Woodstreet, ha., pa. of Worplesdon (q.v.), N.W. Surrey, about 3½ N.W. of Guildford.

Woodthorpe (1), tp., pa. of North Wingfield (q.v.), E. Derbys., containing part of the to. of Clay Cross; ac. 1,059.

Woodthorpe (2), tp., pa. of and 1½ S. from Loughborough (q.v.), Mid Leics.; ac. 411.

Woodthorpe (3), ha., pa. of and about a mile and a half from Staveley (q.v.), E. Derbys. Here is a hospital, with a chapel, founded and endowed by Peter Frecheville 1632, for eight poor men and women; the income amounts to £70 yearly.

Woodthorpe (4), ha., pa. of Strubby (q.v.), E. Lincs., 2 N. of Alford. W. Hall is a seat.

Woodthorpe (5), ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Sandal Magna (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Woodton, pa. and vil., S. Norf., 10 S.E. of Norwich; ac. 2,124; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1878–79) is E. Eng.; in the church is a marble effigy of Anne, wife of Robert Suckling, Esq. (d. 1653); the font is Norm. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The church lands are let for £11 yearly, and about £45 a year is distributed to the poor.

Woodtown, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Alwington (q.v.), N.W. Dev.

Woodville, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch (q.v.), N. Leics., and Hartshorne (q.v.), S. Derbys., 5½ S.E. of Burton-upon-Trent. The church of St. Stephen is in Norm. style. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. W. is noted for the manufacture of ironstone and cane earthenware, firebricks and sanitary ware.

Wood Walton, pa. and vil., N. Hunts., 9 N.N.E. of Huntingdon; ac. 3,768; soil clay and loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew, which stands on an eminence at a short distance from the vil., is E. Eng.

Woodyates, East, formerly extra-parochial, pa., E. Dors., 12 S.W. of Salisbury; ac 279; soil clay and loam, overlying chalk. There is no church. At the point where the road from London to Weymouth enters the co. it is intersected by the Via Iceniana, a Roman road, running in straight line to Badbury Rings. In 1888 some interesting excavations were made here by General A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers, resulting in the discovery of what is believed to be the site of the Roman station Vindogladia.

Woodyates, West, pa., formerly extra-parochial, E. Dors., adjoining East Woodyates; ac. 817; soil clay and loam, overlying chalk.

Woodyhide, vil., pa. of Worth Matravers (q.v.), E. Dors., about 4 S.W. of Swanage.

Wookey, extensive pa. pleasantly situated on the road to Wedmore, at the foot of the Mendip Hills, Mid Somerset, 2 W. of Wells; ac. 3,420; soil

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Woodstock Division	.....	.....	50134
Woodstone	Peterborough (1)	76	1836
Woodthorpe (1)	Clay Cross	142	876
Woodthorpe (2)	Loughborough (1½)	112	58
Woodton	Ditchingham (4)	115	445
Woodville	Woodville	124	2481
Wood Walton	Abbots Ripton (1½)	63	347
Woodyates, East	Salisbury (12)	84	Nil
Woodyates, West	Salisbury (12)	84	49
Wookey	Wookey	127	961 various. The church of St. Matthew (restored 1872) is Gothic. The font is ancient; there are monuments to the Piers and Salmon families. Here is a Baptist mission hall. There are several charities. Court Farm was formerly the summer palace of the bishops of Bath and Wells, and many of the letters of Bishop Beckington (1443–66) are dated from this place. Mellifont is a seat.

Wookey Hole, ha., pas. of Wells and Wookey (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 2 N.W. of Wells. It derives its name from the well-known cavern noticed by Clemens of Alexandria, a writer of the 2nd cent., and William of Worcester (1415–90); from the cavern the river Axe rushes in a rapid torrent. In and near the cavern remains of the rhinoceros and of extinct animals, human remains, and Roman coins have been found.

Wool-, for places not found under this spelling, see also WOL-.

Wool, pa. and vil. on the Frome, S. Dors., 5½ W. of Wareham; ac. 2,250; soil sand and chalky loam, overlying chalk. The church of the Holy Rood is Late Perp., with western tower containing four bells, which belonged to Bindon Abbey (q.v.). A fair for cattle is held on May 14. There is an interesting old manor-house adjoining W. Bridge, formerly in the possession of the Turberville family, a room in which is used as a Catholic chapel. W. is the scene of some parts of Hardy's novel, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

Woolacombe, seaside resort, pa. of and 1½ S. from Morthoe (q.v.), N. Dev. It is well known for its firm and broad sands, which extend about three miles along the shore. There are several villa residences, lodging-houses, and a large hotel.

Woolard, ha., pas. of Compton Dando and Publow (q.v.), N. Somerset, 5 S.E. of Bristol.

Woolavington (1), pa. and vil., W. Somerset, 4 N.E. of Bridgwater; ac. 1,681; soil marl, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1882) is of various periods. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are £9 19s. yearly.

Woolavington (2). [LAVINGTON, EAST.]

Woolbeding, pa., N.W. Sussex, 2 N.W. of Midhurst; ac. 1,868; soil chiefly loam, overlying sandstone. The church of All Saints is of various periods; it retains a beautiful carved-oak screen and several monuments. W. House, an ancient mansion much modernised, is a seat.

Woolbrook, ha., pa. of and about 1 N. from Sidmouth (q.v.), S. Dev.

Wooldale, tp. and vil., pa. of Kirkburton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about ¾ N.E. of Holmfirth; ac. 2,158.

Woolengrange, pa. on the Nore, Gowran bar., Mid co. Kilk., Ir., 5 S.W. of Gowran; ac. 1,663.

Wooler, pa., small mkt. to. (TH.), and head of Co. Co. dis., N. Northumb., 16½ S. of Berwick; ac. 4,864 and 53 water; soil light with gravelly subsoil. The church of St. Mary, rebuilt in 1765 near the site of an older building, is a plain edifice of stone. W. has also Catholic church, a Free Kirk, and Presbyterian chapels. The Mechanics' Institute (1889) comprises a reading-room and library. The population are chiefly employed in agriculture and sheep herding. Fairs are held on the first Thursday in March for the hiring of farm servants; on May 4 for cattle; Whitsun Bank Holiday, third Monday in May; wool fairs on the second and third Thursdays in July; a sheep fair on Sept. 27, and a sheep and cattle fair on Oct. 17.

Wooley, ha., pa. of and about 1 N.E. from Bradford-on-Avon (q.v.), W. Wilts.

Woolfardisworthy (1), pa. and vil., N. Dev., 8 W.S.W. of Bideford; ac. 5,798; soil various, overlying clay. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1872) is Norm. and later. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels.

Woolfardisworthy (2), pa. and vil., N. Dev., 6½ N. of Crediton; ac. 1,815; soil loam and clay, overlying rock. The church of the Holy Trinity (rebuilt 1845) is in E. Perp. style.

Woolfold, vil. with railway station, pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Bury (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.

Woolhampton, pa. and pleasant vil. on the London and Bath road, S. Berks., 7 E. of Newbury; ac. 707 and 12 water; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1861) is in Gothic style. Here is a Catholic church dedicated to St. Mary, and a small Congregational chapel. The charities amount to £60 yearly value. W. House, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Woolhope, pa. and vil., S. Herefords., 8 S.E. of Hereford; ac. 4,414; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1883) is E. Eng. The charities amount to about £30 yearly. Wormington Court is a seat.

Woolland, pa., N. Dorset, 10 W. of Blandford; ac. 1,085; soil chalk and blue clay, overlying chalk. W. was originally a chapelry, and on the site of the old chapel a church (dedication unknown) has been erected in Dec. style; it contains a brass tablet in memory of Mary Argenton (d. 1666), also a Dec. font from the old chapel. W. House, commanding extensive views, is a seat.

Woolley (1), pa. and vil., W. Hunts., 7 N.W. of Huntingdon; ac. 1,133; soil strong clay, overlying clay with veins of gravel. The church of St. Matthew (restored 1861) is E. Eng.; in the church is a stone coffin, the lid of which bears a cross.

Woolley (2), pa. and vil., N.E. Somerset, 3½ N. of Bath; ac. 367; soil various, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Norm.

Woolley (3), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Bretton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5½ S.W. of Wakefield; ac. 2,587. The church of St. Peter (restored 1870) is Perp. The charities amount to about £10 a year. W. Park, a Jacobean mansion, is a seat.

Woolmer Forest, heath tract, N.E. Hants and N.W. Sussex, 5 S.E. of Alton. It extends 7½ N. and S., and is about 2½ miles broad. It has belonged to the Crown since the Anglo-Saxon period. A disastrous fire, which lasted three days,

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wool	Wool	125	521
Woolavington (1)	Basin Bridge (2)	142	293
Woolbeding	Midhurst (1½)	61	361
Wooldale	Thong's Bridge (½)	184	5722
Woolengrange	Thomastown (2)	92	167
Wooler	Wooler	331	1301
Woolfardisworthy(1)	Bideford (8)	220	660

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Woolfardisworthy(2)	Crediton (6½)	179	578
Woolhampton	Aldermaston (1)	45	462
Woolhope	Holm Lacy (5)	140	446
Woolland	Shillingstone (4)	123	1[illegible]
Woolley (1)	Kimbolton (5)	87	[illegible]
Woolley (2)	Bath (3)	107	[illegible]
Woolley (3)	Darton (2)	175	9[illegible]

occurred in 1864. The Forest is often mentioned in the "Natural History of Selborne," which is near its west border. It contains several sheets of water, the largest being W. Pond, in the bed of which a great collection of Roman coins was found in 1741. These lakes abound in carp, perch, and other fish.

Woolmer Green, ha. on the Great North Road, pa. of and 2 N.N.E. from Welwyn (q.v.), N. Herts.

Woolpack Sands, shoal at the entrance of the Wash, off north-west coast of Norf., 7 N.N.W. of Hunstanton.

Woolpit, pa. and large vil., N.W. Suff., 8 E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 1,877; soil and subsoil principally clay. The church of St. Mary is Dec., with numerous Perp. additions; there is a finely carved rood-screen. The Primitive Methodists and Brethren have chapels. There are several small charities. A horse and cattle fair is held annually on Sept. 16 and following day. There are large brick and tile manufactories.

Woolscott, ha., pa. of Grandborough (q.v.), S.E. Warws., 6 S. of Rugby.

Woolsington, tp., pa. of Newburn (q.v.), S. Northumb., 5 N.W. of Newcastle-upon-Tyne; ac. 610. W. Hall, in a well-wooded park, is an old manorial house with modern additions.

Woolstanwood, tp., pa. of and about 3 N.E. from Nantwich (q.v.), S. Chesh.; ac. 568.

Woolstaston, pa. and vil., W. Salop, 4 N. of Church Stretton; ac. 804; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (restored 1864–65) is E. Eng.; on the south side is a small Saxon doorway. W. Hall is a seat.

Woolsthorpe (1), pa. and vil., S.W. Lincs., 7 W. by S. of Grantham; ac. 2,600; soil clay and marl, overlying clay. The church of St. James is in Dec. style. The old church of St. James was burned down by Parliamentarian soldiers, but there are some fragments of the tower. W. contains some ironstone quarries.

Woolsthorpe (2), ha., pa. of Colsterworth (q.v.), N. Lincs., 8 S. of Grantham. In the manor-house, now a farmhouse, Sir Isaac Newton was born in 1642.

Woolston (1), eccl. pa., pas. of Southampton St. Mary Extra and Hound (q.v.), S. Hants, 1 E. of Southampton. The church of St. Mark is in E. Dec. style. The Catholics and some Nonconformist bodies have places of worship.

Woolston (2), pl., pa. of and about 1 S.W. from West Felton (q.v.), N.W. Salop. Here is a "holy well," covered by a picturesque little half-timbered building, incorporating work of the 14th cent. and earlier periods.

Woolston (3), ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Alvington West (q.v.), S. Dev.

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Woolpit	Elmswell (1½)	86	1018
Woolsington	Newcastle-on-T. (5)	271	75
Woolstanwood	Nantwich (3)	162	107
Woolstaston	Leebotwood (1)	172	93
Woolsthorpe (1)	Woolsthorpe	114	594
Woolston (1)	Woolston (1)	78	3538
Woolstone (1)	Ashchurch (3)	169	72
Woolstone (2)	Faringdon (6)	70	174
Woolstone, Great	Newport Pagnell (3)	56	80

Woolston (4), ha., pa. of and 1 E. from North Cadbury (q.v.), E. Somerset.

Woolstone (1), pa. on the Cotswolds, N. Glouc., 5 S.E. of Tewkesbury; ac. 771; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Martin (restored 1875) is E. Eng. Upon the hill, at the back of the rectory, are the remains of a Roman encampment.

Woolstone (2), tp., pa. of Uffington (q.v.), N. Berks., 6 S. of Faringdon; ac. 1,933. The church of All Saints (restored 1867) is Norm.; there is a piscina in the chancel, another in the transept, and a locker in the nave. W. Lodge is a seat. [Balking-with-Woolstone.]

Woolstone, Great, pa., N. Bucks., 3½ S. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 491; soil and subsoil clay and gravel. The church of the Holy Trinity, originally Perp., was rebuilt in 1839.

Woolstone, Little, pa., N. Bucks., 3 S. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 631, land chiefly in pasture. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient building; the font dates from the 12th cent. The poor have a rent-charge of £5 5s. a year.

Woolston-with-Martinscroft, tp., pa. of and 3 E. from Warrington (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.; ac. 1,566. Here is a Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, and a Wesleyan chapel. The Woolston new cut is a canal over a mile in length.

Woolton, or Woolton, Much, eccl. pa., tp., and large vil., pa. of Childwall (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 6½ S.E. of Liverpool; ac. 970. The church of St. Peter (1886) is in Perp. style, and the Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have chapels. The public buildings include a Mechanics' Institution (1849), a Parochial Hall (1891), a Free Public Library (1890), Public Baths (1893), and the Liverpool Convalescent Institution, a large building in Gothic style. In the tp. are several red sandstone quarries. There are several well-built residences of Liverpool merchants. W. Hall is a seat.

Woolton Hill, eccl. pa., pa. of East Woodhay (q.v.), W. Hants, 4 S.W. of Newbury. The church of St. Thomas (1849) is in E. Eng. style.

Woolton, Little, tp., pa. of Childwall (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 5 S.E. of Liverpool; ac. 1,387.

Woolton, Much. [Woolton.]

Woolvercot (in Domesday "Ulfgarcote"), pa., tp., and vil., Mid Oxon., about 3 N. by W. of Oxford; ac. of pa. 1,440, of tp. 961; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Peter (restored 1860) is chiefly Perp.; at the east end of the aisle, on the north side, entered by a wide Dec. arch, is a chapel containing an altar-tomb to Sir John Walter (d. 1630). Here is a small Baptist chapel. In the pa. is a paper mill belonging to the University of Oxford.

Woolverstone, pa. and vil. on the Orwell, S.E. Suff., 4 S.E. of Ipswich; ac. 951 and 301 water; soil sandy loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Michael, in the centre of W. Park, is a small

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Woolstone, Little	Fenny Stratford (3¼)	48	83
Woolston-with-M.	Thelwall (1½)	186	498
Woolton, eccl. pa.	Broad Green (3)	198	4213
Woolton, tp.	Broad Green (3)	198	4545
Woolton Hill	Woodhay (1½)	56	855
Woolton, Little	Halewood (3)	198	1131
Woolvercot, pa.	Oxford (3)	63	867
Woolvercot, tp.	Oxford (3)	63	845
Woolverstone	Ipswich (4)	69	309

Dec. building, restored by the late Sir G. G. Scott. The Hall is a mansion in a well-wooded deer park. At some distance from the house is a square obelisk of freestone, 96 ft. high.

Woolverton, pa. and small vil., N.W. Somerset, 4 N. of Frome; ac. 741; soil stonebrash, overlying clay. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1889) is Gothic.

Woolwich, parl. bor. (returning one member), pa., and to. on the south bank of the Thames, N.W. Kent, 7 E. by S. of St. Paul's. W. is an ancient place, but for many centuries it was merely a fishing vil. The church of St. Mary (built 1739 and enlarged and restored 1894) is a plain brick structure with stone dressings. W. also contains eccl. pas. with modern churches, as well as a garrison church, dedicated to St. George (1863), in Romanesque style, and Ordnance and Dockyard chapels. There are Roman Catholic and Nonconformist chapels. The importance of W. is due mainly to its manufacture of arms and war implements. The Royal Arsenal originated in the storehouse for arms and armour established in 1585 by Queen Elizabeth in the district then called the "Warren," which adjoins Plumstead Marshes on the east. Hither in 1716 was removed the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich.

foundry which up to that time had been located at Moorfields. The Arsenal embraces an area of more than 350 ac. It comprises four great departments—the Gun Factory, the Carriage Department, the Store Department, and the Laboratory. W. is one of the principal stations of the Royal Artillery in England. The Barracks are situated in the upper part of the to. near the north-east extremity of the Common. In front of the building stands a very large brass gun, captured at Bhurtpore in 1828, and also a bronze statue of Victory, commemorating the officers and men of the Royal Artillery who were slain in the Crimea. At the north-west extremity of the Common, surrounded by a breastwork, is the Royal Military Repository, wherein are kept materials for moving heavy guns, and similar purposes; the building stands in picturesque grounds containing ornamental sheets of water. The Rotunda, on the north side of the Repository, contains a collection of mediæval arms

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Woolverton	Frome (4)	107	144
Woolwich, parl. bor.	Woolwich	8	98966
Woolwich, pa.	Woolwich	8	40848
Woolwich, North	North Woolwich	9	7100
Wooperton	Wooperton	324	75

and armour, oriental antiquities from the many other objects of Institution has a natu tion of minerals, va good library. In co observatory near the of the Common stand (erected 1805), where Royal Artillery and Herbert Military Hos Common to the west also a large naval hos Barracks. The Royal since 1869; it now se stores. The public b a cottage hospital, a W. Common extends side of the to. W. i North W. (q.v.), on th

Woolwich, North, e bank of the Thames, Essex, 7 E. of St. Pau quite recent origin; growth have been t manufactures in the struction of the Victo church of St. John Gothic style. North ferry, available for opposite side of the r the Gaslight and Coke North W., and there of electric telegraph ar and American leather now under the Londor Woolwich Reach, re S.W. Essex and N.W. The reach extends 2 w from ¼ to ⅓ mile.

Woonton, vil., pa. of (q.v.), N. Herefords.

Wooperton, tp., pa. (q.v.), N.E. Northumb.

Wooplaw, estate wit of Melrose (q.v.), N.W.

Woore, eccl. pa., tp., (q.v.), N. Salop, 7 N. 4,457. The church o style. There are char

Wooston Castle. [

Wootton (1), pa. a Bedford; ac. 3,711; s gravel and marl. The 1860) is Dec. with po work; the chancel an the former is separa ancient screen of carv monuments and insc family, formerly of amount to about £56 House are seats.

Wootton (2), pa. and

Place.	Ne fr. (
Woore, eccl. pa.	Ma
Woore, tp.	Ma
Wootton (1)	Be
Wootton (2)	Br

of New Holland; ac. 2,980; soil partly loam, chalk, and clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng.; the chancel retains a piscina, and there is one at the east end of each aisle. The National school is endowed; the poor have 10s. distributed yearly in bread. W. Hall is a seat.

Wootton (3), pa. and vil., Mid Oxon., 2½ N. of Woodstock; ac. 4,278; soil oolite, overlying stonebrash. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876-77) is E. Eng. and later, and contains some 17th- and 18th-cent. memorials. Over the south entrance is a sundial with the date 1623. There are some charities and an endowed school. Woodleys is a seat.

Wootton (4), pa., N. Berks., 3 N.W. of Abingdon; ac. 1,564; soil sand, clay, and limestone, overlying clay and limestone. The church of St. Peter is a small 15th-cent. edifice.

Wootton (5), pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 2½ S. by E. of Northampton; ac. 1,675; soil mixed, overlying ironstone and sand. The church of St. George the Martyr is in E. Eng. style. The charities are of £9 10s. yearly value.

Wootton (6), pa. and vil., I. of W., about 4 W. of Ryde. For civil purposes W. is now divided between Whippingham and Gatcombe. The church of St. Edmund is an ancient building with a Norm. doorway. Fern Hill is a seat.

Wootton (7), pa., E. Kent, 7 S. of Folkestone; ac. 1,019; soil loam, overlying chalk. The E. Eng. church of St. Martin (restored 1879) retains two piscinæ. W. Court, part of which is said to date from the reign of King John, is a seat.

Wootton (8), tp. and vil., pa. of Ellastone (q.v.), N. Staffs., 5 W. of Ashbourne; ac. 2,600. W. Hall, with an extensive park, is a seat; here Rousseau occasionally lived and wrote some of his works.

Wootton (9), vil., pa. of and 3 N. from Milton (q.v.), S.W. Hants.

Wootton (10), ha., pa. of Almeley (q.v.), N. Herefords., about 5 S.E. of Kington.

Wootton Bassett, pa. and mkt. to. (formerly a bor.), pleasantly situated on an eminence, N. Wilts., about 6 W. of Swindon; ac. 4,830; soil oolite brash, overlying clay. The Wilts and Berks Canal passes south of the to. W. B. consists of a single street nearly half a mile long, near the centre of which stands the Market House and Town Hall. Henry VI. enfranchised the to.; the charter of incorporation was granted by Queen Elizabeth, which was renewed with increased privileges by Charles II. (1679), and the bor. returned two members to Parliament till the Reform Act (1832). The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1871) is E. Eng. In cleaning the south wall some years ago a curious painting, in a rude style, was discovered of the murder of Thomas à Becket. In the vestry are various old deeds and a list of vicars from 1200. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Baptist chapels. The Town Hall (recently restored) is a half-timbered structure with oak staircase; the upper part forms a reading-room and a museum, and contains the ancient ducking-stool which had been removed from here to Devizes. There are charities producing about £52 yearly. The hiring fairs, held on the Tuesday before April 6 and the Tuesday before Oct. 11, are now nearly obsolete. A large market is held on the first Wednesday in every month for cattle. Vasterne House, once a royal residence, has been restored.

Wootton Bridge, vil., pas. of Arreton and Binstead (q.v.), I. of W., adjoining Wootton.

Wootton Courtney, pa. and vil., W. Somerset, 3 S.W. of Minehead; ac. 3,166; soil clayey and marl, overlying skillet rock. The church of All Saints (restored 1886) is Gothic. The charities amount to about £50 yearly.

Wootton Creek, inlet of the sea, in north-east of I. of W., 2½ W. of Ryde. The Creek extends about 2 S.S.W. and S. by E. from Spithead, and has a maximum breadth of ¼ mile. The scenery on its shore is picturesque.

Wootton Fitzpaine, pa., W. Dors., 7 N.W. of Bridport; ac. 3,307; soil stonebrash, clay, and gravel, overlying strong clay. The Dec. church (dedication unknown) was restored in 1872.

Wootton Glanville, or Glanvilles Wootton, pa. and small vil., W. Dors., 12 N. of Dorchester; ac. 1,665; soil clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary is a small Gothic structure; on the south side is a chapel, which was a chantry and has been used as a burial-place by the Williams, Every, and Henley families, to whom there are several monuments; there is also a stone coffin, with an effigy on the lid, supposed to be that of Sir Henry de Glanville, the founder of the chantry.

Wootton Leek. [LEEK WOOTTON.]

Wootton, North (1), pa. and vil., overlooking the Wash, N.W. Norf., 3½ N. of Lynn; ac. 2,441; soil sand and stiff loam, subsoil various. The church of All Saints is E. Eng. There are charities of about £10 yearly value.

Wootton, North (2), pa., N. Dors., 2½ S.E. of Sherborne; ac. 668; soil clay, overlying clay and sand. The church, formerly a chapel-of-ease to Sherborne, was rebuilt in 1883, in Perp. style.

Wootton, North (3), pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 4½ S.W. of Shepton Mallet; ac. 1,536; soil marl, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1869) is Perp., and retains a Norm. font. The Baptists have a chapel. The charities are small.

Wootton Rivers, pa. and vil., E. Wilts., 5 S. of Marlborough; ac. 1,179; soil chiefly greensand, overlying clay. The 15th-cent. church of St. Andrew contains sedilia and two piscinæ.

Wootton St. Lawrence, pa. and pleasant vil., N. Hants, 3 N.W. of Basingstoke; ac. 4,405; soil loam, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Lawrence, rebuilt (except the tower) in 1864, is Norm. and

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wootton (3)	Charlbury (2)	76	1069
Wootton (4)	Abingdon (4)	61	417
Wootton (5)	Northampton (2½)	66	824
Wootton (6)	Wootton	85	97
Wootton (7)	Shepherd's Well (2)	72	181
Wootton (8)	Norbury (2)	147	202
Wootton Bassett	Wootton Bassett	83	2200
Wootton Courtney	Minehead (3)	183	299
Wootton Fitzpaine	Axminster (6)	145	327
Wootton Glanville	Sherborne (7)	118	238
Wootton, North (1)	North Wootton	100	268
Wootton, North (2)	Sherborne (2½)	118	77
Wootton, North (3)	West Pennard (2)	128	271
Wootton Rivers	Pewsey (3)	75	331
Wootton St. L'rence	Basingstoke (3)	48	945

E. Eng., and contains a monument with recumbent effigy, and the date 1677, to Sir Thomas Hooke, together with several mural monuments of the Wither family. There is a charity of 50s. yearly for the poor. Manydown Park, a large irregularly built brick mansion, part of which dates from the 13th cent., and Tangier Park are seats.

Wootton St. Mary Within, pa., partly within the bor. of Gloucester (q.v.), N. Glouc.; ac. 308. The church of St. Mary Magdalene was removed, with the exception of the chancel, in 1861.

Wootton St. Mary Without, pa., N. Glouc., adjoining Gloucester on the east; ac. 1,092; soil loam, overlying sand and gravel. Wellsprings is a seat.

Wootton, South, pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 2½ N. by E. of Lynn; ac. 1,258; the soil is in some parts gravelly and in others clay. The low lands are protected from the sea by an embankment. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. and Dec.; on the south side of the chancel are three sedilia of stone, a piscina, and an altar-tomb to Sir James Thomas Winde, dated 1601; on the north side is a mausoleum of the Hamond family; the font is Norm.

Wootton Wawen, pa. and vil., S.W. Warws., 6 N.W. of Stratford-on-Avon; ac. 8,700, of which 600 are wood; soil strong clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored 1881), though now chiefly Dec., claims higher antiquity than any other church in the co., for it exhibits in the substructure of the tower, up to three-fifths of its entire height, vestiges of Anglo-Saxon construction.

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wootton St. M. W'in	Gloucester	114	3564
WoottonSt.M.W'out	Gloucester	114	538
Wootton, South	North Wootton (1½)	100	152

The church retains so chantry chapel is a dently unfinished. I side, is a high tomb recumbent effigy of a tomb eastward, with the inlaid brass effig and of Dame Anna,
five daughters, and th ing monuments. Son was born and died
Hall are seats.

Worbarrow, ha., p
Dors., 6 S.W. of Corfe station. W. gives its Worcester, parl.. m

Worcester Cathedral.
(Photo. Harvey Barton, Bristol.)

bishop, co. to., and co of Birmingham. The plain on the east ba tremely ancient, and Conquest was an impo
The earliest charter
by Richard I., and Parliament from the
when the representati
ber. The battle of his "crowning mercy
by Charles II. was escaped with difficult dered, the walls thro desecrated; but on ac royal cause W. hencef

Place.	N fr.
Wootton Wawen	B
Worcester, parl. bor.	W
Worcester, mun. bor.	W

"the faithful city." The see was founded in the 7th cent., and the cathedral has been more than once rebuilt. The present structure dates from the early part of the 13th cent. It was greatly damaged during the Civil War, and underwent extensive restoration between 1857 and 1874. The cathedral and adjacent buildings, as at present existing, comprise a Lady chapel of four bays, presbytery and choir transept occupying one bay, choir of four bays with aisles and a chapel on the south side, main transept and central tower, and nave of nine bays with north porch; south of the nave are the cloisters, the eastern alley of which communicates with the circular chapter-house, separated from the main transept by a narrow passage or slype; south of the cloisters is the refectory, now the cathedral grammar school, built over an early Norm. crypt, with a passage leading to the close; at the north-west angle of the cloisters another slype conducts to the west front. The crypt, extending under the choir and aisles, and the Norm. portion of the nave and transept are the work of Bishop Wulfstan, and date from 1084; the Trans. part of the nave was repaired in 1202–14; the north side rebuilt in 1317–27; the Dec. portion erected in 1320, and vaulted in 1377 by Bishop Wakefield; the E. Eng. choir and Lady chapel were begun by Bishop William in 1224 after the fall of the two eastern towers, finished about 1280, and vaulted in 1376; the eastern transept was erected by Bishop Walter Grey about 1214, and the Jesus chapel added in 1224; the central Dec. tower dates from 1281–1314, the Perp. west window from 1378, and the north porch, built by Bishop Wakefield, from 1386; the chapter-house, chiefly the work of Bishop John de Pageham, belongs to the period 1113–1220, but has a Perp. upper storey, added in 1400; the Guesten hall, now ruinous, was built by Walter de Braunsford, prior, 1320; the cloisters, Late Perp., about 1500; the water-gate and library date from 1378; the refectory from 1372; the dormitory, which dated from 1378, and the infirmary, from 1379, no longer exist. The interior contains a large number of historic monuments of great interest, and in the centre of the choir is the altar-tomb of King John. W. contains eleven pa. churches, one dating back to the Norm. period, others E. Eng. and Perp., while some have been rebuilt in modern times. There are also eccl. pas., a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Cathedral Grammar School was founded by Henry VIII.; the Free Grammar School was chartered by Elizabeth in 1561, and there are other educational charities. The Guildhall and Assembly Rooms form a fine block in the Italian style; it was restored in 1877, when more space was given to the municipal and judicial offices, which were rebuilt or rearranged. The Shire Hall (1835) is in Classic style, with a hexastyle portico; the Public Hall, destroyed by fire some years ago, has been rebuilt; the Corn Exchange is a large rectangular building; the Hop Market forms a quadrangle, consisting of warehouses, with a hotel in the basement; opposite the Guildhall is the Market-house (1804). The market is held on Wednesday and Saturday, and there is a weekly cattle market on Mondays. Fairs are held on Sept. 19 (for cattle, hops, and cheese) and the first Monday in December; a special Christmas fair is held on or about Dec. 16. In the Victoria Institute are united the various literary, artistic, and scientific institutions of the city. Here also are the Public Library, the Museum, and the Technical School. The theatre was erected in 1878, on the site of a former building destroyed by fire. The Festival of the Three Choirs (Worcester, Hereford, and Gloucester), established upwards of 160 years for the benefit of widows and orphans of clergymen of the three dioceses, is held here every third year. The most ancient manufacture is that of gloves. Porcelain of fine quality is made here; there are also iron-works, engineering and carriage works, vinegar and chemical works, saw and corn mills, rope and twine spinning walks, boat and barge building yards, tanneries, maltings, breweries, tinplate, boot and shoe, and agricultural-implement manufactories, and leather-dyeing works; and there is considerable trade on the Severn and Avon in corn, hay, straw, coal, timber, hops, cider and perry. W. contains a number of picturesque timbered houses and other ancient buildings. The Commandery in Sidbury, founded for a master and four poor brethren, and now occupied by a firm of printers, contains a very fine Tudor hall. King Charles's House, a half-timbered structure built in 1577, has been restored; here Charles II. spent the night preceding the battle of Worcester, and here after his disastrous defeat he took refuge, but being closely pursued by the Parliamentary forces hurriedly left the house, escaping, it is said, by the back door just as his pursuers entered. There are numerous institutions for the relief of the sick. The charities produce a large annual income, and there are several blocks of almshouses. A sum of nearly £400 a year is devoted to exhibitions for the encouragement of education.

Worcestershire, an inland co. of England in the West Midlands, near the Welsh border and in the basin of the Severn, not far above the reach of the tides. Its shape is very irregular, but it may be looked upon as having four sides; on the north is Staffs., on the north-east and east Warws., on the south-east and south Glouc., on the west Herefords., and on the north-west Salop. The length from north to south is about 34 miles, and the breadth about 30 miles; the area is 485,022 ac. The co. is one of the finest in England, being rich land, in hill and vale, well wooded and well watered. On the south-west border are the Malvern Hills, and in a line north from these the Abberley Hills; on the east are the Lickey and Clent Hills, and in the south are the Bredon Hills, which are offshoots of the Cotswolds. Gloucester and Bristol are the ports that supply W. The navigable Severn runs through the co. from north to south, and other rivers are the Stour, in the north, the Teme, in the west; the Warwickshire Avon winds through W. in the south-east to Tewkesbury, where it joins the Severn. The vale of the Severn is called the vale of Worcester, and the vale of the Avon that of Evesham, both rich land. There are mineral springs at Malvern, Evesham, Dudley and Flyford Flavel, and chalybeate at Kidderminster. A system of canals joins the Severn with the other English rivers. The railways belong chiefly to two systems, the Great Western and the Midland. The Bewdley coal basin is in the north-west and the Dudley coal basin in the north; the latter also contains beds of ironstone. The brine springs are

Place.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Worcestershire	....	413760
Worcestershire, E.	....	59356
Worcestershire, N.	....	58439

in the North Midlands, at Droitwich and Stoke Prior. A strong clay is found throughout the shire, but in the north there is a rich loamy sand; in the east are some light soils. The soil in the vales is very deep and rich, and in parts alluvial. The air is mild and healthy, even on the Malverns, but on the eastern hills it is colder. W. is a good shire for tillage; wheat, barley, beans, hops, and fruit are grown. Market-gardening is extensively carried on, especially around Evesham, and cider is largely made. In the rivers, salmon, trout, grayling, shad, and lampreys are found. The mineral wealth is in coals, iron, and salt. There are quarries of limestone; fire-clay is largely found and fire-bricks made in the north, and brick-earth is found nearly everywhere. The variety and extent of the manufactures of W. are such as to entitle it to a foremost position among the manufacturing cos. of England, and they are treated of in detail under the various tos. in the co. The mun. bors. are Bewdley (the seat of the horn-working trade), Droitwich (of salt), Dudley (of iron), Evesham (centre of a fruit-growing district), Kidderminster (carpets), and Worcester (gloves, ceramics, and the centre of the hop trade). Other tos. are Bromsgrove (nail-making), Halesowen (iron), Malvern (an improving watering-place), Oldbury (iron), Pershore (woolstapling), Redditch (needle manufacture), Stourbridge (glass and fire-clay), Stourport (tanning and carpet-making), and Tenbury. The Romans found in W. a Welsh tribe, the Cornavii, whom they overthrew; afterwards the English took it, and it was held by the strong tribe of the Wicking, or Hwickians, who had a commonwealth here, which afterwards was under the kings of the Mercians, or Middle English, and at length under the one English king. In the vale of Evesham the great leader Simon de Montfort was overthrown by Prince Edward, afterwards Edward I.; and at Worcester Oliver Cromwell routed the Scotch host under Charles II. From a geological point of view W. lies just to the east of that great region of old rocks which, stretching westwards, forms the whole of Herefords. and Wales. A line running north and south through the Malvern Hills and the Forest of Wyre coal-field would separate the hard and ancient Palæozoic strata (the gneissic and syenitic rocks of this hill-range) from the softer, later-formed Mesozoic beds which form the valley of the Severn and extend to the eastern edge of the co. West of this imaginary line and occupying the western border of the co. occur sandstones, shales, and limestones of Upper Silurian age; and in the valley of the Teme, between Tenbury and Martley, are beds of Old Red Sandstone. Above the Old Red Marls and Sandstones come the Coal Measures. The Forest of Wyre coal-field extends from the Abberley Hills northwards in a broad strip, extending from Bewdley on the east to within a mile of Cleobury Mortimer on the west. From Billingsley it stretches northwards in a long narrow band, barely one mile wide, on the right bank of the Severn; to the north-east and east it is overlaid by Permian strata. The beds here are the Upper Coal Measures, which seldom contain coal seams of much value or thickness. Owing to the inferior quality generally, this coal-field has examined. Red m Triassic period occup co. In the south t Malverns to Tewkes they form the fert average width of ei round by Droitwich extend south to Feck the north and east t and Warws. Liassic the co. at Tewkesbur Droitwich, and bend thus forming a spu Pershore is the only stone, a hard, ferrug on the northern side are the Upper Lias c ground, capped by i whole rising to the t affording a most co of the Severn. Con geological times the the sea extended the valley of the A boulder clay; grav deposited by the Sc siderable heights abo how the rivers have c times. In these, rem been found, but un implements, though weapons have been n purposes the county and Northern.

Worcester Walk, o of Dean Forest, W. the Duke of Wor Charles II.

Wordsley, vil., pa. Staffs., 2 N.W. of Sto

Wordwell, pa., N. Edmunds; ac. 2,299 lying chalk. The cl 1868) is E. Eng.

Worfield, pa. and north: ac. 10,320; overlying clay and s Peter (restored 1882) triple sedilia and a p are two of the Elizal effigies. Davenport,

Workington, mun. mkt. to. (W. & S.) at W. Cumb., 6½ N. by 1,694, of pa. 7,635, of lying clay. The to. along the south bank irregularly built, cont good buildings and by royal charter in 1 capable of receiving In 1873 a breakwat north-west entrance Dock, opened in 1 Derwent was erected

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist., fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Wordwell	Bury St. Edmunds (5	45
Worfield	Bridgnorth (4)	1613
Workington, m. bor.	Workington	23490

Place.	N fr
Workington, pa.
Workington, tp.

The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 1770) was almost completely destroyed by fire in 1887; it has been reconstructed in Dec. style. There is a 15th-cent. altar-tomb with recumbent effigies; also several 18th- and 19th-cent. memorials. During the alterations a fine Roman arch and several fragments of ancient carved stone were discovered. The eccl. pa. of St. John has a modern church, and the Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The public buildings include a Town Hall, a Free Library and reading-room, a Theatre, an Opera House, and several public halls. W. has some charities, an Infirmary, a Dispensary, and a Hospital for Infectious Diseases. The chief industries are the manufacture of iron, steel rails, and tinplates, iron bridges, gates, boilers, railway spikes, and rivets; there is also a paper mill, brewery, and a ship-building yard. The exports include lime, coal, tinplate bars, and pig iron; the chief imports are timber and iron ore. Fairs are held on Whit-Wednesday and the Wednesday after Nov. 11. About 1 S.W. of the to. is an ancient building known as the Old Chapel, or the How Michael. W. Hall is a large quadrangular embattled structure standing in a park. Mary Queen of Scots landed near the hall on May 16, 1568, and was entertained here; the chamber in which she slept is still called the Queen's chamber.

Worksop, pa., U. and mkt. to., and head of a petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., N. Notts., 12 N.E. of Mansfield; ac. 17,775. The Priory church of SS. Mary and Cuthbert was originally Norm., but has many later additions. The monuments relate principally to the families of Furnival and Lovetot, of whom several knightly effigies of stone and alabaster still remain; the pulpit, a relic of high antiquity, is curiously ornamented with designs of Norm. character; to the south-east of the present building are the ruins of a side chapel leading from the south transept; this building is E. Eng. The eccl. pa. of St. John has a church in E. Eng. style, and the Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The public buildings include a Town Hall (1854), in Venetian Gothic style; a Mechanics' Institute, established in 1852, with a library; a Savings' Bank, in Bridge Street; and the Criterion Hall, built in 1875. Of the ancient market cross, said to have been erected about 1160, only the shaft and the steps remain. The market, principally for corn, is held every Wednesday, and a fat-stock market is held on the same day. A cattle and horse fair is held twice a year—viz. on the second Wednesday in April and October. The staple trade of W. is malting, which has been extensively carried on for several years. There are brass and iron foundries, saw mills, factories for agricultural implements, threshing machines, and chemical works. There is also a very large trade carried on in flour, timber, sawing timber, railway sleepers, windsor chairs, and wood for packing cases for Sheffield cutlery. The priory of W. was founded in the reign of Henry I. for a community of Black Canons. The great gate-house, now forming the entrance to the precincts of the church, is Late Gothic, with a pointed roof and a gable above the archway. The most interesting feature, however, is the tiny chapel or shrine of St. Mary, an excellent example of E. Eng., which is most elaborately panelled and groined internally. The surrounding country abounds in picturesque scenery, and from the number of mansions and parks in the neighbourhood has been named the Dukeries (q.v.), the chief attraction being Clumber Park (q.v.). W. Manor House, in a beautiful park, is another seat.

Worlaby (1), or Worlaby-by-Brigg, large pa. and pleasant vil., N. Lincs., 5 N.E. of Brigg; ac. 3,348; soil of about one-half the pa. fine chalk and highly fertile; the other part, the Carrs, consists of a clay of rather black nature. The church of St. Clement, rebuilt in 1873 on the ancient site, is in E. Eng. style; the piers, north aisle window, and tower arch are all either Saxon or E. Norm., and were carefully preserved and reset. In the porch is an ancient tombstone, inscribed to a lady of the time of James I.; there is an inscribed stone to John, first Baron Bellasyse, of W. (d. 1689). Here is a well-built hospital, founded in 1663 for four poor women.

Worlaby (2), or Worlaby-by-Alford, pa., E. Lincs., 8 S. of Louth; ac. 858. The chapel of St. Clement is a brick building in E. Eng. style.

Worlbury Hill, eminence, pa. of and 2 E. from Stockbridge, N.W. Hants. It is crowned by an ancient camp, 20 ac. in extent, surrounded by a ditch and a high rampart. The figure of a white horse, on the side of the hill, is a modern device.

Worldham, East, pa. and vil., E. Hants, 2 S.E. of Alton; ac. 1,800; soil malm and clay, subsoil rock. The church (not dedicated) has been rebuilt on the old site, in Gothic style, the old stonework of the windows and doors having been carefully replaced. King John's Hill in this pa. is reputed to have been the hunting-seat of that monarch; old coins and trophies of the chase have been discovered here.

Worldham, West, pa. and small vil., E. Hants, 2½ S.E. by S. of Alton; ac. 471; soil loam, subsoil malm and greensand formation. The church of St. Nicholas is only occasionally used.

Worle, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 2½ E. of Weston-super-Mare; ac. 1,831; soil clay. The church of St. Martin (restored 1870) is Perp. On the south side of the nave is an arched recess enclosing a coffin-shaped slab, and there is a priest's doorway on the south side of the chancel. The charities amount to about £62 yearly.

Worleston, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Acton (q.v.), W. Chesh., 3 N. of Nantwich; ac. 1,173. The church of St. Oswald is in E. Eng. style. Reaseheath Hall, an ancient gabled mansion, Rookery Hall, and W. Grange are seats.

Worlingham, pa. and small vil., N. Suff., 6 S.W. of Lowestoft, near the navigable Waveney; ac. 1,604; soil and subsoil mixed. The church of All Saints (restored 1876) is a Gothic structure; there are a few ancient brasses without names and dates;

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Worksop, pa.	Worksop	147	12734
Worksop, to.	Worksop	147	12734
Worlaby (1)	Elsham (1½)	161	540
Worlaby (2)	Alford (1½)	130	56
Worldham, East	Alton (2)	47	252
Worldham, West	Alton (2½)	47	60
Worle	Worle	135	1018
Worleston, eccl. pa.	Worleston	162	898
Worleston, tp.	Worleston	162	339
Worlingham	Beccles (2)	109	198

the rood-stairs remain. The only charity is about £50. W. Hall is a seat.

Worlington, pa. and pleasant vil. on the Lark, N.W. Suff., 8 S.S.W. of Newmarket; ac. 1,955; soil various, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (restored 1879) is E. Eng.

Worlington, East, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 6 E. of Chulmleigh; ac. 2,330; soil red clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (almost rebuilt 1879) retains the original Norm. doorway. Here is a Bible Christian chapel. The charities are of the yearly value of £6 12s.

Worlington, West, pa., N. Dev., about 6 E. of Chulmleigh; ac. 2,683; soil loamy, overlying clay. For civil purposes it is united to East W. The E. Eng. church of St. Mary (restored 1881) contains a fine monument to Sir Thomas Stucley (d. 1663). The charities are small. The embattled gateway of Affton Castle, now occupied as a shooting-box, remains.

Worlingworth, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 6 S.E. of Eye; ac. about 2,414; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1866) is Perp.; it contains some fine ancient stained windows. There is a double hammer-beam oak roof, and a Gothic font and cover, which came from Bury Abbey. The charities produce about £200 yearly.

Wormbridge, pa., S. Herefords., 9 S.W. of Hereford; ac. 732; soil clay and loamy, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Thomas the Apostle, formerly belonging to the Knights Templars, is Norm. There is a small charity.

Wormegay, pa. and vil. on the Nar, N.W. Norf., 7 S.S.E. of Lynn; ac. 2,785; soil peat and loam, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Michael is a small and low-thatched E. Eng. building. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The fuel allotment produces £28 15s. yearly. The remains of a very ancient cross have been replaced on the village green.

Wormelowtump, ha., pa. of and ¾ S.W. from Much Birch (q.v.), S. Herefords.

Wormhill, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Tideswell (q.v.), N. Derbys. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1864) is a Gothic building, and in the churchyard are the remains of an old cross. The charities amount to about £9 yearly. W. Hall, an Elizabethan mansion, is a seat.

Worm Hill, eminence (969 ft.) on Dartmoor, S. Dev., 2 S.S.E. of Chagford.

Wormingford, pa. and vil. on the Stour, N.E. Essex, 6 N.W. of Colchester; ac. 2,256; soil and subsoil loam and clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1869–70) is E. Eng. There are some charities.

Worminghall, pa. and vil., N. Bucks., 5 N.W. of Thame; ac. 1,482; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is of various periods, chiefly Perp., and retains a 16th-cent. slab and a mural brass with effigies. In the vil. are ten almshouses, founded 1675, for six poor men and four poor women, and there are other charities. W. formerly had a market and a fair.

Wormington, pa. and vil., N. Glouc., 6 S. of Evesham; ac. 560; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Catharine (restored 1885) is Trans.; on the south chancel wall is a curious brass with figures of a woman and child in bed, to Ann (Daston), wife of John Savage (d. 1605); also several mural tablets to the Gist family.

Wormington Grange. [STANTON (1).]

Wormit, pl. on the Firth of Tay, pa. of Forgan (q.v.), N.E. Fifes., Sc., 1 W. of Newport.

Wormleighton, pa. and vil., S.E. Warws., 1½ S.E. of Fenny Compton; ac. 2,407; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is Norm.; in the chancel is a 17th-cent. monument with quartered shields. The Manor House was partially destroyed by fire in the Civil War; part of what remains is now occupied by a farmer.

Wormley, pa. and vil., E. Herts., 6 S.E. of Hertford; ac. 946; soil loam, overlying sandy loam. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1883) is a 12th-cent. brick and flint structure, and contains some 15th-, 16th-, and 17th-cent. monuments and brasses with effigies. There are some charities, one for apprenticing boys. W. Bury is a seat.

Worms Head, headland at the west extremity of Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 18 W. by S. of Swansea. The headland consists of two high rocks, running out a mile into the sea and joined to one another and to the mainland by causeways which are dry at low water. Several wrecks have occurred here, including that of the City of Bristol in November, 1840.

Wormshill, pa. and vil., Mid Kent, 5 S. of Sittingbourne; ac. 1,476; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Giles (restored 1879) is E. Eng., with traces of Norm. work. There is a small endowment for the school, and a sum of £10 10s. is yearly distributed to the poor.

Wormsley, pa., N. Herefords., 8 S.W. of Hereford; ac. 1,249; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building. W. Grange is a seat.

Wormwood Scrubs, dis. in west vicinity of London, E. Middx., 6 W. of St. Paul's. The greater part of the area is now enclosed and devoted to certain special purposes, such as military drilling, rifle practice, and pigeon-shooting. W. S. was formerly often chosen for duels, and it was also much frequented by highwaymen. A convict prison was built here in 1875.

Worplesdon, pa. and vil., N.W. Surrey, 3 S.W. of Guildford; ac. 7,140; soil light sand and clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary, situated on an eminence called Perry Hill, is Perp. and Dec. The charities amount to about £24 yearly. Merrist Wood Hall is a seat.

Worrall, ha., pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Worlington	Mildenhall (1)	76	248
Worlington, East	Lapford (5)	190	419
Worlington, West	Lapford (5)	190	195
Worlingworth	Framlingham (5)	91	574
Wormbridge	St. Devereux (1)	151	86
Wormegay	East Winch (4)	102	431
Wormhill	Miller's Dale (1)	159	1357
Wormingford	Bures (3)	54	483
Worminghall	Tiddington (2)	52	29
Wormington	Evesham (6)	106	4
Wormleighton	Fenny Compton (1½)	83	22
Wormley	Broxbourne (1)	17	81
Wormshill	Harrietsham (3½)	48	10
Wormsley	Moorhampton (3)	154	4
Worplesdon	Worplesdon	27	2

4 N.W. of Sheffield. Gannister is manufactured, and there are several quarries.

Worsall, High, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Northallerton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 W.S.W. of Yarm; ac. 1,576 and 18 water. The church is dedicated to St. John.

Worsall, Low, picturesque tp. and vil., pa. of Kirk Leavington (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 S.W. of Yarm; ac. 1,362.

Worsborough, tp. and to., pa. of Darfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 9 N.W. of Rotherham; ac. 3,779. There are two eccl. pas. The church of St. Mary (restored 1864) is E. Eng.; there are a large number of 17th-cent. monuments and brasses. Between the chancel and south aisle is a curious 16th-cent. monument of carved oak. The church of St. Thomas (1859) is in E. Eng. style. There are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies, and several small charities for the poor. There are extensive collieries, gunpowder mills, and steel works. Darley Hall and Ouslethwaite are seats.

Worsley, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Bridgewater Canal, pas. of Eccles and Deane (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 7 N.N.W. of Manchester; ac. 6,880 and 48 water. The church of St. Mark is in Dec. style. The court-house is in Elizabethan style. Here are extensive collieries, and the manufacture of cotton is carried on. The poor have £85 yearly in clothing.

Worstead, pa. and small to., pleasantly situated on gradually rising ground, E. Norf., 8 N.E. of Aylsham; ac. 2,603; soil mixed, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Mary is Perp.; there were originally nine chapels, and two remarkable double screens divide these from the aisles. Here is a Baptist chapel, with a burial-ground, parsonage, and school-house, as well as almshouses for twelve poor members of the congregation. The Primitive Methodists also have a chapel. W., in remote times, was a manufacturing and important mkt. to. and the original seat of the manufacture of worsted stuffs, to which it gives its name; this trade is now confined to Norwich and neighbourhood. A fair is annually held on May 12 and 13 for cattle. W. House is a seat.

Worsthorne, eccl. pa., tp. (W.-with-Hurstwood), and vil., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs.; ac. 3,519. The church of St. John is in E. Eng. style. Here are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. Ormerod House is a seat.

Worsthorne-with-Hurstwood. [WORSTHORNE.]

Worston (1), pa., Mid Staffs., 4 N.W. of Stafford; ac. 170; soil clay and marl, overlying clay. The old Hall is now occupied by a farmer.

Worston (2), tp., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lanes., about 2 E. of Clitheroe; ac. 1,088.

Worth (1), pa. and vil., N. Sussex, 7 W. of East Grinstead; ac. 13,232 and 99 water; soil sandy loam, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1871) is E. Eng., with three ancient windows (presumed to be Saxon) in the nave. The charities amount to about £26 a year. The pa. contains many picturesque seats; among these are Crabbet Park, Tilgate, W. Hall, and W. Park.

Worth (2), pa. and vil., E. Kent, 1½ S. of Sandwich; ac. 3,925 and 1,439 water; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1864) is E. Eng., with traces of Norm. work. There is a stoup at the north door. Here are two coastguard stations.

Worth (3). [POYNTON.]

Worth (4), river, W.R. Yorks., rises on the moors on the Lancs. border, and runs E. near Stanbury and Haworth, and then N.E. past Keighley, joining the Aire about a mile and a half below that to. Its length is about 10 miles.

Wortham, pa. and vil. on the Waveney, N.E. Suff., 3 S.W. of Diss; ac. 2,416; soil mixed, overlying clay, brick-earth, with some sand and gravel. The church of SS. Thomas and Mary is E. Eng.; the tower, which was round, and built some 200 years before the church, is in ruins, and was one of the watch towers of the Abbot of Bury St. Edmunds; some way up on the inside is a fireplace. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Ellesmere House, Grove House, and W. Hall are seats.

Worthen, pa. (extending into Montgoms.), tp., and vil., W. Salop, 11 E. of Welshpool; ac. of pa. 18,010, of tp. 13,897; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Dec. Fairs are held on the last Monday in March, May, June (for hiring), September, and November. The charities amount to about £30 a year. Hampton Hall is a seat, commanding extensive views.

Worthenbury, pa. and vil., S.E. Flints., 5 W. of Malpas; ac. 3,420; soil in the higher ground rich loamy clay, elsewhere alluvial. The church of St. Deiniol (rebuilt 1740) is a brick edifice. Broughton and Emral are seats.

Worthing (1), mun. bor. and watering-place, pa. of Broadwater (q.v.), S. Sussex, 12 W. of Brighton; ac. 1,425. The to., which is well laid out and has some good streets, is sheltered on the land side by an amphitheatre of chalk downs, and has a long range of smooth sands sufficiently firm to afford safe bathing. The pier was reopened after extension in 1889; it has a spacious pavilion at the head and ample landing stages for the steamboat traffic. W. has eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church and convent, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall, in South Street, is a quadrangular building with a lofty clock tower, and containing one large room and several smaller ones, used as public offices; the large room is fitted up as a court-room, and contains some valuable paintings presented to the to. by the Earl of Egremont, whose bust, by Carew, is placed in the hall. Other public buildings are the Assembly Rooms,

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Worsall, High, ec. pa.	Yarm (3)	231	123
Worsall, High, tp.	Yarm (3)	231	69
Worsall, Low	Yarm (3)	231	184
Worsborough	Worsborough	171	9905
Worsley, eccl. pa.	Worsley	190	4563
Worsley, tp.	Worsley	190	26290
Worstead	Worstead	127	819
Worsthorne	Burnley (2)	212	1069
Worston (1)	Stafford (4)	133	15
Worston (2)	Chatburn (1)	223	70
Worth (1)	Rowfant (1)	32	4047
Worth (2)	Sandwich (1½)	85	511
Wortham	Mellis (2½)	91	852
Worthen, pa.	Minsterley (4)	173	3105
Worthen, tp.	Minsterley (4)	173	2629
Worthenbury	Malpas (5)	177	419
Worthing (1)	Worthing	60	16606

used for theatrical performances and concerts; the Workmen's Institute, with reading, billiard, and bagatelle rooms, and library; the Literary Institution, which is let for entertainments; the Infirmary and Dispensary, and some Convalescent Homes. Here are several nurseries, where early fruits,

The Parade, Worthing.
(Photo. W. J. Gardiner, Worthing.)

especially tomatoes, grapes, and cucumbers, are grown under glass for the London markets. The fishing is chiefly for mackerel and herrings. There are two sets of almshouses, both founded in 1858. W. has a park and recreation grounds, comprising 17 ac., laid out in 1881; the Steyne Gardens consist of an enclosure of 3 ac.

Worthing (2), pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 4½ N. of East Dereham; ac. 690; soil light loam, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Margaret is a small Perp. building. A charity of £1 10s. yearly is distributed. The rent of the town lands is applied for the maintenance and repair of the pa. church, any surplus being given to the poor.

Worthing, West, another name for Heene (q.v.).

Worthington (1), eccl. pa., tp. (Worthington and Newbold), and vil., pa. of Breedon-on-the-Hill, N. Leics., 4 N.E. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch; ac. 1,663. The church of St. Matthew (restored 1890) is a plain edifice of stone, erected towards the close of the 12th or the commencement of the 13th cent. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The interest of £1,600 is divided between the schools, the clothing club, and the poor.

Worthington (2), small tp. and vil., pa. of Standish (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., about 3 N. of Wigan; ac. 659. North Hall is a seat.

Worthington and Newbold. [Worthington (1).]

Worth Matravers, coast pa., S.E. Dors., about 4 S.E. of Corfe Castle; ac. 2,645; soil stiff clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Nicholas is Norm. and E. Eng.; the entrance doorway is surmounted by an ornamental semicircular arch, enclosing a tympanum, on which are remains of rude sculpture. Here is the tombstone of Benjamin Jesty, noted for having been the first person known who introduced the cowpox by inoculation. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. This pa. contains the lofty promontory called St. Alban's, or St. Aldhelm's Head (450 ft.), the southern extremity of the Isle of Purbeck; about fifty paces from the edge of the precipice stands the interesting Norm. chapel of St. Aldhelm; the roof is supposed to have carried a light or beacon.

Worting, pa. and pleasant vil., N. Hants, 2½ W. of Basingstoke, on the road to Andover; ac. 1,145; soil chalk and light loam, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Thomas of Canterbury (rebuilt) is in E. Eng. style. There are almshouses for two poor families. W. Park, erected in the time of George I. and commanding a pleasant view, is a seat.

Wortley (1), eccl. pa., tp., and pretty vil., pa. of Tankersley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Penistone; ac. 5,616. The church of St. Leonard, probably founded as early as the reign of Henry III., has very little, beyond the east window, of the ancient edifice remaining; it is now chiefly in the debased Classic style of the 17th cent. A reading-room and village institute was built in 1883, and attached to the National school there is also a library for the free use of the parishioners. There are charities amounting to £35, distributed annually among the poor. Here are stone quarries and iron and steel works; an inscription in the churchyard to Francis Askew, hammerman (d. 1609), is evidence of the existence of iron-working here for more than two centuries. W. Hall, in Italian style, is a seat.

Wortley (2), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Leeds, and on the south-west of that parl. bor., W.R. Yorks; ac. 1,036. The church of St. John the Evangelist is in Italian style, and there are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The grammar school was founded in 1676, and new buildings have since been erected. W. is celebrated for the manufacture of bricks, sanitary tubes, and other goods made of fire-clay.

Wortley, New, eccl. pa. within the bor. of Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. John the Baptist is in Dec. style. The principal industries are linen manufacturing, silk-spinning, and various branches of the iron trade.

Worton (1), eccl. pa., tp., and small vil., E. Wilts, 4 S.W. of Devizes; ac. 1,757. Christ Church (1841) is in E. Eng. style. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There are a number of charities, the collective yearly value of which amounts to about £50. Large quantities of butter and cheese are made here.

Worton (2), ha., pa. of Aysgarth (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., a little S.W. of Askrigg.

Worton (3), ha., pa. of Cassington (q.v.), Mid Oxon., 4 N.W. of Oxford.

Worton, Nether, pa. and vil., N. Oxon., 9 S. of Banbury; ac. 713; soil strong loam, overlying clay. The church of St. James is E. Eng. and Dec.; the tower bears the date 1630; the entrance is through the base of the tower, with a good E. Eng. doorway; there are some monuments to the Wilson family.

Place.	Nearest Railw. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Worthing (2)	North Elmham (1½)	126	148
Worthington (1)	Worthington	123	928
Worthington (2)	Wigan (3)	194	288
Worth Matravers	Corfe Castle (4)	126	229
Worting	Basingstoke (2½)	48	141
Wortley (1)	Wortley	171	1138

Place.	Nearest Railw. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		P
Wortley (2), eccl. pa.	Wortley & Farnley	219
Wortley (2), tp.	Wortley & Farnley	219
Wortley, New	Holbeck	185
Worton (1), eccl. pa.	Devizes (4)	86
Worton (1), tp.	Devizes (4)	86
Worton, Nether	Somerton (3)	78

Worton, Over. [OVER WORTON.]

Wortwell, pa. and vil. on the Waveney, S. Norf., 1½ E. of Harleston; ac. 1,114; soil light, heavy, and marshy lands, overlying gravel and clay. Here are Congregational and Baptist chapels. The charities amount to about £75 a year.

Wothersome, tp., pa. of Bardsey (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 4 S. of Wetherby.

Wothorpe, tp., pa. of Stamford Baron, St. Martin (q.v.), N. Northants, about 2 S. of Stamford; ac. 637.

Wotton, pa., S.E. Surrey, about 3 W.S.W. of Dorking; ac. 3,780; soil chiefly sand, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Evangelist is E. Eng.; the most interesting object in the church is the tomb of John Evelyn (d. 1706). The W. and Abinger Cottage Institute was founded for the benefit of the poor of these two pas. There are charities of the annual value of £56 for distribution. W. House is chiefly interesting as having been the birthplace (Oct. 31, 1620) of John Evelyn, the author of "Sylva"; among the family and local relics are the three extant portraits of John Evelyn. Other seats are Camp Hill House, Jayes, and Tanhurst. [LEITH HILL.]

Wotton-under-Edge, pa., mkt. to., and head of petty sess. div., Mid Glouc., 12 S.W. of Stroud; ac. 4,880. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is Perp., with a Dec. tower. There are Congregational, Baptist, and Wesleyan chapels. The charities produce about £1,200 yearly; among them are several almshouses, the inmates of which receive allowances of money and coal. The market is now discontinued; there is a fair annually on Sept. 25 for cattle and cheese, and one for cattle on the Tuesday preceding March 25.

Wotton Underwood, pa. and vil., N. Bucks., 10 W. of Aylesbury; ac. 2,586; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints is Dec.; on the south side of the nave is the mausoleum of the Grenvilles; in the nave are mural monuments of marble to Caroline, Duchess of Buckingham and Chandos (d. 1874), and to Anna Eliza, Duchess of Buckingham and Chandos (d. 1836). W. House, in a park of about 2,000 ac., is a seat; the approach on either side is through a noble avenue of elm trees about a mile in length.

Woughton-on-the-Green, pa. and vil. (built around a large green of 20 ac.), N. Bucks., 4½ S. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 1,224; soil stiff clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1867) is Dec. and Perp.; the ancient rood-loft stairs remain within the wall. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The charities amount to about £20 a year. W. House is a seat.

Wouldham, pa. and vil. on the Medway, Mid Kent, partly within the bor. of Rochester; ac. 1,539; soil and subsoil chalky. The church of All Saints (restored 1881) is E. Eng. and later; the rood-loft door and the rood-screen remain; there are stone seats along part of the chancel, two piscinæ, and aumbries. During the restoration a low-side window and a curious squint were discovered.

Woundale, mountain valley, W. Westmd., 2¾ N.E. of Ambleside. The valley descends on the south-east side of Kirkstone Pass; it is traversed by a small stream.

Wrabness, pa. and vil., N.E. Essex, 6½ W. of Harwich, on the road to Manningtree; ac. 1,112 and 390 water; soil mixed, overlying clay and sand. It derives its name from its situation on a ness or promontory in the estuary of the Stour. The church of All Saints is a plain building of rubble; the belfry, a picturesque ivy-clad structure, stands detached in the churchyard. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. A charity of 6s. 8d. yearly is distributed in bread.

Wrafton, ha., pa. of Heanton Punchardon (q.v.), N. Dev., about 5 N.W. of Barnstaple.

Wragby (1), pa. and to., N. Lincs., 8 S. of Market Rasen; ac. 1,594; soil mostly heavy loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (built 1838) is in Gothic style. The chancel of the old church is now used as a mortuary chapel, and the churchyard as a cemetery. A library and reading-room for the benefit of the working men were established in 1856. In 1697 Sir Edmund Turnor, Knight, founded a chapel and almshouses for six clergy widows and six lay widows or widowers of W., and in 1708 he devised an endowment thereto; they were rebuilt in 1840, in Gothic style. The Thursday market is in abeyance, and there are two fairs for cattle, on May 1 and Sept. 28 and 29.

Wragby (2), pa. and vil., W.R Yorks., 6 S.E. of Wakefield; ac. 4,387; soil loamy, subsoil clayey and loamy. The Perp. church of St. Michael and Our Lady stands in Nostell Park. On the wall plate over the chancel is a curious inscription in Latin. Twenty widows of the pa. have an annuity of £1 each; there are also several smaller charities. On the north-west side of the vil. is the seat of Nostell Priory, the mansion standing on a rising ground in a park of 250 ac., well wooded and stocked with deer, and anciently the demesne of an Augustinian priory.

Wragholme, vil., pa. of Grainthorpe (q.v.), N.E. Lincs., about 7 N.E. of Louth.

Wramplingham, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 3½ N. of Wymondham; ac. 856; soil and subsoil various. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1872) is Trans., E. Eng., and Dec. The rents of the town lands are applied to the church expenses. W. Hall is a seat.

Wrangbrook, ha., pa. of South Kirkby (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 S.E. of Pontefract.

Wrangle, coast pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 9 N.E. of Boston; ac. 6,234 and 2,890 water; soil rich loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary and St. Nicholas is Late Norm. or Trans., E. Eng., and later; the chancel retains its sedilia and an aumbry; the windows of the north aisle contain

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wortwell	Harleston (2½)	107	477
Wothersome	Wetherby (4)	195	60
Wothorpe	Stamford (1)	92	110
Wotton	Gomshall (½)	34	655
Wotton-under-Edge	Charfield (1)	203	3276
Wotton Underwood	Wotton	59	247
Woughton-on-the-G.	Fenny Stratford (2½)	48	208
Wouldham	Strood (3)	30	1373
Wrabness	Wrabness	65	264
Wragby (1)	Wragby	135	546
Wragby (2)	Hemsworth (1½)	168	1427
Wramplingham	Wymondham (3)	105	172
Wrangle	Old Leake (4)	114	1084

considerable remains of the ancient glass. There are brasses to John Reed, merchant of the Staple of Calais, and Margaret his wife (d. 1503); on the south side of the chancel is a tomb with recumbent effigies and inscription in Latin to Sir John Reade (d. 1626). Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to about £80 a year.

Wrangthorn, eccl. pa., bor. of Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Augustine is in Dec. style.

Wrantage, ha., pa. of North Curry (q.v.), S. Somerset, 7 E. of Taunton.

Wrath, Cape. [CAPE WRATH.]

Wratting, Great, pa. on the Stour, S. Suff., 2½ N.E. of Haverhill; ac. 1,287; soil and subsoil clay. The church (restored 1887) is E. Eng.

Wratting, Little, pa. on the Stour, S. Suff., adjoining Great Wratting; ac. 910; soil and subsoil clay. The church (dedication unknown) is a small Perp. structure which has been partially restored at different periods.

Wratting, West, pa. and vil., E. Cambs., 9 S. of Newmarket; ac. 3,498; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Andrew is Dec. W. W. Hall and W. W. Park are seats.

Wrawby, pa., tp., and vil., N. Lincs., 1½ N.E. of Brigg; ac. of pa. 5,070, of tp. 3,037; soil loam, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary is of various periods; the doorway leading to the rood-loft remains, and the windows contain fragments of ancient stained glass. The chancel contains an altar-tomb and there is a squint. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. W. has a charity of about £3 yearly.

Wraxall (1), pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 7 W. by S. of Bristol; ac. 3,773; soil loam, overlying limestone. The church of All Saints (restored 1893) is Perp., and contains an elaborate monument with recumbent effigies. There are several charities, amounting to £60 yearly.

Wraxall (2), pa., W. Dors., 7 S.E. of Beaminster; ac. 990; soil loam, clay, and peat, overlying gravel and chalk. The church of the Holy Trinity is Trans. Norm.

Wraxall (3), ha., pa. of Ditcheat (q.v.), E. Somerset, 3 N.W. of Castle Cary.

Wraxhall, North, pa. and vil., N.W. Wilts., 9 N.E. of Bath; ac. 2,185; soil cornbrash, overlying rock. The church of St. James is Norm. There are two almshouses for four persons, and some charities. Upwards of 40 ac. of glebe are let out in small allotments to the poor.

Wraxhall, South, vil., pa. of Bradford-on-Avon (q.v.), W. Wilts., 5 N.W. of Trowbridge. The church of St. James (restored 1882) is E. Perp.; the south chapel contains several monuments of the Long family. The Congregationalists have a chapel. W. Manor House, an ancient mansion, contains some finely carved oak panelling.

Wray (1), eccl. pa., tp. (Wray-with-Botton), and vil., pa. of Melling (q.v.), N. Lancs., 10 N.E. of Lancaster; ac. 6,493 and 33 water. The church of Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style. A cattle fair is held on Shrove Tuesday.

Wray (2), eccl. pa. on the west bank of the Windermere, pa. of and 2 N.E. from Hawkshead (q.v.), N. Lancs. The church of St. Margaret (1845) is in Gothic style.

Wraysbury, or Wyrardisbury, pa. and vil., S. Bucks., 4½ E. of Windsor; ac. 1,656; soil loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng.; the chancel retains a piscina and a double sedile, and there are some 16th-cent. brasses. The Bridge land produces £15 yearly, and there are charities of £19. Here are the ruins of a Benedictine convent, founded in the reign of Henry II.; and a portion of King John's hunting lodge is now a farmhouse.

Wrayton, ha., pa. of Melling (q.v.), N. Lancs., 4 S. of Kirkby Lonsdale.

Wray-with-Botton. [WRAY (1).]

Wrea Green, vil., pa. of and 2 W. from Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs. [RIBBY-WITH-WREA.]

Wreak, or Wreke, river, N.E. Leics., rises in the pa. of Goadby Marwood, and runs 4 S. by W. past Scalford to Melton Mowbray, where it is joined by the Eye. It then winds W. by S. past Kirby Bellars and Frisby to Hoby, and thence S.W. past Rotherby, Brooksby, Thrussington, and Ratcliff to the Soar, which it joins 2½ S.E. of Mountsorrel. Its length is about 17 miles.

Wreath Bay, secluded cove on east side of St. Catherine's Point, south coast of I. of W., ¾ S. of Niton. The sands here are firm and smooth.

Wreay, chap., tp., and vil., pas. of Carlisle St. Mary and Hesket-in-the-Forest (q.v.), N. Cumb., 5 S. of Carlisle. The church of St. Mary (1843) is in Byzantine style. There are some charities and an endowed school.

Wrecclesham, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Farnham (q.v.), W. Surrey. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt in 1877, is in Gothic style. Here are four almshouses. Willey, an old mansion in Italian style, is a seat.

Wreckenton, vil., pa. of and 3 S.E. from Gateshead (q.v.), N. Dur.

Wreighill, tp., pa. of and 6 W. from Rothbury (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 411.

Wrekendike, Roman road, E. Dur., joined Ryknield Street and other roads at South Shields. Traces of the road have been found at Bowchester.

Wrekin, eminence (1,320 ft.), E. Salop, 2 S.W. of Wellington. The W. consists of a craggy ridge,

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wrangthorn	Leeds	185	5328
Wratting, Great	Haverhill (2½)	55	362
Wratting, Little	Haverhill (3)	55	220
Wratting, West	Six Mile Bottom (3)	63	534
Wrawby, pa.	Brigg (1½)	162	3193
Wrawby, tp.	Brigg (1½)	162	709
Wraxall (1)	Flax Bourton (2)	124	921
Wraxall (2)	Evershot (3)	141	62

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wraxhall, North	Box (4)	102	371
Wray (1), eccl. pa.	Hornby (1)	252	550
Wray (1), tp.	Hornby (1)	252	491
Wray (2)	Windermere (7)	250	116
Wraysbury	Wraysbury	21	669
Wreay	Wreay	294	169
Wrecclesham	Farnham (1¾)	38	1438
Wreighill	Rothbury (5)	312	2 elliptical in form, extending more than a mile N.E. and S.W. It forms a conspicuous feature in the landscape, and commands a magnificent view. There are some remains of a British camp, with a ditch, entered on the north side.

THE WREKIN.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Wrelton, tp. and vil., pa. of Middleton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2½ N.W. of Pickering, on the road to Kirby Moorside; ac. 1,888. There are chapels for Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists. The interest of £1,000 is distributed by the vicar at Christmas.

Wrenbury, pa., tp. (Wrenbury-with-Frith), and vil., S. Chesh., 5 S.W. of Nantwich; ac. of pa. 14,102, of tp. 2,123; soil various, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Margaret is Perp., and contains mural tablets of the Starkey family, dating from 1611 to 1808, and others to the Cotton family. There are several charities, some of which are devoted to apprenticing boys. A sale for cattle is held on the second and last Monday in each month. W. Hall is a seat.

Wreningham, pa. and vil., S. Norf., 8 S.W. of Norwich; ac. 1,528; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1853) is Perp. The rent of 20 ac. is distributed in coals.

Wrentham, pa. and scattered vil., N. Suff., 8 S.S.E. of Beccles; ac. 2,272; soil various, subsoil heavy. The church of St. Nicholas is a handsome E. Eng. building; the tower during the threatened invasion of the first Napoleon was used as a signal tower, and a wooden signal-house for the accommodation of the sentinels was erected in the churchyard by order of the Government. Here are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. W. Hall (1862) is an elegant building in the centre of the vil., used as a reading-room and for public meetings. A Home was opened here in 1882 for training workhouse girls for domestic service.

Wrenthorpe, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1½ N. from Wakefield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Anne (1874) is a brick edifice.

Wressell, pa. and vil. situated on the Derwent, over which the railway passes on an iron bridge, E.R. Yorks., 8 E. of Selby; ac. 3,806; soil clayey, with some sand, overlying clay. The church of St. John of Beverley (1799) is a brick building. W. Castle, on the east bank of the Derwent, is now a ruin; there are some remains of fine masonry. This castle was founded by Thomas Percy, Earl of Worcester, K.G., who was taken prisoner at the battle of Shrewsbury, July 23, 1403, and afterwards beheaded. In 1650 it was captured and a great part of it destroyed by order of the Parliament, but the hall, kitchens, and square towers at the angles, still remain.

Wrestlingworth, pa. and vil., N. Beds., 5 N.E. of Biggleswade; ac. 1,619; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng. Here is a Congregational chapel. The charities amount to £69 yearly.

Wretchwick, ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Bicester (q.v.), N. Oxon.

Wretham, East, pa., S. Norf., 6 N.E. of Thetford; ac. (including West W.) 6,442; soil sandy, with chalky subsoil. The church of St. Ethelbert, originally Norm. and Dec., was rebuilt in 1865; the south doorway is Norm.

Wretham, West, pa., S. Norf., 6 N.E. of Thetford; ac. included with East W. The ancient church of St. Lawrence is now in ruins. W. Hall is a seat.

Wretton, pa. and vil., S.W. Norf., 6½ S.E. of Downham Market; ac. 1,154; soil and subsoil sand and peat. The church of All Saints (restored 1863) is Perp. Here is a chapel for Primitive Methodists. About £8 is distributed in money to the poor on St. Thomas's Day.

Wrexham, parl. and mun. bor., pa., and mkt. to. (TH.), S.E. Denbighs., 11½ S.S.W. of Chester; ac. of pa. 18,118, of bor. 1,306. W. is pleasantly situated on the verge of the North Wales coal-field. It is a prosperous and growing place, and has several spacious streets. The church of St. Giles (restored 1867) is a handsome Late Perp. edifice with a magnificent tower. The church contains several interesting monuments, including a famous piece of sculpture by Roubilliac, in memory of Miss Mary Middleton (d. 1747), in which she is represented rising from the tomb at the Day of Judgment. Remains of wall paintings have been discovered in the building. The other places of worship include a Roman Catholic church and Presbyterian, Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. W. has a county hall, a market hall, an art school, and a free library and reading-room. The free school was established in 1603. A large number of the inhabitants are employed in the neighbouring coal-mines. The other industries include brewing, malting, tanning, and the manufacture of leather. W. figures conspicuously in the history of the great Civil War. The to. received its municipal constitution in 1857. It belongs to the Denbigh dis. of parl. bors. Acton Park, Brymbo Hall, and Erddig are the principal seats.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wrelton	Pickering (2½)	229	212
Wrenbury, pa.	Wrenbury	166	1994
Wrenbury, tp.	Wrenbury	166	475
Wreningham	Ashwellthorpe (1)	107	435
Wrentham	Blythburgh (5)	106	1018
Wrenthorpe	Lofthouse	178	2183
Wressell	Wressell	180	306

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wrestlingworth	Potton (3)	75	533
Wretham, East	Wretham	97	190
Wretham, West	Wretham	97	194
Wretton	Downham (7½)	86	322
Wrexham, parl. bor.	Wrexham	196	13958
Wrexham, mun. bor.	Wrexham	196	12552
Wrexham, pa.	Wrexham	196	32539

Wrexham Regis, tp., pa. of Wrexham (q.v.), S.E. Denbighs., in to. of Wrexham; ac. 1,306.

Wribbenhall, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Kidderminster (q.v.), N.W. Worcs., on the right bank of the Severn, which separates it from Bewdley. The church of All Saints, in E. Dec. style, replaces an older building. Here are extensive rope and twine works. Sandbourne, Spring Grove, and Summer Hill are seats.

Wrightington, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Eccleston (q.v.), N. Lancs., 6 N.W. of Wigan; ac. 3,916. The church of St. James is in E. Eng. style. Here are also Primitive Methodist and Presbyterian chapels. The charities amount to £50 a year. Harrock Hall and W. Hall (with a deer-park) are seats; adjoining the latter is a Catholic chapel.

Wrinehill. [CHECKLEY-CUM-WRINEHILL.]

Wring Cliff Cove, small bay, north coast of Dev., in west vicinity of Valley of Rocks, 1¼ W. of Lynton.

Wrington, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 7 N.E. of Axbridge; ac. 5,748; soil various, overlying clay and shale. The church of All Saints (partially restored 1892–93) is Perp. The Congregationalists and Wesleyans have chapels. The charities amount to about £12 yearly, and are distributed in bread, clothing, and money. There are also charities producing about £25 a year for educational purposes. The vil. has a reading-room for working men. Mill puff and flock are manufactured here. A charter for a market on Tuesdays was granted in the reign of Edward II., but it has fallen into disuse. A fair was formerly held on Sept. 9. A little to the east of the vil. stands the beautiful cottage formerly the residence (1786 to 1828) of the authoress, Mrs. Hannah More. John Locke was born in this pa. in 1632.

Writhlington, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 8 S.W. of Bath; ac. 680; soil various, overlying oolite. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (rebuilt 1874) is in Dec. style. Coal is extensively worked.

Writtle, pa. and vil. (formerly a mkt. to.), Mid Essex, 2½ W. of Chelmsford; ac. 8,325, and 23 water; soil clay and loam, overlying chiefly clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1885) is E. Eng. and Perp.; the font is Norm.; on the north side of the chancel is a marble monument, and near it another monument, also of marble, representing a father and mother with four sons and six daughters. Here is also an inscribed plate to Edward Elliott, of Newland, Essex (d. 1595); on the south side of the chancel is a memorial with bust to Sir John Comyns, Knight, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer (1738 till his death in 1740), besides several memorials to the Comyns family and the Petres, and some effigies of ladies and men in armour. There are almshouses near the churchyard for six widows. Here is an extensive brewery with maltings.

Wrockwardine, pa. and vil., Mid Salop, 2 W. of Wellington; ac. 4,583; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored 1881–91) is E. Eng. with traces of Norm. work. The charities are of £49 yearly value, and the almshouses at the entrance of the vil. were built in 1841 for two poor women. Orleton and Overley are seats.

Wrockwardine Wood, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Wrockwardine and Eyton-on-the-Weald-Moors (q.v.), Mid Salop, 4 E. of Wellington. The church of the Holy Trinity (1833) is in E. Eng. style. There are collieries in the neighbourhood.

Wroot, pa. and vil., N.W. Lincs., on the Yorks. border, 5 W. of Epworth; ac. 3,235; soil sand and moor, subsoil gravel with peat. The church of St. Pancras (rebuilt 1879) is a brick structure, into which portions of the former 14th-cent. church have been incorporated. The free school has an endowment. The Rev. Samuel Wesley, rector of Epworth, also held this rectory, and his distinguished son, the Rev. John Wesley, M.A., was curate here for two years from 1728. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Wrotham, pa. and to. at the foot of the chalk hills, Mid Kent, 10 N.W. of Maidstone; ac. 8,731; soil light, overlying chiefly sand. This place, which is of very remote antiquity, is supposed to have been a British settlement. A palace of the Archbishops of Canterbury formerly stood here, adjacent to the church. The church of St. George (restored 1858) is Dec. and Perp.; there are several brasses, some with effigial figures. In the vil. is an almshouse for four inmates. W. Hill is an eminence just above the to.; and on it is W. Hill Park, a seat in extensive grounds.

Wrottesley, pl., pa. of Tettenhall (q.v.), S. Staffs., 4 N.W. of Wolverhampton. This place gives title to Lord Wrottesley. (For W. Hall see TETTENHALL.)

Wroughton, pa. and vil., N. Wilts., 3 S. of Swindon; ac. 7,307; soil sand, clay, and marl, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist and St. Helen is Norm., and contains several tablets to the Benet family, one dated 1613. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are some charities and an endowed school. W. House is a seat.

Wroxall (1), pa. and vil., W. Warws., 6 N.W. of Warwick; ac. 1,651; soil various, overlying clay. The priory of W. was founded about 1141 for Benedictine nuns. Shortly after the dissolution a house was built here by the Burgoynes, the southern and eastern sides of the nunnery being adapted to domestic uses, and the west front rebuilt. Sir Christopher Wren purchased the estate in 1713 and occasionally resided here. The present church of St. Leonards, which occupied the north side of the conventual enclosure, was rebuilt about 1315; the windows on the north side and others retain some interesting remains of 14th-cent. stained glass; there are various mural monuments to the families of Burgoyne and Wren. The pa. possesses charity lands with a gross annual income of about £117. The ancient stocks still remain close to the schools, and are in good preservation.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wrexham Regis	Wrexham	196	12552
Wribbenhall	Bewdley	127	1278
Wrightington, ec. pa.	Apperley Bridge (1)	203	889
Wrightington, tp.	Apperley Bridge (1)	203	1550
Wrington	Yatton (3)	130	1472
Writhlington	Frome (8)	107	390
Writtle	Chelmsford (2½)	30	2462

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wrockwardine	Wellington (2)	153	1200
Wrockwardine Wood	Trench (1½)	150	4665
Wroot	Finningley (4)	158	253
Wrotham	Wrotham	31	3437
Wroughton	Swindon (2)	77	2511
Wroxall (1)	Hatton (3)	112	167

Wroxall (2), vil., pa. of Newchurch (q.v.), I. of W., 2 N. of Ventnor.

Wroxeter, pa. and vil. on the Severn, W. Salop, 6 S.E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 5,880; soil loam, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Andrew (partially restored 1889–90) is Gothic, and contains some interesting monuments to the Newport family, and a 16th-cent. altar-tomb to Sir Thomas Bromley. About 1864 an Easter sepulchre was discovered in the chancel wall. There are charities of about £6 yearly. W. was the Roman station Uriconium, and explorations have unearthed portions of buildings, and other Roman relics.

Wroxham, pa. and vil., E. Norf., 7 N.E. of Norwich; ac. 1,489; soil mixed, overlying sand. W. occupies elevated ground on the south bank of the Bure, which here forms one of the most considerable broads in the co., covering upwards of 100 ac., well stocked with various kinds of fish. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, situated on a knoll, is a building of flint with stone dressings, probably of the 14th cent., but it replaced a much earlier church, of which the south porch remains. Here are large malting establishments, and good bricks are made. W. Hall and W. House are seats.

Wroxton, pa. and vil., N. Oxon., 3 W.N.W. of Banbury; ac. 2,531 and 12 water; soil red loam, overlying sandstone. The church of All Saints is Dec.; it contains memorials to the Popes and Norths; the chancel is hung with their funeral banners, and on the walls are suspended several coronets, an embroidered surcoat, helmet with mantling, gauntlets, spurs and sword, besides seven hatchments. A Dec. screen separates the chancel and nave; each aisle retains an altar stone and a piscina. Here are Catholic and Wesleyan chapels. The poor's allotment produces £21 yearly, and is distributed at Michaelmas in coal. A short distance south of the church is W. Abbey, occupying the site of a priory founded about 1230 for Augustinian canons, some remains of which are incorporated in the present structure.

Wrynose Pass, mountain pass on border of Lancs., Westmd., and Cumb., 6 W. by S. of Ambleside. The "Three Shire Stone," marking the point where the three cos. meet, is situated in the pass. Its highest point, W. Gap, is 1,270 ft. above the sea.

Wuerdle and Wardle, tp., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., adjoining the bor. of Rochdale on the north-east; ac. 3,523.

Wy-, for words not found under this spelling, see also Wi-.

Wyberton, pa. and vil. on the estuary of the Witham, S.E. Lincs., about 2 S. of Boston; ac. 3,489; soil rich loam, overlying clay and loam. The church of St. Leger (or Leodegar) is Perp., with a small apsidal chancel; there is a stone slab in the floor inscribed to Adam de Frampton (1300). Field's charity consists of four cottages (rebuilt 1871) available for four poor widows, each of whom receives 3s. 6d. weekly. There are other charities amounting to about £20 yearly. Tytton Hall is a seat.

Wyboston, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Eaton Socon (q.v.), N.E. Beds.

Wybunbury, pa., tp., and vil., S. Chesh., 3½ E. of Nantwich; ac. of pa. 10,000, of tp. 813; soil loamy, overlying marl. The church of St. Chad was rebuilt 1892. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are several charities, some of which are devoted to educational purposes.

Wychbold, eccl. pa. and vil. on the Salwarpe, pa. of Doddington (q.v.), Mid Worcs., about 2 N.E. of Droitwich. The church of St. Mary de Wyche is in Late Dec. style. W. Hall, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Wych, High, eccl. pa., pa. of and about ½ S.W. from Sawbridgeworth (q.v.), S.E. Herts. St. James's Church (1861) is in E. Eng. style.

Wychling. [WITCHLING.]

Wychough. [WICHAUGH.]

Wychwood, pa., W. Oxon., 4 N.E. of Witney; ac. 3,692; soil stonebrash, gravel, and limestone, overlying rock. W. Forest was formerly a tract of wood and coppice, but is now disafforested. [LEAFIELD-WITH-WYCHWOOD.]

Wycliffe, or Wycliffe with Thorpe, pa. on the Tees, N.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Barnard Castle; ac. 2,202; soil loamy, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary is Gothic, and contains some 15th-, 16th-, and 17th-cent. brasses to the Wycliffe family. The rectory house retains a fine portrait of John Wycliffe, the Reformer (d. 1384). The Catholic church is in Gothic style. The charities are small. W. House is a seat.

Wycomb. [CHADWELL AND WYCOMB.]

Wycombe. [CHIPPING WYCOMBE.]

Wycombe, West, pa. and vil., S. Bucks., 2½ W. of High Wycombe; ac. 5,715; soil chiefly chalk. The church of St. Lawrence, on the top of a steep hill, is in Classic style; on account of its inconvenient position this church is now only used in the summer time. Close to the east end of the church is a mausoleum built by Lord Le Despencer in 1763. The church of St. Paul, in the vil., at the foot of the hill on which the church of St. Lawrence stands, is an edifice of red brick. The charities amount to about £20 a year. In the pa. are large beech woods, the value of which has caused the place to become a chair-making district. W. House is a seat.

Wycombe (or Southern) Division, one of the three parl. divs. of Bucks. It returns one member.

Wyddial, pa. and vil., N. Herts., 1½ N.E. of Buntingford; ac. 1,221; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Giles (restored 1870) is ancient; there are 16th-cent. brasses with effigies, and some ancient stained glass. W. Park is a seat.

Wye (1), pa. and small to. on the Stour, S. Kent, 9 S.W. of Canterbury; ac. 7,348; soil clay, over-

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wroxeter	Berrington (2)	168	535
Wroxham	Wroxham	123	415
Wroxton	Banbury (3)	77	643
Wuerdle and W.	Rochdale (2)	195	10456
Wyberton	Boston (2)	107	659
Wybunbury, pa.	Willaston (2)	160	6709
Wynbunbury, tp.	Willaston (2)	160	544
Wychbold	Droitwich (2)	126	1219
Wych, High	Harlow (2)	25	875
Wychwood	Charlbury (2)	76	212
Wycliffe	Winston (4)	243	188
Wycombe, West	West Wycombe	36	2599
Wycombe Division	.....	.....	66884
Wyddial	Buntingford (1½)	34	282
Wye (1)	Wye (1)	59	1419

lying chalk. The church of SS. Gregory and Martin is Perp. There is a 15th-cent. brass with effigies of a female and two civilians, and below, a group of eleven children, with an inscription to Alice, successively wife of John Andrew and Thomas Palmere. Here is the South-Eastern Agricultural College, established by the Kent and Surrey County Councils for affording a thorough education in the sciences applied to agriculture. There are two endowed schools, and almshouses for six poor persons. A fair is held on Oct. 11.

Wye (2), river of Wales and England, rises on Plynlimmon, and runs first S.E. and E. by S. through Montgoms. to Llangurig. From this place it flows S.S.E. to Builth, traversing Montgoms. and Radnors., and below Rhayader dividing Radnors. from Brecons. Between Builth and Whitney the river makes a great curve, flowing first S.E. past Aberedw, Llanstephan, and Llangoed Castle, and then N.E. past Glasbury, Hay, and Clifford Castle. It runs between Radnors. and Brecons. as far as Hay, and beyond that divides Radnors. from Herefords. On entering England the river flows E. by S. past Bredwardine, Moccas, and Byford to Hereford, whence it glides on with many curves to the Mon. border, the general direction of its course being due S. Holme Lacy is passed on the way to Ross. From Welsh Bicknor to Ganarew it winds W.S.W. between Herefords. and Glouc. It then makes a curve towards the west, passing the to. of Monmouth, and during the rest of its course runs S., passing Llandogo, Tintern Abbey, the Windcliff and Chepstow. The total length of the river is about 125 miles. It abounds in salmon, trout, and other fish.

Wye (3), river, N.W. Derbys., rises on the moors in the west vicinity of Buxton and runs E. by S. past Wormhill, and then S.E. by Ashford and Bakewell to the Derwent, which it joins at Rowsley. A little below Buxton the scenery on its banks becomes picturesque, and it afterwards traverses an extremely wild and romantic district, running below Chee Tor and along the famous Miller's Dale. A little above Rowsley it passes the historic mansion of Haddon Hall.

Wye (4), river, S. Bucks., rises at West Wycombe and runs S.E. through High Wycombe and Loudwater, and then, after forming a curve towards the east, S.W. through Wooburn to the Thames, which it enters on the east side of Hedsor, 3 E. of Great Marlow.

Wyersdale. [WYRESDALE, NETHER, WYRESDALE, OVER.]

Wyfordby, pa., E. Leics., 3 E. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 1,389; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng., with a Norm. tower.

Wyham-with-Cadeby, pa., N. Lincs., 7 N.N.W. of Louth; ac. 1,449; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints is E. Eng.

Wyke, eccl. pa., pas. of Ash and Wanborough (q.v.), N.W. Surrey, 6 N.E. of Farnham. The church of St. Mark (1847) is a stone edifice. Henley Park, an old building enlarged by Queen Elizabeth, Normandy Park, and Westwood are seats.

Wyke Champflower, ti. and chap., pa. of and about 1½ W. from Bruton (q.v.), E. Somerset. St. Peter's Chapel (rebuilt in the 17th cent.) has its roof adorned with the arms of Henry VIII., Elizabeth, Edward VI., and the Southworth family.

Wykeham (1), pa. and vil., N.R. Yorks., 7 S.W. of Scarborough; ac. 8,200; soil and subsoil various. The church of All Saints (built 1853) is in E. Eng. style; the detached Dec. tower probably belonged to the chapel of St. Helen, erected in 1321. W. Abbey is a modern seat, occupying part of the site of the priory, founded about 1153, for nuns of the Cistercian order. There are scanty remains of the priory buildings.

Wykeham (2). [WICKHAM (1).]

Wykeham, East, pa. consisting of a single farm, N. Lincs., 7 W. of Louth, on the road to Market Rasen; ac. 560; soil wold land. The ancient church has been in ruins since the time of Henry VIII., but the existing remains, which stand in the park, are preserved. Near these is the vault of the Child family. W. Hall, an ancient mansion in a well-wooded park, was restored 1870.

Wyken, pa., N.E. Warws., 3 N.E. of Coventry; ac. 670; soil mixed loam, overlying gravel and sand. The church (dedication unknown) was built in the reign of Henry I. Here is the Craven colliery. The W. pippin, a delicious eating-apple, was first grown in this pa.

Wyke Regis, pa. and vil., S. Dors., 1½ S.W. of Weymouth; ac. 2,062; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Perp.; in the graveyard are several memorials of persons shipwrecked on this coast. In the pa. are torpedo works, and a hospital in connection with the port sanitary authority. Belfield, Belfield Park, and W. House are seats.

Wykin, ha., pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Hinckley (q.v.), S.W. Leics.

Wylam, tp. and vil. on the north bank of the Tyne, pa. of Ovingham (q.v.), S. Northumb., 9 W. of Newcastle-on-Tyne; ac. 931 and 43 water. The manor once belonged to a monastery at Tynemouth. St. Oswin's chapel-of-ease (1886) is in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. W. Wood, a portion of this tp., is on the south side of the river. The houses in the vil. consist for the most part of pitmen's dwellings. Here is the North W. colliery. George Stephenson, the distinguished

GEORGE STEPHENSON'S BIRTHPLACE, WYLAM.
(Photo. G. W. Wilson and Co., Aberdeen.)

PLACE.	Nearest Railw. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wyfordby	Melton Mowbray (3)	105	141
Wyham-w.-Cadeby	Ludborough (2)	146	121
Wyke	Guildford (1½)	30	709
Wykeham (1)	Wykeham	231	493

PLACE.	Nearest Railw. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wykeham, East	Louth (7)	141	26
Wyken	Longford (2)	98	123
Wyke Regis	Weymouth (1½)	142	4182
Wylam	Wylam	276	1965

engineer and the founder of the English railway system, was born at a cottage on the Tyne, between this place and Closehouse, June 9, 1781. Holeyn Hall, a fine mansion, Oakwood House, and W. Hall are seats.

Wylde Green, dis., pa. of and 1 s. from Sutton Coldfield (q.v.), N. Warws.

Wyllin Glen. [GLEN WYLLIN.]

Wylye (1), or Wily, pa. and vil. on a stream of the same name, S. Wilts., 12 N.W. of Salisbury; ac. 2,287; soil light loam, overlying chalk and flint. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was rebuilt 1844, in Perp. style; it contains an ancient carved pulpit and sounding board, which formerly belonged to the old church at Wilton. The charities amount to £25 yearly. Near here are some ancient camps.

Wylye (2). [WILEY.]

Wymering, pa., S. Hants, 4 N. of Portsmouth; ac. 4,115; soil loam, subsoil chalk. A large portion of the vil. of Cosham is in this pa. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is Norm.

Wymeswold, pa. and vil., N. Leics., 5 N.E. of Loughborough; ac. 3,373; soil strong loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1843) is Perp. and Dec.; there is a monument of coloured marbles to William Leeke, dated 1687. The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are charities of nearly £215 a year, the distribution of which is under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners (1864). The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture and in the making of hose and lace.

Wymington, pa. and vil., N. Beds., 13 N.W. of Bedford; ac. 1,710; soil clay, overlying sand, clay, and limestone. The church of St. Lawrence is Dec.; in the window sill of the south chapel are remains of a once magnificent altar; the church contains some fine brasses, one of which, to Sir Thomas Bromflete, cup-bearer to King Henry V., is considered to be the finest brass in existence of a knight in plate armour; alongside, on a similar slab, is a much smaller brass of his wife Margaret (1407); on the floor under the chancel arch is a brass to John Stokys, rector (d. 1520), clad in eucharistic vestments, and holding a chalice; under the arch between the lady chapel and the chancel is a fine altar-tomb to the memory of John and Albreda Curteys (d. 1391 and 1396 respectively); the upper slab has perfect brass effigies of both. Pillow lace is made here to a small extent. The charities are of £5 yearly value.

Wymondham (1), pa. and mkt. to., Mid Norf., 9½ S.W. of Norwich; ac. 10,950; soil various, overlying clay. The houses are irregularly built, showing some antiquity. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was formerly the church of the abbey of SS. Mary and Alban; the nave retains its original Norm. structure, and has a noble Perp. clerestory and a superb ceiling; the north aisle is also Perp. The choir, with its adjacent chapel, formed the conventual church, the nave and north aisle having been assigned in 1349 to the parishioners, who erected the western tower. There are also Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a meeting-house for the Friends. There are several charities left for the benefit of the poor, the principal of which is the town lands charity, out of which the grammar school is supported. The Public Hall (1890) is a red-brick building in Elizabethan style. The old County Female Prison has been converted into a police station, and there is a fire brigade station in Market Street. The market cross, in the centre of the to., erected in 1616, was repaired in 1863, and is now appropriated as a news and reading room and library. The market, on Friday, is unimportant, and little business is now transacted. Fairs are held annually on Feb. 14 and May 17 for cattle, and on Oct. 12 for pleasure. Here is an extensive brewery, a brush manufactory, and saw mills and turnery works. The Benedictine abbey of SS. Mary and Alban was founded here before 1107 as a cell to St. Alban's. The "Old Green Dragon" inn, formerly attached to the abbey, is an ancient and interesting structure. St. Thomas à Becket's chapel has been assigned for the use of the grammar school. Gunvil Hall, now a farm-house, is an Elizabethan building, and was formerly surrounded by a moat. Burfield Hall, a mansion of the Queen Anne period, Carick House, and Stanfield Hall, a moated Tudor mansion, are seats.

Wymondham (2), pa. and large vil. on the Eye, E. Leics., 6½ E. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 2,852; soil partly red loam and partly clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng. There is a Congregational chapel, with school attached, and a Wesleyan chapel. The Grammar School was founded in 1637, and new buildings were erected in 1883. The interest of £500 is applied to the education of poor girls.

Wymondeley, Great, or Much, pa. and vil., N. Herts., 2 S.E. of Hitchin; ac. 1,430; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored) is of various periods with some Norm. remains. There are some charities. Remains of a Roman villa, with tessellated pavement, have been found here. Delamere House is an ancient seat.

Wymondeley, Little, pa. and vil., N. Herts., 2½ S.E. of Hitchin; ac. 986; soil loam and gravelly, overlying clay. The church of the Virgin Mary (rebuilt with the exception of the tower in 1875) is in Perp. style, and retains some ancient monuments. The charities are small. A priory of Augustinian canons, founded in the reign of Henry III., formerly existed here.

Wyndcliff. [WIND CLIFF.]

Wynford Eagle, pa. and small vil., W. Dors., 9 N.W. of Dorchester; ac. 1,370; soil stony, overlying gravel and chalk. The church of St. Lawrence (1842) is in E. Eng. style.

Wynyard Park. [GRINDON (1).]

Wyrai, river, Mid Cardigs., rises 6½ N.N.W. of Tregaron, and runs about 2 N. by Llanfihangel Lledrod, and then 8 W. by S. by Llangwyryfon, entering the sea at Llanrhystyd.

Wyrardisbury. [WRAYSBURY.]

Wyre, river, N. Lancs., rises on the moors on the Yorks. border, and runs W. for about 7 miles. It then turns S. and flows past Garstang (where the

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Wylye (1)	Wylye	115	414
Wymering	Cosham (½)	70	1123
Wymeswold	Loughborough (5)	112	863
Wymington	Irchester (2)	63	336
Wymondham (1)	Wymondham	110	4764
Wymondham (2)	Whissendine (2)	99	905
Wymondeley, Great	Hitchin (2)	32	255
Wymondeley, Little	Hitchin (2½)	32	411
Wynford Eagle	Maiden Newton (2)	145	210

Lancaster Canal is carried over it through an aqueduct) to St. Michael-on-Wyre. Its course has here been improved by artificial means. From St. Michael it proceeds in a W. direction, expanding gradually into an estuary, which turns abruptly N. and is known as Wyre Water. The estuary is 5 miles long and has an extreme breadth of 1½ mile, the distance from bank to bank at its entrance being less than ½ mile. On the west side of its mouth is the to. of Fleetwood (q.v.).

Wyre, Forest of, remains of ancient forest on border of Worcs. and Salop, 1½ W. of Bewdley. In the 16th cent. the forest extended along the Severn to Bridgnorth, and was famous for its magnificent oaks.

Wyre Piddle, tp. and chap. on the Avon, pa. of Fladbury (q.v.), S.E. Worcs., 6 N.W. of Evesham; ac. 346. The church (dedication unknown) is a small E. Norm. building (restored 1888–90); the chancel arch and lower part of the bell-turret are said to be Saxon; the chancel contains an ancient carved piscina and two squints. The pre-Reformation altar slab, previously lying within the communion rails, has been placed on the communion table; there are a few early tiles and some remains of ancient stained glass in the west window. A large portion of the land is cultivated by market gardeners.

Wyresdale, Nether, scattered tp., pa. of and 4 N.N.E. from Garstang (q.v.), N. Lancs.; ac. 4,875 and 40 water. Wyre Side is a seat.

Wyresdale, Over, chap. and extensive tp., pa. of and 7 S.E. from Lancaster (q.v.), N.W. Lancs.; ac. 17,319, of which 64 are water and a large quantity moorland. It was formerly a forest with a bleak aspect, but cultivation has made it very picturesque. The church (dedication unknown) is a plain building. Here is also a chapel for the Wesleyans and a meeting-house for the Friends. The endowed school was founded in 1874.

Wyrley, Great, eccl. pa. (extending into the pa. of Cheslyn Hay), tp., and vil., pa. of Cannock (q.v.), W. Staffs., 8 N. of Walsall; ac. 1,107. The church of St. Mark is in E. Eng. style. The Working Men's Institute, for lectures or concerts, has a reading-room and library. The charities amount to £2 13s. yearly.

Wyrley, Little, ha., pa. of Norton Canes (q.v.), S. Staffs., about 2 S.E. of Great Worley. W. Grove, a curious 17th-cent. mansion, was formerly the seat of the Fowkes family.

Wysall, pa. and vil., S.E. Notts., 9 S.E. of Nottingham; ac. 1,554; soil and subsoil clay. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1874) is Dec.; the chancel has a waggon-headed roof and contains a large 16th-cent. altar-tomb to Hugh Armstrong, with recumbent figures of himself and his wife; there are two piscinæ and an ancient oak screen with gates. The Wesleyans and Baptists have chapels. There are charities of about £5 annual value.

Wyson, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Brimfield (q.v.). N. Herefords.

Wythall, eccl. pa., pas. of Solihull, W. Warws., and Kings Norton and Alvechurch (q.v.). E.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Wyre Piddle	Pershore (2)	112	235
Wyresdale, Nether	Bayhorse (3)	224	789
Wyresdale, Over	Bayhorse (2)	224	523
Wyrley, Great, ec. pa.	Wyrley (¼)	127	3217
Wyrley, Great, tp.	Wyrley (¼)	127	1151
Wysall	Widmerpool (2½)	116	193
Wythall	Kings Norton (3)	136	1100

Worcs., about 8 S. of I
Mary is in Dec. style.
chapels. The W. Ins
tainments, concerts,
like grounds, and cor

Wytham, pa. and Oxford; ac. 1,149 an lying clay, sand, and at the foot of a hill, a castle, supposed to king of the West Saints was rebuilt i of Abingdon, who re incorporated in the n ings some of the v
Cumnor Hall; the p
E. Eng. style; on th of the Late Dec. p
In the church are br and his wife (c. 1455 is also a monument t
Usher to Charles II. a composer. W. Abbe reign of Henry VI., i the interior has been house in the centre
however, fine specim

Wythburn (1), eccl
(q.v.), W. Cumb., 7 s
(restored 1872) is a s

Wythburn (2). [
WYTHBURN.]

Wythop, tp. and
W. Cumb., about 4 s.
The chapel of St. Ma
Hall, formerly a fort now a farmhouse.

Wyton (1), pa. an 3½ E. of Huntingdo clay and partly grave church of All Saints
Dec. The Rev. Joh
John's College, Cam
for Old Sarum, aut
Purley," resided for sc
The manor-house is n

Wyton (2), tp. and
Yorks., 5 N.E. of Hull

Wyverstone, pa. a of Stowmarket; ac.
overlying clay and
St. George is E. Eng.

Wyville-with-Hung borders of Leics., 5 s soil light, overlying
Catherine (1858) is in

Yaddlethorpe, vil.,
Lincs., 7½ W. of Brigg

Place.	N fr
Wytham	O
Wythburn (1)	C
Wythop	B
Wyton (1)	S
Wyton (2)	H
Wyverstone	F
Wyville-with-H.	G

Yafforth, tp. and chap., pa. of Danby Wiske (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., about 2 W. of Northallerton; ac. 1,586. All Saints' Church is in E. Eng. style.

Yalberton, ha., pa. of and 2½ S.W. from Paignton (q.v.), S. Dev.

Yalding, pa. and vil., S.W. Kent, 7 S.W. of Maidstone; ac. 5,771 land and 72 water; soil and subsoil various. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is E. Eng. and later; it contains two tombs, each under a fine Perp. arch, and monuments to the Ward and Aker families. The vicarage is an ancient moated house. The charities amount to £125 a year. Kenward is a seat.

Yantlet Creek, inlet of the Thames, N. Kent, 3 W.N.W. of Sheerness. The Creek separates Hoo Allhallows on the west from the Isle of Grain on the east. At its entrance on the east side is the London Stone, marking the limit of the jurisdiction of the Conservators of the Thames.

Yantlet Island, islet in the Thames, on the west side of the entrance to Y. Creek.

Yanwath and Eamont Bridge, tp., pa. of Barton (q.v.), N. Westmd., 1 S. of Penrith; ac. 1,299. Y. Hall, now occupied by a farmer, is a fortified manor-house of the 14th cent.

Yanworth, tp. and chap., pa. of Hazleton (q.v.), N.E. Glouc., about 8 N.E. of Cheltenham; ac. 1,263. The church of St. Andrew is Norm. and Perp.

Yapham-with-Meltonby, chap. and tp., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Pocklington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,818. The church of St. Martin is a plain building. There are some charities.

Yapton, pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 5 S.W. of Arundel; ac. 1,740; soil rich mould, overlying light clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; the tower is very much out of the perpendicular. The free school is endowed, and there is a charity of about £18 a year.

Yarborough, or Yarburgh, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 4 N.E. of Louth; ac. 1,208; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. John the Baptist is Perp.

Yarborough Camp. [CROXTON (2).]

Yarborough Column. [BEMBRIDGE.]

Yarbridge, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Brading (q.v.), I. of W.

Yarburgh. [YARBOROUGH.]

Yarcombe, pa. and vil., E. Dev., on the borders of Somerset, about 8 N.E. of Honiton; ac. 4,689; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is Dec. Here are two Baptist chapels. The charities are of £46 yearly value.

Yardley (in Domesday "Gerlei"), pa., E. Worcs., 4 E. of Birmingham. The pa., which comprises several manufacturing and residential districts, is level and watered by several small streams; it is separated from Warws. by the Cole, over which are several bridges, connecting the pa. with that of Aston. The church of St. Edburgh is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp., and has a fine Perp. tower.

Yardley, another form of Ardeley (q.v.).

Yardley Gobion, tp. and chap., pa. of Potterspury (q.v.), S.E. Northants, on the borders of Bucks., 3½ N.W. of Stony Stratford, on the high road to Northampton; ac. 1,593. The Grand Junction Canal passes through this place. The chapel of St. Leonard is in E. Eng. style. Here is a Congregational chapel. Y. G. House is a seat, with a very fine prospect to the north and east.

Yardley Hastings, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 7½ E.S.E. of Northampton; ac. 4,042; soil clayey, overlying clay and limestone. The church of St. Andrew (restored) is chiefly Dec. Here is a Congregational chapel. Y. Chase consists of woods intersected by beautiful drives; they abound with fine timber, and one portion is well stocked with deer. A pleasure fair is held on Whit-Tuesday.

Yardley Wood, eccl. pa., pas. of Kings Norton and Yardley (q.v.), N.E. Worcs., 4 S.E. of Birmingham. Christ Church is a modern building.

Yard Malldraeth, vil. at head of Malldraeth Bay, pa. of Trefdraeth (q.v.), S.W. Anglesey, 2½ N.N.W. of Newborough.

Yare, river, Mid and E. Norf., rises at Shipdham and runs 50 E. to the North Sea. The river runs S.E. from Shipdham to Cranworth; thence E.N.E. past many vils. to Brandon Parva; due E. by Marlingford, Bawburgh, and Colney to Earlham; S.S.E. past Cringleford and Eaton to Keswick; N.E. past Lackenham and Trowse to Thorpe (skirting the east suburbs of Norwich); E. again past Whitlingham to Brundall, making a great curve S. of Postwick; then S.E. by Strumpshaw to Reedham, whence it runs N.E. to Great Yarmouth, and then turning S. by E. for 3 miles divides a long narrow strip of land from the co. of Suffolk, after which it enters the German Ocean. The course of the Y. is sluggish, but there is some pleasant scenery. At Reedham there is a cut connecting the navigation of the Y. with that of the Waveney.

Yar, East, river in south and east of I. of W., rises in east vicinity of Niton, and runs N. past Whitwell and Godshill, and then N.E., E., and again N.E., passing Newchurch and Brading on its way to Brading Harbour. Its length is about 12 miles.

Yarkhill, pa., S. Herefords., 1½ N. of Stoke Edith; ac. 2,302; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. John the Baptist (rebuilt 1862) is principally in Dec. style. There are some small charities.

Yarlett, pa. (formerly extra-parochial), Mid Staffs., 4 N. by W. of Stafford; ac. 390.

Yarlington, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 4 W. of Wincanton; ac. 1,207; soil loam, overlying sandy rock. The church of St. Mary (restored 1877) is E. Eng. On a hill near are some remains of a Roman encampment. Y. House is a seat.

Yarm, pa. (anciently a mkt. to.) and head of petty sess. div., N.R. Yorks., 4 S.S.W. of Stockton;

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Yafforth	Northallerton (2)	218	151
Yalding	Yalding	37	2595
Yanwath and E. B.	Penrith (1)	281	289
Yanworth	Cirencester (8)	93	131
Yapham-with-M.	Pocklington (2)	198	191
Yapton	Barnham Junc. (1½)	63	666
Yarborough	Louth (4)	141	189
Yarcombe	Chard (5)	143	647

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Yardley	Stechford (1)	109	17141
Yardley Gobion	Castlethorpe (2)	55	551
Yardley Hastings	Billing (3½)	71	1070
Yardley Wood	Stechford (1)	109	832
Yarkhill	Stoke Edith (1)	139	474
Yarlett	Norton Bridge (2)	139	59
Yarlington	Wincanton (3½)	116	179
Yarm	Yarm	231	1608

ac. 1,206; soil clayey and loamy. The to., which consists chiefly of one long and broad street running north and south, is nearly surrounded by the Tees and is very liable to inundations; the river is crossed by a substantial stone bridge of five arches and a fine railway viaduct. The church of St. Mary Magdalene was rebuilt in 1730. There are Catholic and various Nonconformist chapels. There are various charities, and a grammar school founded and endowed in the 16th cent. A fair is held annually on Oct. 18, 19, and 20, for the sale of cattle and cheese, which is well attended. The market, owing to the proximity of Stockton, has become extinct. A covered market-cross stands in the centre of the street. Here was formerly a house of Black Friars, founded by Peter de Brus, who died in 1240; a mansion has been built on the site and is called the Fryerage.

Yarmouth (1), or Great Yarmouth, pa., parl., mun. and co. bor. (extending into Suff.), mkt. to., seaport, and watering-place, E. Norf., 20 E. by S. of Norwich; ac. of pa. 2,175; soil light, overlying sand. Next to Norwich, Y. is the chief to. of the eastern counties, and the port of E. Norf. and Suff., and is a flourishing to., owing to its fisheries, its foreign trade, its advantages as a bathing-place, and its manufactures. Its situation is as peculiar as its origin, being on a sand drift formed at the entrance of the estuary (of the Bure, Yare, and Waveney),

The Town Hall, Yarmouth.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, London.)

which at one time flowed up to Norwich, and this sand gradually becoming dry land was added to by the sand drifted from the beach during the spring by the easterly winds then prevailing. At a very early period this place was frequented by fishermen from different parts of England, especially the Cinque Ports, who dried their nets on the denes or downs, and eventually erected houses thereon, so that in the time of Edward the Confessor there were seventy burgesses, and the place became the great mart for herrings, especially during the annual free fair. The to. is regularly built, and has some fine houses, both in the old and new parts. The North and South Quays, which are very broad, and extend for nearly a mile and a quarter, are among the peculiar and interesting features of Y. The principal streets run parallel with the quays, and are crossed by 145 narrow lanes called rows, which are numbered. There is a good esplanade, with two piers and a jetty. The pa. church of St. Nicholas, attached to the priory of that name, founded here early in the 12th cent., received various additions during the 13th, 14th, and 15th cents., till it became a large and splendid edifice, with sixteen chapels rich in plate, jewels, and other ornaments. In 1551 the monumental brasses were cast into weights and measures, and during the time of the Commonwealth the church suffered great mutilation and damage; various repairs were carried out during the first decade of the present century, and since then the fabric has been well restored. There are also eccl. pas. with modern churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The Grammar School, founded in 1551, was re-established in 1862, and the new buildings were opened in 1872. The chief public buildings are the Town Hall and the Post Office, on the Quay; the Tolhouse, containing the Free Library and Museum; the Public Library, South Quay; the Custom House, North Quay; the Theatre, the Aquarium, the Sailors' Home, the Fishermen's Institute, and the Naval Lunatic Asylum. On the North Denes are extensive golf links, and on the South Denes, where the races are held, is a lofty monument to Lord Nelson. The market days are Wednesday and Saturday. The fairs are held on Shrove Monday and Tuesday, and on Friday and Saturday after Easter. Barley is the chief article of export. There are numerous and very extensive malting-houses which afford employment to a large number of hands. The herring fishery gives employment on shore to a very large number of persons, both men and women, in salting and curing the fish; the produce is equal to one-fifth of the entire return of the herring fisheries throughout the kingdom; there are also fisheries for mackerel, cod, sprats, turbot, soles, skate, whitings, eels, and shrimps. The Fish Wharf is on the South Denes; on the east side are fish salesmen's offices, and in the rear of the market a series of curing houses and yards. Ship and boat building employ many hands; there are rope and twine and trawl-net manufactories and silk crape works. The charities, amounting to about £1,000 a year, are administered by trustees. Steam packets ply to and from London, Hull, and Newcastle for passengers and goods, and the Scotch boats pass through Y. Roads and occasionally land and embark passengers. Among other antiquities are the remains of the town walls, gates, and towers. The Star Hotel contains some curious carvings and pendant ceilings; and No. 4, South Quay (built 1596), contains some fine Elizabethan rooms, in one of which, according to tradition, the death of Charles I. was determined on.

Yarmouth (2), or South Yarmouth, pa. and formerly a mkt. to., I. of W.; ac. 58, and 66 foreshore and water; soil light loam and sand, overlying chalk. Y., the smallest pa. in the island, is on the sea coast, at the mouth of the river Yar, over which a bridge has been constructed, uniting this with Freshwater, directly opposite Lymington, distant 4 miles by a steam ferry across the sea. The church of St. James (restored 1873) is Perp. In a small chapel is a splendid monument to Sir Robertus Holmes Miles, consisting of a colossal statue of exquisite workmanship in beautiful

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Yarmouth (1), pa.	Yarmouth	122	36998
Yarmouth (1), parl. b.	Yarmouth	122	49334
Yarmouth (1), mun. b.	Yarmouth	122	49334
Yarmouth (2)	Yarmouth	97	362

Carrara marble. There are some Nonconformist chapels. The pier, opened in 1876, has three separate landing stages. The imports are coal and timber. The to. is well built and was corporate, but by the Municipal Corporation Act it ceased to exist in March, 1881. The bor. was disfranchised by the Reform Act, having previously sent two members to Parliament from the reign of Elizabeth. At the west end of the to. is a small dismantled fort or castle, erected in the time of Henry VIII. on the site of the former church, which had been demolished by the French a short time before. Thomas, Lord Holmes, Governor of the island in the 18th cent., bequeathed £30 yearly to this pa.: £10 to the rector, £10 for apprenticing a poor boy out of the pa., and £10 to be distributed among the widows and poor of the pa.; other charities produce £12 yearly.

Yarmouth, Little. [SOUTHTOWN (1).]

Yarmouth Roads, natural haven off east coast of Norf., opposite Great Y. The Roads extend upwards of 5 miles north and south. A line of sandbanks protects vessels from easterly gales, affording the only secure anchorage between the Thames and the Humber.

Yarnbury, ancient camp on Salisbury Plain, S. Wilts., 6½ N.W. of Wilton. The camp crowns an isolated eminence commanding fine views over the Plain. It is circular and covers 28 ac. There are six entrances, the principal one facing east, where there is a very elaborate outwork. A large fair for sheep and colts is held here early in October.

Yarnfield (1), ti., pa. of Maiden Bradley (q.v.), E. Somerset.

Yarnfield (2), ha., pa. of Swynnerton (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., about 2 N.W. of Norton Bridge.

Yarnscombe, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 8 S. of Barnstaple; ac. 3,047; soil clayey, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1888) is Perp. The staircase to the rood-loft remains and some ancient stained glass. On the north side of the chancel, within a low-arched recess, is a 15th-cent. altar-tomb. There are some charities.

Yarnton (in Domesday "Eardungton"), pa. and vil., Mid Oxon., 4 N.N.W. of Oxford; ac. 1,572; soil clay and sand, overlying Oxford clay. The church of St. Bartholomew is principally E. Eng.; some remains of ancient glass in the north window exhibit figures of monks and prelates; in the Spencer aisle is a 17th-cent. monument, with standing effigies; there is also a 17th-cent. canopied tomb. In the churchyard is a curious E. Eng. cross. There are some small charities.

Yarpole, pa. and vil., N. Herefords., 5 N.N.W. of Leominster; ac. 2,534; soil clayey, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Leonard is Dec. There are charities of about £8 yearly.

Yarrow (1), stream, W. Lancs., rises in the east vicinity of Coppull, and runs 2½ N.N.W. and then 6 W. by N. past Eccleston and Croston, joining the Douglas 8 S.S.W. of Preston.

Yarrow (2), pa., W. Selks., on Y. Water, with detached portion in Peebs., Sc.; ac. 41,046; soil generally light brown loam, gravelly along the banks of the rivers, with tendency to become boggy in places. The scenery is very picturesque. The Established church stands about the centre of the pa., 9 S.W. of Selkirk, on the road to Moffat. In this pa., about 12 W.S.W. of Selkirk, is the farm of Mount Benger, formerly in the occupation of Hogg, the "Ettrick Shepherd."

Yarrowfeus, ha. on the Yarrow Water, pa. of Yarrow (q.v.), Mid Selks., Sc., 7 S. of Innerleithen.

Yarrowford, vil. on the Yarrow Water, pa. of Yarrow (q.v.), N.E. Selks., Sc., 4 W. by N. of Selkirk.

Yarrow Water, stream, Selks., Sc., flows out of St. Mary's Loch, in its course receiving several burns, passing through the pa. and forming a portion of its south-eastern boundary. Then leaving the pa. it flows S.E. and joins the Ettrick about 2 S. of Selkirk.

Yar Tor, eminence (1,300 ft.) on Dartmoor, S. Dev., 5½ W.N.W. of Ashburton. Here are considerable remains of a British village, including a hut-circle and a kistvaen.

Yarwell, pa. on the Nen, N.E. Northants, 7 N.E. of Oundle; ac. 1,154; soil cold clay, overlying loam. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1892) is Dec. The charities are small.

Yar, West, stream in west of I. of W., S. Hants, rises at Freshwater Gate, and runs 3 N. to the Solent.

Yate, pa. and vil. on the Frome, S. Glouc., 10 N.E. of Bristol; ac. 4,071 and 10 water; soil mostly red mould, overlying clay and limestone. The church of St. Mary (restored) is Perp.; there is a 16th-cent. brass with effigy. The Brethren have a chapel. There are charities of £71 yearly value. A fortnightly market is held. Here is the Chipping Sodbury Union Workhouse. Y. Court, garrisoned and afterwards burnt by Cromwell's troops, is now in ruins, but a fine archway still remains. Pool Court, Stanshawes Court, and Y. House are seats.

Yate and Pickup Bank, scattered tp., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., from 4 to 5 S.E. of Blackburn; ac. 850.

Yate, Great, ha., pa. of Croxden (q.v.), N. Staffs., 3 S.E. of Cheadle.

Yatehouse. [BYLEY-WITH-YATEHOUSE.]

Yateley, pa., tp., and vil., N. Hants, 5 N.N.W. of Farnborough; ac. of pa. 10,036, of tp. 3,207; soil various, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Peter (restored) is of various periods. The charities amount to over £100 yearly.

Yatesbury, pa., N.W. Wilts., 5 E. by N. of Calne; ac. 1,639; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (restored 1855) is Norm. with Perp. additions; it retains a Norm. font.

Yattendon, pa. and vil. on an acclivity, S. Berks., 12 N.W. of Reading; ac. 1,400; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1882) is Perp. In the church is a monument to Sir John Norreys, Knight (d. 1597). There is a charity of £2 5s. yearly. Y. Court is a seat.

Yatton (1), pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 12 S.W. of

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Yarnscombe	Imberleigh (3)	205	294
Yarnton	Yarnton	67	299
Yarpole	Berrington & Eye (1½)	159	512
Yarrow (2	Selkirk (4)	367	638
Yarwell	Wansford (2)	100	305
Yate	Yate	128	1190

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Yate and Pickup B.	Darwen (1)	206	581
Yateley, pa.	Wellington Col. (1½)	57	3533
Yateley, tp.	Wellington Col. (1½)	57	1238
Yatesbury	Calne (5)	99	148
Yattendon	Hampstead Norris (2	60	326
Yatton (1)	Yatton	130	1870

Bristol; ac. 5,374; soil alluvium, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary is Dec. and Perp.; it contains memorials of the Newton family, including an altar-tomb of Sir R. C. Newton, Chief Justice (d. 1448). A cattle market is held on the second Monday in the month. The charities amount to £90 a year.

Yatton (2), tp., pa. of Much Marcle (q.v.), S. Herefords., 5 E. of Ross; ac. 1,452.

Yatton Keynell, pa. and vil., N.W. Wilts., 12 N.E. of Bath; ac. 1,716; soil various, overlying clay. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1868) is Dec. and Perp.; a carved stone rood-screen of the 15th cent., of very fine workmanship, remains.

Yaverland, pa. and vil., I. of W., 8 E.S.E. of Newport; ac. 800; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1888–90) is Norm. with later additions. During the restoration a British urn and the mutilated carved head of a monk were discovered.

Yawthorpe, ha., pa. of Corringham (q.v.), N. Lincs., 5 E. of Gainsborough.

Yaxham, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 2 S. of East Dereham; ac. 1,596; soil heavy and very productive, overlying clay and brick-earth. The church of St. Peter is chiefly Dec., with Perp. insertions; the base of the tower, as well as the tower arch, are of E. Norm. date. Here is a Congregational chapel. There are some small charities chiefly distributed in doles.

Yaxley (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 4 S. of Diss; ac. 1,263. The soil is a rich alluvial deposit of the drift, in which, when the railway cutting under the Duke's bridge was made, several fossils of vertebræ, and paddles of huge saurians, as well as fine ammonites, were found; subsoil chiefly clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1868) is chiefly Perp.; the east window is filled with the old painted quarries; the fragments of painted glass, dating from 1199 to 1549 (and later), were for the most part collected from the windows of the church. The chancel and south aisle contain four monumental brasses to the Yaxley and Felgate families. There are some charities. Y. Hall is a seat.

Yaxley (2), pa. and vil., N. Hunts., 4½ S. of Peterborough; ac. 4,138; soil rich loam, overlying strong clay. The church of St. Peter is a large and noble cruciform structure; the earliest part is Dec., the remainder being very Late Perp., and has piscinæ, aumbries, and sedilia. The walls exhibit in places good frescoes on a ground of small cinquefoiled flowers; the door to the rood-loft still remains in the chancel arch, which is occupied by a lofty Perp. oak screen. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, Free Methodist, Primitive Methodist, and Baptist chapels. A fair is held here on Holy Thursday every year. There is a charity of £5 yearly.

Yazor, pa., N. Herefords., 8 N.W. of Hereford; ac. 2,063; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (1855) is in E. Eng. style, and contains several monuments and brasses. Foxley is a seat.

Y Drosgl (1), mountain (2,478 ft.), N.E. Carnarvs., 2 E.N.E. of Bethesda. The view from the summit is fine.

Y Drosgl (2), mountain (2,182 ft.), N.E. Carnarvs., 2½ S.S.E. of Llanfairfechan. It commands extensive views.

Yeading, or Yedding, ha., pa. of Hayes (q.v.), W. Middx., 4 S.E. of Uxbridge.

Yeadon (in Domesday "Eadon"), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Guiseley (q.v.), 7½ N. by W. of Leeds, W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,693. The church of St. John the Evangelist is in E. Eng. style. Y. has also a chapel-of-ease and places of worship for some Nonconformist bodies. The Town Hall and Mechanics' Institute (1880–81) is in Gothic style. Woollen manufacturing is extensively carried on here.

Yealand Conyers, eccl. pa., tp., and picturesque vil., pa. of Warton (q.v.), N. Lancs., 2½ S. of Carnforth; ac. 1,579 and 3 water. The church of St. John is in E. Eng. style; there is also a Catholic church in the same style, and the Friends have a meeting-house, erected in 1697. Leighton Hall and Morecambe Lodge, both in well-timbered grounds, are seats.

Yealand Redmayne, tp., pa. of Warton (q.v.), N. Lancs., about 1 N. of Yealand Conyers; ac. 2,130.

Yealm, river, S. Dev., rises on the south of Dartmoor, near Pen Beacon, and after a S.S.W. course of about 10 miles, through pleasing scenery, flows past Yealmpton, where it is crossed by a bridge, and falls into Y. Mouth.

Yealm Mouth, inlet of the sea on the south coast of Dev., between Plymouth Sound and Bigbury Bay. The scenery on its shores is picturesque.

Yealmpton, pa. and vil., S. Dev., 7 S.E. of Plymouth; ac. 3,000; soil light, overlying limestone and marble. The church of St. Bartholomew, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1850, is of various periods. In the north aisle is a brass, with effigy in armour, and inscription to Sir John Crocker, cup and standard bearer to King Edward IV., who distinguished himself in suppressing Perkin Warbeck's rebellion in 1497. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. There are extensive chair, cabinet, and flock works, worked by water power, and marble and granite works, and several limestone quarries. A cattle market is held the fourth Wednesday in each month. In 1858 Charles Anthony bestowed £36 yearly for the sick poor, and at his death left £60 yearly to clothe six old men and six old women, and for educating and clothing thirty children. Kitley, a fine Elizabethan mansion, contains a good collection of paintings.

Yearby, ha., pa. of and about ½ S. from Kirkleatham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.

Yeardsley-cum-Whaley, tp., pa. of Taxal (q.v.), E. Chesh., 8 N.E. of Macclesfield; ac. 1,323. There are Baptist and Congregational chapels, and a Mechanics' Institute. The charities amount to

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Yatton (2)	Ross (5½)	132	167
Yatton Keynell	Chippenham (4½)	94	520
Yaverland	Sandown (1)	86	94
Yaxham	Yaxham	120	450
Yaxley (1)	Mellis (1½)	91	335
Yaxley (2)	.....	.....	1304
Yazor	Moorhampton (1)	154	215

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Yeadon	Guiseley (1)	205	7[illegible]
Yealand C., eccl. pa.	Carnforth (2½)	236	[illegible]
Yealand C., tp.	Carnforth (2½)	236	[illegible]
Yealand R.	Burton & Holme (2)	241	[illegible]
Yealmpton	Plympton (5½)	237	[illegible]
Yeardsley-c.-W.	New Mills (½)	173	[illegible] about £3 yearly. In the neighbourhood are large collieries. Y. Hall, formerly a seat, is now a farmhouse.

Yearsley, chap., tp., and small vil., pa. of Coxwold (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5 N.E. of Easingwold; ac. 2,674 and 18 water. The church of the Holy Trinity dates from 1839, and the Wesleyans have a chapel.

Yeaveley, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Shirley (q.v.), W. Derbys., 4½ S. of Ashbourne; ac. 1,377. The church of the Holy Trinity (1840) is in E. Eng. style. The charities are small.

Yeavering, tp., pa. of Kirknewton (q.v.), N. Northumb., 4⅝ N.W. of Wooler; ac. 867. On the summit of a hill, known as Y. Bell (about 2,000 ft.), are some remains said to be Druidical.

Yedding. [YEADING.]

Yedding Brook, rises between Harrow and Pinner, N.W. Middx., and after a circuitous course of 18 miles falls into the Thames at Isleworth.

Yeddingham, pa. and small vil., E.R. Yorks., 9 N.E. of Malton; ac. 1,150; soil loamy, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary, anciently part of a Benedictine priory, founded in 1163, is chiefly Norm.

Yelden, pa., N. Beds., 14 N. of Bedford; ac. 1,912; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1866) is Dec. On the north side of the church is a flat arched recess, enclosing an altar-tomb with a recumbent figure. There are also three brasses, one of which has the effigy of a man in trunk hose, cloak, and ruff; another is that of a vested priest; the third is a kneeling effigy, with ruff. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. There is a charity of about £11 10s. a year.

Yeldersley, tp., pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Ashbourne (q.v.), N. Derbys.; ac. 1,505. Y. House is a seat Yeldham, Great, pa. and vil. on the Colne, N. Essex, 7 N.W. of Halstead; ac. 1,838; soil rich loam, clay, and gravelly sand, subsoil various. The church of St. Andrew is Perp.; the chancel retains a piscina and sedilia, and there are brasses and monuments to the Symonds family. Here is a Baptist chapel. There is an almshouse, comprising six tenements, founded in 1694. The Y. great oak, standing in the centre of the vil., is supposed to be over 1,000 years old. Spencer Grange and Spaynes Hall are seats.

Yeldham, Little, pa., N. Essex, 8 N.W. of Halstead; ac. 956; soil clay, loam, and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist is a small E. Eng. building.

Yelford, pa., Mid Oxon., 4 S. of Witney; ac. 327; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Swithin is Perp.; the font is cup-shaped and panelled, and there is a good rood-screen.

Yell, pa. and island lying between the islands of Mainland and Unst, Shetland, Sc., about 25 N. of Lerwick. Y. is the second in size of the Shetland group, its length from north to south being about 17 miles, with a varying breadth from ½ to 6½ miles. It has a bleak and moorish surface; the highest point is 672 ft. Fishing is the chief industry. [FETLAR.]

Yelling, pa. and vil., S. Hunts., 7½ S. of Huntingdon; ac. 1,670; soil heavy, subsoil clay. The church of the Holy Cross (restored 1889) is Norm. The Baptists have a chapel. Here is a chalybeate spring.

Yell, Mid and South, eccl. div., pa. of Yell (q.v.), N. Shetland, Sc. The vil. of Mid Y. lies about 35 N. of Lerwick. [FETLAR.]

Yell, North, q.s. pa., pa. of Fetlar (q.v.), Shetland, Sc., about 33 N.E. of Lerwick.

Yellow River (1), N.E. K. Co., Ir., rises on the Wstm. border, and runs E.N.E. and E. by N. through Lower Philipstown and Warrenstown bars., and then about 3 E.S.E. between K. Co. and co. Meath, joining the Boyne 3 N.N.W. of Edenderry. Its total length is about 12 miles.

Yellow River (2), Carrigallen bar., S.E. co. Leit., Ir., rises 7½ W.S.W. of Swanlinbar, and runs 6 S., then 4 E. by S. to Ballinamore, after which it forms a considerable curve towards the S., entering Garadice Lough 2½ E. of Ballinamore. Its total length is about 15 miles.

Yellow River (3), Gallen bar., N. co. Mayo, Ir., runs S.W., W., and N.W., joining the Moy 3 N. of Foxford. It is about 7 miles in length.

Yell, South, q.s. pa., pa. of Yell (q.v.), N. Shetland, Sc., about 35 N. of Lerwick.

Yelvertoft, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 7 E. of Rugby; ac. 2,187; soil clay and rich loam. The church of All Saints (restored 1875) is an ancient Gothic building; in the chancel is a full-length recumbent effigy of John Dyeson (rector 1439–45), a Dec. piscina, and sedilia. Here is a Congregational chapel. The church lands produce about £60 a year, and there are some small charities.

Yelverton, pa. and vil., S. Norf., 5 S.E. of Norwich; ac. 528; soil sandy loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of the Virgin Mary (restored 1883) is Dec.; there is a fine marble mural monument to Humphrey Rant (1661), a stone floor slab with brass to Margaret Aldriche (d. 1525), and an old painted and carved oak rood-screen; the rood staircase has been restored. The charities amount to about £20 a year.

Yeo (1), river, N.W. Dors. and S. Somerset, rises about 2 S.S.E. of Milborne Port, and runs W. to Sherborne. It then runs S.W. to Thornford, after which it turns N.W., entering Somerset just before it reaches Yeovil. From Yeovil it proceeds N. by E. towards Trent, and then N.N.W. past Mudford and Ashington; beyond this point its course is W. by N. past Ilchester to the Parret, which it joins at Langport. Its length is 24 miles, and it is navigable to Ilchester.

Yeo (2), river, N.E. Somerset, rises at Compton Martin, and runs W.N.W. past Blagdon, Wrington,

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Yearsley	Ampleforth (2)	210	167
Yeaveley	Ashbourne (4½)	152	172
Yeavering	Belford (12)	323	49
Yeddingham	Heslerton (1)	218	185
Yelden	Higham Ferrers (4)	82	220
Yeldersley	Ashbourne (2½)	152	188
Yeldham, Great	Yeldham	62	619
Yeldham, Little	Yeldham	62	264
Yelford	Witney (4)	75	13
Yell	Thurso (175)	744	2511
Yelling	Offord (4)	56	316
Yell, Mid and South	Thurso (155)	744	1172
Yell, North	Thurso (183)	744	713
Yell, South	Thurso (185)	744	626
Yelvertoft	Yelvertoft	88	392
Yelverton	Norwich (5)	114	61

Congresbury, and Wick St. Lawrence to the Bristol Channel, which it enters 4 N.E. of Weston-super-Mare.

Yeo (3), river, N. Devon. It rises near Parkham, and, after an easterly course of about 8 miles, falls into the Torridge below Littleham.

Yeolmbridge, pl., pa. of Werrington (q.v.), S. Dev., about 2 N.E. of Launceston. There is a reading-room with library. An extensive slate quarry exhibits some remarkable cleavage planes in arched strata.

Yeo Mill, ha., pa. of West Anstey (q.v.), N. Dev., about 5 w. of Dulverton.

Yeoveney, pl., pa. of and about 1 N.W. from Staines (q.v.), S.W. Middx. It was formerly a chapel attached to Staines, but no remains of the chapel are to be traced.

Yeovil, mun. bor., pa., U. and mkt. to., head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., S.E. Somerset, 22 s. of Wells; ac. of bor. 654, of pa. 4,039; soil loam and sand, overlying clay. Y. is an old prescriptive bor., and has undergone considerable improvement and enlargement, and many handsome houses have been erected, especially in the southern and western quarters. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored) is Perp., and contains 15th- and 16th-cent. brasses, and several monuments to the Harbin family, as well as some to the Batten and Newman families. The Catholics and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The public buildings include the Town Hall (1849), in Italian style; the Public Baths, erected in 1884; the Victoria Temperance Hall (1887), a red-brick building; and the Constitutional Club (1889), a handsome and spacious building. The manufacture of leather gloves, for which the to. has long been celebrated, gives employment to the greater portion of the inhabitants. There are also breweries, and some brick-making is carried on. The weekly market day is Friday, for cattle, corn, meat, cheese, and flax, and the great market day every alternate Friday. Fairs are held on the last Friday in June and the third Friday in Nov. There are some charities. Woborne's Almshouses, in Bond Street, were founded in 1476 for six men and six women. The Corporation Almshouse, formerly called Portreeve's Almshouse, is for four old women. There are several seats in the neighbourhood.

Yeovil Marsh, eccl. pa., pa. of Yeovil (q.v.), S.E. Somerset. The church of All Saints (1870) is a small stone structure.

Yeovilton, pa. and vil. on the Yeo, E. Somerset, 1½ E. of Ilchester; ac. 1,720; soil clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Bartholomew is Perp. Fragments of the original Norm. structure are incorporated in the present edifice. There is a charity of £6 yearly.

Yerbeston, pa., S.E. Pembs., 5 S.W. of Narberth; ac. 1,252. The church is dedicated to St. Lawrence.

Yester, pa., S. Haddings., Sc., 4 S. by E. of Haddington; ac. 8,848; soil mostly light loam mixed with clay, overlying clay and limestone. The Established church (1708) and the Free church

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Yeovil, bor.	Yeovil	123	9648
Yeovil, pa.	Yeovil	123	10943
Yeovil Marsh	Yeovil	123	321
Yeovilton	Yeovil (4½)	123	217
Yerbeston	Narberth (4)	252	101

(1880) are at Gifford. now remaining consi a cavern, which was the castle by means —an arched apartme Hall—remains much Scott in the third ca antiquities include Newton Hall and I Marquis of Tweeddal

Yes Tor, eminenc Dev., 3½ S.S.W. of Ok

Yetholm, pa. and v The surface is hilly, is pastured by nume western boundary is a mile and a half in church has been repl black stone with dr Y. consists of two p the Bowmont. Y. p Kirk Y., an improvin distant on the right health resort for inv formerly inhabited now betaken them fairs formerly held at but an annual sheep

Yetlington. [Cal

Yetminster, pa., tp of Sherborne; ac. o clay, overlying rock St. Andrew (restored The pa. has a Wesley the minister, a Temp school, the scheme 1873. The charities

Yetson, ha., pa. of about 4 S.S.E. of Totn

Yettington, ha., p Bicton (q.v.), S. Dev.

Yewbarrow, moun 10 S.S.W. of Keswick in a pyramidal peak.

Yew Crag, rocky h Keswick. Here are s

Yewdale, mountai N. of Hawkshead. T S.W. towards Coniston and craggy, presentin

Yewdale Beck, st 1¼ S.W., and then ¾ s on its way to Conisto of Coniston.

Y Foel Fras, mount 4½ E. by N. of Bethes

Y Foel Perfedd, h Glyder Fawr, N.E. C Curig.

Y Garn, mountain 3 E. of Llanberis. G with some success in Place.	N fr

Yester	H
Yetholm, pa.	N
Yetholm, vil.	N
Yetminster, pa.	Y
Yetminster. tp.	Y

Y Garnedd Goch, mountain (2,315 ft.), Mfd Carnarvs., 5 W. by N. of Beddgelert. It is crowned by a cairn, from which there is a magnificent view.

Yieldshields and Roadmeetings, vil., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Carluke (q.v.), Mid Lanarks., Sc.

Yiewsley, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Hillingdon (q.v.), W. Middx., 3 S. of Uxbridge. The church of St. Matthew is in E. Eng. style.

Ynisedwyn, pl. at the union of the Twrch and the Tawe, pa. of Ystradgynlais (q.v.), S.W. Brecons., 8 N. by E. of Neath. Here are collieries and tin-plate works. Y. House is a seat.

Ynisher, eccl. pa., pas. of Llanwonno and Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., 3½ N.W. by W. of Pontypridd. The church of St. Ann is modern.

Ynisymond, tp., pa. of Cadoxton-juxta-Neath (q.v.), N.W. Glamorgs., 4 N.W. of Neath; ac. 1,512. Here are collieries.

Ynysawdre, tp., pa. of St. Bride Minor (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 2½ S.W. of Bridgend; ac. 387. Here are large collieries and ironworks.

Ynyscynhaiarn, pa., S. Carnarvs., 12 E. by N. of Pwllheli; ac. 5,543; soil various. Y. contains the tos. of Tremadoc (q.v.) and Portmadoc (q.v.). The church of St. Cynhaiarn at Tremadoc has been rebuilt in Gothic style. There is a Roman Catholic church, also Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels.

Ynysddu, pl., S. Carnarvs., 1½ N. of Criccieth. Near a farmhouse here are two cromlechs, the larger of which has four uprights.

Ynys-Enlli. [BARDSEY ISLAND.]

Ynys-Gwylan-Fawr and Ynys-Gwylan-Fach, islets on east side of Aberdaron Bay, S.W. Carnarvs., 1½ S.S.E. of Aberdaron.

Ynys Head, headland, S.W. Cornw., 3 N.W. of Lizard Point.

Ynys-Pyr, the Welsh name of Caldy Island. [CALDY (2).]

Ynys-Seiriol. [PUFFIN ISLAND (1).]

Ynys-y-Geryn, pl. on the Neath, pa. of and 2½ N.E. from Neath (q.v.), N.W. Glamorgs. Here are tin-works. Ynys-y-Geryn is a seat.

Yockleton, eccl. pa., pa. of Westbury (q.v.), W. Salop, 6 W. of Shrewsbury. The church of Holy Trinity (1861) is in E. Eng. style.

Yokefleet, tp. on the Ouse, pa. of and 7 S. by E. from Howden (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,027 and 93 water. Y. Hall is a seat.

Yokenthwaite, ha., pa. of Arncliffe (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 4 N.W. of Kettlewell.

Yoker, vil., pa. of Old Kilpatrick (q.v.), S.E. Dumbarts., 1 N. of Renfrew. It has a shipbuilding yard and a distillery.

Yoolfield, vil., pa. of Kemback (q.v.), N.E. Fifes., Sc., 3 E. by N. of Cupar.

Yordas Cave, limestone cavern, W.R. Yorks., 4 N. of Ingleton. A rude natural archway gives access to a chamber 180 ft. in length and 60 ft. in height, connected by a narrow passage with an inner chamber of circular form, terminating in a beautiful alcove, down which rushes an impetuous stream. There are a number of stalactites in fantastic forms.

York, ancient city, mun., parl., and co. bor., head of an archiepiscopal see, and the second city in England in point of rank. It is situated in a rich valley at the confluence of the Ouse and Foss, near the junction of the three Ridings, and locally in the North Riding, but is a city and co. in itself, and the capital of the great shire to which it gives its name. The history of Y. begins with the Roman occupation, although an early British settlement existed here; the name "Eboracum," which the Romans bestowed on this colony, was not a new appellation, but the Latinised form of the name "Evrawc" or "Eurewic," already in use. From the time of the Conquest Y. has played a considerable part in English history, and has been visited by many English sovereigns. Here Edward III. was married to Philippa of Hainault (1328). Richard II., in 1389, presented his sword to the Mayor, to be borne in all public processions, and conferred the title of "Lord Mayor." Richard III. was crowned here (1483); and in 1639 Charles I. held a council at the Manor Palace, and in 1641 made the city his headquarters during the struggle with the Parliament. After Marston Moor the Parliamentary forces besieged the city for four months, and it surrendered July 4, 1644. On Jan. 30, 1646, a sum of £400,000 was paid here to the Scots for the surrender of Charles I. to the English, and at the Restoration Charles II. was proclaimed here. The exact date of the erection of the present city walls is unknown, but only the inner structure of the bars and a portion of the wall above the Layerthorpe postern present any distinct Norm. features, and these of late date; the walls everywhere follow the line of the embankment thrown up after the Roman occupation, and are built upon it; the portion near to Foss Island appears to be of Edwardian date, but much of the superstructure is far later. The gates or "bars," which occur at intervals in the walls, chiefly belong to the 14th cent., though the lower arches of some are earlier. The castle was founded in Norm. times, but the oldest portions now standing date from the 12th cent.; it is now used as a county prison, and the Assize Courts adjoin it on the south-west. The cathedral church of St. Peter, or York Minster, is one of the largest and most magnificent structures of the kind in Europe; the original foundation dates from 626, but the present building was reconsecrated in 1472, after rebuilding. In 1829 the choir was set on fire by a fanatic, when great damage was done, and another serious fire took place in 1840. In plan the Minster is cruciform; the transepts have both eastern and western aisles. The simplicity of this plan is very little disturbed by external chapels or buildings, with the exception of the chapter-house and of a few chapels on the south side of the choir, to which there were formerly corresponding chapels on the north. A tower rises in the centre, and in the centre of each side of the eastern limb of the cross one compartment of the aisles is carried up to the roof, so as to form a kind of eastern transept; there are also

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Yieldshields and R.	Carluke (1½)	381	341
Yiewsley	West Drayton	13	2623
Ynisher	Ynisher	175	5081
Ynisymond	.....	.....	417
Ynysawdre	Bridgend (2½)	183	1048

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ynyscynhaiarn	Criccieth (2½)	265	5224
Yockleton	Yockleton	170	346
Yokefleet	Eastrington	182	151
York	York	188	67004

two western towers. The internal length is 524 ft., the length of the transept 222 ft.; the choir is 131 ft. in length and 99 ft. high; and the nave and aisles are 264 ft. in length and 109 ft. in width, and 99 ft. high. The transepts are E. Eng., the nave Dec., and the choir Perp. The western towers are almost wholly of the Perp. period. The crypt, built by Archbishop Roger (1154–81), is Norm., but some portions are possibly of Saxon date. The west front is said to be "more architecturally perfect than any other English cathedral." The palace is about three miles from the city, but the Deanery, Library, and Residentiary are in the Close. There are also a large number of churches (many of them ancient and interesting), Catholic churches, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies.

York, from the Walls.
(Photo. Joseph Duncan, York.)

St. Peter's School was founded by Queen Mary in 1557, in connection with the cathedral; there are several other educational foundations, eighteen almshouses for 160 poor persons, and important charities for distribution. The Mansion House, erected in 1725, contains a valuable series of portraits; the Guildhall is a Perp. structure, and adjoining are the New Municipal Offices. The new Courts of Justice were opened in 1892; here also are the Police Offices and those of the School Board. The Public Library (1892) affords accommodation to the Fine Art Institute and School of Art. The city has also a theatre, subscription library, a Philosophical Society with a good museum, Assembly Rooms, and social and political clubs. The principal branches of trade are manufactures of confectionery, artificial manure, combs, and joiners' planes; there are also iron-foundries, railway-carriage works, corn-mills, maltings, breweries and tanneries. Of the Benedictine abbey of St. Mary there are remains, including the fine west front; and the city still retains some excellent examples of the half-timbered house of the Middle Ages; but these are gradually being reduced in number.

Yorkshire, the largest county in England and nearly as large as Wales. It lies on the shores of the North Sea, between the Frith of the Humber and the mouth of the Tees. On the south the Humber and other rivers lie between it and Lincs., Notts., and Derbys.; on the south-west it has Chesh., on the west Lancs., on the north-west Westmd., on the north Dur., and on the east and north-east the shores of the North Sea. Its form is irregular, but its greatest length is from Spurn Head, on the south-east, to the junction of the cos. of Westmd. and Dur., on the north-west, a distance of about 124 miles. In the opposite direction, from the junction of Lancs. and Chesh. on the south-west to Whitby on the north-east coast, the breadth is about 90 miles. Yorks. had formerly several districts known as shires and dales, but is now commonly divided into three Ridings—East, North, and West. The Ridings are for many purposes shires by themselves, having their own lord-lieutenant, militia, members of Parliament, coroners, registrars, and justices of the peace; but there is only one sheriff for the whole of Yorks. The early history of Yorks. is little known; the Romans held it till about the year 400. On the Romans becoming weak, the Welsh rose, while the Scots and Picts wasted the open lands, and the Saxons and English devastated the shore. In later times it was laid waste under William the Conqueror. The wars of the Roses shed its blood of many, but in the time of Elizabeth the land got rest and grew in wealth. It shared, however, in the warfare of the Commonwealth, and

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Yorkshire	.....	 3208828

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Yorkshire, E. Riding	.....	..... 241[illegible]

here were fought the great battles of Selby and Marston Moor.

Yorkshire, East Riding, the smallest of the three Ridings, lying in the south-east of the co.; it is bounded on the north and north-west by the North Riding and the Derwent, on the east by the North Sea, on the south by the Humber, and on the west by the Ouse and the West Riding; its length from east to west is 45 miles, and from north to south about 35 miles; ac. 750,828. The soil on the Wolds is light, and of no great depth, but in other parts it varies, the low marshlands being generally known for their fertility. Hull is the only parl. bor.; Beverley and Hedon are mun. bors.; other towns are Bridlington, Great Driffield, Norton, Pocklington, Filey, Hessle, Howden, Market Weighton, and Patrington. The chief railway system is that of the North-Eastern and its branches, and in addition there are some canals. Roman roads cross the Riding, and remains indicating Roman occupation have been discovered. The surface is hilly in the north and centre, the Wolds extending from Flamborough Head to the borders of the Riding on the west and thence to the shores of the Humber; the land to the east and west is level, and of a clayey and marshy nature, and for the most part well drained. The mineral productions are alum, shale, fireclay, and ironstone. The physical structure of the Riding is simple and easily understood; there is a central axis of chalk, which runs from the Humber northwards to Settrington, and then curves eastwards to Flamborough Head. The Triassic rocks are here of a clayey or marly nature, in many places covered by the drift; and of the Rhætic beds there is no good exposure. The Lias crosses the Humber south of Brough, and from this point it may be traced as a low escarpment northwards by North Cave, North Cliff, Market Weighton, and Burnby to Kirby Underdale and Howsham, where it crosses the Derwent. Rocks of Oolitic age are exposed in two distinct localities —firstly, in the north-west corner of the Riding, between Kirkham and Norton; and secondly, in a narrow band running southwards from near Sancton by South Cave to the Humber. The chalk, much harder than that of the south of England, covers the greater part of the Riding, in the south of which, below Beverley, occurs the plain of Holderness, consisting of deposits of Quaternary age. Many traces of Man of the New Stone Age have been met with, and there seem to have been manufactories of flint implements in many places on the Wolds. The Riding has three parl. divs. (Buckrose, Holderness, and Howdenshire), each returning one member.

Yorkshire, North Riding. This, the second in size, is bounded on the north by the Tees, which separates it from Durham; on the west by Westmorland; on the south-west by the West Riding, from which it is partly separated by the Ouse; on the south-east by the Derwent and the East Riding, the North Sea being its eastern boundary. The greatest length from north to south is about 50 miles, and from west to east it is 85 miles long; ac. 1,361,664. It is very thinly peopled in proportion to its area; this may be attributed to the hilly nature of the country, a great portion of which is bleak moorland. Stretching inland for a distance of about 30 miles is a succession of barren moorlands, about 15 miles in breadth, which attain the height in some parts of 1,400 ft.; north of this moorland district and bordering on the Tees is the Vale of Cleveland. The western portion of the co. is occupied by a mountainous district. At Stamford Bridge was fought the battle between Harold and Tostig in 1066; and the celebrated Battle of the Standard in 1138, between the English under Thurstan, Archbishop of York, and the Scotch with King David at their head, was fought near Northallerton; a hill near the to. is still called Standard Hill. The Riding is watered by the Tees, the Derwent, and the Rye, the Swale, the Esk, and the Ure, with their tributaries. Besides these there are numerous streams, locally called "becks," and also many waterfalls, some of great height and beauty. The Riding is traversed by the lines of the North-Eastern Railway Company, and others in connection therewith. Traces of Roman military roads are visible between York and Whitby, and also through the Vale of York. An ancient encampment is at Ampleforth, and at Danby are British earthworks; on the Wolds are tumuli and many barrows. Many ruinous castles still remain—viz., Bowes, Middleham, Richmond, Snape, Scarborough, Crayke, Harlsey, Pickering, and Castle Bolton; in this last Mary Queen of Scots was confined several months. Of ruins of monastic establishments there are Rievaulx Abbey, Jerveaux Abbey, Coverham Abbey, St. Agatha's Abbey, near Richmond; Mount Grace Priory, near Ingleby Arncliffe; Whitby Abbey, and Byland Abbey. The mun. bors. are Middlesbrough, Richmond, Scarborough, and Thornaby-on-Tees; other tos. are Whitby, Guisborough, Malton, Northallerton, Thirsk, Pickering, Easingwold, and Stokesley. The manufacture of pig-iron is the only one of any magnitude, and this is confined to the district round Middlesbrough. Linen-weaving is carried on to some extent in the neighbourhood of Yarm and Northallerton. At Whitby shipbuilding has been carried on for centuries. The fisheries are of great importance, there being many smack owners both at Whitby and Scarborough. From a geological point the N.R. includes a large variety of rocks. To the Carboniferous Formation belongs the Mountain Limestone, well exposed between Hawes and Middleham. The Yoredale Rocks, which succeed, are composed of sandstones (flagstones) and shales with some limestone bands; they contain good veins of lead ore which are worked at several points. Here intrusive sheets of basalt occur. The Millstone Grit, between Masham, Bedale, and Melsonby, forms comparatively low, flat ground, but to the westward it rises and forms a capping to the highest hills. The Permian or Magnesian limestone forms a high escarpment from Tanfield Bridge to Thornton Watlass, and occurs in irregular patches near Little Crakehall and Catterick. Triassic beds compose the Vale of York, a comparatively low level tract of land which runs from Middlesbrough and Croft on the north, southwards, past Northallerton and Myton, to and beyond York. The Liassic beds are of great thickness; they form the easterly parts of the Vales of York and Cleveland, the slopes of the moorland hills which are capped by oolite, and are exposed along the sides of many inland valleys.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Yorkshire, N. Riding	.....	.....	360383

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Yorkshire, W. Riding	.....	.....	2439895

The Middle Lias yields iron ore, and the Lower Lias jet. The oolites may be said to occupy the northern part of the Riding from east to west. The surface accumulations seem all to be post-glacial, and the deposits have been formed by the rivers, which in the low ground frequently rise above their banks. The chief traces of prehistoric man consist of tools and weapons of Neolithic age.

Yorkshire, West Riding, the largest of the three Ridings, having for its bounds East Yorks., North Yorks., Derbys., Chesh., and Lancs., and is altogether inland; it is greater than any English shire; ac. 1,768,380. The surface of the Riding is in a great part hilly, more particularly so in the north-west on the borders of Westmd., where the ground rises to above 2,000 ft. On the extreme east the ground is low and marshy. The Riding is well watered, many of the rivers being navigable. The principal rivers are the Ouse, Aire, Ribble, Nidd, Don, Calder, Ure, and the Wharfe. The Riding is well supplied with railways, and in addition the numerous canals afford great facilities for the transit of the manufactures. West Yorks. is one of the greatest manufacturing districts in the world. Its woollen manufacture ranks next to the cotton trade in importance of the textile productions of England. Cotton spinning and manufacturing and silk spinning is carried on to some extent in the Riding, and hardware and cutlery at Sheffield. Cards for carding woollen and cotton cloth are largely produced, also hackles and gills for flax-dressing. Of the crops raised, besides the usual cereals, flax and teasels are grown; cream cheese is made at Grewelthorpe, and the Ribston pippin derived its name from a place in this Riding. The mineral waters of Harrogate and the hydropathic establishments of Ilkley are much patronised, and cause an influx of many thousand persons yearly. The Yorks. coalfield is about 45 miles by 20 miles, between the Aire and the Don. The parl. and mun. bors. are Bradford, Dewsbury, Halifax, Huddersfield, Leeds, Pontefract, Sheffield, and Wakefield; and the mun. bors. Barnsley, Batley, Doncaster, Morley, Ripon, and Rotherham. The oldest rocks in Yorks. are Silurian, and these occur in the north-west corner of the Riding. Of the Carboniferous Formation the Mountain Limestone ranges east and west from Clitheroe to Skipton, and again from near Ingleborough, by Settle, to Kilnsey and Hartlington; the Yoredale rocks run from the moors about the upper part of the Derwent in the south-west, west of Halifax to Bowland Forest, curving round thence to the east by Harrogate; the Millstone Grit occupies most of the western part of the Riding as far south as Leeds. These last-named beds are largely worked for building stone. The Yorks. coalfield forms the northern portion of a great mass of coal-bearing strata, which extends southwards in Derbys. and Notts., as far at least as the river Trent. The Yorks. coal-seams are believed, with good reason, to have once been continuous with those of Lancs. But the upheaval of the Pennine Chain severed the connection; and another (probably earlier) upheaval in the north, acting along an east and west line, separated them from the Newcastle coalfield. They consist of Lower, Middle, and Upper Series,

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
York Town	Camberley	35	3004
Youghal, pa.	Youghal	193	6321

containing numerou occupying a large
Riding from Leeds t
Coal Measures is ob here also is found i with sulphur. East
Millstone Grit are Pe
for building stone;
lies the Vale of York mainly soft, thick-be interstratified pebbl alluvial deposits. T been found, and at to have been in th
manufactory of flint
Riding is divided int part has five divs.
Skipton, and Sower
eight divs. (Barnsl
Hallamshire, Holmf
Rotherham); and (Barkston Ash, Pud and Spen Valley), ea

York Town, eccl.
N.E. Surrey, 12 N.W.
St. Michael is in E.
College was first occ

York Walk, one
Dean Forest, W. Glo
Duke of York during Youghal (pron. "

(s.), and seaport at
S. co. Cork, Ir., 30
formerly a parl. bor.
to 1885. The bay
3 miles, and is shelte is considerably open

Sir Walter R

constitutes the harb antiquity, and is sai
Ptolemy; it seems t
by a band of Norwe
the 12th cent. the
and colonised the traffickers from Brist
King John; and Cro
here in 1649. Y. is memory of Sir Walt scarcely altered from was Mayor of Y. in 15 of his domain, now c to have first planted

| Place. | N
f |
|---|---|
| Youghal, to. | Y |

principally of one street, nearly a mile long, divided into two parts, between which is a lofty square building, the Clock Gate, surmounted by a dome and cupola. The Protestant church of St. Mary is Gothic, with a low square tower; several very ancient families are buried within its walls. The Catholics have a church and a convent, and the Wesleyans have a place of worship. The Custom House, the Sessions House, and the Bridewell are the chief public buildings. The harbour is safe and commodious, but a bar stretches across the mouth of it. There are several good quays and piers for discharging merchandise. The staple trade of the to. is the exportation of corn, provisions, bricks, and earthenware, and the importation of coal, culm, timber, and slate. The annual fairs are Ascension Day and Oct. 18, and there are monthly cattle fairs.

Youghalarra, pa. on a small inlet of Lough Derg, Owney and Arra bar., N.W. co. Tip., Ir., 4½ W. of Nenagh; ac. 7,796. There are extensive slate quarries.

Youghal Bay. [YOUGHAL.]

Youlgreave, pa., tp., and vil., W. Derbys., 5 S.W. of Bakewell; ac. of pa. 12,200, of tp. 2,398; soil light limestone, overlying shale and stone beds. The church of All Saints (restored 1869–70) is of various periods; the most ancient monument in the church is the stone effigy of a cross-legged knight holding a heart in his clasped hands and girt with a cross-hilted sword; more exquisite, as a monument, is a small 15th-cent. altar-tomb of alabaster, on which is the figure of a man in armour, finely and skilfully carved, with his head resting upon a helmet and wearing round his neck a Yorkist collar of suns and roses. There are several other interesting monuments. The charities amount to about £12 yearly.

Youlthorpe-with-Gowthorp, tp., pa. of Bishop Wilton (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. of Pocklington; ac. 1,088.

Youlton, tp., pa. of and 2 S.S.W. from Alne (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 803. Y. Hall, occupied as a farmhouse, is said to have been the halting-place of James I. in his journeys between London and Edinburgh.

Youngfield Island, in Bantry Bay, pa. of Kilcaskan (q.v.), S.W. co. Cork, Ir.; ac. 308.

Youngsbury, pl., pa. of Thundridge (q.v.), E. Herts., 2 N.E. of Ware.

Yoxall, pa. and large and pleasant vil., E. Staffs., 7 N.N.E. of Lichfield; ac. 4,795; soil rich red marl and loam. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is Norm. and later; the church contains a very fine altar-tomb, with recumbent marble effigies of Humphrey Welles (1565) and Mary his wife (1584), and some other monuments. The pa. has a cottage hospital, and charities amounting to about £32 yearly. Longcroft Hall and Y. Lodge are seats.

Yoxford, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 4 N. of Saxmundham; ac. 2,724; soil mixed and heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is Perp.; it contains several ancient brasses and monuments to the Blois, Brooke, and other families. Cockfield Hall and Grove Park are seats.

Yr Aran. [SNOWDON.]

Yr Arryg, mountain, N.E. Carnarvs., 3½ E. of Bethesda.

Yr Eifl. [RIVALS, THE.]

Yr Elen, mountain, N.E. Carnarvs., 3 E. by S. of Bethesda. The summit commands a fine view.

Yrfon, or Irvon, river, N.W. Brecons., rises 9 E. of Tregaron, and runs S.S.E. between Llanddewi-Abergwessin and Llanfihangel-Abergwessin, and past Llanwrtyd to Llanwrtyd Wells, whence it pursues its course E.N.E. by Llangammarch to Llanafanfechan to the Wye at Builth. Its length is about 20 miles.

Yr Orsedd, mountain, N.E. Carnarvs., 2 N. of Llanfairfechan. The summit commands a fine view.

Ysceifiog, pa. and vil., N.W. Flints., 2 S.E. of Caerwys; ac. 6,077; soil mostly fertile, overlying limestone. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1837) is in E. Eng. style.

Yscir, river, Mid Brecons., is formed by the union of two streams, Yscir Fawr and Yscir Fechan, which have their source within a mile of one another, 7½ S.W. of Builth. They flow about 8 S.S.E., and unite 4 N.W. of Brecknock. The stream then runs 3 S., joining the Usk 3 W. of Brecknock.

Yscir Fawr, ha., pa. of Merthyr Cynog (q.v.), Mid Brecons., 10 N.W. of Brecknock.

Yscir Fechan, ha., pa. of Merthyr Cynog (q.v.), Mid Brecons., 10 N.W. of Brecknock.

Yselydach, tp. on the Clydach, pa. of Llywel (q.v.), W. Brecons., 9 W. by N. of Brecknock; ac. 3,727.

Yspytty Cynfyn, eccl. pa. on the Rheidol, pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), N.E. Cardigs., 11 E. by S. of Aberystwyth. The church of St. John the Baptist is a plain stone building.

Yspytty Ivan, pa. and vil. on the Conway, S.W. Denbighs. and S.E. Carnarvs., 5½ S.S.E. of Bettws-y-Coed; ac. 17,731. The church of St. John the Baptist is a small plain edifice.

Yspytty Ystradmeurig, pa., E. Cardigs., 6 N. by E. of Tregaron; ac. 956; soil partly sandy, overlying clay slate. The church of St. John the Baptist, an E. Eng. edifice, is no longer used for Divine service. The Grammar School was founded in 1757.

Yspytty Ystwyth, pa. and vil. on the Ystwyth, N.E. Cardigs., 9 N.N.E. of Tregaron; ac. 12,929; soil various. The church of St. John the Baptist is a plain modern edifice.

Ystalyfera, vil., pa. of Llanguick (q.v.), N.W. Glamorgs., 7½ N. of Neath. The church of St. David (1890) is in E. Eng. style. Here are extensive ironworks.

Ystrad (1), ha., pa. of Llandingat (q.v.), N.E. Carmarths., 2 S. of Llandovery.

Ystrad (2), vil., pa. of Ystradgynlais (q.v.), S.W. Brecons., 8 N. of Neath.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Youghalarra	Nenagh (4½)	97	859
Youlgreave, pa.	Bakewell (5)	153	3593
Youlgreave, tp.	Bakewell (5)	153	1164
Youlthorpe-w.-G.	Pocklington (5)	198	96
Youlton	Tollerton (2)	197	39
Yoxall	Armitage (3)	121	1286
Yoxford	Darsham (½)	95	1047

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ysceifiog	Nannerch (2)	199	1165
Yselydach	Derynock (3)	193	237
Yspytty Cynfyn	Aberystwyth (11)	243	843
Yspytty Ivan	Bettws-y-Coed (6)	239	791
Yspytty Ystrad.	Strata Florida (½)	257	126
Yspytty Ystwyth	Strata Florida (3)	257	711

Ystrad (3), ha., pa. of St. Ishmael (q.v.), S.W. Carmarths., 3 W. of Kidwelly.

Ystrad (4), ha., pa. of Llanegwad (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 7 E. of Carmarthen.

Ystrad (5). [YSTRAD RHONDDA.]

Ystrad (6). [ARGOED AND YSTRAD.]

Ystrad (7). [GARTH AND YSTRAD.]

Ystrad Ffyn, eccl. pa., pas. of Cilycwm and Llanfair-ar-y-Bryn (q.v.), N.E. Carmarths., 8 N. by E. of Llandovery. The church of St. Barnabas is a modern edifice.

Ystradgynlais, pa. on the Tawe, S.W. Brecons., 9 N. by E. of Neath; ac. 22,199. The church of St. Gunleus (1860) is a plain edifice. The pa. contains Baptist, Welsh Methodist, and Congregational chapels. There are several collieries and tinplate works. Craig-y-Nos Castle is pleasantly situated beside the Tawe; the mansion, a large edifice in Italian style, has a clock-tower of 100 ft., a theatre, and a winter garden.

Ystradgynlais, Higher, tp., pa. of Ystradgynlais (q.v.), S.W. Brecons., 12 N.N.E. of Neath; ac. 9,016.

Ystradgynlais, Lower, tp., pa. of Ystradgynlais (q.v.), S.W. Brecons., 12 N. by E. of Neath; ac. 13,183.

Ystradowen, pa., S.E. Glamorgs., 2 N.N.E. of Cowbridge; ac. 1,568; soil mostly productive. The church of St. Owain is a plain modern structure. Ash Hall, an ancient mansion, has been modernised.

Ystrad Rhondda, or Ystrad, ha., pa. of Ystradvelltey (q.v.), S.W. Brecons., 8 N.W. of Pontypridd.

Ystradvelltey, pa. and vil. on the Mellte, S.W. Brecons., 9½ W.N.W. of Merthyr Tydfil; ac. 19,355. The church of St. Mary is an ancient E. Eng. edifice.

Ystradyfodwg, pa. and tp. on the Rhondda, E. Glamorgs., 4½ S.S.W. of Aberdare; ac. of pa. 25,023, of tp. 19,441. The pa. contains a large number of vils., the inhabitants of which are engaged in the numerous collieries. The church of St. John (1894) is in E. Eng. style. There are several chapels-of-ease, also Nonconformist chapels.

Ystwyth, river, N.E. Cardigs., rises in the south-west of Montgoms. and, after flowing about 2 S.W., enters Cardigs. Its course is then W. by S. past Eglwysnewydd, Hafod, and Yspytty Ystwyth to Llanafan, where it turns N.W., and, running by Crosswood and Llanilar, joins the Rheidol, and enters Cardigan Bay at Aberystwyth after a course of about 25 miles.

Ystyngwilly, ha., pa. of Abergwilly (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., about 2 N.E. of Carmarthen.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ystrad Ffyn	Llandovery (1)	228	680
Ystradgynlais	Ystalyfera (2)	212	4326
Ystradgynlais, H.	Ystalyfera (2)	212	574
Ystradgynlais, L.	Ystalyfera (2)	212	3752
Ystradowen	Ystradowen	177	215
Ystradvelltey	Glyn Neath (5)	187	594

Ythan, river, N.E. of Ythan, 7 E. of F through Auchterless Fyvie pa., S.E. throu pas., E. and S.E. thr pas., and finally S. and Logie Buchan It enters the North According to tradi Scottish crown was abounds in salmon ar

Ythan Wells, q.s. terless (q.v.), N.E. A

Y Tryfan, mounta S.S.E. of Bethesda.

Y Waen-Oer, prec Glyder Fach, N.E. C

Y Wyddfa. [SNO

Zawn Kellis or G Cornw., about 1¾ S.E

Zeal Monachorum Dev., 7 N.W. of Cred and clay, with a roc Peter is E. Perp. £20 a year. Bursto

Zeals Green, eccl. from Mere (q.v.), S. (1846) is in Gothic houses, a Congrega school carried on Primitive Methodist

Zeal, South, vil., Tawton (q.v.), S. De mkt. to. The chape

Zelah, vil., pa. of (q.v.), Mid Cornw.

Zennor, pa., S.W. 4,229; soil clay-sl church of St. Senar E. Eng. windows. ancient crosses. In consisting of a cro stone circle, logan s

Zetland. [SHETL

Zoze Point, headl St. Mawes, and near

PLACE.
Ystradyfodwg, pa.
Ystradyfodwg, tp.
Ythan Wells
Zeal Monachorum
Zeals Green
Zennor

PRINTED BY CASSELL & COMPANY, LIMITED, LA BELLE SAUVAGE, SOCIAL SCIENCE

REFERENCE
Stanford University Libraries
3 6105 022 608 942
CIRCULATE